

UMC

.22s

They shoot Straight, Hit hard, and are sure fire

Their reputation is earned. From the time a UMC .22 cartridge starts to be made from a narrow band of copper, trained cartridge specialists watch over and inspect it in every detail of manufacture. Every bullet is made true to a hair's breadth, every bit of powder is carefully tested. And finally a certain percentage of finished cartridges are tried out for accuracy and penetration.

When you buy UMC .22's, you get the best that modern machinery, finest materials and cartridge specialists can give you.

WINTER BIRDS

RARE CASUAL VISITS OF THE GOLDFINCH AND THE CROWN-CAPPED REDPOLL.

The chicories bloomed yellow this morning in the heart of a world of snow. The fields were white with the accumulated fluff of the storm. Walls that were not buried were frosted with it and the delicate outlines of the trees were pencilled black against a gray February gloom that half shrouded the world. But the chicory grows tall, and the black, seed-bearing stem straggle through the snow all along the untrimmed borders of the country lane and climb above the drifts in the waste fields on either side.

Not even the roughest of February weather can take all the gold out of the goldfinch's feathers or any of it indeed out of his disposition. Summer or winter as he flies he calls "perchicoree," a cry that seems to lift him to the top of one more wave of his undulating flight. In winter it seems almost as if he knew the name of the plant he seeks and called it cheerily to his fellow. Here's chicory; here's chicory" he seems to say, and the flock swoops down and puts quivering bloom on all the dry stems. As he eats he calls "sweet; sweet" through the biting air and not even the carefully warmed and shielded canary in his southern window can rival the cheery content in the tone. It is no wonder that people call the goldfinch "wild canary." Both call "sweet; sweet" in identical tones and in song and coloring the two have much in common though in both the goldfinch excels the cage bird with a richness of contrast that only wild life can fully express. In summer the chicory brings us blue mist of dreams for the dawn of long bright days. In winter we can thank it again for hurrying to the roadsides the cherry bits of feathered sunshine and contentment. Even in winter the goldfinch does not forget to sing. Especially as spring draws near you may hear one warbling a little, sotto voce prelude which on some fine day is going to swell to a ecstatic, full throated song.

The yellow winter blossoms with their vivid markings of white, black and brown left the chicory stalks with a single motion of many wings as a sleigh came along. The power of the individuals of a flock of birds to act as one mechanism is always a new astonishment to me however many times I may see it in a day. The flight may be steady and uniform in a certain direction. Suddenly slanting away at a sharp angle, perhaps slanting back again in a fraction of a second, veering and wheeling again and and again, but always in perfect uniformity. It may be that one bird sees the danger or gets the new idea first and that the others catch the impulse from him, but if so it passes in no more than the space of a wing beat. The watching eye can discern no difference in time and the whole flock moves always as if each individual were a well tuned receiver and the thought came to all by wireless the vibration of the other reaching each at absolutely the same time. Looking again I thought, however, that this time one receiver was out of tune. In a birch near the chicory stems a single bird still sat, deftly plucking birch seeds from the brown cones on the tree. But a second look showed me that here was a different bird. Outlined against the bright light of the sky I did not at first make out his colors plainly but he was a trifle larger and I thought, a chubbier bird than the goldfinch.

While I watched he dropped lower and nearer, and I looked for him to turn a grayish white breast to me showing the tiny dark, dimple-like dot in the centre which is the badge of the tree sparrow. Yet I should have known that the bird was not big enough for a tree sparrow, which is more than an inch longer than the goldfinch. Then I did see his breast plainly and viewed it with a little exclamation of delight for here before

WINCHESTER

BLACK POWDER SHELLS

THE RED W BRAND

"Nublack" and "New Rival" are grand good shells: good in construction, good because primed with quick and sure primers, and good because carefully and accurately loaded with the best brands of powder and shot. They are favorites among hunters and other users of black powder shells on account of their uniform shooting, evenness of pattern and strength to withstand re-loading. A trial will prove their excellence.

