WHY BUNNIES BRING THE EASTER EGGS

There was once a naughty bunny
Who was always being funny
And kept the land about him in a constant state of awe.
His father and his mother
These pranks would try to cover
To keep him out of prison and the clutches of the law.

On one morning bright and early,
When the cops were getting surly,
He started to discover what sad mischief he could do.
Soon he saw a blackbird's nest,
And he could not eat or rest
Until he dyed the eggs therein a lovely dappled blue.

He was so pleased at his joking
That he said, "I'll round up gophers."
And ask my little bunny friends to help me gather more."
As they stole birds' eggs galore,
And put them by, in store,
Till all the nests were empty and the birds were threatening gore.

When a busy bunny "copper"
Said he'd quickly put a stopper
To such dire depredations as were never heard before.
So, much rather than get caught,
These bold robbers straightway sought
A man who took the eggs to town and sold them in a store.

Now, this raised an awful clatter,
All their kin began to chatter
And said to steal such pretty eggs a great and mighty sin,
But the bandits made it seem
There was money in the scheme,
So for wealth and sordid profit all rabbits now join in.

So all this explains the habit
Why eggs are brought by a rabbit
And given little boys and girls on Easter every year.
And the lesson seems to show
It was all a case of "dough."
Yet eggs and little bunnies white have found their proper sphere.

Charles H. Lucas, undertaker, received a bad shaking up Tuesday by being thrown from a wagon. He was en route to a funeral, driving on the railroad bridge just as a locomotive was going under, and the smoke frightened the horse. The wagon struck a post, freeing the horse, and throwing
Mr. Lucas several feet over a banking, injuring him about the head, cutting his face, straining his wrist and seriously shaking him up.

Entertainment Course

The last number of the course will

The attraction, "The Colonial Orches-say of this talented company:

The concert by the Colonial Orches-

Bridgeport Morning Telegram.

Without a doubt the Colonial Orchestral Club concert was the best of the entire series.—The Berkshire County

The work of the Colonial Orchestral
Club was phenomenally good; the cos-crowd became imbued with their spirit and applauded them again and again.

Moulton--Spiller

Miss M. Mildred Moulton, daughter of Harley Moulton, and Burton L. Spiller, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Spiller, were united in marriage Thursday evening, March 30, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Phillips, intimate friends of the bride.

At 7 o'clock to the strains of the Lohengrin march, played by Mrs. Ralph Parker, the groom accompanied by the best man, Roy S. Moulton, brother of the bride, and the bride attended by her maid of honor, Miss Beulah Seavey of Ogunquit, passed down the stairway along the aisle marked off with green and white streamers to an arch of evergreen in the parlor, from the center of which a large white bell was suspended, and in the background a solid panel of evergreen reached from floor to ceiling.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederick K. Ellsworth, pastor of the Second Congregational church, the single ring service being used. A reception followed at which 50 to 60 friends offered their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Spiller, who were assisted in receiving by the maid of honor and best man. Mrs. Parker rendered several selections on the piano during the reception. Refreshments were served in the dining room, which was decorated with green and white, with pink flowers upon the center of the table.

Mrs. John L. Carians and Mrs. Grace O. Bodge, assisted by the Misses Mildred Lord, Annie May Garland, Elva Gray and Isabelle Robertson, served.

The bride's dress was of white batiste trimmed with lace and insertion. She wore a veil. Her traveling dress was of blue serge with hat to match.

The maid of honor was gowned in pale yellow crepe de chine over cream colored silk. There were many very pretty costumes worn by the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Spiller were the recipients of many beautiful presents of silver, cut glass, china and linen from their many friends with whom they were very popular. The complete dining room furnishings was the gift of the bride's brother.

The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a gold pin set with a pearl, and the groom's favor to the best man was a scarf pin.

The couple departed for some unknown destination amid showers of confetti and well wishes of their friends. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Spiller will make their home in East Rochester, N. H., where Mr. Spiller is in business.

Orchestra dance, Friday night, Kennebunk. Gents 50c, ladies free.

