HOW TO SAVE HALF ON YOUR TIRE COST

Here are tires, which until lately, cost 20 per cent more than the ordinary. All because they can't rim cut, and because they are oversize. Now these same tires, which save half on one's tire bills, cost no extra price.

NO-RIM-CUTTING

The picture shows how a Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tire fits any standard rim for quick-detachable rims. Also de-mountable rims.

Note that the rim flanges—which are removable—are turned to hook outward with No Rim-Cut tires. There are no hooks on the tire base to hook into this flange, as there are on other tires.

The rounded flange comes next to the tire casing and rim-cutting is made impossible. Half a million of these tires have been used. Yet there has never been a single instance of rim-cutting.

THE CAUSE OF RIM-CUTTING

The picture shows how an ordinary tire—a clincher tire—fits this same standard rim. The removable rim flanges must be turned to face inward—to grasp hold of the hooks in the tire. That is how the tires are held on.

Note how that thin edge of the rim flange digs into the tire. That is what causes rim-cutting. That is how tires are wrecked beyond repair if you run them flat, even for a few hundred feet. That rim-cutting ruins more automobile tires than any other single cause.

The difference is simply this: In the Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires there are tapes of 125 braided piano wires run through the base. That makes the base unstretchable. The tire can't creep on the rim, and nothing can possibly force it over the rim.

When these tires are inflated the braided wires contract. They are then held to the rim by a pressure of 154 pounds to the inch.

That is why Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires don't need to be hooked to the rim. The rim flanges can be turned to hook outward, and you can't rim-cut the tire.

GOODYEAR TIRES 10 Percent OVERSIZE

Here is another feature, which, with the average car saves 25 per cent on the tire bills.

The Goodyear—while it fits the rim—gives you 10 per cent more tire for your money. That means 10 per cent more carrying capacity. It means, with average conditions, 25 per cent more mileage per tire.

The reason is this:

Motor car makers, in adopting tire sizes, figure on the weight of the car as they sell it and the weight of the passengers at 150 pounds each.

They supply the tire size to support that load, but they rarely leave any margin. They cannot afford to at the present prices for cars.

You may add a top, a glass front, gas lamps, gas tank, an extra tire, etc. And passengers may overweigh. With nine cars in ten the expected load is exceeded. The result is a blow-out—often while the tire is new. Overloading with the average car, adds 25 per cent. to the tire cost.

GOODYEAR SAVES THAT 25 Percent

When you specify Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires you get 10 per cent. oversize without extra cost. That prevents overloading.

It adds on the average, one-fourth to the tire mileage.

We give you this extra size without extra cost.

There are many other things you gain when you specify Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires.

Ask us to show you these tires and prove how they SAVE HALF on your tire cost.

DENNISON RE-ELECTED PRINCIPAL

Superintending School Committee Held a Special Meeting, Monday Night

GRAMMAR SCHOOL PRINCIPAL AREY RETIRES

Several Transfers of Teachers—Two Grammar School Rooms Will Be Made Into Three and There Will Be an Additional Teacher—Miss Ethel Young of South Berwick Elected for New Position—Board Expresses to Alumni Committee Its Regrets, But Fail to Find Sufficient Reason for Reinstatement of Suspended Seniors

A. L. Dennison was re-elected principal of the high school at a special meeting of the superintending committee, Monday night. Mr. Dennison was also given charge of the building for the maintenance of order.

Ralph E. Arey retired as principal of the grammar school. As a result many transfers were made, and several new teachers elected.

The grammar school will be divided into three rooms and three teachers will supply instead of two. For several years one large assembly room and a small recitation room were used. During the summer the larger room will be equally divided, the seats rearranged for better light, and instead of the scholars being obliged to change for recitations the teachers will go from room to room to give and hear lessons. Each teacher will specialize, one arithmetic, another grammar, etc.

To meet the expense of the extra teacher, the salary of $900 received by Principal Arey has been divided. The teachers at the grammar school will be Miss Carrie Burke, Miss Alice Varney, formerly of Centennial Hill school, and Miss Ethel Young of South Berwick, a graduate of the Farmington Normal school, and for two years a teacher in her native town. The citizens of South Berwick circulated a petition asking Miss Young to remain at home, but she wished a larger field for her chosen profession.

Miss Gertrude Young will take the place of Miss Varney at Centennial Hill. Miss Eva Straw, who has acted as assistant at the West school becomes principal of the West Kennebunk grammar school. Miss Mabel Kelley, who has been assistant at West Kennebunk primary will go to the position at the West school, formerly filled by Miss Straw.

Miss Helen Melcher, who taught at the Wilde's District school, has been advanced to the principalship of the West Kennebunk primary. Miss Minnie Adjutant, who acceptably supplied during the illness of a teacher the past year has been chosen as an assistant teacher for the West Kennebunk primary school.

