Enthusiasm of Board of Trade Banquet Bound to be Contagious

NEW MEMBERS SECURED

The get-together banquet of the Board of Trade held at Uniform Rank hall Monday evening came up to and even exceeded expectations in point of attendance and enthusiasm nearly all of the 150 places reserved being occupied and the several speakers listened to with rapt attention. When the wants of the inner man had been appeased with beans, brownbread, coffee, etc., of a quality like "mother used to make" the gathering was called to order by President E. A. Fairfield and the first speaker of the evening, Rev. B. H. Tilton, pastor of the Baptist church, introduced to the assemblage.

Mr. Tilton expressed himself as being flattered at being given the opportunity to speak before such a gathering and said he felt proud of being a citizen of such an energetic community as Kennebunk is showing itself to be. He regarded it as a good sign to see people get together in an affair similar to the one being held and further that such gatherings and concerted action were necessary to get new business for the town. He interspersed his remarks with several humorous stories and was roundly applauded when he finished.

U. A. Caine expressed his understanding of the Board of Trade duties to be to do everything and anything that somebody else didn't want to do and in a vigorous 5-minute speech urged the necessity of more interest being taken in the Board's activities. He wants more meetings with larger attendances and stated that the Board is a good natured bunch and shows a propensity to grow fat on a diet of criticism. Criticism of a certain kind he regards as helpful but for avowed enemies of the Board he proposed a course in ethical culture to show such the error of their ways.

F. W. Bonser spoke interestingly on "What it Means to be a Merchant." The speaker stated that an opinion was prevalent that all a man has to do to become a merchant is to buy a stock of goods and offer it for sale. In practice the method of becoming a successful merchant is far different and much more complicated however. The work is hard, the public is exacting and a system of cash and merchandise accounts is absolutely necessary. Mr. Bonser considered that at no previous time has a commercial career offered more opportunities to a trained man than at present but hat efficiency is the secret of business success. He stated that the annual sales of Kennebunk merchants amounted in round numbers to a quarter of a million dollars, which he regards as too low considering the calibre of the town stores and closed with a plea to residents to lend a hand and by liberal patronage make it possible for the town's business to take its proper level.

Mr. Withington, Publicity Secretary of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, who accompanied Mr. Moore was then introduced for a 5-minute talk. He deplored the fact that he was limited to five minutes to tell of such an important subject as the advantages of the State of Maine and the possibilities to accrue to the state were those advantages as extensively advertised as are the good points of other states far less capable of development and much poorer in natural resources than Maine. To carry on a successful advertising campaign cooperation is necessary and the speaker thought that when it was made generally known that

NARROW ESCAPE

Bicycle Damaged but Boy Escapes in Collision

Kenneth, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Webb, of Summer street was slightly injured and a bicycle which he was riding demolished late Saturday afternoon in a collision near the post office with a large Cadillac touring car owned and driven by a Mr. Veighler of Roxbury, Mass.

Young Webb in company with several boy friends had come down town on their bicycles to investigate the ringing in of Box 23 at 5 o'clock and were returning when the automobile entered Main street from Park and collided with the bicycle. The machine was travelling at a reduced speed, power shut off and brakes applied but the accident could not be averted. The wheels passed over the boy's leg just above the knee but an examination by Dr. Ross to whose office the boy was taken showed that the injuries were not so extensive as were at first feared and that no bones were broken.

The boy was transferred to his home in Elliot Rogers' automobile and will be confined for two or three weeks.

The incident is regarded as purely accidental with no blame being attached to anyone and the young fellow will suffer no permanent injury.

Mrs. Helen M. Perkins wife of Hon. Chas. C. Perkins fell and fractured the bone in her left hip early Tuesday morning Sept. 21 at their residence on Fletcher Street. She was descending the stairs from the upper to the lower floor when she made a misstep and fell. It is considered a very serious accident by her attending physicians, Drs. Barker and Bourne owing to her having been in feeble health for a long time. She is resting as comfortably as could be expected at time of our going to press.

MIRACULOUSLY ESCAPE IN PECULIAR ACCIDENT

Ten passengers on an Atlantic Shore Line closed car miraculously escaped serious injury at Long Beach, Sunday afternoon when the car left the rails, plunged 200 feet along an embankment and landed almost on end in the water. The passengers were imprisoned but easily gotten out of the front door, no one but a Miss Davis of York Beach, who sustained a bruised shoulder being injured.

Not a window in the car was broken. Hundreds of spectators were drawn to the scene to watch operations of the wrecking crew in replacing the car on the rails, which occupied the greater part of the afternoon.

It is said the accident was caused by a broken rail.

WHO'S YOUR TAILOR?

W. D. Hay has been fortunate in securing his agency for the Ed. V. Price concern of "Who's Your Tailor?" fame, of Chicago. This large concern was organized in 1905 and is one of the largest and most energetic firms engaged in the tailoring business and makes a specialty of supplying tailored-to-order clothes to dealers in the smaller cities and towns of the country. Over 225,000 suits, each one cut to the individual measurements of as many customers was the output for 1912 and a steady increase in patronage has been enjoyed since that time.

Mr. Hay has held the agency but a few weeks but has already delighted several of his customers with the product of the Price company. A feature of the business is the individual attention given each customer Mr. Hay at present having in his store partly finished garments sent here to be tried on. Every attention is paid to minor details in the conduct of the business and an opportunity is offered to local residents to secure the best possible garments through Mr. Hay's agency.

CONG. HINDS TO WITHDRAW

Health will not Permit Further Service for this District in Washington

SERVED THREE TERMS

In an open letter to the electors of the First Congressional District dated last Thursday, Asher C. Hinds announces his purpose not to enter the primaries for renomination as his health will not permit him to longer perform his duties as a representative at Washington.

