CLARIONS DEFIED LAST WINTER'S COLD

Houses that had never been comfortable in ordinary seasons with other furnaces were heated perfectly with CLARIONS all through the severe weather.

Last winter proved for good and all the folly of buying a carelessly made furnace at any price and the wisdom of having a CLARION to rely on.

If you were one of the cold ones and want to guard against another winter of discomfort, write now for a CLARION circular.

MERRILL PIANOS

ARE ENDORSED BY

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

—Founded 1853 by Dr. Eben Tourjee—

BOSTON, MASS., June 12, 1902.

Gentlemen:—In order to properly equip our new and magnificent Conservatory buildings, which we are to occupy with the opening of the next school year, on September 15th, it will be necessary for us to purchase a large number of additional Pianos. Our experience with the Merrill in the past has been very satisfactory, and I take pleasure therefore in sending you this order, which is for twenty-five (25) new Style G Merrill Uprights. I prefer them to be in mahogany and French walnut. These instruments are to be delivered not later than September 15th next. Yours very truly,

FRANK W. HALE, General Manager.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION

Will be held in Auditorium, Bangor, Wednesday June 29, 1904, at 12:00 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor to be supported at the September election, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it.

The basis of representation will be as follows: Each city, town and plantation will be entitled to one delegate, and for each 15 votes for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1902, an additional delegate and for a fraction of 40 votes in excess of 15 votes, a further additional delegate. Vacancies in the delegation of any City, Town or Plantation can only be filled by residents of the county in which the vacancies exist.

The State Committee will be in session in the reception room of the hall at 12:30 o'clock p. m., on the day of the Convention for the purpose of receiving the credentials of delegates. Delegates in order to be eligible to participate in the Convention must be elected delegates to the date of the call for this Convention. All electors of Maine without regard to past political affiliations, who believe in the principles of the Republican party, are cordially invited to unite under this call in electing delegates to this Convention.

Per Order Republican State Committee.
F. M. BROWN, Chairman.
BYRON BOYD, Secretary.

Republican County Convention.

The Republicans of Knox county, and all those who endorse the administration of Theodore Roosevelt, are requested to meet by delegates in convention at the Supreme Judicial Court Room, in Rockland, Saturday, July 2, A. D., 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to nominate candidates to be supported at the election to be held Monday, September 12, A. D., 1904, for the following officers:

Senator,
Clerk of Courts,
Sheriff,
Judge of Probate,
Register of Probate,
County Commissioner,
County Treasurer,
County Attorney.

Also to elect a county committee, equal to the present number, for the years of 1905 and 1906; and also to transact any business that may properly come before the convention. The basis of representation will be as follows: Each city, town and plantation will be entitled to one delegate, and for every 25 votes cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1902, an additional delegate, and for a majority fraction of 25 votes, an additional delegate. The delegates have been apportioned upon the following basis as follows:

Appleton,	6	Rockland,	41
Canaan,	15	Sebec,	12
Crookhaven,	1	South Thomaston,	7
Cushing,	3	St. George,	7
Friendship,	3	Thomaston,	19
Hope,	5	Union,	9
Indianapolis,	1	Warren,	10
Matineau,	1	Washington,	6
North Haven,	1

Total number of delegates, 146

The county committee will be in session at the law library, Court House, at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon on the morning of the convention to examine the credentials of delegates and attend to such business as may properly come before it. Delegates in order to participate in the convention must be chosen before the date of the call for this convention.

Per Order.
REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMITTEE.
FRANK B. MILLER, Chairman, Rockland.
CHARLES C. WOOD, Secretary, Camden.
Rockland, Me., May 28, 1904.

"DON'T TRUST HIM!"

The Advice Which Bryan Gave New York Democracy Concerning Parker.

William J. Bryan addressed an anti-Parker convention of the real Democracy in New York City Monday night.

The platform adopted at the meeting claims that the majority of delegates who voted against Judge Parker at the recent convention at Albany represent the Democratic districts of the state; protests against his nomination for the reason that his candidacy is discredited by the character of its sponsors, especially Senator Hill; that he is not popular in his own state; that he is the candidate of tariff beneficiaries, imperialists and monopolists; that it is the duty of the Democratic party to refuse the leadership of such men as August Belmont and that the Albany platform fails to make a single issue with Republican policies, contains no denunciation of President Roosevelt's usurpation of power, offers no word of comfort for the laboring man, and ignores the questions of income tax.

The platform closes with a demand for a repeal of special privileges and a resolution for a committee of 25 to present the protest to the St. Louis convention.

Mr. Bryan was accorded a ovation when he rose to speak. He said in part:

"It is not necessary for me to apologize for being here. I feel quite at home in New York. I want to say that until you have an election at which Judge Parker gets more votes than I did I shall insist on coming back here."

"I believe that the national convention should not nominate the man whom your state convention has recommended. The great question this year is not the money question, but it is whether we are to have a plutocracy or a democracy."

"I want to give some reasons for my opposing Mr. Parker. I believe that he would be a weak candidate in the campaign and if elected a great disappointment to the people. Mr. Parker goes before the country on a cowardly, straddling platform. He is a coward in this country are brave men. It required a brave man to stand up for Democracy in 1896. I knew in that year men in every state who were branded with bankruptcy for being Democrats. We don't know Parker's views but I'm afraid some men do. My friends, don't trust him."

"What is Mr. Belmont's consideration in the Parker candidacy? He is too shrewd a financier to invest his money without being sure of the return of the goods. In Connecticut men were bought at the convention in Parker's interests. I denounce Mr. Parker's candidacy as one carried on by a trumpeting upon the rights of Democracy."

"I was not defeated by the principles of the Chicago and Kansas City platforms, but because I had to carry the sins of a traitorous President who betrayed his party. It was the Cleveland administration with its damnable odium that defeated me."

"Corruption at the polls is increasing all over the country. A Republican United States Senator has been convicted of bribery. Public conscience is being debauched. Let me appeal to you to consider the issue as plutocracy against democracy."

COAST PROTECTION.

New Light Houses or Fog Signal Stations In Prospect for Maine.

In the near future, though not this year, work will be begun on the construction of three new light houses or fog signal stations on the Maine coast.

The first of these, and probably the most needed is a light house with fog signal tower attached at Isle au Haut.

At Boon Island, where there is already a very lofty light tower, one of the highest on the coast, it has been thought advisable to have a fog signal tower erected at a distance of 10.44. A bell is already provided here, but with a trumpet warnings could be much better given. The fog signal to be installed here is of the Hornsby engine, the same as Ram Island ledge.

At Little River light station, a fog signal tower, to cost $15,000 is wanted. This place is much used as a place of shelter by boats of all classes and needs a good means of guidance to it.

Among the sights in the city of Paris is a regular rat pound, where the services of the rodents are utilized for removing the flesh from the carcasses of dead animals. A horse thrives in the night is quite striped by morning, and it is the regular work of men in charge to remove the polished bones.

By the time Coachella finishes its shipments Rocky Ford, Col., is ready to begin, the latter section being better known than Coachella, and shipments from there are expected to last until October. This season Colorado has planted a very large acreage and expects to have the largest crop in the history of the business; it is estimated by conservative growers that 2000 cars will be shipped to the eastern markets from Colorado during August and September, 1904.

At St. Louis we leave the capacious station in mid-city, on La Clede Avenue, named in commemoration of the humble Frenchman who first walked in the wondrous power and beauty of Niagara Falls, whose thunder and glory should be held in the memory and knowledge of every American citizen, as a vital part of his history.

The "Oak openings" in Michigan, and the prairies of Indiana and Illinois make you thankful that you read the Bee Hunter's story, whose distinctive description of American scenery will ever be like foundation stairs of true patriotic love of our native land, and they lead to an appreciation later in life of the historical works of Parkman and Lincoln's address at Gettysburg, and Roosevelt's recent utterances on the same subject.

A journey of enjoyment, no flimsy, no dust, but green fields and apple blossoms. It was May in her beauty.

We now cross the Mississippi river, to which I hope at some time to give a whole letter, whose miles of water fertilize our broad land from the Blue Ridge to the Rocky Mountains, white with snow.

At St. Louis we leave the capacious station in mid-city, on La Clede Avenue, named in commemoration of the humble Frenchman who first walked in the wondrous power and beauty of Niagara Falls, whose thunder and glory should be held in the memory and knowledge of every American citizen, as a vital part of his history.

Twenty-seven railroads from all parts of the United States, including every resort of this country, have terminals at St. Louis. They arrive at and depart from the Union Station, built at a cost of six and one-half millions, with thirty-two acres under the vaulted roof.

Figures may confuse you, but in these letters there will be constantly a necessity of using them, and such expressions as "the finest in the world," "the largest and best ever seen," "enormous," "grand," "unequaled," etc. Up La Clede Avenue in electric cars, having wide windows, and sumptuously furnished, and with electric buttons whereby every passenger by simply extending his arm and touching the button "indicating his desire to stop, we are borne to the 1540 acres occupied by the Universal Exposition in commemoration of the Louisiana Purchase—in whose limits all of Rockland from Birds Corner to the history lands to Ingraham's Hill, and from the quarries to the harbor, could be placed.

A large crayon portrait of Thomas H. McLain has been hung in the corridor of the McLain school building. The artist has made a very faithful likeness, and the gift, which is from the McLain family, is highly prized. Although it has been 16 years since Mr. McLain was principal of the Grammar school, and the building which bears his name had not even been conceived, memories of his long administration are still fresh with the hundreds who were his pupils, and they feel the same affection for him now that they did then.

