There is now talk of running George Ade, the humorist, as a candidate for Representative in Congress, in Indiana.

The total cost of the United States navy from 1882 to 1906 has been $1,940,449,011. This is a tremendous sum, but there was one year in the latter part of the '90s when it seemed worth part of it, anyhow.

A letter can be sent from New York to San Francisco and an answer received within seven days. This would have surprised the hardy old '90ers if they had been able to look ahead remarks an exchange.

The six best selling books in New York last week were as follows: "The House of Mirth," "The Conquest of Canaan," "The Wheel of Life," "A Maker of History," "The House of a Thousand Candles," and "The Long Arm."

A Massachusetts woman is something of a Mrs. Malaprop. While visiting a friend in Dorchester she was recalling old times and gossiping of her friends and acquaintances. She invariably says: "I receive so much whenever I sing in concert, and I will be happy to sing for your charity if you will give that same amount to it on the day of the concert. I will also expect the other ladies of this committee to do the same." This usually has put an end to the negotiations.

The record price for a hen was paid at the Boston poultry show last week when a New York bird bid $750 for a buff Plymouth rock, for which the original owner thought he was asking a prohibitive price when he named $100. But it so happened that there were several people who wanted that particular hen. The report of the purchase does not describe the remarkable characteristics of this Plymouth rock, but the fact that she is to be exhibited in New York at a good admission price is evidence that she is one of the world's wonders.

Madame Sarah Bernhardt in Portland Tuesday night made her only appearance before a Maine audience, and was accorded a hearty welcome. The audience which included 3000 persons, many of whom came in special trains from Biddeford, Lewiston and other cities, was limited for the reason that the theatres were not obtainable and it was necessary to play in City hall. This auditorium was packed to the doors. Madame Bernhardt was assisted during the final act by students of Bowdoin College. She was given nine curtain calls after the fourth act.

At a rate of speed faster than two miles a minute, Fred Marriott made a new world's record for one mile on the beach at Ormond, Fla., one day last week. Driving a 20-horsepower clear shaped Stanley steamer he fairly flew over the distance in 28 1-5 seconds.

When the machine came dashing down to the line from the two-mile flying start it seemed to be in the air, and it was out of sight behind a trail of steam before one could realize that the speed trial was on. The machine, which has become used to wonderful flights of speed, seemed to realize that the record was in danger, and was quite ready for the announcement when it came. It was received with the wildest enthusiasm.

It is stated that the government will not let the contract for any considerable portion of the Panama canal work inside of two or three years at least. The officials responsible for the canal construction have decided that the contract system is not feasible at present.

The contractors lacking knowledge of local conditions, climatic difficulties, labor problems and other contingencies incident to tropical work, are obliged to fix their bids at a prohibitive price in order to protect themselves. It will be for the government, it is explained, to demonstrate the actual unit prices of work, which will probably require two or three years and then the contractors may be invited to bid on a basis of well established physical conditions.

Capt. William H. Van Schaik, who was in command of the ill-fated steamer Gen. Slocum during the excursion when so many lives were lost, in June, 1904, was sentenced to 10 years in prison. Tuesday John Short of Brooklyn, who claimed to be totally acquainted with Capt. Van Schaik offered to serve the captain's 10-year sentence. To the United States marshal to whom he made his offer Short said: "I saw and heard Captain Van Schaik ring the alarm bell at the fire and I know he is innocent. He is an old man, too old to go to prison, and I am a young man ready to take his place and serve his sentence." Mr. Short's offer was not accepted. Captain Van Schaik, who had been found guilty of criminal negligence as commander of the burned steamer General Slocum, was released on $10,000 bail.

WATCHDOG OF TREASURY.

Congressman Littlefield Is Acquiring that Title—Looking after the Interests of Men Who Pay Taxes.

A Washington correspondent, writing to the Maine papers, says that Representative Littlefield of Maine in the role of a watchdog of the Treasury has worried the recognized leaders of the House a little. They do not want any eastern man "sitting in their name."

Speaker Cannon is distinctly a westerner and so is Representative Tawney, chairman of the House committee on appropriations. The west is as much in the saddle in the House of Representatives as the southern brigadiers were when the 63d Congress convened.

There were a lot of men who thought Mr. Littlefield should have been made chairman of appropriations, although he was never a candidate and it was known from the very first that he hadn't the slightest chance of getting the place, almost solely because he is an eastern man. But Mr. Littlefield has been doing a lot of thinking and studying over government expenditures. He made a speech on the subject in the last Congress. He will probably make another speech on about the same subject in the course of a few days. Mr. Littlefield never studies unless it be thoroughly and he knows a few things about appropriations and expenditures, apparently, that have not occurred to men around the appropriations table.

