THE BLACKWELLS ARRIVE AT CAMP

Mr. and Mrs. Hemon Blackwell, who have passed the winter in New Haven, Conn., where Mr. Blackwell has been employed at the Hamlin Hall school, have gone to their camps at Saddleback lake to get the camps in readiness for prospective guests.

Mr. Blackwell under date of April 28, writes Maine Woods: "It is safe to say the ice is out of Saddleback lake. It is nearly all clear from ice and water is falling in the brooks. I am notifying parties to come May 5. The woods seem to be full of partridges. I returned to camp Saturday night. Coming up the trail I saw several partridges and rabbits.

PRESS CLUB MEN TALKING FISHING

Those Who Hope to Wet Their Lines in Maine Waters Soon—Mayor Fitzgerald May Try His Luck.

(Special to Maine Woods). Boston, May 1.—Little groups of men are seen very often of late gathered in the writing room, library or dining room of the Press club, earnestly discussing some matter. At first it was suspected that these men of the newspaper world were talking about Cubist art, or the latest political dope on Beacon hill, but investigation proved that such was not the case. For the matters which interest these men today are not Cubist or Futurist paintings, or the "dope" from the State House, but fishing prospects in Maine, instead.

Numbered among the 530 members of the Press club are many ardent fishermen, who prefer, as a rule, the delights of a day with rod and reel on Maine waters to deep sea fishing. There is Walter Adams for instance, who makes the Boston & Albany road famous at every opportunity. Walter has just become acquainted with the joys of a Maine fishing trip. Later in the season he will pack his tackle and start for Capt. Barker's in the Rangeley region.

SPRING FISHING

SEASON OF 1913

THE SANDY RIVER AND RANGELEY LAKES RAILROAD

Publishes a beautiful little booklet in colors entitled "FISHING". It tells all about where to go in the Rangeley and Dead River Reigon of Maine, and contains an accurate Map of this Territory. Address with stamp,

F. N. BEAL, G. P. A., Phillips, Maine.

Joe Grout, who is one of the fortunate ones in worldly goods. "Joe" has fished at Weld, but this season he is quite likely to go to some other locality. Not by reason of any dissatisfaction with Lake Webb, however, but for the reason that fields anew are always interesting. Mr. Grout is now sojourning in the south, but he will return north in good season for the opening of the fishing season.

Sometime during the summer B. A.

Smalley, who holds an important executive position with the Sterling Ale people, hopes to cast the flies on the Maine waters.

For many years S. D. Bartlett, who is the New England manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, has been an annual visitor to the Rangeley lake region. Mr. Bartlett usually spends the most of his time at Bemis. In the fall he goes there hunting.

HATCHERIES OF THE STATE
A Detailed Statement of Work Done Throughout the Year of 1912.

By the kindness and courtesy of Hon. J. S. P. H. Wilson, chairman of the Inland Fisheries and Game commission, we have been able to obtain the loan of the cuts which are the property of that department and which were published in their annual report of 1912. Maine Woods assumes they will be of interest to our many readers, as they show the hatcheries where so much good work is done for the good of the whole state. We shall give a detailed statement of each hatchery, and shall be obliged to publish them in sections as space will not permit us to do otherwise.

As will be seen by the following reports of the superintendents of the several fish hatcheries, 2,208,900 square-tailed trout were raised at these hatcheries and planted in the public waters of the state this year, also 1,332,500 land-locked salmon, 32,000 brown trout and 55,323 lake trout or togue,—total, 3,628,723 fish.

They wintered in the hatcheries 264,000 square-tailed trout and land-locked salmon which were hatched this year, to be planted as yearlings next season.

2,566,000 fish eggs were taken this fall, as follows:

1,758,000 land-locked salmon eggs, 648,000 trout eggs, 85,000 brown trout eggs and 75,000 lake-trout or togue eggs.

As the supply of fish eggs obtained this season is not sufficient, they have purchased several millions of trout eggs from private hatcheries within and without the state. They have been promised a liberal consignment of land-locked salmon eggs and some trout eggs by the U. S. Fish Commission.

Owing to the constantly increasing demand for square-tailed trout for stocking our waters, the policy of the present commission is to raise a larger proportion of trout than salmon.

Report of the Caribou Fish Hatchery for the Year 1912.

L. M. Allen, Supt.

Land-locked Salmon.
375,000 land-locked salmon eggs were taken at this hatchery in 1911. On March 27, shipped 50,000 eyed salmon eggs to the Auburn hatchery; April 4, shipped 100,000 eyed salmon eggs to the Belgrade hatchery.

GREEN LAKE
SALMON BITING

The fishing at Greene lake is great, these days. The salmon are biting everywhere and at all times of day. Some of the luckiest ones were Frank O. Youngs, two; Gus and Rockwell Youngs, six; John Doane, three; Fred A. Scribner, two each, weighing six and a half pounds; G. L. Morrison of Portland landed two big ones; Chas. M. Bigelow and I. L. Fisher each got one weighing 5 1-2 pounds; Fred Crowell caught a six and a half pound beauty; Fred Grace captured one eight pounds and two seven-pounders; George A. Moore, two eight pounders; M. Quinn got only four and Mrs. H. F. Lord landed two. Besides these there were many hooked and lost.

The lake is surely furnishing some great sport this spring.

SANITARY DRINKING CUPS.

Superintendent of Buildings, Andrew McFadden, was busy Thursday, installing the new sanitary drinking cups at the fountains in the capitol. The cups are made of paraffine paper and are incased in he sticks to Sickle plug and slices off each pipeful as he needs it, when he could get tobacco already cut up, in packages. He'll tell you, "because the Sickle way is the only way to get fresh tobacco, that smokes cool and sweet, and doesn't bite the tongue." He knows.

