BEEN IN TRAINING FOR WEEKS

Many Entries for County Sunday School Meet—Agricultural Boys Happy—Fight Against Weeds and Bugs Over

The County Sunday School Athletic League meet has been set for Saturday, Sept. 27, at the Kennebunk Playground beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning and continuing until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Schools from all over the county are hustling in their applications as all entries close Sept. 25. It is sure to be a live affair if careful preparation counts for anything. The progressive schools of the county have been training their boys and young men for weeks past and the competition will be close in many of the events.

The baseball game of the season is just ahead. The great Sears-Convincer aggregation of Springvale has finally been prevailed upon to come over and let us trim them—perhaps. They have had a great season and are stronger than ever before. They disappointed us once recently but not so, this time. Scores of people are coming in from neighboring cities and towns to witness the big battle and together with the local fans a record breaking attendance is anticipated. Come prepared to root for Kennebunk with every bit of loyalty which you possess. Game called at 2.45 o'clock.

The Agricultural Club contestant are happy boys these days as the fight against weeds, bugs and dry weather is about over and they will soon know the results of their experiments. A trip to inspect the crop plots is being arranged by the senior committee for next week. The exhibit of the boys' products will be held early in October and the premiums awarded.

An enthusiastic meeting of the soccer football men was held Friday evening and plans for the fall game discussed. A large number of candidates have reported and an attractive uniform is being considered for the team. If the local eleven continues to improve they will be invited to join the state league next spring. Go to it, lads!

The baseball game Saturday afternoon between the Athletic Association team and the Thomas Laughlin Co. nine of Portland proved an easy victory for the locals, the final score being 17 to 8. The gouth paw twirler of the visiting team was disabled by a batted ball early in the game else the contest might have been closer. A large crowd was in attendance.

Dies in Sanford

Joseph Parento, a former well known resident of this village, died at his home in Sanford last Friday afternoon about 5.30 o'clock. Typhoid fever was the cause of death. He had been ill for three weeks.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon and were attended by a large number of friends. Rev. Mr. Ranger officiated. The body was brought to Kennebunk and buried in the family lot at Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Mr. Parento was born in Saco 32 years ago, the son of Joseph and the late Mrs. Margaret Parento. With his parents he came to Kennebunk over twenty years ago, attended the local schools and later was employed at the Rice & Hutchins shoe shop and at the counter works.

He had been a resident of Sanford about seven years. Prior to his illness he had been employed at the Sears-Roeback shoe shop.

He married Miss Edith Brown of West Kennebunk, who with two children survive him; also his father, Joseph Parento of this village; and three sisters, Mrs. Cora Larrabee of Cownsville, P. Q., Mrs. Edward O'Neil and Mrs. Clarence L. Savage of this village.

SMALL VOTE FOR AMENDMENTS

Special State Election Monday Draws Out Thirty-one Citizens, Including Nine Officials

Thirty-one Kennebunk citizens—ten of whom were officials—were sufficient-ly interested to vote at the special State election held Monday.

Two constitutional amendment were presented on the ballots. On the first providing for taxation on intangible personal property the vote was 16 for and 13 against. There were two defective ballots, the voters failing to make a cross in either of the squares. On changing the time for voting on constitutional amendments so that it shall be at the State Election instead of special occasions the vote stood 17 for and 12 against. There were also two defective ballots on this question and they were thrown out for the same reason as noted on the first question.

When the polls opened at 8 o'clock but one voter was present other than the officials, Clarence Webber, who was the first to deposit a ballot. The officials were Selectmen Charles Perkins, Abner Boothby, jr., Fred W. Jones, Ballot Clerks J. Frank Warren, John H. Cooper, William H. Littlefield and Orin H. Whittaker, Constables Edward D. Bragdon and W. H. Towne.