Mr. Hinds has served three terms in his present position and has been an active figure in the house for about thirty-five years having been clerk to the speaker for twelve years and parliamentary clerk for sixteen years. His Rules, Manual and Digest of the House of Representatives and Parliamentary Precedents of the House of Representatives, and his Precedents of the House of Representatives, published during his active career, are well known authorities in that field.

Several candidates to succeed Mr. Hinds are already in the field from both York and Cumberland Counties and it is generally regarded about the district that the chances of one is as good as that of another. At present writing Horace Mitchell of Kittery seems to be the stronger in this section of the district at least but Cumberland county has not as yet marshalled her forces.

"OAK LANE" SOLD

The largest real estate transaction ever consummated at Kennebunk Beach and one of the largest to ever take place in this section was made last Saturday when C. E. Currier, the real estate agent sold the large Gifford estate known as "Oak Lane" to S. O. Lemison, of Chicago. This large mansion was built in 1901 by A. W. Gifford of Worcester, Mass., and has been occupied as a summer residence since that time. Mr. Lemison took possession Monday and it is understood that he will make several changes and additions during the fall and winter, grounds as well as the house coming in for attention. A landscape artist will be engaged and the estate while now one of the finest at the Beach will be improved until it will compare favorably with any on the Maine coast.

Robert Elliott of Dover was in town last Thursday on business.

BOSTON AND MAINE RAILROAD

Notice Concerning Change in Milk Rates

The Boston and Maine Railroad, subject to the approval of the public Authorities, plans to revise its charges for transporting milk. Some points have rates only by passenger train service, others only by freight service, and some points by both. Where a freight rate exists, it is three-fourths of the passenger train rate. There are also variations in the rates at different points similarly situated.

The result of all this is to give much lower rates from Maine and Northern New Hampshire than from Vermont on shipments to Boston. For example, Foxcroft, Maine, 256 miles from Boston, has a leased car freight rate of $37 a day, while a similar shipment from Vergennes, Vermont, 213 miles from Boston, pays a passenger rate of $63.96 a day.

The management of the Railroad believes the freight rate should be abolished, and that the passenger rates should be rearranged to give the same rate to localities similarly situated. With that end in view it has prepared a new tariff lowering rates in some cases, raising them in some others, and doing away with the freight rates in all.

IN CONSIDERING THE NEW RATES REMEMBER

1. The new rates are lower than those charged by other railroads entering Boston, and lower than those into New York or any other large city which obtains its milk from a distance.
2. No carload rate to any point within 165 miles of Boston is increased. Those between 75 and 150 miles are reduced to make the basis uniform.
3. The largest increase at any one point on the can rate to Boston, in baggage car service, is two cents for an eight and one-half quart can; less than a quarter of a cent a quart.
4. The longest journey of any leased car to-day is 284 miles. The largest increase to Boston on the leased car rate of the large shippers is less than one-third of a cent a quart. This is for a distance of 300 miles. For shorter distances this increase is smaller.

Cream retails at from three to six times the price of milk, this price being fixed on the amount of butter fat it contains. Cream is now carried at the milk rate. If it is damaged or spilled, the railroad must pay the owner the cream price. Because of this the new rate for cream has been made one and one-half times the milk rate.

wise that estimable journal might fear that voting will take so much of a woman's time that she will be forced to neglect her home, the wife of Congressman Taylor of Colorado brings a message of cheer.

"The women of this state have found," she says, "that it does not take as long to vote as it does to match a piece of silk."A Greek peddler whose business ideas were original if not in strict conformity to police regulations on Sunday evening set up a pop corn stand in front of a Portland church and proceeded to solicit patronage of the church goers. Complaint was made to the police and the headquarters and asked for an explanation of his enterprise.A man has invented a contribuvery feebly, a nickle produces a think the fire department would be rung out often?—Lisbon Entertioned as being of Congressional calibre and a likely opponent to the successful candidate in the Republican primaries in this district but the splendid business administration he is giving the state shows him to be more desirable in the executor's chair than elsewhere during the return to state and national prosperity. Maine Democracy has found its leader and the right man tion that the greatest number may benefit the most.NOT PAINTThe worst mistake in painting is not putting-off. That costs about 10 per-cent; you keep your money a year and pay 10 percent for it.

25 percent to make 10 percent on the job, for wages do not go-down.
The worst mistake is "cheap"

the romantic marriage of Caesar election to a life term as dictator,

ASSOCIATIONAn Interesting Meeting at the Village StudioOn Saturday evening, September 18th, there was a meeting of the Ogunquit Improvement Association held in the Village Studio for the purpose of considering the by-laws etc. and to hear reports of the financial matters, and to discuss the general purposes to be carried out for the improvement of the village streets and walks.The meeting was well attended and sincere interest was evidently felt by all present. The meeting was called to order by President Hoyt. After his interesting preliminary remarks, Secretary G. F.
Smith presented the records of the previous meeting and read the by-laws and other matters relative to the organization and its purposes.And additional Director being required, Mr. Whiting was proposed and duly elected.Mr. Wilbur F. Cousens then made his report as Treasurer, showing a very favorable conditions of the finances of the Association, there being about a thousand dollars in the treasury, mainly as the result of the entertainments given in the Village Studio.Mr. Cousens' report was followed by a general discussion as to the best methods of expending these funds for the improvement of sidewalks etc. at Perkins Cove and along the Marginal Way. President Hoyt facetiously remarked that rumors regarding the laying of board walks or gold bricks along the Marginal Way were not authentic as far as he knew, as no plan had been definitely considered.
Mr. E. S. Ware asked that a committee be appointed to attend to this improved path, and this was done after expert testimony had been offered by Mr. Knight.As the matter of sidewalks was being considered, attention was also called to the dangerous condition of part of the sidewalk along the Old Portsmouth Road, where grading is imperatively needed; but no action was taken. It might be said here that the Treasurer's report also gave the amounts by which each of the local churches benefitted by the entertainments given in the Studio.After the business meeting adjoined President Hoyt favored the audience with a delightful series of lantern slides illustrating his automobile trip through Algeria.
His informal lecture was most pleasurable and added greatly to the interest of the pictures themselves.It is evident that the Village Studio has already established itself as a factor of village life, and a fine stimulus to the social and civic atmosphere of Ogunquit.CLUFF-PERRYAt the Methodist Parsonage at 9 o'clock a. m., on Wednesday Sept.
22nd, by the Rev. S. Elfred Leech, was performed the ceremony which ness men of Cape Porpoise, and their return they will at once begin young people who deserve the good future that is heartily wished for them by a host of friends.The ceremony was in the presence of a few friends and the double ring service was used.