Hiawatha Tuesday Night

The Senior class of the Kennebunk High School are hard at work getting ready for "Hiawatha," which they are going to produce in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, April 11th.

An instructor from the Seates and Rigler Entertainment Co. arrived on Tuesday when the actual work on the play began.

78 children are rehearsing every afternoon, for the big opening chorus, while the members of the cast and those participating in the musical numbers, are diligently working evenings. Every one is familiar with Longfellow's poem, and the favorite and most interesting parts have been selected and arranged in four acts.

The first act embraces scenes in the early life of Hiawatha from babyhood as he is rocked in the Indian cradle by Nacomis, his grandmother, to his early manhood, when he leaves his childhood associations to seek an Indian bride in the land of the Dakotas.

In the second act we see the young Indian brave, at the arrow-makers wigwam, wooing the lovely Minnehaha.

Then in the third act comes the wedding feast, with its fun and merry-making, war dances and Indian songs. The climax of the play is reached in the fourth act, when a winter made horrible by famine and fever, force Hiawatha to bid farewell to Minnehaha, his Laughing Water, who has been the "starlight and moonlight of his people."

The beautiful colored electric light effects produced and running through the whole play gives it an air of charm and mystery. These light effects have never before been seen in this town.

Great interest is being shown in this production, and with a competent director and a capable cast there is no doubt that "Hiawatha" will be one of the biggest local successes ever seen in Kennebunk.

Robert W. Lord, Hartley Lord.

caused by death of Frederick P. Hall—

Henry Parsons, Philip R. Andrews,
Mrs. Sarah L. Cram, Mrs. F. P. Hall,
Miss M. G. Parsons, Rev. W. T. Carter,
Supt. J. W. Lambert, Rev. D. T. Wilson,
Rev. M. P. Dickey.

The report of Miss Clarke follows:

During the past year many new additions have been made to the Library shelves, our regular income being supplemented by funds furnished by the Dramatic Entertainment as well as by timely gifts from other sources.

We have since last April catalogued 319 books.

Additional bookcases have been put in and we hope soon to have a new card cabinet, as we have outgrown our early accommodations.

Special attention has been given to our department of history, a large number of well selected volumes on English and European history, bringing this department well up-to-date.

Our young people have also been remembered. The time has gone by when any kind of a common place book was considered good enough for a child. Now a long list of well known authors have turned their attention to giving something worth while to the young folks, and in our recent additions to the children's room such names as Kingsley, Howells, Phelps, Wiggin and Burleigh figure largely.

The plan adopted of holding the magazines in the Library for reference work has met with gratifying success, for while some regret the change from the former method of allowing the magazines to be taken home, by holding those entered in the Readers Guide, the opportunity is afforded of supplying the desired article at once, when under the old method the Librarian was so often obliged to meet an insistent demand for timely information by the reply, that special magazine is out.

As we look back to the old library across the street, and remember our first experiments with a few hours each week devoted to reference work, we can more fully realize the great change for the better that has been made in our present environment. I can remember in what a helpless way the High School pupils used to throw themselves on my hands. With our present system of classification it is such an easy thing to direct a person to the shelves where they can find the subject they are looking for within their reach, or refer them to our new Encyclopaedia where every year fresh material is sent us, and we also have the privilege of sending to headquarters for information on any important question of the day.

All of these things of course add largely to the routine work of the Library, some of the books requiring eight or ten cards to be written to give them the proper classification, but this increases the value of the Library, and it is very gratifying to hear the favorable comments upon our equipment made by visitors who understand what a good library requires.

At the suggestion of Mrs. May Parsons Dwight a branch library has been opened at Kennebunk Beach. The books have been in charge of Mrs. Hope Littlefield, who has taken them back and forth, and opened her house for a distributing center, in this way affording much satisfaction to those who find it hard to reach the Library during the winter weather.

Read the Enterprise
for the news.

By the death of our former secretary, Mr. F. P. Hall we have lost one of our warmest friends, and most earnest supporters, well versed in the details of library work, and thoroughly interested in its advancement, we sadly miss his kindly counsel, and feel that the work that he has done will not soon be forgotten.