The Marlin Repeating Shotgun

12 GAUGE

Made famous by its dependability. The solid top and side ejection keep gases and powder away from your eyes; help quick, effective repeat shots. Rain, sleet, snow and foreign matter can't get into the action. The mechanism is strong, simple, wear-resisting. The double extractors pull any shell instantly; two special safety devices prevent accidental discharge while action is unlocked, and an automatic recoil block makes bang fires harmless. All Marlins are strongly made, finely balanced, accurate, hard hitting guns, and are the quickest and easiest to take down and clean. Illustration shows Model 24 grade "A" 12 gauge; it has all the features that make for a perfect gun. Send three stamps postage today for our 136 page catalog describing the full Marlin line.

PROHIBITION OR LOCAL OPTION.

Phillips Man Takes up the Interesting Question.

Phillips, Maine, March 1, 1911. To the Citizens of Franklin County—

The most of the voters of Maine are believers in Prohibition and for the last thirty years have voted that way and have always been deceived by the so called Prohibition Law. The bill that has recently passed the House and Senate to re-submit that law to the people is the greatest step toward temperance that has been made in Maine during the last thirty years.

Prohibition that prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors. The Democratic party has been unjustly called the Rum Party; I believe in Prohibition and I am also a Democrat but I do not think that rum is confined to one party. We want Prohibition that will stop the illegal sale of liquors, by illegal sale, we mean sale of liquor to minors, the use of the kitchen bar rooms, the pocket peddlars and other cases of the same kind. Liquor has always been bought, sold and used and if we cannot stop its traffic altogether, let us have what we do have, done in a lawful way.

Local option is the only way to get prohibition. It will stop the sale of poor liquors, close the kitchen bar-rooms and will stop our young people that are growing up to make the next generation, from getting liquors that degenerate them in both mind and body.

Local option does not mean the towns of Franklin county would have bar-rooms on every corner. We don't want such things in our small towns. If the people in Lewiston, Portland or Bangor want bars, they should have them, they always have, and people paying a high licence to run such places, would be the first ones to stop graft and illegal sales that are going on at the present time in all our small towns as well as in the larger places.

I ask the citizens of Franklin county to read this carefully and think it over. Look your own town over, closely, and then if you want to have prohibition, let us have laws that prohibit. Harry S. Bates.

Master Reno Keene has nearly recovered from the whooping cough.

A MENTAL FRENZY.

Some of the Things a Man Saw in Delirium Tremens.

Charles Roman gives a record of his own experiences as a victim of delirium tremens. It is a remarkable psychological document, comparing favorably in interest and as a piece of writing with De Quincey's "Confessions of an Opium Eater." Following is a brief extract which gives some suggestions of the things the patient saw:

"Up to this point the zoological visitations had been intermittent. During the next few days, however, I saw all that I could stand. I saw such prehistoric creatures as exist nowhere except in museums. I saw rats as they marched past my door or flew through my windows or floated in my tub. Elephants strode in and out with lumbering steps and swaying trunks. At times they seated themselves and gazed at me with their thunderous bellows or their ear splitting screeches. They flaunted their snouts high in the air and guffawed. Monkey jumped from limb to limb in the trees outside my room. Snakes of all colors, of all descriptions, reptiles with fantastic figures upon their backs and with eyes of sapphire or ruby or of milk white marble, wriggled upon the floor or crept in or out of heretofore unseen crevices in the walls and dropped into the water in my tub. They swam around and around me, squirming under me, with their tongues darting in and out with ferocious activity. Giraffes craned their necks around the doorways or through the windows, chickens roosted over my head and cackled, dogs and wolves ran around the room barking and snapping, pigeons flew from one corner to another and cooed. Lions I heard roaring, and tigers I saw while they opened their mouths, like huge cats, in silent, angry disapproval, licking their whiskers and wetting their paws softly and daintily—this and far more.

"I saw crocodiles in droves. Fat, scaly, glistening beasts they were, with frothy, foaming jaws, long, sweeping tails, crouching upon or creeping along the foot of my bathtub or my bed and grinding their yellow teeth in gluttonous anger as they contemplated me, their prey. I saw the reeking, slippery body of a crocodile slide into the water of my tub. Then as I shrank in breathless horror to escape I saw his greedy, filmy eyes arise to the surface, with his cold, foul chin flush with mine. His icy beak touched my cheek. The hot vapor from his lungs seared my flesh. I turned as cold as ice and trembled like a leaf in a storm."—American Magazine.