The complete list follows:

High School
A. L. Dennison, Principal.
L. R. Harris, Submaster.
Annie Waldron, Assistant.
Abbie Weed, Assistant.

Grammar School
Carrie Burke.
Alice Varney.
Ethel Young.

Centennial Hill
Primary, Belle Witham.
Primary, Ethel Gotchell, assistant.
Intermediate, Gertrude Young.

West School
M. Ellen Smith, Intermediate.
Mabel Kelley,
Margaret Haley, primary.

West Kennebunk
Eva Straw, grammar.
Helen Melcher, primary.
Minnie Adjutant, assistant primary.

Alewive
Miss Etta Bowdoin.

Landing
Mrs. Emma McKellips.

Pines
Miss Marion B. Stevens.

Lower Village
Ruth Peabody, grammar.
Mary Ward, primary.
Helen Gooch, assistant primary.

Music
Elizabeth Merrill.

Drawing
Edith Sinentt.

The communication of the Alumni Executive Committee relative to four suspended seniors, was then taken up. Secretary Lambert was directed to extend the regrets of the school board, but that after fully considering all the facts in the case the board failed to find sufficient reason for re-instating the boys, and as a result the matter was laid on the table.

This undoubtedly closes the incident as far as the school board is concerned.

Entertains Club

Mrs. Frank M. Ross entertained members of the Twenty Associates at her beautiful cottage along the Mousam river, yesterday. Dinner was served on the spacious veranda. Those present besides the hostess were Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Burke, Misses Eliza and Carrie Burke, Mrs. Fred Hall, Mrs. Elliot Rogers, Miss Eleanor Wilson, Mrs. William E. Barry, Miss Helen Richards, Miss Helen Melcher, Mrs. Mary Ross, Mrs. Mary Moody, Miss Annie Nason, Mrs. Oscar Clark, Miss Ella A. Clarke.

Piano Recital

A delightful piano recital was given at the Unitarian vestry last Saturday afternoon, by the pupils of Miss Evie E. Littlefield. The recital reflected great credit upon the teacher and scholars. Those taking part were: Trafton W. Russell, John Rogers, Cordelia M. Titcomb, Ruth M. Cousins, Raymond F. Lange, Ruth A. Bowdoin, Elizabeth M. Day, Sarah F. Wright, Ruth B. Drown, Charlie F. Drown, Neva M. Webber, Marguerite M. Benson, Marion B. Hurley, Milton F. Hall, James S. Haywood, D. Louise Tuman, Natalie T. Rogers, Frank M. Sanborn, Dorothy Barker, Ruby Smith, Myra Junkins, A. Thompson Norton, Francis Tremer, Charlie F. Drown, Julia Crockett, Herman Locke, Katharine F. Twambly, Hazel M. Stone, Dorothy Barker, Katharine F. Twambly.

Business Booming

Business at the Automobile Cloth works is rushing, the large machines being operated three nights a week. There are sufficient orders on hand to keep the factory on full time for over four months.

Attend Convention

At the 44th annual convention of the Department of Maine, G. A. R., last week, Hon. Edward Riley of Augusta, was chosen Commander. About 1600 people attended the two days' session, including members of the allied societies. In behalf of Jesse Webster Corps, Mrs. Helen M. Perkins, department chaplain, presented to Mrs. Lou Stuart Wadsworth, national patriotic instructor, a beautiful bouquet of carnations. Members of the local corps who attended the convention were Mrs. Nellie Wormwood, Mrs. Fannie Jackson, Mrs. Bessie Shepherd, Mrs. Charles Roberts, Mrs. Helen M. Perkins. Mrs. Perkins conducted the Memorial service for Thursday afternoon, and was in the receiving line at the reception in the evening.

Entertains Class

Stephen R. Purinton entertained the members of the 1911 class, K. H. S., at his home on Summer street, Monday night. The dining room was beautifully decorated with buttercups and daisies, which gave good effect to the tastefully arranged table, being the artistic work of Mrs. Purinton. At each plate was a card bearing a pencil picture and name of the guest who was to be seated at that cover. The drawings showed the marked abilities of the young man. Bowdoin served the ices. Greenleaf made the class cake which bore the inscription "Class 1911." Music and games made up the evening. Those present were: Albert Emmons, Chester Webber, Reginald Harford, Harold Drew, Raymond Irving, Marlon Lunt, Persis Hawley, Marjory Taylor, Bertha Pierce, Stephen Purinton; and Misses Evelyn Bowdoin, Helen Wentworth, former members of the class.

Everybody's Favorite, J. HARVEY McEVoy and associate players in his new play

'A Boy of the Street'

A Comedy-Drama in three acts. A story of the simple life, typical among the walls of a great city. The story is told in a manner that appeals to the heart. There are thrilling dramatic situations and pictures that are consistent, bright, clean, natural and full of character. The charms of this great play is the pretty story, the natural element, the freedom from the "Blood and Thunder" that pervades the average drama that has a melodramatic atmosphere. To see this play is a treat not to be missed by any one.

