MAINE WOODS GOOD.

As An Advertising Medium It Has Proved to be "Some."

Philadelphia, Penn., June 10, 1911.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

"Maine Woods" is certainly 'some advertising medium.' I received about sixty letters from all parts of the country in reply to that article. These letters have been turned over to a committee who are considering the matter. It will probably be held in abeyance until fall."

C. H. Bowden.

FOXY "TOPSY."

Reynard Comes to Town Riding in Medicine Cart.

A medicine man arrived in town last week with a tame fox, named "Topsy." The fox was bought in Aroostook county a year ago and has been on the road ever since. "Topsy" had a lot of fun with N. P. Noble's dog, "Toto." "Toto" spied the strange looking "dog" on the hotel lawn and walked over cautiously for a visit. All went well until the noses of the two met. Then the dog turned and ran toward the house and stood at a distance looking at this strange looking and queer smelling "dog."

Then "Toto" came back, this time more cautiously; and he ran away again, but not so far as before. This style of scraping an acquaintance was kept up until "Toto" was evidently satisfied that "Topsy" was a harmless kind of "dog" after all. Then the two had a great frolic. "Topsy" was hitched to a string tied to the end of a hose pipe and she couldn't run very far but she and "Toto" had a good time and apparently established a firm friendship.

.401 Caliber

SELF-LOADING RIFLE

This new Winchester Repeater has speed and power plus. It's speedy because, being reloaded by the recoil, it can be shot as fast as the trigger can be pulled. It's powerful because it handles a cartridge of the most modern type, one that strikes a blow of 2038 foot pounds. The combination of such power with the rapidity of fire which this rifle is capable of, makes it unusually desirable for hunting the biggest of big game. There is no rifle made which will deliver five as powerful blows in as few seconds as the Winchester Model 1910.

Ask your dealer to show you one, or send to the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Conn., for a circular fully describing this rifle.

Marlin
22 Caliber Repeating Rifle
Model No 20

The safety, comfort and convenience of the Marlin solid top, closed-breech and side ejection features are combined with the quick, easy manipulation of the popular, sliding fore-end or "pump" action in the new Model 20 Marlin rifle.

In rapid firing—the real test of a repeater—the Marlin solid top is always a protection and prevents smoke and gases blowing back; the ejected shell is never thrown into your face or eyes, and never interferes with the aim; the fat forearm fits your hand and helps quick operation.

It handles the short, long and long-rifle cartridges without change in adjustment, and the deep Ballard rifling guarantees the accuracy, making it the finest little rifle in the world for target shooting and for all small game up to 150 or 200 yards.

THE BARKER.

Trout of 5½ Pounds Heads the Trophy List.

(Special to Maine Woods).
Barker, Maine, June 17, 1911.

It is having time on the lake shore, and the perfume of the new mown hay mingles with that of spruce and pine.

Several parties have gone home the past few days, among them Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Fraser of New York, who have had a most delightful fishing trip. The day Mr. Fraser was going home he reeled in a 5½-lb trout which, with the pair of 3½-lb salmon and several of two and three pounds each, gives him good fish stories to tell his friends before he comes again. Frank Harris, guide.

Hon. Fred E. Richards of Portland, accompanied by Mr. Ludwell Hourson is for ten days in Camp Yapeechie. Mr. J. Frank Lang of Portland has joined them. Mr. Richards caught a 7-lb salmon the first day he went out, which is the largest fish recorded thus far this year. He also got a 3-pounder. Mr. Hourson caught a 3-lb salmon. Bob Martin and Ernest Demeritt are their guides.

Mr. H. R. Peirson and daughter of Pittsfield, Mass. returned this week. Miss Peirson landed her first salmon, 3¼-lbs.

Mrs. D. F. McMahan and son, D. F. McMahan of New York have again taken "Camp Pine Tree," and are greeted by many old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Bent of Boston are here for two weeks.

Mr. F. E. Burnham of Boston, Gard Hinkley, guide, and Mr. P. E. Osborne of Boston, Herb Lufkin guide, both have recorded a 3-lb salmon.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Pollock, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Pollock and Miss Margy Saxer are a pleasant New York party who have Camp Knickerbocker for a month.

The Gove party from Boston returned by automobile last Monday.

Mr. Veo Small, the clerk, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Small in Farmington.

MOOSELOOKMEGUNTIC HOUSE.

Items About Fishing Folks and Others Who Are Here.

(Special to Maine Woods).

Mooselookmeguntic House, Haines Landing, Me., June 17, 1911.

As usual before the Fourth it is a little quiet, as most of the early comers have gone and the summer people who come with big trunks, many of them, will not arrive until July.

Mr. Fred B. Dale of Olando, Fla., after a happy winter on his southern farm, from which he sent many car loads of green stuff and fruit to the northern markets, has located here for his tenth summer. Mrs. Dale will join him later.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Abbot and sons of Westford, Mass. returned home this week. Mrs. Abbot landed a 5-lb salmon and her son, Robert, one of 3½-lb the day before they left. Emery Haley, guide.

Mr. C. M. Crane of Madison, N. J. and friend Geo. W. Neill of York, Ne. are here for a ten days' fishing trip, Billy Cleveland guide. Mr. Neill is very proud of the 2½-lb trout he caught Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Garratt Hobart started for Patterson, N. J. in their automobile this morning, planning to return to their camp on the Cupsuptic next month.

Several large parties are expected in a few days.

BELGRADE LAKES.

Fishing and Reading on the Rainy Days.

(Special to Maine Woods).

Belgrade Lakes, Me., June 19, 1911. June has been backward in giving us fine weather. Then if ever we expect some perfect days, rare days, tempting the city people into the country.

The past rainy days have been busy ones at the public library, the new books proving satisfactory and much enjoyed by the guests at the hotels. The prospects for the hotels the remainder of the summer are very encouraging, and many guests are booked for July.

Wm. B. Dick of Albany, N. Y., now at Central House is having great luck with the fish, catching yesterday a trout weighing 5-lbs and Friday one weighing 4¼-lbs and he is out now on the lake hoping for a bass weighing 5-lbs.

Capt. Jordan is the proud possessor of a landlocked salmon 25½ inches long and weighing 7-lbs, caught near White ledges in Great Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Robinson of Augusta are guests at the Central House over Sunday, the 18th.

Miss Mildred Damren is doing work as stenographer at The Belgrade this summer.

Miss Hortense Henom, of Washington, D. C. has arrived in town to look after the affairs at Camp Abena. The grounds are in fine condition, ready for the many young ladies coming July 1st.

Rev. W. H. Jackson of Waterbury, Vt. is to hold services in village church July 16th.

MOUNTAIN VIEW HOUSE.

Lady Caught Big Trout and Set Good Example.

(Special to Maine Woods).

Mountain View, Me., June 17, 1911. For those who have been on the lake the past few days the fishing has been good. We doubt if there is a prouder fisherman in this region than Mr. Frederick M. Dean of Boston who with his guide, Bert Herrick, has trolled over the lake, lunched on the shore and caught many fish that were too small to record but just right for the table. Wednesday Mr. Dean caught a 6-lb trout and a 3½-lb and 2¼-lb salmon, and the next day he had a great battle with a 7-lb salmon.

Prof. Alvin Schroeder, the Boston musician, with Dave Haines, guide, caught a 4-lb salmon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Manchester, Mr. and Mrs. John Kelso and chauffeur driving a 1911 Packard touring car came from Providence, R. I. making a quick trip. They had Rouge et-noir camp for the week and had a delightful outing.

Rev. Fr. Thomas J. McLaughlin of Farmington was greeted by many friends Sunday, who are pleased to know that commencing June 25, he will be here every Sunday and services will be held in the Catholic church at Oquossoc.

Mr. R. E. Wright of Portland has joined his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Dean of Boston for ten days.

Saturday, June 24, will be a gala day at Mountain View. Pilgrim Commandry of Farmington is coming with its guests, the Skowhegan Commandry, arriving on Saturday and returning Sunday via special boat and train.

Mrs. Ralph T. Parker of Rumford, who is at their camp on the opposite shore from here gave a good exhibition of what a woman can do with rod and reel, for one afternoon this week when the rain was coming down in bucketfuls, so the fishermen at this hotel were taking life easy, and enjoying a game of cards, someone chanced to look out of the window and noticed the row boat and with a glass looked across.

"I declare that is a woman, and she has got a big fish on," said one. Everyone left the game they were playing to watch her, and later when the beauty, (which was a 7½-lb trout as handsome a one as ever swam in these waters,) was brought here for Mr. Plummer, the clerk, to weigh, the fishermen declared the way to catch fish was to fish, and they have been out every day since.

TROUT WERE BIG.

Bald Mountain Camps Come in For Records.

(Special to Maine Woods).
Bald Mountain Camps,

June 11, 1911.

The fishermen are all taking their hats off to Dr. Augustus S. Thayer, of Portland, for he has been the luck angler this week and landed a 6½-pound trout. It was a gamy fish that kept them on the anxious seat for nearly an hour before the Doctor could bring him to net. Mrs. Thayer also landed a 3½-pound trout and a 3-pound salmon. Chas. Record was their guide.

The guests are taking a great interest in the family of four little robins that are now in the nest close to the camps.

This past week nearly twenty guests have had a merry, happy time. Two camps were taken by the gentlemen who attended the State shoot.

"The Candy Kid," Geo. S. Hassam of Boston, who last year carried off the largest number of prizes, "Takes grief with a smile," for he did not break all the clay pigeons he shot at.