The appearance of Hon. L. T. Carleton of Winthrop, for 14 years chairman of the Maine Fish and Game Commission, in favor of abolishing the Inland Commission and the Sea and Shore Commission and re-appointing a new joint commission, brought out the following from the Portland Press:

Former Game Commissioner L. T. Carleton did not realize what a good thing it would be for the state to combine the offices of commissioner of sea and shore fisheries and game commissioner until a few days ago. He would not shed many tears if his former associate on the fish and game commission, Mr. Brackett, were legislated out of office.

COMPLIMENTS TO REPRESENTATIVE AUSTIN BY AN OHIO SUBSCRIBER.

Moscow, Ohio, Feb. 22, 1911.
To the Editor of Maine Woods:

I wish to thank some unknown friend for the kindness of presenting me with one year's subscription to your most valuable paper and if he would let himself be known to me, I would try and return the kindness in some way.

I see there is quite a discussion as to game laws and protecting game. Now this state has no large game and I think Maine will be in the same boat if they keep on at the rate of killing as the past season. Of course I am writing from what I have read for I never was in the state of Maine. But I know there are men that if they knew there was only one deer left would claim they were yet plentiful. The great draw back in protecting game and fur lies with the men in the House of Representatives. Usually when a bill is presented to protect skunk they say, "no not us, to protect something that catches the farmers chickens, or game birds."

They never studied the habits of this great fur bearer and if they had they would find out he isn't guilty of one-half that is credited to him. I have found him to subsist mostly on insects and mice and of all the dens I have seen I never saw a chicken feather in one. But I do think you have the right man in Mr. Austin of Phillips. I think if you had a few more like him you would have better game laws. Now hoping Maine Woods plenty of sunshine.

IN FAVOR OF RESTOCKING OUR PONDS.

East Livermore Mills, Maine.

Feb. 20, 1911.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

I am heartily in favor of restocking our ponds and lakes. For one I prefer lake trout, trout and salmon. I am not very friendly to the yellow perch, white perch, black bass or pickerel. My first choice would be the lake trout. I would select that fish for this reason. The home of the lake trout is the pond or lake, as the case may be. It lives and spawns in the lake, while the trout, its home is the brook. And the sneakers fish them out and a few get quite a lot of them.

I went once with Mr. Edgecomb of Livermore Falls fishing. We had for guide Stanley Savage. I saw them when they come in with lots of little fish or fry, so called. They put them into the pond. The water was two or three feet deep when they put them in. The same day and in the afternoon I dipped up some minnows to fish with and put them in my minnow pail. When we went to bait up we were all just surprised. We found lots of those little fry in the pail dead, those little chubs had and the disappointment of the late risers he thinks counterbalances the 2 extra weeks for hotels, guides and those who would fish at spawning beds. Strange indeed.

Let us look into the case from a standpoint of preserving game; not selfish desire to take game.

First—Any man or set of men who w. fish a spawning bed should be deprived from fishing at all and heavily fined. This opinion and such a law is already ruling in nearly all Northern states, and selfishness has no place in the consideration.

It is murder to angle on a spawning bed. How long would the human race last if it was allowed to kill the off-spring at or before mating?

September 1st on Speckled and Oct 1st on salmon. Trout is a general law for closed season, and was not extended purposely to keep fish hogs away from the spawning beds.

Never mind what you and I want to do in a selfish way. It is keeping you and I and all others from such acts that Game Laws, good sentiment and honesty are for. Fine and jail any man who will angle at a spawning bed.

I read in your last issue an idea from Mr. Geo. F. Mullet from Malden He is quoted as saying, "Let each had thrown them up, they were gorged with them. Where they put them in the water was just alive with chub and flat fish I do not think many of them got away from them. Those that put them in went by an ideal place. A little pool and no fish there to eat them up and plenty of little stones for protection.

For restocking our ponds and lakes I am not much in favor of little fry or fingerlings. The fry are much to small and the fingerlings have been too long in the hatchery for them to look out for themselves. For one I think the advanced fry would give better result all round. Also, I would like to see all ponds and lakes in our state screened. The towns and state raise money the same as they do for state roads. And not let any person or persons have fish with out the pond or lake was screened and prevent all fishing from the outlets of all waters that are screened. Doubtless you will not like all of my ideas I am only one. L. P. Gould.

MR. STANTON'S VIEW IN REGARD TO EXTENSION OF ANGLING.