This special election cost about $50, just as much as if every voter registered his opinion. But few really understood the questions. The Congressional fight in the third district overshadowed the special election. But little space was given to a discussion of the questions by the daily papers. Secretary of State Alexander sent out 377,520 ballots and from all over the State comes the report that but a small percentage were used. The two questions required a simple yes or no vote. Some towns passed the time limit in which they could post the warrants calling the election.

Kennebunk voters nearly lost their opportunity to vote. Not until informed by an Enterprise reporter was Chairman Perkins aware that a special election had been announced by the State authorities. The town clerk was on a trip to Montreal and Mr. Perkins telephoned Secretary of State Alexander, who assured him such was the fact. Selectmen Perkins and the other members of the board held a hurriedly called meeting, drew up the warrant and Constable J. Frank Warren had it posted by 8 o'clock Monday morning, in time to cover the limit prescribed by the statutes.

Mr. Perkins claimed that Town Clerk Meserve had failed to notify him of the approaching election.

In a letter to the Enterprise the Secretary of State writes:

Augusta, Sept. 3, 1913

The Enterprise Press:

We are in receipt of your paper of recent date. As to the special election of this year there was absolutely no reason why your citizens should not have been informed of the election early in August as your town clerk was furnished with a copy of the two resolves bearing upon this subject and it was his duty to immediately inform the selectmen of your town and their duty in turn to call the meeting in due season.

Very truly,

J. E. Alexander,

Secretary of State.

Secretary Alexander and his assistants had all kinds of troubles with town and plantation officials who failed to post their warrants in time. In one case the selectmen of a certain town wrote that they could not post the warrants, as the town clerk had received the material and refused to give it up as he claimed it was his property.

Although the ballots and such election documents are sent to the town clerks, the selectmen of the town are supposed to draw up the warrant calling for the election, and the town clerk has nothing whatever to do in the matter, save to act in his official capacity before and after the election.

These last matters could easily be straightened out by a little careful study into the laws of Maine, covering such matters, and perhaps would save lots of time, wasted by inquiries at the department of State.

CITIZENS WHO PAY OVER $50.00

Rate of $21.20, an Increase Over Last Year, Caused by Increased State Tax

Following is a list of resident and non-resident tax payers who pay over $50, also the amount paid last year. This list is not only interesting for the names and amounts it contains, but will cause much surprise and comment because of the lack of names of citizens who have not reached the $50 mark, the amount for about $2,500 of taxable property. More and more is impressed the necessity of a new valuation for the town. The Enterprise will comment upon this great, need in future issues. There seems to be no real reason for the taxes of Kennebunk being over $17 a thousand if every property owner paid for his or her just valuation. It is not always the big fellow that derives the advantages in the assessed valuations.

AUTO TEARS OPEN BOY'S SCALP

Frightful Accident at Landing Last Saturday Afternoon—Parents Tremble for Safety of Children

Wilbur, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Brown, was knocked down and run over by an automobile opposite his home at the Landing about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The boy's scalp was torn about six inches, one ear was badly cut and he received two very painful bruises to one of his legs. He was taken to the office of Dr. F. C. Lord and was on the operating table for about two hours. Fifteen stitches were necessary to close the scalp and two for the ear.

The auto which injured the boy was driven by Charles Wakefield of Augusta.

Various stories are told about the accident and it has been difficult to obtain a true version of the affair.

The boy says he had been riding on the back of a wood wagon and when it came opposite his home jumped off and started across the road. Before he had gone three feet he was knocked down and run over. After the auto had passed over him he jumped up and ran screaming to his mother who was horrified by the sight of blood streaming down the face and hands of her son. The little fellow insists that the driver did not blow his horn when about to pass the team. He told his mother, "If the man had blown his horn, mama, I would have heard and got out of the way."

Mr. Wakefield is reported as saying that his auto was running slowly, possibly 15 miles an hour; that the boy without looking either way jumped off the wagon and darted in front of his machine. As soon as he could do so Mr. Wakefield stopped his auto, returned to the house and took the boy to the office of Dr. Lord. He waited until after the boy was treated and carried him back home.

