LOCAL NEWS

This office will be closed tomorrow,
July 4th.

Selectman D. F. Toothaker has been appointed a justice of the peace.

Mrs. Sarah L. Cram has opened the R. W. Lord cottage at Kennebunk beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Goodnow and family are at Kennebunk beach for the summer.

Miss Mabel Lynch of Melford, Mass., is the guest of her annt, Mrs. James Day of the Landing.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. will hold their meeting Friday afternoon of this week, at 3 p. m. with Mrs. George E. Cousens.

Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Lord and son, Robert, of Providence, R. I., have arrived in Kennebunk and will spend the summer here.

Rev. D. M. Wilson preached in Providence, R. I., last Sunday and Rev.
Augustus M. Lord occupied the pulpit of the Unitarian church in this village.

Sim Folsom, a delegate from Cook county, Ill., to the Democratic convention at Baltimore is making a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Drown of Grove street.

Miss Mildred Fiske returned Sunday from a trip to Massachusetts. She was accompanied home by Miss Arline Bye of Worcester, who will visit during the summer months.

Edward Brown, after an absence of eleven years, is renewing village acquaintances. During his stay he is the guest of his brother, J. Frank Brown of the Landing.

Miss Minetta Moore sailed from Boston, Saturday, for a three months' tour of Europe. She expected to sail from New York but the strike in that city made necessary the change.

Work has resumed on the remodeling of the Bowdoin building on Main street which will be prepared for the post-office department. The delay was caused by the non-arrival of material.

The Womans Relief Corps will hold a lawn party next Monday night on the grounds of Mrs. Nellie Wormwood of the Landing. Proceeds will be devoted to Webster Post, G. A. R. Ice cream, cake, aprons, punch and candy will be offered for sale.

An exchange says that Frank Watson of Kennebunk, has been appointed a regular clerk in the Rochester, N. H., postoffice. "Mr. Watson resigned a very lucrative position which he held for a long time with the Kennebunk Manufacturing Company. His many friends wish him well in his new position".

The friends of Congressman Hinds, who has been ill for nearly three months at Washington, say that he will be at home within two weeks. He is improving, but his health will not permit him to take much if any part in the campaign in the First Congressiona district. The congressman is suffering from a breaking down of the nervous system.

Webster Grant of Brockton, Mass., who was arrested in Boston, last week, and confessed to being one of the burglars who broke into the Boston & Maine station at Kennebunk, on June 1 pleaded guilty in the lower court at Dover, N. H., Thursday, to a charge of breaking and entering the Rollinsford, N. H., railroad station, and was ordered held for the September term of the superior court.

The wedding of George F. Perkins of Kennebunk, and Mrs. Ora Etta Hill of Dayton, was solemnized at the home of the bride in Dayton, Thursday. Rev.
G. Howard Newton of the First Baptist church, Biddeford, was the officiating clergyman. A reception was held after the ceremony which was largely attended by friends and relatives. Ice cream, cake and fruit were served. Mr. and Mrs. Perkins were the recipients of many handsome and costly presents.

Last Friday evening the "Hunker's Club of Maine" enjoyed its annual outing at the delightful camp of Don Chamberlin in Lyman. Members left Kennebunk in automobiles at 6.30 o'clock. On arrival at the camp one of Hunker's famous dinners was enjoyed, which was followed by an hour at cards. Those present were Don Chamberlin, Clarence Webber, J.
Hatch, Llewellyn Jones, John Balch,
Roy Eliot, J. O. DuBois, W. J.
McLellan.

Given up Stagin'

The New York Sun says:
Something too much of politics.
Let us speak of stage coaches, and speaking of them, Woodbury A. Hall has sold out his livery business in Kennebunkport, at the mouth of the Kennebunk, of Mighty name that calls to us as if the Atlantic had woken some primeval monstrous frog into a croak worthy of him. Is it Holman Day of Haskell Dole who chats.

"Wealth is dust, and fame is junk,
Take me back to Kennebunk!
To the port of Kennebunk.
Where the river finds the sea,
There's the place of place for me;
Fill the bottle! Pack the trunk!
I must off to Kennebunk!"

An admirable village, in spite of summer visitors; but Woodbury Hall has given up stagin'.

Wilson Nominated

Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey was yesterday nominated for the presidency by the Democratic national convention at Baltimore, Md.

The nomination was made after Underwood had withdrawn, Clark had released his supporters and New York as a climax had moved to suspend balloting and make the nomination of Wilson by acclamation.

There was objection to this plan. As the final rollcall came on state after state fell into line for the New Jersey executive, piling up an overwhelming majority. The result was received with tumultuous demonstrations by delegates and spectators.

Great confusion interrupted the roll-call. Bell of California attempted to explain California's vote and was howled down. The convention was eager to hear the announcement of Wilson's nomination which had now become apparent.

The final vote was: Wilson, 990;
Clark, 84; Harmon, 12; absent, 2.

Bryan was a center of interest when Wilson's nomination became certain.
He said he wanted most of all the nomination of a progressive.

Senator Stone of Missouri moved to make the nomination of Wilson unanimous.

Wilson's nomination was made unanimous at 3.33 p. m.

California stood by Clark to the last, but announced it would move after the ballot to make the nomination unanimous.

Chairman Jones formally declared Woodrow Wilson the nominee of the convention for president of the United States at 3.35 p. m.

A tremendous demonstration followed the announcement of Wilson's nomination. Cheer after cheer swept the hall and was taken up by the crowds outside.