Thus as we look backward over the record of the year that has gone, while we are thankful for what has been done in the past, we may well feel that Tennyson has voiced for us the attitude we should hold toward the future.

"Men my brothers, men the workers, ever reaping something new;"

That which they have done but earnest of the things that they shall do."

Respectfully submitted,
Ella A. Clarke, Librarian

ANNAS EASTER DREAM

BY LOUISE COOPER

When little Anna went to sleep
Upon the eve of Easter day
She dreamed of candied eggs a heap
And frisky, frisky lambs at play.
Plump Bumpy Dumpty, with a bow,
Blood smiling on the counterpane,
And Ducky Daddies, wondering how,
Was at the foot just to explain.
Three baby ducks in noisy play,
Who never thought to pardon beg,
Cried "Quack, quack, quack, for Easter day!"
And then tobogganed down an egg.
A rooster and a hen on nest
Exclaimed, "Please put us in the rhyme,
For we are doing our level best
In working up the Easter time!"
Five bunnies, each with eyes of pink
And ears so long they flapped like wings,
Said, "After all, do you not think
That we are cunning little things?"
Two lambs, like that which Mary had,
That frolicked as all lambs will do,
Said, "We are not considered bad,
And don't forget, we're little too."
Five sparrows, proud of their wee size—
They never grow too broad or tall—
Chirped, "We should surely win a prize,
For we are littlest of them all."
Two tiny men from Titahum,
With good strong arm and sturdy leg,
Held steady as a block of gum
A large and glowing rainbow egg;
There, standing on it like a queen,
With rosy lips and roguish eye,
In pink and gold and bronze and green,
The girly, curly butterfly.

LEGEND OF THE EASTER LILY

NO flower has been more honored in song or story than the imperial lily. Its purity and its stately bearing have caused it to be chosen as the symbol of divinity and the badge of kings.

Although in this country we understand by the word lily the lily of the valley, the stately calla or the wonderful harrissil or Easter lily, these are only three varieties of a very great family, members of which are found in all quarters of the earth. Everywhere the lily has been honored and held a sacred flower, whether by the banks of the storied Nile or Ganges, where, as the lotus, it received honors little short of those accorded to deity, or in heathen Greece, where it was consecrated to Juno, the spotless yet imperious queen of Olympus, or later in Christian countries, where the flower was dedicated to the Virgin Mary. No great artist, when he painted the Holy Mother ever forgot to place near her the flower that was the symbol of her heavenly rank. It is also in art the symbol of saints, martyrs and angels.

The Easter lily is a native of the east. Those now cultivated in Bermuda and popularly known as the Bermuda lily were originally imported there from Japan for commercial purposes. The lily played an important part in Chinese history 1,000 years ago. It happened that the Flowery Kingdom was ruled by the Emperor Chow, a monarch universally feared and hated. No one could depend on his favor, and at last his best friend, the prime minister, Li Chung, began to tremble for his life.

Knowing well the bloodthirsty nature of the emperor, Li Chung devised a clever scheme to escape from his power.

One day when he fancied that the emperor was in a favorable mood he broached the plan. It was that 100 of the strongest young men and 100 of the most beautiful maidens should be sent with him on board ship to an island in the sea which he said had been revealed to him in a dream by the gods. There, for the welfare of China (and its conditions could not have been much worse), these people were to be sacrificed to the deities for the benefit of their native country. There was a sanguinary touch about the plan that particularly recommended it to the bloodthirsty mind of wicked old Chow, and he immediately gave cheerful assent to the project, even showed his interest by throwing in a royal prince and princess.

The ship in which Li Chung and the hundred young men and maidens sailed was the very finest that China afforded. The larder was filled with dainties, and every provision was made that the victims should be kept in first class condition until the time for the sacrifice. The best tomtom musicians in the kingdom were loaned for the voyage to charm the ears of the passengers with sweet sounds. But in vain the artists tried their most pleasing compositions; nobody would sing or dance, while the prevalence of red eyes indicated that a good deal of weeping was going on.