Miss Robena Perry was the brides-

The handsome Scotch collie owned by Miss Amy Clark and often seen about town in the company of Edward Blanchard, died tonight after a short illness. Dr. G. C. Fuller, who was called, made every effort to save the dog's life and diagnoses it as a case of poisoning.

A petition to have an Atlantic Shore Railway ticket office at the store conducted at West Kennebunk was going merrily on its way with prospects of having a record number of signers but before it could be presented to the company the desired end was gained by the unsolicited installation of the agency.

Fuller Curtis, Blanche E. Potter, Rev. and Mrs. B. H. Tilton, Deacon Roberts, Mrs. Otis Proctor and Mrs. Charles Getchell attended the Baptist Convention at Well Depot yesterday making the trip in Perley Greenleaf's large touring car. Lester Holmes brother of Chandler W. Holmes, preached an able sermon at one of the meetings. Mr. Holmes is but a young man and shows considerable promise in his chosen field.

A petition is being circulated about West Kennebunk asking that a branch office of the American Express Company be located in that section of the town. Fred C. Knight is active in obtaining signers and is meeting with considerable success in obtaining the sentiment of the community at least. A petition is also being circulated there asking that the 9.40 car from this place be continued through the winter months.

The writer of the song "I Didn't Raise My Boy to be a Soldier" in the face of some of the most bitter criticism ever offered against a ragtime song expresses regret for his authorship stating that he would prefer to cut off his right hand than to be the author of a song that holds the country up to ridicule as the song in question is claimed to do. He did not foresee the consequences and his latest action proves his sincerity. Preparedness must continue to insure peace, and not white livered sentiment.

Cases of local interest decided at Alfred yesterday include the action of the Maine Motor Car Co. vs. H. H. Abbott in which Referee Franklin R. Chesley of Saco finds for plaintiff in the sum of $23.76 and expenses of $30. L. B. Lausier for plaintiff and A. A. Richardson for defendant. The case of John Tozie of Kennebunkport vs. Otis E. Sylvia of Boston, which was heard by Clerk of Courts F. D. Fenderson, the referee finds for the plaintiff in the sum of $156.64. John G. Smith for plaintiff, Hiram Willard for defendant. 185 new civil cases have been added to the docket.

It remains for California—a woman suffrage state—to honor the pioneer mother by a statue at the Panama Exposition, at the base of which is an inscription which reads:

"Over rude paths with hunger and risk, she pressed on toward the vision of a better country. To an assemblage of men busied with the perishable rewards of the day, she brought the threefold leaven of enduring society, faith, gentleness and home with nurture of children."

Pres. Ale's Advice to Students

In an address to the U. of M. student body Thursday, President Robert J. Ale pointed out the problems of university life, and urged that the great opportunities it offers should be grasped by all. He also offered the new students his personal advice in part as follows: Master by hard work the lessons in the various courses you pursue. Avoid all forms of dissipation. Cultivate and practice the graces of refined people.

Young men—See to it that your attitude toward women remains that of a brother to sister or son to mother.

Young women—See to it that you cultivate only those graces that prompt in the men of your acquaintance the highest and best forms of gallantry.

Have a good measure of wholesome and sane recreation.

Plans for a National Medical Examination Day, a Children's Health Crusade Day, and a Tuberculosis Sunday, all to be held during Tuberculosis Week, December 6th to 12th, have been announced by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Last year over 100,000 churches gave attention to the subject of tuberculosis by sermons, talks and announcements and it is expected this year that added interest will be taken.

The small son of a suffragist was being catechised by his Sunday School teacher.

"Who made man?" asked the teacher.

"God," was the prompt reply.

"And who made woman?"

"God made her to."

"How?"

The small boy hesitated and then replied. "He caused a deep sleep to fall upon man then took out his backbone and made the woman."

Now that the diplomatic relations with Germany have been reached such a satisfactory stage the attention of the country should be directed toward England. The boasted mistress of the seas should not longer be permitted to throttle our commerce for her own advancement and no more than in 1776 or 1812 should the mother country be allowed to outline our commercial policy in handling our overseas trade. England is taking altogether too free a hand in telling this country what she may and may not do and it is for our best interests that that country be told what's what. President Wilson has thus far proved his ability to guide the ship of state and we look for him to take the proper time but decisive steps should not be long delayed.

BALEFUL PLOTTING

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR.

"You shan't have her—if the cost is my fortune, my life, yours, I swear you shall never call Leonie Marsh your wife!"