Tobacco that is cut up at the factory gets dried up on its way to you. Result—it burns fast and hot, and "bites." When you cut your own tobacco off the Sickle plug, you are well repaid for a minute's work by fresh tobacco—because all the flavor and moisture are pressed into the plug and held in by the natural leaf wrapper.

Get a plug of Sickle at your dealer's today. Notice how much more tobacco you get, when you don't have to pay for a package.

The recent raid in New York City in which seizure was made of a large number of humming birds, gulls, herons, and swifts was due to the energy of the National association of Audubon societies which collected the evidence and directed the seizure.

John Terrio of Augusta took a trip Tuesday, to one of the trout brooks over east, to try his skill. It is reported that he secured a string of 10 fine ones averaging 8 inches in length.

Reports from many parts of Maine are to the effect that trout brooks are clear and that good catches are being made by some of the early anglers. The water is still cold, however, and wading is far from pleasant just now. The fishing, too, is usually far better a little later on.

It is reported that in one Maine town where the selectmen went on a hunt for brown-tail moths, they found but few, and "tried to hatch out cocoons, but were unable to do so." If they had tried to hatch out cocoons last July, they would have found that the cocoons would hatch out without help. Evidently somebody hasn't yet learned the habits of the critter.—The Oxford Democrat.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS NOTED

Roadway Is Improved Very Much
May be Able to Furnish Vegetables for Rangeley Patrons.

(Special to Maine Woods).

York Camps, Loon Lake, Rangeley, April 27—This season's improvements are being completed by quick and careful workmen. The newly shingled cabins with new porches, remodeled office with covered rustic piazza reaching nearly 30 feet toward the lake and the tiers upon tiers of wood for fireplaces promise much added comfort for the season's guests.

From letters already received, the regular guests will be accompanied by their friends who have become enthused and are eager for the time to come when they may leave the busy world for this most delightful resort.

The boats, thoroughly overhauled and shining with fresh paint, are waiting for the sportsman to choose his guide and enjoy the season's fishing. New trails are being opened that rambling through the woods may be made more than ever enjoyable for those who love quiet communion with Nature.

The drivers over the road are complimenting the management upon the improved roadway nearly freed from big rocks which were more picturesque than comfortable to ride over and though by no means a passageway for automobiles the buckboards run along merrily. Mr. York trusts that now Rangeley has such an alliance in the present board of commissioners we shall see a marked improvement on the town end of the Loon Lake and Kennebago road.

Work has begun on the farm and during the season the products will be so extensively grown that a surplus from camp will be available for Rangeley patrons.

Among the many former guests at York Camps, we learn that Mr. Whitney will leave his harbor home and with Mrs. Whitney again join in the pleasures afforded by the camps this summer.

"UNCLE HENRY" TAKES REVENGE

And "Joe," Loses Some of His Broilers as Well as Cucumbers.

Boston, Mass., April 21, 1913.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

In the Maine Woods, under date of March 20, I have read with much pleasure and laughter, the story of my building the fish pen to keep trout till now. I had supposed for it at Joe White's camps. I never knew what became of those large trout alive and fresh during my visit a long time that the trout had built themselves an aeroplane and flew out of the fish pen as I saw a lot of shavings on top of the water the next morning when I went down to the pen to see how my trout were getting along. I found no trout but did find shavings or whittlings that Joe must have left behind him when he made the fishway to enable these trout of mine to escape.

Now that Joe has told a good one on me, perhaps it would interest the readers of Maine Woods and the King of Blakeslee camps to know how he lost his "broiler chickens."

I have been a constant visitor at Blakeslee camps every year since broiled chicken and early in July, 1906, found me once more at Blakeslee Camps to again have "the best time ever." To be sure I had plenty of trout to eat and pleasant weather, but when the King took me up to the barn to show me the chickens, well you should have seen them. They were the meanest looking birds your Uncle Henry had ever seen. They were all bones—long legged—big bill and almost featherless and looked to me as if they were crossed with a blue heron and a chick-a-dee. I said with disgust, "Joe are those the broiler chickens you promised me?" and he said, "Uncle Henry, it is too bad, I started the hens setting on the eggs early enough but the chickens after they were hatched didn't seem to do well." While I was much disappointed, I said, "Never mind Joe, I will try to forget all about broiled chickens," and Joe replied, "believe me, Uncle Henry, I will surely have some chickens for you next year."

Well I went to Blakeslee Camps the next year and also the next two years, each time having a bang up good trip but no broiled chickens to eat. The King would take me up to the barn each year and point out the skinniest looking chickens you ever saw and one could not have gotten a chunk of meat off their bones if he had worked with a shaving plane and a hunting knife. That year I began to get wise. I felt to eat if I had to swallow them alive, bones and all. Joe took me up to show me the chickens the next day after my arrival and they were just as skinny and mean looking as the ones before. After Joe had left me I sat down and did a little thinking and I came to the conclusion that the King was feeding these chickens with food that he knew would keep them thin and mean looking. The next day I hid behind the wood pile and watched Joe feed those chickens and what do you think he was feeding them on? Bacon scraps and pork rinds; he knew the salt in these scraps would give these chickens the scurvy and would keep them poor and thin till after my return home.

Well, this is where your Uncle Henry did a little more thinking. He knew the antidote for scurvy and thinness was to feed green garden truck. The next morning I was out of bed as soon as daybreak and away to the chicken coop I went. I woke up the chickens and drove them over to Joe's garden, a short distance away. You know Joe thinks more of his garden than he does of anything in this world. Why a cucumber to Joe is better than a thousand dollar diamond to a girl—why I have seen him look happier than Sunny Jim when you say anything about cucumbers. Joe has this garden all fenced in with long, heavy poles driven into the ground

"The Noisy Bunch" were to go on a side trip to Rock Pond camp, six miles away. So the night before I went to the coop and stole four of the fattest chickens and killed and dressed them in the woods back of the barn and I put them into my pack the next day and your Uncle Henry and the rest of the crowd had broiled chickens at the end of our trip.