Leland Perkins of South Poland is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Albert Walker of Alewife.

Miss Helen Terry, who has been spending a few weeks at Montclair, N.
J., is expected home, today.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Mann of Woods-ville, N. H., have been renewing acquaintances in this vicinity.

Miss Jennie Fletcher succeeds her brother as telegraph operator at the branch office in Bowdoin's drug store.

Miss Maud E. Webber of Boston was the guest Sunday of her parents, Mr.
and Mrs. Charles Webber of York street.

There will be no rehearsal of the Festival chorus, this week. Prof.
Chapman will visit the chorus in September.

Miss Helen Melcher, who has been ill at the home of her aunt, Miss Helen Richards, is convalescent and will soon return to her home in Massachusetts.

Principal A. L. Dennison went to Wilton, Saturday, for several days.
His household goods arrived in Kennebunk, yesterday, and he will occupy the Parsons house on High street.

The Congregational Sunday school picnic will be held at Kennebunk Beach, tomorrow, (Thursday). Children are requested to be at the Boston & Maine station in time to take the 9.30 a. m. train.

Col. F. E. Boothby, who has been at the head of the Maine Central passenger department for 47 years, has resigned and will be succeeded by Holman D. Waldron, who has been his assistant for four years.

Frank Fletcher, for several years a popular clerk at the Bowdoin drug store concluded his services, Sunday night. Mr. Fletcher will take up his new duties as telegraph operator at Kennebunkport next Monday.

Orren W. Robinson of the Landing and Frank Fury of Rochester, N. H., spent last week at the former's cottage at Long Pond in Shapleigh. Six pickeral, three salmon and eight trout, one of the trout weighing three pounds, werethe results of their fishing. Mr.
Fury will remain at the camp for several weeks.

Undertaker Charles Lucas was called to Wells Beach, Saturday afternoon, to care for the body of a boy who had been drowned in the Webhannet river. The child was the son of Melvin Fall of Berwick, and was one of a picnic party. While fishing off the dike bank the child slipped and fell into the river, his companion being unable to assist him.

Special arrangements can now be made with the Bowdoin pharmacy for the entertaining of ice cream parties at the store. People entertaining their friends can be saved the worry and labor incident to serving ices by making their wishes known at this progressive establishment. Mr. Bowdoin's room will accommodate twenty-five or more and every effort will be made to meet the desires of the people.

Mrs. Marie Metcalf, who has successfully published advertising bulletins in the large towns and villages of Maine including Sanford and Biddeford, has just issued one for Kennebunk. It contains the advertisements of some of the leading business houses of the village. It is a four page bulletin and besides advertisements contains a brief sketch of Kennebunk, and two half tone cuts, one of Main street, and the other of the Lafayette Elm on Storer street. During her brief stay in Kennebunk Mrs. Metcalf has made many friends by her pleasing ways, and progressive business methods.

BOWDOIN, Main St., Kennebunk

Mrs. Neal Harden visited with parents in Sanford, Monday.

Mrs. Blanche E. Potter visited her mother at Cape Porpoise this week.

Rev. W. T. Carter is at Kents' Hill, today, attending Commencement exercises.

Stephen R. Purinton will take entrance examinations for Bowdoin college, this week.

The Unitarian Sunday School picnic will be held at Kennebunk Beach on Wednesday, June 28, if pleasant, if not on June 29.

Stillman Rice, who suffered a hemorrhage of the stomach, last week, and was quite dangerously ill, is reported as much improved.

Charles Bowdoin attended the Commencement Exercises at Orono, last week Wednesday, when his son Harold received a Ph. C. degree.

Arrangements are in progress for a big ball game between teams made up from the North and South side of Main street and to be played on the Fourth of July.

John E. Moody, a former resident of Kennebunk, was out in the abdomen Tuesday evening, at Portland, it is alleged by a colored man named Joseph Hardy. It is thought that his chances for recovery are very slim.

While mowing the lawn at the Library building, last week, Edward Blanchard found a turtle basking in the sun. Some friend jokingly remarked that the disturbance created over Scotchman's brook had caused the turtle to seek more genial and peaceful surroundings.

Robert W. Lord and daughter, Mrs.
Sara L. Cram went to Boston, this week to witness the sailing for Europe of Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Lord and son.
Before returning Mr. Lord and Mrs.
Cram will visit Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Finlayson at Rye Beach, and attend the graduation exercises of the Portsmouth High school, one of the graduates being Miss Mary, the 15-year-old granddaughter of Mr. Lord.

Miss A. M. Waldron has gone to Trefethen for the summer.