Owing to Mr. Littlefield's efforts the other day the urgent deficiency bill, which the House has been deliberating over for many days, was materially amended. It went for many of the items "like a thousand of bricks" with the result that they went out of the bill. He started in with objections to an appropriation of $5000 to reimburse the postmasters at Tonopah and Elko, Nev., for clerk hire, fuel, light and miscellaneous items. The government seems to have been looting along the postmasters at those offices, both of which are located in big mining camps, so that clerks will not work as well when the gold craze is on, as they would under normal conditions. There are many like claims, some of which, as Mr. Littlefield stated to the House, are meritorious. But in Nevada senator had come over to the south end of the Capitol and coaxed the committee into putting those items on to the bill. Mr. Littlefield thought that was not fair to other like claims and on his renewed objection the items went out of the bill. The next pass the Maine man made was at an item to allow the postmaster at Nome, Alaska, "C. Cole," a "claim for relief." He reiterated to the House his realization of the fact that the claim might be meritorious, but as there were claims of postmasters waiting adjudication, he believed they should all stand or fall together. So that item, simply because Mr. Littlefield did not approve of the recognition of special pull before the Appropriations committee.

From that the Maine representative went on to a series of questions for the necessity of appropriations of a certain character to the Department of Agriculture, where it is notorious that the wishes of Congress are frequently ignored with reference to disbursements. He had Chairman Tawney, who is really much in sympathy with Mr. Littlefield's stand on the matter, busy answering questions as to why Secretary Wilson had expended money for the bureau of animal industry contrary to the directions of Congress expressed in its annual appropriation laws. Not long ago the secretary in a letter to the House said there was a deficiency for the bureau of animal industry and a little later he wrote another letter saying there was no deficiency. The second letter was written only after Mr. Wilson's attention had been called to the likelihood of his having violated a statute in creating the deficiency.

Mr. Littlefield wanted all the details about that and about the action of the appropriation committee before he sat down. He asked a series of persistent questions about all these things. Other members took notice and began to question also, so that the committee had a rather bad half hour. Just before he concluded Mr. Littlefield said: "My purpose is simply this: 'I hope the committee will appreciate that I am not criticizing in any offensive sense the committee. I call attention to this as we go along, and I hope the committee of the whole House may appreciate the fact that these items are creeping into these bills. I will show to the House a little later, when I get an opportunity, in the proper place, that these increases are getting to be tremendous, and I think we must get in a position where we must stop it.'"

Mr. Littlefield's treatment will give the suffering little one instant relief and sleep, and result in complete cures. SETTLEMENT OF WALDOBORO.

German Families Induced to Locate There in 1740—Struggles and Triumphs of Early Colonization.

At the meeting of the Maine Historical Society in Portland last week Edgar O. Achorn of Boston read a paper of much historical interest on "The Settlement of Waldoboro." The Press published the following abstract:

The story in brief is the securing of a patent indefinite in its metes and bounds, the attempt on the part of the proprietor to induce the people to colonize the grant, to a portion of which he had a doubtful title, by misrepresentation as to its desirability and promises of assistance that were never fulfilled—with the result that those who came suffered disappointments, inevitable hardships and distress, many secured no titles to their allotments and were compelled to repurchase them elsewhere to be disappointed, which latter fate overtook some who sought other and more hospitable shores. From those who remained have descended a numerous progeny to populate the neighboring cities and towns and to scatter itself over the wide area of our country.

The original patent under which the Germans settled in Waldoboro was granted by the council of Plymouth to John Beauchamp of London and Thomas Leverett and in 1729 vested in John Leverett, grandson of Thomas Leverett, then president of Harvard college. The latter formed an association to develop the region and among the members were the father and brother of Samuel Waldo. When the interests of the company were in jeopardy, Waldo drew 40 German families to Waldoboro in 1742. This statement is supported by documents which disprove the assertions of Williamson and other historians that the first German settlement was made in 1740.

This settlement was wiped out by an Indian attack in 1746, many of the settlers being slain and the rest carried into captivity.

Operating principally at Frankfort-Main, Waldo got together another colony of from 20 to 40 families which settled at Waldo's Point in November, 1748. This colony, together with some survivors of the Louisburg expedition three years before, formed the first permanent settlement.

In 1752 Samuel Waldo, son of the general, went to Germany and by means of alluring inducements succeeded in bringing into Waldo 60 families, gathered mostly from the banks of the Rhine. Waldo had promised that every family should have a grant of 100 acres of land bordering upon navigable waters. The records of these expeditions were settled upon both sides of the Medonack river and bay. In the main some attempt was made to re-locate the 100 acres of land, but the navigable waters, though the latter rather than the spirit of the obligation was fulfilled, for some were given lots 20 rods wide and two miles in length. They suffered no hardships and their lands but were given long leases conditional upon their paying a nominal rent.

They complained bitterly of disappointment in the climate and surroundings, ill treatment, neglect and broken faith on the part of their patron. They suffered incredible hardships and distress, not alone on this account but even more because they were totally unprepared by past experience to meet the conditions.

Knowing what the conditions were, Waldo was guilty of the most flagrant breach of the common instincts of humanity. There were no boats or tackle, but the settlers had no boats or tackle;

there was land to be cleared and tilled but the settlers had no farming implements with which to work; neither were they accustomed to the use of firearms and conflict with the Indians. They were in all respects victims of their surroundings and prey for their hostile neighbors. Nor could they look for assistance to their countrymen already settled, for the latter were for the most part engaged in a hand-to-hand struggle for the last crust with the wolf which had gotten beyond the door and was occupying the chair at the head of the table.