Portland District Camp Meeting

The Portland District camp meeting, under the direction of District Superintendent Holt, will be held at Old Orchard, beginning July 11th and closing July 18th. The meeting will open with a sermon at 2:30 p. m., Thursday, July 11th, by Dr. F. Franklin Hamilton
Chancellor of the American University, Washington, D. C., who will also deliver a lecture that evening at 7:30.
Services will be held morning, afternoon and evening during the remainder of the session. Several special days have been set apart, as follows: Saturday, July 13th, Sunday School day; Monday, the 15th, Boys' day; Tuesday, the 16th, W. F. M. day; Wednesday on and Thursday, the 17th and 18th, special attention will be given to the subject of missions. Among the prominent speakers will be Rev. Dr. L. J.
Birney, Dean of Boston School of Theology; Rev. Dr. George P. Eckman, editor of the New York Christian Advocate; Rev. Dr. F. B. Fisher, formerly a missionary in India, now secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement; Rev. C. J. Brown, State Superintendent of Methodist Sunday Schools; and Mr.
A. A. Heald, Secretary of the Y. M. C.
A., in charge of the men's work. The singing will be under the direction of Prof. W. S. Wight of Bethel, while Miss Ethel Holt of Portland will be the instrumentalist.

Afternoon Teas

The ladies of the First Parish, Unitarian church, will resume the afternoon teas, which were so successfu last year, at the church parlors on Wednesday afternoons through July and August, beginning Wednesday, July 10, from 3.30 to 5.30 P. M.

"Taft is a failure; Roosevelt is a menace; the hope of the country is in the Democracy and there alone."—North Virginian Pilot. (Dem.)

The Biddeford Journal recognizes the seriousness of the defection in the Republican ranks by saying: "Builders of political fences should bear in mind the fact that ordinary chicken wire is not calculated to stop the headstrong stampede of the Bull moose insurgents."

Not approving of his socialistic tendencies and utterances, the executive board of the Saco Unitarian church, have passed resolutions terminating the pastoral relations existing between Rev. Paul H. Drake and the parish. It will be recalled that at the recent Unitarian conference in Kennebunk, Rev. Mr. Drake spoke on the subject "The Church and Socialism."

Every child in the elementary city schools of the United States is to be card catalogued, and a running history of his entire school career in the grades kept permanently on file, according to plans formed by investigators whose report has just been issued by the United States bureau of education. Eventually, it is anticipated about 6,000,000 pupils will be thus tabulated. This card system is now used in the Kennebunk schools, having been introduced by Superintendent Lambert two years ago.

The strength of the progressive movement as revealed at Chicago and again at Baltimore, has reached a magnitude which challenges admiration, and promises success this year or some year not far distant. Politicians and centralized wealth," says the Fairfield Journal "should awake to the fact that public sentiment is at last aroused to that stage of endeavor and achievement that will not brook opposition. There is a writing on the wall which reads very plainly for the coming of that equality of citizenship, of rights, of opportunity, which were so magnificently disclosed in Old Independence hall in Philadelphia, on July 4, 1776."

All bird lovers will rejoice that a bill has been reported favorable to Congress by the committee having in charge, providing for federal protection of migratory birds. This bill, if it passes, and its friends are very hopeful, will do much to end the destruction of thousands of game and song-birds that are yearly the victims of pothunters and brutal men and boys in states where they are not protected. When our robins and other feathered friends of the air go South in the autumn we shall be able to see them take their long flight with the comfort of knowing that, until their return, the strong hand of the national government is reached out in their defense.—Our Dumb Animals.

William T. Haines has been nominated for Governor on the Republican side, and will be elected if Governor Plaisted should happen to loose his position. But what about it? Can the Lewiston Journal support Mr. Haines after the abuse it heaped upon him during the Fernald campaign? Can any progressive Republican condescend to vote for Bill Haines or Bill Taft?—Lisbon Falls Enterprise (Rep.)

By the use of figures—which often lie—it is easy to prove that the tall, broad-shouldered Nebraskan, "whose head has been worn bald by bumpin' it again" th' city-dels iv wealth" is a party hoodoo, as a Philadelphian demonstrates mathematically to his own satisfaction in the following letter:

Local Notes

Fred Gray of Lawrence, Mass., is the guest of his wife's mother, Mrs. Betsey Stevens.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. English of Brockton, Mass., are visiting friends at Kennebunk Beach and this village.

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Wessell leave today for Whitinsville, Mass., where Mr. Wessell has secured a position.

Mrs. Albert Smith of the Elms, Wells, who recently had her left arm amputated is rapidly gaining in strength.

Mr. Louville Jellison of Bridgewater, Mass., is spending a week's vacation with his daughter, Mrs. Charles Hatch, Grove street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowdoin and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wakefield spent Saturday night and Sunday at Mr. Bowdoin's cottage at Old Orchard.

At 1.56 o'clock, this morning, Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana was nominated as vice-president by the Democratic convention. Bryan pledged his support to Wilson and Marshall.

Mrs. Grace Roberts, a guest at the Atlantis, Kennebunk Beach, had the misfortune to break her left leg last week Thursday. In attempting to enter her automobile, which was stationed at the entrance to the Elwell green house on Brown street, she made a misstep and fell. Dr. Herbert H. Purinton attended. Mrs. Roberts is a relative of Mrs. Herbert S. Brigham of Storer St.

