There are a great many very attractive fishing and summer resorts in Maine, but only one Rangeley Lake House.

This is the distributing point for the great Rangeley Lakes region. It is reached by one day's ride from Boston. Strictly first-class service is found here. Many of our patrons say that there is nothing wanting. We have trout and salmon fishing, golf, tennis, boating, beautiful drives and walks. Write for illustrated booklet to the RANGELEY LAKES HOTEL COMPANY, Rangeley Maine. John B. Marble Pres. Henry M. Burrows, Treasurer.

We Are Already

To offer you a good place in which to have a good time, also the best fly-fishing to be had in Maine. It is not for the firm of Ed Grant & Sons to tell you of the merits of Seven Ponds and Kennebago. We let our friends do that but we do guarantee you the best of service in every respect. Our guests will be glad to know that we have added some of the latest improvements to our camps, such as the Victoria Acetylene Gas Plant, also repairs on our camps and completion of new log camps, thus combining all the comforts of civilization with the delights of the woods. We already have the best of telephone and telegraph service.

We wish to call special attention to the extension of our ticket line. Tickets can be bought in all of the principal cities east of Buffalo to Loon Lake, Kennebago and return. This new arrangement saves you money. Price of tickets Boston to Kennebago and return, $14.50; New York to Kennebago and return, via Sound lines, $22.50; via all rail, $24.50 (either via Boston or via Worcester and Portland.) Our buckboards are in constant attendance on all trains, or boats arriving at Rangeley. The Maine Steamship Company sell tickets from New York to Portland and return for $8.00; Portland to Kennebago and return, $10.60.

Ask an Indian how far it is to any given point and if it is a long distance he will say, "Heap! Hundred mile.

A dog recently died in Spokane, Washington, that is said to have taken part in killing at least 200 bears and half as many cougars and lynx.

A MAINE WOODS reader noticed the item in this column last week about the Staunton, Virginia, man who captured four hundred swallows and he writes to ask what it was he swallowed.

The idea!

A barn swallow recently committed suicide by hanging himself with horse hair. He was found hanging to the eaves of an old shed near the Phillips & Rangeley railroad station. The horse hair was wound twice around his neck.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Jones of Newtow Highlands, Mass., who have been making an automobile tour of the Dead River, Rangeley and White Mountain districts, had the pleasure of seeing a cow moose in Dead River within a third of a mile of the Shaw House. She came out near the point where Tim brook empties into Dead river. Mr. Jones is very strong in his praise of the Shaw House at Eustis.

"I was pleased to see that some one put in a good word for the canoes the other morning," said an enthusiastic canoeer to Lewiston Sun. "He was just right about the matter. If an accident happens to a rowboat the people do not have any fault to find with the boat but if a man should jump out of a canoe and get drowned many would look wise and say what a dangerous thing the canoe is anyway. Most of the canoes at Lake Auburn have keels making them doubly safe."

A Cider and Trout Story.

Gene Leavitt, a trapper, was fishing near the source of the Upper Salmon Branch, near Washburn, a few days ago, when he struck a pool in which the trout behaved in a most uncommon manner. Lovett had frequently fished the brook but never before had he noted anything out of the ordinary with the trout. That morning he had hardly touched a fly into the water before a monstrous trout leaped gaily into the air, turned a double flip-flop, and scudded straight for the bank. There he rammed his head into the mud and stuck there till the fisherman reached over and caught him by the tail.

In the meantime other things were happening. A dozen fish began skimming about on their backs instead of on their bellies. They lay most erratic courses, and at times seemed dazed. They circled, zigzagged and kitty cornered, waved their tails in the air and cut up the water until it frothed. The moment Lovett's fly struck the surface half a dozen big fellows would start for it, and, the fisherman solemnly declares, the losers would fight among themselves until the edges of the pool were fringed with dead and maimed fish.

Trout taken from the water seemed to be in normal condition, and Lovett utterly nonplussed set out to confer with Sam Wilsie, another trapper who inhabited the region.

When Sam heard of the bewitched trout he laughed till the tears flowed down his weather beaten cheeks. He explained thus:

"You see it's this way; I got religion and swore off last week and as the parson said the cider must go so I took the last barrel I had buried in a spring down by the brook and dumped it into the pool. I never thought 'twould go to the heads o' them trout, honest, I didn't. I s'pose they drank some and some soaked in it till they got down right lit up. Wall I'd rather it was them 'en me, sein' I swore off."

There is no more handy and satisfactory gun to have about the house than a Marlin .22 repeater. This rifle chambers all the different forms of .22 cartridges and can thus be cheaply used for the pleasure of target or small game shooting, and is at the same time quickly made serviceable as a long range rifle for such game as the fox, coon, badger, woodchuck, hawk, wild goose, etc.

The Marlin .22 has many superior features of construction which, with the chambering of different kinds of .22s, places it high in the estimation of small bore rifle users. No rifle but a Marlin has Marlin accuracy. That's good to think about when you order.

You will enjoy the real hunting stories in our "Experience Book." Free, for 3 stamps, with our 130-page Catalogue.

GLIDDEN TOURING PARTY.

RANGELEY LAKE HOUSE IS A BUSY SPOT THIS WEEK.

Automobile Party Reach the Rangeley Lake House on Schedule Time, Will Start For Bretton Woods Friday Morning.

(Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.)

RANGELEY, July 26, 1906.

At 1.05 the first car competing for the Glidden trophy arrived. This was car No. 7. The confetti cars. Nos 46 and 13 arrived at 9.40 and were followed by the patrolling cars Nos. 73 and 49 arriving at 11.15.

About 70 machines are already here at 3 p. m. and still they are coming. No accidents have happened and everyone is happy.

The people are enthusiastic over this section and say they found much better road than in New York state.

They came via North New Portland and the Dead River Region leaving Waterville at 7 o'clock Wednesday for the Rangeley lakes. Friday they will continue to their last stopping place, which is Bretton's Woods, N. H.

The immense string of automobiles represented, according to a statement made by Mr. Glidden, an aggregate in value $300,000.

Of the first 13 machines to arrive 11 of them has perfect records. No. 7, a Packard car has made the fastest time coming 105 miles in 3 hours and 55 minutes. This car is not competing for the prize. Draper was the driver.

As is well-known, the autos constitute those entered in the third trip of the American Automobile Association, the second annual trip for the Charles J. Glidden trophy and the first annual trip for the Paul H. Denning trophy. Mr. Denning, in addition to offering a prize for the most successful automobile exhibited in the tour, is also chairman of the touring committee.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Fuller, A. G. Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Budlong, Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Cutts, Providence, R. I., arrived at the Rangeley Lake House today with two big touring cars. They stopped at Phillips Hotel, Phillips, Wednesday night.

BELGRADE LAKES.

Many New Arrivals as Well as the Old Timers.

(Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.)

CENTRAL HOUSE, July 22, 1906.

This famous old house is at present filled to overflowing, many late guests occupying rooms in the many cottages of the village. Nearly all of the old guests who come yearly are already here.

The fishing being first-class many large catches are brought in daily. Pleasure parties are planned and the day spent on the many islands in the two lakes, coming home at twilight tired, but very happy.

"The Pines" on the shore of Long pond is a favorite resort for evening amusement having a pavilion for dancing, bowling, and shooting gallery.

Rev. Mr. Turner of Washington, D. C. preached at the village church this morning to a very large and appreciative congregation. Taking for his theme "Making the Most of Life." The orchestra from the Belgrade furnished music. The whole service was comforting and inspiring.

Among the recent arrivals are Mr. Jack Lesern from New York and his friend, Ben Sparrow of Boston. Mr. Lesern has been under contract for several years to furnish the table at the Central House with fish.

Other arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Boothman, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Miss M. C. Woffington, Mr. Anderson, New York City; Judge and Mrs. C. M. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton, Providence, R. DIETARY DICTIONARY.