Dr. Lord does not see any reason why the boy will not fully recover from his injuries.

Mrs. Brown told an Enterprise representative that she did not see the accident and her first knowledge of the injury to her son was when she heard him screaming. She rushed to the back door and found the little fellow lying on the steps, his face and hands covered with blood. A neighbor took the boy in his arms and carried him to the waiting auto. She does not think the auto could have been going very fast or the boy would have been killed. She said, "I have been fearful of an accident all summer. The majority of automobiles pass my house very fast and I am constantly warning the children to be on the lookout. The drivers appear to have no regard for the safety of anyone."

James Day, who lives next door and who has been quoted as saying the auto was going very slowly, stated Sunday that he did not see the accident; that his first knowledge was a sight of the boy rushing into the yard. He says that every day he has trembled for the safety of the many children in that vicinity, the autos dashing through the narrow thoroughfare at 30, 40 and 50 miles an hour.

Edward Kelley, who also lives at the Landing, said that all summer pedestrians have been in danger from the fast going auto. He has witnessed several narrow escapes. He particularly referred to the reckless driving of autos by the Atlantic Railway waiting room when the cars are discharging passengers.

The following extracts from the State Auto Laws MAY interest local and county officials, and reckless chauffeurs.

CHAPTER 162

"SECTION 2—The rate of speed upon any highway, townway, public street, avenue, driveway, park or parkway, by any person operating a motor vehicle in this State shall not be greater than twenty-five miles an hour in open country outside of cities and villages, and within the compact or built-up portions of any city, town or village not greater than ten miles an hour, except where such city or town may by ordinance or by law permit a greater rate of speed.

"SECTION 4—Whoever, driving or operating a motor vehicle upon any highway * * * when approaching from an opposite direction a person riding, driving, or leading a horse or other animal which appears to be frightened, is signalled by putting up of hand or other visible sign by such person, shall cause such motor vehicle to come to a stop as soon as possible and remain stationary as long as it may be necessary and reasonable to allow such horse or animal to pass.

Whenever travelling in the same direction the person operating a motor vehicle shall use reasonable caution in passing horses or other animals or vehicles."

SECTION 5—Every such motor vehicle when in use on the highways shall have attached thereto a suitable horn, bell or other equally as good means of signal, that when blown, rung, or otherwise operated, may be heard a distance of at least two hundred feet, and shall also have lighted lamps between thirty minutes after sunset and thirty minutes before sunrise.

ALL OUT FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

Sears Convincers the Attraction and the Home Fans Look for a Win With "No-hit-no-run" Best In the Box

Even if you are not a fan, just a lover of good clean sport and desire to show approval, make your plans so as to attend the base ball game at the Playground, Saturday afternoon.

The Sears-Convincers of Springvale will be the attraction, Manager Marks finally consenting to play the return game. At Springvale, June 14, that team defeated the locals on a wretched field by a score of 11 to 7. Following the game the Springvale manager began to hedge on a return date. Persistent prodding on the part of Manager Hawkes forced Manager Marks into the open and it was a case of show or or squeal.

Local fans believes the Springvale team has nothing on the Athletics and like the residents of Missouri are not only willing but anxious to be shown by Manager Marks' players, who think differently.

Major Stevens from Ward One will lead the rooters from the third base bleachers. Major says that it will be a game worth while, going miles to see and he looks for the locals to win.

Inimitable Bill Berry has agreed to make things interesting from back of the first base line.

John H. Cooper, Dr. A. C. Merriman, Charles H. Cole, R. J. Grant, Edward Richardson, Edward Titcomb, Bertelle A. Smith, Dr. F. C. Lord and others who have followed the games all summer have sent word to their friends to be at the Playground Saturday afternoon.

Sanford and Springvale have announced that they will bring a crowd of rooters and arrangements are being made with Manager McCrear for special electric cars to carry to Kennebunk the large crowd from those plantations. They hope to see the Athletics soundly trounced for daring to insist on a game with the Convincers.