At the close of school, last week,
the following members of the 1911 High School class were given diplomas by Principal Dennison: Harold Drew,
Raymond Irving, Marion Lunt, Percia
Hawley, Majory Taylor and Bertha Pierce. Present at the presentation were Supt. J. W. Lambert and Chairman A. W. Meserve. The diplomas were the work of an artist, printed on the best of paper and were tied with white silk ribbon.

The summer change of time will go into effect on the Boston & Maine railroad next Sunday. It is probable that the summer card will be much the same as last year. A second New York train was put on Monday. It leaves Portland at 9.40. It is reported that there will be five New York trains this summer.
Four pickpockets were arrested on the New York train Monday. The railroad officials intend to make an example of these crooks. Every year the Portland union station is alive with pickpockets.
Extra officers will be employed in an effort to round them up.

Street Commissioner Wiggin has completed work on the state road for this year, with the exception of building one culvert and a little road trimming. About 3035 feet were laid out and the road extends from Bartlett's Mills at Kennebunkport line towards

On Sunday June 25, there will be a baptism at the Union church, Alewife.
The Sunday school will be omitted and the church service held at 1.30 p. m., instead of 2.30, the usual hour, followed by the baptism. As there are candidates for both branches of the church, Baptist and Free Baptist, there will be a union baptism, Rev. Mr. Davis of Biddeford and Rev. F. L. Cann of Kennebunk officiating. Miss Eleanor R.

Edwards is the speaker at the Alewife church this month. She conducts two services each Sunday, and a mid-week service Wednesday, 7.30 p. m. She is making calls on all families in the parish.

There was a baptism at the Baptist church Sunday evening. Three were taken into the church.

Children's day was observed at the Methodist Church, Sunday, and a fine concert in the evening was enjoyed. The little ones did fine, and the singing by the children was very much enjoyed by all. The church was beautifully decorated with green and flowers.

A very pleasant event was the graduating exercises of the 9th grade of the grammar schools at Farmers' Club Hall, last Friday evening. This is a new feature, and proved to be a very successful one. The 9th grade of all the schools in town, who are hoping to enter the high school this fall, were present, and all the parts were well rendered. There were on the stage 24 nice looking boys and girls of which we are justly proud. The rural schools seem to hold their own with the village schools.

There was on the wall of the hall on exhibition of the work in figures, writing, English and drawing, and certainly there was some fine work from each school, showing lots of work and study. The teachers of Kennebunkport are to be congratulated as well as pupils for the good showing made in the schools during the year 1911, throughout town. A very interesting program was listened to with pleasure by a large audience. Diplomas were presented by Superintendent Lambert and the singing and music by the pupils were very fine. Teachers and pupils of Kennebunkport we extend congratulations. The following is the program and the names of graduates:

Prayer.
Chorus—The Sylphs and the Rose.
The Thinker and the Door
Edward Meserve Martin

Fred Walker, who has been so very sick, is much better at this writing.
Annie Milliner is very low at this writing.
There are more visitors here than for many years at this early date. So say the people.
Mr. and Mrs. Albert Welch and son, and Mrs. Sarah Jeffery took a 100-mile auto ride, Sunday.
Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Davis of Biddeford, and daughter Roberta, were welcome guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Hadlock, Sunday.
Frank Washburn and daughters May and Ollie were the guests of his sister, Sunday.
The rain of last week did much good last week, but crops look slim. There seems to be a worm that eats off beans, peas and cucumbers as quick as they are out of the ground. The outlook is not very promising.
Arthur and Ray Welch are doing good spraying trees.

West Kennebunk

Mrs. Georgia Lowell of Portland is visiting the Misses Burnham.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lowell have gone to Somerville to make preparations to move their household goods here where they will make it their permanent home.

Mr. and Mrs. McConnell will move from the parsonage to the house recently vacated by Ed. Webber.

Miss Florence Wallingford of Rochester is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Alpheus Noble.

Mrs. Delia Thyng and Truman Littlefield attended the Berwick graduation Friday night.

Miss Dorothy Ricker of the Industrial school of New York, formerly of this place, has been visiting friends here before returning to her studies.

Mr. Lorenzo Tripp of Kennebunkport spent Friday with his brother, Mr. Joseph Tripp.

Miss Sadie Adjutant of Bidford is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Sarah Junkins.

Died at the home of Porter Webber of Webber Hill, Mr. Ed. Gowen, formerly of Lynn. He leaves a wife and one son. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at his late home with H. Porter Webber, Webber Hill.

Mr. Warren Green has been spending the past week with his wife.

The Grammar school held a picnic at Old Falls on the last day of school, Thursday.

Ernest Lodge observed Flag night at their regular meeting, Wednesday night. The hall was decorated with National colors, each member wore a flag and also gave reading of the same, after which ice cream and cake were served.

Mr. Leland Webber and wife spent a few days with his sister, Mrs. Ed. Clarke of Wells.

Mrs. Theodore Noble has been quite sick with the grippe the past week.