Norman T. Kilgore, 14 years of age and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kilgore, died at the home of his parents on Pleasant street last week Thursday morning. He had been ill for over six months. Tuberculosis of the lungs was the cause of death. The youth possessed one of the sweetest dispositions and was most brave and manly for one of his years. He was an earnest Christian and had been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church for six years. Funeral services were held Saturday morning, the Rev. Mr. Leech officiating. The body was taken to Lisbon Falls for burial.

Methodist Church Notes

Large audiences were in evidence at this church last Sunday. In the afternoon the pastor preached on "Eternal Things." The church transfer letters of two persons were read. In the evening a most interesting social meeting was held and at the close several persons expressed their determination to begin the Christian life.

On Monday evening The Epworth League Chapter held a social and business meeting at the church vestry. The hour from 7.30 to 8.30 was devoted to the Juniors. At the business meeting two new members were accepted and the name of another candidate proposed. Refreshments were served. A musical half-hour was enjoyed. The pastor gave a brief talk on "The Largeness and Potentiality of an Epworthian." This chapter is taking on new life.

The Sunday School picnic, last Thursday was one of the best of recent years. A large number attended. It was held at Drake's Island. A large cottage was occupied as headquarters and bathing, games and social amenities filled the hours. A scrub game of base ball on the beach proved to be a lively affair, as well as the source of considerable lameness in the succeeding days.

Next Sunday will be "Communion Sunday." At the afternoon service the sacrament of "The Lord's Supper" will be observed.

West Kennebunk Church
Owing to the change of running time on the electric the hours of service have been changed. The morning service will, until further notice, be held at 10.30, and the evening service at 6.30. Instead of five o'clock as heretofore. The Tuesday evening meeting will be held at 7 o'clock as heretofore.

The "Sacrament of The Lord's Supper" will be observed at the the morning next Sunday.

Alewife-Lyman

Our schools are all closed and the boys and girls are enjoying themselves greatly, after their hard, successful studies, and are waiting anxiously for the Fourth, in order to let out their pent up noise and energy after their long term of school.

Miss Edith Hanson gave her scholars a picnic dinner at Kennebunk Pond, at the close of her term at the Cousins school, in Lyman. She furnished ice cream and other dainties which made the day a very pleasant one for her little flock. Miss Hanson is a very successful teacher.

Miss Effie Littlefield of Shapleigh, recently visited Mrs. Carrie Waterhouse of Lyman.

Dr. P. H. Abbot of Goodwins' Mills, who was recently married, was serenaded last Friday evening.

TRINITY'S ONLY BIBLE PROP A FORGERY.

Pastor Russell, in Remarkable Discourse, Points Out That After All, the Spurious Words Really Make Nonsense—Directs Attention to the Scriptures.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Syracuse, N. Y., June 30.—In one of Pastor Russell's discourses here today he spoke from this text: "To us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in Him; and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by Him."—I Corinthians viii. 6.

Pastor Russell declared that for centuries Christians have been overlooking the real doctrine of the Trinity, set forth in the Bible, and have been perplexing their minds in an endeavor to believe and understand the mysterious theory of the creeds on the subject, which so persistently ignores the laws of mathematics, by declaring that three ones are one; or at times varying the declaration and asserting that one is three.

Any one questioning this fabulous statement, even to the extent of asking an explanation, was branded a heretic and assured that the matter is a mystery which cannot be understood, but that if denied the penalty would be eternal torture; and in numerous instances zealous persons had anticipated the torture by burning the inquirer at the stake, as, for instance, was done by our good brother John Calvin to Servetus.

Doctrine of Trinity Traced.

There is no unreasonable mystery connected with the doctrine of the Trinity as presented in the Bible, said Pastor Russell. On the contrary, it is very simple, very reasonable, and very honoring to God the Father, Jesus the Son, and to the Holy Spirit.

The Pastor traced the doctrine of the Trinity, as presented in the creeds, to its source. It was not the teachings of Jesus and the inspired Apostles, and surely not the belief of the Israelites, and those who for more than four thousand years had been God's people before Jesus' day. After the death of the Apostles, the Bishops erroneously claimed to be their successors vested with Apostolic authority, and these formulated the creeds with their various inconsistencies and Bible contradictions.

The Trinity of the creeds was introduced to offset the agnostic influences of the Greeks, who became interested in Christianity as a philosophy, but who denied its teachings respecting the prehuman existence of Jesus, the necessity for His death as a sin-atonement, and the doctrine of the resurrection.

In proportion as the Grecians denied many Christians would combat their theory, and they advanced claim after claim until they reached the climax represented in our creeds of declaring that Jesus was His own Father and His own Son at the same time, that one God, equal in power and glory, prayed to the other part of Himself with strong cryings and tears to be delivered from the power of the tomb, was heard and was raised from the dead by the power of the other part of Himself.

Indeed, said the Pastor, some have carried the matter so far as to claim that when Jesus died the world was for three days without a God, that He then raised Himself from the dead. Others, considering this an unreasonable view, claimed that Jesus never really died, but merely pretended to die—that all of the experiences of the cross were a mere farce, a pantomime, performed for the effect upon the people—that merely the body of Jesus died after crying, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" and that the real Jesus, the real God, stepped out and watched the proceedings and connived at the deception, including the further deception respecting the resurrection from the dead.

All of this must be abominable to the Father. All Christians are perplexed with this man-made mystery. Now, as Bible students are waking and are studying the Bible, they find that its teachings are very different from that of the creeds, that it is very real, very logical, very beautiful, very harmonious.

