Remington PUMP GUN

In a class by itself because it has three indispensable superior features. 1. It is Solid Breech. 2. It is Hammerless. 3. It loads and ejects from the bottom. No other Pump Gun made has all three vital improvements. The Solid Breech does away with a hammer to catch, keeps dirt out of the action and insures safety. The ejection at the bottom prevents the ejected empty shell from crossing the line of sight.

The Remington Pump has won the hearts of the trap and field shooters because it has beautiful lines, shoots right up to the Remington standard and embodies the modern Remington ideas which are the most up-to-date in the world.

NATURE STORIES.

The hardy woodchuck who had the temerity to show his head on St. Swithin's day this year was a false prophet, and the one which came out a month later only to be captured by two dogs out with their masters hauling logs during a blinding snowstorm, was as remiss in its calculations, as were the two flocks of geese seen flying northward through the Androscoggin valley the last week in March. Anyway these signs of spring have not brought real spring weather—far from it, and those who have been hoping for early spring fishing have found it necessary to curb their impatience. There now seems little likelihood that the ice will be out of Maine, with the possible exception of Sebago, which always heads the procession, before May 20, a month later than last year.

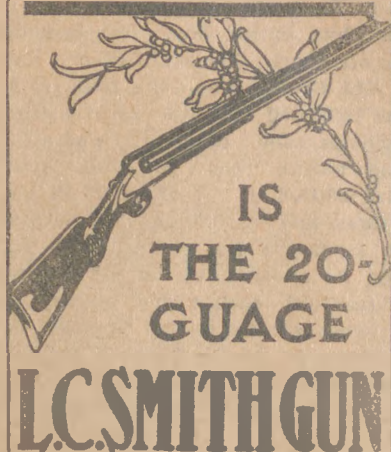

A few days ago there was much interest at the express office in the town of Norway, over a box containing three tiny bear cubs consigned to Linwood Flint of Waterford, and were forwarded from Norway by stage. A notice on the box made this request: "Feed five times a day; don't let these babies suffer. Hold them in your hand while feeding." There was a nursing bottle in the box, and though at first rather timid about it, the expressman followed instructions. The three cubs greedily consumed a quart of milk at a feeding, and then crawled down into their nest and composed themselves for a good long nap. This was before the stage started; two hours and a half later the operation was repeated, and so on during the day.

While walking near his home a few days ago Maurice Emerson, 14 years old, of Sweden, in this state, came upon the tracks of a coon, and following them to a hollow tree Climbing the tree, young Emerson reached his arm into the hollow and found the coon, which showed a hearty desire to fight, and was accommodated, the boy finally succeeding in carrying the animal to his home, nearly a mile away. The lad has the coon tied up in a yard, and says he intends to tame it and make a pet of it.

D. M. Cleaveland of Dexter, a well known hotel proprietor, is the owner of an unusually sagacious and "cute" bulldog, which is said to be better known to traveling men of the state than any other dog in Maine. The dog's name is "Grover Cleveland" and he is a pious dog

Order Must Pay $2270

The full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court has sustained a finding of Judge Sanderson of the Superior Court that Grace M. Timberlake and Pearl E. Field are entitled to recover $2270 from the supreme commandery, United Order of the Golden Cross of the World, a Tennessee corporation doing business in this state.

The mother of the two women, Mrs. Mary A. Timberlake, became a member of the Home Circle and paid all assessments until the Home Circle was merged with the defendant company in 1906. She continued to pay assessments to the Golden Cross until she died, July 14, 1908. The Supreme Court of Tennessee declared the merger void.

The defense to the suit was that Mrs. Timberlake had not complied with the regulations of the defendant company, but the full bench hold that having accepted the money of Mrs. Timberlake upon a valid contract of insurance, the defendant cannot avoid that contract by reason of its failure to enforce its private regulations, which were unknown to her.—Boston Post.

HOW IS IT?

Bangor, Maine, April 5, 1911.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

How is it that E. E. Ring, Forest Commissioner was removed from office, when in fact the bill in the legislature that provided for legislating out of office two Inland Fish and Game Commissioners and the Sea and Shore Fisheries Commissioners failed of passage by the substantial vote of 70 to 30?—READER.