Mr. Geo. Capin of the Winchester Arms Co. will not soon be forgotten, for the handsome pictures that friends have received will be a pleasant reminder.

Mr. Geo. Steele of Boston is the one who wears a smile and takes home the prizes.

For ten days Camp Sturtevant is taken by Messrs. Michael Tracy of Brooklyn, Frank Oberender, Arthur Cooper, of South Orange, N. J., G. E. Zippel, of East Orange, N. J. and Gen. H. A. Walker of New York. The General who won honors in the Civil war is much pleased with this, his first visit to the Rangeleys, and he can catch fish even if Mr. Oberender has taken a 3-pound salmon and his big one did not reach the record notch.

Mr. S. B. Adams and Mr. W. N. Taylor of Portland spent the past three days at the tournament and when off duty went fishing, and brought in all the trout and salmon the party wanted for the table.

Mr. A. S. Wetherell of Exeter, N. H., with David Haines guide, caught a 4½-pound trout and a 5-pound salmon that he took home with him last Wednesday, to prove the fish stories he tells.

Many of the guests are very much pleased that the church at Oquossoc is open for the summer.

Mr. R. E. Taylor of Roxbury has opened his camp and is entertaining a party of friends.

Mr. James Richie of Canada is making a short stay at his camp.

Several parties are expected this week for a long stay.

MUSKRAT NOT FLESH EATER.

Trapper for Years but Never Saw It Once.

To the Editor of Maine Woods: I noticed in your last issue of Maine Woods, that the muskrat as a vegetarian is quoted a myth, and I quote him a myth also as a fish and egg eater.

Quoting their own words in part it may be interesting to know that in all my years of hunting and trapping, the muskrat has never come under my notice as a flesh eater, and I do know that he is one of the greatest lovers of roots, bark, and grass, of any of the water animals, save the beaver. I have never found even a single shell opened by the muskrat, although open clam shells are numerous along the streams which have been opened by pearl hunters, or perhaps some that have died of injury. To open a clam shell the muskrat would require the strength of a man. Ask the old pearl hunters if the clam shell could be opened by a muskrat, when it requires no mean strength, even for a man. If they say yes, then of course the rat must needs be as strong or stronger than "measly man." I have found muskrats' houses that were lined with green twigs of which the bark had been eaten off, also flag roots and grass stored away for the winter. Also I found where the rats had eaten out the tender parts of the grass and the flags.

Although I do not say the rats do not or cannot eat meat, I have yet to see one that does eat flesh. As a whole muskrats' food seems to be the things I mentioned, but perhaps young trappers know more about such matters than an old veteran of the forest and stream.

They claimed that the black lynx was a myth because it escaped the eyes of our naturalists. Even these gentlemen get fooled and so they did about the black lynx.

Good luck to all.

FISH ICE IN GLASS.

AUTOMOBILE FOLKS VISIT EUSTIS AND VICINITY.

Stalled at Night in Storm.

(Special to Maine Woods).
Eustis, Maine, June 12, 1911.

Sunday was rainy, and travel light to this place, and nearby camps. The Sargent placed a brand new register on the desk Sunday morning and when the last person had registered at night not a soul had registered and it seemed sure that the first name would have to appear under Monday's date, but in this section you can never tell and Monday morning showed five names on the register under Sunday's date.

A short time before midnight a party from Pawtucket, R. I. came in an automobile. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Fuller, and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Davenport, with Jack McGee chauffeur. The automobile stalled some miles away from any habitation, and the party was delayed several hours while the machine was being fixed. It was a most unpleasant experience for it was pouring hard and was very dark. When this party finally reached here they were drenched, but in all other respects in good shape. They are to stay at the Sargent for several days.

Edward Fletcher, C. B. Fletcher, George Fletcher, and Harold F. Evans of Philadelphia left the Hotel Sargent, Saturday for Chain of Ponds. Their runabout presented a utility appearance as it started from the hotel. There were four men besides the chauffeur aboard; and all sorts

Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Vollker, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sissons, of Providence, R. I. have just returned to their home city, after a ten days' stay at Hotel Sargent. They were expert with the rod, and brought in their quota of trout every day while here. They had upon former occasions had poor success in getting fish home in good condition. This time, Jack Lockwood, the accommodating clerk at the hotel invented a plan whereby he is satisfied the fish arrived in Providence in prime order. He packed a glass jar with ice and salt, sealed it, and placed it in the center of a box, with the fish packed around it, with brown paper wrapped about the fish, and other sheets laid against the sides of the box. A tight cover completed the arrangement. The party made the trip to Eustis from Providence in one day.

else in the boat. But a party of three men that were fishing on Weld pond a few days ago know a better way than that. They fished pretty well over the pond before they got any, and were presumably afraid they would lose some that they finally hooked. At any rate, when they got a fish on, which they did once in a while, they "derricked" them in the good old way not caring in the least for fancy rigging or fancy ways.

Week before last the Weld pond salmon had begun to live on flies and "June bugs" but they wouldn't take any notice of artificial flies, good judgment perhaps, but very aggravating. We don't know whether the pickerel were hankering for flies or not but we do know that at least one wanted a smelt and put in a good deal of time trying to get one out of a glass trap, the property of one of the guides. The pickerel made a dive for the smelt and came up hard against the glass. Then he backed away and looked it over. He was sorely tempted and he couldn't help trying again. He repeated this eight or ten times and finally stayed around apparently waiting for something to happen. Many attempts were made to interest the pickerel in a fat angle worm but he would pay no attention to anything but the smelt that he couldn't get.

BUNKER HILL DAY CELEBRATION AT RANGELEY.

For four years now the people of Rangeley have made great occasion of the seventeenth of June, and given honor to the heroes of the American flag in this annual celebration. The celebration this year was one of the best, if not the best in Rangeley's observance of the day. A large delegation of Civil War Veterans, and their wives, Sons of Veterans, and members of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, and other citizens, including about a hundred in all, came to town on a special train from Phillips to help observe the day.

By the way, this uniting of Phillips and Rangeley, with Rangeley going to Phillips for the observance of Decoration day, May 30th, and Phillips coming to Rangeley for the celebration of June 17th, each year, offers a very good opportunity for friendly feeling between the two towns, and on each occasion everybody seems perfectly happy and in the best of spirits.

Another good reason why this joining forces seems wise is because of the rapid thinning out of the soldiers ranks, and only a small remnant of the old soldiers who fought to defend our national honor in this vicinity are left. Five have died in the two towns during the past year and less than two dozen were in the parade last Saturday.

The celebration Saturday started with a street parade soon after the arrival of the Phillips train with their large patriotic delegation.

The parade was headed by the Rangeley Cornet Band with the Junior Order and Sons of Veterans, in the lead of the old soldiers and in the rear of the parade were a number of school children bearing American flags. Dinner was served at Grange hall where all had a most bountiful supply of food that reminded Judge Morrison of the daily Thanksgiving he used to have in 1861, as he expressed it in his afternoon speech, when boarding from house to house in Rangeley as a school teacher of those days.

At 1:30 the procession was once more made up and the line of march was up Main street direct to Furbish hall where the afternoon exercises were held.

The following program was carried out:

Music, Rangeley Cornet Band
Piano Duet, Mrs. Rowe, Miss Russell
Chorus of Freedom,
Prayer, Rev. E. H. Prescott
Response, "Nearer My God to Thee" Band
Recitation, "G. A. R." Miss Huntoon
Solo, Miss Tibbetts
Reading, Miss Jacobs
Flag of the Free, Chorus
Music, Band
Oration, Rev. L. Arthur White
America, Band
Remarks by presiding officer of the day, Judge Morrison Benediction.

The subject of the oration was "Honor Due American Heroes," and was listened to by a large audience.

It is estimated that 350 people were in the hall with many standing and others outside who did not gain admittance.

After much cheering of the united country the people assembled outside of the hall at the close of the exercises to listen to a concert by the band, which closed the celebrations of the day.

At the Sunday School hour, 12 m. at the Union church next Sunday there will be a reception to the babies of the Cradle Roll, and other exercises appropriate to Children's Day. All will be cordially welcome, and a special invitation is given to parents and children to be present.

There will be a ball game at Toothaker's Park, Saturday afternoon, between West Rangeleys and Phillips.

Among the features in Phillips the Fourth of July will be horseback riding, and a prize will be given to the best lady rider.

Pool Fly Fishing is Now On in Good Style.

(Special to Maine Woods).
Upper Dam, Maine, June 15, 1911.
The fish are in the pool and lots of them, many that lacked but one or two ounces of the required three pounds have been taken on the fly this week.

Everyone said there would be something doing when "Jim Dougherty of Syracuse, N. Y., arrived, and the reason Jim sits in the office this afternoon, and is not out on the pool, is because he has never yet in all the years he has been coming failed to keep the fish and game laws, and this forenoon he was sending the fly over the pool, using one of his light rods. He caught several salmon he knew would not weigh 3-lbs and tossed them back. Then along came a big fellow, jumped out of the water and over the fly with a splash, then another jump for the silver doctor, and he was hooked, and the fun kept up for half an hour, when the 5-lb 7-oz salmon was netted. Swish through the air, again goes the line, another salmon hooked and landed, 3-lb 3-oz, but there were others in the pool and soon another was trying to lunch off the fly and was hooked—this time a 5-lb salmon. That is why "Jim" is not fishing this afternoon and yesterday he caught one 3-lb, 6 ounces. Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty arrived Monday and will remain for a month, which is pleasing news for their many friends.