Best, "the-no-hit-no-run" pitcher, will toe the rubber for Kennebunk. Other probable players for the locals will be Towne, Perkins, Parker, Winter, Libby, H. Coombs, T. Butland and Sullivan.

The line-up is subject to change and all of the Athletics have been notified to appear in uniform, ready to play.

Freddie Parent of National fame and Hugh Pinkerton of the New England League will appear in Convincer uniforms.

All out for Saturday's game.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 10, 1913

If the person of average intelligence were asked to name the one great weakness of the American educational system the chances are that reference would first be made to the custom of running all pupils through the same mill, of trying to make all brains fit the same mold, with little thought or care for individual needs. The trouble comes through a mistaken idea of what it means to give all pupils equal opportunities.---Journal.

A mother's search of nearly a year for a missing husband and child has been brought to a successful close through the medium of motion pictures, according to a letter received from Tokio, Japan, by Supt. of Police W. H. Pierce. John Ellis, a former minister and stock broker, who carried off his 4-year-old daughter, Olga, despite a court order that she be delivered into the custody of her mother, has been located there by a person who recognized his face in the "movies" at Yokohama.

The wreck of the six-masted schooner, George W. Wells, on the coast of Virginia, Thursday as told in the dispatches, recalls to mind more forcibly than ever the rapidity with which sailing vessels are passing away and as but very few large vessels are being built nowadays one cannot help being impressed with the conviction that the days of sailing craft are numbered. The wrecking of the Wells strikes Maine forcibly from the fact that she was commanded by a Maine man, Capt. Joseph York of South Portland, who, by the way, has the reputation of being the youngest master ever to sail out of a New England port, he having been made a master when he was but 17 years old. His first command was the schooner, Charles Willard, and later he was first mate on the Thomas W. Lawson. He has been commander of the Wells about five years.

A splendid and well deserved tribute to President Wilson's policy regarding Mexico was given by assistant Secretary of State Malone at the Perry banquet in Buffalo last week. He said:—"History will record this nation's tribute of respect and gratitude to the present President of the United States, who by indomitable courage, unswerving patience, unflinching tact and an incomparable personality, has saved 90,000,000 people from the ravages of a senseless war in Mexico and thousands upon thousands of American homes from the loss of fathers and sons on the field of futile battle. To stand against the doubts of a people, the impulsive conclusions of the press, the abuse of these who place property above morals, and the temptation to certainly perpetuate his tenure of office by a successful war against a weaker people is an exhibition of rare courage and heroic leadership that is worthy of the dignity and honor of the Presidency of the United States.

Mr. Warren Wessell of Boston is visiting his sister, Mrs. Harry E. Clark.

The postoffice at Ogunquit is soon to pass into the hands of F. Raymond Brewster, and while there is deep regret at the retirement of Mr. Littlefield, the best of good wishes are passed on to the newly appointed successor to this official position. Mr. Brewster plans to move the office into that block known as "The Barracks," and he proposes to turn over the premises to Uncle Sam's business, which the widely increasing popularity of that seashore resort has brought up to a large volume during the summer months. The new postmaster is well known as an architect and contractor in business circles and some of the most splendid residences in that section are mute testimonials of his artistic and constructive skill. He has a cordial, jovial personality which wins him many friends, and is bound to be an extremely valuable asset in carrying out his new duties.

The local fash are rooting for a big crowd at Saturday's game between Sears-Convincers and Kennebunk. Show your interest by being present.