When they were far from China, however, Li Chung took the passengers into his confidence. He had not intended to kill them at all; instead they were going to the most beautiful island in the world, where they would settle and where they would live happily ever afterward, far from the power of the wicked Chow.

This island was Japan, and here they did settle. But they had brought with them great quantities of lily bulbs as food. Nobody had been able to eat much on shipboard, and quantities of these bulbs were left over. They were planted, and in the balmy climate of the Flowery Kingdom they attained a beauty unknown in China.

Years later some Europeans, discovering the beauty of this flower, imported it into their own countries and called it the Lillium longiflorum. But as an American named Harris was practically the first to discover the flower and make it popular in two continents it is now called the Lillium harrissil.

Where the Lilies Grow.

The Bermudas, where the beautiful Easter flowers grow, are a group of islands about 700 miles from New York; and about 500 miles almost due east of Cape Hatteras, on the Carolina coast. The group is almost fifteen miles long, averaging two and one-half miles in width, and comprises in all about 365 islands, some of them being very small and insignificant and most of them being of coral formation. Only five of the islands are inhabited.

STORY OF THE CLEARER VISION

AN EASTER INCIDENT.

It was Easter Sunday. The streets were thronged with well dressed people on their way to church, and the spring air was full of the joyous sound of bells.

"What a hollow mockery!" thought one sad faced woman as she stood amid the worshippers in the crowded transept. The sun shone dully through the painted windows, and the lilies sprang away from the pillars their enwreathed as though they yearned toward its warmth and radiance. The organ tones trembled through the scented gloom and then rose to a crescendo of glad, triumphant strains.

The pastor stretched out his hands toward the kneeling flock and spoke of the butterfly and the chrysalis, the marvel of revived and blossoming earth. Yet his words were meaningless, cold and empty in the ears of the sad, black robed woman who sought in vain for consolation. She looked longingly at the happy, prosperous people about her.

Were they indeed those mansions of God of which the rector spoke? Had these people found them? Why, then, were they barred to her? Ah, in her bitterness she doubted if she really cared for such joys. All she yearned for was the one tender, human smile which they told her was forever banished. Her heart rose up in a spasm of rebellion. It could not be true that anything so good was irrevocably gone.

"Christ is risen—is risen from the dead!" sang the choir. But the sad and lonely woman turned and left the church.

That afternoon she walked along country roads, through the delicious odors of the spring filled air. As she trod the brown meadows the sky was aglow with the dawning gold of the sunshine, and the wind bore to her the scent of fresh hycinthus.

Still she wandered on, unheeding, absorbed in the bitterness of her own heart, until she saw before her a country churchyard, where a woman black robed like herself, bent sobbing above a new made grave. Drawn by some intangible chord of sympathy she walked over to where the other knelt at the tomb.

"YOUR STORY IS ALSO MINE."

"It is Easter," said the second woman, mechanically lifting her heavy eyes, "and he is dead." A sudden comprehension came to her glance. She reached out her hand and touched the stranger's gown. "You understand?" she cried. "You, too?"

"Yes, I understand," answered the first woman monotonously. "Your story is also mine. He is dead."

"They are gone from us forever," cried the woman at the grave, with a burst of wild weeping. "Ah, for one sign of immortality, for one hope, one dream that it is not forever—that they but sleep to live again!"

And then for both these sorrowing souls was wrought a miracle. Life for the instant threw aside its mass of death and revealed itself in its serene majesty of reality. The sky became more vivid and opaline, the wind blew more freshly, bearing a thousand scents; hycinthus were blooming at their feet; a bird soared, singing, from the ground.

For the moment they seemed to feel the swirl of the earth on its axis, the stars revolving in their spheres, the mighty heave of the great oceans of life and knew that there was nothing in time nor space nor existence but change, motion and vitality.

In that one brief moment they felt and knew the presence of their dead infinitely near and comforting and were assured beyond all doubt that theirs was—

The freer step, the fuller breath, the wide horizon's grander view.