These unfortunates, deserted by Waldo, were crowded into one hut and a large shed, without fireplaces, and in other respects unfit for habitation, where they passed a winter of intense suffering. A number perished from exposure, starvation and disease. In the spring Charles Leister appeared as the agent of Gen. Waldo, bringing provisions and authority to allot the lands. He practiced the grossest injustice, taking money for provisions from those who could afford to purchase and, so it is said, pocketing the proceeds. Instead of 100 acres on navigable waters, he assigned each family half an acre two miles from the river. These lands were later given up and the settlers re-established themselves nearer the water.

In May, 1754, the deserted settlers addressed a letter to the governor of Massachusetts bay calling attention to their defenseless position and imploring deliverance from their miseries.

As a possible result of this letter Gen. Waldo built a garrison at Broad bay, but for many years the settlers continued to suffer from the depredations of the Indians and not a few of the inhabitants were killed or carried into captivity.

In 1764 there were upwards of 500 people scattered along both banks of the river and bay, the larger number on the left bank centering on "Dutch Neck." Then came conflicts as to patent rights and it was not until the incorporation of the town of Waldoboro, Sept. 21, 1773, that the inhabitants felt reasonable security as to their possessions.

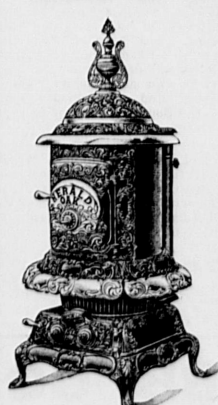

In closing it is interesting to note that Gen. Henry Knox, who married Gen. Waldo's granddaughter, came into possession of the larger portion of the Waldo grant and many of the titles held today in Thomaston and Waldoboro were from him.

While the German language is no longer spoken at Waldoboro, many of the German customs are still in vogue there. Perhaps it is the only place in Maine where one may find sauerkraut as an every-day article of diet, and with this delectable evidence of the Fatherland, I leave them in peace.

AN APPLETON BOY.

Walter E. Gushee Now an Educator of Prominence in Massachusetts.

Walter E. Gushee of Ludlow, superintendent of schools of the Ludlow-Agawam district, has been the most prominent educational man in the state, on account of the stand he took over the interpretation of the verb "to read."

When the state legislature passed a law, to go into effect the first of January, 1906, requiring every minor under 16 years of age employed in any business to be able to read, mill and factory owners foresaw trouble, but it was Supt. Gushee who set the ball rolling.

He was the first educator to declare that "to read" meant an understanding of the words read and not the mere repeating of them in parrot-fashion.

The Ludlow mill people had established evening schools at their own expense two or three months previous to Jan. 1, 1906, thinking their minor employees might be able to read, under evening instruction by the mill.

Law went into effect. About 36 of these pupils presented themselves to Mr. Gushee and he turned down all but six. As a test, Mr. Gushee asked them to read Aesop's fable of the "Fox and the Grapes," and at its conclusion he asked each one whether the fox got the grapes or not. All but six thought he did, so Mr. Gushee declined to give certificates to all but those six.

This roused the wrath and consternation of the mill people, who claimed that "to read" meant pronouncing the words so that they were intelligible to a listener who himself understands English. Supt. Gushee, on the other hand, was backed up in his stand by Sec. George H. Martin of the state board of education. The president of the National child labor league of New York also endorsed Supt. Gushee's position.

Then superintendents all over the state began to interpret the law rigidly, and Supt. Gushee felt vindicated. He did not seek the fame that was upon him, neither did he have any desire to embarrass the mill company, but he did believe that it would have been highly inappropriate for him to construe the law as defined by a mill official without using his own judgment in the matter.

Supt. Gushee has maintained a very high standard of efficiency in the schools of his district since he took it in 1903. During this time six additional rooms, employing an equal number of teachers, have been opened in the village, the Ward system of reading has been introduced, the curriculum of the high school has been changed to present needs and there has been a growing tendency among pupils and teachers to put forth their best efforts.

There are 34 schools in the district, 2 in Ludlow and 14 in Agawam. Mr. Gushee spends, therefore, the greater part of his time in Ludlow. He has become deeply interested in the work being done in Ludlow village by the social organizations maintained and carried on by the mill interests of the town.

He believes that such work is a direct supplement to the work of the schools, and he has urged his teachers to co-operate with the social director, Miss Alice Bennett.

Walter Edward Gushee was born in Appleton, Me., in 1869. After going to the grammar and high schools of his native place he entered the State Normal school, from which he graduated with high honors. For the next six years he taught school in Bucksport and Danforth, Me., and then went to New York, where he was principal of the Cincinnati academy and training school for four years.