Mr. J. R. Davis, the Philadelphia artist, has spent hours this week standing on a big rock and casting over the pool, and Sunday he landed a 4-lb 15-oz salmon, and on Monday, one 6-lb 3-oz, the largest taken on the fly this year from the pool.

For many years, Mr. E. Bartlett of North Oxford, Mass., and friend, Mr. L. R. Eddy of Webster, Mass., accompanied by their wives, have spent weeks here. They made a host of true friends among the guests. Mrs. Bartlett and Mrs. Eddy have "crossed the river" but are most kindly remembered. Mr. Bartlett, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Halliwell, and Mr. Eddy, and Miss French have come back again to regain health and spend two weeks amid the lakes they have visited for more than a quarter of a century. Every pleasant day they go out trolling and with Ernest Grant and George Thomas for guides, are having fine luck. Already they have caught over 20 fish, the largest a 5-lb salmon, and several that weighed 3 pounds and over. They have sent two ten pound boxes home to friends this week.

Mr. F. N. Abbott, deputy sheriff of Lawrence, Mass., accompanied by Mrs. Abbott, came Wednesday for a ten days' trip. Chester Sweet it their guide and they expect to land some of the big fish.

Coming from Milford, Penn., to remain all summer, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Palmer, and daughter, Miss L. A. Palmer, and son, S. H. Palmer, Jr., are happily located in the west camp. Mr. Palmer's first fish on the fly was a 2-lb 14-oz salmon, so his name does not yet appear on the record

Slavery in Old Greece.

The Greeks were slave owners with a vengeance. All manual work was done by "barbarians," as the Greeks called those who had been captured in war. The greatest of the Greeks saw no evil in the institution. Aristotle is quite outspoken in his justification of slavery. A certain amount of mean work had to be done, he claimed, and "mean natured men" were intended to do it. The slaves in some of the Greek states outnumbered the freemen four or five to one. Manual labor came in Greece to be thought a degradation, suited only for beings who could not do the higher work. Even freemen who worked for wages were by Aristotle placed outside the constitution. And what was true of the Greeks was equally true of most of the other ancient nations.—Exchange.

Shakespeare as an Actor.

About the year 1590 one of the London companies received an addition in the person of a young man who was not only a skillful and useful actor, but who also possessed the accomplishment of being able to adapt older plays to the taste of the times and even proved to have the gift of writing tolerably good plays himself, though older and jealous colleagues might hint at their not being altogether original. This young man, whose capacities became of no slight use to the company and the theater, was named William Shakespeare.—From "A History of Theatrical Art."

Very Complicated.

Aunt Kate—What brings that young Mr. Stevens to the house so often? Mildred—Well, his mother's stepfather married a second cousin of my father's great-aunt. We're trying to figure out what relation that makes him to me, and it can't be done in one evening.—St. Louis Times.

Breaking the Record.

The Caller—I hear that you've been to a party, Mabel. Did you dance much? Mabel (aged eight)—I should say I did. I danced two quadrillions.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DEER NOT EATING POTATOES.

Maine Woods "Lugged" Across River,
New Megantic Camps.

(Special to Maine Woods).
Alder Stream Farm, Eustis, Me.,
June 12, 1911.

This farm, twelve miles into the wilderness, beyond the county road, which goes no farther than Eustis, is owned by Hume and Newhall of Fairfield. Daniel McLeod is the farm manager. Last year he raised 900 bushels of potatoes, all of which were used by the lumbering crews during the winter.

This year he put in over 70 bushels of seed, and expects a larger crop than last year, 150 men were quartered at the farm and camps last winter.

Potatoes and turnips are the only crops that can be raised here that escape the ravages of deer. The deer in this section are so numerous and bold that they overrun the farm, and destroy any vegetation they like—potatoes and turnip tops they do not eat, unless in extreme hunger.

The Maine Woods man had the unique experience of being carried across the stream on the back of one of the men employed on the farm. The man saw the scribe about to remove his foot covering preparatory to fording the stream, and said, "Now mister, if you will take chances of my falling on some of the slippery rocks, I will take you over on my back." The scribe is not a firm believer in providence, but left that this was a bit of evidence that he was in some slight favor with the regulator of providential happenings, and taking a good look at the strong man and noting the intelligence expressed in his eyes, he hesitated not a second in saying that he would accept the offer. The ford was difficult for the rains had raised the stream considerably, and in places was two feet deep, but the Round Mountain side was safely reached.

The scribe has been in the habit of paying for all services rendered—a habit forced upon him by his avaricious fellow men—and accordingly produced a piece of money wherewith to pay his ferry toll.

What a mistake! Here was a man whose face flushed with resentment at sight of money. He turned away, saying, "I wouldn't have done it, had I thought you were going to offer to pay." He was offended. The scribe professes to be equal to the occasion whatever it is, but having made the double blunder of urging the acceptance thereby increasing the offence against a large hearted man, unspoiled by the spirit of a commercialized world, he began to lose conceit. However, taking advantage of the only excuse, he at last mollified the offended man. His name was A. K. McKay, and he is a native of Cape Britian. He and the scribe had a brief discussion of the tariff question, and Mr. McKay proved to be a man well informed upon the subject.

Today a gang of five men arrived at the farm. They were on their way to Big Island Sporting camps. They will make their way through the forest to that point where they will begin the construction of several new camps for the Megantic Fish and Game club.

HOTEL AND CAMP SUPPLIES.

Butter and Eggs Bought Locally, Broilers Come from Outside.

The greatest opportunity for the farmers of Maine to make money lies right at their doors and a good number of them are taking advantage of the chance. Every hotel and camp in the state must have butter, eggs, chickens and dozens of other supplies that are raised by farmers.

As an example of what can be done in this line, note that all of the eggs that are used by the Rangeley Lake House and the Rangeley Tavern are bought in Phillips and Farmington. In the busy season the two hotels use about 150 dozen of fresh eggs every day. All of the butter used for the two hotels is made in Phillips, Madrid and Strong, but the broilers all come from Portland, Lewiston and Boston. These could all be raised in Franklin county as well as not and the prices for such supplies are extra good.

PICKFORD'S GOOD LUCK.

Salmon from 9¼-lbs Down, from Rangeley Lake.

(Special to Maine Woods).
Rangeley, Maine, June 17, 1911.
The guests at Pickford's camps are having good luck. M. B. Kaven, of Beverly, Mass., June 14, 4-lb and 3¼-lb salmon, June 16, 9¼-lb salmon, Mr. John J. Hayes, Lynn, Mass., June 16, 6-lb salmon.

BEAR AND PICKEREL.

Baby Bruin Drank Rum and Died
A Drunkard.

Bears are perhaps no more plentiful in Weld than in a good many other rural Maine towns, notably Kingfield in this (Franklin) county, where old Mt. Abram is said to furnish special inducements for winter quarters, with "dens" of all sizes and shapes ready made in the rocky mountain side. Weld has distinguished herself in several ways in connection with bears. There is a story that is told with considerable gusto by some of the guides about a baby bear that Mr. Blaisdell captured and sold to some sports men who had hired a cottage and were camping on the shore of Weld pond. The little fellow was as full of mischief as he could be and he furnished lots of entertainment for his owner and friends, as well as the neighbors. The bear followed his owner all over town like a dog and would cry whenever he was left behind. When out for a walk he would run far ahead and climb to the tip top of a tree and wait for his friends to catch up, when he would hustle down, sliding and tumbling to the ground, and repeat the performance, to the great amusement of all who saw him. He amused and alarmed his friends by turns and was finally taught to drink liquor. This was too much; the little fellow proved to be a common drunkard and as he grew older and boozier he lost his former good disposition and became a scold. His owner took him to Boston where he is said to have accompanied the man to saloons regularly and to have drunk for the amusement of those present. The result was sad. The little bear from Maine continued to indulge his appetite for liquor, with the assistance of his owner, until one day he drank too much and died of alcoholism.

We didn't intend to say so much about bears in the first paragraph. We only wanted to tell about the new duty that has been delegated to the fish and game warden at Weld, Dennis Swett. A few days ago a woman who lives in Weld was driving on the highway, feeling at peace with all the world and trying hard to love her neighbors as herself and other things too numerous to mention.

Out! a big black bear appeared in the road. The lady was scared. She didn't stop to talk it over with the bear or to expostulate with him for not staying in the woods where he belongs and where he is supposed to stay. She just turned her horse around and drove straight to the game warden's house and told him about the incident and ordered him to "kill the bear." The warden was very courteous, as is his wont and he didn't object in the least to doing what was requested of him but we understand that he hasn't killed the bear and if we can learn the full name of the lady we propose to give the warden away in the matter. We never knew a bear to harm a human being when he could get away. If any reader of Maine Woods ever heard of such a thing we would like to know about it.

It is not common to see a two pound salmon "derricked" into a boat like brook trout caught by a small boy on an alder pole. It is more common to see Mr. Salmon netted by the guide or somebody

The daily papers seem to delight in referring to Marshall Taylor, the self confessed murderer as guide and hunter and trapper. The truth is that Marshall Taylor was always known as a half baked farmer's son, who was decidedly queer in his ways.
He hunted and fished some, in season and out of season no doubt; but he never made a business of guiding fishing or hunting patrons. He never lived in a place where he could get such work. We dislike the frequent references to Taylor as guide, etc., because people who are not informed may get the impression that the Maine guides as a class are different than they are. They are men who take great responsibility in piloting their employers through the woods.
The violation of a trust reposed in a Maine guide is the rarest thing imaginable. As a class they are honest and reliable, and it is a part of their business to protect their patrons from all harm while fishing and hunting in the Maine woods.

