FIRST LOVE .--- YOUNG LADIES.

We have long thought of having a word with you all, upon a very particular and a very interesting subject, - one upon which you, and half the world besides, as we think little paint and perhaps a little lily white, or entertain very mistaken notions. It is this some sort of powder which disfigures their thing of "first love," as it is called, which countenances; and the songs of youthful with us, nor sneer at our cold-heartedness, ever, and what do you suppose it is that that this affeir of first love which has made ing attachments. You will smile, no doubt, of his resolution will ever fail. so much fuss in the world, is in fact no love when I remind you of it, which I will do by at all. Now don't smile contemptuously at quoting two lines from a piece of love poethe assertion, and say we are aiming a blow try. at the loveliest, most pure and valuable thing in life. It is no such thing. We would not pluck a single flower from the path of happiness we would wish you to pursue. But we would warn you of the thorn that lies hidden in your way. We would tell you of a mistaken sensibility, call it sentiment, call it first love, or what you please, which, too often, assumes the control of young hearts, and creates in young hearts' maginations ten thousand images of ideal happiness, which can never be realized in this matter-of fact world we live in. Not one in ten consummates the resolves of their second, four with the third, and thirty with the last; and he said he loved the last more than either of the others. A standing argument derive its revenues but from the fruits of agriculture? What constitutes the wealth of the country but her of lightning conductors to their houses, farm buildings and ricks, should plant near them large growing trees, such as the pyrimidal second, four with the third, and thirty with the last; and he said he loved the last more does the government derive its revenues but from the fruits of agriculture? What constitutes the wealth of the country but her of lightning conductors to their houses, farm buildings and ricks, should plant near them large growing trees, such as the pyrimidal of the aves and noes, but it was voted early years, and few of the disappointed die

At least one half the unhappy marriages that occur, are occasioned by the non-interruption of what young ladies call first love, and which we have said is no love at all; it is no love, because it does not last, and love is indestructible. This first love goes out of itself as a taper dies when its substance is destroyed. We knew a young lady not the fancies which young ladies and young lady not the fancies which young ladies and young lady not the fancies which young ladies and young lady not the fancies which young ladies and young lady not these flights of fancy to be in love, and she nined herself sad and sick—refused to eat the fancies and other friends, who are older and more experienced than yourselves, and if they advotate the fancies which young ladies and young lady not the same extent, nor other friends, who are older and more experienced than yourselves, and if they advotate the fancies which young ladies and young lady not the same extent, nor other friends, who are older and more experienced than yourselves, and if they advotate the fancies which young ladies and young lady not the same extent, nor other friends, who are older and more experienced than yourselves, and if they advotate the fancies which young ladies and young lady not the same extent, nor other friends, who are older and more experienced than yourselves, and if they advotate the fancies which young ladies and young ladies and young ladies and young lady not the same extent, nor other friends, who are older and more experienced than yourselves, and if they advotate the fancies which young ladies and young ladies and young ladies and young ladies and young lady not take the soil more or less, of the general elements of the same extent, nor of all exhaust it alike of certain specific properienced than yourselves, and if they advo-date the soil more or less, of the general elements of the same extent, nor of all exhaust it alike of certain specific properienced the soil more or less, of the general elements of the soil more or less, of and wept most bitterly; indeed she thought

The public are cautioned against the many quacks who promise what they cannot perform.

Having worn the different kinds of Trusses, more or less, that have been offered to the public for the last twenty years, from different patent manufactories, and now continues to wear those of his own manufacture, he is now able to decide, after examining the rupture, what sort of Trusses is here to adam to all the cases that Proprietors have received, and are receiving others.-Let none condemn them until they what sort of Truss is best to adapt to all the cases that occur; and he has on haid as good Trusses, and will furnish any kind of Truss that can be had elsewhere. Any person who purchases a Truss at this establishment, if it does not suit, can exchange until they are well ment, if it does not suit, can exchange until they are well sickness is beginning to be appreciated. Langley, my only Travelling Agent in Maine—or by ordering from my Principal New England Office, eral eminent physicians, taken plentifully of Brandreth's, Lee's, and many other pills, but all to no purpose; in fact I continually grew more feeble and emaciated-my usual weight when in health was 175 lbs. and I was reduc ed to 115. I had no appetite, and the little food I did eat was poorly digested. I was at last confined to my room and most of the time to my bed. While in this appalling condition a friend inquired if I had tried your cation of diseases. I immediately sent to your central office, procured a box, and being partially relieved by their use, purchased two boxes more; and now, although scarce