Martin Rood faced his successful rival in love, a breathing volcano of rage and other emotions. His face was distorted, his eyes blazed with a lurking insanity, his fingers writhed as though they would clutch the throat of Vincent Barrows and choke the life out of him.

The latter placed a friendly, kindly hand upon the arm of the other. Rood shook it off wrathfully. The last glance he bestowed on Vincent as he turned away made him shudder.

"Too bad!" reflected Vincent. "I don't doubt that he loved Leonie, and I am sorry for him. It was a fair contest, though—more than fair. I went away to give him his chance. He never had any, it seems, for Leonie loved me all along. She would not marry him if he was the last man in the world. He knows that, yet—how the poor fellow hates me!"

So it seemed, and so it was. Both men were rich as wealth went in the cattle belt. Rood was the elder of the two, and was a widower. He was cynical and imperious, and set on an object, usually gained it. His lack of encouragement from Leonie had soured him. Then to disappointment succeeded the dark resolve that if the pretty belle of the town did not marry him, she should not wed his rival.

Vincent went home, thoughtful, disturbed and distressed as to his former friend, Rood. The latter, he had noticed, had acted strangely of late. At times there was an expression in his eye Vincent did not like. He often wondered if his mind was just right. In a bitter, open way, publicly, Rood had shown his enmity for the man who had once been his friendly companion.

"Hello!" ejaculated Vincent as he passed along the garden walk beside his home.

A window was open. It had not been when he had recently left the house. His housekeeper was absent for a week, and he had been keeping bachelor's hall. The disturbed vines beneath the window warned of an intruder. Vincent decided that there had been a burglarious visit during his absence.

"You Are Doomed!"

He went around to the front door and noiselessly let himself into the house. On tiptoe he proceeded through the various rooms. The one where the window was open was his study. As he glanced in he observed that some money on his desk had not been disturbed. In the cabinet in the dining room the silverware was undisturbed. There was a rustling sound in the kitchen. He proceeded thither.

His back to him, a man wearing the striped garb of a convict was putting on an old suit of clothes Vincent used when he worked around the garden. On the table was half a dry loaf of bread the intruder had been eating, as if very hungry.

"Well, my friend, what does this mean?"

The stranger turned in a flash, fully startled. Hope died out of his haggard face.

"You've got me, and I suppose it's the police," he said quietly, but dearly. "One thing, though, I haven't touched, and wouldn't touch any of your valuables. I have escaped from prison. I needed a disguise. I've served eight out of ten years. I heard my wife was sick. A chance came to escape," and he proceeded with a story that aroused interest and pity in his auditor.

The upshot of the matter was that generous-hearted Vincent Barrows assisted the man to get out of town and to his invalid wife. Then he forgot all about the circumstance, mitigating his friendly offices in behalf of a fugitive from justice, in the belief that he had suffered sufficiently for his crimes and was in earnest in his declaration of repentance and reform.

It was a week later when Vincent was surprised to receive a note from Rood requesting him to call at his home. When he complied, Leonie's favored lover was fully astonished at being pleasantly received. His host, however, acted fidgety and unnatural. To Vincent he conveyed the impression of a man whose intellect was fast weakening.

"I'm getting scared," observed Rood in a hollow tone. "You know I always have a good deal in the way of money or valuables in the house. I believe burglars have tried twice to break in."

Vincent attempted to reassure Rood. He believed this idea was a baseless notion, grounded on nervous fear. He advised Rood to hire a watchman or to keep a weapon handy.

Rood listlessly objected to having anybody around. As to a weapon, he had only an old triggerless rifle.

"I'll loan you a revolver, accommodatingly proffered Vincent, and brought it the next day. He made several other calls. He felt it a duty to attempt to befriend and solace a man who seemed to be fast losing his reason.

One evening he was called over the telephone by Rood. He found the latter in a strange mood. The doleful tragedy he was playing out was reaching a dreadful climax. He raved incoherently. Finally he sprang up, the revolver Vincent had loaned him in his grasp. His eyes were blood-shot with a dreadful resolve.

"You are doomed!" he hissed to his visitor, throwing over a chair with a crash. Then aloud, he shouted at the top of his voice: "Ah, Barrows! you threaten me, eh? Hands off, you scoundrel—would you murder me!"

Appalled, Vincent Barrows thrilled as Rood placed the weapon to his temple, pulled the trigger, and fell to the floor—dead.

An old woman servant rushed into the room, out of it again, with the frenzied cry:

"Barrows has shot my master!"

Within an hour Vincent Barrows was the inmate of a prison cell. In vain his statement that his half-crazed rival had plotted with devilish ingenuity to bring him to his present straits—his revolver, the testimony of the housekeeper doomed him.

Vincent Barrows upon his trial was found guilty of the murder of Martin Rood, and was sentenced by the jury to suffer the extreme penalty of the law.

It was the day before the execution that the sheriff unlocked his cell door and led him into his office. A visitor had called. At first glance Vincent did not recognize him. The stranger removed a false beard.

"Dan Darby, the escaped convict!" fairly shouted the Sheriff.

"It's me," acknowledged the forlorn wayfarer Vincent had befriended. I owe the state two years. I'm ready to pay it for the sake of this gentleman, who treated me white when I was down and out."

"Why, what does this mean?" asked the mystified Vincent.

"I saw the whole business at Rood's house," replied the convict. "I had gone to your home to ask you to help me in getting myself and my wife out of the country. Your servant told me where you were. I went to Rood's place. I was at the window when he shot himself. I'm ready to give my testimony."

ONCE FAMOUS RECIPES LOST

Secret of Various Alcoholic Brews Once Popular in Great Britain Vainly Sought For.

