BY ELIZA P. COOK. No reefer struts upon her deck-No boatswain pipes her crew, Whose rough and tarry jackets are As often black as blue. Her sails are torn, her timbers worn, She's but a crazy craft,

Yet luck betides her in the gale,

And plenty crowns her draught. Let but a foe insult the land That holds their cottage home, And Yankee hearts will spring from out The merry little Foam.

What ho! what ho! away they go, The moon is high and bright, God speed the little fisher-boat, And grant a starry night. No pennant flutters at her mast,

No port-holes range her side, A dusky spec-she takes her place Unon the midnight tide. While gaily sings some happy boy, A life upon the sea, With jolly mates, a water-can, And trusty nets for me." But many an hour of fearful risk, She meets upon the wave, The ships of stout and giant form, Would scarcely care to brave; And many a one with trembling hand Will trim the beacon light, And cry " God speed the fisher-boat,

We proudly laud the daring ones Who cross the pathless main, The shining gems and yellow dust Of other climes to gain; We honor those whose blood is with The mingled waters found, Who fight till death to guard the cliffs Those waters circle round.

Upon a stormy night."

'Tis well, but let us not forget The poor and gallant set, Who toil and watch when others sleep, To cast the heavy net. Their perils are not paid by fame-

So trim the beacon light, And cry " God-speed the fisher-boat. And grant a starry night.'

STANZAS.

'Tis sad to mark where early worth Has sunk untimely to the tomb. And stars, that might have lighted earth, Ere half unveiled, are quenched in gloom, To see the heart, through long dark years, Still struggling proudly with its lot, That virtue, genius, truth endears, To live unknown, to die torgot.

But sadder far, when vice hath made. Its home where intellect should glow, To trace the dark and blighting shade Of shame upon a noble brow; -Where virtue, talent, all had given Bright promise of a glorious day; To see the bounteous gifts of Heaven On earthly altar cast away.

The tomb where hope and youth hath lain, And suffering virtue still must gain In happier climes a fudeless bay, But for the fallen! Fame to thee, But thought of bitter mockery brings, And all the lyre can give must be

LITERATURE OUTDONE. A literary negro applied to a dentist to have a tooth extracted, with great assurance of his courage. Hope you wont make any narration 'bout my bein' satisated to holler distime, 'cos afore dis I have had my jaw reflected bad."

THE DIFFERENCE. A poor Irishman passing through a village near Chester, saw a crowd of people approaching, which made him inquire what was the matter. He was answered, "A man is going to be buried," "Oh!" replied the Irishman, 'I'll stop to see that, for we carry them in our country.

CERTIFICATE FROM DR. WARREN.
Boston, Jan. 7, 1835.
Having had occasion to observe, that some persons afflicted with Hernia have suffered much from the want of a skilful workman in accommodating Trusses to the peculiarities of their cases, I have taken pains to inform myself of the convergence of Mr. L.F. Foster to to the peculiarities of their cases, I have taken pains to supply the deficiency occasioned by the death of Mr. Beath. After some months of observation of his work, I am satisfied that Mr. Foster is well acquainted with the manufacture of these instruments, and ingenious in accommodating them to the variety of cases which occur. I feel myself called upon to recommend him to my professional brethren, and to the public, as a person well fitted to supply their wants in regard to these important articles.

CERTIFICATE. East Bloomfield, Feb. 18, 1840.

Messrs Comstock & Co.—I feel myself under great obligation to you or your Jew David's Plaster. I have been troubled with corns on my toes for seventeen years, and tried almost every thing that was recommended, but could find nothing that did any good, till I tried the Hebrew Plaster. I pared the corns and applied the Plaster, after having it on about twenty-four hours the Plaster came off, and the corns pealed off and left a hollow place, and are entirely well,

Yours Respectfully, WONTON JOSLIN. N. B. I would advise all those afflicted with corns, to make trial of the Hebrew Plaster. E. W. CAPRON & CO Rochester, N. 3 hacame forw