The state loses a competent official and a staunch Republican in the death of Capt. Whitman Sawyer, which took place at his home in Portland Monday. Capt. Sawyer was chairman of the state board of prison inspectors. He was also a Civil War veteran.

For President
THEODORE ROOSEVELT
Of New York.

For Vice President
CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS
Of Indiana.

For Governor,
HON. WILLIAM T. COBB
Subject to the action of the Republican State Convention.

From all parts of the state have come a vigorous protest against the manner in which the Portland Press and Lewiston Journal have sought to injure Mr. Cobb's chances in the governorship canvass. Had the Press contented itself with exploiting Col. Prescott as the ablest candidate, or the Journal done the same for Fernald people would have set these newspapers down as commendably loyal, though perhaps over-zealous. Instead of that they have made continued use of the expression anti-Cobb and sought to prejudice their readers against the Rockland man. On this point the Ellsworth American says:

Throughout the campaign thus far it is a rather striking fact that it is only the anti-Cobb element that has resorted in the newspapers to personal abuse and unseemly epithets. There should be differences of opinion regarding the qualifications of candidates in inevitable and loyalty to one candidate, whether for local or personal reasons, does not imply disloyalty to others. But to carry feelings to such a pitch as some Maine papers have done this spring will leave them in a rather awkward position during the rest of the campaign, should the candidate of their choice happen to be defeated in the convention.

So far as the nomination of President Roosevelt was concerned the action of the Chicago convention was long ago discounted. The great prominence, the exalted talents, the splendid record of the President rendered his nomination a thing of such certainty that nobody else has for a moment been under consideration in that connection. The country believes in Theodore Roosevelt. The Vice Presidential nomination is a worthy complement to the head of the ticket. Senator Fairbanks is an able man, of high honor and capacity. Roosevelt and Fairbanks is a ticket that will take the country by storm and render futile at the outset any efforts the Democrats may oppose to the onswells of the Republican forces.

Distant readers of this paper should not lose sight of the fact that Old Home Week and the celebration of Rockland's semi-centennial fall into the same period of time, and that time not far away. Every former resident of this town should make a resolve to be here on that occasion. The hospitality of Rockland people now a well-known quantity, will be fully and freely on tap and every person caught within these gates between the days of August 14-21 may expect to be treated to the full extent of the law. We mean of course the law of hospitality.

The Boston Herald's review of the Maine political situation is about as convincing as the Lewiston Journal. If the Herald had been a little less sweeping in its tone, a little fairer in its conclusions, it would perhaps have escaped the charge of partisanship and of writing under the inspiration of Fernald money. As it is its article has more weight, as we have suggested, than one of the billious Lewiston Journal's vicious screeds.

Meantime the interest continues in the St. Louis Exposition trips that The Courier-Gazette is to give away in August—which is only a brief distance away and will be here before the busy workers in the contest have time to realize it. The lead in the two classes continues to fluctuate, now one contestant ahead, now another. In the end it will be victory to the hardest worker and the prize will be a full recompense for all effort.

A week has elapsed since the destruction of the excursion steamer General Slocum, but every day brings some addition to the horror, nearly 900 bodies having been recovered to date. In magnitude this eclipses the Troquois theatre fire of Chicago and leaves the shivering reader to wonder how a new record of tragedy can be established.

A prominent Portland man, who is also one of the owners of the anti-Cobb Portland Press, was in Rockland a few days ago, and expressed the candid opinion that Mr. Cobb would be nominated. Doubtless all of the anti-Cobb folks feel that way down in the bottom of their hearts. Even the Park Street Apology.

We are glad to learn of the increase in Rockland school teachers' salaries. There is no danger of these salaries going too high. Large salaries and the best teachers will be had should govern the school practice of our city. It would be an investment that future generations would draw big dividends on.

Since Gen. Miles is out of the running, the only military leader who is at all conspicuous in Democratic affairs is General Uncertainty, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. What's the matter with General Debility?

It cannot be said that the St. Louis fair is lacking in notabilities. Agulais and Gen. Funston are both to be there next month.

Rockland finds no difficulty in floating its bonds at three per cent. This is a good enough credit for any municipality.

Nomination Seems Assured.

Mr. Cobb's Friends Claim 652 Delegates, and More Coming—Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

To the hundreds of Courier-Gazette readers who have been watching the standing of the gubernatorial canvass we bring today the welcome announcement that Mr. Cobb has enough delegates to ensure his nomination on the first ballot, and some to spare. His total of 651 does not represent instructed delegates wholly but is based upon instructions, pledges and reliable newspaper reports. The gentlemen who are in close touch with Mr. Cobb's canvass and know of the pledges he has received from uninstructed delegates, do not consider the above figure over sanguine, and are confident that between now and the day of the convention the total will have reached or exceeded the 700 mark.

Following is the standing by counties:

	Cobb	Prescott	Fernald	Union
Androscoggin,	83	15	3

ROOSEVELT AND FAIRBANKS.

The next President and Vice President of the United States were nominated at Chicago Thursday. The former will be the man who now occupies the chair so ably—Theodore Roosevelt of New York. The latter will be Senator Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, who is not unknown to Knox county, having spoken here in the last presidential campaign. The nominations were made unanimously, and while practically a foregone conclusion, they were attended by a remarkable demonstration on the part of the delegates and spectators. The party platform will be published complete in our Tuesday issue.

ST. GEORGE CAUCUS.

The Republicans of St. George held a caucus last night and elected Clyde Graves, Arthur G. Smith, James Riley, A. J. Sney and A. L. Snow delegates to the county convention. They were instructed for Mr. Caddy in the sheriff contest.

It will not astonish anybody who has followed the situation to learn that there is already talk of a bolt in Hancock county. Rev. S. L. Hanscom, who was defeated in the Republican county convention, by what appears on the outside to be a decisive majority, now announces, according to Bar Harbor despatches, that he will form a National Republican party. The exact platform is not yet announced but the primary purpose will doubtless be the defeat of the Republican county ticket, either through endorsement of the Democratic ticket, or by nominating an independent ticket. Mr. Hanscom believes he will be able to secure 3000 votes for such a movement. He seems to think that he has been unfairly treated, a symptom quite common among defeated candidates. The people of Hancock county, together with those who are merely spectators, will begin to fear that Mr. Hanscom is a poor loser.

The name of Charles H. Prescott will be presented at the Republican state convention by Hon. James O. Bradbury, ex-mayor of Saco. Between Littlefield, Libby and Bradbury, to say nothing of those who make the second speeches, there should be no lack of oratory in the convention.

Maine's new member of the Republican national committee is Hon. John P. Hill of Augusta, the present governor of the state, and one of Maine's most influential and experienced politicians. Coincident with his election the Maine legislature passed the following resolution: "Resolved, That the Maine delegation hereby expresses its sincere appreciation of the long and laborious service of the Hon. Joseph H. Manley as the member from Maine of the national Republican committee, and wish him in his well-earned retirement all happiness and prosperity."

The Democrats hold their national convention in St. Louis, commencing July 6. Our readers are still entitled to several guesses as to who the Presidential candidate will be.

John W. Ballou, who is well known in Knox county, especially among the Masonic fraternity, was renominated for sheriff of Sagadahoc county Wednesday. Rev. C. H. Young, who was talked of as a candidate against him, did not have his name presented on the understanding that he be made a deputy under Sheriff Ballou.

The Republican caucus which will name two candidates for representatives to Legislature will be held in Armory hall, this city, Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Democrats hold a caucus in Armory hall Tuesday night for the following purposes: To elect 15 delegates and 15 alternates to the state convention; to elect 31 delegates and 31 alternates to the county convention; and to nominate two candidates for representatives to Legislature.

The following nominations were made at the Lincoln county Democratic convention Wednesday: Senator, Silas R. Tupper, Boothbay Harbor; county clerk, E. T. Benner, Waldoboro; county attorney, no nomination; county treasurer, R. H. T. Taylor, Wiscasset; sheriff, John B. Haffey, Bangor; coroner, Damariscotta; clerk of courts, Bradford C. Radonnet, Bristol; judge of probate, Hiram E. Howe, Whitefield.

LINCOLN CLUB, ALSO.

Knox County Cobb Club Will Have Rivalry in the Queen City.

It now appears that the Knox county Cobb Clubs are not to have the monopoly of the hurrahing in Bangor next Wednesday. The Lincoln Club, of Portland which is one of the largest Republican organizations in the state, has announced its intention of being there in body, but its chief end will not be to sweet music to eastern Maine delegates as the Lincoln Club will be there in the interest of Col. Prescott, the First District's candidate for governor. The Portland Press announces the Lincoln Club's program as follows: "Portland's Lincoln Club will go to Bangor in a body June 29th. The club will wear the Lincoln buttons, and will be furnished the members on board the train. On arrival in Bangor the club will join in the grand street parade that is to be held. The procession will be escorted by a platoon of police and a military band beside the Republican city committee of Bangor and citizens generally. This is the fourth state convention that the Lincoln Club has attended in a body and it is a well known fact that the members of this club with their enthusiasm can always be depended upon to do the right thing at the right time. The club members will use all honorable means to secure the selection of Col. Prescott for governor."

The Cobb Club has had less experience in this line than the Lincoln Club but we raise good lungs down here. The Cobb Club, Penobscot Bay and a splendid standard bearer whose behalf they are to be exercised. The Lincoln Club will probably not make so much noise but that Bangor will know when the Cobb Club gets there.

TWENTY YEARS OLD.

There was an oldtime gathering at Grand Army hall, Tuesday evening when Edwin Libby Corps celebrated the 20th anniversary of its organization. A special invitation had been extended to P. Henry Tillson Post and the Thompson Relief Corps, and that town sent quite a large delegation.