Stevenson has a ballad—and an admirable ballad it is—on "Heather-ale," which he describes as "a Galloway Legend." In a note he says: "Among the curiosities of human nature this legend claims a high place." He proceeds to point out that the Picts were never exterminated, and that to this day they form a considerable part of the population of certain parts of Scotland. "Is it possible," he asks, "the chronicler's error was merely nominal, that what he told, and what the people proved themselves so ready to receive, about the Picts was true or partly true of some anterior and perhaps Lappish savages, small of stature, black of hue, dwelling underground—possibly also the distillers of some foreign spirit?"

There are many other ales besides the Scots ale brewed from heather, whose recipes are secrets of the past. No one knows for instance how the nut-brown ale of the middle ages was brewed, or the famous "Dagger" ale, which was to be obtained at only one inn in London, the Dagger, in Holborn, an Elizabethan resort of lawyers and their clerks. Then there was the popular but mysterious "three threads," with which London citizens slaked their thirst centuries ago. All have long since vanished, but as a compensation there are still numerous favorite ales—not the largely advertised beverages which everyone knows, but the special tipple of various famous hostellers which are known only to certain explorers of London.—London Chronicle.

Preservative Fluids In Woods. Timber engineers who inject creosote and other substances into wood to retard decay long ago made lists of species that were hard to treat, and others which were easy.

The preservative fluids, we are told, penetrate certain woods to a considerable depth when moderate pressure is applied; while others are almost impervious, no matter how great the pressure. Those hardest to penetrate by preservative fluids are those best supplied with tylose.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Oysters are rather an expensive food, but they add variety to the diet and an occasional use of them may be made most profitable.

Creamed Oysters.—Carefully handle each oyster to remove all shells, put in a colander and rinse in cold water, drain the liquid from the oysters and strain it, adding it to the oysters. Make a rich white sauce of three tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter, cooked together when the butter is bubbling hot, then add one and a half cupfuls of rich milk, a half teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of celery salt and red pepper. Cook a pint of oysters in boiling water and the liquor until plump and the edges curl, pour into the white sauce and serve hot with buttered toast.

Fish Hash.—Take equal parts of cold flaked fish and cold boiled potatoes, chopped fine. Season with salt and pepper. Put butter in a saucepan, and when melted add the fish and potatoes, stir until well warmed, then let brown underneath. Turn as an omelet.

Apple and Banana Salad.—Scoop out two apple balls from peeled apples, using a French vegetable cutter, and prepare banana balls in the same way, cover both with a generous sprinkling of lemon juice to keep them from discoloring, and serve on lettuce leaves with French dressing.

Asparagus Salad.—Place a cupful of canned asparagus tips on lettuce leaves. Cover with thin slices of red and green peppers and serve with well chilled French dressing.

Macaroons.—Beat the whites of four eggs until stiff, add a cupful of sugar, one cupful of coconut and one of nutmeats, then three cupfuls of corn flakes, stir until well mixed and drop by spoonfuls on a buttered sheet. Bake in a moderate oven.

—The Princess.

DAINTY DISHES.

When serving cheese or cottage cheese mold it into small balls, then with a wooden skewer dip each in grated cheese and lightly coat each ball. If the cheese is quite moist in the balls the mixture will stick and make a most attractive dish.

Cream of Beets.—To a quart of milk add one onion, a sprig of celery (both cut up), and heat, strain over two tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter, which has been cooked together. Cook until smooth. Beat until thick and add one cupful of cooked beets cut in small cubes.

Celery mixed with potato when creaming potato adds to the dish. Both should be cooked until tender.

Chocolate Nut Cake.—Soften a half-cupful of butter, add two cupfuls of sugar, yolks of four eggs, one cupful of milk alternately with 2-3 cupfuls of flour that has been sifted with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Fold in the whites of the eggs and add two squares of melted chocolate and a half-teaspoonful of vanilla.

Frosting.—Take two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of water, cook until it threads, pour over beaten whites of two eggs, add a fourth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar and nine marshmallows.

Rhubarb Shortcake.—Chop fine one cupful of mixed dates and raisins. Add to two cupfuls of rich, thick stewed rhubarb, cook five minutes. Split a shortcake and spread generously with butter, then cover with the rhubarb mixture. Cover with whipped cream.

Lettuce, Pepper and Egg Salad.—Wash the tender leaves of lettuce and arrange on a flat dish; chop fine two green peppers and sprinkle over this, then add two hard cooked eggs, also chopped, cover with French dressing and serve well chilled.

Blind People in Orient.

British India, says a writer in the Outlook for the Blind, leads all eastern countries in the number of its blind people, containing about 600,000. In China there are, it is estimated, 500,000; in Japan, 100,000, and in Egypt, 150,000 of these unfortunates.

JEWEL TRIFLES.

There Are Inexpensive Ones That Make the Younger Set Happy. A charming gift for a pretty girl is one of the small watches worn on bracelets. Some of these are very attractive, and the one illustrated here has the additional merit of being odd and convenient, for it is set into a square mount that fits neatly on the bracelet.

There are many inexpensive trifles in the way of jewelry that may be given to one's friends as well as relatives at this season. Trinkets of this sort are always valued by the younger set. Novelties are what appeal most to the taste.

Buying a last minute jewel gift? Perhaps you know just what she wants and the choosing is easy. And perhaps you don't. If so and the gift is for December's child, why not select a turquoise? The turquoise is the stone for December, and it stands for prosperity.

All told, though, the diamond and the pearl are the most desired stones. The pearl should have an article all to itself, though, summed up briefly, its characteristics are whiteness, softness of texture and purity of luster. As for the diamond, it must have what has been called liquid lusciousness—must be of the first water. In fact, the term "water" as applied to diamonds—"first water," etc.—is not a capitious term, but is directly applicable to the characteristics of the stone.