The sense of life that knows no death, the life that maketh all things new.

And then the vision passed, the scales fell upon their eyes, their ears once more grew dull, and yet its memory remained. They stood together in the world as they had known it, alone, but nevermore desolate.

Easter Eggs in Egypt

Back in old Egypt, long before the Christian era, eggs were worshipped as the symbol of nature rising from the sleep of the winter months, and in accordance with this worship each spring Egyptian artists would vie with each other in embellishing ostrich eggs with rare designs, gorgeous in color and unique in design. So decorated the eggs were fitting gifts for royalty itself.

AN EASTER LOVE STORY.

Chapter From the Lives of Margaret of Austria and the Duke of Savoy.

Margaret of Austria, on a pilgrimage in the early part of the sixteenth century, stopped for a few days at the castle of Bron, set in the midst of the forests that surrounded the little village of Bresse. Not only did all the nobles and stately dames from nearby castles ride to the castle of Bron to pay homage to the beautiful daughter of the Emperor Maximilian, but the peasant folk as well planned extra games and festivities in her honor for the Easter Monday, which this princess was to pass with them.

Margaret was gracious and lovely and, with her train of nobles, dames and maidens, came from the great castle to the village common and watched the simple games and happy dancing on that Easter Monday long ago. With little thought in her heart of what it was all to mean to her. Soon the royal party, imbued with the happy-hearted mirth and jollity of the occasion, began to do more than look on and took part in the games as gayly as the lowliest peasant lass in the village.

Just as the eggs had been strewn over the fresh laid sand and all was in readiness for the egg dance a horn was heard blowing from the nearby forests, and forth from its depths issued a gallant troop of men at a run, led by the knightly figure of Philibert the Fair, duke of Savoy.

The years had not been many since Margaret of Austria, a slim slip of a child, had played in these same old forest wilds with a sturdy-boy whom years of warfare and turmoil had changed into the soldier-prince who was now before her. Margaret had not forgotten those early days of childish love and courtship, and her heart was throbbing with a sweet, wild joy as in answer to the entreaties of Philibert the Fair she joined with him the happy couples gliding and circling through the mazes of the egg dance.

Long rang the cries of the peasantry as the princely couple without mishap stood breathless and flushed at the end of the dance.

"Austria and Savoy forever!" rang clear the cry, and as simply as a peasant lass might have accepted her rustic lover did the stately Margaret lay her hand in that of her princely suitor in answer to his words.

"Let us, too, follow the custom of Bresse."

AMERICA'S EASTER DAY.

At no other period in its eventful history has the American nation approached the Easter holiday under conditions conducive to so large a measure of national gratitude as at present. Just now more than ever the United States is emphatically the "good will" nation of the world, the nation that stands far more distinctly than any other for international peace, amity and worldwide fraternity. In almost every department of human industry, in almost every avenue of trade and commerce, at home and abroad, the year has witnessed advancement and enlargement such as have not been known before. It has been a record breaking year in the volume of our exports, in the production of our mines, in the extension of our banking interests, in the development of our railroads and the settlement of our public lands. It has been an ever memorable year also in the history of American philanthropy and beneficence, with gifts for educational purposes.

These things should cause us to turn with renewed hope, energy and enthusiasm to the great task of making the American republic more truly than ever the exponent of popular rights and liberties and the leader of the world in the better ways of peace and all the nobler achievements of the highest civilization.

THE MERMAID'S EASTER HAT.

By R. K. MUNKITTRICK.
DOWN beneath the swirling sea
Watch the mermaid in her glee,
While her heart goes pitapat,
Trying on her Easter hat.

In the iridescent shell
See her charms ecstatic swell
As the merman basks awhile
In the Eden of her smile.

Who the fairy architect
That this dream hat, bud bedecked,
Built, white and blue and red,
For the sea queen's golden head?

'Twas no fairy. Her supreme
Beauty makes the hat a dream,
For 'tis woman's beauty that
Is the glory of the hat.