A Minority Representative

Out of a total of 36,002 votes cast in the Third Congressional district, Mr. Peters, republican, received 15,069; Mr. Pattangall, democrat, 14,480; and Mr. Lawrence, progressive, 6,453. While Mr. Peters had a safe plurality which secured his election, he lacked 2,932 of having a majority of all the votes cast.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican (Ind.) says editorially:—

"Possibly the fact that the Progressive strength did not fade entirely away is the most significant aspect of the election. There was nothing of the Roosevelt personality involved, yet more than 6,000 voters supported the Progressive candidate. Should so large a percentage of the Progressive strength remain intact as a separate political force in the congressional elections of next year, the Republicans could not possibly regain control of the lower branch of Congress. As for this year's state elections, the Maine result certainly foreshadows a fairly strong run by Mr. Bird in this commonwealth, although by no means a successful run.

"There is certainly no rebuke of the Wilson administration in the Maine result. So far as the Democratic party is concerned, the district shows a negligible change of sentiment compared with last November. This fact may easily be interpreted as meaning that the Wilson administration has gained strength in the country as a whole, in view of the special interest of Maine in high protection against Canada."

Some game is predicted for Saturday afternoon. Be a live one. "No-hit-no-run" Best will pitch.

Plant is Wholly Submerged With Long, Flexible, Ribbon-Like Leaves of Light Translucent Green—Flowers Are Peculiar.

(By W. L. M'ATEE.)

The names wild celery and canvas-back duck have been closely associated in the annals of American sport. To a certain extent this association is justified, since the canvas back obtains about one-fourth of its food from this plant—a greater proportion than any other duck. However, the assertion that the flavor of the canvasback is superior to that of any other duck and that it depends on a diet of wild celery is not proved, to say the least.

The scapula or bluebills and the red head also are very fond of wild celery, and are fully as capable of getting the delicious buds as the canvas back. Several other ducks get more or less of this food, the writer finding that even the scoters on a northern lake in fall lived almost exclusively on it for a time. All parts of the plant are eaten by ducks but the tender winter buds and root stocks are relished best. Wild celery ducks can use ally be obtained by the diving ducks, such as the bluebills, redheads, canvasback and scoters. The non-diving species, as the mallard, black duck, baldpate and the geese get an occasional bud, but more often they feed upon the leaves.

Wild celery is a wholly submerged plant with long, flexible, ribbon-like leaves of light translucent green and of practically the same width (any where from one-fourth to three-fourths of an inch, from root to tip. This plant may be distinguished from the eelgrass, which lives in brackish or salt water, by the fact that its leaves grow in bundles from the root stock, while those of eelgrass arise singly and alternate on opposite sides of the stem.

The flowers of wild celery are peculiar. The staminate flowers attached at the base of the plants shed pollen which floats on the surface of the water and fertilizes the pistillate flower. The latter is attached to a long slender, round stem, which contracts into a spiral, drawing the flower under the water after fertilization. The seed pod into which the pollenized flower develops is straight or curved a little slender than a common lead pencil and from 3 to 6 inches long. It contains embedded in a clear jelly small dark seeds, in number about 50 to the inch. No such pod is borne by any other fresh water plant.

GUINEAS ARE HARD TO RAISE

Young Birds Must Be Watched Carefully Until Past Tender Age—Of Very Wild Nature.

Guinea hens are among the hardest of all birds to breed, chiefly because the young guinea is so extremely tender. They are also of a very wild nature, and when one of them is lost from the hen it may be counted as lost. It is advisable to keep the young guineas shut up for a few days after they are hatched and feed them on bread crumbs, coarse corn meal and occasionally a hard-boiled egg, ground fine and mixed with the bread crumbs.

After they leave the hen, if the days are warm and bright, they are allowed to hunt bugs and worms and require little feeding. After they are feathered out they need little care, as they are able to shift for themselves until the winter cuts off their supply of food.

In winter they must have a shelter and be fed the same as other poultry, but must be kept shut in when there is snow on the ground, as they will fly into the tops of trees or on roofs of buildings, and refuse to come down.

Winter Feed for Poultry.

One of the best and most relished winter feeds for poultry is cabbage. says a writer in an exchange. Even though there is an abundance of other green vegetable matter, I should still strive to add some cabbage to the list.