This liquid appearance is the first dominating quality which denotes the real thing. The artificial one lacks it. Note here that the chief difficulty in judging is between good gems and imitations, not between poor ones and imitations.

HANDKERCHIEF CASES.

These Will Be Gifts Prized by the Dainty Woman.

Handkerchiefs are standard gifts for Christmas. Quite the nicest way to present them is in a fancy box or case. A folding case of woven ribbon in white and pale green is illustrated here. It is lined with plain satin, and between the covers is a thick layer of wadding sprinkled with sachet powder. A wreath of roses made from satin ribbon ornaments the front of the case, while ribbon ties attached to the front hold it securely together when the handkerchiefs are placed inside. Ribbon straps may be attached to the inner face of the handkerchief case or satin pockets as handkerchief holders. A handkerchief case that will lie flat, that will not take up much room, yet perhaps contain not only handkerchiefs, but many odds and ends of lace, ties, etc., as well, that otherwise might tumble about and secrete themselves at the bottom of a trunk, as they invariably do.

HANDKERCHIEF CASE

bly do, just at the particular moment when they are most wanted, will be liked by the prospective traveler.

The cost of the handkerchief case is small, and when finished it will be durable and always look clean, as it can be washed as often as it becomes soiled—a desirable point in traveling accessories.

A very beautiful handkerchief box was covered with linen. The top of the box was adorned with a bird and a branch of a tree. The foliage was embroidered in satin stitch, but the bird was worked very evenly in long and short stitch. This stitch is particularly effective where used for the plumage of a bird.

The embroidery was further enhanced by a darned background. It really gives a most exquisite effect. The entire surface of the linen is darned with small stitches in the softest shade of blue.

A spray of cherries makes a pleasing decoration for the top of one of these boxes. The background should be darned with ivory floss.

OPPORTUNITY FOR ROAD ENGINEERS

Can Improve the Present Condition of Highways.

MUCH TO CONTEND WITH.

Must Learn to Make the Best of Local Conditions—Poor Material and Inexperienced Workers Hamper Progress. Good Roads Built For Service.

One of the principal reasons for the poor conditions of the roads in many of our states is the lack of competent engineers to handle the work and the attendant lack of an educated public opinion which will demand first class work in all cases.

The employment of county engineers has been relatively as much neglected as the creating of state highway departments. It is the exceptional county where an engineer is regularly employed from one year's end to the other. In the larger counties, particularly those having large towns or cities, the annual expenditures for road improvement are seldom less than $50,000, frequently two or three times that amount.

The usual rule in such counties is to have a county engineer who prepares plans and supervises all work, though actual legal control of the work is still vested in the county commissioners. For instance, in the great majority of counties in Texas the regular annual income is less than $50,000, and the whole matter of road improvement in each county rests with the county judge and four commissioners, who constitute the county commissioners' court. If a bond issue for road improvement is authorized by the voters of a county or a district an engineer is employed to plan and supervise the construction of the roads. Payment for such engineering service is made either as a percentage fee based on the cost of the work or by a stipulated salary.

The general improvement of the country is pushing the road question to the front. Counties in large numbers are issuing bonds for good roads every month. It is very important that the taxpayers get a dollar's worth of road for each dollar expended. Roads must be built so well that they will give service and at the same time not be prohibitive in cost. In many sections the engineer is at once confronted with the fact that he must build a road of material that would be quickly rejected under the standard specifications. It therefore becomes necessary to so adapt his materials and so regulate the character of workmanship and the consequent cost of the road that its serviceableness will be commensurate with its cost.

Much progress has already been made toward adapting local material to road construction, but much more remains to be done. There is opportunity for every engineering college to render valuable service to its state by a study of these problems. There is still greater opportunity for every practicing highway engineer to thus aid in the development of his country and thereby put his own future success beyond all serious question.

High Cost of Poor Roads.

The cost of bad roads is strikingly set forth by William C. Redfield, secretary of commerce in President Wilson's cabinet, in this manner:

The inefficiency arising from bad roads makes it cost something like $300,000,000 a year to cart our cotton crop from the fields to the railway stations. I think few people realize the immense tax put on us all by bad roads and inefficient handling.

I have said that if our farmers once realized the awful tax that bad roads impose upon them public opinion would sternly demand the making and maintaining of good roads everywhere. It now costs the farmer twelve—yes, twenty or more—times as much per ton mile to move his goods to the railway station as it does to move them on the railway after they leave the station. The farmer, indeed, in bad cases and at certain seasons may have to pay as much as $1 a ton mile, while the railway carries the freight when it once gets it at an average of three-quarters of a cent per ton mile.

A FRENCH FABRIC.

What the Fashionable Duvetyn Looks Like.

OF DUVEYIN IN AUTUMN LEAF COLOR.

Everybody is asking what this new French material which is the craze this season looks like. Duvetyn has a texture like thin, clinging silk and at a little distance is not unlike dull suede.

The suit pictured is of silk duvetyn in autumn leaf color. The hat is of black velvet adorned with shaded yellow plumes.

Spare Not the Soap.

"The use of soap is more or less of a habit. But it is a pleasant one, certainly not one to be discouraged," writes an Englishwoman. "British scientists may prove to the hilt—or the top of the bath—that we use it more than is necessary, or even advisable, but if so, it is a case of commendable error. Once let the idea get abroad that soap is best used sparingly and away will swing the pendulum in the other direction, and we shall become an unwashed and soapsless generation. Far better to soap too much than never to have soaped at all. Our skins, especially in these days, when perfect soap is obtainable, can surely better withstand too much soap than treatment then coatings of dust over-laying clogged pores. At all events, we look the better for it."