The King did not miss the chickens till several days after our return from this trip when he told me with tears in his eyes, that some foxes must have broken into his hen coop and killed four of his best young chickens. I said nothing as I was feeling fat and satisfied. Soon after that he said, "come over Uncle Henry and see my fine garden," so I went along with him. But when the King saw the bare ground in place of the cucumbers, lettuce and other green stuff you should have heard him rave. After he had recovered from his angry spell he said to me with tears streaming down his cheeks, "No cucumbers for me this year. What shall I do? I shall die," but I only grinned. I had my revenge for his always promising me broiled chickens and not giving me any.

Now, Joe, you know what became of those chickens and why your garden didn't amount to anything in 1910.

It is now about time to receive

ENFIELD HATCHERY

1900, each time having better sport and a happier vacation than the year previous. But way back in 1905 the weather for that vacation had kind of gone against us and we had rain most every day during my stay. While I had good fishing and caught plenty of trout I had not been able to take as many of the side trips as would have suited my fancy—so when it came along to about the time of my returning home the King of Blakeslee knew that he must offer me some big inducement to have me come again the next year.

So, if any of the readers know Joe well, they can imagine him taking me one side and beginning in his calm way to sympathize with me on the very bad weather we had. "But," he said, "you may be sure Uncle Henry, that next year I am going to have the weather all fixed so it will be pleasant all the time you are here and besides "chummy" I am going to set my hens very early and next year when you come you can have all the broiled chickens you want to eat." The King knew my fondness for broiled chickens and you bet when he told me this he surely had used the right kind of bait.

Well, I returned to Boston and all that winter and spring I dreamed of sure the King was saving those chickens till after I had gone home and then fatten them up so "he" could have them to eat in September and October and my judgement must have been correct for when Joe came to Boston that winter he was looking fat and rosy which could only be done by living on good chickens.

When I arrived at the camps the next year I made up my mind I would have some of those chickens near together, to keep every thing an everybody out of his cucumber beds and away from his other garden truck.

I pulled up some of the poles and let the chickens into the garden—well you should have seen those chickens eat the cucumbers and lettuce and other green stuff till I thought they would "bust." When I thought they had eaten enough I drove them out of the garden. "Back to the coop," says I. But what a difference in the size of the chickens; they were a pound heavier. This I did for several mornings, till I had them weighing about four pounds. The King told me a day or so later that the chickens were certainly looking better and he surely was some worried to see these chickens looking so good, as he knew I had my eyes on them.

The following Tuesday our crowd, the following letter from the King. Just the same words that he has written me for the last three years: Dear Uncle Henry:

The trout have come up the Spencer stream and I was down to the pool at the dam last evening and in 15 minutes I caught 16 big ones. Now of course you are coming to my camps this year and when you leave Boston will you please tuck in a few cucumbers for me, as I almost died in 1910 when my garden went back on me and I had no cucumbers to eat that year.

Happy days,

Joe

It is needless to say that for the last three years I have always found room to tuck in seven or eight big cucumbers and if you don't believe it, ask Joe.

Yours for fun and good fellowship,
Uncle Henry.

MEN PROVE THEY CAN ENTERTAIN

Last Night of Dancing School Much Enjoyed—Mrs. Kennedy Writes Interestingly.

(Special to Maine Woods).

Rangeley, April 30—Among the many merry social evenings passed in Rangeley during the winter and spring, last Thursday will long be recalled with pleasure by all who were fortunate enough to be present. The good time started at a previous Pythian Sister meeting, when it was jokingly suggested that the men of the order should provide the next banquet. The motion to appoint a committee was received with scorn, the brothers declaring that any number of men can work together harmoniously. The utmost secrecy prevailed during the week, and the general feeling among the sisters was that there was "nothin' doin'" so their surprise at the splendidly cooked food, neatly spread tables, alert waiters and the general elegance of the service, is beyond description. At a signal from head waiter, H. C. Riddle, the tables were cleared and at another signal the next course in order was served. Mr. Riddle's assistants were A. M. Hoar, Will Tomlinson, Ir D. Hoar, Guy Pickle, Leon Wright and Earl Huntoon. The waiters were dressed in white coats, caps and aprons and were perfectly trained, even conversation between guests and waiters not being allowed. The chef, J. A. Russell, and his assistants, Hubert Spiller, Dr. Ross, Austin Hinkley and Vern Pillsbury, wore the regulation chefs' costumes and were experts in their line. The menu is given below:

In the New England magazine for April is an interesting article on the settlement and early history of the town of Rangeley. It was written by Mrs. Kennedy who with her husband, an artist, has occupied the old Rangeley place for months. Mrs. Kennedy writes under the name of Barbara Bradford. Many fine views of Rangeley and vicinity make this number of the magazine unusually attractive.

FLY ROD'S NOTE BOOK

"Maine has many beautiful spots," we often hear one exclaim, and I thought I knew them all until recently.

It was my pleasure to be the guest for several days in April at Hebron academy, which is one of the best schools in this part of the country, and was founded in 1804, over a century ago.

Located as it is some three miles from the railroad, in a wonderful spot surrounded by hills and mountains while through a notch you can see the chain of White mountains rising like the Alps, thousands of feet above.

It is at this institution of learning many of the most distinguished sons and daughters of Maine and all over this and even distant lands have spent years of study and are now taking high places in the world.

The principal, Wm. E. Sargent, A. M. is surely the right man in the right place, and has been here some 30 years.