Utica, N. Y., March 1, 1911.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

The resident of Rangeley who writes to extend angling from Oct. 1st to Oct. 15th makes a strange argument.

Because some enthusiastic hog fishes at daybreak and leaves none for the balance of the party that day, person fish as he pleases and not regulate the use of hooks by law." This is a bad sentiment to even entertain and the worst effect on morals to advocate in print. It allows men to be fish hogs. What a loss to protection to allow a half dozen lines out from one boat all loaded with gang hooks. I fear Mr. Mullet has a trace of selfishness regarding protection, or a possible reason, he had little experience in the latter. The average man who is honest at home, in social and financial affairs, is a game law breaker in the forest, "and this fact is the base of action to frame, and operate game laws to protect, but not to oblige fishermen."

S. E. Stanton.

VIEWS ON GAME LAWS.

I have read the opinions of others in Maine Woods with much interest. I think some of the changes suggested all right but I should not want to see the law protecting the doe deer and limiting a man to one buck. I think this would be one of the most destructive laws to deer that could be made. The woods would stink with rotten venison and it is also the opinion of the oldest guides, in this section, men who want to see laws that are for the best protection of our game as hundreds of hunters that take no interest in our game only to kill all they can at any time, would shoot does and lambs for the sake of shooting or if they were not sure it was a buck they would shoot and loo for the horns afterwards, just the same as they have done dozens of cow and calf moose. For my part I can see no need of changing our present laws for this part of the state at least.

We have ten moose today to every one we had ten years ago in this part of the state. Some fine heads as anyone could ask for come from this section of the state every year.

No less than four of these big animals have wandered out and crossed our little settlement since close time.

Deer without doubt in this section have also been on the increase for the last fifteen years. Some have suggested a close time on bull moose and open season on cows. This would mean only a short time before we would have no moose at all as cow moose are the tamest game animal in the woods and could be shot by any school boy or farmer.

I would like to see a law prohibiting carrying of firearms in the woods at any time during close season.

There are men who shoot deer around the water in the summer time when they are tame and have no fear of man. We should not overlook the protection of our trout ponds and streams. There is a whole lot of men who put up a big howl about the slaughter of game, who never shoot a deer but would catch the last trout or salmon left in the pond to spawn. These fish hogs who never hunt or travel in the woods in the fall know very little about the conditions of game in the woods. There are also a lot of non-resident hunters who come to Maine to hunt perhaps a week or ten days in a poor place, under hard conditions of weather and with a guide little or no good and then go home and complain of the scarcity of game.

What is their opinion worth on the general supply of game for the entire season all over the state.

There is one change we should have in our moose law for Hancock and Washington counties we get snow and cold weather so much later than they that our moose season opens 2 weeks do in the northern part of the state too early. It ought to open two weeks later and run that much later in a season. Moose will not keep under the same conditions of weather as deer. I a sportsman shoots a moose the first part of the season, he is obliged to get right out with him before he spoils and if we had our moose season run late enough to get snow hunting, there would be more sportsmen come here to hunt moose.

FIVE ENOUGH FOR ANY REASONABLE MAN.

Five partridges are enough for any reasonable man for a day's sport.

If the law is to be changed on woodcock would make the limit ten instead of fifteen. Automobiles used in making quick time between covers, skimming over cover after another, going over a large territory during the day are responsible for bagging the birds more than anything else and are largely to blame for cleaning out our game birds.

Pistol. Bert had been out setting some traps and having no other gun with him, on his way back to camp, he met a bear crawling out of its hole. Lucky for Roberts—it happened to be a tight squeeze for the bear, for he was only about twenty feet away from the animal and his first bullet did not do much damage. The second, however, took the bear directly back of the eye and made him harmless. I know this story is true, for we were estimating timber close by and heard both shots. We helped Roberts pull the bear the rest of the way out of its hole."

This incident is a characteristic tribute to the Stevens and any rifle, shotgun or pistol branded "Stevens" is always reliable under all circumstances.

MAINE WOODS,

Phillips,

Maine.

Thornton Park

at the foot of Mt. Zircou, the third highest mountain in Maine. It is surrounded by farm and timberlands of seven hundred acres. Has an artificial pond fed by two natural trout brooks of pure spring water from the mountain and is alive with trout varying from 14 to 2 pounds. Protected by state laws. We took from the trout last year over 200,000 eggs which went to the state hatchery at Oquossoc, Maine.