RANGELEY TAVERN.

Automobile Parties and Others at The Rangeleys.

(Special to Maine Woods).

Rangeley Tavern, Rangeley, Me.,
June 18, 1911.

Travel has been on the increase the past few days, and there are many en route for the camps beyond who take the buckboard from here.

"Is this your Rangeley weather?"
asked a stranger this morning as he came down to breakfast and found the sky blue and the air clear
"Yes, this is our ideal Rangeley weather," was the answer given and where can one find better than here high among the mountains?

Mr. W. H. Barrow of Boston one of the masters of the Fay school, Southbridge, Mass. is located here for the summer, and will act as tutor for the sons of Mr. T. P. Burges, the gentleman who has taken the Gilman cottage for the season.

Miss A. E. Duley of Lewiston, a trained nurse who has been at Kennebago on duty, spent the Sabbath here on her return home.

Mr. Chas. E. Saywood of Portland is here for ten days.

The Parkhurst party of Winchester
Mass., enroute for Loon Lake, registered here Thursday.

Mr. Albert Worthley of Arkansa
City, Kan., who is at the Farmington camp with friends, made a short stay here this week.

Messrs. W. P. Richardson and J.
H. Easterday, two Brooklyn gentlemen, after a successful Kennebago trip made a short stay here this week.

Messrs. Warren Tyler and Geo.
W. Bartlett of Athol, Mass., were her for a short stay.

The automobile parties who are coming and going in all directions find this a most convenient and attractive place to tarry.

The Randall party of Portland,
in two autos, were here for dinner
Tuesday.

Rev. Fr. Thomas J. McLaughlin, who celebrates mass in Furbish hall at 6 o'clock every Sunday morning, makes this hotel his headquarters while in town.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Cross of Augusta were here in their auto Sunday.

During the past ten days sixty commercial men have registered here. Mr. Alton Brown, the clerk in charge, always makes the boys on the road feel at home.

Mr. J. A. Lading of Fitchburg, Mass. is a lucky fisherman, for he often goes out with hook and line and brings in a good string of fish.

DEER SWIM BIG LAKE.

Barker Guests Have Chance to Watch Doe and Fawn.

(Special to Maine Woods).

The Barker, Maine, June 10, 1911.

The guests yesterday morning had a free wild animal show, that made everybody wish they had been out when the 7 o'clock call was given. One of the guides at the wharf who was getting his boat ready to take a party out fishing, noticed something in the water near Bowley rock, that they thought at first was a moose swimming this way, but it proved to be a big doe and yearling fawn, that swam as if on a pleasure trip. The guests were called and quite a party watched them coming nearer and nearer, and landing in the open just below
the camps, where they shook themselves and started off into the woods up Bald Mountain. "That pays for coming to Maine; I have always wanted to see a wild deer," remarked one of the ladies.

Mr. A. H. Berry and Mr. J. W.
Tabor of Portland returned home this morning after their annual two weeks' fishing trip, with Frank Philbrook guide, this being their twenty-second fishing trip together at the Rangeleys. Mr. Berry said "we have had good fishing; there are any amount of small fish" and this goes to prove the good work that is being accomplished by our Fish Hatchery at Oquossoc. Both gentlemen sent a box of fish home to their friends, had all they wanted to eat and Mr. Tabor had a 5-pound salmon and Mr. Berry a fine pair of salmon, 3½ pounds and 3¼ pounds each.

Last week we reported a rainbow trout of 4 pounds as being caught by Mr. Harry Rich of Brookline,
Mass., but after talking with Hon.
Henry O. Stanley, who for many years was fish and game commissioner of Maine, and who informs us there never was a rain-bow trout in these lakes, we beg to correct the statement.

Mr. H. R. Peirson of Pittsfield, Mass., who ever since the Barker opened has been an annual guest, is this year accompanied by his daughter, Miss Nannie Peirson, who is very enthusiastic over her first visit. Her father, who yesterday brought in a 5-pound salmon will have to look out for his laurels.
Archie Bennett is their guide, and they are having great times lunching on the shore. Archie can make good coffee, and you ought to have some of his fried onions. "Please come and lunch with us," was the invitation.

Mr. Wm. H. Stevens of Portland, who is here for a two weeks' stay with Ernest Demeritt, guide, on Wednesday distinguished himself by recording the largest salmon taken here this season, a 6¼-pounder.

Mr. F. P. Partridge, a Boston lawyer, and friend, Mr. A. H. Appel of the same city are now at Pickford's camps after a week's stay. Will Porter was their guide. Mr. Appel caught two record salmon, one 4½ pounds, the other 3 pounds, and Mr.
Partridge a 3-lb salmon.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren H. Breed, of Lynn, started homeward this morning going via the chain of lakes and Dixville Notch and the Balsams, which promises to be a very popular trip for the tourist this year. The big automobiles are to be put on the last of this month to take people that way from Errol Dam to Colebrook.

Coming in their big touring car,
Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Gore, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Burnham of Boston, and friend, Mrs. Geo. M. Peyser of Portsmouth, N. H. made a two days run, reporting the roads in good condition. They are greatly enjoying a few days here in camp.

Mr. G. D. Lebolt, of New York, with Charles Record guide, caught a 4-pound trout, and Mrs. R. J. Gove, Gard Hinkley guide, one of 3½ pounds, and Mrs. E. W. LaCroix, of Lynn, Bob Martin guide, a 3-pound trout. Mrs. F. M. Williams a 3¼-pound salmon, Herb Lufkin guide.

Mr. Theo. Hawley, of Rumford, who came to spend Sunday with his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. J. B.
Fraser of New York, with Howard
Porter guide, caught a 3½-pound salmon.

RANGELEY IN WEST.

Black Bass and White Fish Sport in West.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Wilbur of Saint Paul, Minn. are the guests of Mr. Wilbur's father, Hon. Joel Wilbur at the Wilbur camp on Rangeley lake. Mr. Frank Wilbur has had no trout fishing in the west, but he has caught some black bass and white fish. He is treasurer of the Northwestern Elevator Co. and he says that business in his line is dull this year. The wheat crop in North Dakota was pretty near a failure last year. It panned out only 35 million bushels of wheat, whereas 135 million bushels would have been nearer normal.

ROSSACRES FARM.

Camp and Farm Life by a Boston Business Man.

(Special to Maine Woods). Rangeley, Maine, June 19, 1911. At Hillside and Spruce camps on Rangeley Lake are Messrs. A. H. Proctor, Henry Fitzgibbert Waters, Chas. R. Waters and E. I. Henderson of Salem, Mass. and A. F. Breed of Lynn. Camp Hillside is the original Proctor and Breed camp that was built by Messrs. Proctor and Breed a dozen years ago. Camp Spruce was built by other parties and bought a few years ago by Mr. Proctor.

Mr. Henry Fitzgibbert Waters is considered the leading genealogist in the country. He it was who searched the records in London until he discovered the origin of John Harvard, for whom Harvard College was named. He also discovered the ancestry of George Washington, thus making very valuable addition to the history of the families of the great men of our country. Mr. Waters has a very remarkable memory and is intensely interested in his work and is a very interesting conversationalist.

When Mr. Proctor first came to Rangeley it was to fish. He didn't suppose he would ever do anything in Rangeley but fish, and he didn't for a long time. But one day uncle Abram Ross, one of the wealthiest farmers in Franklin county, and near neighbor, said he wanted to sell and named his price. Mr. Proctor is in the real estate business in Boston and it would have been impossible for him to stay around camp and occasionally talk things over with his neighbors without forming a pretty good idea of the worth of the Abram Ross place and the other farms near by. The result of Uncle Abram's desire to sell was that Proctor bought. And then he didn't know what to do with it. He didn't need it for a fishing camp or a place to spend long vacations. He had plenty of room for all the outings he could get. He hired Jesse Ross, a nephew of Abram, to take charge of the farm; and soon he bought the old Squire Rangeley farm of George Ross which gave him 325 acres on the shore of Rangeley lake. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Ross are thrifty young people who know farming from A to Z and are acquainted with the fact that nothing worth having is gained without work. Clarence Hoar is also there all the year and Chas. Hoar and wife are added during the summer. At the present time Cliff McKinney is one of the guides at the camps and Wm. Bolter is the cook.

This big farm, now known as "Rossacres" has often been spoken of as a desirable place for a summer hotel but it is a really and truly farm and a big one in more ways than one. Just to give you an idea of how they do things at Rossacres we will mention in passing that Mr. Proctor recently purchased four miles of heavy wire fence and he has already fenced in a 200 acre sheep pasture. For sheep he has introduced imported stock of the Lincoln, Hampshire and Dorset breeds. The dorsets seem to be the leaders in this experiment as they are extra good for lambs and shear a good amount of wool. The leader of the flock of 225 sheep is "Lord Thorndyke" a buck with many aristocratic twists in his horns and a winner of all prizes in this country at the shows for several years. He was bought in Ontario for Rossacres. Dorsets, bucks and ewes all have horns.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. F. Kennedy of Boston have taken the old Squire Rangeley house on Rossacres, lately known as the Geo. Ross house. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy are well known in their respective fields, Mr. Kennedy as a landscape painter and Mrs. Kennedy as a writer for the magazines. They are delighted with this old house and are putting a lot of work and expense into it and all to make it appear older and more artistic and to be more comfortable. Mr. Kennedy has fixed up a corner of the shed for a studio with plenty of light, the only new thing in it being the windows where there were no windows before. The windows in the main house are of the smallest old fashioned kind and as some of the sashes were broken out, the owner has had new ones made of exactly the same size to match, but they had to be made especially, as that pattern was out-dated years ago. This house is at least 75 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy have a very desirable summer home at the old angeley place. Mrs. Kennedy plans to write something for Maine Woods soon about the place and its history.