The Grammar school graduates held their exercises at Fireman's hall, Tuesday evening, June 13. The hall was prettily decorated in the class colors, green and white. The program was as follows:

Prayer, Rev. George W. Gray
Salutatory, Myra Junkins
Song by the class,
"How can I Leave Thee."
Music,
Essay, "Eight Wild Flowers,"
Lea Paradic
Song, "America For Freedom,"

Valedictory,
Presentation of diploms by the teacher, Miss Lillian Kimball. A reception followed.

The graduating class of eight scholars with their teacher and friends, will take a trip to the White Mountains, starting Tuesday morning, returning Wednesday.

Kennebunk Beach

The W. R. M. sewing club enjoyed a picnic at Beachwood, on Thursday of last week. The time was spent in social chat and a strolling along the beach. The table was spread with good things that tasted as good as they looked. They were conveyed to this pretty grove by R. E. Littlefield's and R. K. Wentworth teams. A good time is reported by all.

The summer visitors are arriving rapidly.

A few from this vicinity attended the Adventist Sunday school picnic held at Beachwood recently. The time was spent in games and chatting. A large table was spread with good things which tasted delicious. All report a good time.

Cape Porpoise

C. W. Russell and family of Worcester, Mass., have rented the house of Frank Hutchins for the season.

Miss Daisy L. Nunan, teacher of the intermediate school, took her pupils for a hayrack ride and picnic to Beachwood last Saturday.

Mrs. Elisha Nunan of Boston, Mass., with her two little daughters, is visiting Arthur W. Nunan.

Edward W. Nunan of Boston has been spending a few days with his father, A. W. Nunan.

The Sunday Post of this week contained an account of the death by drowning of Miss Ruth Stewart of Dorchester, Mass., who has been spending her summers at the Cape. Miss Stewart was one of the young people at the summer home of Mrs. Ida Jarvis and will be missed by her associates. Her death was caused by the overturning of a canoe on the Charles river which she occupied with a friend, and in attempting to change seats the canoe was upset, throwing both into the water. The young man made every effort to rescue his companion, but when her body was recovered about ten minutes later, life was extinct.

Miss Stella Hutchins of Boston is at the Langford House for a short vacation.

Mr. Frank A. Allen and family of Cambridge, Mass., arrived last week at their summer home for the season.

Dr. Dewyea and Fred Leavitt of Sanford are each having a summer cottage on the Roberts' property.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Lord of Somerville, Mass., are at their summer home near the Langford House.

The primary school, Miss Matha Clifford teacher, closed Friday for the summer vacation. Miss Clifford left Saturday for her home in Cornish.

Thomas Hubbard has taken his five children to Cundy's Harbor where they will remain among relatives for a time.

The Chipmans of Boston are at their summer cottage near the Langford House for the summer. A musical and ice cream social under the auspices of the Epworth League was given at the church last Thursday evening, about thirteen dollars and fifty cents, free of expense, being taken. The following program was given:

A Joke at Sea

To While Away the Tedium of a Long Voyage

By REGINALD D. HAVEN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

A party of travelers sat chatting on the deck of a Pacific liner, and the conversation turned upon British lords marrying American heiresses. One of the party whispered to a lady sitting next to him:

"That Englishman is one of 'em. He's going over for a multimillionaire."

"Which one?" asked the lady interested.

"The short, thick one. The other is his lordship's secretary."

Young Peterson, who made this statement, was a great wag. He did not expect it to be believed and was astonished later when one of the girls of the party said to him:

"Do you know that one of those Englishmen is an earl going over to America for a rich wife?"

"You don't mean it!" said Peterson with feigned astonishment.

Peterson winked at a man standing near to follow him, and the two went off together.

"By Jove, Charley," said the wag, "I've got something that will help to kill time and give us lots of fun besides during this long voyage. For a joke I told one of the ladies that that sawed off Britisher is a lord going to America to marry a big fortune and that the other one was his secretary. She took it all in earnest, told the story to the rest of the party, and it came back to me."

"Well?"

"Well, don't you see that all these women aboard—there are some high steppers among them—will be sticking to him like a bear to honey?"

"But the Englishmen will hear of it and deny it."

"Suppose they do; we can say the earl is traveling incog. and won't admit his identity. Besides, I doubt if he will object to sailing under false colors; he'll be treated royally."

"But the other, the secretary; it's my opinion he's a gentleman and won't consent to any such imposition."

"It's no imposition for him to play an unimportant part. Besides, if he denies the story he won't be believed."

His lordship was Thomas Sully, a bagman, or what in America we call a commercial traveler. Peterson told him of the plot, and he entered into the spirit of it at once. Nothing was said to the other Englishman, whose name appeared on the list of passengers as Arthur Craven. He was of a serious cast and not likely to have any sympathy with the joke or consent to be one of the principal participants.