The executive board with Hon. John D. Long, George D. Bisbee, George M. Atwood, Josiah S. Maxon and Henry K. Stearns, the institution is justly proud of and sure to prosper with such men at the helm while the teachers and those in charge of the departments, are the best.

I was the guest of Miss Bertha Poore, who is marion of Sturtevant Home, the girl dormitory, and where the student's dining room, kitchen department, parlors and guests' rooms are located.

Miss Poore, who for a number of years was with Capt. F. C. Barker, at the Birches, is as popular at Hebron as at the Rangeleys and much loved by the students.

Sturtevant Home, which cost many thousands of dollars, was the gift of the late Mrs. B. F. Sturtevant of Jamaica Plain, Mass., and is the finest girl's dormitory in New England, fitted with all the latest improvements.

How few people leave such a grand monument and how many will rise up and call this charitable woman blessed? When one leaves this world they carry no dollars with them, but such deeds and the good they have done are ever-lasting, even if forgotten by those of this earth.

As I looked into the faces of nearly 200 young men and women students at this academy, each seemed to tell of a purpose to be good and great men and women of the future and I have no doubt but what they will be, and as they look back upon their school life spent here among the hills surrounded by nature in all its wild beauty, memories will be pleasant ones, and I think Munford, Ala. — "I was so weak and nervous while passing through the Change of Life that I could hardly live. My husband had to nail rubber on all the gates for I could not stand it to have a gate slam.

"I also had backache and a fullness in my stomach. I noticed that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was advertised for such cases and I sent and got a bottle. ### PRESS CLUB MEN TALKING FISHING.

Andrew Bailey, who was one time corporation counsel of the city of Boston, one of the well-known members of the Press club, says that he does not know yet whether or not he will be able to get down to Maine for the early fishing, but he hopes that such will be the case.

Frank Trott of the Globe, he of the horse noses, also famed as an ice boat expert, has been casting longing eyes Maineward and has joined in many of the discussions referred to in the opening paragraph of this story. Then there's "Hal" Wheeler of the Herald. If Hal can get away from the night rewrite on the old Herald long enough to wet a line he will certainly do so.

Clifton Loring, who is well-known in Democratic political circles, is yet another of the would be anglers. Last but not by any means least is Honey Fritz, long a member of the Press club, who frequently appears on the scene at luncheon time. If the Mayor can get away from City hall long enough to make the Maine trip after the speckled beauties, it is safe to assume that he will go. At this season of the year Maine has many charms for Mayor Fitzgerald, who at other times rather favors Palm Beach.

Fly Rod's Note Book

BY FLY ROD

St. Anthony's Cottage.
Phillips, Me., May 1, 1913.

May day again in the country! This morning a sweet little Miss rang my bell, and as I opened the door and saw her standing there with her little hands full of the beautiful blossoms, and heard her say, "Mayflowers for you," I could but wonder which was the sweetest, the little child or flowers that are dear to the heart of every lover of the woods of Maine.

The perfume of blossoms that fill my cottage bring to memory the older days and dear old friends, many of whom have crossed the "silent river."

There comes a time in the life of us all when we realize that words fail to tell the true sympathy we would express. Thus it is with me as the summer comes again and I shall cross over the carry to Haines Landing, for one who always had such a hearty pleasant greeting for me, as for the many tourists, will not be there to give the kindly welcome, for death suddenly called Fred B. Burns only a few weeks ago, the young proprietor of the Mooselookmeguntic House, who had made such a success of the hotel business and had all plans made for the summer.

But we are glad to know, as a host of friends will be, that Mrs. Burns, who is a most efficient woman, enduring her great sorrow as only a noble, brave woman can, will continue the business and herself take charge of the hotel office. Miss Ryan, who has for a number of years been the bookkeeper, has returned and the old patrons, while they will greatly miss their friend, Mr. Burns, will find everything will continue to be done for their pleasure and comfort. Mrs. Burns has engaged the best of help to look after everything and with a large force is now rushing the work of cleaning, repairing and putting everything in first-class shape and will open the hotel and camps on May 10 as several parties have written they would like to come on that date, for this is one of the best locations for the fishing when the ice goes out.

The large booking already made and the many old patrons who have written Mrs. Burns of their intention to pass weeks at the Mooselookmeguntic House make the coming season one of assured prosperity, and a large circle of friends unite with me in wishing Mrs. Burns every success.

We always feel proud when a Rangeley guide makes a good mark for himself, as Messrs. Chas. and Robert Hayford of Oquossoc have recently done.

It will be remembered that Mr. Napier, chairman of the Fish Commission of New Jersey, who with his family are annual guests of the Rangeley Lake House, has spent many hours at the hatchery at Oquossoc. He was so much pleased with the way Supt. Chas. Hayford managed affairs there that last year when New Jersey decided to build their first hatchery, he sent for Mr. Hayford and later offered him the chance to come to Hackettstown, N. J., and superintend the building of the hatchery of which he has charge. Last fall Robert Hayford was appointed assistant superintendent and recently the young men have passed the civil service examinations and been appointed deputy game wardens. Their families are both with them and are most pleasantly situated in their new homes and a host of friends in the Rangeley lake region offer congratulations and wish them years of health and prosperity.

This week I received the announcement of the marriage of Howard Crosby Renwick and Miss Kate Putnam of New York city. Many of the Rangeley tourists remember most pleasantly Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Renwick and family of Summit, N. J., who have for years spent their summers at the Birches and Middle Dam. Their son, Howard, has for the past five years been making a great success as a portrait painter, and now is one of the most celebrated artists in New York. Congratulations we extend and hope Mr. and Mrs. Renwick will pass the coming summer at the lakes.

MERCIFUL TRAPS.