[The law under which the Forest Commissioner works provides that he shall be appointed to serve four years or at the pleasure of the Governor and Council. The law governing the chairman and second member of the inland fish and game commission provides that they shall be appointed for a definite three years term. In this case the law omits to say that the terms shall be at the pleasure of the governor and council. Also, there is nothing to indicate that Governor Plaisted favored legislating the fish and game commissioners out of office. He was not in any way identified with the scheme and gave it no encouragement.—Ed.]

Mr. George W. Lewis of New Haven, Conn. writes that he would enjoy seeing more in Maine Woods about the East and West Branches territory. Perhaps some of our readers will send matter from that section.

NEW FISH AND GAME LAWS.

One of the most important things done by the last legislature was in passing a law prohibiting the use of more than one hook for fishing on the inland waters of Maine. This law absolutely prohibits the use of gang hooks of any description in casting, trolling or still fishing. The penalty for each offence is ten to thirty dollars.

The law making it lawful to catch, transport and have in possession more than 25 pounds of trout, landlocked salmon or togue or 20 pounds of white perch in one day, has been amended to allow 15 pounds a day only, of each kind.

An innovation in Maine is the law prohibiting the catching of more than 40 of any kind of protected fish in one day from inland Maine waters. This law was enacted to prevent the slaughter of our brook trout in our wild mountain streams where it is sometimes easy to take the little trout out by the hundreds and they are so small that it would take many hundreds to reach the legal limit in weight.

A new law provides that a resident can ship ten pounds of fish or a pair of game birds once in thirty days anywhere, on payment of a fee.

Close time for four years on wood duck.

Legal limit on partridges and woodcock changed from 15 a day for each person, to 5 partridges and 10 woodcock a day.

Notwithstanding the general belief among fox hunters who seek the red ones with hounds and gun that it is quite impossible for a hound to run down and catch a New England fox, A. Henry Higginson, master of the Middlesex Hunt, has owned and bred hounds from carefully selected English stock that have laid low several fast running wily reynards during the past few years. Memory of these successes of the trail are kept in mind by several trophies in the nature of fox heads, which, with scores of cups and other prizes won at dog shows and steeple chases, adorn and make very interesting Mr. Higginson's delightful den at his charming country home at Lincoln, Mass. Mr. Higginson is probably the best known champion of fox hunting with hounds in this country, and what he does not know about the sport and the dogs best adapted to it, it would be difficult for any other fox hunter to tell him, for none other has devoted as much time and attention to this particularly manly sport.

A tame buck deer, or at least one that was unafraid of the things that he saw, had been wandering about the public highways in the vicinity of Gardiner of late, making frequent dooryard calls, probably in search of food, though its general appearance indicates clearly that it has wintered well, there being none of the evidences of starvation that usually follow a hard winter and deep snows. To be sure there were no deep snows and not much severe weather until late, this season, and deer and other game animals, as far as they are known to have been observed, are looking uncommonly well this spring, indicating a good season for 1911; but this particular deer is looking more than well, and is the handsomest specimen of the deer tribe seen in that section in many a year.

COMPLIMENTS MAINE.

East Berlin, Conn., April 11, 1911.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

I note in your issue of March 22 a long article on prohibition by W. T. Ashley in which he says "There is as much vice and crime in Maine today, according to population as there is in Massachusetts" due I inferred, to the use of intoxicants. Not being a resident of either state I shall not presume to contradict the statement. There was a pause during which the elm ticked off something about there being considerable snow yet up in the woods.

"Snow!" flashed the answer from the maple which was getting quite ruddy with enthusiasm. "I hope there's four feet on a level; then we shan't be gasping for want of moisture by the first of May. I tell you we've got to hurry up! Look at that lilac bush down there. Are you going to let a scruffy thing like that get ahead of you? Well, I'm not! The grand march of the leaves

As I left the boat in Portland the next morning, I was impressed with the absence of that which had been so in evidence in the port which I had left the night before, namely, the presence of the evidences of the evil effects of over indulgence in strong drink.

The last words of the message came with such whistling defiance that it tipped our last year's hat askew and we fled to cover, wondering just how much discretion ought to go to the right composition of valor.—Lewiston Sun.

at the foot of Mt. Zirou, the third highest mountain in Maine. It is surrounded by fern and timberlands of seven hundred acres. Has an artificial pond fed by two natural trout brooks of pure spring water from the mountain and is a live with trout varying from 1-4 to 2 pounds. Protected by state laws. We took from the trout last year over 20,000 eggs which went to the state hatchery at Oquossoc, Maine.