Mrs. H. E. Candage, president of the local corps, welcomed the visitors and in a few words explained the purpose of the gathering. Mrs. J. E. Rhodes, past state president of the order, gave an interesting history of the organization and showed by graphic figures the splendid work done by Edwin Libby Corps. Mrs. Rhodes' excellent address will be published complete in our next issue.

Commander Aylward of Edwin Libby Post was called upon. Said he: "If I were called upon to name the hardest working, the most benevolent and most talkative society in town, I would answer, 'Come with me to Grand Army hall some Thursday afternoon, and I will show you Edwin Libby Relief Corps. That is it. The Relief Corps is the best friend the old veteran has. It is often called the auxiliary of the Post, but your Corps has been a great deal more than a helper. I congratulate you on reaching your 20th anniversary and thank you for the good work you have done. I would have this motto: 'What is a Grand Army Post without a Relief Corps.' Commander Aylward also paid a tribute to the noble hospital nurses who served during the war."

Past Division Commander Henry C. Chittie congratulated the corps in behalf of the Sons of Veterans, and also congratulated the Post for having such a good Corps. "If you live up to the principles of your order," said the speaker, "you will indeed perpetuate the memory of the Grand Army."

There was also a short musical program, made up as follows: Piano duet, Leo Flint and Carrie Payson; vocal solo, Hattie Hix; character sketch, Mrs. William Larabee; vocal solo, Mildred Clarke; song, Little Miss Cross; character songs, Mrs. J. L. Cross; vocal solo, Miss Ethel Clifton; vocal solo, Mrs. Evie Day. Ice cream and cake were served.

The anniversary was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

FOURTEENTH ANNUAL CONCERT.

Under the auspices of the First Baptist Choral Association, the Sarah Munroe Choral Society, and the company make its first appearance in this city next Thursday evening, June 30, at the First Baptist church. This concert company consists of Sarah Munroe Hall, soprano; Anne Kittredge of Belfast, first; Frank Holding of Lewiston, violinist; and Harris S. Shaw of Thomaston, organist and pianist. Each one of these artists are well known in Rockland and they form a very successful quartette, having given concerts in Boston and vicinity, meeting with great success and receiving very flattering notices from the press. The program will be as follows:

Prayer from "Lohengrin." Wagner (a) Rhema's, Mrs. H. A. Beach (b) Lullaby, Richard Strauss

Andante and Allegro Valse from Concerto in E Minor, Mendelssohn

The Night Wind, Field

Concert Aria—"Infance," Mendelssohn (a) Song to the Evening Star from "Lullaby," Wagner (b) Hushabye and Dance, Wagner

(c) At Sunset Time, Mabel F. Hall (d) A Love Taking, Lawrence Kellie (e) The Years at the Spring, Mrs. H. A. Beach

Selection from the Last Days of a Rebel Boy, Shute

O Dry Those Tears, Teresa del Riego

The sale of tickets up to this date has been very gratifying and those who have not already secured a ticket can get one from members of the Choral Association or V. A. Leach at W. O. Hewitt & Co's. The price is only 25 cents.

THE BUNNELL TRAGEDY.

Former Rockland Girl Murdered by Infatuated Frenchman at Rumford Falls.

Miss Mae Bunnell, who formerly resided on Granite street this city, was murdered at Rumford Falls Monday night. The story of the tragedy is told in this evening despatch from Rumford Falls:

Angered because of her refusal to accept him as her lover, John Laroux, a Frenchman, 22 years old, this evening shot and instantly killed Mae Bunnell. He then turned the revolver on himself and fired one shot through the temple, dying the next morning.

Returned to this town, a little more than two years ago from Orono, he had trouble with his family, it is said, but rapidly formed friendship in this place. He secured work as a team twister in the Oxford paper mills, and about the same time went to work in the mills, Mae Bunnell and her sister Bessie. They had formerly lived in Hudson, Mass., where their mother and brother died. Mae Bunnell was put to work as a paper cutter, and was a hard working girl.

Laroux became fascinated with the girl and made every effort to become better acquainted with her. The young woman, however, did not seem to care for his attentions, and would not allow him to call upon her at her boarding place in the home of John Thompson on Hancock street.

A little more than a week ago Laroux lost his job at the mills after being employed for some time. He then went to work elsewhere. It is believed that Laroux was a Frenchman, and he had determined to ask the young woman to accompany him to some other place, and think this was the purpose of his visit to Miss Bunnell's boarding place in this town.

Laroux had his supper as usual at the house where he boarded, 44 Echies street, after which he asked the landlady any question of her revolver. With him his 22-caliber revolver and Laroux left the house. The man went directly to the residence of Mr. Thompson and remained there until morning.

He was shown into the parlor and in a minute Laroux came back to meet him. Just what passed between the two is not known, but it was not very long before the inmates of the house were startled by the noise of two shots fired. Mr. Thompson, who was in the parlor, rushed into the parlor, only to find the young woman lying dead on the floor with a gaping wound in her left temple. Close by lay Laroux with a bullet in his head and with a bullet hole in his head from which he bled profusely. Beside him on the right side was the still smoking revolver that had fired the fatal shot.

The police were called and Laroux was taken to the hospital. He was found to be a Frenchman, and was taken to the hospital. He was found to be a Frenchman, and was taken to the hospital.

Friends of the young woman in this place say that the girl, despite the protestations of affection on the part of Laroux, remained true to a young man named George Twombly, living in Quebec, but formerly of this place, and that she corresponded with him regularly. The sister of the girl is a resident of this town. She has but one living relative, it is said, a brother, who is sickly. No arrangements have been made for the burial of the girl.

Laroux since coming to this town has always enjoyed a good reputation until recently when, it is said, he took to drink, which finally led to his discharge at the paper mills. He is a member of the papermakers' union and the Lafayette club of this town.

The victim of the crime was the daughter of Daniel and Mary Fowler Bunnell and was born in Presque Isle 22 years ago. While in this city she was employed in the Park street clothing factory. During a visit here last summer she told of the annoyance to which she was being put by the unwelcome attentions of a young Frenchman named Laroux. She said that she was the cause of her death. Miss Bunnell was a very attractive young woman and had many friends here. She united with the Baptist church while residing in this city. Her remains were taken to Presque Isle for burial. Two brothers and a sister survive her.

The funeral of Miss Bunnell was held in the Congregational church, Mexico, Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. H. E. Culkins of Yarmouth, who was her pastor several years ago in Presque Isle. The services were largely attended and the floral tributes were profuse. The cutting department in the Oxford paper mills, where she had been employed, was closed from 11 to 2 o'clock out of respect. The remains were taken to Presque Isle for interment. A collection has been taken for two days at Rumford Falls and $200 secured and presented to her sister and sick brother.

MANSFIELD-THURSTON.

There was a very pretty June wedding in South Union Wednesday night, when George Mansfield of Malden, Mass., and Miss Lella Mae Thurston of South Union were joined in marriage. Rev. T. P. Jones of Thomaston officiated and the wedding march was played by Miss Edith Besse. Fred Mansfield, brother of the groom, was best man, and Florence, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Helen Thurston and Elizabeth Harding were ribbon girls, and Annabel Thurston was ring girl. The bride's gown was white silk, and she carried bride roses. The bridesmaid wore silk muslin and carried white carnations. The house decorations were green and white, and included a beautiful arch. A wedding lunch of ice cream, cake, etc., was served. Amid a shower of rice and confetti, the couple left on the afternoon train for their new home in Malden. The groom, a former Union resident, is in the piano business in Boston and is nicely established there. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Thurston, and like her husband has many friends in the county.

At the meeting of the Department
Council, Patriarchs Militant, at Bar Harbor Tuesday night it was voted to recommend that the Grand Decoration

Charles E. Weeks of this city.

While St. John's day is not being celebrated in Rockland today, one can almost hear the sounds of nearby revelry. Palestine Commandery of Belfast is rustivating at Crescent Beach and De Valois Commandery of Vinalhaven is having a picnic and clambake at North Haven.

The barbers have gone back to the old system of closing their shops Tuesday nights and keeping them open Friday afternoon and evening. While most of them enjoyed the afternoon holiday it did not take long to realize that its proximity to busy Saturday was too close for convenience.

Charles Cook, the enterprising dealer in notions, will accompany the Cobb Club to Bangor. He has already ordered a special cane for this occasion made in imitation of a corn-stalk with a cob handle. Miniature cob pipes will be distributed among the members of the Club as a distinctive badge.

The Class of 1904, Rockland high school, with invited guests, had an excursion to Castine Wednesday on the steamer W. G. Butman. The excursionists got tangled up with the shower arriving at Castine, but the unanimous verdict upon the return seemed to be that it was a good time.

St. George not only carried off the two highest honors at Hebron Academy this summer but also the distinction of furnishing Castine Normal School with its salutatorian, Willis N.
Hooper. It is also interesting to note that the valedictorian of Castine Normal came from a neighboring town—
Mary W. Knight of Deer Isle.

Wednesday was the first pay day at the sardine factory and quite a neat sum of new money went into the local circulation. Tuesday 25 bushels of herring were received at the factory and on that day about 135 employees were at work. The merchants already speak of a noticeable increase in business due to this new industry.

Bulletins on the Republican national convention were displayed in the windows of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph offices this week but failed to attract the usual amount of attention as the newspapers notified everybody in advance what the ticket would be. Will the newspapers now please inform us what the Democratic ticket will be?

A large delegation of Knox Lodge Odd Fellows attended the funeral of

The Hydraulic Engine & Hose Co. of Bristol, R. I., talks of coming here Old Home Week and taking part in the muster. The company will be on a tour of the state about that time.