Trinity Supported by Forgery.
Before we come to the examination of the Bible's testimony respecting the Trinity, I remind you that the word "trinity" does not occur in the English Bible from Genesis to Revelation, and that no passage approximating such teaching is found there, except one, and that one is an interpolation, as all scholars, including Trinitarians, admit. The Revised Version expunges the additions (evidently added about the seventh century), because they are not found in any manuscripts of earlier date.

The spurious passage is found in St. John's first Epistle, 5:7. Those sufficiently interested will read the passage in its proper form in the Revised Version, and we ask them to note that the additional words of the forgery really make nonsense, in that they tell us that the Father and the Son

Saco Road and Vicinity

Mrs. Henry Gould and son have arrived at the Old Gould Home for the summer. Mr. Gould's ancestors are Kennebunkport people and the Gould name among our first people. Young Mr. Gould dearly loves the beautiful old home and always spends his vacation here.

Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Thompson, and son George, have moved to Gray, Me., and Mrs. Thompson's eldest son, Fred Walker, will run the farm which he owns with his step-mother. We wish them all success.

Mae Mitchell was a week end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Fiske. Miss Mitchell was a graduate of the K. P. H. S. 1912. She has accepted the position of teacher and will be the teacher of the Irving school, North Kennebunkport. Her many friends wish her all success.

Eula Benson is spending a very pleasant vacation at the home of her friend, Irene Leighton, Bath.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Hadlock and sister, Mrs. Mary Washburn of New York, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ivory Ross, Sunday.

Capt. Will Gould has a new auto. Work began Monday on the new State road between the Austin home and Biddeford.

Connelly Bros. are hustling the road on Ocean avenue. This will be a fine road when completed.

Mrs. Bessie Fiske visited her friend, Miss Ruby Suhr of Biddeford, Monday.

Henry Griffin died at a Mass. Hospital Friday, as the result of an operation. His body was brought to his home for burial. He was a young man of good prospects and a favorite with his many friends. He is mourned by a father and mother, one brother and two sisters. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Wildwood chapel, and the floral offerings were beautiful and in great profusion.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns who resides in the Luques House, are grief-stricken by the news of their grand-daughter's death, who was formerly Pauline Luques, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Luques of New York. Two years ago Miss Luques was happily married, and as she has spent many summers at the old Luques home at Kennebunkport, had made many friends here who are saddened to learn of her death, her age being only 23 years. She is survived by a husband and one little child, a father, mother and two brothers, beside the dear grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burns, who have the sympathy of all.

Fred Downs, a well known and highly respected citizen, died at his home on Saco Road, Sunday, after a long and distressing illness, his age being about 57 years. Mr. Downs is survived by a widow, who is in poor health. Mr. Downs has acted as foreman on the B. & M. for many years and made many friends, for he was a genial, good natured fellow, always looking on the bright side of life. He was a member of the Mosaic Lodge, L. O. O. F., and of the Free Masons. Funeral services will be held from his late home, Wednesday.

Miss Weston, Capitalist

By Claudine Sisson

There is an old saying to the effect that when a man goes a-fishing he doesn't know what may happen. Perhaps Mr. Guy Hilton had never heard anything about it, but he went a-fishing and many things happened that he did not look for.

Mr. Hilton went with a little party of three, and the quartette camped on Loon lake and fished. It was called Loon lake, because no one unless he was looney ever went there thinking to catch fish. After a couple of weeks Mr. Hilton was taken with chills and had to go to a farm house and call a doctor, and the other three broke camp and went home.

In two weeks the patient was cured and ready to follow. Then came another unexpected thing. When the doctor and the farmer had been paid Mr. Hilton found himself stone broke. When a man is stone broke he hasn't got a nickel in his pockets. It would be all right, however, when the penniless man got down to the village of Rockford. Some merchant there would cash his check on a city bank. He would want only four dollars for railroad fare.

Mr. Guy Hilton didn't look like a confidence man. He wasn't sly, sleek and slick. Like any other man with a fair bank account and a reasonable trust in human nature, he wrote out a check for four dollars and asked the leading merchant in the town to cash it.

"That game is too old even for this village," was the reply.

"Game? Game? I have money in this bank," said the astonished young man.

"But you ought to have it in your pocket instead."

"You can telephone the bank and make sure it's all straight."

"But of what interest to me? I am not here to help folks out of troubles they get into."

How foolish the stone broke man had been to apply to a stranger, when he could telephone to a friend in the city and have a hundred dollars sent up. He went to the postoffice, which was the only pay station in the village, and was told to drop 20 cents in the slot.

"Mighty suspicious circumstance."

"But—but I don't happen to have it," he replied. "That's what I want to telephone about—money!"

"I don't see how you can do it without the 20 cents," replied the postmaster.

"But I can have a hat full of money up here by to-morrow."

"Better have a dollar or two now. You won't find this town easy to work, and you may get into trouble trying."

Mr. Hilton went down to the depot to try the railroad telegrapher. A ten-word message would be 25 cents. No; to messages sent collect from strangers. They had got through that sort of thing long ago. When the stone broke man went to the inn. He had a watch that had cost him $150. He laid it down in front of the landlord and said:

"I want to stay for a day or two until I get some money up from the city by express, and this will be your security. Please provide me with a postage stamp, that I may write a letter."

The landlord hefted the watch as he would a stone, drew the chain through his fingers, and then winked a long, lingering wink and replied:

"Stranger, it was 40 years ago that I was a spring chicken and gobbled up gravel for corn."

"What do you mean?"