There is not a more ideal spot in the state of Maine for a private summer home or a club house. The scenery is beautiful with nice paths through the forests, where are plenty of deer, partridge and small game. There is a large level plot suitable for golf course or tennis court. The property occupies the entire valley, is only about four miles from Rumford Falls and the Maine Central rail road and is reached by a good carriage road.

We offer this property for sale.

THE DEER IN THE WOODS.

A True Story of An Auburn Man of the Friendliness of the Deer.

Mr. A. E. Rowell, formerly of Auburn is now located with the Berlin Mills company in New Hampshire, but he still retains his home in Auburn. He writes a friend in these cities that he has been having some unique experiences in the northern woods this winter. The snow is deep and the deer are easily approached and with him there seems to be some psychological attraction that rings these forest game around him. Among other things, Mr. Rowell says:

"Speaking about tame deer, I had occasion to be several miles back in the woods while snow-shoeing and saw the deer tracks were very thick. On looking around saw several deer, one in particular not a very large one, that seemed to come nearer than the rest, so I started along. That deer followed me all the forenoon, but kept getting nearer so when I stopped to get a fire to make my tea, that deer kept hanging around, so I put some of my dinner in my dish I had made my tea in and put it out and to my astonishment the deer walked up and ate and drank my tea. I have been in the woods half my life, but never saw such a tame deer. I saw by this that the deer were very hungry, so I cut down two or three small cedar trees for them to feed on. The next day, when I came back, I think as near as I could count there were 69 deer, feeding on that cedar.

I snow-shoed right by within a few feet of them and they did not even look up. I think I might have caught one, but being so far from camp I did not think it worth while, as I had plenty of food on hand.

"Several years ago I was out still hunting. I sat down on a log to rest and a deer came up and rubbed his head over me. I had some crackers in my pocket. I gave her some and she went away. I heard a rustle in the leaves; looked around, saw two small deer they came up and played around me for 20 minutes. The pleased me so I began to laugh and that frightened them so they walked away. The nearest they got to me was just two feet.

Mr. Rowell says that cedar trees are very attractive to the deer as food and if one is cut down in deep snow it will bring them around by the dozen to feed.

WHITIN—HOUGHTON.

Church Wedding of Popular Weld Young Lady.

The most fashionable society wedding in this part of Maine for a number of years, took place at the First Congregational church in Weld last week, when Miss Madge Staples Houghton, daughter of Hon. and Mrs. J. S. Houghton, among the best known residents of Weld and Frederick Birney Whitin, formerly of Whitinsville, Mass., who has lived in Weld the past few years. The church was beautifully and elaborately decorated, there being large evergreen arches at both entrances. The front of the auditorium was draped from the center of the sides with evergreen, white ribbons and lilies of the valley. There was also a forest of evergreen on each side, and the effect was most pleasing.

At 10 o'clock the wedding party entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played on the organ by Mrs. Lona Wilkins of Wilton. The officiating clergyman, Rev. Charles Harbutt of Portland led the procession, followed by the best man, Rev. G. H. Graham and the groom, both of whom wore the regulation black. Next came the ribbon girls, four intimate friends of the bride, Mrs. Gertrude Trask, Mrs. Hattie Blunt, Mrs. Blanche Carr and Mrs. Lillian Maxwell, and four cousins of the bride, Mrs. Flora Colburn, Mrs. Jennie Morton, Mrs. Nina Swett and Miss Angie Swett. The ribbon girls all wore beautiful costumes and daybreak flowers. The matron of honor was Mrs. Loyal Alden of Livermore Falls, who wore white bengaline silk, a white beaver hat, and pearl gray gloves and white pinks. The ribbon girls divided in the main aisle and the bride, on the arm of her father, Hon. J. S. Houghton, passed through toward the altar. The bride's beautiful costume was white silk cretonne with silver lace and pearl trimmings, a brooch, pearls and diamonds with platinum setting, white tulle veil with hyacinths, and carried a beautiful bouquet of bride roses.