His next went to Penacook, N. H., where he served as principal of the high school and superintendent of schools until 1901, when he resigned to become superintendent of the district comprising Agawam, Grandville and Southwick. In 1903 these towns were split up and Agawam and Ludlow were formed into one district, and Mr. Gushee was made superintendent of it.

Mr. Gushee married Miss Helen Hatch of Liberty, Me., in 1891. Mr. Gushee is also a graduate of the Case Normal school and is at present principal of the Ludlow high school.—Boston Sunday Globe.

LITTLE POCKET PHYSICIAN.

Hymeneal Inhaler that is Guaranteed by C. H. Pendleton, Druggist and Optician, and Wm. H. Kittredge to Cure Catarrh.

Thousands who have been cured by Hymeneal, call the inhaler that comes with every outfit "The little pocket physician," as it is so small that it can be carried in the pocket or purse.

Due to the discovery of Hymeneal, catarrhes showed that at least 75 out of every 100 persons in this state were suffering from catarrh in some form. The remarkable results following the use of Hymeneal are shown by the smaller percentage today of people suffering from catarrh.

There is really no excuse whatever for anyone having catarrh now, that Hymeneal is so readily obtainable. If you have any doubts about its value, Charles H. Pendleton of William H. Kittredge will let you have a complete outfit with the understanding that unless it cures catarrh, it will not cost you a cent.

A complete Hymeneal outfit consists of "the little pocket physician," a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hymeneal, and costs only $1, while additional bottles of Hymeneal can be procured for 50 cents, making it the most economical, as well as the most reliable treatment for the cure of catarrh.

Do not delay longer the use of Hymeneal, if you have catarrh. This is a purely local disease, and Hymeneal goes right to the spot where the catarrhal germs are present, destroys them, soothes and heals all inflammation, and makes a permanent and lasting cure.

THOMASTON.

G. I. Robinson Drug Co., the enterprising druggists, have just received a large stock of Hymeneal, the guaranteed cure for catarrh. With every outfit they give a signed guarantee to refund the money if Hymeneal does not benefit. This is the famous inhalation treatment that cures catarrh without stomach dosing and is the only guaranteed cure for the disease.

The only matter of special importance at the school board meeting Wednesday night was the resignation of Charles E. Weeks' resignation from the board, caused by his removal from the city. Action upon this resignation will be taken at the next meeting.

Mr. Weeks had been a member of the board quite a number of years, and had given it much time and efficient service.

Next Monday night Knox Lodge of Odd Fellows will entertain visitors from the lodges of St. George, Appleton and Union. Supper will be furnished for the visiting brothers at 6 p. m., and members are requested to furnish food. The reception committee will be on hand in the lodge room at 5 p. m. to meet the visitors. During the evening the second degree will be conferred upon two candidates.

Grand Patriarch E. R. Bowler makes a number of official visitations next week, visiting a number of encampments in the western part of the state, Portland's included. At the end of his term as grand patriarch, Mr. Bowler will have visited every one of the 43 Odd Fellows encampments in the state, this year having covered a period of four years, as the visitation assignments are divided among four grand officers. Mr. Bowler hopes to see two new encampments formed in Maine in the near future.

Everett L. Spear and William P. Cook, Jr. have leased the wharf in the rear of Mr. Spear's office at 515 Main street, belonging to the J. Fred Hall estate, and will establish a lumber yard there, dealing in all kinds of building supplies. Mr. Spear is the young contractor who carried to a successful completion such a fine building contract as the Thorndike & Hix building. Mr. Cook has had practical experience in this line with C. E. Bicknell. The young men will doubtless develop a fine business.

An agent of the State Referendum League of Maine is in Rockland in the interests of that movement. It is the purpose of this League to secure to the people of our state the right to propose laws by petition, and to adopt or reject them by vote at the polls; to conduct such a campaign of education among the people of our state, as shall result in the passage by the next legislature of a resolve permitting the people themselves, to determine by majority vote, whether or not the principles of home rule and a state constitution shall be incorporated into the Constitution of our state. Obadiah Gardner of Rockland is vice president of the organization (whose chair is held by Charles F. Burdett of Union) is the Knox county chapter of the advisory council.

Metushala was all right, you bet. For a good old soul was he. They say he would be living yet. Had he taken Rocky Mountain Tea. Wm. H. Kittredge.

"Down East" bids fair to draw a large audience at Farwell opera house, this Friday evening. The fact that the Rockland Military Band has the affair in charge will contribute to this result. The interest which is always manifested in a home-talent play is very pronounced in this instance.

"Down East" is a fine one, and with a play like "Down East" at its disposal will furnish an evening of enjoyment. Geo. H. Sherman will sing the bass solo, "Salute on the Deep Blue Sea," a song written especially for him, and sung by no bass singer other than himself. The R. M. B. Male Quartet always pleases the audience with something new. There will be a concert in front of the opera house at 7.30 p. m. All aboard the "Down East," this Friday evening, Feb. 2.

General Agent Sherman, whose duties have been notably increased since the Eastern Steamship Co. acquired the Portland and Rockland line, has been in Portland this week superintending the departure of the Monhegan for Boston where important repairs and improvements are to be made on that craft. When this has been done, the Monhegan will go on the Portland division, and the Minola will have an overhauling. Capt. Archibald remains in Portland in the interim.