Great was the amusement derived by Peterson and his friend Tomkins, whom he had admitted to the secret, at the marked attentions paid to the bagman, whose title, Earl of Camberwell, was let out by the apparently incautious display of an envelope that he had addressed to himself for the purpose. There were many English people on board, all of whom were very obsequious to a nobleman of their own country. Several American girls, who, though not multimillionaires, were well supplied with funds, entered the lists for the prize.

"Ladies," the bagman protested, "I assure you you are mistaken. I am a humble British subject with no pretense whatever."

"Oh, my lord," was the response, "how can you tell such a story? Your aristocratic bearing gives you away."

"You are incorrigible," the bagman would reply, delighted.

Peterson and Tomkins, who were present when this amusing episode came out, hurried away to conceal their laughter, and when they got out of hearing, exploded, then as soon as they could get Sully into the smoking room opened a bottle of wine for him, and Peterson assured him that his noble mien was what was enabling him to carry out the joke so well.

Meanwhile Arthur Craven heard nothing of what was going on, for, being a reserved man, he kept very much to himself. Some of the ladies remarked to Peterson that Mr. Craven did not seem to be very hard worked by his master, whereupon Peterson explained that the earl had no use for a secretary on shipboard and had expressly forbidden Craven to pay him any attention whatever lest he let out the incog. Craven spent most of the time reading. He did not smoke, therefore had no occasion to visit the smoking room, where he would have been astonished to see Sully vainly denying by words that he was an earl, but by his manner convincing those present that he was.

Like seeks like, and Craven, having made the acquaintance of a refined American family, found whatever companionship he seemed to need with them. Indeed, as the voyage progressed he showed greater disinclination to mingle with the others.

Meanwhile the Cunninghams—the American family he had become acquainted with—seemed to be equally pleased with him, and the voyage was not far under way before Craven and Mrs. Julia Cunningham, a girl of twenty, were seen a great deal together.

One going on deck almost any day the day in fair weather would see the sterner chairs in close proximity, and the couple appeared so interested in each other that they had no thought for any one else.

"Camberwell," said Peterson one day when he and the bagman were passing Craven and Miss Cunningham, punching the spurious earl in the ribs, "it seems to me that your secretary has got ahead of his master. That young lady he's making up to is the prettiest girl on the ship."

"You let my secretary alone," replied Sully facetiously. "All I want of him is not to give my incog. away till I've left the ship. The men are opening wine for me, and the women are feeding me on good things. But I want to get away before they find out the game we're working on them."

And so the ship sailed on. Every day was a repetition of another—meals, sitting on deck, constitutional walks between 4 and 6 in the afternoon and early to bed. One thing continued to enliven the voyage for Peterson and Tomkins—the attentions showered on Sully and the airs the bagman put on in support of his noble position. A number of the women found a pleasant excitement in angling for his lordship's favor.

It could not be expected that Craven should sail all the way to San Francisco without learning of his position as secretary to the Earl of Camberwell. One day when he joined Miss Cunningham on deck he noticed that she received him with an air of disappointment. It was not long before the secret was out.

"I have heard," she said, "that there is a British nobleman on board and you are his secretary."

Craven looked at her in astonishment.

"What an actor you are!" she said, with a slight coldness in her voice. Craven said nothing. He was thinking. Finally he asked:

"And who is my master?"

"You know well enough without my telling you."

"Tell me, please."

"The short Englishman who calls himself Sully."

"Thanks," replied Craven. "And now since you have discovered that I am merely an understrapper to an English nobleman I presume you are through with me."

"No," said the girl. "I admit I am disappointed, but I have no reason to give up your companionship."

Craven chatted about ordinary matters for a few minutes, then excused himself. Seeing Sully, who was at the time with Peterson, Craven went to him and asked for an explanation of the story he had heard. Peterson told how they had fallen into perpetrating the joke, apologized and offered to do anything in his power to relieve Mr. Craven of his share. "But," he added, "I fear no denial will avail as to the principal character, though, if you like, I think he can deny your part in it in a way that will be believed."

"Let the matter stand as it is," said Craven. "Since I have been his lordship's secretary thus far I will remain in his service during the rest of the voyage."

From that time until after the ship left the Hawaiian Islands it was observed by those who noticed Mr. Craven's attentions to Miss Cunningham that he was not with her as much as before. This was not the lady's fault. Mr. Craven, from the day she showed disappointment in having learned that he was the secretary of a very unattractive nobleman, was very chary of her attentions. Moreover, he made no further denial of the story. But as time wore on and Miss Cunningham found the days very long and the voyage very tedious without his society, she encouraged him to return to her side when she was on deck and showed by her manner that if she had not forgotten his position she ignored it.

Some time before the ship reached San Francisco it was evident to the passengers that if the earl was going to America for a wife his secretary need not look for one there, having found one on shipboard. Then all of a sudden there was a noticeable flutter in the Cunningham family, and Mr. Craven and Mr. Cunningham were seen in conference on the after deck, where there was no one to hear them. From that time till the end of the voyage, which was but a few days, there were unmistakable signs that Mr. Craven had, or would, become a part of the Cunningham family.