Dinner should be of a lighter nature in summer than in winter.

A quart of wheat contains more nutriment than a bushel of cucumbers.

There is a happy mean between eating everything and being squeamish. Two pounds of potatoes contain as much nutriment as 13 pounds of turnips.

Light soups, light desserts and light meals should have the preference in warm weather.

Vegetables and fruits are to be used most generously at that season of the year in which they naturally mature.

Beginning the dinner with soup is the very best way to get the whole system in condition for assimilating a hearty meal.

Fish Record Made by Some of the Guests of Barker's Hotel, Birch Point.

(Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.)

THE BARKER, July 23, 1906.

As I write this I can count more than twenty boats anchored off the Point, each with two or three persons. All are fishing for a big fellow and nearly every one who goes out returns with the limit.

M. L. O'Brien of Gashen, N. Y., has taken the head for he seems to be a favorite with the salmon and can reel off some extra fish yarns to his friends about 'The salmon I caught off Sandy Point that weighed 5 1-4, 5, 4 pounds each and ever and ever so many from 2 to three pounds each.'

All who come up the walk stop to admire the large bed of big handsome pansies that are now in full bloom.

Workmen are busy completing the new tennis court in front of the camps.

The voice of the tame crow that gave a cheerful call in the early morning is missed for he has gone to make friends elsewhere. Old crow! Elack crow!! We miss thee!!!

One of Portland's most popular young gentlemen, Mr. Hugh Leighton, has chosen this place for a few weeks' rest and pleasure. Since he landed a 7-pound salmon he has been content to let others try to catch a larger one. Mr. Adam P. Leighton joined his son Saturday for a few days, and with Chas. Moore, guide, does not intend to be satisfied with the three pounder he caught Sunday.

Rev. Fr. L. J. Murphy and Rev. Fr. J. J. Czubek of Salem, Mass., who for a month have been in camp here, return home this week. Four Sundays they celebrated mass at the casino, which gave great pleasure to Catholic people at the different nearby camps and hotels, and all hope they will return another season.

Miss Florence D. Eger of New York City is the guest of her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Eger, at Knickerbocker camp. Her friend, Miss Nina Moehler, accompanies her.

Lynn Lodge is taken two weeks by the following Bostonians. Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Leland.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Bragg of Portland spent last week here.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Seelman of Philadelphia, Mrs. E. C. Leeds of Woodbury, N. J., and Miss Mary Wolfe of Pittsfield, Mass., are a pleasant party who arrived this week and took a camp for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Godward and family, also Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Yauch of New York are here for their first season. They have been lucky fishermen bringing in several 4-pound salmon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Polk of Washington, D. C., spend much of their time on the water depleting the lake of salmon. Mr. Polk's largest this week was a 5 3-4-pound salmon and Mrs. Polk's one 4 1-2 pound salmon.

on. Elliot H. Burton and family of Charlestown, S. C., who has been here several summers returned to Camp Palmetto this week for a long stay. Master Ralph Burton landed a 5 1-4-pound salmon last Saturday which any lad might be proud of.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Cortis of New York arrived this week for a month's stay.

The Brownback lads are still teaching older ones how to fish, and daily catch their limit, and planked salmon are greatly enjoyed.

Mr. Adam Leighton of Portland Monday morning with Chas. Moore, guide in less than two hours caught his 10 pounds of salmon, that were taken to Portland friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Gottgetraue and daughter, Miss Blanch of New York have Camp Captive until October. Jim Stewart is their guide. Mr. Gottgetraue caught a 7-pound salmon this week that he took to Hinds to mount.

KINEO NEWS NOTES.

Rifle Shooting, Fishing and Canoeing Have Many Devotees.

[Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.]

KINEO, MOOSEHEAD LAKE,

July 21, 1906.

The week past has been a busy one here with sports and social pleasures much in evidence, and a large influx of old and new friends, many of whom will spend the season here. Golf, tennis and rifle shooting are popular pastimes, but fishing, canoeing and riding have devotees, and bridge reigns supreme as an indoor diversion, having only for a rival, dancing which is enjoyed by the younger set. There is every indication that August will find the monster hotel filled to its extreme capacity and many turned away, for Kineo's fame is now international and its admirers are not only to be found in every state, but one might almost say, "in every land and every clime."

Among the features of the week was the forty-first annual meeting of the Maine Dental association which drew together a company of 100 representatives of various portions of the state and about equally divided between the members and their wives.

The baseball schedule of the local ball team began with games with the Jackman team, two clean cut victories resulting.

Many campers are working into the wilderness. Prominent among the late visitors during the week is Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana.

THOSE who would make successful fly fishermen do well to study the habits of the fish.

An Enemy of the Forests.

Some of the Maine newspapers are unnecessarily alarmed because the brown tail moth has reached Maine. Forest Commissioner Ring, who has been making a study of the moth situation in Massachusetts, does not consider the brown tail particularly dangerous. But he says that if the gypsy moth gets into our Maine forests he does not know what can be done to prevent their doing immense damage. There would be danger that these pests would ruin our forests entirely. The gypsies are no respecters of anything that grows. They will take every hard and soft wood tree and everything that the farmer and gardener raises. The brown tail builds his nests at the ends of the branches so he can be seen and taken care of. The gypsy is not so particular. He will build in the crotch of a tree, in a stone wall, on the ground, in the corner of a box car or in the under gearing of an automobile.

There is, of course, danger that some of the gypsies will be brought to Maine by train or automobile. Readers of MAINE WOODS are requested to report immediately to E. E. Ring, Forest Commissioner, Augusta, Maine, if they think they see any indication that the gypsy moth is in this state.

Fine Accomodations For Those Who Will Visit the Jamestown Exposition.

The great expositions of the world have usually been held in or near metropolitan cities. The knowledge of this fact has caused some to question whether Norfolk will be able to furnish adequate hotel accommodations for the immense throngs which next year will visit the Jamestown exposition. No anxiety need be felt however on this score.

The Jamestown exposition is peculiarly fortunate in its situation. Although it is but a scant six miles from Norfolk, it is hardly a greater distance from Portsmouth, Newport News or Hampton. It is within a few minutes ride of some of the most famous seaside hotel resorts in America: Ocean View, Virginia Beach, Pine Beach and Fortress Monroe, or Old Point long famous as an all year health and pleasure point. The cities enumerated above are well equipped with modern hotels and cottages for the accommodation of summer visitors line the shores of Chesapeake bay, the roadway to the sea, and the Virginia coast.

Several large hotels are now building in the cities near the exposition and a number of temporary hotels are going up in the vicinity of the grounds. Further to assure comfortable and attractive accommodation for its guests there is being constructed within the exposition grounds an Inside Inn which is unique a mong exposition hotels. This Inn will be a real hotel, not a hastily constructed barn with shallow partitions built for a day. It will be a permanent affair, lasting after the exposition is over and will add one more to the well know resorts of the section.

Fly Rod's Note Book.

On Friday, July 13, 1906 at his home in Worcester, Mass. occurred the death of Mr. Loring Coes at the advanced age of 94 years.

For nearly half a century Coes has each spring come to the Rangeleys on a fishing trip and has not missed a spring for forty-seven years.

He always spent several weeks at the Mountain View House where he made a host of friends, who looked forward with pleasure to his coming.

Truly he was "a gentle angler" always enthusiastic, but he fished for the love of it, not for the fish altogether.

I well remember meeting him on the piazza of the Mountain View House last year and of his kindly manner as he spoke of old friends and the days that are past.

"My biggest trout was an 8 1-4 pounder and perhaps I'll get one larger this time", he remarked one day, but all noticed how the years had not lessened his love for the Maine woods and waters, but felt that he might never come again.

Mr. Coes was an ardent sportsman. He was also a good shot and one day last fall demonstrated it by going out with a 22 caliber rifle shooting sparrows, missing only one in 15. He had no use for those who killed the song birds.