The graduation class of the Vinalhaven High school, 1904, have the swellest graduation and ball that Vinalhaven ever had, June 27 and 28. Music by Poole's orchestra of Boston.

We never saw so elegant a line of fine goods as Spear & Co., 408 Main street, are now opening. Specialties from Vantine, Strauss and other leading New York houses in great variety.

Should Mr. Cobb be nominated at Bangor next Wednesday (and it is scarcely necessary to use the propo-sitional word "should") there is apt to be a total lapse of memory in regard to the ordinance about bon-fires.

If you are going on the state convention excursion don't forget that the boat leaves Tillson wharf at 1:30 p. m., and that the Republicans are requested to march down from the headquarters, escorted by the band, at 1 o'clock.

Large posters for the Fourth of July celebration at Camden are displayed throughout the city, having been hung in place by Bill Hemmingsway, the Cam-

Rockland folks will be there to see it.

at Crescent Beach to A. C. Hahn and Fred Clark, who are already making preparations to occupy it for the sum-is undoubtedly a good one, as the cottage is in good condition and is admirably located. By this transfer of property Crescent Beach loses its "harbor-master," but Myrick is not a man to forget his old friends, and will make occasional visits to the Beach to see that things are running smoothly.

who were serving their first term. The caucus is called for 7:30. The Democratic legislative caucus will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, and it is understood that this party will renom-inate R. I. Thompson and James H.
McNamara, who were the candidates in 1902.

The meeting of the Cobb Club this Friday evening will be the last gathering before the Bangor trip and it is of utmost importance that every member of the Club, and all who wish to be present at the convention, should be present as the program of the excursion is to be mapped out finally. If the Rockland and Republicans wish to make a creditworthy record beside the trained Lincoln Club of Portland it will be necessary for them to act in unison and follow instructions. What those instructions shall be for the Club to determine this Friday evening. Consequently be at the meeting good and early.

The steamer Penobscot, which is chartered to carry the Cobb Club to Bangor will serve a double purpose, as she is to bring a large cargo of freight when she comes here Tuesday. Capt.
E. W. Curtis will be in command.

Speaking of the Cobb Club, the evidently under the impression that the Penobscot is put on solely for the purpose of carrying freight) the Bangor Commercial says: "Because of the rush of freight which is far too great to be carried by the regular steamers, the Penobscot has been put into service on the Boston and Bangor division of the Eastern Steamship Co. The freight has been very large this season. Monday night, when the City of Rockland left, laden to her fullest capacity, there was freight enough on the wharf to load another steamer and so fast is it accumulating that the freight boat was necessary. How long the Penobscot will run is not known, but she will probably be continued in service for several weeks."

One of the eastern members of the Republican committee on resolutions at the Chicago convention was Hon. Elmer P. Spofford of Deer Isle.

KATE BONNET

THE ROMANCE OF A PIRATE'S DAUGHTER

By FRANK R. STOCKTON

CHAPTER XIX.

ONE NORTH, ONE SOUTH.

Four dear Kate Bonnet had really imagined, in her inexperienced mind, that it would be a matter of days, and perhaps weeks, to procure a vessel in which she, with her uncle and good Dame Charter, could sail forth to save her father, she was wonderfully mistaken. Not a free-footed vessel of any class came into the harbor of Kingston. Sloop and bark and ship in general arrived and departed, but they were all bound by one contract or another, and were not free to sail away, here and there, for a short time or a long time, at the word of a maiden's will.

Mr. Delaplaine was a rich man, but he was a prudent one, and he had not the money to waste in wild rewards, even if there had been an opportunity for him to offer them. Kate was disappointed, disappointed and greatly cast down.

Day after day Kate waited for notice of a craft, not only one which might bring Dickory back, but one which might carry her away.

The optimism of Dame Charter would not now bear her up, the load which had been put upon it was too big. Everything about her was melancholy and depressed, and Dickory had not come back. So many things had happened since he went away, and so many days had passed, and she had entirely exhausted her plentiful stock of very good reasons why her son had not been able to return to her.

In the midst of all this uncertainty, this anxiety, this foreboding, almost this despair, there came a sunburst which lighted up the souls of these three good people, which made their eyes sparkle and their hearts swell with thankfulness. This happiness came in the shape of a letter from Martin Newcombe.

The letter was a long one and told many things. The first part of it Kate read to herself and kept to herself, for in burning words it assured her that he loved her and would always love her, and that no misfortune of her own nor wrongdoings of others could prevent him from offering her his most ardent and unchangeable affection. Moreover, he begged and implored her to accept that affection, to accept it now that it might belong to her forever. Happiness, he said, seemed opening before her; he implored her to allow him to share that happiness with her. The rest of the letter was read most jubilantly aloud. It told of news which had come to Newcombe from Honduras gulf—great news, wonderful news, which would make the heart sing. Maj. Bonnet was at Belize. He had given up all connection with piracy and was now engaged in mercantile pursuits. This was positively true, for the person who had sent the news to Bridgetown had seen Maj. Bonnet and had talked to him, and had been informed by him that he had given up his ship and was now an accountant and commission agent doing business at that place.

The sender of this great news also stated that Ben Greenway was with Maj. Bonnet, working as his assistant—and here Dame Charter sat open-mouthed and her heart nearly stopped beating—young Dickory Charter had also been in the port and had gone away but was expected ere long to return.

Kate stood on her tip-toes and waved the letter over her head.

"To Belize, my dear uncle, to Belize! If we cannot get there any other way we must go in a boat with oars. We must fly, we must not wait!"

The opportunities for figurative flying were not wanting. There were no vessels in the port which might be engaged for an indeterminate voyage, but there was a goodly sloop about to sail in ballast for Belize. Before sunset three passages were engaged upon this sloop.

It was a bright morning when, with a fair wind upon her starboard bow, the sloop Belinda, bearing the jubilant three, sailed southward on her course to the coast of Honduras; and it was upon that same morning that the good ship Revenge, bearing the pirate Blackbeard and his handily uniformed lieutenant, sailed northward, the same fair wind upon her port bow.

CHAPTER XX.

A PROJECTED MARRIAGE.

STRANGE as it may appear, Dickory Charter was not a very unhappy young fellow as he stood in his fine uniform on the quarter-deck of the Revenge, the fresh breeze ruffling his brown curls when he lifted his heavy cocked hat.

True, he was leaving behind him his friends, Capt. Bonnet and Ben Greenway, with whom the wayward Blackbeard would allow no word of leave-taking; true, he was going, he knew not where, and in the power of a man noted the new world over for his savage eccentricities; and true, he might soon be sailing, hour by hour, farther and farther away from the island on which dwelt the angel Kate—that angel Kate and his mother. But none of these considerations could keep down the glad feeling that he was going, that he was moving. Moreover, in answer to one of his impassioned appeals to be set ashore at Jamaica, Blackbeard had said to him that if he should get tired of him he did not say at that moment, any reason why he should not put him on board some convenient vessel and have him landed at Kingston.

Dickory did not believe very much in the black-bearded pirate, with his wild tricks and inhuman high spirits, but Jamaica lay to the east, and he was going eastward.

Incited, perhaps, by the possession of a fine ship, manned by a crew picked from his old vessel and from the men who had formed the crew of the Revenge, Blackbeard was in better spirits than was his wont, and so far as his nature would allow he treated Dickory with fair good humor. But no matter what happened, his unstrained imagination never failed him. Having taken the fancy to see Dickory always in full uniform, he allowed him to assume no other clothes; he was always in naval full-dress and cocked hat, and his duties were those of a private secretary.

"The only shrewd thing I ever knew," "Your Sir Nightcap to do," he said, "was to tell me you could not read nor write. He spoke so glibly that I believed him. Had it not been so I should have sent you to the town to help with the shore end of my affairs, and then you would have been there still and I should have had no admiral to write my log and straighten my accounts."

Sometimes, in his quiver moods, when there was no provocation to send pistol balls between two sailors quietly conversing, or to perform some other demoniac trick, Blackbeard would talk to Dickory and ask all manner of questions, some of which he would answer, while some he tried not to answer. Thus it was that the pirate found out a great deal more about Dickory's life, hope and sorrows than the young fellow imagined that he made known. He discovered that Dickory was greatly interested in Bonnet's daughter, and wished to know all other things in this world to get to her and to be with her.

This was a little out of the common run of things among the brotherhood; it was their fashion to forget, so far as they were able, the family ties which already belonged to them, and to make no plans for any future ties of that sort which they might be able to make. Such a thing amused the generally rampant Blackbeard, but if this Dickory boy whom they had on board really did wish to marry some one, the idea came into the crafty mind of Blackbeard that he would like to attend to that marrying himself. It pleased him to have a finger in every pie, and now here was a pie in the finger of which he might take a novel interest.

This renowned desperado, this bloody cutthroat, this merciless pirate possessed a home—a quiet little English home on the Cornwall coast, where the cheerful woods and fields stretched down almost in reach of the sullen sea. Here dwelt his wife, quiet Misses Thatch, and here his brave daughter. Seldom a word came to this rural home from the father, burning and robbing, sinking and slaying out upon the western seas. But from the stores of elf which so often slipped so easily into his great arms, and which so often slipped just as easily out of them, came now and then something to help the brawn grow upon his daughter's bones and to ease the labors of his wife.

Eliza Thatch bore no resemblance to a houri; her hair was red, her face was freckled; she had enough teeth left to do good eating with when she had a chance, and her step shook the timbers of her little home.