"What's the matter with your lordship," said Peterson, slapping Sully on the back. "You're going to America for a wife, and your secretary has got one right under your nose aboard ship."

"My dear fellow," replied the earl, "my secretary costs but a few thousands. Any woman who gets me must come down with millions."

They both laughed merrily and went into the smoking room for refreshments.

The day before reaching port the captain, as is usual on liners, gave a dinner to the passengers. When coffee was brought on he rose and said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, there has been a joke perpetrated by some good fellows among you for amusement. Not wishing you to go ashore deceived, they desire me to say that the Earl of Camberwell is really Mr. Sully, and Mr. Sully has given me his word of honor to that effect."

"Nevertheless we have had a real nobleman aboard. From the first I have been aware that Mr. Craven is Baron Craven, a distinguished British traveler. He is not going to the States for a rich wife, for he is very rich himself. Besides, from appearances he has found one aboard this ship. Indeed, I am authorized to make the announcement to you."

All looked for Craven and the Cunninghams. Then it was noticed for the first time that they were not in their accustomed seats.

THAWING FROZEN PLANTS.

How to Avert Damage Caused by Cold Snap Reaching Greenhouse.

During the winter the amateur in gardening has much to contend with, and not the least of these evils is frost, especially where an endeavor is made to keep the more or less tender plants through the cold, dull months in a poorly heated greenhouse or frame.

Fortunately science has come to our aid and taught us a few things concerning the effects of frost on tender plants, and with these principles fully grasped we are in a position to combat frost, according to a writer in the Farm Progress. Plants which are kept as dry as possible during a spell of frosty weather without being allowed to suffer from this cause will withstand successfully far more frost than the same kind of plants whose tissues are gorged with liquid, and science has also taught us that the greatest mischief is caused by rapid thawing.

To grasp the above facts it may be as well before proceeding further to just consider briefly what really happens when a plant gets frozen. It is now generally known that a plant, like the human body, is made up of tiny cells, each of which, of course, has its own walls.

Under ordinary conditions and when a plant has abundance of moisture at its disposal these cells are turgid and liquid. Now, when liquid becomes frozen it is one of the laws of nature that expansion takes place, and in the case of that in the plant cells no exception to this law is made. The expansion then results in a rupture of the plant cell walls, which under ordinary conditions of thawing cause the plant to collapse.

It has been proved that when a plant is thawed very slowly the plant cells are able to absorb the moisture which has been forced by expansion through the cell walls, and the rupture is to a great extent made good.

Assuming that the plants have not been watered more often than is absolutely necessary and that one morning we visit the greenhouse or frames to find that frost has reached them, we know that if they are to be saved thawing must be done very slowly.

First of all we must take care that the heating apparatus, if any is used, does not get into working order again, and if there is any likelihood of a burst of sunshine shade the structure with thick mats or anything else that can be quickly reached. Then get an abundant supply of ice cold water and syringe or otherwise drench the plants with this until frost is gradually removed from the tissues.

This will probably mean very cold hands and chattering teeth, but it is either this or losing the plants. For several days subsequently the plants should be kept as cool as possible without allowing frost to reach them again.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

HOW TO STRING BEADS.

By Tying Knot Between Each Bead Danger of Loss is Minimized.

The owner of any beads valuable for their own worth or their associations might well take a lesson from the pearl stringers. Their cardinal principle is to tie a firm knot between each two pearls. Then if the string breaks no more than one pearl can be lost. This applies just as well, of course, to other beads.

Neither wire nor catgut is good for the stringing of any jewels where a stiff appearance is out of place. Instead, either surgeon's silk—which is woven like braid, instead of twisted, and comes in several numbered thicknesses—or finely and flexibly woven gold or platinum chains are used. Really the silk is the more desirable of the two.

In stringing any precious beads, and pearls especially, never use a needle. Simply wax the end of the silk and pass it through the hole. The knotting is also an important point. It must be large enough to hold the bead, but not large enough to show. Pearl stringers use an intricate knot of their own, and that is why it is, on the whole, better to have very expensive jewels strung by a professional. When there is a collar or something of the sort to be made, this is absolutely necessary.

How to Clean Old Ivory.

Antique Ivory requires a good deal of care before it can be made to regain its original luster and lose the dingy yellow tint which disfigures it. Prepared chalk, sal volatile and olive oil made into a paste should be rubbed on the Ivory figure or carving with a piece of wash leather, a little more being then rubbed over it and left to dry on. When dry the powder will brush off easily.

How to Renovate Velvet.

The velvet should first of all be stretched, pile side upward, over the steam from a kettle of boiling water. As the steam begins to rise get some one to brush up the pile briskly with a stiff brush. Then spread out flat to dry and afterward brush lightly again. When the material has been worn a great deal and is very soiled sponge it lightly with benzine.