The Worcester paper said very many kind things about the dear old gentleman known and loved by so many.

Mr. Coes was president and treasurer of Coes's Wrench Co. and was the inventor of the monkey wrench sold all over the world and kept up an active business life until recently.

In speaking of his love for fishing and hunting a Worcester paper says: "Mr. Coes did not care much for hunting, but was enthusiastic on fishing. A year ago he made his 47th trip to the fishing districts of Maine.

"He was the Nestor of Worcester fishermen. When it comes to fishing for speckled trout or the shining salmon, none of the present generation could equal him in the delicate art of bringing in the gamy fish to net.

"On his last trip to the Maine lakes he was accompanied by his grandson, Frank E. Coes, who is an adept in taking the denizens of Maine's lakes, but who was willing at any time to acknowledge the superiority of his teacher in the art.

"The veteran regarded his last trip as the most enjoyable he ever spent in Maine and he could count a good many. "For forty-seven years he visited the northern country not missing a single year and lotting on a trip this year.

"He seemed to get hit harder with the fever and to grow younger in fishing instincts as the years advanced, for late years he had taken a second trip each year.

"As regards big fish Mr. Coes acknowledged that his last trip was a tame one. He had the sport he wanted and caught many fish, but they did not begin to compare with the records of former years either in size or number. For Mr. Coes there were other attractions than the mere taking of fish and taken altogether his trip was as enjoyable as any he ever had.

"The largest trout he ever took was 81-4 pounds and the largest salmon 7 pounds, although not larger he has taken many fine fish. The reel Mr. Coes used was one which was built according to his idea. It was made to set into the rod instead of being fixed to the side of the rod by a ring. It is a single reel with drag and has a large center which enables the fisherman to wind as fast as an ordinary multiplying reel."

Mr. Coes has but one son, Chester E. B. Coes of Worcester. Many pleasant memories of Mr. Coes remain and he will be greatly missed at Mountain View.

Orin Dyke, who is for the season guiding Dr. Hopkins's party at the Birch- es got almost as much excited over a catch made by Miss McKeel of Brooklyn, N. Y., as the fair angler, who had two salmon strike at one time and for an hour there was great sport. One reel failed to work, the salmon got tangled up with the anchor line and when at last they were netted, after being skillfully handled, the pair weighed 41-2 and 51-2 pounds. The pair were planked and served in great style for dinner the next evening.

Just as I was taking Capt. Barker's steamer at Haines Landing last Thursday I noticed Charles Moore, the guide, holding up a handsome big landlocked salmon and quite a number gathered around. "Who caught that salmon and how much does it weigh?" I asked. A young gentleman raised his hat and remarked "I, and my father will be proud of me, but my mother might not own me," pointing to his face, blistered, and a red, red nose. Thus answered Hugh Leighton, son of Adam P. Leighton of Portland, who was still smiling when I took the boat.

Fish Out of Water.

Consul General Richard Guenther writes from Frankfort that experiments made in Germany with reference to cheap transportation of live fish have demonstrated that all kinds of fish can live for days outside their natural element, water, under certain conditions. This apparently wonderful fact will be easily understood by examining the breathing apparatus of fish. The gills of fish are an organ similar to the human lungs; the blood in them comes up close to the surface. The lungs exchange for the outside air, rich in oxygen, carbonic acid which has been formed in the lungs. On the other hand, the gills of fish are constantly washed by water containing oxygen. The thin membrane of the gills separates the blood in them, vitiated with carbonic acid, from the water containing oxygen, and the practical result is the same as with the human lungs. Carbonic acid is exchanged for oxygen.

It had been noticed long ago that many kinds of fish could live out of water for some time, provided that the gills remained wet. The experiments made aimed at keeping the gills wet and to see to it that this moisture be well charged with oxygen. In order to keep the gills wet the evaporation of the moisture of the gills had to be prevented; for this purpose the fish were placed in an atmosphere thoroughly saturated with water vapor. An hermetically closed wooden box was filled with water to the depth of about one-third of an inch, or the bottom was covered with wet rags, which through evaporation kept the air in the box always saturated with water vapor. The fish were placed in a box which was then shut hermetically by the lid. Through a tube, reaching to the bottom, oxygen was introduced and allowed to escape through a tube in the lid. This oxygen before entering the box passed through several water bottles which thoroughly saturated it with water vapor. In this way the fish are always in pure oxygen atmosphere, and a drying up of the gills is not to be feared.

The result of the experiment was surprising. Carp, tench, bleak and other fish remained in the box from three to four days perfectly well. When they were then placed in water to be fed they swam about in a lively manner and appeared perfectly fresh. It is expected that this mode of transportation for fish will become popular, as it is much more economical than shipping live fish in water tanks. By the latter method the weight of every shipment was 93 to 96 per cent water.—Forest and Stream.

A BOSTON MAN LOST

"Equipped with a good supply of tackle and going on a 10 days' fishing trip in the brooks, streams and lakes of the Dead River Region, I left Boston on the 9th of June for the West Carry pond", writes Fred E. Nickels of Boston, where I arrived on the following day and where I fished with Mr. Herman Harlow as my guide until the morning of the 15th of June.

The fishing at the West Carry pond was poor on account of the prevailing high winds, so I decided to try my luck in the brooks and smaller ponds, en route to the Pierce pond where salmon fishing was said to be exceedingly good.

Mr. Harlow, who did not wish to leave his wife in camp alone, accompanied me as far as the gates and put me on the trail to the Black Brook Camps where I arrived at dinner time on June 15th.

At these camps I talked to the well-known guide, Mr. Sam Nutting, who was assisting in building a cabin there, and I thought I had made it clear that I wanted his services on Sunday to conduct me to the Pierce pond camps. However, when I returned to the Black Brook Camps on Saturday, after fishing all day in Round pond I found that Mr. Nutting had left for his home to do work in his garden.

Being determined to reach the Pierce Pond Camps as soon as possible to enjoy the pleasures of hooking the gamy land locked salmon, I asked the owner of the Black Brook Camps, Mr. John Wilson, to guide me to my destination and assist me in some fly fishing en route in the Round Pond and Fish pond.

Mr. Wilson and wife expressed their willingness to go with me as far as Fish pond and informed me that the rest of the way some 5 miles over the mountain could be traversed without difficulty by following a well trodden trail.

At 2.30 on Sunday June 17th after being put on the trail at Fish pond and told by Mr. Wilson, who, by the way comes from Ohio and has only acquired the Black Brook Camps property a few months ago, hence, not being well posted in the locality, that if I should lose the trail to strike out in a northeasterly direction through the woods, which would bring me out on Pierce pond. I had not traveled very far when the several trails became very confusing and I remained on the one which I thought to be the right one until very soon I was led into an awful jungle and steep incline, and in consulting my compass I concluded to travel in the northeasterly direction until I reached a small pond which I afterward learned to be called the Horse Shoe pond.

My watch told me, that, had I taken the right course, enough time had elapsed to bring me to my destination,

Do You Want to Know What You Swallow?

There is a growing sentiment in this country in favor of MEDICINES OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. It is but natural that one should have some interest in the composition of that which he or she is expected to swallow, whether it be food, drink or medicine.

Recognizing this growing disposition on the part of the public, and satisfied that the fullest publicity can only add to the well-earned reputation of his medicines, Dr. E. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has "taken time by the forelock," as it were, and is publishing broadcast a list of all the ingredients entering into his leading medicines, the "Golden Medical Discovery" the popular liver invigorator, stomach tonic, blood purifier and heart regulator; also of his "Favorite Prescription" for weak, over-worked, broken-down, nervous and invalid women.