The wedding was very impressive, the double ring service being used, the ceremony being in full form. The guests from out of town included John Bass of Wilton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grover of Jay, George Carpenter of Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Chandler of Phillips, Mrs. F. A. Russell of Wilton, Mrs. J. S. Swett, cut glass cruet, Mrs. Nellie Beedy, Auburn; cut glass vase, Charles Dudley, Whitinsville, Mass.; Bohemian dish, Miss Margaret Adams and Miss Eleanor Adams, Brookline, Mass.; gold cream ladle, Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilbur Irving Follett Little, son of J. H. Little of Oakland, is probably Roy Swett and Eastman Judkins of Carthage. Lohengren's wedding march was played as the party left the church.

After the ceremony an elaborate wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, after which the wedding party was driven to Wilton by C. A. Miller of that village, where the bride and groom took the afternoon train for New York, from whence they sailed for Port Antonio, Jamaica, where the honeymoon will be spent. They will also visit several other places in the south before returning to Weld, where they will reside for the present at least.

There were a great many costly gifts, from friends in Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and elsewhere among which were Stag handle carving set, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hale, Portland; sugar tongs, Sarah Wheeler and Mabel Pierce; spoon tray, Mrs. George Walters; gold pins, Mrs. Mary Whitcomb, Jamaica Plain, Mass.; two sterling desert spoons, Camp Recreation; brass fern dish, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Julia, Lewiston; percolator, Mr. and Mrs. H. the youngest hunter to land a bear in California. This youthful nimrod, who has just passed his 9th birthday, had the satisfaction of bring down a 175 pound bear on his father's orchard lands in Plumas county with a .22 caliber Marlin rifle.

Mr. Little, owns a lot of orchard land near Virginia, Calif. and during a visit to the place the owner found that bears had been playing havoc with his trees. So one morning he and Wilbur went out gunning for bears. The first one they sighted was close enough for the boy to draw a bead on, and when the bullet from the little Marlin reached the bear Bruin curled up and died on the spot. An examination proved that the boy had hit the bear in the eye.

The young hunter has not been handling fire arms long, as he first became the owner of a gun six months ago. He does all of his

The boy has preserved all the skins by tanning them and expects to add several new varieties gradually including a California mountain lion, of which there are a number in that locality. He considers California the hunters paradise and the Marlin rifle the only gun made for accurate shooting.

Mr. Phil Bekeart, Pacific Coast Agent for the Marlin Firearms Co., presented him with a watch fob in recognition of his prowess with the Marlin rifle.

MR. GAY AS LUMBERMAN.

Ed Gay, proprietor of Clear Water camps, in the role of a lumberman, is something new or while it is not new news, has not yet been mentioned in the papers as yet.

There are no heavy spruce, pine or hemlock logs neither is it the heavier hard wood, just alders which are cut, peeled and sawed into four-foot lengths and then are ready for shipment to Massachusetts, where the stuff is used in making smokeless powder. The alder has long been a menace to the pastures of farmers and while growing upon moist soil theoretically it does not find high land unsuitable for its home but even there grows and flourishes like the proverbial green bay tree.

Mr. Gay has had quite a force of men working all winter on the land of George B. Jennings. It is understood that the bark of the alder has a market value and is carefully preserved and shipped.

Should Mr. Gay's operations in this line be continued he will come to be regarded as a public benefactor and it is to be hoped that he will make a substantial profit that the unsightly bushes may be totally eradicated.

MAINE WOODS BRINGS PLEASANT REMEMBRANCES.

Greeley, Colo., Feb. 21, 1911.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

Although I have moved to Colorado for a short time, I enjoy getting my Maine Woods even more than when at home as it always brings so many pleasant remembrances with it.

In a recent issue I noticed a letter in which the writer favors the use of the gang hook.

How any one who has the fishing interests of our state at heart can do this is more than I can tell.

In my opinion the gang hook is not only cruel and deadly but a most unsportsmanlike device as by its use a great many small fish are killed or disabled where with the single hook if they strike and are not hooked, they usually go free without a scar.

I have never used a gang hook in the past and have found that when I got back to camp at night I could show as good a catch as the man who had and also show it I think, with much more birds and a clearer conscience.

Hoping a law will be passed to prohibit the use of this hook in the near future, I remain,

Yours truly,
D. F. Woodcock.

THAT

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—MRS. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Nothing we know of will do this so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

DISTRICT MEETING.