It is true that there is nothing quite as good for the hens as a growing crop, such as rye, over which they can range and thus combine exercise with food getting, and every effort should be made to provide it, but often space is too limited for such crops, and dependence must be had altogether on substitutes that can be stored away.

THE PLAINS OF MEXICO.

THERE'S a country wide and weary,
And a scorching sun looks down
On the thirsty cattle ranges and a queer old Spanish town.
And it's there my heart goes roving
by the trails I used to know:

Dusty trails by camps deserted where the tinkling mule trains go.
On the sleepy, knoll ranges and the plains of Mexico,
Is it only looking backward that the past seems now so fair?

Was the sun then somehow brighter; was there something in the air Made no day seem ever weary, never tiring that went too slow.
When we rode the dusty ranges on the plains of Mexico?

Then the long, hot, scented evenings and the fiddle's squeaky tune
When we danced with Spanish lassies underneath the golden moon.
Girls with names all slow and splendid,
hot as fire and cold as snow,
In the spicy summer nighttime on the plains of Mexico.

I am growing tired and lonely, and the town is dull and strange.
I am restless for the open sky and wandering winds that range
I will get me forth a-roving; I will get me out and go.
But no more, no more my road is to the plains of Mexico.

For the sun is on the plateau and the dusty trails go down
By the same old cactus hedges to the sleepy Spanish town,
But I'll never find my comrade that I lost there long ago.
Never, never more (Oh, lad I loved and left a-lying low)
Where the coward bullet took him on the plains of Mexico.

—C. Fox Smith.

THE KNIGHT'S TOAST.

TO one whose image never may depart,
Deep graven in the grateful heart
Till memory be dead;
To one whose love for me shall last
When lighter passions long have passed,
So holy 'tis and true
To one whose love hath longer dwelt
More deeply fixed, more keenly felt,
Than any pledged by you.

AND Stanley said, "We crave the name
Proud knight of this most peerless dame
Whose love you count so high."
St. Leon paused, as if he would Not breathe her name in careless mood
Thus lightly to another,
Then bent his noble head as though
To give that word its reverence due
And gently said, "My mother."
—Scott.

WRITE ME A LETTER.

WRITE me a letter, my dear old friend,
Say that you love me yet.
I know you are true, but I wish that you
Would say that you never forget
The spring's all budding and scent and song.
The summer's blossoming time,
The orchard talks and the woodland walks,
In the golden autumn time.

Write me a letter, my dear old friend;
Leave out the years between;
The ways have been rough and thorny enough
Which twist us intervene.
Sing me a song of the long ago,
Ere I knew the world could cheat,
Of moonlight gleams and fond day dreams
That were so divinely sweet.

Write me a letter, my dear old friend.
I love you more and more
As further apart we drift, dear heart,
And nearer the other shore.
The dear old loves and the dear old days
Are a balm to life's regret.
It is easy to bear the worry and care
If the old friends love us yet.

—Exchange.

THE SECOND MILE.

HAS it been your lot to meet
One who's gracious, kind and sweet,
One who greets you on the street
With a smile?

HAVE you found a friend, unpressed
Giving all at love's behest
And who goes with request
One more mile?

DO you give that extra touch,
Prove a favor not as such,
But a pleasure wished for much
And worth while?

DO you add sweet grace and charm,
Lend refusals soothing balm,
Go in spirit, arm in arm,
One more mile?

'TIS the little acts, my friend,
Simple acts which oftentimes blend
Happiness with deeds and lend
Grace and style.

WEALTH and fame are poor beside
Such a charm, and vain is pride.
Love will ever prompt and guide
One more mile.

—Charles L. H. Wagner.

THE CALL.

YOU heard the wide world calling lad, a call of tears and laughter.
Fain, fain you were to follow th:
Fain that bade you come.

Ah, weary is their part who wait, whose vain thought follows after The restless feet that journey on, but never journey home.