This bold and out-spoken movement on the part of Dr. Pierce, has, by showing exactly what his well-known medicines are composed of, completely disarmed all harping critics who have heretofore unjustly attacked them. A little pamphlet has been compiled, from the standard medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, showing the strongest endorsements by leading medical writers of the several ingredients which enter into Dr. Pierce's medicines. A copy of this little book is mailed free to any one desiring to learn more concerning the valuable, native, medicinal plants which enter into the composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are tiny, sugar-coated anti-bilious granules. They regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels. Do not breed the "pill habit," but cure constipation. One or two each day for a laxative and regulator, three or four for an active cathartic. Once tried always in favor.

but seeing nothing but high hills and mountains before me I became somewhat bewildered for a moment and took a different course following an old logging road for half an hour which brought me out to an old logging camp near a small pond which is said to be called "Duck pond."

As a rainy night was fast approaching I felt thankful to be near an old logging camp to find shelter during the night.

"Here I enjoyed a bright camp fire a hot can of water and one doughnut which was left over from luncheon together with two cookies, which constituted my breakfast of the next day.

The dawn of Monday morning brought with it every hope of soon reaching the Pierce pond at some point, if the northeasterly direction was being travelled strictly according to compass, as advised by Mr. Wilson.

"At 11 o'clock a. m. I saw in a logging road before me a very large pond which gave me hopes to think that I had reached Pierce pond at some unknown point. Relieving myself of my heavy pack and fishing rods I followed the shores of the lake for a mile or so to ascertain whether or not I had come out to Pierce pond, but finding nothing to indicate its identity by means of field glasses and obtaining no answer to my calls through a birch bark megaphone, I became convinced that I was at the wrong waters where no camps were located and not being able to see the Pierce pond mountains from this point of view to the south, I discovered a mountain to the north west at the foot of which I imagined to find the Pierce pond, so I tramped back through the thickets to my pack and struck for the mountain which as I afterwards learned are called the "Governor" mountains. Arriving at the foot of them, I found my mistake, as no lake could be seen here, so I concluded to climb a tall spruce tree at this high point in order to obtain my bearings and as I reached the top I discovered a sheet of water beyond the pond at which I came out in the morning. I then consulted the compass as to the course to reach this point, but while I descended to the ground I had forgotten the course and was therefore obliged to climb another tree to ascertain that I had to travel southeast from this point in order to reach the sheet of water seen through the field glasses. Shouldering my pack I started for this point, but stopped tramping for the day when I reached an old logging camp, known as Jack Lynch's camp where I remained over night leaving the heaviest luggage behind and taking with me a postal card found in this camp addressed to Mr. Willie Powell bearing the postmark of 1904, Caratunk, Me., as identification of the camp where my personal effects were left behind, in case that I ever came out of the woods alive so that I might send for them.

"It was at this camp that I began to become a little worried over my situation, feeling very hungry and exhausted and it seemed to me as though some 100 miles of wilderness were between me and the first settlement.

"However at sunrise of June 19th I proceeded back with renewed courage to the lake at which I came out the preceding day carrying only half of the indispensable luggage.

"When about a mile and a half from the Lynch's old logging camps I had occasion to use my field glasses, but alas! they were not in my possession. Recognizing the fact that the glasses would play an important figure in finding my way out of the woods, I returned to where I had left half of my effects and discovered that the field glasses were no more in my possession.

"At 10 o'clock a. m. I came out at the northwest end of the large pond which is about 3 1-2 miles long and realizing that with its many coves and the slow traveling through the jungle and thickets surrounding them I could not possibly get around it that day to the extreme other end, I decided to build a float by means of a small axe and nails which I carried. Some large timber was laying in readiness partly in the water, but in trying to cut off the limbs, the axe flew off the handle into the water.

"I felt that I would rather have lost a finger than my axe at this precarious moment so I took off my clothes and went after it, but after grabbing for the same in the soft mud for a long time, I failed to locate it and therefore was obliged to give up the idea of building a float. The thought of having to suffer the discomfort of spending some nights without shelter and campfire owing to the loss of the axe was a hard blow in addition to the hunger and exhaustion, which made itself felt by that time.

"Quickly dressed, I took a straight course through the jungle and bogs on the north side of the lake which later was described to me as the 'Upper pond'. After a three hours' hard tramp I reached an old logging camp known as Anthony Comber's camps located at the lake, and finding there on old axe and some cut timber, I decided to build a float with the aid of which I intended to locate the outlet of the pond. Having left my nails at the spot where I had lost my axe I was obliged to pull the nails required for building the raft, from the logs of the cabins by means of a wire and lever. My work was completed at 4.30 o'clock that day and when I began to push off for the yonder shore I found that the elements were against me, in as much as a brisk south wind was beginning to sweep over the lake at this time, making my progress against the wind impossible, and at each attempt being driven back into the cove of the lake where I had started.

"Seeing that it was useless to make any headway against the wind, I held fast with pole as far from shore as possible and rigged up for fly fishing, thinking that I might land a trout for supper.

"I whipped against the wind for fully half an hour without getting a rise, during which time the mosquitoes and black gnats chewed as much out of my face, neck and hands, as I could possibly have got out of a trout—had I succeeded in securing one.

"It was now after 6 o'clock and the only thing left for me to do was to 'put back into the harbor' for the night.

"The night from Tuesday to Wednesday was a night of horrors; the mosquitoes were so thick that the smoke of rags only caused a temporary panic amongst them; owing to their great number, they seemed to be even more anxious to attack. The hedgehogs kept up knowing all night on an old molasses barrel; a bear seemingly in distress kept up howling at intervals all night interspersed by the occasional snorting of deer near the logging camps awakened me, whenever I had just fallen off to sleep. This night I will never forget as long as I live, it seemed to me as if the sun would never rise again. Several times I rose to chase away the porcupines and to build a new smoke in order to subdue the fierce attacks from mosquitoes.

"While watching the dim flames of the smoke-fire during this memorable night, my hunger, complemented with a vivid realization of being a doomed man, who would have to perish in the wilderness by starvation and exhaustion, unless by some chance I would succeed in extricating myself from my dilemma brought to my mind the seriousness of my condition, which during the first two nights in the woods were merely regarded by me as an adventure of which I could boast in telling my friends about, I now felt, that without firearms and bait for plug fishing there was no way in obtaining food to give strength and courage for continuing my strenuous journey much longer and in this event all hopes for getting out alive would be completely checked. I began to realize the danger I was subjected to in tramping through the almost impenetrable thickets that of injuring or breaking my legs, in which case I would have to lay helpless, awaiting the slow death of starvation.

"While thinking over my fate I perceived through the open the first sign of the approaching dawn, upon which I quickly gathered up my belongings and put them on the raft and paddled for the lower end of the pond steering for a point, which I thought might bring me to a stream, leading to a very large pond, which according to the Morris sportsman's ways would bring me into Pierce pond.

"When I came close to this point, it looked to me, as if the apparent outlet as seen from the far distance was only a narrow cove and upon perceiving an old flat boat pulled up on the shore to my left, I landed there, thinking that this boat was being used by sportsmen coming from some camps and that a trail could here be found which would bring me out at some point where sporting camps were located. After some missionary tramping I came to another lake with numerous islands giving indications of being too small a sheet of water to represent Pierce pond, so I turned into an old logging road where I found a shingle nailed on a tree saying: 'This road to C. A. Spaulding's Camps three-fourths of a mile to the left of the pond.' This looked to me too good to be true!

SALMON JUMPS IN.

YOUNG LADY FROM NEW JERSEY DISTINGUISHES HERSELF ON BIG LAKE.

Deer are seen by City Folks as They Drive From the Portland and Rumford Falls Depot to Bald Mountain Camps.

[Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.]

BALD MOUNTAIN CAMPS, July 24, 1906.

Here at the foot of the mountain close to the lake shore, in the cozy, comfortable camps some forty guests are greatly enjoying life.