Frank C. Allen, formerly first officer of the steamer Frank Jones, will have that position on the Monhegan. In April when the Monhegan is ready to leave for the coast, Allen will be in charge of the line of the Eastern Steamship Company, the boats of the Portland and Rockland line will leave at 5.30 in the morning instead of 6.30, so as to give plenty of time for looking after the boats after they arrive in Portland. When the spring time table goes into effect there will be five boats belonging to the Eastern Steamship Company leaving Tilson's wharf each morning at the same hour.

There were about 400 skaters at the Big Rink, Wednesday night, beside a large number of spectators. The new arena lights were in position and added to the glory of the other fine facilities. This Friday evening will be "ladies choice" night at the Big Rink.

Pleasant Valley Grange held a mock trial Tuesday night, the respondent being Past Master Reuben S. Thorndike, who was charged with the grievous offense of stealing five of Frank Farwell's laying hens. The case was tried before Judge A. J. Tolman, E. B. Spear officiating as clerk, and Warren L. Rhodes as high sheriff. Fuller C. Blackington was state's attorney, but Thorndike was defended by the respondent with such success that the prisoner was discharged. Frank F. Harding was foreman of the jury.

The witnesses were Charles Tillson, A. Jella Veale, Earl Ludwig, Capt. Ernest Rhodes, Charles S. Gardner, Mrs. Myra Moore and Miss Fannie Ludwig.

Maynard S. Bird & Co., insurance agents and bankers, are now installed in their handsome new suite of offices in the Thorndike & Hix building on School street. Considerable delay has attended the moving in, but the proprietors when they look over their splendidly equipped new home feel recompensed. The suite comprises a main office, Mr. Bird's private office, a small private office, lavatory and closet. The offices are finished in mahogany and have birch floors with mahogany stain. The walls are tinted in handsome shades of green and yellow, in oil and water colors, and the wainscoting is hung with a lap in a shade to match. Stained glass windows separate the main and private offices. The furniture, from the stock of the Burpee Furniture Co., is mahogany and bestows upon the apartments the one thing needed to complete their comfort and luxury. A mahogany cabinet is devoted to the duplicate daily report system, which is a comparatively new thing in this part of the state. The offices are heated by steam and lighted by electricity. They are located on the ground floor and embrace about 900 square feet of floor space. The firm had many visitors Thursday on the occasion of the formal opening. On the various desks were large bouquets of roses and carnations. Several boxes of prime cigars were opened for the accommodation of visitors. Maynard S. Bird, the senior member of the present firm was of the firm of Rice, Bird & Barney which succeeded to the large insurance business of C. G. Moffat, about 13 years ago. Mervyn Ap Rice was the first to retire, and when G. M. Barney retired in order to accept the state agency of the Travelers' Insurance Co. of Portland, Mr. Bird became sole proprietor. H. Nelson McDougall, who had been in his employ for quite a number of years was admitted to membership Jan. 1st of the present year. The concern is thus composed of two of Rockland's keenest young business men and has every promise of years of prosperity.

Miss Vina M. Blackington of this city is the cashier, Miss Edith McAlmon of Thomaston is stenographer, and Miss Adelaide Hyler of Thomaston is assistant.

"You're going to Paris, aren't you, Miss Kembell?" I asked.

"To Paris—yes. You too?"

"We go first to Etretat," I said and stopped as she leaned, laughing, back

"Won't you take pity on a poor landlady?" I demanded, in some astonishment.

"Wrong? Oh, nothing. Etretat's a most delightful place—only it recalled to me an amusing memory of how my mother was one day scandalized there by some actresses who were bathing.

But it's hardly the season for Etretat.

The actresses have not yet arrived.

You'll find it dull."

"We will not stay there long," I said.

"But tell me about it."

"Etretat," said my companion, "is a bohemian resort. It has a beach of gravel where people bathe all day long.

When one's tired of bathing there are the cliffs and the downs, and in the evening there's the casino. You know

French, Mr. Lester?"

"Oh, I know the phrase made immortal by Mark Twain."

"Avez-vous du vin?"—yes."

"And I think I also have a hazy recollection of the French equivalents for bread and butter and cheese and meat.

We shan't starve. Besides, I think Mr.

Royce can help. He's been to France."

"Of course—and here he comes to claim his chair."

"I won't permit him to claim it if you'll use it a little longer," I protested.

"Oh, but I must be going." And she rose, laughing. "Have I been a satisfactory entertainer?"

"More than satisfactory; I'll accept no other."

"But you won't need any at all after this morning—I don't really believe you're ill now."

She nodded to Royce and moved away without waiting for my answer.

Saturday, Sunday and Monday passed,

with only such incidents to enliven

them as are common to all voyages.

But I saw that quiet and sea air were doing their work well with my companion and that he was steadily regaining his normal health, so I felt more and more at liberty to devote myself to Miss Kembell, in such moments

as she would permit me, and I found her fascination increasing in a ratio quite geometrical. Martigny was still absent, and so the ship's doctor told me

was improving very slowly.