"Bill Stacey, the constable, will be around here pretty soon and I'll tell him what I mean! Bill can get on to a sharper quicker'n any other man in the state."

Mr. Hilton walked back to the depot with a resolve in his heart. There would be a train in about an hour, and he would board it, and if the conductor tried to throw him off instead of taking his watch in lieu of a ticket, he would fight for his life.

In the sitting room was a young lady, and on the platform was her trunk. It didn't take a minute to figure out that she had been visiting some family in the vicinity, and was going back to her home in the city.

The young lady was not so bashful that she kept her eyes on the floor, or turned her back to look out of the window. On the contrary, she had more than one peep at the young man and rather liked him. He had been a camper, and was also going home. She couldn't account for his dejected look and nervous bearing, but hoped he had received no bad news to take him home.

Mr. Hilton walked up and down the platform. Then he entered the sitting room and read the time tables and other interesting literature. Then he walked a block up the street and walked back again. Then he walked straight up to the young lady and said:

"I find myself—"

"Yes?"

"I find myself in an embarrassing position."

"You wish to take the train down, and you have neither ticket nor money?"

"That's—that's it. And—and—"

"And you are a stranger to these people and they are suspicious of you? I have money to lend."

"But—but—" stammered Mr. Hilton.

The young lady smiled and then he smiled. Then the young lady laughed and he laughed. Then she said:

"I lost my purse when I was a hundred miles from home, and it seemed for a time that I would have to walk home. This will help you out."

She took a five-dollar bill from her purse, and extended it, but the confused and blushing young man shrank back and protested:

"I can't take it. I didn't intend to ask you for money. I just wanted to tell you that—that—"

"That you were what they call broke," she laughed. "You want to get home, of course. How are you going to do it without money?"

"Will you cash my check for the amount?"

"Most certainly. It's a business transaction. Here is my name."

"Miss Fannie Weston," he read on the card as he prepared to fill in a check.

"Why, my college chum was Tommy Weston. You can't be the sister he used to talk so much about? I am Guy Hilton."

"Whom he used to talk so much about that I got tired of hearing your praises? Yes, I am that Fannie, and just now I am a capitalist with money to lend. As you and Tommy were chums, and as I am Tommy's only sister, you had better negotiate a loan before that train comes along."

There was some one looking in the door as that five dollar bill changed hands. It was Constable Stacey. He had followed the trail of the suspicious character. When he saw the money passed and the two laughing and talking he scratched his head and said to himself:

"Mighty suspicious circumstances, and I ought to arrest 'em both and find out their little game, but as it's near supper time I guess I won't put myself out."

There surely was a little game in it, but arresting the pair might not have brought it out. It was six months later, when Tommy Weston had returned from South America, that he backed Guy Hilton into a corner and said:

"Now, then, tell me all about it."

"Why Fannie found me dead broke up the country and lent me five dollars to get home on."

"And on the strength of that—"

"Yes, I have dared ask her to marry me."

"Well, I'll be hanged! Say, Guy, you'll make a peach of a brother-in-law!"

Wise Goose.

The Covent Garden management requires a corps of geese to take part in Humperdinck's "Children of Kings," and apparently finds it hard to secure a sufficient number of intelligent birds. A goose recommended in "A Book for a Rainy Day" would prove an acceptable recruit. "I have heard my mother relate," writes J. T. Smith, "that when at Greenwich in 1866 for the benefit of her health an aged ple and cheesecake woman lived there who was accompanied through the town by a goose, who regularly stopped at her customers' doors and commenced a loud cackling. Whenever the words 'Not today' were uttered, off it waddled to the next house, and so on until business was ended."—London Chronicle.

Cities Suffer by Comparison.

With a population of 7,000,000, London had but nineteen cases of murder during the past year, according to the report of Hon. Charles A. de Courcy, chairman of the committee on criminal law, American Prison association. Five of the murderers committed suicide and four were never apprehended. The others were either convicted or executed or committed to the insane asylum. In Chicago during the same period 202 homicides were committed. Only one of the offenders was hanged, fifteen were sent to the penitentiary, and the others were exonerated by the grand jury acquitted, discharged, or otherwise set free.

Rural France Losing.

At a recent French Congress on Rural Depopulation it was reported that in the department of the Cote d'Or which mainly produces wheat and wine, the problem of depopulation in the rural sections of France is of a most urgent character. In the 50 years ending with 1901 this rich department lost at the rate of 840 persons per annum, and since the latter date and up to 1911 the decrease has been from 359,000 to 347,000.

The same conditions exist all through France. From 1846 to 1906 the urban population increased from 8,751,000 to 16,500,000, while the rural population decreased from 26,650,000 to 27,715,000.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 178 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A good lesson in home building may be learned from the large operators who make a business of building up whole streets in the suburbs with houses of medium size for the purpose of selling the improved property at a profit, besides increasing the valuation of the remaining vacant property in the neighborhood. These real estate operators have found that it pays them best to give a great deal of attention to the design of their houses. Of course every house must be substantially built and arranged for practical convenience and utility; but this is not enough. Such houses must be attractive also. Each must have a distinctive, individual appearance.

This matter of distinctive appearance is especially important where a large number of new houses are being put up at the same time in the same neighborhood; for nothing looks quite so cheap and uninviting as a whole line of new houses all packed in close together and all of the same monotonous appearance.