Independent Order of Odd Fellows
Held With Mt. Saddleback Lodge of Phillips.

Wednesday evening, March 1, the District meeting of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows was held in Odd Fellows hall, Phillips, with Mt. Saddleback lodge. Governor King lodge of Kingfield and Entwistle lodge of Rangeley, being in this district, also participated in the festivities of the evening.

The regular business of the meeting was dispensed with, after which the second degree was conferred on two candidates by Governor King lodge and the third degree on four candidates by Mt. Saddleback lodge, and the work was done in a very creditable manner by both teams.

The plans for the program of the evening were so well carried out that there was no time something was not going on during the absence of the degree team. The company of about 130 members were favored with songs by Frank Davis, a declamation by H. O. White, and George W. Grover, in his representation of "Uncle Sam," very cleverly told the audience what he should do if he had any governing power. The railroads would all be consolidated and he would bring Port Rico up nearer to the United States, where he thought it ought to be, and then he would have excursions from all parts of the world that would give all of the people an opportunity to visit the island.

W. S. Toothaker recited an original poem, which was very befitting to the occasion and which caused considerable laughter. The poem was illustrated by the proverbial "goat," which has been used previously in a burlesque degree, and in order to appreciate the tales that have been told regarding this wonderful animal, he must be seen.

OPEN TO ALL REGISTERED GUIDES

On Monday, June 26, 1911, Maine Woods will give away a Maine manufactured guide' canoe absolutely free of charge. The canoe will be disposed of through a voting contest and will be given to the registered Maine Guide who receives the largest number of votes. Any registered guide in Maine may compete and the one having the largest number of votes at the close of the contest will be the winner.

Rules of the Contest.

It is essential to the contest that the names of not less than two contestants appear and remain actively engaged until the close. In the event of the withdrawal of all active candidates but one, there can be no contest and the prize will be withdrawn.

A coupon will be printed in every issue of Maine Woods until and including Thursday June 22, 1911, which will contain the last coupon. The contest will close at this paper's business office at 7.30 o'clock p. m. the following Monday, June 26, when the votes will be counted by a committee representing the leading contestants.

1. For every yearly new subscriber to this paper (8-page outing edition) at $1, 200 votes will be given. For every new subscriber for the local edition (12 pages) at $1.50 a year, 300 votes will be given. A new subscriber may pay as many years in advance as he wishes, and receive votes at the rate of 200 for each $1, and 300 for each $1.50 a year paid, but all these payments must be made in advance at one time.

2. For each $1 paid by present subscribers, either arrearages of accounts or in advance on present subscriptions, and whether for the outing edition or local edition, 100 votes will be allowed.

3. Changes in subscription from one member to another of the same family, etc., made for the obvious purpose of securing the increased number of votes given to new subscribers, cannot be permitted.

4. Each issue of Maine Woods will contain one coupon which, when filled out and delivered at the Maine Woods office, will count as one vote.

There will be no single votes for sale; votes can only be obtained as above set forth or by clipping from the paper the votes that appear below.

Votes will be counted each Thursday during the contest, and the figures of such counting printed in the following issue of the paper.

When a subscription is sent in, please mention the name of the party whom you wish to receive the votes, as no votes can be given if not taken at the time the subscription is paid.

All communications should be addressed to "Voting Contest, Maine Woods Office, Phillips, Maine."

Wm Arnold, Eustis
Chas H Collins, Norcross, Maine,

At the conclusion of the meeting and entertainment a fine supper of baked beans and brown bread, pastry and fruit was served in the banquet hall.

Special trains were run from Kingfield and Rangeley to attend this meeting and it was in the "wee sma' hours" when they took their departure

Much credit is due the District Deputy Grand Master, Mr. Fred B. Davenport, for the success of the evening, as he worked with untiring effort to make the affair enjoyable to all, and the report of the District meeting will be recorded as being a most pleasant evening spent in Odd Fellowship in Phillips.