There is not a more ideal spot in the state of Maine for a private summer home or a club house. The scenery is beautiful with nice paths through the forests, where are plenty of deer, partridge and small game. There is a large level plot suitable for golf course or tennis court. The property occupies the entire valley, is only about four miles from Rumford Falls and the Maine coast and is reached by a good carriage road.

We offer this property FOR SALE.

Cut of Various People in Great Lumber Region.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Eustis, April 5, 1911.

The Humes & Newhall Co. of Fairfield with Thomas Bateman as foreman has landed in Alder stream about 6 million feet.

BUCK TOTED BY COW.

SOMERSET COUNTY CAMP HAS NOVEL BEAST OF BURDEN.

Hunters From Massachusetts are Rewarded With Good Luck and a Good Time on a Maine Hunting Trip for Deer.

In the fall of 1910 a small party of three Massachusetts Yankees became imbued with the desire to get something of a vacation in the woods of Maine and also at the same time enjoy the sport of deer hunting.

Under the names of "Doctor" the "Dealer" and "Cap" they will be known in this screed.

It is enough to say that after an all-day ride they were located in a very secluded camp on the shores of Flagstaff Lake, presided over by our good host Al. P. Wing.

It snowed during the night leaving about two inches on the "tote-roads" and trails and in the morning we started out for a look at the country and to get our bearings for future use; going north by way of the old "buckboard road" towards King and Bartlett Camps and found a region that appealed to us as an ideal one for chasing the "festive deer." But I only saw one buck and still keep on his feet, but finally coming up with the "Doctor" in the thicket asked him if he was badly injured as he had seen considerable blood near his tracks, he was greatly relieved to learn that the "bloody trail" was from the later.

It had become dark by this time and the only thing for them to do was to take a course by compass for the "buckboard road" somewhere to the east through "thick growth" and fallen timber and such other impediments to free and unobstructed locomotion as are not found in our city streets.

By this time at the camp we had fired the 2-1 signal and received the answering shot, the guides went up the road a short distance and met the two hunters who were saluted by all hands and congratulations were in order.

Nearly every night there would come a light snow fall but during the day we could go out in the woods and over the hills enjoying to the full, the fine bracing air and the splendid views of the lake and Bigelow range to be seen from the hills on our side; the rough wooded country reminding me in some respects of the foot hills on Bear, Elk, Eel and Head rivers in Humboldt County, California well known to the writer in 1875-78.

The next morning our party started for the Clearwater(?) country way. He moved so that a tree hid him from the "Doctor" and the "Dealer," but by a quick step to the right I caught sight of him and unhooked, hitting him in the "sticking place." He afterward made only four or five jumps and was dead when we got to him.

It was a matter of interest to me from the fact that my last kill was at Fort Jacqua Humboldt County, Cal., thirty-two years previous and this one in Flagstaff, Somerset County, Maine, (clear across the continent) and aside from distance, the size, head, shot and condition were almost identical.

"Doctor" and "Cap" had each got a buck and it now remained for the "Dealer" to make good and after faithfully hunting he was at last rewarded by bringing down a good one making three fine ones for our party.

In regard to the enclosed photo sent in accordance with your request for incidents of hunting trips, I would say, knowing from my California experience the antipathy of all horned cattle to the scent of blood, I was somewhat surprised at the statement, that the camp cow (and she is a good one too) could be induced to "tote" in a deer if the horse was busy. The experiment was tried and you see the results.

Our comfort in camp was due in a great measure to our host "Al" uated in the virgin forest and control the sporting rights on 60,000 acres, making a game preserve not excelled in New England.

These camps are new and specially constructed for the use of sportsmen. They are situated 1200 feet above the level of the sea, and the section is noted for its pure air and pure water. The fishing consists of lake, river, pond and brook. Trout take the fly readily throughout the entire season, and have been taken last season weighing four and five pounds or more, each. Camps have been built throughout the township leased by us, and provisioned and furnished for the comfort of guests.

From Cold Spring Camp (the only sporting camp on Machias Lake) it is three miles to one of our camps at Clayton Lake, the head waters of Fish River, where the best trout fishing can always be had. There is also good trout fishing in the Machias waters. Among some of the many points reached from our camps

Wyman & Sargent has cut and landed on the North branch of the Dead River 1,000,000.