It was Tuesday evening that Mrs.

Kembell and her daughter joined us on the promenade, and we found a seat in the shadow of the wheelhouse and sat

for a long time talking of many things, watching the moonlight across the water. At last we arose to return, and Royce and Mrs. Kembell started on ahead.

"Two more days and we'll be at Harve," I said. "I'll be very sorry."

"Sorry? I'd never have suspected you of such a fondness for the ocean."

"Oh, it's not the ocean," I protested, and—with the moonlight and the soft night and the opportunity—the time and the place and the loved one,

all together—would have uttered I know not what folly had she not sprung suddenly forward with a sharp cry of alarm.

"Mr. Royce!" she cried. "Mother!"

They stopped and turned toward her just as a heavy spar crashed to the deck before them.

CHAPTER XV.

I UNDERSTOOD in a flash what had happened and sprang up the stairs to the upper deck, determined to have it out with our enemy once for all. I searched it over thoroughly, looking in and under the boats and behind funnels and ventilators, but could discover no sign of any one.

When I got back to the promenade a little crowd had gathered, attracted by the noise of the falling spar, which a dozen members of the crew were busy hoisting back into place.

"I do not see how those lashings could have worked loose," said the officer in charge.

I took a look at the lashings. They had not been cut, as I expected to find them, but had been untied. Martigny had doubtless worked at them while we sat there talking.

"Well, luckily, there's no damage done," observed Mr. Royce, with affected indifference, "though it was a close shave. If Miss Kembell hadn't called to us the spar would have struck us."

Mrs. Kembell closed her eyes with a giddy little gesture at the vision the words called up, and the officer frowned

in the captain came up, and the two stopped aside for a consultation in voices

so low that only an excited word of French was now and then audible. I turned to Miss Kembell, who was leaning against the rail with white face and eyes large with terror.

"But it was not an accident, Mr.

Lester," she whispered. "I saw a man leaning over the spar."

I nodded. "I don't doubt it in the least. But don't tell your mother. It will only alarm her needlessly. We'll talk it over in the morning."

She said good night and led her mother away toward their stateroom. I went at once in search of the ship's doctor and met him at the foot of the saloon staircase.

"How is Martigny, doctor?" I asked.

"Worse, I fear," he answered hurriedly. "He has just sent for me."

"Which room has he?"

"He's in 375, an outside room on the upper deck."

I went forward to the smoking room and looked over the colored plan of the ship posted there. A moment's inspection of it showed me how easily Mar-tinigny had eluded pursuit. He had only to walk twenty feet, open a door and get into bed again.

When I sat down next morning beside Miss Kembell she closed her book and turned to me with a very determined air.

"Of course, Mr. Lester," she began,

"if you think any harm can come from telling me, I don't want you to say a word, but I really think I'm entitled to an explanation."

"So do I," I agreed. "You've proved yourself a better guard than I. I'd forgotten all about Martigny. I was thinking—well, of something very different. I had no thought of danger."

"Not at all," she said quickly. "But I chanced to look up and see that dark

out, really, before I had time to think."

"It was just that which saved them."

"Yes; but, oh, I could think afterward! I'd only to close my eyes last night to see him there yet, peering down at us, waiting his opportunity.

And then, of course, I puzzled more or less over the whole thing."

"You shan't puzzle any more," I said.

Then I laid the case before her, step by step. She listened with clasped hands and intent face, not speaking till I had finished. Then she leaned back in her chair with a long sigh.

"Why, it's horrible!" she breathed.

"But you haven't given me your explanation yet, Mr. Lester."

"I haven't any explanation," I said

helplessly. "I've built up half a dozen theories, but they've all been knocked to pieces, one after the other. I don't know what to think, unless Miss Holladay is a victim of hypnotism or dementia of some kind."

"Sometimes she's nice and at other times she's horrid. It recalls Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, doesn't it?"

"Yes, it does. Only, as I say, such an explanation seems absurd."

"There's one theory which might explain it—part of it. Perhaps it wasn't

Miss Holladay at all who returned from Washington square with the new maid. Perhaps it was the other woman and the barred windows were really to keep Miss Holladay a prisoner."

"But she wasn't there!" I protested.

"We saw her when we gave her the money."

"Yes, in a darkened room, with a bandage about her forehead, so hoarse

she could scarcely speak."

I stopped a moment to consider.

"Remember, that would explain something which admits of no other reasonable explanation," went on my companion. "The barred windows and the behavior of the prisoner."

"It would explain that, certainly," I admitted, though at first thought the theory did not appeal to me. "You believe, then, that Miss Holladay was forcibly abducted?"

"Undoubtedly. If her mind was going to give way at all it would have done so at once and not two weeks after the tragedy."

"But if she had brooded over it," I objected.

"She wasn't brooding—at least she had ceased to brood. You have Mr.

Royce's word and the butler's word that she was getting better, brighter, quite like her old self again. Why should she relapse?"