The little folks sit for hours on the wharf fishing and are as well pleased with the chubs they catch as the older ones are with the salmon. j

"Talk about fishing! why never in my life did I have such sport", remarked Mr. William Adams of Passaic, N. J., who with his wife and daughters, Miss Gertrude and Miss Marie L. Adams are for a month in Camp Sturtevant. The whole family can talk fishing to their friends, for each have made a catch to be proud of. Mr. Adams and Miss Gertrude went out one morning, and the fair angler hooked a big fish that broke the line. Some three hours later Mr. A. had a strike and fight with a gamy landlocked for nearly an hour, which when reeled almost in, made one high leap and landed in the boat, and from his mouth was hanging several feet of line that proved to be what Miss Adams had lost. The salmon was killed and when weighed after their return to camp tipped the scales at just 7 pounds, and was a beauty that is being mounted by Hinds, Miss Gertrude later without anyone's assistance, hooked, handled with much skill and brought to net a 6 1-4-pound salmon. Miss Marie has caught a good number that almost reached the 3-pound notch and Mrs. Adams had the "luck" to catch a 5 1-4-pound salmon that gave her sport for forty minutes. Saturday Mrs. Adams hooked a salmon that came out of the water a number of times, and those who saw it are willing to declare "it weighed 15 pounds if an ounce, for it looked it and acted it, and took part of the tackle as a little souvenir". The Adams family are high line and only fish now and then just for a change.

Mr. and Mrs. Edson D. Scofield of New York City have Camp Stewart for July and are greatly enjoying life. Mrs. Scofield has to her credit a good pair of salmon one 5 1-4 and a 4-pound. Mr. Scofield took a 3 1-2-pound trout that Hinds is mounting, also a 3 3-4-pound salmon and one 4-pound.

Prof. C. Howard Parmly of New York City College accompanied by his wife, child and maid have chosen this place for the season. The Professor has to his honor a 4 1-2-pound salmon and several smaller ones that never count.

Mr. Scofield and Prof. Parmly this week are taking a tramp to Grant's Camps, Kennebago.

All are glad to see Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Fisher of North Attleboro, Mass., who arrived this week for their annual trip.

Mr. Chas. Wilson and sister, Miss Jane Stewart Wilson of Haverford, Penn., who have come for their first summer to Maine, express themselves as greatly pleased with the Rangeleys. Mr. Wilson is a good fisherman and has recorded a 4-pound salmon and Miss Wilson one 3 1-2-pound salmon.

J. D. Lawrance, of Canton, Ohio, manager of "the McKinley House" while here last week landed a 5 1-4-pound salmon.

Richard M. Newlin and family of Haverford, Penn., are also among the new comers who will make a long sojourn.

A. F. MEISELBACH & BRO., 39 Prospect Street, Newark, N. J.

York City are passing happy days here and plan to return home via Middle Dam across Umbagog Lake and home through Dixville Notch and the White Mountains.

Often as the team comes from the Portland & Rumford Falls depot at night deer are seen by the roadside, much to the delight of the city folks who have never before seen a deer in their woodland home.

Mrs. A. L. Salt and son of Summit, N. J., are here for their fifth season, and have the same guide, Ernest Bennett. They have just returned from a week's trip up Magalloway river where they had great sport. Mrs. Salt now plans to build a camp on Umbagog lake next year.

The Helen party of New York arrived last night and are settled in Sunset camp for the season.

Two New York ladies, Miss Hubbell and Miss Osborne, have located in Birch Bower to remain until autumn days.

Saturday the steamer, Wm. P. Frye, was chartered and a party of fifteen took a sail up the Cupsuptic.

It seems like one big happy family here at Amos Ellis's camps and "We hope to welcome you often" was the good-by the MAINE WOODS reporter received.

Annual Meeting of "The Big Four."

"The Big Four" was originally organized as a hunting club with headquarters at Moxie camp, but of late years so many members, their wives and daughters, expressed a desire to fish as well as hunt, that at the annual meeting held in New York City June 5th to 8th, a vote was taken, unanimously carried, that there should be an auxiliary fishing club, composed of members of "The Big Four" their wives, daughters, etc. Present at this meeting were the following:

Senator A. B. Haskell, President, Bangor, Me.; Commodore J. Sulzbach, College Point, L. I.; Quartermaster Judge Julius J. Lambert, Manhattan; Hon. Vice President Mrs. Smith, Magnolia Cottage, Springfield, Mass. Members present were Miss F. Haskell, Miss Rubie Smith, Miss Sarah Haskell, Miss Gertie and Miss Angelica Sulzbach, Mrs. Sulzbach and Mrs. Lambert.

After such business as came before them was transacted, the officers, members and invited friends started on an automobile tour landing at Coney Island, where a banquet was held, at which the President made the banner speech of the day, eliciting unbounded and well merited applause.

At this meeting the Commodore, in appreciation of his work for the Club was handed a present which was highly appreciated, if the Commodore can be relied upon for veracity.

The outing wound up by the different parties going to their respective homes and residences, where they landed about 3 a. m.

CHASE POND CAMPS.

A CATCH OF 18 3-4 POUNDS OF FISH IN ONE HOUR.

Moose, Deer and Fish Talked About by Our Correspondent. Bears Also Put In An Appearance.

(Special Correspondence to MAINE WOODS).

MOSCOW, ME., July 41, 1906.

"Is fishing good? Well I should say so!" answered one of the late arrivals at camp last night. "In less than one hour I caught eight trout and one salmon that weighed 18 3-4 pounds and this is no fish story either; and if you don't believe it just come down here to the ice house with me and I will show you the real goods, and they are going to be my guests tomorrow on my return home to Boston."

Everybody reports good luck at this place this season, just the same as they have for years past.

C. S. Fuller and William Oxnard of Lewiston counted 27 deer in one day in the water around the shore of the pond. It looks as if there would be something doing around here this fall.

There have been nine bears seen near these camps so far this season. One of the guides going a distance of three miles from the camp to the ranch saw seven deer and two moose one morning last week.

There have been eight new boats and one canoe added to the list this season, besides a number of improvements around the camp which makes it a very nice place to spend a vacation either in the fishing or hunting season.

Mr. Carter has just returned to camp after a morning's fishing with one 4 and one 3 1-4-pound trout and one 4 1-2-pound salmon. Not too bad is it?

HAINES LANDING, MAINE, July 25, 1906.

We will, of course not say that the fishing at the present time is the best ever, or that all of the guests at the Mooselookmeguntic are getting their limit of big spotted trout and landlocked salmon. That would be an exaggeration, for the trolling season has passed as every angler knows and nobody expects to make the great catches that are made in June and September. But the fishing is o. k. for the time of year as the following record will show.

Henry Berliner, 5 1-2 and 3-pound salmon; Miss Sanders, 4-pound salmon; Washington, D. C.; Leo Schuarts, 3-pound salmon; C. A. Willets, 5 1-2 and 6-pound salmon; Chester Willets, 4 1-4 and 3-pound trout, New York; Mrs. A. L. Sanford, Cincinnati; 7-pound salmon.

Arrivals at the Mooselookmeguntic House are:

Birches Guests Find the Fishing Pretty Good For So Late In the Season.

[Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.]

THE BIRCHES, July 24, 1906.

The camps are now all taken and as soon as one party goes another is waiting to come.

Saturday evening Dr. S. P. Hopkins of New York City joined his family for the remainder of the season.

Two of Maine's best known ministers Rev. John Garroll Perkins and wife of Portland and Rev. Herbert A. Jump of Brunswick who for a week have been taking a trip through the Rangeleys made a short stay here occupying Camp Clover.

Camp Springfield is taken for two weeks by the following well known parties of Lawrence, Mass., Mrs. C. R. Stanley, S. C. and H. R. Stanley, Mrs. Charles E. Willis and son Charles E. Jr. and friend Miss A. F. Baretholmer of New York City who are here for their first season and much pleased with life at "Maine's Newport."