An agent for the society with the long name, has been through the northwood of late, securing photographs of small mammals, which have been caught and died in larger or smaller Newhouse steel traps. He has made many earnest and touching appeals to trappers, fur-buyers and others, showing them how the imprisoned mammals suffer greatly, and experience excruciating agonies before death can arrive to ease their great pain. His talk has been most humane and in keeping with modern Christian sentiment.

How trapping is going to be performed among Maine woods and streams without creating agony—death agony, at that—remains very much of an unsolved problem.

How are you going to catch a diving lynx or a bobcat or a bear without causing agony? The looped slip-noose, hung from a banded sapling, performs the killing fast enough and usually accomplishes its object quickly and without pain.

But how are the shy bobcats and lynxes to be induced to enter the noose? Where would you hang the bait, and how can you hang this bait so that a brave dog may not come along and commit suicide and thus bring cruelty to animals upon itself?

It is illegal in Maine to set snares for hares or rabbits at any season, but the copper wire attached to a sapling kills quickly and without pain, and the society should commend this method without stint.

By far the largest number of mammals captured for their skin in Maine are the little furred muskrats or musquashes. A majority of these are captured in small and cheap Newhouse steel traps, which are either set and baited at the ends of floating logs or in underground runaways, where the ebb and flow of salt water tides exterminate the victims without pain in a few hours at the longest, or fall into the water and drown.

An old time deadfall, if heavy enough, would secure instant death without maiming the skins; but the danger to cats and dogs remain. The regular English mole traps are serviceable for use upon burrowing mammals, but save the moles there are few burrowing mammals of any value in Maine.

The common black bear of the Maine woods must be caught with traps having cruel and sharp teeth and must suffer great torture for hours—perhaps days, but unless you shoot a bear with a rifle or mercifully administer chloroform to him at short range, there seems to be no other alternative.—Bangor News.

EVERYONE GOES SMELTING

Ice Moving with Wind and Looking Black—Predict the Going about May 5th.

(Special to Maine Woods).

Mountain View, Me., April 28.—The report that Edward Lowell was to clerk at the Mooselookmeguntic House was a general rumor without foundation. Mrs. Burns wishes us to state that their former clerk, Miss Annie Ryan, of Waltham, Mass., will soon return for her third season. The house will open to guests between the fifth and tenth of May.

The ice is moving up and down the lake with the wind and the extremely warm days of late have made it look pretty black. The general opinion seems to be that it will disappear near the fifth of May. The ice in big lake does not seem to be as far gone as in Rangeley lake.

The smelts begun running in Kennebec stream last Thursday night and much sport among the residents is being enjoyed. "Going smelting tonight?" is the form of greeting heard from young and old and if you don't reply, "you bet I am," you are no sport for when the smelts start up Kennebec stream the whole town turns out to meet them for they are the first fish of the season and when salt cod and herring have been the fish course all winter they certainly do taste good. From Indian Rock to a goodly distance up stream one can see the glint of lantern and small fires, where groups of men and boys are gathered, dipping smelts from the stream to pails, boxes and grain sacks.

Tom Gordon has leased the store and amusement hall at Oquossoc of Thomas Reed and will open them soon.

The West Rangeleys played the first game for the season Saturday afternoon. The game was between the married and single men. The score was 15 to 18 in favor of the singles. However, the married men state that the single men drew outside the western division, calling some of their best men from Rangeley.

John Fornier is to have a telephone installed at his farm. The poles have been set from the main road to his house. Mr. Fornier is at work clearing four lots opposite Mountain View Cove.

Frank White's cottage on the western shore of the lake is occupied for the present by Mr. and Mrs. Archie Perham.

Mr. Ordway of Bryant Pond is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Howard Judkins.

George Hunter and wife of Phillips arrived at Mountain View, Saturday for another season of work as bell boy and chamber maid.

Anson Hayford was in Rumford on business Saturday.

A TOTAL OF 30 POUNDS AT LAKE AUBURN.

Prof. O. D. Bliss of this city was high line at Lake Auburn yesterday, taking a handsome 10 pound salmon, says the Lewiston Sun. He played the fish for 40 minutes. E. A. McIlheron, who needs no introduction to local anglers, was enrolled as captain of the craft but in reality was guide. Mr. McIlheron incidentally remarked to Prof. Bliss one day that he (McIlheron) was good at rowing. Prof. Bliss allowed that he (Bliss) was good at fishing. Results, one of the handsomest salmon ever taken from Lake Auburn waters.

Other catches:
Geo. Drew, "Gramp" Morse guide, 5-lb. salmon.

Herb Webber and Mr. Loveley, 6-lb. salmon.

Charles H. Larrabee and Billy Murray, 3-lb. salmon.

Earl Pratt, 4 lb. salmon.

Alger Craigan two salmon weighing 2 and 3 pounds respectively.

Frank Strout, 7-lb. salmon.

William Murray on Wednesday took four salmon weighing from 2 to 4 pounds.

Last Friday was the banner day of the season at Lake Auburn. The weather conditions were ideal, the lake smooth and the fishermen happy. Nearly every boat out got one or more strikes and few came in without a fish.

Reuben Estes is on duty at the boat house and reports business rushing.

Cleve Royal and Henry Haskell caught the limit yesterday, the prettiest day's catch for a single boat ever taken from the lake. The 10 salmon weighed a total of thirty pounds: 4 3-4, 4, 4, 4, 4, 3, 3 2 1-2, 2, 2, 1 1-2.

The first fish was landed at 6.15 a. m. and the last at 2 p. m. They may be seen in the window of Wells' sporting goods store in Auburn. Many famous sports viewed them yesterday and one remarked that Lake Auburn was the best fishing in the state today.

When Capt. Frank Reed saw the catch of Royal and Haskell he said he'd like to sit in a lucky boat for about 10 minutes and see what it seemed like and Cleve took him out. In 7 minutes from Albert Thorne's landing the captain had secured the prettiest single salmon of the day, a 5 1-2 pound dandy, and was back on shore with it.