The Great Northern Paper Co. has put into the north branch about 7,000 cords of short wood. White & Sargent has cut 1,000 cords on Tim brook and 1,000 cords in small poles.

The outlook for the coming season is very good.

The Great Northern Paper Co. will cut 20,000 cords on Alder Stream.

DEAD RIVER ITEMS ABOUT SPRING TIME PLANS.

cross the road but out of rifle shot, he evidently from his rate of speed had business in another section of the woods, and my early training on loose ammunition and percussion locks, had made me very conservative in regard to snap shooting at running game, or indeed firing at anything without ascertaining whether it is a deer, a man or a leaf.

On our return to camp we found that seven more pilgrims from near the Bean Pot Capitol had arrived and were fully equipped to take the honor of "first blood" from our small party; but at about dusk of the second day "Doctor" made the record for us by shooting a fine buck, as he said "way over by Clearwater stream," a good long shot, down hill and the deer running, placing two 38-55 Winchester bullets where they would do the most good and stopping his deer in fine shape.

After dressing the deer, he started through the "thick growth" for camp, while the "Dealer," his brother hearing the two shots went towards the location of the shooting but did not find him so started on his way for camp, finding spots of blood by the trail and other spots where the party had evidently stopped to recover his strength. He could not understand how a man could apparently lose so much blood again and were soon in a somewhat rougher country than I had been in. Separating, we each took a course to the west where I soon found myself on the side of a very steep hill. Hearing a noise back of my right shoulder I tried to turn quickly in that direction. I saw a fine buck but stepped on a fine(?) smooth stick and then and there emulated Curtiss in his aviation feats landing some distance down the hill. Of course when I gathered myself together the deer was gone.

A few days after, we were going over our favorite grounds when we saw a fine 9-point buck coming our Abounding with clean comedy, yet touching with pathos, is the play "Tony the Convict," at Lambert Hall, Saturday evening. Don't miss it.

Colds May be Avoided.

By those who are fortunate enough to always breathe pure air, and never get run down by overwork or exposure. Even these lucky people do not always escape the contagious colds which at certain seasons prevail to such an extent as to be almost epidemic. It is wise to be prepared for troubles of this nature in our climate, and the one all-important thing is to have at hand a safe, efficient and reliable remedy to ward off the trouble and danger of such an attack.

For sixty years, "L. F." Atwood's medicine has been a household remedy for emergencies of this kind. It starts up the liver and bowels, prevents congestion, and restores the functions to their normal condition. If you have never used it, get a bottle from your dealer, or write for a free sample to the "L. F." Medicine Co., Portland, Me.

DAD AND I HUNT COONS.

(Written for Maine Woods.)

Paris Station, Ontario, Canada.

April 7, 1911.

It was an immensely fine moon-light night in the latter part of last October. The air had just that crisp-ness about it that makes a fellow feel as strong as a span of big clyde horses and you think you'd like to live forever. Dad had been outside and coming in, he was smiling with the corners of his eyes and he said to me, "well Kid how would you like to air yourself a little tonight and accompany your Pa on a coon hunt?" I hadn't time to answer before he says, "well then throw on your boots and mittens and come along." I sup-pose the radiant look of blissful obedience that shone out of the windows of my soul made it un-necessary for him to wait for an answer. I made all haste and was ready in a minute, and out and un-hooked old Bruiser. Bruiser is half hound and half bull and looks as if a bulldog's head had been glued onto a hound's carcass. He isn' afraid of anything big or little, blue or yellow its all the same to Bruiser.

His old hard head is scarred and seamed lengthways and crossways and gouged and scratched, until it looks as hard as a chunk of Scotch granite, and I believe you could strike fire on it with the axe. Oh, I wish I could draw, I'd send you his picture. Talk about your prize fighters and veterans of war, they are not in it with old Bruiser, he wears his medals right in his face and gives you such a who-cares-for-nothing look that always makes tramps and hobos walk backward wit their eyes bulged out as if they'd seen their father's ghost. He never bit one in his life. He don't have to. That look of his is enough to sat-ever infested an unfortunate com-isyfy the most fastidious hobo that ever infested an unfortunate com-munity and old Bruiser is rather particular sometimes about what he takes in his mouth. That is, he knows where to draw the line.