Your Thoughts Photographed.

Husbands with suspicious wives and wives with suspicious husbands may soon be able to prove the truth of their statements when separated that they think of their better halves all the time, for the scientists are going to photograph thoughts. At the last meeting of the Paris Academy of Sciences a communication was read from Major Dargot of the French army, already known as having photographed rays emitted by living beings. Major Dargot asked himself whether, by thinking intently of an object, one might obtain an image of it on a film. In a dark room he fixed his thoughts on a bottle and his eyes upon a plate placed in a bath developer. He kept his fingers also in the dish. At the end of a few minutes the bottle was reproduced on the plate.

Tapestries, Etc., For Gowns.

In an emergency one may appropriate some of the household furnishings and convert them into a gown, a blouse, a coat—in fact, into almost anything wearable—for dresses are being made of gay upholstery materials, such as tapestries and brocades, and blouses and tunics of brilliantly flowered chintzes which one usually buys for curtains or sofa pillow covers. The colors and combinations used are wonderful, and the designs are large and sprightly, but are admirably suited to the present styles, with their disconnected, floppy effects.

Take a Hint From Iceland.

If the king of Denmark does what is expected of him at the next council of state and signs a bill presented to him by the minister from Iceland the women of Iceland will have suffrage on equal terms with men. Two women from Iceland, Mrs. Breit Amundsson and another suffragist, were sent to the international suffrage convention at Budapest in June at the expense of the government.

Protecting the Table Polish.

A practical way of protecting a highly polished table from the ravages of the hot teapot is to lay a folded napkin on the table and over this place a small embroidered dolly.

Local dealers, especially those who handle meat products, report a considerable falling off in trade as a result of last week's hot weather. General business conditions however, are reported as excellent and expectations of a prosperous winter for Kennebunk are not unfounded. Mill operations have prospects of many weeks of steady employment and the large Wednesday and Saturday pay rolls are welcomed by merchants generally. Officials of the Industry Club are formulating plans whereby it is expected that the town will never be less prosperous than it is at present and as hearty cooperation in working out these plans is assured the future can hold forth nothing but brilliant prospects for the town's commercial life.

Jack Coombs has decided after a talk with President Charles Ebbetts of the Brooklyn National League baseball team, to turn down an offer from Yale to coach the varsity nine for a three-year term. A flattering offer was made to Coombs by the graduate board of the college and came through his success in handling the pitchers of the Brooklyn team. "I think I can do more good with the Brooklyn team by staying exclusively on its payroll," said Jack in explaining his decision. "Mr. Ebbetts has treated me right and if I help Yale it would be at the cost of my best work for the Brooklyn team."

Interest in football which was revived at the high school last year after a lapse of several seasons has been renewed this year and a squad of fourteen men is practising every day under the coaching of Athletic Instructor Archie Winter. Last year's team played four games of which two were victories and it is hoped that a larger schedule can be arranged this year. The first game will be played at Saco against Thornton Academy next Saturday and the team will be picked from the following: Wallace Hatch, Mgr, John Davis, Capt., Leon Davis, Ralph Davis, George Hollis Truscott, Rodney Day, James Ross, Charles Emery, Ellsworth Emmons, Harold Smith, Raymond Lunge, Gail Boston, Sherman Huff and Sewell Elbridge. TOWN BENEFIT

"Fifi" to Be Given by Local Talent
October 7 and 8

An amateur production of unusual brilliance and one that is already well known by many in this section will be presented to the people of Kennebunk on Oct. 7 and 8. It is "Fifi of the Toy Shop," a 3-act musical fantasy, and it is to be given under the able auspices of the popular Webhannet Club of which Mrs. Hawkes is acting in the capacity of chairman of committees. The fact that such a personage is at the head of the production is assurance that it will be a success financially and already the advance sale of tickets is under way, local people taking an added interest in the play in as much as the entire proceeds are to be given to the town.

The different groups have been rehearsing since Monday and give promise of exceptional ability in executing the many difficult and pleasing dances which give "Fifi" the name of being the most spectacular and popular amateur play ever given, it being staged at over 1200 performances and has bookings in nearly every state in the Union for early productions this coming winter.

"Fifi of the Toy Shop" was written by Mr. John B. Rogers, and it deals with a dream of Bonnie, the Toymaker's daughter, when all of her toys in the shop come to life. Ultimately many surprisingly unique and amusing situations arise and intermingled with the clever lines are several very catchy songs, many of which are accompanied by spirited action, in pleasing setting and costumes.

Mr. Rogers is one of the few playwrights that has shown himself conscious of not overdoing the fairy plot which he has built around "Fifi," and in so doing has not diverted his radiant charm of stage pleasantries of children, alone but has embodied a rich field, of interest to the older ones as well.

The production is under the personal supervision of Charles B. Cummings of New York, and E. Raymond Brown of Boston.

Electric Light Meeting Packs Engine House Saturday Evening

SUMMER HOTELS CLOSED

The meeting of protest against the methods of the York County Power company in assessing the charges for electric lights was held as scheduled at the Arundel Engine house Saturday evening, the rooms being filled and numerous citizens unable to gain admittance.

The new superintendent of the company was present but unable to offer any explanation on behalf of the company, as during the week he has held the position he claim inability to gain a thorough knowledge of the situation.

Much sharp repartee and heated arguments were indulged in and the sense of the meeting seemed to be that the company be requested to make a flat rate of 10 cents per kilowatt for all takers and that competent people be employed to read the meters. A committee made up of Abbott Graves, W. F. Goodwin, H. S. Burrage Stephen Ward and Mr. Emery was appointed to confer with the company to see what would be done along those lines.