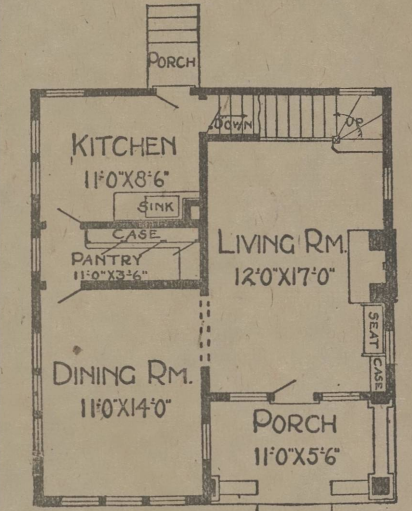

While the average home builder does not have this exact problem to contend with, still he should take warning from such examples and guard against conditions that may amount to practically the same thing. If he builds a house of commonplace appearance, one that looks just like a hundred others which have been built, or may be built in the future, in the neighborhood, he will find that there is nothing to distinguish his house from the rest. It will depreciate the value on that account, for the prospective customer these days invariably wants a house that he can take pride in.

And in addition to the increased value of such a house at times of sale there is also a more important phase of the question. A house of attractive individual appearance makes a better home than one of plain and characterless design. The children take more pleasure in such a home, to take care of it and keep it up; and so the home means more to them; and its influence will remain with them.

But what is the secret of good design? An experienced architect who has made a study of home building will produce work with seemingly very little effort which stands out unique from all other designs and is at the same time in perfect proportion and possessing the essential features of comfort and convenience. Under a master hand the everyday materials seem to be given a new meaning and the commonplace elements, or parts of the building, are arranged in proportion in new and striking effects. It is not so much that the skilled architect uses different materials or more expensive materials than the ordinary carpenter-architect would select, but he proportions them in a different way so that the building as a whole is a success.

A house should also be economically constructed. It is a mistake to think that just because a building has an artistic outward appearance it must necessarily have cost extra. At the same time the experienced architect is planning for a striking exterior and convenient interior arrangements he will also see to it that the design is made to be as economical as possible when it comes to be built. For instance, in a two-story house, the story height will be such that 18-foot studding can be used in the side walls and the bearing partitions which sus-tain the floor joists will be so placed that floor joists in even length of feet can be used without waste.

Second Floor Plan.

With too many builders who may be called on to draw up plans, these items which mean a substantial saving in the cost are frequently overlooked. In order to get a ceiling a few inches higher than the standard height when using 18-foot studding, they find it necessary to use 20-foot studding and have to cut off the ends, which means a waste of material as well as a waste of labor which might have been saved by a little forethought.

It is always economical in the use of materials, and is also good construction to have the partitions and girders in the basement exactly under the bearing partitions of the first story, and where possible the bearing partitions on the second floor should line up exactly with those of the first story. There is nothing like having a good backbone in a house in the way of bearing partitions by having them lined up straight from foundation to roof.

The accompanying design serves as a good illustration of these principles. Although an extremely sensible and convenient house, its exterior appearance is distinctive and artistic. It couldn't be called fussy, yet there is enough of ornamentation to escape monotony. The proportions are good and the material used—cement plaster on masonry—is the most popular at the present time for high-grade residence work.

The interior is arranged very simply, the idea being for the maximum of roomy conveniences. There is a very large living room of the kind so popular in modern houses. The dining room is of good size and is very conveniently placed with reference to the kitchen, having a butler's pantry between. An open stairway along the back of the living room leads to the second floor. There are found two very large bedrooms, a liberal supply of clothes closets and a bathroom.

This house, having a width of 25 feet and a length of 28 feet, is estimated to cost $3,000, using a good grade of hardwood flooring and finish and with the modern conveniences of plumbing, electric wiring, etc.

A Position of Advantage.

"I think," said the eminent European diplomat, "that we will declare a tariff war."

"But think of our population!" "I am thinking of our people and aiming for their peace of mind. Our censored press can always assure them that the war is a success and they'll never be able to understand enough about the tariff to know the difference."

Advertising Talks

TALK ON RETAIL AD PROBLEMS

Seek for Cheerfulness, Avoid Superlatives and Write Intelligent, Careful Copy.

A practical talk on advertising was given at a noon luncheon of the Publicity Club of Springfield, Mass., the other day by Willard E. Freeland, assistant secretary of the Worcester board of trade and secretary of the Worcester Publicity Association. His subject was "A Plea for More Efficient Retail Advertising."

"In my own mind," said Mr. Freeland, "I have always divided the advertiser's problem into five grand divisions: Appropriation, media, copy and cuts, layout, co-operation. The appropriation, the first—and with many advertisers the last and the middle—is a real problem. I remember one big shoe manufacturing firm that was saved from failure by the insistence of one of the partners that all costs should be figured on the basis of the largest production not only when the factory was running at capacity but at all other seasons. I thoroughly believe that the retailer should absorb some of this idea and should plan his appropriation for the year on the basis of his best season."

"When you see a cut or display line that is likely to be associated with the reader's former experience," said Mr. Freeland in discussing the question of copy, "you have established a bond that will make him read further. Why then waste time and money on pretty words and pretty sayings that are not in some way linked up to your story? Why make the mistake of placing an attractive and catchy cut below your legend so that the eye will jump down to it and then go on to the next fellow's ad? Why not cater to that sense of pleasure in every human being by properly dividing the proportions of your advertisement instead of offending the eye and creating an unconscious state of rebellion in the reader's mind?"