"I don't know," I said helplessly.

"That affair last night has upset me so that I can't think clearly. I feel that I was careless—that I wasn't doing my duty."

"I shouldn't worry about it; though,

of course," she added a little severely,

"you've realized by this time that you alone are to blame for Martigny's presence on the boat."

"But I had to go to the Jourdain's,"

I protested, "and I couldn't help their going to him. To have asked them not to go would have made them suspect

me at once."

Relative to the vacancies on the Massachusetts Savings Bank Commission, for which George T. Sleeper of Winthrop and Fred W. Darling of Hyde Park are candidates, it is now rumored in State House circles that a bill will be reported providing for a single bank commissioner instead of three commissioners as the law now is. It is claimed that there are 220 candidates for the vacancies in the present board. The two candidates mentioned above are said to have very strong backing, and this paper has previously stated there can be no question of their fitness.

Keith is giving his patrons exceptionally meritorious programs at the present time. The State of Maine Club was organized in April of last year and went into possession of its new club-house on the corner of Somerset street and Ashburton place in June. Its present quarters were formerly occupied by the famous Twentieth Century Club. The State of Maine Club has refitted and refurnished the house and now has a most attractive and creditable home. The main room, where all the leading newspapers of Maine are on file, is probably larger and more pleasing than that of any other club in Boston. The club also runs an excellent cafe where it serves meals a la carte and table d'hôte at very moderate prices.

The purpose of the gentlemen who organized the club was to make an institution representative of the State of Maine. In order to attract a large membership from Maine, the dues for residents of the State have been fixed at a purely nominal five dollars initiation fee and three dollars a year. It is felt that if the advantages and facilities offered were more thoroughly known, every business man in the State would hasten to join. The central location of the club-house makes it a very convenient place for business appointments or as a place for out-of-town members to have their mail forwarded. There are now somewhat more than fifty members of the club, and the directors are Guy Murchie, W. E. B. Stevens of Boston, formerly of Pittsford, Weld A. Rollins of Boston, formerly of Portland; F. G. Pettikova of Boston, formerly of Calais; E. C. Mansfield of Alton, formerly of Camden; W. F. Garcelon of Boston, formerly of Lewiston; Dr. A. S. Whitmore of Boston, formerly of Bowdoinham and Brunswick; and W. F. Rogers of Boston, formerly of Greenville.

The Rockland members of the club thus far enrolled are W. T. Cook, C. E. Littlefield, Maynard S. Bird, W. O. Fuller, Jr., and H. Irving Hiss.

The Fenberg Stock Company Attraction Next Week at Farwell Opera House.

FENBERG COMEDY CO.

Speaking of the Fenberg Stock Company (Western) the Kennebec Journal says: "The Fenberg Stock Co. opened a three-night engagement at the opera house last evening before a well-filled house, presenting 'The Man Who Dared.' The comedy, by S. B. Smith, is a good performance that was much enjoyed, and the Fenberg players are much better than those with repertoire companies that have appeared here recently. The scenery was quite adequate for a production, and enjoyable specialties were sprinkled between the acts generally. The bicycle act of Millard Brothers was one of the best of the kind ever seen here. In the leading role of Louis Marteau, Jack Clifton Crawford (date of 'Mother Goose' company), in an amusing monologue; Messenger Boys trio, harmony and comedy; the Edgerton, an aerial acrobat, and Texanones and Wally, pleasing singers and dancers. The usual new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be exhibited in the kinetograph."

seen at Keith's over a year ago, that they were highly praised from an artistic standpoint and with the addition of several new subjects they will undoubtedly be fully appreciated by audiences hereabouts. The vaudeville proper and an unusual number of new entertainers the usual European attraction tailed. Included in the list will be found S. Miller Kent, the well-known "legitimate" actor, in a comedy sketch, entitled, "Just Dorothy"; Waterbury Brothers and Tenny, musical comedians; and a musical specialty, "Harmony on the Island"; Smith and Campbell, hilariously funny talking comedians; Waterbury trio of acrobats, just imported from Europe; and the Keith circuit, Clifton Crawford (date of "Mother Goose" company), in an amusing monologue; Messenger Boys trio, harmony and comedy; the Edgerton, an aerial acrobat, and Texanones and Wally, pleasing singers and dancers. The usual new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be exhibited in the kinetograph."

Ulcer of the Stomach

Insidious Nature of the Disease—How to Recognize and Cure It.

Ulcer of the stomach may exist for years without any marked symptoms, excepting those caused by indigestion. It is due to an inflammation which affects the membrane of the stomach so that it is eaten away by the gastric juices.

In good health, the stomach resists the action of the gastric juices, but when weakened, the membrane is badly nourished and the digestive fluids, keeping up until perforation of the stomach occurs. In advanced cases of ulcer of the stomach there is much discomfort after eating, with a constant gnawing sensation between meals, pain from the pit of the stomach, back to the shoulder blade.