Investigations as to the cost of installing private plants are still being worked out and unless a satisfactory agreement is reached during the winter the subject will come up for discussion at the next town meeting.

A very pleasant event was the shower given Miss Angelyne Ross at the home of her brother Ivory Ross and wife at Rock Haven Farm Biddeford, Tuesday evening, quite a company being present. Dainty refreshments served consisting of ices, cake, cocoa, fancy cookies etc. The event was a surprise to Miss Ross who came by invitation to see her nephew, R. L. Ross before he left for college. She was bountifully showered with agate ware and was surprised and pleased for she never dreamed of such a thing.

Miss Ross will be married Friday evening, September 24, at the home of her mother, Biddeford, to Mr. Rodney Hackett of Quincy, Mass., where they reside. Her bridesmaids will be some of her high school class. A reception will be held after the marriage, many invitations having been sent out. Both are very popular young people who have many friends in Biddeford and Kennebunkport, Miss Ross' former home as well as Kennebunk. They have the best wishes of hosts of friends.

We wish to say that the poem written by Miss Cora York voices our sentiments exactly. It's not the poor weak man, who cannot say no, but the one who gives or sells poison. The accursed stuff, blood money, to the seller. I truly think that at least half of the murders and crimes committed can be traced to strong drink. Woe to him who putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips. The Enterprise is very fortunate in having the gems from Miss York's pen, which are very much enjoyed by many. We extend congratulations to Miss York.

BOARD OF TRADE BANQUET

but one-eighth of the state's water power is harnessed for commercial purposes and that we are capable of supporting as much population as the other New England states combined, the greater ease in which the world's markets may be reached through a persistent advertising campaign the state would come into its own.

W. B. Moore, Executive Secretary of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, and the principal speaker of the evening, was then introduced. Mr. Moore considered it a good sign to see such a large body of men banded together for good and that a policy of civic righteousness would eventually work out for the benefit of the town of Kennebunk. The Portland Chamber of Commerce is engaged in an effort to develop Maine to the maximum use of its resources and although Portland is now and undoubtedly always will be the metropolis of the state and as such will always derive a certain benefit from every dollar spent in Maine the Chamber's motto is not to work solely for the development of Portland but for the state at large as well.

Mr. Moore said that the history of the world is the history of cities, that the history of cities is the history of men and that natural conditions are largely responsible for what men do in building, cities and countries. All must work with eyes to the future rather than glorying in past achievements. The glories of Rome, Carthage, Athens and Babylon were of no avail when the energies employed in making those cities powers in the ancient world were expended and this lacking of energy and no other reason was the principal factor in their retrogression to memories and heaps of ruins. New York, Chicago or any other large enterprising city could have been founded elsewhere by the same men and grown to as great importance in the world as they now occupy. He cited case after case of adjacent cities starting at about the same time where the city of push and energy far outstripped in growth the city with mere physical advantage. Fine harbors capable of unlimited development yet lacking the energy to bring about that development, lie unused while less favored communities have grown and continue to grow.

Kennebunk has as much chance to grow to power and prominence in the modern world as did any of our centres of industry but that growth will not start until a united effort is made to start it. Grand Rapids is not more fitted for the manufacture of furniture than is our town, breakfast food may be made as cheaply and as well here as in Battle Creek and as fast and luxurious an automobile can be assembled in Kennebunk as in Detroit.

A booster is the greatest asset that any community can have and a prosperous commercial future is assured to any town well supplied with such.

Dayton, San Francisco, Chicago have risen from the ruins of flood, earthquake and fire, more vigorous than ever before because the energy of the people has risen superior to the occasion. A town must needs not have disaster to bring it to a realization of its possibilities and Kennebunk is today in a better relative position for commercial advancement than were any of those municipalities when the present epoch in their history began.

The speaker deplored the presence of knockers in any community and delegated Mr. Tilton to officiate at the funerals of any such as could be found with the proviso, however, that mention of the resurrection be omitted from the obsequies, and urged the town to support the press in its effort to make the town a better one for all of its inhabitants.

He thought that everyone should be willing to put back a little money into the town where that money was made and that the opportunity of belonging to the Board of Trade and paying the dues of a dollar a year is the least that can be done by residents of Kennebunk.

The speaker closed with a plea for every man woman and child to think Kennebunk always illustrating with the story of a Kentucky jurist whose views of the superiority of the native land in everything could not be shattered. The man in question was deaf to all entreaties to tour Europe but after a while was prevailed upon to make the trip. He would not class the lakes of Ireland with the beautiful Maine lakes, the Alps were declared to be mere foothills compared with the American Rockies, most any beach on the Atlantic Coast was superior to Ostend and the river Rhine could in no way be compared to the Hudson. Finally the party reached Rome and the catacombs beneath the city were visited and the judge had to admit there were more "dead ones" there than in America. A damp atmosphere affected him and succumbing to his one bad habit in warding off the effects of dampness the judge took one too many of his favorite bracers and went to sleep. As a joke his friends surrounded him with mummies and stood back to await developments. In due time the judge awakened and realizing his situation shouted to the surprise of all "Hip, hip, hurra! Resurrection day at last! First one up! America to the front always!"

Mr. Moore held the attention of all throughout his remarks and at the close, at the suggestion of President Fairfield, was given a unanimous rising vote of thanks.

It cannot be doubted that his remarks were taken seriously and benefit will be derived for the town therefor. He speaks as one who knows whereof he speaks, displays a thorough knowledge of human nature and general commercial needs and conditions. The Portland Chamber of Commerce and the State of Maine are to be congratulated on having such an able "booster."