HENHAWKS BATTLE FIERCELY.

Buckboard Driver Sees a Rare Woods Sight.

Eustis, Maine, June 14, 1911.

To the Editor of Maine Woods: Mark Daggett, who drives a buckboard into Big Island pond was at the Sargent Sunday and told of being a witness to a fight between two henhawks while returning from there Friday. Men familiar with the habits of birds say it is a rare occurrence for such birds to fight. Mr. Daggett tells the story thus.

"I had a crate of live chickens that were going to Big Island pond. One of them died on the way. I threw it beside the road. When I came back, I heard a flapping of wings ahead near where the chicken had been thrown out. When I got a little nearer I was astonished to see two henhawks fiercely fighting. They were striking and hitting, with legs and bills just as roosters do in a fight. I got almost to them before they noticed me. The larger one made off quickly. The smaller one was evidently hurt too severely to get away with speed, and I tried catch him, but he just barely escaped me. The ground was covered with henhawk feathers as well as those from the dead chicken. It must have been that one of the hawks was feasting on the chicken and the other one came and attempted to join in the feast. It is the first time I ever saw henhawks fight, and I have seen hundreds of them."

TROUT "STANDING ON TAILS."

HERONS AND DEER GALORE SEEN AT ROCK POND.

Spruce Gum, Strawberries, Raspberries, Blueberries Galore Near Old Lumber Camp in Back Wood of the Dead River Region.

(Special to Maine Woods).

Eustis, Maine, June 15, 1911. Since I wrote my last letter to the Maine Woods, I have been to Rock and Iron Ponds and in this most famous attractively remote region. It will probably seem strange to the many people who know me for an indefatigable explorer of outlying camps, and fish and game lands, where one often has to blaze a trail, and make sporting history, that I should have in store for myself such a pleasure and experience, as a first visit to this much extolled, fruitful district, about which all who ever get there, enthuse and wax eloquent in description and narrative.

I have spent over half the year up in this Dead River region, for nearly a score of years, have fished in waters of the Provinces of Cape Britton, Prince Edward Islands, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and all the New England States in the course of about 35 years. I can truly say, I have never had many experiences in my individual sporting history, that will compare with my two days at Rock Pond camp recently.

Every guest who has ever been to Blakeslee Lake camps for more than one week, has gone to Rock Pond, and many have probably had even a more successful experience than mine, but have not always recorded it for the benefit or interest of the Maine Woods readers. Believing it will be appreciated by sportsmen and women, I will tell your readers of my outing. I have known Joe White for a number of years and I want to say right here he has never told me of a single wet spot in his preserve where I could get fish that I have not verified his declaration, so, when he said to Mrs. White one morning last week, "I have to go to Rock Pond to fix up camp for coming guests, paint boats and set things to rights over there. All our guests are away for outlying trips, for a couple of days. Why can't you two women come along and make a picnic of it?" "You and Mrs. Eastman can get some fly fishing that you will remember for long days to come!" "You don't get many outings during the season, better take one now!" It didn't take us long to get our "duffle" ready I can tell you; and at 9 o'clock we were on our way. We tramped over this beautiful trail of 6 miles in an easy leisurely way, making camp by noon. The well beaten track extends through a most interesting and magnificent country, with a diversity of scenery to distract an almost painful condition of appreciation of all the beautiful things God has given to nature in her primitive, unspoiled, wild conditions. The day was exceedingly warm and bright with a glowing sun, but much of our trail was softly shrouded by the lofty umbrella-line tops of magnificent specimens of old spruce, pine and other fir trees, which extended away from the trail as far as the eye could see. The straight sentinel like trunks and stems of these giants of the forests seemed to be reaching up to the skies, and formed a complete and grateful shade from the broiling sun. There are millions of these trees, and miles of surface covered with them on the mountains we were "skirting," to avoid passing over the steep tops. We found numerous springs of crystal like water, deliciously cool and refreshing all along the way, and we drank thirstily at every one of them, determined to test every luxury nature had so generously provided for the traveler on this trail.

After we had eaten heartily and with great relish of the good things

Joe had provided for our appetites, we rested for an hour, then set out for a sight seeing trip to Iron Pond. This famous little sheet of water, has at times produced the largest and most gamy trout in all the famous Dead River region. It is, however, most uncertain, and one can never count upon its vagaries and moods. The time of day was not propitious, and we had no time to experiment, so we paddled around the shores, looking, admiring and drinking in with each breath, the scenic beauties of this little spot of blue in the hollow of many mountains.

We saw several deer and many blue herons. It is a truly beautiful spot, regardless of its aggravation to would be fish catchers. Hurrying back to camp we had an early supper, got out our leaders and flies, sorting and selecting with great trepidation while Joe laughed and exclaimed, "Why, I tell you they will jump at a piece of red flannel!" Well, I guess Joe knows, at least he did know, about Rock Pond trout. About 6.30 we boarded the boat. Joe took up a paddle and gave the boat a push away from the wharf exclaiming, "Now, get busy! You'll find them anywhere in this pond!" And we did! The wind was blowing a gale, there wasn't an inch of still water on the pond, but every where the eye could see, trout were "standing on their tails," or turning a shimmering circle in the air out of the water, or boiling up under the surface and working bubbles that promised all kinds of things to the nervous fishermen who were expectantly getting ready.

"Get busy?" well, I should say so! Mrs. White, who is a creditable pupil of her skilful husband and can drop a pretty fly, and battle scientifically with her gamy trophies, soon had both of her flies engaged at once. This occurred several times and her great achievement was landing two trout at once, without landing net! The longest one would weigh 1½-lbs and the smaller ¾-lb. We were casting 1½ hours, and landed 80 trout. We kept the injured ones for food and returned 62 to the waters, many of these would weigh 1½-lbs. We had so much of the sport it began to pall on our eagerness, and when we could do so we shook them off our hooks after a rise. Joe had to go back to Blakeslee to look after some guests coming in, but decided to leave us there for one more day's sport, which he assured us would be de lux. So it happened, Friday we spent looking over the premises and enjoying the wonderful scenery and attractions around Rock pond. There are tiers and tiers of mountains surrounding this beautiful sheet of water. Some are thickly wooded and black as night, with spruce and fir. One grand old top is clear of vegetation, but glistens in the sun, with its wealth of gold bearing quartz rock. This is the gold region so much of romance and interest clusters about. There is the cut between two mountains, also where Gold Mine brook finds its way down to the longer streams. The farm, where the camp is located, lies in the hollow of all these mountains, and consists of 75 acres of good hay field, flat and level as a kitchen floor. It has a luxurious crop of hay growing and a log barn over 100 feet long stands in the centre of the field where the hay is stored when it is cut. Strawberries, raspberries and blueberries are to be found everywhere over here.

Mrs. White and I went up to the ruins of an old lumber camp after dinner and "nosing around" we jumped 3 deer and gathered a pail full of spruce gum. These old camps, were at one time the largest and most important in this county and it was interesting to look them over. 6.30 found us on the pond again. The condition was not ideal for fly casting. The waters were much rougher and wind blowing worse than the previous night. But to drop a fly was to get a rise, and we continued to catch, count and drop back the trout that were not injured until the moon was brightly shining in the sky. We had 100 even catch to our credit and some of them we saved for food to take back to Blakeslee in the morning. There were many over 1½-lbs and I did not see a trout that would go less than ½-lb. We had trout for our table over here for several meals out of the 12 we carried home Saturday morning in a pouring rain. It was an experience I can never forget, and its one many others have had before me, but that doesn't lessen my satisfaction, or give me one pang of envy.

Joe has completed his tower for his running water system and is building his bath room and toilet. I will tell you about it next time. Its a great invention of Joe's resourceful capacity and meets a long felt want to perfection.

It is essential to the contest that the names of not less than two contestants appear and remain actively engaged until the close. In the event of the withdrawal of all active candidates but one, there can be no contest and the prize will be withdrawn.

A coupon will be printed in every issue of Maine Woods until and including Thursday June 22, 1911, which will contain the last coupon. The contest will close at this paper's business office at 7.30 o'clock p. m. the following Monday, June 26, when the votes will be counted by a committee representing the leading contestants.

1. For every yearly new subscriber to this paper (8-page outing edition) at $1, 200 votes will be given. For every new subscriber for the local edition (12 pages) at $1.50 a year, 300 votes will be given. A new subscriber may pay as many years in advance as he wishes, and receive votes at the rate of 200 for each $1, and 300 for each $1.50 a year paid, but all these payments must be made in advance at one time.

2. For each $1 paid by present subscribers, either arrearages of accounts or in advance on present subscriptions, and whether for the outing edition or local edition, 100 votes will be allowed.

3. Changes in subscription from one member to another of the same family, etc., made for the obvious purpose of securing the increased number of votes given to new subscribers, cannot be permitted.