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Russell of New York are here for a two weeks' stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Richards, Mrs. Inman and J. B. Austin of Boston were here for a short stay this week.

Mrs. Theodore Frothingham of Philadelphia and sons Huntington W. and William Bainbridge Frothingham, were welcomed this week by old friends, and will as usual be for some weeks at home in Camps Idlewile and Forest Island.

Three young gentlemen from Pawtucket, R. I., John F. and C. A. O'Connor and T. J. Sillan spent some time here, while making a tour of this section.

"The fishing has been better here the past week than at any time this season," remarked H. C. Kennedy of New York.

Mrs. A. L. Sanford of Cincinnati, Ohio, keeps up her reputation and is high line with a 7 1-4-pound salmon, her "biggest yet," also one of 6 pounds, and these will be mounted by Hinds and taken west to tell their own fish story.

Robert Gardiner of Portland landed two good ones, 6 and 4 1-2 pounds.

Mrs. Hugh G. Brown who has spent many summers here landed her first big fish a 6-pound salmon.

L. Johnson of Philadelphia, one 5 1-4 pounds. Capt. J. W. Davidson of New York with a four ounce fly rod had great sport with a 5 1-2-pound salmon.

Keating Johnson, Jr. of Philadelphia caught a 4 1-4-pound trout. C. L. Harrison of Philadelphia with Herbert Moore guide, caught two good salmon 4 1-2 pounds and 6 pounds, 1 ounce, and Dr. Hoyt of New York a 5 3-4-pound salmon.

There is now fine music by moonlight as Mr. Hugh G. Brown with a Victor talking machine, the largest size, gives concerts out on the lake from his boat.

REACH THE SPOT.

To cure an aching back,
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings,
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Charles Bierbach, stone contractor, living at 2625 Chestnut St., Erie, Pa., says: "For two years I had kidney trouble, and there was such a severe pain through my loins and limbs that I could not stoop or straighten up without great pain, had difficulty in getting about and was unable to rest at night, arising in the morning tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were irregular and deposited a heavy sediment. Doctors treated me for rheumatism, but failed to help me. I lost all confidence in medicine, but Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me so quickly and so thoroughly that I gladly made a statement to that effect for publication. This was in 1898, and during the six years which have elapsed I have never known Doan's Kidney Pills to fail."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Bierbach will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

[Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.]

MOUNTAIN VIEW,

July 24, 1906.

A crowded house and every one content.

Fishing seems to have been forgotten the last week, while life out of doors invites many to the fields and woods.

"Such beautiful wild flowers and I had no idea there was such a variety," said a New York lady who returned this morning with her arms full of flowers.

Dr. J. Hamilton Small of Philadelphia today caught a trout that lacked only an ounce of the three pound notch. The Dr. returns to Philadelphia to take up his good work among the sick next week leaving Mrs Small and daughter here until September. The Dr. will always find friends when he comes to Mountain View.

Mr. George H. Ellis of Boston is the guest at camp Rouge-et-noir.

Mr. Fred R. Comee who was here over Sunday returned to Bar Harbor via night train on the Phillips and Rangeley Railroad Monday.

Monday evening Mrs. W. Roger Fromfield gave a very delightful progressive euchre party in the big parlor. Handsome prizes were won by Mrs. W. T. Harris, Mrs. Conrad Reno, Mr. G. A. Beedy and Mr. Reno.

Prof. Russell H. Chittenden of Yale, joined his family here this week, for an extended stay.

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Jacobs, Miss E. Dinkel and Miss C. Dieferback of Jersey City N. J. are here for their first visit and are greatly delighted with the place.

The weather the past few days has been most inviting for driving and Landlord Bowley's fine teams have been in great demand, parties taking drives in all directions.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Harris and son W. Bernard and daughter Miss Amy B. Harris of Marion, Penn. are here for their first season.

Fish and Game Hearings.

The commissioners of Inland Fisheries and Game gave a hearing at Thayer's camp, Tunk Pond, in Washington county last Saturday on the petition of Will R. Havey of North Sullivan and 61 others and L. B. Deary and seven others asking for the right to erect a screen at the outlet of Tunk Pond.

The petitioners represented that the large salmon run out of Tunk Pond down to Spring River to the sea, in spite of a screen now on Spring River, which they claim is faulty and inefficient. They claimed that the old screen is so far down in the woods that there is nobody to care for it, while if the screen was at the outlet of Tunk Pond somebody would see it every day summer and winter and before that would run down stream in the spring it would be repaired in case of injury. After a thorough hearing the commissioners decided to grant the request of the petitioners.

The commissioners give a hearing at Bethel at 11 o'clock on Friday of this week.

Salmon Season Satisfactory.

The salmon fishing season is over, and no more salmon can be taken from the Bangor pool during 1906. During the past year, several of the most prominent fishermen have kept a partial list of the fish caught, but no accurate list can be obtained this year. In 1905, 109 fish were caught, and the number is considered by the leading fishermen to be somewhat larger this year.

During the first of the season but very few fish were caught. The first salmon to be landed was an 8 pound fish caught April 8th by Calvin Bachelder of Bangor, and was sold for $1.50 per pound, said to be the highest price ever paid for a salmon here. Many large fish have been taken this season, which altogether has been very satisfactory. Henry Peavy, the veteran fisherman, is high line this year, having caught 17 fish, one of them being the largest of the season, as near as can be learned.

Several of the fishermen, on being interviewed during the past few days, stated that it was their unanimous opinion that the water at the first of the season was of just the right pitch to allow salmon to go above the dam, an had not the above conditions existed many more fish would have been caught here. Hundreds of fish were taken at the weirs down river.

When asked about the much-talked-of pulp mill problem, most of the fishermen expressed the opinions that the mills above Bangor had but little effect on the fishing. Others said that it was due mostly to the fact that a large quantity of acid found its way into the Penobscot that no more fish were caught. The past season must be rated as successful, however, and without any exception the prominent fishermen of Bangor and vicinity claim that 1906 was as good a year for salmon at the Bangor pool as 1905, if not better.

PERCH TWO AND A HALF EACH.

CANOEISTS PADDLE AROUND A COW MOOSE BY MOONLIGHT.

Moose was a Good Swimmer and Men Put Hands on Her.

[Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.]

MOLUNKUS, ME., July 25, 1906

This is a beautiful lake lying entirely surrounded by forest, a splendid place for one to rest and recuperate. I had the pleasure of spending a few months here in the summer and fall of 1905. The lake is well stocked with white perch which is a splendid fish and the guests are having royal sport with them. They are very large, some of them weighing 2 1-2 pounds each. One string was caught of one hundred that weighed 125 pounds. While not so gamy perhaps as the brook trout or bass, they are a very good food fish.

Deer are seen here nearly every day and moose quite often from the camps which are run by L. P. Swett.

Salmon have been put in all the streams running into the lake, each year for three years so we hope to have good sport with them a little later with the fly.

There have been some very good strings of trout taken from the river, one and one-half miles from here.

The boys had some fun with a cow moose while in the lake a few nights ago with a canoe which they run all around her and even up to her so they could place their hand on her as she was swimming. It appears that moose are on the increase around here and I think it is the general belief all over the state that if the law is properly enforced they must increase.

BILLY SOULE, FLY EISHER.

LADIES GO OUT WITH WILLIAM AT 3 A. M.

Willie Casts the Fly Away Out and the Square Tail Trout Recognize His Cast and Come Right to Him.

[Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.]

PLEASANT ISLAND, July 24, 1906.

As one looks from this island as far as the eye can reach is one vast unbroken forest extending over the hills and mountains that surround the lake.

The busy, hurrying world with all its joy and sorrow seem far away, and a peace and quiet comes, while as one remarked, "You just forget business, forget even to worry, in fact you forget your friends and your foes if you have them." The days go far too quickly by bringing pleasure to those who love Nature in all its wild beauty.