WINTER BIRDS.

they do not come at all or at least so few in number that I miss them for a season. Yet whether rare or common I never get a first good look at one of them without a little exclamation of delight. Here is a bird that, back to, shows to the casual glance merely the grayish browns of a wintering sparrow. To be sure he is a redpoll and his crown-cap is bright red, though you may not see it that way. Often redpolls' name plate looks at first glimpse no brighter than the red-brown cap of some sparrows. It is when he fearlessly faces you at a distance of a rod or two that you get your thrill of delight. Here on the breast of this Northern-bred bird, a winter wanderer only so far south as our inclement, snow-clad fields, is the soft flush of a tropic dawn, a pink such as I have seen before the swift day out of the southern margins of the Gulf stream. The redpoll never gets far enough south to see this and the thought that gave birth to the exquisite flush must have come in some other way. The color suggests the rose-red of the breast and under wing-coverts of the rose-breasted grosbeak, yet it is far more delicate than that, nor do I recall any feather of gorgeous tropic bird that matches it. How it came out of the frozen North it is hard to fancy unless the brooding mother looks often from her nest in the dark evergreen forests of the far Canadian wilds on the quivering flush of the aurora and thus transmits it from the cool sky to the breasts of her nestlings. Out of the mystery of birth and brooding wonderful things come to pass in ways we cannot fathom. Surely no sweeter gift of beauty ever came from mother love than this.—Winthrop Packard in Transcript.

Comden bay, 5,000 miles northeast of Nome, is the objective point of a cruise which C. C. Gaisford of Tacoma will undertake this spring in a 300-ton boat fitted with steam or sail. Writing to friends in Spokane Mr. Gaisford says his plans include a full complement of whalers, adding that while they are plying their calling in the nothern waters he will attend personally to the trading with the native Esquimaux. He will remain two years.

Mr. Gaisford has mined in Alaska, by primitive methods in the early days and with the big dredger and steam thawer in later years, but has come to the conclusion that there is more real excitement and a greater degree of pleasure with more chance of sure profits in trading the food stuffs and wearing apparel and trinkets of civilization for the furs and ivory and handiwork of the natives.

"I find the Esquimaux a good class of people to deal with after they have confidence in the trade," Mr. Gaisford says, "but the latter is requisite to work among them successfully today, though the fact that in the early days of their trading with the whites they were made the victims of the work of the commercial sharks. They are peaceful and I cannot recall ever having heard of an instance where they quarreled or had trouble among themselves."

Mr. Gaisford added that he had conceived the idea of trading with the natives from his experience with them in a number of cruises, made in a small launch, and during which he had accumulated as curios many beautiful and useful articles, and had also learned on his return here that all of the more beautiful and high-priced furs coming from the far north were shipped to New York and London.

"The people of the Pacific slope country are just as able to pay for these luxuries," he continued, "as they are either in New York or London and they are just as much entitled to them as the eastern or European people."

C. E. Ordish of Libby, Mont., who claims the season's championship as lion hunter of the west, has advised J. F. Clancy, clerk of the superior court of Columbia country, Wash., that he will bring his pack of trained lion dogs to that part of the Spokane country and close his season there late in the spring.

Mr. Ordish says he has killed lions this winter and claims a record of 83 in the last four years.

"I have two of the best lion dogs in the world," writes the hunter, "and I hunt on snow exclusively."

Stockmen of the mountain country will welcome the hunter, since scores of sheep, cattle and horses have been killed this winter by lions.

Miss Kathleen Laird, daughter of Fred Laird a prominent mining man in Spokane, has adopted a cub coyote as a pet. The young woman, who is a conservatory student at Brunot Hall appeared in the fashionable residence district on a Sunday afternoon, recently, and created a furore among the society folk. The animal was discovered in the outskirts of the city and was taken in hand by officers of the Humane Society, from whom Miss Laird purchased it.

We have received a photograph from Mr. E. Spitzer of West Senora, Ohio, recently representing a big bunch of game taken at Grindstone, Maine by a Ohio party last fall.

Warning to Railroad Men.

Look out for severe and even dangerous kidney and bladder trouble resulting from years of railroading. Geo. E. Bell, 639 Third St., Fort Wayne, Ind., was many years a conductor on the Nickel Plate. He says: "Twenty years of railroading left my kidneys in terrible condition. There was a continual pain across my back and hips and my kidneys gave me much distress, and the action of my bladder was frequent and most painful. I got a supply of Foley Kidney Pills and the first bottle made a wonderful improvement and four bottles cured me completely. Since being cured I have recommended Foley Kidney Pills to many of my railroad friends." W. A. D. Cragin, Phillips
