

GEORGE W. RANGER.

Friends were shocked to hear that Mr. George Warren Ranger of Pleasant street had passed away Friday afternoon. He had not been very well for several days but he was up and dressed each day.

He had been afflicted with a liver and stomach trouble and also by old army diseases which confined him to the house at times, which always affected his heart. He had had medical attendance and another physician was called Friday but he became unconscious and at about 4 o'clock was gone.

Mr. Ranger was born sixty-seven years ago in the town of Hollis, New Hampshire later moving to Massachusetts. He acted as orderly for a captain during the first year of the civil war, afterward enlisting and serving nine months. He returned to Maine and reenlisted in the 6th Maine Battery remaining till the close of the war. He traveled quite extensively through this country and to South America for a number of years, finally, settled at Fairbanks in the North part of Farmington where he bought the mill privilege and kept a general store being postmaster for many years.

Mr. Ranger and Miss Mary Jane Gray, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eliphaz Gray, were married in 1876. About fifteen years ago they built a handsome two-story residence on Pleasant street and on the lot south erected a large store. After several years he sold his store and retired though still keeping his property at Fairbanks.

Mr. Ranger made conditions that it should be properly cared for by the town, offered to have erected on the park just north of his Pleasant street home a monument in memory of the soldiers of Farmington who died in the Civil war. The monument was erected and was dedicated June 17, 1904, a plain square-based shaft tapering toward the top with proper inscriptions. Mr. Ranger afterward gave a large flagstaff from which a large flag floated during Patriotic Anniversaries. He himself hung it out on Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays this last February. He also had a large staff and flag on his lawn from which the colors was displayed. He was not a member of the G. A. R. though always much interested in all that pertained to the army. He was also a Mason and a Knight Templar, a member of the lodges here. He was a great lover of flowers and children. A man ever ready to help with advice which he, from his long business experience, was qualified to give.

The funeral was held from the house Sunday at 2 o'clock, the pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Canham officiating and a choir, Messrs. Sawyer and Merrill and Misses Florence Robinson and Edith Goodwin with Miss Annie Riggs as accompanist, sang "Abide with me" and "Nearer My God to Thee," his favorite hymns. The bearers were Messrs. George M. Currier, Fred G. Paine, Harry M. Pierce and Henry Russell. Fred P. Adams had charge. As the procession started from the street the Methodist bell tolled his age. A brother soldier hung Mr. Ranger's large flag at half-staff on the Park where it hung through Saturday and Sunday till after the services.

Many beautiful flowers consisting of set pieces, wreaths and cut flowers were sent from friends from far and near. The casket was placed in the tomb.

Mr. Ranger leaves a widow and a daughter also a sister, Mrs. Caroline F. Wyman of Cambridge, Mass., the only member of his father's family now living, besides nieces and nephews. He will be greatly missed by neighbors and friends.

A FIERCE NIGHT ALARM

Is the hoarse, startling cough or the suddenly attacked by croup. Often it aroused Lewis Chamblin of Manchester, O., (R. R. No. 2) for their four children were greatly subject to croup. "Sometimes in severe attacks," he wrote, "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup and for coughs, colds or any throat or lung trouble." So do thousands of others. So may you. AMONG THE CHURCHES.

Tuesday, April 4, 7.30 P. M. Congregational monthly meeting.
Thursday, April 6, 7.30 P. M. mid-week prayer meeting.

All are invited to attend these services.

Rev. M. S. Hutchins preached at the Union church Sunday morning upon "The Naturalness of the Life of Jesus." The text was John 1:14, "and the word was made flesh and dwelt among us."

We each have in our mind a summary of the life of Jesus. First there was the coming heralded by the angles in messages heard by the shepherds of the Christ child to the manger at Bethlehem. Afterward the visit of the wise men from afar with gifts and homage. Then the little family fled into Egypt. Coming back there was the life in Nazareth when Jesus was twelve, there was the journey to Jerusalem with the ceremonies according to the custom of his people. But little is told of him before he reached the age of thirty years, but we know that he lived at Nazareth, working at least a part of the time with his father in the shop; after the death of his father helping in the support of his mother and of his brothers and sisters.