Among the other catches during the day were:

Frank Reed, one salmon, 5 1-2 pounds.

Earl Pratt, two salmon, 3, and 4 pounds.

William Sawtell, one salmon, 6 pounds.

John Coburn and E. E. Tainer, two salmon, 2 and 6 pounds.

P. H. Fielding of Mechanic Falls, four salmon, 2, 2, 2 1-2 and 6 lbs.

Mrs. B. F. Huntington, one salmon, 6 pounds.

Mr. Huard, one salmon, 2 1-2 lbs.

John Moore, three salmon, 2, 2 and 4 pounds.

George Drew, "Gramp" Morse guide, four salmon, 3 1-2, 4 and 4 pounds.

Hon. J. S. P. H. Wilson, chairman of the Fish and Game Commission, with R. J. Martin guide, two salmon, 3 1-2 and 6 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, two salmon, 3 and 3 1-2 pounds.

Frank Merrill and party three salmon.

TROUT FISHING EXCELLENT IN THE SCARBORO BROOKS.

If one may judge by the luck that Frank Noyes of this city, had on a trip to Scarborough recently, the trout are fairly waiting to be caught in the brooks of that town. Mr. Noyes had the very best of results on his little excursion and brought back 57 of the handsomest brook trout that have been seen in this city in a long time. Mr. Noyes is not saying in just what brook he landed the fish, but he says they were so plentiful that they seemed to be waiting to be caught. As a result of his day's sport, both his family and his friends had some mighty fine pan fish. None of the trout were less than eight inches in length while the most of them were over that size.—Portland Press.

I. W. POTTLE HAS RACED MANY.

I. W. Pottle, who drove Pollard Wilkes (p), 2.14 1-4, Kimpton, 2.23-1-4, etc., last season, writes me that he has a three-year-old and a four-year-old, both pacers, that are being wintered by Bernard K. Small, one of the most reliable and best of Maine caretakers and that he thinks well of them. I. W. is a traveling salesman and partner in a good business and sort of steals time from himself when he gets them ready and races them but bless you, he can't help it. He began as a young boy and if you know anyone in Maine who, at 36, has won more races than he has just make a note of it that we may get back at him. Guess there are few of them; he thinks there are none; if any, I don't know them. Mr. Pottle will drive only his own horses this season, he says, but somehow I seem to have heard that before some other year, may be some other two years; but, anyway, it will be only proof of his liking to hike one along and willingness to oblige if he breaks over.—Milton in Bangor Commercial.

that the license for hunting moose, deer and game birds is increased to $25. Does that mean I shall have to pay that amount when I hunt for nothing larger than deer, and go to a part of Maine where no moose are found?

I have some land and a camp in a part of the state from which the moose have long since disappeared. It seems to me that, if that license fee is not a graded one, that the intent of it is to drive all non-resident hunters into one or two counties or to keep them out of the state entirely. If the legislation had placed a perpetual close time on moose and instituted a one dollar license fee for resident hunters, we of the outside should feel better disposed.

I am yours respectfully,

NEWCOMB CHAMPION AMATEUR TRAPSHOOTER OF AMERICA.

A gale that whipped the waters of Long Island Sound into foam tossed the clay targets at fantastic angles for the guns of the one hundred and forty-five shooters who contested for the amateur trap shooting championship of America at the New York Athletic Club's Travers Island traps, April 2-3. Against the adverse weather conditions, R. L. Spotts scored 133 out of 200 on the first day, shooting Remington U. M. C. speed shells, and the New York City tenman team was able to make 1,708 out of 2,000—sixteen more than Boston—eight of the Gothamites using Remington U. M. C. ammunition. A five-man team representing the New York Athletic club also defeated a Boston Athletic club team at 1,000 targets.

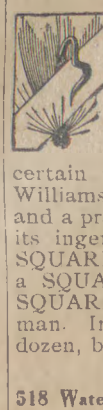

C. H. Newcomb, a popular Philadelphia amateur, carried away the beautiful diamond trophy emblematic of the amateur championship of America, the premier event of the second day and of the meet. Mr. Newcomb's score was 179 out of 200, shooting Remington U. M. C. ammunition, as did L. S. German, who was high professional for both days, 350 out of 400.

APPEAR IN NEW ENGLAND RARELY.

Evening grosbeaks, which are brilliant yellow birds with black crowns, and black-tipped wings and tails, have been seen in large flocks in different parts of Maine. These birds appear in New England very rarely, and it is said that no others have been seen since 1890.

HORSES OF NORTHERN FRANKLIN COUNTY, MAINE

No. 3.

By S. W. Parlin.

In 1868 General Knox, 2.31 1-2, was the fastest and most popular trotting stallion in Maine. He stood at Vassalboro and his fee was $100. S. H. Hinds of Salem then owned a daughter of young Hogarth. He took her to Vassalboro and June 10, 1869, she produced a black son of General Knox, that has since been known as 'Hinds' Knox and also a Black Monitor. Like Vermont, Black Hawk 5, Santa Claus, 2.17 1-2 and some other famous horses this son of General Knox 2.31 1-2 was a crooked legged, inferior looking colt at birth and when Mr. Hinds first saw the youngster, no doubt he wished his $100 was back in his pocket and he had never heard of General Knox, 2.31 1-2, but when a few years later he was offered $4,000 for him, he realized that the $100 had been well invested.