Her father had heard from her a little while ago by a letter she had had conveyed to Belize. His parental feelings, notwithstanding he had told Bonnet he knew no such sentiments, were stirred. When he had finished her letter he would have been well pleased to burn a vessel and make a dozen passengers walk the plank as a memorial to his girl. But this notion being convenient, it had come to him that he would marry the wench to the gayly bedecked young fellow he had captured, and it filled his reckless heart with a wild delight. He drew his cutlass, and with a great oath he drove the heavy blade into the top of the table, and he swore by the mark that his grand plan should be carried out.

He would sail over to England; this would be a happy chance, for his vessel was unladen and ready for any adventure. He would drop anchor in the quiet harbor, and he would go ashore by night, he would be at home again. To be at home again made him shiver with profane laughter, the little home he remembered would be so ridiculous to him now. He would see again his poor little trembling wife—she must be gray by now—and he was sure that she would tremble more than ever she did when she heard the great sea oaths which he was accustomed to pour forth now. And his daughter, she must be a strapping wench by this time; he was sure she could stand a slap on the back which would kill her mother.

Yes, there should be a wedding, a fine wedding, and good old rum should water the earth. And he would detail a boat's crew of jolly good fellows from the Revenge to help make things uproarious. This Charter boy and Eliza should have a house of their own, with plenty of money—he had more funds in hand than ever in his life before—and his respectable son-in-law should go to London and deposit his fortune in a bank. It would be royal fun to think of him and Eliza high and dry with money in the bank. A quart of the best rum could scarcely have made Blackbeard more hilarious than did this glorious notion. He danced among his crew; he sang bawdy songs; he whacked with capstan bars; he pushed men down hatchways; he was in lordly spirits, and his crew respected some great adventure, some startling piece of devilry.

Of course he did not keep his great design from Dickory—it was too glorious, too transcendent. He took his young admiral into his cabin and laid before him his dazzling future.

Dickory sat speechless, almost breathless. As he listened he could feel himself turn cold. Had anyone else been talking to him in this strain he would have shouted with laughter, but people did not laugh at Blackbeard.

When the pirate had said all and was gazing triumphantly at poor Dickory, the young man gasped a word in answer; he could not accept this awful fate without as much as a wave of the hand in protest.

"But, sir," said he, "if—"

Blackbeard's face grew black; he bent his head and lowered upon the pale Dickory; then, with a tremendous blow, he brought down his fist upon the table.

"If Eliza will not have you," he roared, "if that girl will not take you when I offer you to her; if she or her mother as much as winks an eyelash in disobedience of my commands, I will take them by the hair of their heads and I will throw them into the sea. If she will not have you," he repeated, roaring as if he were shouting through a speaking trumpet in a storm, "if I thought that, youngster, I would burn the house with both of them in it, and the rum I had bought to make a jolly wedding should be poured on the timbers to make them blaze. Let no notions like that enter your mind, my boy. If she disobeys me, I will kill her and you shall die with her. Disobey me! And he swore at such a rate that he panted for fresh air and mounted to the deck.

It was not a time for Dickory to make remarks indicating his disapproval of the proposed arrangement.

CHAPTER XXI.

BELIZE.

HERE were not many captains of merchantmen in the early part of the eighteenth century who cared to sail into the Gulf of Honduras, that body of water being such a favorite resort of pirates.

But no such fears troubled the mind of the skipper of the Belinda, which was now making the best of her way towards the port of Belize. She was a sturdy vessel and carried no prejudices. Sometimes she was laden with goods bought from the pirates and destined to be sold to honest people; and, again, she carried commodities purchased from those who were their legal owners and intended for the use of the bold rascals who sailed under the Jolly Roger. Then, as now, it was impossible for thieves to steal all the commodities they desired; some things must be bought. Thus, serving the pirates as well as honest folk, the sloop Belinda feared not to sail the Gulf of Honduras or to cast anchor by the town of Belize.

As the good ship approached her port Kate Bonnet kept steadfastly on deck during most of the daylight, her eyes searching the surface of the water for something which looked like her father's ship, the Revenge. True, Mr. Newcombe had written her that Maj. Bonnet had given up piracy and was now engaged in commercial business in the town, but still, if she should see the Revenge, the sight would be of absorbing interest to her. She was a girl of quick observation and good memory, but the town came in view and she saw no vessel which reminded her of the Revenge.

As soon as the anchor was dropped Kate wished to go ashore, but her uncle would not hear of that. He must know something definite before he trusted Kate or himself in such a lawless town as Belize. The captain, who was going ashore, could make inquiries, and Kate must wait.

In a little room at the back of a large low storehouse, not far from the pier, sat Blackbeard and his faithful friend and servant, Ben Greenway. The storehouse was crowded with goods of almost every imaginable description, and even the room back of it contained an overflow of barrels, boxes and barrels. At a small table near a window sat the Scotchman and Bonnet, the latter reading some roughly written lists, descriptions and quantities of goods, the value of each item being estimated by the canny Scotchman, who set down the figures upon another list. Presently Bonnet put down his papers and heaved a heavy sigh, which seemed to harmonize very well with his general appearance. He carried no longer upon him the countenance of the bold officer who, in uniform and flowing feather, trod the quarter-deck of the Revenge, but bore the expression of a man who knew adversity, yet was not able to humble himself under it. He was bent and borne down, although not yet

Miss Nellie Holmes, treasurer of the Young Woman's Temperance Association of Buffalo, N. Y., strongly advises all suffering women to rely, as she did, upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your medicine is indeed an ideal woman's medicine, and by far the best I know to restore lost health and strength. I suffered misery for several years, being troubled with menorrhagia. My back ached, I had bearing-down pains and frequent headaches. I would often wake from restless sleep, and in such pain that I suffered for hours before I could go to sleep again. I dreaded the long nights as much as the weary days. I consulted two different physicians, hoping to get relief, but, finding that their medicine did not seem to cure me, I tried your Vegetable Compound on the recommendation of a friend from the East who was visiting me. "I am glad that I followed her advice, for every ache and pain is gone, and not only this, but my general health is much improved. I have a fine appetite and have gained in flesh. My earnest advice to suffering women is to put away all other medicines and to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Miss NELLIE HOLMES, 540 No. Division St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Irene Crosby, prominent in Social Life in East Savannah, Ga., adds her testimonial to the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Remember that every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her case or symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and is cheerfully given to any ailing woman who asks for it.

broken. Had he been broken he could better have accommodated himself to his present case. His clothes were those of the common class of civilian, and there was that about him which indicated that he cared no more for neatness or good looks.

"Ben Greenway," he said, "this is too much! Now have I reached the depth in my sorrow at which all my strength leaves me. I cannot read these lists."

The Scotchman looked up. "Is there no light enough?" he asked.

"Light!" said Bonnet, "there is no light anywhere; all is murkiness and gloom. The goods which you have been lately estimating are all my own, taken from my own ship by that arch traitor and chief devil, Blackbeard. I have read the names of them to you and I have remembered many of them and I have not weakened, but now comes a task which is too great for me. These things which follow were all intended for my daughter Kate. Silks and satins and cloth of gold, ribbons and fine linen, laces and ornaments, all these I selected for my dear daughter, and by day and by night I have thought of her apparel in fine raiment, which is too great for me. Ben Greenway looked up. "What stole from you," he said, "what ye have already stolen from his rightful owners. An' think ye," he continued, "that your honest daughter Kate would design to array herself in stolen goods, no matter how rich they might happen to be! An' think ye she could hold up her head if the good people of Bridgetown could point at her an' say: 'Look at the thief's daughter; how fine she is!' An' think ye that Mr. Martin Newcombe would take into his house an' name a wife who hadna come honestly by her clothes! I tell ye, Master Bonnet, that ye should cast your soul in thankfulness that ye are no longer a dishonest man, an' that whatever raiment your daughter may now wear, not a sleeve or button o' it was purloined an' stolen by her father."

At this moment there was a knock at the door and the captain of the Belinda came in.

"Good day, sir!" said that burly seaman. "And this is Capt. Bonnet, I am sure, for I have seen him before, though garbed in another fashion, and I come to bring you news. I have just arrived at this port in my sloop, and I bring with me from Kingston your daughter, Mistress Kate Bonnet, her uncle, Mr. Delaplaine, and a good dame named Charter."

Suede Bonnet turned pale as he had never turned pale before.

"My daughter!" he gasped. "My daughter Kate?"

"Yes," said the captain; "she is on my ship, yearning and moaning to see you."

THE ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION

The Courier-Gazette's Voting Contest, Through Which Four Knox County Persons Will Be Sent To St. Louis Free of All Charges.

The Courier-Gazette again presents one of its high-class voting contests, the winners in which will be sent to the great St. Louis Exposition, this paper paying all expenses from Rockland to St. Louis and return.

Class A.—This class is open to any person living in Rockland.

Class B.—This class is open to any person living in Knox County outside of Rockland.

The winner in each class will be the one receiving the highest number of votes. Each winner will be entitled to invite one friend, the expenses of the four to be paid by this paper.

Read the Rules of the Contest which will govern in all particulars. Contest will close at the business office of The Courier-Gazette at 6 o'clock p. m. on THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1904. The last coupon will be printed in the issue of Tuesday, August 9, but votes can be turned in up to the hour of closing. The votes will be counted immediately after 6 o'clock.

RULES OF CONTEST.

A coupon will be printed in each issue of the paper. The coupon will bear the name of the month in which it is printed, and must be sent in for counting not later than the last day of the succeeding month—thus, all coupons marked "March" must be sent in not later than April 30, and so on.