When he was thirty years of age he went down to the Jordan where John the Baptist was preaching repentance to multitudes who came to hear him. Jesus was baptized by him and very soon met the temptation of the wilderness. He came from there to a work of teaching, healing and comforting. He had the profoundest sympathy and friendliness for both the rich and poor, for the ruler who sought him and for the social outcast. His teaching was continually of his Father and of his thoughts for the world; and it impressed the majesty of the Golden Rule. On the Mount of Transfiguration his disciples saw his true glory. After three years of kindness and helpfulness there was the agony in Gethsemane and the cruel death. There was the mourning of his friends and the joy of the resurrection morn; the days when he met and spoke with his disciples, then the going away to his Father.

This life was natural in its relation to the world. As weariness and temptations, as joy and sorrow came to others in the world it came to him. There is advantage to us in knowing this. He who never knew temptation, who was apart from the friendships, from all the experiences that we know could never be one to whom we would turn when need pressed heavily upon us. But feeling the burdens of a human life he speaks to us.

There is another way in which the life of Jesus is natural. Let us send our thoughts along the occurrences that have made the history of the past. Before the morning stars sang together, while creation was but chaos. God was at work. Through all the story of the formation of the earth, of the coming of the life upon it, until man was formed in the image of God, in his image because master of a will, because having a mind capable of fellowship with God. God's work may be seen. There God was with man as he advanced in comprehension of truth. First there was the savage state in which man thought of little save the supply of his primal needs. Afterward there was the revelation of God. Then came the knowledge that God was for all nations, watching over the whole world. Man's mind delved in philosophy reaching the richness of the Grecian thought. Yet it looked for something better. A great German historian and student who studied the philosophy of Socrates and Plato, and of other famous writers, studied the Bible also, simply as literature, having no faith in its revelations. He says that the result of his study was a belief in the Bible because in Jesus Christ he found the satisfaction for the common yearning of all the past.

Had Jesus not lived, life would have been like a promise of morning showing in the purpling of the mountains and the flushing of sky fading away into darkness. A promise of morning without its dawn.

The life of Jesus besides its relations to the past, has relation to the future. It is the foundation for all the perfection of love, righteousness and peace for which we hope in human attainment.

Because God is what he is, the life of Jesus is the most natural thing in history. It is the need of all coming ages.

The work of religion for man must be from within. Its blessing to him is not its outward forms but its inward spirit. God's purpose is to bring men to have fellowship with himself. Shall we not give our allegiance to him whose life teaching leads us toward God. It is natural for a tree to grow upward toward the light. The natural growth of the soul is toward God. Let us give ourselves to the mastery of Jesus; go forward wanting to know more of all that he will teach us. He will lead us into love and sympathy and those things which will bring God into our lives while we find in Jesus essential salvation.

LIFE GUARDS.

The Life Guards are two regiments of cavalry forming part of the British household troops. They are gallant soldiers, and every loyal British heart is proud of them. Not only the King's household, but yours, ours, everybody's, should have its life guards. The need of them is especially great when the great foes of life, diseases, find allies in the very elements as colds, influenza, eastern, the grip and pneumonia do in the stormy month of March. The best way that we know of to guard against these diseases is to strengthen the system with Hood's Sarsaparilla—the greatest of all life guards. It removes the conditions in which these make their most successful attack, gives vigor and tone to all the vital organs and functions, and imparts a genial warmth to the blood. Remember the weaker the system the greater the exposure to disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the system strong.

We have read a couple of pieces about "The Home" this winter which are interesting but can not fully agree with the writers about paying "their" taxes from the trade of the home people. Of course they could pay their taxes if none of us traded with them, and by sending to a mail order house we save money towards paying our own. If they would trade as cheap as Sears, Roebuck & Co. or other mail order houses they would get all of the trade; but we do, as I think they would do, what is best for us, with the little money we have.

Comforting Words

Many a Phillips Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Phillips readers.

John W. Kennedy, Phillips, Me., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble for years and at times I was so miserable that I could not get around. I felt restless and too frequent passages of the kidney secretions caused me great annoyance. I doctored and took a great many remedies, but did not obtain relief. Several months ago I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a box from Cragin's Drug Store. While I have not used this remedy as regularly as I should, I can say that I have been helped a great deal. Doan's Kidney Pills have cleared my system of uric poison and as the result, the pains in my back have become much less severe. My kidneys are also in a more normal condition. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