Well to proceed, we proceeded on our way and Dad said we'd steer for Elderberry hollow. He'd been down some days before and found lots of coon signs. They were feed-ing on the elderberries. It was a low swampy piece of ground between two hills and contained possibly fifty acres. There was plenty of woods on the hills around and a few big trees down in the hollow. Old Bruiser kept close to our heels until we got within half a mile from the hollow. No doubt he knew where we were going and saved his strength for the coming struggle. Then he pricked up what remained of his ears and vanished in the dimness.

We were just beginning the descend into the hollow when the yelp of a strange dog smote our ears and he was coming our way at a terrific rate, and about in two shakes, Old Bruiser chimed in with his quick sharp yelp, and the curtain was up, the show was on. Wasn't that music though. No brass band, or-chestra or Paderewski ever played anything like that. I had hard work to keep my heart down and began to be afraid it might get into my mouth and I'd bite it off in my ecstasy. As I said before they came our way and treed Mr. Coon up a big cedar. Now, I began to get wise to why Dad brought me along. He walked around that tree I think about four times and tried to put his arms around it then reached up for the first branch, backed up and coughed and swallowed audibly and then he said, "Kid take off them boots and shake him out." That look of un-speakable happiness that had shed its light upon my countenance im-mediately disappeared and I felt like saying something calculated to stir up a feeling of parental regard in Dad's bosom for the safe descent of his white haired boy. But Dad cut me off short. He said "take a look at Old Bruise, would he flunk if he was endowed with the same natural facilities for climbing wherewithal kind nature has provided you." That settled it. I off with all hin-drances and started up, Dad pushing me as far as he could reach and then he cheered me on my upward course with such nerve bracing as-surances as that I had no one de-pendant on me and that children didn't fall hard like grown people anyway. Such encouragement ban-ished all my fears and at last I be-gan to think I might be in the vicinity of Mr. Coon and raising my eyes they were met by two shinin points that looked like two green stars but from my position that was all I could see.

I wiggled round to get a better view when as quick as lightning something made a noise like a squib firecracker and it felt as if some-one was combing my hair with a garden rake. I heard something go-ing helter skelter through the branch-es and then a dull thump on the ground. At about the same time the fight began below; didn't I wish I were down though. But I had in-herited enough of Dad's cautious disposition to be too hasty. I had nearly reached the ground when someone yelled, "Out of this you fellows, that's my coon, my dog started him and I'm going to have him or there'll be more blood spilt right here than there's juice in this elder patch." It was big Bum Yack a giant in stature but an infant in courage, who tried to bring things his way by waving his big fists in the air and threatening to swallow people whole and grinding his teeth together and making first prize ugly faces. He told Dad he could lick a dozen like him and would throw him so far that he'd come down among the cannibals, that he could eat him ing and that he'd put him on his fish-hook and catch a minnow with him. himself for breakfast without season-Just at that point I let go of the branch and came scraping down the tree. I don't know yet whether Bum took me for another coon or what, but he made a swipe at me with a big club, and lucky for me he miss-ed. Dad was onto him like a wild cat and talk about your lively times, but that was the event in Elderberry hollow. Dad was too small and light to bear Bum to the ground and hung onto his hair with one hand and pummelled him with the other, and his legs wound tight around Bum's waist and Bum was capering and rearing up like a boy with a bumble bee in his hair. The dogs were fighting and howling, Old Bruise had killed the coon and was fighting for the ownership. Suddenly the noise of the dogs stop-ped, Old Bruise's hold had pulled out and the other part of the dog had got away. Dad was still flailing away at the back of Bum's head. Old Bruise thought he'd even up Dad's handicap and with one spring he had a good mouthful of Bum who let out a yell (that startled me just like the first time I got too near a steam whistle) and bolted into the brush. Somehow a limb got under Dad's chin and pulled him off and he came back out of breath and sat down with enough of Bum's hair in his fists to stuff a cushion for his easy chair. I felt quite anx-ious so I said, Dad do you think you'll recover? I don't think he understood the feeling of deep sym-pathy that prompted that question because he just said kind of snappy like, "bring that coon here." I went to obey him without a murmur and looked all around as far as I dared go alone and came back empty hand-ed. Then Dad joined in the search, he having recovered his breath and tied a handkerchief round where the limb rubbed his neck, but neither hide nor hair could we find of that coon and we started for home coon-less, but there was a feeling of gratitude in our hearts that Provid-ence had not allowed us to fall into the hands of the Philistines, and we reached home with weary limbs but light hearts.