At the first symptoms of indigestion, treatment should at once be started with Mi-o-na. This is a scientific remedy adapted specifically to one purpose, the cure of stomach troubles. It is so uniformly successful that C. H. Pendleton, Druggist and Optician, gives a signed guarantee with every 50 cent box that the money will be refunded if it does not cure.

Mi-o-na is not a patent or secret remedy, but is a combination of the purest and most reliable of remedies for strengthening the digestive organs and building up the whole system. Use it for a few days and there is no reason why you should not be able to eat any food you like at any time without fear of distress.

THOMASTON
The little Mi-o-na tablets sold by the G. I. Robinson Drug Co. have become deservedly popular. They guarantee that Mi-o-na will make thin people fat, regulate digestion, and increase health, or else there will be no charge for the remedy, and the purchase price will be returned on demand.

Mr. Bacon—When a woman tells a fairy story she always begins like this: "Once upon a time." Mrs. Bacon—Yes, and when a man tells a fairy story he always begins like this: "There now, dear, don't be angry with me; you see, it was like this."—Yonkers Statesman.

WAGES IN MAINE

Bakers Led Last Year in Average Annual Earnings.

There are 200 local labor organizations in 50 cities and towns in Maine and 194 labor unions reporting a total membership of 13,798, according to the annual report of Samuel W. Matthews, commissioner of labor and industrial statistics. The union membership is an increase of several hundred since the previous year. The average last time in 100 unions reported was 54 days. Several building trades and the granite and lime working industry all show lost time above the average, while all other trades show less than the average or overtime work, the pulp, sulphite and paper mill workers, the locomotive firemen and stationery employees showing overtime from nine to 27 days.

In the matter of daily wages, the average is $2.27. The bakers, masons, plumbers and granite cutters average $3 or over. In average annual earnings the bakers lead with $900 per year, while the plumbers, cigar makers, granite cutters, paper makers and locomotive firemen all exceed $700. Those averaging less than $500 are the painters, quarrymen, lime workers and suspenders workers. The average unions reporting was $755. The report says that 19 returns show an aggregate of $234,100 as the value of ready-made clothing plants. Twelve plants give $449,632 as the aggregate cost of materials and 15 give $1,052,200 as the aggregate value of their products. The total value of production is estimated at $2,200,000. The weekly wages give for men average $10.82, for women $6.78.

The Girl He Left Behind.

There is a public library in Baltimore that has a regulation by which any member wanting a particular book which is not "in" can by paying a small sum secure the next turn, and upon the book's coming in the librarian sends him a notification.

In this connection an attaché of the library tells of an amusing incident. A member desired a copy of a novel entitled "The Girl He Left Behind Him."

The book not being in, he made the customary deposit and in due course received a notification. This the member's wife received—to her alarm, at first—for it read as follows:

"Mr. Blank is informed that 'The Girl He Left Behind Him' is now in the library and will be kept for him till Friday morning next."—Success Magazine.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney trouble.

If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the urinary organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes the unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

CUTICURA REMEDIES POSSESS TRUE MERIT

"My face was afflicted with eczema in the year 1897. I used the Cuticura Remedies, and was entirely cured. I have been practicing medicine for sixteen years, and must say I find your Remedies A No. 1. You are at liberty to publish this letter, or any part of it. I remain, very truly yours, G. M. NO MORE LIQUOR ORDERS.

American Express Co. Receives Instructions Concerning Transportation of Intoxicants—C. O. D. Parcels a Thing of the Past.

Stringent orders have recently been issued to all local agents of the American Express Co. regarding the handling of consignments of liquor. The commission department, which has long been a source of convenience, will no longer be placed at the disposal of patrons who desire to send an order, with a money order, to Boston or elsewhere for the purchase of liquors. Daniel Webster, Jr., of Bangor, the State superintendent of the company, is quoted as follows regarding this new order:

"What we wish to avoid," said Mr. Webster, "is to connive in any way with liquor dealers or the liquor traffic in its broad sense. We have carry liquor, as we would anything else, but we have limited actions of agents to such an extent that we simply fulfill our legitimate duty as carriers."

"Prohibitive rules have been issued to all offices to prevent acceptance of orders for liquor in the commission department. We will buy a man a pair of shoes or a hat in Boston, but we will not buy liquor."

"No more C. O. D. parcels will be received. No delivery will be made to anybody except the bona fide consignee; no delivery will be made to a minor. Strict orders have been sent out not to secrete liquor or to carry it in misleading form. Any agent or messenger who tries any trick of this sort is running a big risk."

"The express company will do its duty as a common carrier, but that is all."

The spot selected for his final repose lies on the grassy slope, in front of and to the right of the historic Lee mansion and is regarded as one of the most beautiful sites in the home of the soldier dead, as it overlooks the nation's capital across the Potomac. Homage was paid by the Blue and the Gray.

Marshall Field's estate, which is worth at least $100,000,000, and maybe $150,000,000, is to be held as a trust for the three children of his son, with the exception of about $17,000,000 of which $8,000,000 is to go to the Field museum and $9,000,000 to his daughter in England. The Field children will probably have fortunes of about $50,000,000 each by the time they reach their majority.