"Billy" Soule is just now trying to plan some way to take a few more of his old friends who have written to come in August.

It is much like a Chinese puzzle, can't be worked out, every camp on Birch Island was engaged long ago, and parties have had extra beds put up in their camps to allow their friends to come with them.

Lakeside camp is taken, until the middle of September by old comers, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Washburn and daughter Miss Helen of Boston, who came for their twelfth summer as they long ago decided this was for them the most attractive of all Maine's summer resorts. May they continue to come for many summer days to Pleasant Island.

The Dutton Camp is where until September Dr. C. O. Ring, one of Philadelphia's best known eye and ear specialists, who is connected with the Episcopal hospital will be "at home." The Doctor is accompanied by Mrs. Ring and her mother and sister. Dr. Ring has spent many seasons in the Adirondack mountains, but this is his first visit to the Maine woods and he expresses himself as more than pleased with the Rangeleys.

Another gentleman who is here for the first time, is a photographer from Harper's Weekly, Mr. J. B. Carrington of New York City. He has some beautiful spots to photograph and is greatly pleased with the country as well as with Pleasant Island.

Quite a party were at Pleasant Island recently, doing their fishing on the piazza by declaring they had not seen a trout or had one for breakfast, etc.

"Billy" has not yet quite forgotten the art of sending the fly, fifty, eighty or a hundred feet away over the water, and he still believes that the trout are up early in the morning. One evening he asked two ladies if they would like to go fishing with him "early in the morning" and they were more than happy to accept the invitation. It was just five minutes past 3 the next a. m., when Billy took the paddle and they quietly left the shore, and when the cook entered the kitchen to prepare breakfast there were eight as handsome trout as one often sees, weighing from one to two and a half pounds, and the order "broil for breakfast for the guests," and the young ladies entertained their friends with the account of how Billy handled the paddle and cast the fly, teaching them the art, and of the way the deer take breakfast on the lake shore.

T. Miles, son of John Miles of New York, one of the biggest millinery proprietors in the country, accompanied by his friend, James Hill, are here for a six weeks' stay and having great sport. Miles is a good fly fisherman as a pair of 3-pound trout taken one day proves.

Frank Locklin of Elizabeth, N. J., has taken on Montreal fly 18 trout that weighed 1-pound each, and if one thinks there is no fly fishing for the Pleasant Island anglers, they are mistaken.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Meyer of New Brunswick, N. J., who are here for their sixth season have the North End camp and will remain until autumn days.

The Bungalow is now taken by two young ladies, Miss Wolf and friend from Connecticut who are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hobbs.

E. S. Butler of New York will soon be joined by Dr. and Mrs. Meeker who will make an extended stay.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Forbes of Boston who have not been here for several years have returned for a few week's outing.

Mrs. Soule is now entertaining her sister, Miss M. A. Stickels and Miss Daisy Hankinson of Yarmouth, N. S., and Miss P. A. McCollister of Lewiston.

J. Harry Treat of Lawrence, Mass., who is at Villa, St. Prie where as usual he is entertaining guests from all over the region.

Robert Walton is captain of the Capsuptic and most accommodating.

Each trip the steamer calls at "The Ledges" where the flag is now flying as Judge Ranson and son of New York City are there for several weeks.

There are more trout than salmon brought in by the guests here, and almost every one who goes up the stream comes back telling about the deer feeding on the shore for they are very tame and often seem to stop to be admired.

Moose Head at Capitol.

A matter which is at present under consideration at the Capitol is that of finding a place for one of the large moose heads which were received a few days ago and are now located in the rotunda, in the crates in which they were shipped by the taxidermist. One of them is the head of a moose which was killed by Mr. Carleton last year, and the other one was seized with the rest of the carcass because the moose was illegally killed. The second head belongs to the State of Maine and was mounted because of the fact that it is an unusually fine specimen, but owing to the large number of specimens already in the fish and game department it would be difficult to find a place for the head in question. It was therefore suggested to the Governor and Council by the commissioners that the head should be placed in the council chamber or such other place as they should select, and the matter was left in the hands of Councillor George D. Bisbee, chairman of the committee on public lands and buildings, and Col. Francis Keef, superintendent of public buildings.

No decision has yet been reached in the matter. The head will not be hung in the council chamber, as there is really no place suitable for it, and it would hardly be in harmony with the furnishings of the room. It has been suggested that it be hung in the House lobby, but it is more than probable that it will be given a place over the speaker's desk in the hall of representatives. The room is a very large one and high, and the head would make a handsome ornament if hung in the place that has been suggested.

Carry Pond Camps.

[Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.]

CARRY POND, July 21, 1906.

Trout fishing still remains good and a goodly number of guests are here having a fine visit and getting lots of trout.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Bradlee of Berlin, Conn., arrived in camp a few days ago and the longer they stop the better they are liked and the more friends they make.

Frank Cloyes and Fred Eaves of Waltham, Mass. made a visit of a few days in camp and all were glad to see them and sorry to have them leave.

Herman Harlow of West Carry was here on a visit Thursday.

The Fourth of July was celebrated here quite successfully by firing guns and ringing bells at sunrise and games and music and lemonade through the day and a splendid display of fireworks in the evening.

The proprietor, Mr. Lane, unfortunately lost a nice Jersey cow a few days ago. Mr. Lane did not whine but purchased another the next day.

If you wish to join a delightful company and enjoy fine trout fishing come to Carry Pond where you will be sure to find as good a meal three times a day as you ever enjoyed in the dense woods.

LIVE YANKEE.

Four at a Cast.

J. R. Fairchild of New York had a very unusual experience while fly fishing for black bass at Belgrade recently. As he was plying the art in a cove of Long lake under the guidance of Joe Green, a well known Belgrade philosopher, three bass arose simultaneously to the three flies of his cast and were all hooked while playing them.

The bass which had taken the stretcher fly was seized by a good sized pickerel which clung so tenaciously that he was taken into the boat with the bass. There were caught three bass and a pickere lat at a single cast with three flies.

[Mrs. Fairchild who has but recently taken up fly casting has now become an ardent devotee of the sport since realizing its possibilities.

TROUT AT SPENCER.

ANGLERS THAT ARE ANGLING AT TOMMY GERARD'S CAMPS.

Cow Moose Seen Swimming. A Hundred and Thirty-five the Trout Record of Late and a Bear in Evidence.

[Special correspondence to MAINE WOODS.]
SPENCER LAKE CAMPS,
July 16, 1906.

Business is booming and the clang of the hammer and the ring of the ax is constantly heard. And why? Because large and new handsome cabins are being built to meet the demands of the greatly increasing patronage at these popular camps, for Mr. Gerard is up to the times and is never found wanting in giving comfort and convenience to his guests.

Last week two separate parties arrived here from Spring lake for a side trip and seemed to enjoy themselves thoroughly. The Sterns brothers with Arthur Wright for guide, stated, this is the prettiest place they ever visited and after returning from a day's fishing at Enchanted pond, they pronounced it the best fishing they ever had, for they caught with the fly 118 fine trout. In fact everybody who goes to this pond is delighted and satisfied with the sport it affords them. The fishing has been particularly good for so late in the season. Last week Charles Epting and son fished Lige Hall pond and caught 135 fine trout on the fly in 3-1-2 hour's fishing, and so it goes.