4. Each issue of Maine Woods will contain one coupon which, when filled out and delivered at the Maine Woods office, will count as one vote.

There will be no single votes of sale; votes can only be obtained as above set forth or by clipping from the paper the votes that appear below.

Votes will be counted each Thursday during the contest, and the figures of such counting printed in the following issue of the paper.

When a subscription is sent in, please mention the name of the party whom you wish to receive the votes, as no votes can be given if not taken at the time the subscription is paid.

CELEBRATE THE "GLORIOUS."

Fourth of July Arrangements Made and "All are Invited."

Phillips is "chirking up" about her Fourth of July celebration and "All are Invited."

A committee of citizens has taken hold of the forenoon's exercises and chairman Harry Bates of the committee informs Maine Woods that they propose to have "something doing" from the arrival of the first train at nine A. M. until noon, when the duties of the committee will end and the crowd will be turned over to the North Franklin Agricultural Society for the rest of the day.

The committee of arrangements are Harry S. Bates, Judge Geo. L. Lakin, and Clarence Campbell; A. A. Jacobs, treasurer.

They propose to spend $100.00 in prizes.

In the afternoon the Society will put on a horse trot, a base ball game and other things equally interesting. They are alive to the needs of the occasion and they say it will be a track meet worth attending.

"All are invited."

REMEDY FOR CUT WORMS.

The following letter was received from Mr. L. M. Brayman, of Westville, N. H. by Mr. G. A. French in reply to a letter of inquiry in regard to the cut worms:

Westville, N. H., June 17, 1911.

I am going to write what we are doing to get ahead of them as I note by the Maine Woods the worms are after Phillips as well as Hampstead inhabitants. Possibly you know of this dope for them but it will not do any harm to repeat.

The worms got after us so severely that they got most of our garden and even some potatoes and corn, but I guess we have them corralled now for keeps.

Mr. W. C. O'Kane, entomologist of the New Hampshire Agriculture station wrote me in reply to my inquiry as follows: "Cutworms are very bad throughout New Hampshire this year. I am not surprised that you have had trouble with them. You can get ahead of them by poisoning them with what we know as poison bran mash."

To make the poison bran mash proceed as follows: Take 50-lbs. of bran and mix with it dry, one pound of Paris Green. Then in a separate vessel add two quarts of molasses to about two or three gallons of water and use this sweetened mixture to moisten the poison bran, using only enough sweetened water to make the bran moist, not enough to make it sloppy. Distribute

REST AND HEALTH TO MOTHER AND CHILD.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for over SIXTY YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEething, with PERFECT SUCCESS. IT SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN; CURES WIND COLIC, and is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. It is absolutely harmless. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

this along the rows through the garden."

I used this the other day as soon as I could secure the Paris Green and have not lost a thing since, where before, every day we found all kinds of things cut off. If they are bothering you it might be well to try it unless you have already done so. Of course it is easier to make smaller proportions and I made half of the above quantity to start with.

If the Phillips people are bothered to any extent and do not seem to know just what to do it would be satisfactory to me to have all or such parts of this letter printed in the Maine Woods for I should be glad to be of this much assistance to fellow sufferers among the Phillips people.

I have now over 500 chicks and all seem to be ready and willing to take their meals on time and some of the first hatch (hatched March 31) are nearing the three pound mark. This is ordinary to old growers, however, I expect, so I am not saying much about them.

Respectfully yours,
L. M. Brayman.

Stomach Troubles Relieved.

Those people who suffer with the distressing symptoms attending chronic dyspepsia will be interested to read the following voluntary testimonial:—

"I have kept the L. F. Atwood's bitters in the house for over twenty years and have received great benefit from them. It does seem as though I could not keep house without them. In the past I have had a very bad stomach trouble, and could hardly do my work. After taking a few bottles of the true L. F. Atwood's Medicine, I became much better. My niece has also been greatly benefitted by them. We both are willing to recommend the medicine to all who need a remedy for dyspepsia and constipation." Mrs. C. S. Dunning, R. F. D. No. 2, North Harpswell, Me.

WOMEN MAY AVOID OPERATIONS

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for seven months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

PHILLIPS AND VICINITY.

George L. Lakin, Esq., state deputy, instituted a council of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics at Mercer, June 15, with charter members present and more on the way. The team of seventeen from Sandy River Council, No. 70, exemplified the work in an able manner. At the close of the work refreshments were served. The officers are as follows: I. P. C., W. C. Wade; C., Geo. W. Wood; V. C., Alton Smith; K. S., H. D. Page; A. K. S., A. A. Savage; F. Sec'y, Geo. E. Bains; Treas., D. M. Bunker; Cor Sec'y, Harry J. Carson; Ward., Elden Gray; I. S., Dexter Decker; O. S., Chas. McDahald; Trustees, Wesley Watson, A. A. Savage; Chap., John J. Fergelle.

WINSHIP DISTRICT, PHILLIPS.

A most interesting sermon was enjoyed Sunday, June 11, by Rev. M. S. Hutchins, at the close of the Sunday school. Despite the bad weather there was a very good attendance.

The Sunday school recently organized is in good condition. A large illustrated, scripture chart, donated by Miss G. V. Wilbur, adds much interest to the lessons.

Dr. and Mrs. Morrell Wing were guests of their son, C. A. Wing and family, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Sweetser, son Guy, and Miss Margaret Edwards, visited at Weston Parker's Saturday. Mrs. Porter of Rumford, and Miss Anna Sargent visited Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wing, Tuesday.

The many friends of Mrs. True-man Fairbanks will be glad to learn that she is much improved in health, and is able to get around the house as well as out of doors.

Mrs. Nancy Fairbanks is working for Mrs. C. H. Noyes, who is in poor health.

Weston Parker has hired the Charles Fairbanks farm and has sowed oats and Japanese millet there and will later cut the hay.

A number of people in this district visited the school on flag day, June 14. There are 10 scholars and all show a great deal of improvement under the efficient direction of Mrs. Belle Adams, who is a conscientious teacher, giving many hours of extra work, besides the hours required by law. Mrs. Adams had no particular exercises for the day except a poem and some facts about the flag and a salute to the flag, but all who visited felt repaid for doing so, just to see the regular work carried out. The term will close June 30.

LEADING CITIZEN ENDS LIFE THIS MORNING.

George A. French, President of the Phillips Savings Bank is believed to have been Temporarily Mentally Unbalanced.

The entire community received a terrible shock this morning when it became known that George A. French, one of the leading citizens of Phillips, a man highly respected by all who knew him, had ended his life by hanging, at his home in the upper village.

Mr. French got up this morning as usual and did the usual chores around his home. He then went to his room and tied a handkerchief carefully around his neck, which was thought nothing of at the time. Apparently he went immediately to the upper story in his stable for he was soon found there by Andrew Aldrich, a young man who has been helping Mr. French about his work in the stable and around the house.

Mrs. French was called at once, and a physician was summoned, but Mr. French was dead when found. The family and friends are so prostrated over the affair that they could not be interviewed to any extent, but it was learned that Mr. French has not been known to have had any serious difficulties of any kind, but that of late he has been constantly worried about little things that have not gone just right, even the mislaying of a letter agitating him considerably, and it is believed that this constant worrying has unbalanced his mind temporarily. No other reason can be assigned for the suicide.

Few men in Franklin county are better known or have more friends than Mr. French, his large business interests having brought him into contact with many business men throughout the state and elsewhere. He has long been one of the substantial business men of North Franklin, and his interest in the business and social affairs of Phillips has been noteworthy. He has been a leading republican for years, and has held various local positions of trust, always with credit to himself. He recently announced himself a candidate for the postmastership at the expiration of Mr. Haley's term late in the year, and the petitions circulated have been liberally signed.

Mr. French has long been affiliated with the Congregational church, and may be said to have been a leader in that society, as well as in the social affairs of the village.

Coroner F. P. Adams of Farmington, was notified of the finding of the body, but as it was clearly a case of suicide did not consider an inquest necessary.

The funeral will probably occur at the home Sunday, Rev. M. S. Hutchins officiating, but at the hour of going to press the funeral arrangements had not been made.

Mr. French leaves a wife and one daughter, Miss Lucille French, a musician of more than local reputation, to whom the entire community extends the most profound sympathy in their hour of deepest sorrow.

BROWN TROUT OF MAINE.

FISH HATCHERY SUPERINTENDENT WRITES ABOUT THEM.

Blakeslee Lake "Freak" Without Doubt That Kind of Fish—Belongs to a Gamy Family of Fast Growers and Fast Fighters.

East Auburn, Maine, June 7, 1911.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

I read in your issue of the 1st a letter written by "B. C. J. E." Blakeslee camps, in relation to a fish caught there. My opinion according to the description of the fish is that it was a German or Brown trout. I am quite sure this is the only State fish hatchery that has raised any Brown trout. The first Brown trout were sent to this hatchery some 15 years ago from the United States hatchery. I tried to be careful not to have the different fish mixed, but at times, with the most careful attention, the screens between the ponds will get broken, and no doubt the fish got mixed. There have been Red-spot trout sent to Blakeslee lake from this hatchery, and more than likely a few Brown trout got mixed with them.

Don't be frightened if there are a few Brown trout in your ponds or lakes. In my opinion they are a much better fish than the salmon. The Brown trout has been represented by some writers as a fish that is destructive to other fish. My knowledge and experience with them for the past 15 years, is, that they are not a destructive or bad fish, not as much so, as the salmon or Redspot trout.