How to Save Plumber's Bill.

Do not send for a plumber when the water freezes. Just unscrew the faucet so as to turn it upside down, put in a tablespoonful of salt and then keep adding hot water until the salt is washed down the pipe. A little patience saves a plumber's bill.

How to Keep Roast Juicy.

Lower the temperature of an oven considerably after a roast has been in for twenty minutes and the juices will be retained.

Kennebunk Lower Village

The residents on the Wells road are much pleased over the new concrete side walk which is being laid by Rochester parties. This has been much needed for its appearance as well as its utility.

Mr. Clarence Littlefield of Boston is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Littlefield.

Mr. Daniel Wheelwright of Danvers, Mass., is spending a few days with his sister, Mrs. Emery Mitchell.

Measles entered the home of Mr. Orville Sprague and attacked nearly every member of the family. At this writing they are much improved, and we hope for a speedy recovery.

Rev. E. A. Goodwin went to Lakeport Saturday where he supplied the desk of the Adventist Church on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Isiah Moulton and family spent the week end with his parents at South Berwick.

The children of both public schools in this place held their annual picnic Monday at Gooch's Beach. The day was perfect and with opportunities for bathing, playing games and a substantial lunch spread out the children had a most enjoyable time. The teachers accompanied them and the success of the occasion was largely due to their efforts. The children feel very grateful to Mr. Edward Towne's for his kindness in allowing them the use of his bath houses.

The schools closed Friday noon for the summer vacation. No special exercises were held this year.

Mr. Herbert Sprague has returned home after a visit with his sister in Boston.

Mr. Frank M. Emery enjoyed a trip to Lake Sunapee the past week in the interest of his business.

Mr. Harold Perkins, Miss Jennie Perkins and Miss Bernice Pitts, were at Gorham Normal school Wednesday, to attend the graduation of Miss Bessie Perkins.

Kennebunkport

Children's Day was observed on Sunday at the Methodist Church. At 2 o'clock the pastor preached on the subject, "The Importance of Youth," and during the service a special selection was rendered by a quartette of girls, consisting of Edna Clough, Beatrice Clough and Edith and Esther Baker. In the evening the Sunday School presented a concert to a large audience. The platform had been tastefully decorated with evergreen and flowers, the words "Children's Day" standing out in white letters from a dark green background. The following program was well rendered, all the participants taking their parts very commendably and some of the little ones bringing down the house by their unconsciously cute manners. Song, "Hail, Happy Day," school; prayer by the pastor; "Welcome," Emily Bragdon; recitation, Helen Clough; recitation, Lucile Bragdon; recitation, "If We Knew," Florence Hamilton; song, "Sing Little Birds," girls' quartet; recitation, "What a Little Girl Heard," Mildred Hamilton; recitation, Marguerite Benson; solo, Edna Clough; recitation, "Daisy Chains," four girls; recitation, "My Children," Sadie Heckmen; recitation, Lizzie Clough; song, "Send Out the Sunshine of Gladness," girls' quartet; recitation, "The Birds' Picnic," Helen Clough; recitation, Edward Baker; recitation, "Pennies" Philip Bragdon and Tombey Baker; solo, "Like the Little Blossoms," Edith Baker; recitation, Tompey Baker; recitation, Edna Clough; recitation, "The Country Lassie," Esther Baker; solo, Helen Clough; recitation, "There's a Work for Us to Do," Beatrice Clough; song, "Everywhere Music is Ringing," girls' quartet; remarks, pastor; recitation, "Good Night," Clyde Eisner; song, "With Banners Fair," girls' quartet. The girls' quartet was the one that sang in the afternoon. On Monday Mr. D. D. Walker sent oranges to all the children who took part in the exercises, a token greatly appreciated by them.

Next Sunday Arundel Lodge, A. F. and A. M., will attend the Methodist Church in the afternoon. There will be special music by a male quartet from Biddeford. The pastor will speak on the subject "The Cloud in the House."

Miss Louise Wheeler has returned from Columbia University, where she has just received her Master's degree. She will remain here for the summer.

The local branch of the York County Children's Aid Society will meet in the parlor of the Congregational church Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Methodist ministers of this section of York county will hold their spring meeting in Eliot next Monday.

The graduation exercises of the Ninth Grade pupils of the town were held in the Farmers' Club Hall last Friday evening, and were largely attended. At the close of the interesting program presented by the pupils from the various sections of the town, Superintendent Lambert presented diplomas to twenty-four who had completed the work of the grammar course. Examination for admission to the high school will be held in the high school building on Friday of this week, commencing at 8 A. M.

The following teachers have been elected for the coming year: Edwina Farrar, Port grammar. Henrietta Libby, Port primary. Leora Russell, Wildes grammar. Clara Skillin, Wildes primary.