Coupons should be put in packages of ten, plainly marked with the name of the person for whom the votes are intended, and the class in which they are placed. It is essential to the contest that the names of not less than two contestants appear in each class and remain actively engaged until the close. In the event of the withdrawal of all active candidates but one, there can be no contest and the prize will be withdrawn.

For every yearly new subscriber to this paper at $2.00 per year, the subscriber will be given a new coupon. For every $2.00 paid by present subscribers, other arrangements of accounts or in advance on present subscription, one hundred votes will be given.

Changes in the number of votes given to one member to another of the same family, etc., made for obvious purpose of securing the increased number of votes given to new subscribers, cannot be permitted.

There will be no single vote for sale; votes can only be obtained as above set forth.

Votes will be counted each Wednesday and Saturday morning during the contest and the figures of such counting printed in the paper, will be issued votes sent in.

Book Premium Coupons.—Persons buying a copy of the humorous book, "What Happened To Wigglesworth," in connection with subscribing to the paper, will be issued votes sent in.

The paper, $2.00 for a new subscription entitles to 200 votes, and $1.00 paid for the book entitles to 100 votes.

That these newcomers were the family of Blackbeard's factor, who now had charge of that pirate's interests in the town, no one dared to treat the elderly gentleman, the pretty young lady or the round dame with the slightest disrespect. The name of the great pirate was a safe protection even when he wore it as leagues and leagues away.

At the door of the storehouse Ben Greenway stood waiting. He would have hurried down to the pier had it not been that he was afraid to leave Bonnet; afraid that this shamefaced ex-pirate would have hurried away to hide himself from his daughter and his friends. Kate, running forward, grasped the Scotchman by both hands. "And where is he?" she cried.

"He is in there," said Ben, pointing through the storehouse to the open door at the back. In an instant she was gone.

"And Dickory?" cried Dame Charter. "Oh, Ben Greenway, tell me of my boy."

They went inside and Greenway told everything he knew, which was very much, although it was not enough to comfort the poor mother's heart, who could not readily believe that because Dickory had sailed away with a great and powerful pirate, that eminent man would be sure to bring him back in safety; but as Greenway really believed this, his words made some impression on the good dame's heart. She could see some reason to believe that Blackbeard, having now so much property in the town, might make a short cruise this time, and that any day the Revenge, with her dear son on board, might come sailing into port.

With his face buried in his folded arms, which rested on the table, Stede Bonnet received his daughter. At first she did not recognize him, never having seen him in such mean apparel; but when he raised his head, she knew her father. Closing the door behind her, she folded him in her arms. After a little, leaving the window, they sat together upon a bale of goods, which happened to be a rug from the orient, of wondrous richness, which Bonnet had reserved for the floor of his daughter's room.

"Never, my dear," he said, "did I dream you would see me in such plight. I blush that you should look at me."

"Blush!" she exclaimed, her own cheeks reddening, "and you an honest man and no longer a freebooter and rover of the sea? My heart swells with pride to think that your life is so changed."

Bonnet sadly shook his head.

"Ah!" he said, "you don't know, you cannot understand what I feel. Kate," he exclaimed with sudden energy, "I was a man among men; a chief over many. I was powerful, I was obeyed on every side. I looked the bold captain that I was; my brave uniform and my sword belokened the rank I held. And, Kate, you can never know the pride and exultation with which I stood upon my quarter-deck and scanned the sea, master of all that might come within my vision. How my heart would swell and my blood run wild when I beheld in the distance a proud ship, her sails all spread, her colors flying, heavily laden, hastening onward to her port. How I would stretch out my arm to that proud ship and say: 'Let down those

THOMASTON HAPPENINGS

ROBERT A. HULL.
Robert A. Hull, formerly of this town and one of Warren's most respected citizens, died at his home in that town Thursday morning of heart disease. Deceased was born in Bristol in 1830 and was the son of Robert Hull of that town. He first married Miss Erskine of Bristol, his second wife being Julia P. Spear of Warren, whom he married in 1866. For half a century he had worked in the shipyards of Thomaston, his first labor being for the Mortons, who built vessels where the Singer lumber yard is now located. For many years he was associated with Warren J. Shibles, who have done fastening for nearly every vessel built here during those years. This spring while at work on Dunn & Elliot Co.'s schooner he got hurt and has since been unable to do any labor.

MINNIE B. WASHBURN.
At 7:30 Thursday morning, the spirit of Minnie B. wife of Warren R. Washburn, was safely guided to the God who gave it. She was conscious all most up to the last moment although a week ago she had bid the family and friends good-bye. Deceased had borne an estimable life and in March last was baptized and united with the Baptist church of this town. She has been a member of the Christian and her whole life had won for her a host of friends who mourn her loss. Had she lived until next Thursday she would have passed her first wedding anniversary, but it was God's will to call her home at this time. She has been ill for the last two years and during the last weeks of her sickness has been a great sufferer. Deceased was born Oct. 21, 1830 and was the daughter of Farnsworth B. and Emeline Barter Clark of St. George. Her father was lost at sea fourteen years ago and her mother died ten years ago. Since the death of her mother and up to the time of her marriage she had lived with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, the latter being an own aunt. Deceased was a member of the class of 99, T. H. S. and of the McKinley Cooking Club. For nearly four years she served as assistant in the post office. She is survived by a husband, and one brother, William. The funeral service will take place from her late home on Knox street at 2 p. m. Saturday.

The Knox Hose Co. boys, hustlers and winners of races held in town, have been out for practice a number of evenings and probably will race at Camden, July 4.

Winchester Breech Loading Cannon

For SALUTING and CELEBRATING

This cannon has been designed to supply a general demand for a low priced breech-loading cannon possessing safety, simplicity of construction, and ease of manipulation. All these desirable features are combined in this gun. In it can be used either paper or brass shells, and we recommend our 10 gauge Winchester shells loaded with 9 drams of black powder, with two Black Edge and one card wad, to produce the loudest report. This cannon has so few parts that it cannot readily get out of order or cause any trouble in its operation. This is the best for saluting, or celebrating the Fourth.

We also have REVOLVERS of Many Styles and Prices.

VEAZIE—FRENCH.

The residence of Samuel H. Burpee on South Main street was the scene of a happy and interesting gathering Wednesday evening, when Mr. Burpee's granddaughters, Miss Almee Youmans French, was united in marriage to Fred Thomas Vezie. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock by Rev. E. H. Chapin and was followed by a reception at which Mr. Burpee, now 86 years of age, made some remarks of appropriate nature, and was the first to congratulate the couple.

The wedding march was dendered by Miss Frances Burpee. The groom was attended by his cousin, Edward R. Vezie, while with the bride came her aunt, Mrs. W. W. Tibbets of Portland, as matron of honor, Miss Eva May Tyler, cousin of the bride, and Miss Helen M. Wise cousin of the groom. The bridesmaids, the bride was given away by her brother, Karl Burpee French. The ushers, who also carried the bridal ribbons, were Thomas P. Hayden and Harry Steeper. The bride's costume was a handsome gown of white organdie over white silk, with pearl trimmings, and en train. She wore also a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. Mrs. Tibbets, matron of honor, wore a gown of white satin, and carried a bouquet of buttercups. Miss Tyler wore point d'esprit over blue silk, and Miss Wise wore white muslin with lace and ribbon trimmings; both maids carried bouquets of field daisies.

The wedding lunch included punch and cake, the former being served by Misses Marguerite Belden and Mary Harrington, and the latter by Misses Hazel Hix and Vivian Billings. The wedding cake was passed to the departing guests by Miss Florence Buck of Brunswick and Mrs. Charles Gray.

The house decorations were a pretty feature of the wedding. The parlor was brightened by the presence of peonies, evergreen and ferns. In the hallway the batonade was of course the wedding arch, composed of ferns and snowballs, the bell being manufactured from field daisies. The mirror, mantels and windows were banked with ferns and spruce. The dining room decorations were of pure tips and red clover.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Vezie of Orange street and for the past four years has been employed as clerk at the store of S. M. Vezie. He graduated with the class of 1897, Rockland high school, and is a young man of exceptionally fine qualities. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Katherine French, and graduated from the Rockland high school in 1899, a young lady of much attractiveness. This popular couple received upward of 125 wedding gifts. The bride's class in the high school gave a beautiful fish set, while from Mr. Vezie's class came a large number of individual gifts. Among the guests from out of town were Miss Grace Freeman of Saco, Mrs. W. W. Tibbets of Portland, E. H. Masters of Boston, Mrs. Obed Buck and family of Brunswick, and Miss Josie Hyler of Thomaston. The bridal couple departed on a honeymoon trip Wednesday night and the hundred or more spectators at the railway station made it a very festive occasion. Mr. Masters being the acknowledged leader of all the mischief. Mr. and Mrs. Vezie upon their return will reside at 200 South Main street, directly opposite the Burpee residence.

CASCO'S LOBSTER FRY. About 30,000 lobster fry will have been deposited in Casco Bay when this summer's work is over. About two-thirds of that number is already in the water.

IN SPORTING CIRCLES

Logan of Rockport is pitching for the Bath Iron Works team, one of the fastest baseball aggregations in the state. Last Saturday this team defeated the Blue Bells of Lewiston 5 to 4. The Bath Times says of its pitcher: "Logan, the new twirler, proved to be exceptionally strong in the box and made a hit by stealing bases. He struck out nine men and played a steady game. His support was good, and the boys all worked hard."