The German or Brown trout spawn were first sent to the United States from Germany. They are quite plentiful in England, in the River Thames, and in the streams and lakes of Scotland. They are called the Lock-Leven trout in Scotland. They are a hardy quick growing fish, and wherever they have been introduced in Maine waters after a fair trial, I notice they call for more at "Loon Lake," York's Camps, for instance. They are a gamy fish, and good eating.

The habits of the Brown trout and landlocked salmon are nearly alike, spawning in November and occupying the same spawning beds. We netted Brown trout last November in spawning time at Lake Auburn weighing 18 pounds. I have here at the Lake Auburn hatchery in one of the pools Brown trout weighing 18 pounds only 8 years old, fish I raised here. There was a Brown trout caught at Lake Auburn this last May that weighed 14½ pounds. The fishing at Lake Auburn this season has been fine. Last Sunday there were more than 100 salmon and trout taken, mostly salmon and Brown trout.

John F. Stanley.

[Mr. York, proprietor of York's Camps, Rangeley has planted Brown trout in Cow pond for several years past and he says they are gamier than salmon. However, we do not recommend that they be introduced in waters that have nothing but spotted trout and salmon.—Ed.]

THREE MILLION FISH.

Large Distribution by Fish and Game Commissioners.

Hon. James W. Brackett of Phillips, chairman of the commissioners of inland fisheries and game, stated Monday that the commissioners had distributed about 3,000,000 fish the present spring in various inland waters of the state. This is as large a number of the fish as has been distributed in other years during the entire season. About the same number of the larger fish will be distributed in the fall. The fish went to 250 different lakes, ponds and streams in various sections of the state.

Reports of prosecutions for illegal catching of fish continue to come to the department from the wardens. Wardens Pollard and Wood report the prosecution of Levi Myers of Milo for having short trout and short salmon in his possession. He was fined $15 for each offense, which he paid. Deputy Warden H. B. Hopkins of East Holden reports the prosecution in the Bangor municipal court of Joseph Kadisky of South Brewer for illegal possession of white perch in close season. He was fined $10 and costs and $1 additional for each fish in his possession. Warden F. H. Clark of Smithfield took the names of six parties who were fishing Sunday at Lake Auburn and using more than two lines, which is contrary to the provision of Section 2, Chapter 181, Public Laws of Maine. It is expected that prosecutions will follow.—Bangor Commercial.

SOME SUCKERS.

Mt. Blue Pond Gives up Nearly 6000.

Although it is believed by many authorities that suckers do more good than harm in some waters,—acting as scavengers as they do—there is no doubt that Mt. Blue Pond in Avon had far too many, enough in fact so that they, with a superabundance of chubs seemed in a fair way to control the destinies of a valuable sheet of water.

Emery S. Bubier made an attempt this spring to thin out the suckers. How well he succeeded can be judged when it is known that he captured nearly 6000 of them.

A SULTAN'S SEVEN BEDS.

Abdul Hamid Changed His Sleeping Place Every Night.

An interesting reminiscence of Abdul Hamid, the former sultan of Turkey, who was known as Abdul the Accursed and by several other more or less unpleasant titles, is given in the description of a visit to Yildiz Kiosk by Colonel (Count) Gleichen in the Household Brigade Magazine.

"The house was a perfect labyrinth of small rooms," he writes. "In no fewer than seven of these rooms were beds on which the sultan used to sleep—not ordinary beds, but large couches, sloping at a considerable angle from the head end downward, so that, covered with a quilt or two, his majesty could sleep in a semi-upright condition and spring up at a moment's notice to be ready for anything.

"No one knew in which of the seven rooms the sultan was going to sleep, for he changed his resting place every night for fear of hidden dangers. Along the main passage which led past many of these rooms a most ingenious arrangement existed for giving warning of the approach of any one. The floor was composed of loose planks under the carpet, so that merely to walk along it started a clanking sound which must invariably have waked a light and nervous sleeper."

OYSTER ISLANDS.

Their Growth is Exactly Analogous to That of Coral Reefs.

Oyster islands, similar to those formed of coral are found in several parts of the world. The islands in Newport river and Beaufort harbor, North Carolina, says a writer in the Century Path Magazine, have been discovered to have as base a reef to which the spawn were attached and above this layer upon layer of oysters, vegetable growth and debris brought by the action of the waves and winds, all of which finally grows high enough to rise above the surface of the water. This growth is exactly analogous to that of the coral islands of the Pacific.

The islands near the mouth of the river Tagus, in Portugal, are said to have been built up in this way also. Here, where there is such a quantity of oysters that 100,000,000 a year would scarcely be missed if they were removed, the expanse of water just beyond the river's mouth is dotted with oyster islands. As in the case of the coral reefs, which on the seaward side may be covered with living, growing coral, live oysters thrive in the same waters where the accumulation of dead generations has served to form the islands.

CAMELS IN A RAGE.

When Roused These Usually Patient Animals Fight Like Fury.

The usually patient and submissive camel, like the proverbial worm, will sometimes resent an overdose of abuse. Too dense to think of a way in which he can outwit his driver and so take him unawares, when roused to the pitch of fury he rushes at the tyrant open mouthed, and his formidable teeth and powerful jaws do serious damage.

Of this vindictiveness the camel driver is aware and of the certainty that sooner or later the camel will seek revenge. Accordingly it is customary for the person who fears his malice to throw his clothes before the camel, meanwhile hiding himself until the animal's fury has been expended in tossing and tramping on them, when the injury, real or supposed, is at once forgotten.

The camel will not identify himself with his driver or rider in the smallest way whatever. He steadily declines all advances. His eye never lights up with love or even interest at the approach of his master. Should you attempt to pat or caress him he will object in a very decided manner.

Good treatment or bad makes no difference to the camel. Life and its hard conditions are taken for granted. His view of things is far too serious. He is so absorbed and preoccupied that he has no time to waste in the gambols indulged in by all other young animals.—Harper's Weekly.

A PLEASANT MEETING.

It Is Nice to Find a Friend Who Scatters Sunshine.

"I don't like people who are always coming to me for sympathy."

"They do get tiresome, but I prefer them to the ones who come boasting of their successes and trying to make me dissatisfied with my lot."

"Oh, I don't mind that kind. They never worry me any. I am always so successful myself that I never have cause to envy them. And, speaking of success, I made $500 last week in a little real estate deal, and my boy has been making a great record in school. He's away ahead of all the other boys of his age, and my wife has a maid now who is the best girl we have ever been able to find—the best one in our neighborhood, in fact. How is your boy doing now? I heard some time ago that he was inclined to be rather wild."

"Please don't mention him. I'm afraid he is going to bring sorrow upon us. You always were lucky. I guess I'll have to lose the little home I've been paying on during the past eight years, all on the boy's account. My wife has had to quit keeping help, although her health is very poor and"—

"Well, goodbye. I've got to be going. Cheer up. What's the use of being grumpy? Look at me. You'll find, if you try it, that it pays to scatter sunshine."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Story of a Nail Keg.

A hundred years ago Jeremiah Atwater was a leading New Haven merchant, buying his supplies in Boston and receiving them by vessel. Among other goods received were several casks of nails, one of which on opening it under a layer of nails at each end was found to be filled with silver dollars. Mr. Atwater, who was a conscientious man, immediately wrote to the Boston merchant that there must be some mistake in the invoice of nails, as one of the casks contained other articles besides nails. He was promptly informed that the nails were bought for nails, sold for nails and nails they must be. Forthwith Mr. Atwater had a basin made of the silver and presented it to the Center church, where it has been used in the baptismal service from that time to the present.

Art and Nature.

Art is the revelation of man, and not merely that, but likewise the revelation of nature speaking through man. Art pre-exists in nature, and nature is reproduced in art. As vapors from the ocean floating landward and dissolved in rain are carried back in rivers to the ocean, so thoughts and the semblances of things that fall upon the soul of man in showers flow out again in living streams of art and lose themselves in the great ocean, which is nature. Art and nature are not, then, discordant, but ever harmoniously working in each other.—Longfellow's "Hyperion."

THEIR AWFUL SECRET.

It Caused the Real Estate Agent to Change His Mind.

When the family who admitted that they were moving because the tenants at the old address made their lives miserable confided to the renting agent that they had one peculiarity which they wished him not to mention to their neighbors in his building the agent got uneasy and executed a mental quickstep trying to devise some way to break the lease. But aloud he said very courteously:

"I shall be glad to oblige you if I can. What is it you wish me to keep a secret?"

"The fact that we pay our rent promptly on the 1st of every month," said the head of the family. "That was something that nobody else in the other house did, and the agent as an incentive to quick action on their part published the news of our promptness. The only action it stirred them into was persecution of us, and they carried that to such extremes that we had to move. If you will kindly refrain from using us as a club to whack your delinquents into obedience we will appreciate it."

The agent resolved not to cancel the lease, but at the same time he relinquished a hastily conceived plan for procuring prompt remittances.—New York Times.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

Union Church, Phillips.

Melvin Sherburne Hutchins, pastor. Calendar for week ending July 1. Sunday, June 25, 10.45 Morning worship, sermon "The Coronation of The Soul." 12.00 Sunday school. 7.30 evening worship, address "The Importance of Conventions."

Tuesday and Wednesday, June 27 and 28, Franklin County Association of Congregational churches.

Thursday, June 29, 7.30 P. M. mid-week prayer meeting.