Black Monitor did more to improve the horse stock of Northern Franklin county than any other horse that had preceded him. His name does not appear among the sires of standard record performers in the Great Table in the Year Book, but his get were good all purpose horses and some of them trotted trial miles faster than standard time. Gen. Custer owned in Wilton, Me., was one of them. He was finally sold to a party in New York city. Daughters of Black Monitor were successful as producers of standard speed. The fastest standard performer by the records produced by his daughters was the pacer Fred Wilkes p, 2.12 1-4, bred by Charles N. Plaisted of Phillips, foaled in 1887, and got by Allectus 3794.

When Fred Wilkes was young he was considered of but little value and changed hands several times for less than $100. Wm. Mitchell of Phillips owned him for a time and in his hands the horse showed some speed. Later he was owned by W. L. Jones of Strong, who likes one that can step some and in his hands Fred Wilkes improved considerably. He finally became the property of a Massachusetts man for about $125 and soon showed so much speed that he was placed in the hands of C. E. Wilbur, a jeweller, for training. Mr. Wilbur liked a good horse but had never trained and raced one in public. He soon found however that Fred Wilkes was an apt pupil, and good judges soon predicted that sometime the son of Allectus 3794 might be good enough to take to the races. The prediction was correct for he proved the fastest and most successful race-winner that had ever been bred in Northern Franklin county.

Fred Wilkes' first appearance in a public race was at Middleboro, Mass., Aug. 8, 1895. He was then eight years old past, and had been trained only a few months. The race was a 2.30 class, trot or pace, and there were eight starters. Fred Wilkes lost the first heat in 2.27 1-4 but took the next three in 2.26 1-4, 2.26 1-4, 2.29 1-4. He was started at Fall River, Mass., Aug. 21, won two heats in that race, got second money and a record of 2.23 1-4. At Hill's Grove, R. I., Aug. 30, he got second money again and forced the winner to take a record of 2.20 to beat him.

These races had convinced Mr. Wilbur that Fred Wilkes was good enough to stand a chance of winning something in better company than he had yet met, so he entered him in the 2.22 class, purse $300, and also in the 2.18 class, purse $500 at the race meeting given in connection with the great Brockton, Mass. fair. Before going to Brockton Fred Wilkes was started in the 2.21 class, trot or pace at the South Weymouth fair. This race came off Sept. 28 and Fred Wilkes won handily in straight heats. The time of the fastest heat was 2.23.

His first race at the Brockton fair was Oct. 4. It was the 2.18 class and there were six starters. His competitors were seasoned campaigners and were in the hands of expert race drivers but Mr. Wilbur drove the little Maine bred horse with excellent judgement, and won in straight heats; time, 2.18 1-2, 2.18 3-4, 2.21 1-2. The 2.22 class in which Fred Wilkes was entered was on the card for the following day, Oct. 5. When the bell rang for the 2.22 class to come out 11 horses responded and Fred Wilkes, with trainer Wilbur up behind him was one of them. He won this race in straight heats, apparently as easily as he had won the 2.18 class the previous day, and the time was a little faster, viz, 2.18 1-4, 2.19 1-4, 2.19 1-2; average time 2.19 each heat. Beginning green that season in August Fred Wilkes was started in six races, won first money in four of them and second in each of the other two; made a record of 2.18 1-4 won two races in two consecutive days in which his time in five of the heats was faster than 2.20.

In 1896 Fred Wilkes p 2.12 1-4, was started in nine races; won first money in four, second in one, third in one, fourth in two and was outside the money in the other. Three of the races which he won that season proved that he was a game race horse and possessed great endurance. The first of these was in the 2.16 class pace at Lawrence, Mass., July 7, in a field of eight starters. Six of his seven competitors had made records from 2.16 to 2.17 1-2. It was his second start of the season, and he was not keyed up for a bruising contest of split heats. Eight heats were required to decide this event. Fred Wilkes won the 5th, 7th and 8th heats in 2.18 1-4, 2.18 3-4, 2.23 3-4. He also finished second in three of the other heats.

Such a contest as that, with so little preparation as Fred Wilkes had received would have placed most horses on the shelf for the remainder of the season, if not for life. Two weeks after the above race Fred Wilkes won a good race at Combination Park, Medford, in a field of 10 starters. He won this in straight heats; time 2.21 3-4, 2.16, 2.16 1-4. His best race that season was at Taunton, Mass., Sept. 25, in a field of eight starters, one of which was the fast game mare, Lantana, driven by the capable trainer and expert reinsman, Mr. Dore. The first and second heats were won by Lantana in 2.16 1-4, 2.16 1-2 but Fred Wilkes finished second in each of those heats. The third heat was won by Fred Wilkes in 2.16 3-4. Lantana evidently was not driven for this heat as she was fourth at the finish. The fourth heat was won by Fred Wilkes in 2.18 and Lantana evidently was not hurried as she finished 5th. With two easy heats for Lantana she came out comparatively fresh for the fifth heat. The contest for victory between Fred Wilkes and Lantana probably was as intensely interesting as ever was seen on the Taunton track. Both struggled gamely, but Fred Wilkes was first under the wire and the time was 2.16 1-4, just equalling the time of the first heat of the race. Lantana made a record of 2.09 3-4 later that season.

The week following his victory at Taunton, Fred Wilkes was one of eight that started at the Brockton fair, Oct. 2, 1896, in the 2.16 class. He won this race in straight heats, time 2.14 1-2, 2.15 1-2, 2.16 3-4. This was Fred Wilkes' last race for the season of 1896.

In 1897 Fred Wilkes, then owned by J. B. Rhodes, New Bedford, Mass., was started in 10 races. He won first money in two of them, second money in four, third in two, fourth in one, and got no part of the purse in the other. He lowered his record to 2.12 1-4 in the first heat of a race at Worcester, Mass., Sept. 4, 1897. He died the following winter, the property of J. B. Rhodes, and probably was buried with greater display and expense than any other horse was ever buried in New England. His death was caused by an accident.

