

Camp near Hardy's Landing Va., July 7. 1862.

I not only heartily concur in the above, but would further state that Capt. Daggett adds to his private character the graces of total abstinence from the use of intoxicating drinks and the use of profane language. His moral character is above reproach.

To His Excellency, Israel Washburn, Jr.,
Governor of Maine:

The undersigned officers would most respectfully and cordially recommend to Your Excellency's favorable consideration for appointment and promotion to the Field of one of the new regiments about to be raised in Maine, the claims of Capt. A. S. Daggett, Co. E., 5th Maine Reg't. Capt Daggett was one of the first to respond to his country's call, enlisting as a private soldier, from which position his military acquirements and natural abilities, soon raised him to the ⁱⁿ command of a company. His conduct on the field has proved him every inch a soldier, and added to a private deportment above reproach, should render his claims to your consideration worthy of especial attention.