All are invited to attend these services.

The baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class of the Phillips High school was preached at the Union church Sunday morning by Rev. Mr. Hutchins, who had chosen for his subject "The Study of History," and who said: To you, class of 1911 of Phillips High school, who are now looking forward with high ideas, hopes, and aspirations, I speak of the study of the past, because, though you may devote much time to the study of literature, and of science, much time to investigations or inventions, you will find no more important study than that of history.

First it is a delightful study. Whether you visit the scene of the early massacre in Norridgewock of our own state, the battlefields of the Revolution, or of the Rebellion, or of other great battles in other lands, the student of history finds ever fresh interest.

It is important because it fits one to become a true citizen. Our constitution presupposes the knowledge of principles that have been demonstrated by nations of the past. Whether one studies of the earth before life appeared upon it, of the earliest life, of the struggles of the races, or of the advancement of civilization he sees "God keeping watch above his own." As one who wishes all life to come into harmony with God's laws, and to constantly follow the leadership of Christ who is the central figure of all history, I would direct you to the history recorded in the Old Testament and in the New Testament.

The study of history gives also a breadth of outlook, a culture of mind not easily obtained without it.

There are also important lessons to be derived from this study which may be applied to one's own life. Each life is an epitome of history. Thinking of life in this way, we read the lesson that, as we sow we shall reap. The heroic Wallace may not have secured that for which he fought, but the reaping has come to the world.

The study of history shows that true endeavor has a sure reward.

The study of history teaches the lesson of patience. The history of creation as shown in geology teaches the patience of God. We are long in reading his thought. We have gone but a little way in reaching the depth of the meaning of the mission of Jesus. We can study no history without seeing something of the infinite patience of God with our slowness of thought and response to him, and in the working out of his purposes.

The study of history teaches us charity and breadth of view to see impartially, to have a broad understanding and a sympathetic heart. We see how in the church divisions with their cruel conflicts, men were honest and true in their purposes. Fearful things have been done by those, who like Paul, thought they did God's service. We shall see that Martin Luther and the priests, John Calvin and Servetus each upheld some portion of God's truth. His truth is bigger than one could comprehend.

While you study history may you find in it not only delight, help to true citizenship and broadening cul-

Do Ghosts Haunt Swamps?

No, Never. It's foolish to fear a fancied evil, when there are real and deadly perils to guard against in swamps and marshes, bayous and lowlands. These are the malaria germs that cause ague, chills and fever, weakness, aches in the bones and muscles and may induce deadly typhoid. But Electric Bitters destroys and casts out these vicious germs from the blood. "Three bottles drove all the malaria from my system," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucania, N. C., "and I've had fine health ever since." Use this safe, sure remedy only. 50c at W. A. D. Cragin's, Phillips; Chas. E. Dyer's, of Strong; L. L. Mitchell of Kingfield; Riddle's Pharmacy, of Rangeley.

A Cheerful Liar.

One time the late ameer of Afghanistan asked the English diplomatic agent at his court to give a description amid a circle of Afghan boys of the largest gun in England. The Englishman described the 100 ton gun, and when he had finished the ameer observed to his admiring subjects, "I have seen a gun the cartridge of which was as large as the gun which has just been described to you." It would never do for an ameer to be astonished, much less to confess himself beaten.

The Comma.

The point on which most writers are at odds with the compositor is the comma. He is too fond of this particular punctuation point. He takes a delight in breaking up the flow of a sentence with his artificial pauses. We all say, "Why then did you do it?" in one breath. It is the compositor who says, "Why, then, did you do it?" It is possible to be too hard on the comma. It has its undeniable uses. Edward Clodd in his memoir of Grant Allen tells the story of a compositor who dissented very strongly from that writer's moral philosophy and had to "set up" an interview with Allen in which the sentence occurred, "He is happily married." He saved his conscience by printing it "He is, happily, married."—London Chronicle.

It's Your Kidneys

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Phillips Citizen Shows How to Cure Them.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Phillips people testify to permanent cures.

Elbridge Dill, Phillips, Me., says: "I am very willing to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. While I did not have any serious trouble from my kidneys, I at times felt in need of a kidney remedy. When suffering from a dull ache across my back and a weakness of the kidneys, I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box from Cragin's Drug Store. I used them according to directions and the trouble from my kidneys soon disappeared. My back is now strong and I feel better in every way."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Millburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States.

NORWAY'S INCOME TAX.

It Reaches All Incomes in Excess of $83.08 Per Year.

How should you like to pay an income tax on next to nothing? If you were a Norwegian living at home and earning $134 a year you would be taxed on one-tenth of it if you were unmarried; on about one-twentieth of it if you were married and had no children. If you had children you still would be taxed on one-fiftieth of it.

With an income of $536 a year you would be taxed if unmarried on more than half of your income, if married and having no children on about 40 per cent of your income, having one child on about 37 per cent, two children on about 31 per cent.

Unmarried and having an income of $2,680 a year in Norway your income tax payment would be $421.22; married, with one child, $389.94; married, with six children, $355.17. All that you would get off your income tax (married) for having six children would be $66; all that you would get off by having five more children would be $44 and six bits!

Married or unmarried in Norway, you could escape paying an income tax only by having an income less than $83.08 a year. Think of paying an income tax out of earnings of $7 a month!—New York Press.

THEY PLAYED CHESS.

The Loser Afterward Learned Without Asking Why He Lost.

Baron Hengelmuller, the Austrian diplomat, a man famous for his chess ability, one day at a house in Washington met a young man whose name he did not catch when the introductions were made. Chess was the topic of the conversation by all those in the company, and presently the young man suggested diffidently that he would be highly honored if the baron would play a game with him.

The baron consented. They sat down. After a few moves the baron looked up from the table checkmated and found the young man reading a paper. The chessmen were placed again and after not so many moves as he the baron looked up to find the young man reading the paper and himself checkmated.

After his dinner the baron came back. He wanted another game, being somewhat chagrined at the ease with which he had been beaten. As he came in he found the young man who had played with him that afternoon blindfolded and playing against sixteen opponents at the same time. The young man was Pillsbury.—Saturday Evening Post.

RACHEL'S GUITAR.

It Was Tuned to Play a Costly Air For Banker Fould.

Rachel, the famous actress, did not neglect any means of turning a more or less honest penny. In his new life of her Francis Gribble tells the following story of a guitar:

Rachel first saw and admired it in an artist's studio. "Give it to me," she said. "I want to pretend that it is the guitar on which I earned my living as a street singer."

The jest seemed a pleasant one, and the artist handed over the instrument. Rachel embellished it with ribbons and hung it in her own apartment, where it duly attracted the attention of Achille Fould, the banker. Hearing its story, he expressed the wish to possess it. "Very well," said Rachel, "you can have it for a thousand louis."

"Five hundred," said the banker, trying to bargain.

"No, a thousand," said Rachel, expressing her disdain for those who haggle.

And the banker actually paid a thousand louis for the worthless knick-knack. It is said that he learned the truth when he tried to sell his treasure at the Hotel Drouot and that the discovery of the hoax nearly sent him into a fit on the floor.

MEASURING THE EARTH.

Erastosthenes Made the First Attempt and Did Fairly Well.

The earliest attempt to measure the circumference of the earth was made by a Greek, Erastosthenes, who was born 276 B. C. He found that at Syene the gnomon, or upright pillar, used by the Greeks to measure the height of the sun in the sky, showed the sun to be exactly overhead at midday at the time of the summer solstice, while at Alexandria the gnomon cast a shadow upon the same date, showing that the latter point was one-fiftieth of the earth's circumference north of Syene.

Erastosthenes reasoned correctly that the length of the shadow at Alexandria bore the same relation to the circumference of the small circle described from the top of the gnomon as a center that the distance between the two cities bore to the circumference of the globe. This latter was 5,000 stadia, or about 625 miles, which when multiplied by fifty gives 31,250 miles as the circumference of the earth. This result is not quite correct, but as nearly so as could be expected from the first rough attempt to estimate it.—New York Mail.

RUM, OR NO RUM.

Maine has suddenly developed a big crop of prohibition orators and writers who believe it is their duty to instruct the voters to save the Prohibition law at the special election next September.

There may be many ways to lessen the use of rum, but I know of but two. First, absolute federal control prohibiting its manufacture, sale, or importation within the borders of the United States. Second, make rum as free as possible by removing all duties and all restricting laws.

It is impossible for one state, or a dozen states to control the sale of rum so long as the government allows it made, sold and receives revenue therefrom. And more than that it is a moral wrong, and injustice to her citizens for a state to prohibit what the government allows and protects. If you want to control rum by law, go at it right have federal instead of state laws. Now then, what about free rum? Remove all duties and laws, allow any one to distill, and sell rum, and it would not be worth twenty-five cents a gallon. The bottom would drop out of the rum business. Again, if an occasional man or woman did continue to drink they could buy or make all that they wanted for a few cents and save the money that now goes for rum for a decent living.

Maine has had a prohibition law for fifty years and in addition during the same time, it has had rum, bribed or unfaithful officers, and still worse, one of the most degrading and dangerous things known to mankind—the kitchen bar room, the natural result of state prohibition under a rum protected federal government.

LIFE.

The poet's exclamation: "O Life! I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves, are among the most unfortunate. They do not live, but exist; for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not over come by them to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessings, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, run-down, or debilitated, from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes existence into life, and makes life more abounding. We are glad to say these words in its favor to the readers of our columns.