"I decry the use of the superlative. There is something wrong with a man's mental process when he thinks to impress people with the use of such words as greatest, stupendous, extraordinary, gigantic and the host of other extravagant words that meet our eye in every newspaper of the land. I am not a believer in the use of comparative prices. Many of the strongest retail concerns have dropped the use of this feature of the usual retail copy and I have yet to hear of the concern which has gone back to such use."

"If you have occasion to make sweeping reductions be sure and include in your copy a full statement of the reason for such reduction, couched in such truthful and sensible terms that the reader will be able to see a logical reason therefor. If your buyer has made an error of judgment and overloaded some department, say so; it won't hurt you. People will be impressed with the fact that you are frank and truthful and that you are only human like themselves. Be sure and state prices always. Give adequate description of the goods you offer. Do not by direct statement or by innuendo mention your competitors or competing lines. It serves only to distract attention, the one thing that you are most desirous of retaining. Study the wonderful power of habit. Make all use possible of this universal habit. Keep your business always before the people by continuity in advertising. Have some one thing in your advertisements, some special name cut, some special face or type, some general arrangement of copy that will bring you and your business to the reader's mind at even a cursory glance."

"A word about cooperation. Note the method of national and technical magazines and endeavor to get on the same page with your competitors, that you may all share in the assured result of cumulative advertising. When you boost your competitors' game you are boosting your own. Be honest in your copy and be honest in your goods and selling methods. Make sure that every clerk knows precisely what you are advertising for the day. Change your windows to agree with your ads. Employ cheerful ads and cheerful clerks. Use every means to create an air of confidence and good will and optimism. This will you create trade for yourself and your community, strengthen the faith of the public in the printed word and make of advertising what it should be—your most successful salesman."

"The first commandment of advertising is: Thou shalt deliver the goods."—Hannum.

Find Newspaper Advertising Pays.

Newspaper advertising was used to boost the Cordon (la.) Poultry show recently instead of the catalogue and booklet method of former years. As the result the show was the best in the history of the association. More birds were shown and greater interest exhibited than ever before.

They insisted on brevity. The Spartans were distinguished for the brevity and conciseness of their speech. On one occasion during a terrible famine the inhabitants of an island in the Aegean sea sent an ambassador to Sparta, who made a speech imploring its aid. He had hardly finished before the Spartans sent him back these words, "We did not understand the end of your speech and have forgotten the beginning."

The poor, starving people chose another spokesman and impressed upon him to make his request as brief as possible. He therefore took with him a quantity of sacks, opened one before the assembly and said simply, "It is empty; fill it."

The sack was filled as well as the others, but the chief of the assembly said as he dismissed the ambassador, loaded with meal: "It wasn't necessary to inform us that the sack was empty. We saw it ourselves. Neither was it necessary to request us to fill it. We should have done it on our own account. Be less long winded next time."

Just What He Wanted.

The superintendent of the capitol and its grounds at Washington was walking along one of the corridors in the house office building one day when a greenhorn congressman, stewing with rage, grabbed him by the sleeve.

"What's the matter?" asked the superintendent, observing the man's emotion.

"Matter!" shouted the congressman. "Why, when I went into my office last evening there was a brand new typewriter on the desk. Now it's gone. You've got a lot of thieves around here."

The official walked into the office and without a word lifted the trap cabinet of the desk and brought the typewriter into view.

"Fine!" commented the congressman. "Now, have you got a place like that in here for my use when troublesome constituents knock on the door?"—Washington Star.

Punctuation In Piano Playing.

A joke is going the rounds of the press about the girl whose music teacher wished to compliment her, but of whom he could only say that she played the rests excellently. This is, however, real praise of a sort, for it is not every young student of music who is careful about playing the rests well. Indeed, a great many players seem to forget that the rests are just as much of the piece as is the punctuation in a sentence. Nowadays people do not put in so much punctuation as they used to do, but the pauses in the voice are there just the same and are readily understood by good readers and always regarded. The rests in music are like the pauses in reading that are needed to give expression to the sentences. If the player slights the rests or extends them too long the whole effect of the musical sentence is spoiled.—Christian Science Monitor.

Feet Versus the Pen.

In speaking of personal recollections of Dion Boucicault, Henry Miller dwells upon his superb skill as a stage director and tells of the following incident, which occurred during his first rehearsal under Boucicault:

"I went to him direct from Augustin Daly's management. Daly coached his players to cross and recross the stage during the progress of the play, with the idea that this continual moving about of the actors created dramatic action. During my first rehearsal I made a 'daly cross' as I spoke one of my lines."

"Why did you do that?" Boucicault asked in his quaint, quizzical manner.

"I explained that I imagined it would keep the scene moving."

"Thanks, my boy," said Boucicault dryly, "but if I cannot interest the audience with my pen I don't think you can with your feet."

Bulldogs and Bulls.

Bulldog is so called because of his native antipathy to the bull. A thoroughbred bull pup as young as six months the first time he beholds a bull will run at the head, which is his invariable point of attack, and, seizing the horned beast by the lip, tongue or eye, hang on despite every attempt to detach him. The dog will even suffer himself to be killed or dismembered rather than relax his hold.—New York Telegram.

Protest.

"I beg pardon," said the new arrival, "but it seems to me it's excessively warm here."

"Eh! What?" snorted Satan. "Evidently you forget where you are. This place is meant to be warm."

"Quite so, but there's such a thing as overdoing it."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Eager For Information.

An American took a friend, an Englishman, to a theater. An actor in the farce, about to do the dying act, exclaimed, "Please, dear wife, don't bury me in Yonkers!"