The sporting editor received a call Tuesday from R. H. Marks, a former Camden boy who is now in business in New York City. Mr. Marks is a baseball enthusiast of the first water and he was delighted to find that the star pitcher of the Manhattan College team was Fred O'Brien, whose great work for Camden two years ago was responsible for Rockland's frequent defeat there. "When I left New York," said Mr. Marks, "O'Brien had not lost a game, and Manhattan had gone against some of the strongest college teams in the state. This summer he will pitch for Rutland, Vt. in the New York and Vermont Interstate League. You can get a better idea of the kind of team Manhattan College has had the fact that its second baseman, Mullin, was signed by the Philadelphia Americans. Rutland also tried to get Breckenridge."

The Cindys, or Arlingtons, as some know them, trimmed the clerks in proper style on the Broadway ground Tuesday evening, the score being about in the proportion of four to one. It is rumored that the Cindys bonnets will no longer fit, on account of enlarged craniums, but a team is in process of evolution which promises to take the swelling out.

STEAMBOAT SPARKS.

General Manager Calvin Austin of the Eastern Steamship Co. made his first trip in the steamer J. T. Morse last Sunday and like everybody else was much pleased with the new steamer. At present there is a slight drawback caused by the fact that the draft does not trim evenly, but this is to be remedied by changing the 15-ton water tank from the stern to the bow which will put her on an even keel. The Morse has a capacity for carrying nearly double the number of horses that could be accommodated on the old J. T. Morse, and the capacity for freight is larger in proportion. The furnishings of the Morse form an even money-burdened tourists who use this route in getting to the summer palaces at Bar Harbor. There is an elegant dining room on the main deck, while the chairs and other furnishings are perfect dreams. How these appointments impress people may be judged from the statement of a well-known citizen who declared that she was the most comfortable boat on which he had ever traveled. The Morse carries 20 tons of coal per day against 15 consumed on the "Mounty," but the results in the way of speed amply justify the increase. Although she carries only 45 pounds of steam at 200 p. m. and arrives here very nearly at 7 o'clock. When the craft gets into good fighting trim she will carry 50 pounds of steam and will be able to show 16 or 17 knots an hour comfortably. Mr. Austin was accompanied on his trip by General Agent F. S. Sherman. From Bar Harbor they went to Bangor and then came down river on a tour of inspection. At 2:30 p. m. and arrives here very nearly at 7 o'clock. Our Correspondent's Glimpses of Things Going On At Gotham.

All recent topics have been dwarfed by the General Slocum horror on the East River. A huge, floating tinder-box, styled a "fatal excursion steamer," carrying more than two thousand women and children, takes the boat within the limits of the metropolis and in twenty minutes is a charred wreck upon the rocks of North Brother Island, while a thousand souls have passed away from the earth. The boat was no better and no worse than hundreds of others which ply the waters of this land. It belonged to a class which came into existence before the steel industry and mechanical science had enabled us to build fireproof and unsinkable vessels. It bore the same relation to ships of the latter class that a frame building does to a modern steel structure.

Already there is a demand that all excursion steamers be rendered fireproof, as are the vessels belonging to the Iron Steamship Company of this city. These staunch concerns are compartmented with metal hulls, framework, decks and partitions. Such vessels cannot sink, burn, nor "turn turtle."

It is asserted that the ill-fated General Slocum was provided with worsted life preservers, worthless fire hose, incomplete fire apparatus, and that its crew were untrained and poorly disciplined roustabouts, all of which is denied by the owners. At present the charges seem borne out by the facts, but it is unfair to give judgment until the matter has been investigated, which is now being done.

The passengers who came to such an untimely end were members of a little Lutheran church and a Sunday-school, with their friends, relatives and neighbors. These Sunday-school excursions are a feature of New York life, one or two occurring every day during the summer season. They are popular with women and children, and unpopular with men. The latter stay away, so that the average excursion consists of twelve hundred of the former to one hundred of the latter. The result is that there is no one on board to prevent panic and hysteria. Not that men are altogether reliable under such auspices. They themselves are liable to lose their heads and behave like madmen upon such occasions. But women, and especially children, are far worse and appear as if bereft of intelligence.

One group of women and children, instead of moving upon the burning vessel, knelt down in the path of the flames and prayed until a sudden burst of fire consumed them. Another group, rendered blind by the flames, clung long from a safe place on the deck into the hottest part of the flames, through which they struggled, dying, into the water beyond. Had there been calm and determined men on board and had the captain beached the ship when the fire broke out, instead of a holocaust it would have been a harmless accident.

The Russo-Japanese war, besides drawing attention to the land of the Mikado, has largely increased the demand for Japanese curios, and other productions. Neither the marvelous bronzes nor esthetic ceramics have so much as the offerings of their florists and gardeners. At present the horticulture of the Land of the Rising Sun is commanding attention from Maine to Oregon. The first symptoms occurred last February when there were a number of sales in this city in which dwarfed trees from Tokyo, Kioto and Yokohama were eagerly bid up to very high prices. Both before and after the auction, the exhibits were visited by large crowds, and the daily papers devoted columns to their descriptions. There were dwarfed cedars, firs, pines, oranges, lemons, oaks and other varieties. Some were ordinary trees in miniature. While others had been grown into strange and fantastic shapes. In one instance a dwarfed cedar had been trained to grow round a black rock crystal, while the stone was set rigidly within the wood. In another a dwarf orange was wrapped about a small granite boulder so that it suggested the idea of a serpent crushing its prey. In a third a dwarf fir had been bent, twisted, clipped and trimmed until it was a splendid imitation of a majestic peacock with an outspreading tail. These trees require years to grow and seem perfectly strong and hardy. How the little brown florists prevent them from developing into their normal stature is a mystery which they are loath to explain. At present these dwarfs are rivalled by the floral creations, which include the Japanese lilac tree, the double-flowering peach, the aster and the chrysanthemum.

The lilac tree, as it appears in the market, suggests a French standard rose, having a straight, bare stem which breaks at the top into a mass of branches, foliage and flowers. There are more blossoms in proportion to the leaves and the great clusters remain longer upon the stem than in the case with the American lilac bush. The double-flowering peach seems to be a freak of the ordinary peach tree, as the trunk, foliage and general manner of growth in no wise differ from those of the latter. But the blossoms instead of being single and rose pink, are double and of a vivid flame color. They come out in such numbers as to outline each branch and twig in fire and retain their freshness for about two years. They then fall off and the receptacle dies instead of developing into a fruit as with the normal type. In some instances the trees are grafted so that half of the blossoms are double and the rest single. In such cases the color display, while not so rich, is even more beautiful than when monochrome, exhibiting a long range of tones from the faint blush pink of the half opened single bud, to the deep crimson of the dying double. Of asters and chrysanthemums no less than forty new varieties are offering in effect. The oldest of all is a huge, duffy, scarlet affair which some humorist has styled the "red-headed football player." The aster continues to increase in popularity and the Japanese or Japanese Camellia is all the rage. It is presented in white, pink, light and dark red, and with stripes, splodches and spots. It is not for the poor, however, a well-rooted camellia bringing from two to two hundred dollars according to its size and coloring.

normal, healthy minded child without a hearty liking for fairy tales, but of late years writers of juvenile literature appear to have forgotten their own youthful preferences and either stories of everyday life in which many moral maxims and much useful information are concealed, or fantastic tales whose humor consists in allusions, quotations and puns totally incomprehensible to childish minds and only appreciated by adults. Hans Anderson knew how to please a youthful audience and Grimm found the way straight to the juvenile heart, while the Arabian Nights is still without a peer. Of more modern publications the Lang fairy books probably take the lead, but young readers have learned these and the older books of the same type almost by heart and will gladly welcome a recently published volume, "The Magic Scissors," by a writer old enough to know how to tell a story entertainingly and with good literary technique, and young enough to remember all the good old traditions of fairy lore. Miss Ella M. Pelletreau is a Brooklyn girl, who for some time past has been contributing short stories and sketches to the monthly periodicals and daily press. This is her first venture in the field of book publication, but the reception accorded her initial effort proves that she knows the open sesame to the affections of little folk. The book contains five short tales, all of which are filled with the witchery of magic art, with fairy godmothers, wicked enchanters, dragons, wharves, gnomes and fays. There are thrilling adventures, hairbreath escapes and wonderful transformations enough to satisfy the most exacting young reader and the book is profusely illustrated by Winfield Rubins. The success of "The Magic Scissors" should encourage Miss Pelletreau to bring out a second and larger collection of fairy tales in season for the holidays.

Prince Pu Lun, nephew of the Emperor of China, visited Dreamland at Coney Island last week. In company with Senator Depew, Sir Chenting Liang and other distinguished personages, he witnessed the wonderful spectacular productions, "Fighting the Flames" and "The Fall of Pompeii." In the latter he was particularly interested, and the Santos Dumont airship No. 9, floated through the Canals of Venice, and explored the Midway City where three hundred tiny dwarfs have been temporarily abode. But while all of the foregoing attractions filled the royal visitor with amazement, it was the magnificent ball-room, with its 25,000 square feet of floor space and 10,000 incandescent lights, which impressed him most profoundly. For a long time he watched the vast throng of dancers gliding rhythmically over the polished floor, speechless with delight; and when at last his entertainers persuaded him to resume the tour of inspection, he begged for a photograph of the place which had so fascinated him. A complete series of photographs of Dreamland was accordingly prepared and forwarded to the Prince, who regards them as the most interesting among the many souvenirs of his American trip.

CHOKING CATARRH CURED

Your Money Back If Hyomel Does Not Cure You.

"Use Hyomel and be cured of catarrh," is what all who have tried it for that disease say to their friends. It is the easiest thing in the world to stop catarrh. It is beginning if you use Hyomel. Just breathe the health-giving, balsamic air for a few minutes and your catarrh will be cured. In this city and neighboring towns, there are hundreds who can testify to the remarkable powers of Hyomel to cure catarrh. Many of the staunchest friends of this remedy to-day began its use with little hope that they would be cured, but as C. H. Pendleton and Wm. H. Kittredge offered to refund the money if it did not cure, they decided to try it on that plan, and were soon restored to health.