Ah, far and far your feet must fare, to lands beyond my knowing!
You'll see the glory of the earth, the great seas mystery.
You'll lay you down by faroff streams
when trill stars are glowing.
Ah, pale beside their glittering fire the wan white stars I see!

You'll hear no message in their note, no tender memory waking When bright hues birds go flashing by the pathless woods among.
Yet o'er the distant fields you knew, its heavenward journey taking,
The skylarks sing the song of hope I knew when I was young.

But some day you will hear the call, the call for your returning.
More dear these low green hills will seem than all the world beside.
Ah, then you'll journey home, dear lad,
by ways that need no learning.
And I shall see and hear you come—the door stands always wide!

—Dorothea Birch.

140 Millions Spent for Bettering the Railways of New England

Within nine years the New England Lines have spent $140,780,907 for additions and improvements.

This vast sum is greater than the total deposits in the savings banks of New Hampshire and Vermont.

All expended for heavier rails, stronger bridges to carry heavier trains, new stations, new equipment.

Every dollar spelling transportation efficiency for New England!

Methodist News

With the return of the vacationists a renewed interest in the affairs of the Kingdom of Christ is manifest. Largely increased attendance was reported last Sunday. In the afternoon the pastor, Rev. S. E. Leech, administered the sacrament of the Lord's supper and preached on "Holy Dynamite."

In the evening a very interesting social meeting was held, the pastor giving a talk on "How God Answers Prayer."

The Sunday School also felt the renewed interest and at the close of the session a meeting of the Sunday School Board was held to plan for aggressive work. Committees on Rally and Harvest days were appointed and will meet this evening to make further plans.

The F. A. Bragdon Chapter of Epworth League held its monthly social and business meeting at the church parlors on Monday evening. There was a good attendance and a very pleasant evening was spent. During the evening Miss Clara Meserve and S. E. Leech gave readings. Refreshments were served.

Next Sunday afternoon there will be a christening at the regular service. The pastor will preach on "A Lesson in Addition."

Conservatory Living Room.

A happy idea in house construction, says Country Life in America, is the new plan of combining conservatory and living room. The idea has possibilities, both for the elaborate mansion and the modest cottage. Ferns, flowers, easy chairs and abundant sunlight make the conservatory living room an apartment that radiates beauty, cheerfulness and comfort.

Appreciates Kindness

Editor of Kennebunk Enterprise:— I wish through your columns to thank a young man named Sprague, living near the Landing, for taking care of my motor boat which he found adrift below the drawbridge of Kennebunkport. He anchored it with his own anchor, then made inquiries and notified the owner. It took time to do this and made extra work for him. As he is a stranger to me he had no reason for doing the kindness, excepting a desire to do as he would be done by. For the courtesy and thoughtfulness I am very grateful.

Kennebunkport

The Olympian Club entertained the U. A. C. and a few other friends at the home of Mrs. Rollins on Main street, from three to five Tuesday afternoon. Music was furnished by Miss Torrey's fine phonograph, and was greatly enjoyed by all, as was the reading given by Mrs. Suplee in her best and most characteristic manner. Refreshments were served in the dining room, which was prettily decorated in a color scheme of green and gold. Mrs. Suplee poured tea, and was assisted by the Misses Wade, Carter, Perkins and Rollins. The company numbered about thirty, and the occasion will be remembered as an uncommonly pleasant one of its kind.

Two petitions for administration have been presented in the probate court in the estate of Annie E. Eldridge, late of Kennebunkport, who died at the Webber hospital, August 18, from injuries received in a runaway accident at Kennebunkport, August 14. One of the petitions is presented by her husband, Benjamin F. Eldridge of Kennebunkport, who prays that he be appointed administrator of his wife's estate. His counsel are N. B. and T. B. Walker of Biddeford. The second petition is from Mrs. Jennie M. Cree of Colebrook, N. H., a sister of the testator. In her petition for appointment as administrator, Mrs. Cree estimates her sister's estate at $44,000. J. O. Bradbury, Saco, is counsel for Mrs. Cree.