The Englishman turned to his friend and said, "I say, old chap, what are Yonkers?"—Everybody's.

The Usual Result.

"Yes, Charlie is as brave as a stack of lions. Did you hear about his darling a policeman to arrest him?"

"No! Gee, what happened?"

"He was arrested."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Disgusted.

Thief (who has snatched a lady's bag)—Two transfers, a powder puff, a recipe for head wash and a sample o' silk! An' I ran two miles wid it! I'm agin votes for women!—Puck.

Neither Team Won?

Since the recent game at Kennebunk between the Biddeford and Kennebunk teams, which ended in a dispute and which was claimed by Kennebunk by the score of 7 to 6, the Biddeford boys disputing the claim, several letters have been written to newspaper men in Massachusetts who are authority on baseball, and judging from the opinions expressed by them, neither team won and the score at the end of the game was 6 to 6. The run made by Kennebunk team in the last inning and which would have given that team a lead and the game, does not count.

One of the Kennebunk players was on second base and the man at the bat hit to centerfield. In running the bases the runner made no attempt to touch first base and landed on second base safely, while the man on second base when the hit was made crossed the plate with a run.

Biddeford players saw the Kennebunk man when he ran by first base without attempting to touch the base and one of the Biddeford boys upon getting possession of the ball, not only touched the first base but the runner also and a protest went up about counting the run that was scored as the result of the hit.

Kennebunk men claimed the run should be counted, while Biddeford players were just as determined that it should not, and as a result several wagers were made and it was agreed to write away and get the opinions of experts.

Arthur Duffey, who is an old-time sport and is as well upon baseball as any man who lives and who has been connected with the Boston Post as sporting editor for years, in his opinion states: "If the base or man was touched with the ball, he was out and the run does not count. If the pitcher resumed pitching and no protest was made the man was safe and the run counted. What did the umpire say?"

The Biddeford players say that not only was the runner touched with the ball, but the man who had the ball also touched the base, and according to Arthur Duffey the run does not count.

As far as the umpire is concerned, he allowed the run and claimed that it had nothing to do with the man on bases.

The sporting editor of the Boston Journal was also asked for his opinion and he agreed with Duffey that the run should not have counted if the runner had been touched with the ball or the man with the ball had touched first base.

There has been a great deal of interest in Biddeford and Kennebunk as to just what the experts would say.

It is now planned to have other games between the two teams and it is safe to say that they will draw out good sized crowds in either place. There is good deal of rivalry between the teams as to which has the star aggregation, and it is possible that a game will be arranged very soon.—Exchange.

Can't Agree

George Hutchins, a resident of Kennebunkport and a man well over 60 years of age, was arrested Monday by Deputy Sheriff Fred J. Whicher, on a warrant sworn out by his wife, Mrs. Clara Hutchins of Kennebunk, wherein is set forth that her husband is doing nothing for her support and praying that the court compel him to assist her financially. The case was given a hearing Monday afternoon before Trial Justice Bourne of Kennebunk.

The case attracted rather more than ordinary attention because of the age of the couple, they having reached a point in their lives when such episodes are not of common occurrence. This, however, seemed to have no dererent effect and was ineffectual in holding the two together, as was the presence of four children, all of whom have reached years of maturity and are now married.

Mr. Hutchins, it is said, has been making his home at the Port for some time, doing nothing toward the support of his wife, in fact, having apparently deserted her. Tiring of that, Mrs. Hutchins decided that she would assert her rights and the arrest followed.

Local Notes

The sewing circle of Ivy Temple P. S. were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. John Boston at the Landing, Monday night. The lawn was prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns and with the display of red fire made a most attractive scene. A Graphophone concert was given, and refreshments were served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. George Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nason, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Anderson, Mrs. Carrie Boston, Edwin Boston, Mrs. Rena Knight, Mrs. Adeline Stevens, Mrs. Helen Perkins, Mrs. Frank Crocker and daughter Frances, Mrs. Bessie Hainsome, Mrs. Jessie Phillips, Mrs. Fannie Jackson, Misses Sadie and Margaret Clarke.

Last Sunday's Boston Globe printed a group pictured which showed four generations of Chisholms, Mrs. Phoebe Chisholm, 89 years of age the first day of last June, occupied the centre of the group. With her were Albert Chisholm, a son; Mrs. Edna Chisholm Meserve, a grand daughter; Karl and Robert Meserve, great grand children. The boys have the distinction of being great grand children on both sides of the family, their great grand mother, Mrs. Mary Wescott, observing her 79th birthday last fall. The Globe also gave a group picture in which Mrs. Wescott is the preminent picture. Seated with her, besides her grand daughter, Mrs. Meserve and her two grandsons, is her own daughter, Mrs. Addie Chisholm.

Last Thursday evening, at the regular meeting of Jesse Webster Woman's Relief Corps in G. A. R. hall, Mrs. Fannie Jackson was given an informal reception, and presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers. The meeting was called to order as usual and after the opening ceremony, the president, Mrs. Mary Mitchell, requested the conductor, Mrs. Violet Day, to escort Mrs. Jackson to the platform, where, in a few well chosen words, Mrs. Nellie A. Wormwood, patriotic instructor, in behalf of the Corps congratulated Mrs. Jackson on the honors received at the recent convention at Bangor, also from the National President. Mrs. Jackson was much surprised. She thanked her friends for this kindly evidence of their good will and fellowship. She was then conducted to her station and the meeting was resumed. At the close, ice cream and cake were served and a social time enjoyed.