THOMASTON NOTES.

Since the G. L. Robinson Drug Company introduced Mi-o-na in this town a good many people have been cured of dyspepsia by this remarkable remedy. It costs but 50c for a two weeks treatment and is absolutely guaranteed to cure dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.

If Mi-o-na does not do all that is claimed for it, the Robinson Drug Company stand ready to refund the money on request.

Annie Thurlow and brother Fred have just returned from a two weeks' visit in Orono.

Mrs. P. H. Mills and daughter Myra have returned from Boston.

Janette Hamblen is spending a few days at her home. She is employed in Boston.

Ralph Knight of Deer Isle was home from Boston for a couple of days last week. He attended the graduation at the East Maine Conference Normal School at Castine, where his two sisters, Mamie and Mattie, were members of the graduating class. Miss Mamie was the valedictorian of her class.

Road Commissioner Hatch has constructed a fine piece of road at West Stonington near the residence of W. A. Hamblen.

Harvey Jones is making some much needed repairs on the cemetery at West Stonington.

There will be a new steamboat line between Stonington and Bass Harbor, commencing Saturday, June 25. The launch Flo and Ruby will leave Stonington every morning at 10 o'clock or on the arrival of the steamer J. T. Morse for Atlantic and Bass Harbor. The launch affords good accommodations for passengers. Stops will be made at Black Island and Gots Island on the regular trip. On return trip the launch will leave Bass Harbor at 2 p. m. Atlantic at 2 p. m. arriving in Stonington in time to connect with steamer going west. Clarence L. Smith is manager.

WEST ROCKPORT

M. S. Leach on Wednesday of last week left his home with the intention of going to Blue Hill to purchase material for the manufacture of lime barrels in the interest of the Knox Cooperation Co. He took the steamer in Rockland and the launch to the wharf where the officer came for the fare he was informed he was enroute for Vinalhaven to which he had a free round trip. Mr. Leach went to Cambridge, Mass., on Saturday last, where he was met by Mr. and Mrs. H. U. Lamson and to be present at the baptism of the oldest grandson, Howard Lamson, on Sunday last.

A Mr. Melvin of Simonton has purchased the Benner place and with his family moved to his new home last week.

James A. Clark visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clark Saturday.

There was an accession of seven members to Mirror Lake lodge on Saturday evening. The Good Templars Lodge here seems to be in a flourishing condition.

The exceedingly dry weather of the past ten days has lessened the prospect of a good crop of the monthly periodicals. Mr. Thomas Hemingway died at an early hour on Thursday morning of last week. He had lived a few days longer. He would have been 90 years old. He was a native of New York and was married 74 years ago to Thomas Hemingway of Union, whom she survived 2 years. He was the father of 9 children seven of whom she has consigned to their final rest and the other two are Mrs. C. Larabee of Lewiston and Charles Hemingway of Florida. She retained her faculties remarkably well until within a few months, being able to aid her daughter, Mrs. James Walden, in many household duties even in the use of the needle. Mrs. Hemingway passed nearly all her life in this vicinity and every one who knew her intimately has a pleasant word to say of her gentle and kindly disposition. In early life she was identified with the Christians and was the last to pass away of the founders of the church at this place, which is the older Baptist Society in Rockport. In her long life she was a devoted wife, a devoted mother and a devoted neighbor. Her funeral occurred on Saturday afternoon of last week. Rev. Mr. Brastow officiating and the singing and appropriate remarks. There was a good attendance and among others there was the 4th generation of the deceased. Many beautiful flowers were contributed by friends and connected with the funeral. Mrs. Hemingway witnessed many changes in this locality as well as most of the great improvements the world has ever known. When she first saw the light of day this vicinity was but a little more than a wilderness. We think of the last war with England, better known as the war of 1812, as an event of a long while ago, yet she was several months old when the treaty of Ghent was signed. She was a young lady in her teens when Stephenson built the first steamer, and most of the material of which the garments were made for both sexes in her early life was spun and woven at the home fire-side.

That Beautiful Gloss comes from the varnish in Devoe's Varnish Floor Paint, costs 5 cents more a quart though. Sold by the Farland & Spear Co.

WALDO COUNTY NEWS.

Belfast, June 21, '04.

The engagement has been announced of Charles H. Carrow of Belfast and Miss Helen Maude Simpson of Bangor. Mr. Carrow is a well known young resident of this city having many friends here. For some time he has had employment in the Lancy House at Pittsfield.

The sale of the shipyard property owned by the late David Dyer in this city to Pendleton Brothers of Islesboro, has given them the control of a goodly section of the water front in our harbor. The present addition of harbor front will give them control of all the land and the piers from the wharf of the Eastern Steamship Company to the shipyard of George E. Gilchrist. This includes their old shipyard and the boat-houses of the Macomber Brothers, the winter quarters for a large fleet of yachts.

The fishing schooner Henrietta Francis, recently converted into a yacht after being purchased of George A. Gilchrist by F. S. Jones of Reading, Pa., has gone to Islesboro and is now only son of Capt. P. B. Clifford. The craft was all refitted and newly furnished so that she was in trim shape when her owner was ready for her. Mr. Jones has a cottage at Heves Point, Islesboro, where she will remain while the family are here.

The four-masted schooner Pendleton Sisters, which has just discharged a cargo of 50,000 feet of pine at the New England dock in Bath, is to be repaired in that city and will be hauled out on the marine railway for repairs, including calking and painting. It is now expected that the advent of land which the Pendleton Bros. have made to their water front property in Belfast that they will eventually institute a marine railway here and have the necessary gearings all their work here at the home plant.

Miss Maude Brown of this city was recently married in Stockton to Lewis, only son of Capt. P. B. Clifford. The young people are well known there, the bride having formerly resided there.

Waldo Lodge of Odd Fellows, number being some seventy-five, met at their grand lodge on Sunday last. A choir of young people are well known there, the bride having formerly resided there.

There was a chronic inflammation all over my body wherever the disease had spread; there would be a discharge of yellow-colored pus where the skin would break and leave a ulcer-like sore. These sores would dry up for a while only to break out and discharge again.

The medicines which the physicians prescribed had no effect in checking the disease and I was in a most miserable state of discouragement. One day I heard the doctor say that there was danger of the disease terminating in consumption. Then I began to lose all hope.

"One day, however, as I lay in bed reading a newspaper, I read an article commencing 'Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People very highly for diseases of the blood, and, as the doctor's treatment during the preceding three months had done me no good, I decided to stop it and take the pills.

"After I had taken three boxes I saw that the inflammation was going down and that there were fewer sores on my body. I realized that I was improving and I continued to use the pills until I had taken eight boxes. Then I was entirely cured. I am now enjoying good health, have a keen appetite and as big a day's work as at any time before I was stricken down, and I firmly believe that I owe my present excellent physical condition to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." This great remedy is sold by all druggists throughout the world.

SCROFULA SPREADS

ALARM CAUSED BY AN INVASION OF ULCER SORES.

Perplexity of the Doctors in a Typical and Serious Case Relieved By An Important Discovery.

The fear which is justly aroused by the appearance of a disease with such fatal tendencies as scrofula, will be relieved by a statement of a recent remarkable cure. Mr. Thomas F. Brown, of the Hume Carriage Company, Amesbury, Mass., says:

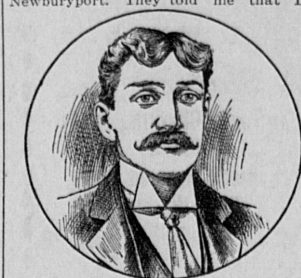

"About two years ago I was affected with a scrofulous disease which spread over my whole body. It first affected the glands in my neck and then broke out over my chest and other parts of my body. I became greatly alarmed at the spreading of the disease, and consulted physicians in Amesbury and in Newburyport. They told me that I had a bad case of scrofula, and that I would have to take the greatest care to avert a fatal result. They pronounced my blood to be in a bad condition and a long time would be necessary to put me in a healthy state.

"There was a chronic inflammation all over my body wherever the disease had spread; there would be a discharge of yellow-colored pus where the skin would break and leave a ulcer-like sore. These sores would dry up for a while only to break out and discharge again.

The medicines which the physicians prescribed had no effect in checking the disease and I was in a most miserable state of discouragement. One day I heard the doctor say that there was danger of the disease terminating in consumption. Then I began to lose all hope.

"One day, however, as I lay in bed reading a newspaper, I read an article commencing 'Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People very highly for diseases of the blood, and, as the doctor's treatment during the preceding three months had done me no good, I decided to stop it and take the pills.

DOCTOR ADVOCATED OPERATION

—PE-RU-NA MADE KNIFE UNNECESSARY.

MRS. EVA BARTHO.

Mrs. Eva Bartho, 133 East 12th street, New York City, N. Y., writes:

"I suffered for three years with leucorrhoea and ulceration of the womb. The doctor advocated an operation which I dreaded very much, and strongly objected to go under it. Now I am a changed woman. Peruna cured me; it took nine bottles, but I felt so much improved I kept taking it, as I dreaded an operation so much. I am to-day in perfect health and have not felt so well for fifteen years."—Mrs. Eva Bartho.

It is no longer a question as to whether Peruna can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Peruna has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh no one year has put this remedy to greater test than the past year.

If all the women who are suffering with any form of female weakness would write to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, and give him a complete description of their symptoms and the peculiarities of their trouble, he
