moral character. Having nearly served his first term of service, he has volunteered for the war.

I have known Frank W. Smith for two years & nine months, & while military men bear testimony to his soldierly bearings, it gives me pleasure to testify to his strict temperance & to that sobriety of conduct which should inspire confidence in those, who have it in their power to advance his interests by honorable promotion.

John R. Adams,

I have been acquainted with Frank M. Smith since the organization of this Regt, and take pleasure in saying that in my opinion, there is no man in this command more worthy of a commission.