Next morning as Old Bruise didn't show up I went to his kennel to see how he fared. There he lay, his hard old head on the mutilated re-mains of a big gray house cat for a pillow and bid me good morning with a deep bass growl.

RING'S RECORD.

Former Fish and Game and Forest-ry Commissioner.

(Bangor Commercial.)

Hon. E. E. Ring, of Orono, who has just been removed from the office of land agent and forest com-missioner and commissioner of in-land fisheries and game, by the ap-pointment by the governor of Frank E. Mace, of Great Pond finishes his duties April 15.

Mr. Ring was appointed by Gov. Hill August 1, 1901, reappointed by Cobb in 1906 and by Gov. Fernald in 1909, and is now serving on his third term of four years. Had he completed this term he would have rounded out 12 years of continuous service.

During his term Mr. Ring has seen wonderful advancement in the forest-ry and fish and game interest in the state. The first laws enacted in any state for the protection of forests against fire were formulated and passed by the Maine legislature in 1903. Somewhat crude in parts the working out of hte same proved their worth and each legislature has improved upon the law until this law is admitted as the standard and is used as a model by every state in the union and the dominion of Cana-da is fast adopting the salient points of the Maine law. In fact so great was the interest taken, the province across the border sent two of its expert foresters here to consult with Mr. Ring and learn first hand of the principles involved.

Starting with an appropriation of only $10,000 for protection purposes the sum has been increased by each successive legislature until as a resul of the Maine Forestry district incor-porated by an act of the legislature of 1909, the sum for the protection of the forests against fire has reached by special tax upon the wild lands of a mill and a half, the sum of $68,000 for 1911 and a like amount for 1912.

The Patrol Service.

The greatest of care has been given to the patrol service, supplemented b some 25 lookout stations, located on the peaks of some of the highest mountains and this feature in quick-ly detecting and extinguishing the incipient fires has saved to the tim-ber lands of the state many thou-sands of dollars. In the year 1910 on the 10,000,000 acres of wild land through the vigilance of the Maine forestry service there was a loss of less than $1000.

All Have Helped.

During the past season a law was enacted which will compel the rail-roads to contribute to the cost of patrol along their lines of road run-ning through the forests and much benefit is expected in the working out of the law, giving an added pro-tection where it is greatly needed in dry times and at the same time working no hardships on the rail-roads.

The biennial reports which have been issued by the forestry depart-ment have contained a great deal of information and have been in great demand throughout the state, and many requests have come from those interested in forestry in other states.

In these reports Mr. Ring has shown the importance of careful cutting, which has been generally followed by lumbermen and has done wonders in perpetuating our forests. Before he took charge of this work the vague idea was held in regard to the stand of spruce in the state. In 1902 he had an inventory taken which show-ed that the amount was much in excess of the optimistic enthusiast.

In addition to the work as forest commissioner he has had charge of upwards of 100,000 acres of land de-scribed as schools lots, located in 90 plantations in 11 counties, besides the care of Indian township in Wash-ington county, containing about 20,000 acres.

During Mr. Ring's term of office the utmost harmony has prevailed between the land owners and the de-partment. In fact it was this spirit of cooperation that brought about the successful results above mentioned.

At the time of Mr. Ring's appoint-ment on the fish and game commis-sion there were but three fish hatch-eries in the state. This number has been increased to ten.

KARL J. ANDERSEN LUCKY ANGLER, AS LAST YEAR. THE EARLY BROOK FISHING.

Karl J. Andersen, one of Bangor's veteran fishermen, killed the first salmon of the season at the pool, Thursday forenoon, repeating his achievements of 1910 when he killed the first fish, April 5, one day earlier. The salmon killed yesterday weighed about nine pounds and was considerably smaller than the first one last season which went a little better than 16 pounds. This year's first prize was a very pretty fish and started the fever among Bangor's colony of spring anglers.

The fish was sold to O. A. Fickett, the marketman, for $1.25 a pound and he will send it to W. Campbell Clark of Elberon, N. J., the O. N. T. spool thread man, who has had the honor several times of eating the first fish out of the Bangor pool.