Everybody seems to have great success wherever they fish. Last Friday the Messrs. Epting went to fish the 12 springs and on returning in the canoe to Rocky Point they saw a big cow moose swimming across the pond. The moose did not see them until within a few yards of the shore when turning saw the canoe close by; instead of going ashore she turned back and swam to the shore from whence she came, the canoe following her and after swimming fully a mile she took to the woods making terrific crashes as she hurried out of sight. The same afternoon I accompanied Mr. Gerard in a canoe up Spencer stream to Clark Dam; as we rounded a turn above the crossing we came in full view of a bear, not over 40 yards away. Old Bruin was standing broad side on an elevation in the open, and for nearly a minute stood looking at us and then silently but swiftly disappeared out of sight. While we were both delighted to have a chance to see such a rare sight in the woods, we regretted we did not have a rifle along. We saw numbers of deer on the stream and when reaching a certain point going down the stream, Gerard, who was in a jocular mood, said: "see that point there? well I have seen millions of deer there in my time and I could prove it too, if old Bill Jones was alive." I laughed and told him we ought to have Andrew Douglas, Ed. Grant and himself relating the sights of deer they had witnessed and a few side stories and leave it to the guests who could tell the greatest yarn. I would bet on Tomy every time, for when he came in with his little story, at the end the other two would think they had just got awake.

Mr. Sam Robinson and the two little boys with him, Wilford Haggen and John Boldick who had a pleasant day's outing with their friend, John Pepper have returned from Enchanted pond and report their catch as being fifty nice trout. The trip was planned for the little ones and they thoroughly enjoyed it. Mr. Fields, manager of this township (Hobbs) and his two men are here and are going to cover the whole township, going over the lines, making calculations etc. He is a charming gentleman, conservative, yet interesting and entertaining and after an hour's chat with him one becomes better acquainted with woodcraft and has a more thorough knowledge of this great country. I will close now by saying my prophesy has come true that Mr. John T. Little, the great poet who recently went out of camp after a pleasant sojourn of over three weeks has written a beautiful poem entitled, "Dreams", which will be found in the columns of this issue.

The arrivals of the past week are as follows.

BOSTON MAN LOST.

"After going over this distance twice and returning to make sure that I had not made a mistake as to the pointing of the hand on the sign, I chanced into the thickest portion of the wilderness I had ever been in, and, disabusing my mind from ever finding the Spaulding or any other camps in that location I resolved after consulting my maps and compass that if I kept up a straight course north-east, I would, if my strength held out either come out at the Dead river or Kennebec river.

"With renewed courage I traveled carefully but with utmost speed through the jungle until I came into a straight sled road running in a northerly direction. I kept up this course with a feeling that I was on a trail which in its day had been well broken and which would surely bring me out somewhere. After covering some seven miles, on this gradual sloping sled road, I was brought out to the Dead River at a point called Sluice Landing.

"Here I followed the river down on a well traveled trail about 11 miles when I sighted a settlement across the river where at the time some young men were bathing. I hailed for them to set me across, which was quickly accomplished and I was accosted to the "Forkes Hotel" which I reached about 3.30 on Wednesday, June 20th.

"After my long fast, I wished to have certain eatables prepared for me at once but I had to content myself (and indeed I was well pleased) with fat cold pork, fried potatoes, bread, squash pie and coffee at $2 per. After eating I immediately called for a bed and when I reached the room and looked into the glass I scarcely knew myself. My face was so chewed up and swollen from the poisonous flies and mosquitoes that it was beyond recognition. My wearing apparel was much in similar condition; it was necessary to buy a shirt at once as the one worn by me through the woods was literally torn from my back and the shoes were barely hanging on my feet.

"Early on the morning of June 21st, I engaged Henry Forsythe of The Forks as my guide with whom I went via the Otter ponds through Pierce pond, thence through the thoroughfare, the entire length of the upper pond in a boat and through the woods toward the Governor mountains where we located the Jack Lynch camps, to get my pack left behind after the second night of my wanderings. Then we went the distance of about ten miles in our boat to the Pierce Pond Camps where we arrived at 8 p. m. on the 21st of June, this being my destination which I intended to reach on the 17th of June.

"During the next two days I fished the Pierce and Dixie ponds and was rewarded for the trouble I experienced in reaching these famous sporting grounds, catching an 8-pound salmon and 17 trout, the heaviest of which weighed 4 pounds.

"However no amount of fish and game will ever compensate any sportsman for the suffering of mind and body which I have undergone on this fishing trip and any sportsman reading my story who has ever experienced the same will be able to judge the gravity of the predicament in which I was placed.

"The moral of such an adventure should prescribe that sportsmen visiting the Maine woods should not take chances in going from one to another camp without a competent guide, or if such are not procurable to take at least a few days provisions and a rifle along with them.

"It's easy to get lost in the strange woods even with a compass, especially when a wrong course is pointed out by someone who does not know himself."

Dreams.

O, I have dreamed a good many dreams,
And some had a rosy hue.
But the sweetest dreams I ever dreamed,
Darling were all of you.

Some dreams I've dreamed of the closing mine,
When the crumbling roof gave way,
Hiding its victims forever from
The light of the sun-warmed day.

I have seen the deadly damp explode,
And have felt its fiery breath,
Have smelled the odor of burning flesh,
Prepared for the banquet of death.

And some of those writhing blackened forms.
Had been friends of my boyhood time.
Brave, daring fellows, with hearts of gold,
Cut down in their manhood's prime.

Again I have dreamed when the "Storm King's" might,
Lashed the waters into foam.
And have known the fears of the storm tossed one,
When far from friends and home.

But some of my dreams were pleasant ones,
That dwell in my memory yet,
In which I glided o'er crystal pools,
That I never can forget.

And anon with friends in the forest glades;
I drank from cooling springs,
And felt again the health and strength
That life in the wild wood brings.

Yes, I have dreamed me many dreams,
And some of those dreams were true,
But the sweetest dreams I have ever had,
Darling, have been of you.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

RARE JUSTICE

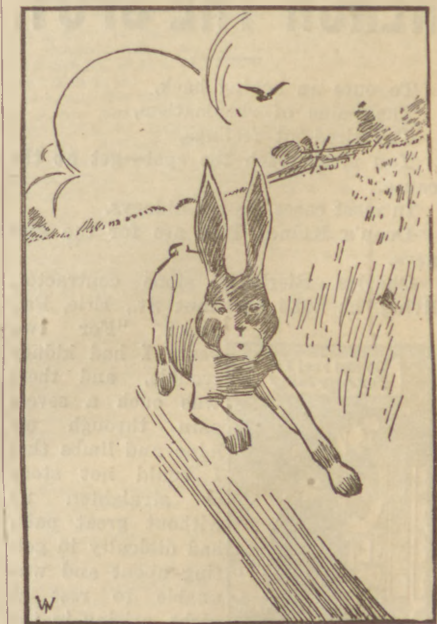

Bunny Rabbit went one day last week to rob Mr. Coon's corner, and Mr. Coon caught him in the very act. "I'll march you off to jail, sir, and that's what I'll do with you!"

"Oh, don't march me off to jail! Anything but that! I know I ought to be killed. Throw me in the river, drown me, but don't march me off to jail!" pleaded Bunny Rabbit.

"All right," said old man Coon. "But if I throw you in the river you'll swim out. I know you. That's what you'll do."

"I was just coming to that," said Bunny Rabbit. "I was just going to ask you to tie my hands behind my back, so I couldn't swim a stroke. I'm afraid when I get in that cold water I might try to swim, and so I want you to tie me."

Old man Coon thought he never had seen such a repentant rabbit in all his days. There was something suspicious about it, but he tied Master Bunny Rabbit's paws hard and fast. Then Bunny Rab it stood on the bank of the river and wept, and the tears hopped down his furry little cheeks, and his paws were tied so he couldn't wipe them away. Oh, he was a piteous spectacle!

"Go up to the top of that high hill," said he, "and run down just as fast as you can and give me a good shove away out into the middle of the water, so I will drown quick."

Mr. Coon went up and ran, but Bunny Rabbit's hind feet were not tied, and when Mr. Coon got to him Bunny stepped to one side. Splash went old man Coon into the water.

"Oh, save me! Save me, Brother Bunny Rabbit!" he cried, for Mr. Coon, who could not swim, was helpless with fear.—Atlanta Constitution.