The salmon fishing season opened April 1, but ice conditions have been such that devotees of the pool have scarcely had an opportunity to fish owing to the shifting ice. Wednesday Mr. Andersen succeeded in getting out in a boat for a try at the fish, but after fishing a considerable time had to give it up for the day. Thursday morning, however, he set out again and had been casting about two hours when he hooked one. After a 15 or 20-minute lively battle he succeeded in killing him.

Mr. Andersen is one of Bangor's best known and most experienced fishermen at the pool. He is a painter by trade with a shop in State street and lives with his family at 55 Otis street.

The Early Brook Fishing.

The early fishing for trout is going to be a good of a question this spring. The severity of the past winter and the unusually late spring will make considerable difference, though principally of course with the early brook fishing only. Last season's fishing was so very late this season in the natural course of events would be several weeks later.

Kidder's Brook out in Holden is most always the one which the fishermen tell time by. While the fish there are small many local trout-fishermen always make it a point to be among the first on Kidder Brook. A good mess of small trout can many times be taken out of this brook long before the regular brooks and streams show any signs of being open.

A couple of weeks of weather like that experienced Thursday will not only open all the brooks but will take the ice out of the river and start most of the fishing in the small streams and larger brooks. The ice in the Penobscot has shrunk just seven inches in the past week. March 29 the ice was measured off the city here and was just 18 inches thick while yesterday at the same place it was just 11 inches. This shrinkage has been going on while one would naturally suppose the ice was making. Ice has made in the river every night the past week with one exception, yet shrunk an inch a day. It looks as if another week will see the ice out of the river. If the ice goes out of the main river and local fishermen have a few days or a week at the Bangor pool before the regular spring freshets, before the high water comes, it looks as though they would get some good angling just below the dam.

The lower part of Great Works stream is usually one of the early brooks to be fished as is Bradbury, or what the natives call North Branch. This early fishing is when the trout are first running up and as in the lower part of Sunk Haze, good catches may be taken early—in the lower parts or in the shallow, quick-water.

Burr Brook is an old favorite of the stay-at-home fly-fisherman but the water here is nearly always too roily.

The bait-fishing won't come until about June. Many Bangor fishermen will try the lakes and ponds as soon as the ice goes out of them, some time the last of April or first of May and will enjoy trolling for the lakers, square-tails and togue—Bangor News.

DEER IN PORTLAND.

Jumps in Windows and Does Other Things.

A Portland Sunday paper says:

After running madly over the streets and back yards of the eastern part of the city for about an hour, dashing into two houses, breaking windows and frightening the inhabitants of the Munjoy generally only to meet his fate by having his throat cut by two sailors, near Fish Point, was the brief public career of a small deer weighing about 80 pounds late Saturday afternoon of last week.

The deer first made its appearance on Lafayette street coming from Cumberland avenue and becoming frightened by some boys on the street, ran across Lafayette; leaping gracefully a high fence, it dashed through the kitchen window at the rear of the house of George R. Robinson of 99 Congress street. The family was in another part of the house at the time, but hearing the commotion in the kitchen ran in just in time to see the deer jump out by the same window through which he had made his entrance into the house. Except for the breaking of the glass no damage was done in the room. The deer then ran down Cumberland avenue and turned into Sheridan street, crossing Congress ran into the yard near the large flat house of Charles Garbarino and found his way onto Monument street. Finding the door of the house of William McGrath, 124 Monument, to be open, the next was to enter this house and jump out again through a window, taking sash and all.

Coming out near Fish Point, the deer started to swim into the harbor, but being seen by the men aboard Rockland, Capt. A. B. Marston and Mate Joe Dell of that vessel put out in a boat and catching it and making fast with a rope, the deer's throat was cut with a knife. The sailors then evidently becoming frightened at what they had done, when it dawned upon them that they had broken the state laws in so doing, left the deer where it was.

State Game Warden George E. Cushman was notified of the fact and went at once to Fish Point and took the deer which was already dead, to the shore. Warden Cushman then notified Capt. Marston and Mate Dell that they must appear in the Municipal Court on Monday morning to answer to the charge of killing deer out of season. The captain said that he wanted to sail tonight, but promised to appear in court as ordered.

The deer had evidently come across from East Deering by swimming Back Bay, as one had been seen earlier in the afternoon being chased by a dog near Windsor Heights, and it is thought that he must have made a landing on the Eastern Promenade somewhere between Tukey bridge and the railroad bridge.

Capt. Marston and Mate Dell were each fined $40 and costs for killing the deer.