Fred Wilkes, p, 2.12 1-4 was started in 25 races in all. He won first money in 10 of them; second money in seven, third in three, fourth in three, and was outside the money winning division in the other two. He was never distanced or drawn in a race. He demonstrated that successful race winners sometimes can be raised in Franklin county, Maine, if the animal inherits the right combination of blood lines from both sire and dam, but had there been 20 others bred in identically the same lines perhaps none of the others might have been able to have shown a three minute gait.

In breeding for race winning qualities several important invisible forces are always present. One of them is heredity, which tends to reproduce in the offspring the qualities possessed by the near ancestors. The other is reversion or atavism, and the tendency of this force is to reproduce in an animal, or individual, the qualities possessed by some ancestor several removals away. These forces are beyond the control of human agency, and probably always will remain so.

Unfortunately for the equine and also the human family the undesirable qualities of remote ancestors are just as liable to be brought forward and become prominent in the descendants, as are the desirable ones. They sometimes remain latent for several generations of descendants after which they appear again. Through how many generations this atavistic tendency may exist probably is not known. Cases have been known however, that some peculiar mark of an animal has lain dormant for five or six consecutive generations of descendants and has reappeared again in the sixth or seventh generation.

Such cases should teach horse-breeders to learn the characteristics of the ancestors near and remote of their brood mares and stallions for several generations, so as to avoid as much as possible the liability of perpetuating any undesirable quality that is inheritable.

SPEED FOR RANGELEY.

A notable addition to the horse stock of Rangeley, Me., was made recently through the purchase by Isaac Ellis of the fast, handsome pacing stallion Prince Alfordly p, 2.15 1-4 by Alfordly p, 2.12, a son of Petoskey, 3633, by George Wilkes 2.22, a son of Hambletonian 10; dam Carrie R. 2.28 1-4 (dam of Jourdan Wilkes, 2.20 3-4); second dam the great brood mare Emeline (dam of nine trotters with standard records) by Henry B. Patchen 163, a son of the famous George M. Patchen, 2-23 1-2.

HUNTERS TO WEAR TAGS.

Serial Number for Each County and License Number.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 21—Every hunter will be licensed like an automobile under the plan favored by the State Game commission for enforcing the Hunters' License act, which became a law yesterday, only there will be a serial number for each county in the state, to be followed by the license number. Adams county licenses will start with one and all issued in Allegheny will begin with two, while New York will start with 67 under the plan now being talked about.

The game commission will prepare at once the license cards to be issued to the hunters and all the tags will also be provided, being sent to the treasurers of each county, who will be in charge of the issuance, receiving a small fee out of each dollar paid for a license as their compensation. Every license will be accompanied by a white tag bearing the license number, and this tag must be worn on the arm like a chevron when the hunter takes the field.

It is expected that there will be a considerable income from licenses, which, under the plan of the act, will be devoted to the expenses of the commission in the propagation and protection of game.

PORTLAND BOY SHOT WONDER OF COUNTRY.

Philip M. Johnson of Portland, has been officially chosen by the National Rifle association to shoot on the All-star United States rifle team which will represent this country against Great Britain and Australia in the international small-bore match. Johnson is 17 years old, captain of the crack Deering High rifle team, and the only school boy in the United States who has been chosen for the national team.

During the winter's shooting in the national inter-high school league, which resulted in Deering's win, the championship of the states east of the Mississippi river, Johnson's wonderfully high and steady shooting for a schoolboy, in the prone position, attracted a great deal of attention. Out of the nine league matches Johnson scored seven possible 100s and two 99s in the prone shooting. In a match held at Deering High school's range a short time ago, Johnson shot consecutively 50 shots in the prone position, the first 49 being possible 10s, the last one a nine, making a total of 499 out of a possible 500. So far as is known this is the record.

AT LAKE AUBURN.

Yesterday's catch at Lake Auburn, as far as reported at the Sun office, was small, says the Lewiston Sun of April 24. Gramp Morse landed two 3-pounders and I. K. Martin secured one weighing a pound and one half. Smelts are running good and several lots have been brought down town.

Among those who have opened cottages for the season are: Mr. and Mrs. Ben Huntington, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bickford and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Ames.

Ralph Cobb's cottage on Breezy Point has been taken for the summer by Harold S. Young of Auburn. Yesterday afternoon a formal house warming was held and a party of Auburn young people were guests. After a picnic supper was served by the young ladies on the veranda the party adjourned to the Grange hall and danced until the last car home. Those present were: Misses Beatrice Penley, Charlotte Nevens, Louise Brown, Cora Hasty, Maryella Rendall, Abbie Harvey and Hazel Stevens; Messrs. George Wood, George Longley, Bernard Johnson, William Baker, Edward Moulton, John Libby and Harold Young and Mrs. Edith Sylvester.

A FORTUNE IN BLACK FOXES.

Six black foxes, worth anywhere from $12,000 to $15,000 in all and possibly more, were captured by Calvin Graves of Hancock and his two sons, Thomas and Arthur, near McFarland's hill, town of Hancock, at about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The capture is one of the richest ever made in the state of Maine and certainly breaks the record for any made in the Pine Tree state in recent years.

Black foxes are worth from $1,200 to $5,000 apiece, according to a statement made by a Bangor fur dealer Tuesday afternoon. The foxes will probably be marketed in Prince Edward's Island, where the black fox industry is centered in this part of the world.

Calvin Graves and his sons ran into the nest near McFarland's hill entirely by accident and surprised the mother and her five progeny, three of whom were females and two males, and were successful in bagging the whole of them. News of the discovery was soon flashed all over the small community and created a great sensation, as well it might.

The fur of the mother fox was in fairly good condition and of course the others are in excellent shape. The young foxes are, it is estimated, about two months old and are the size of a half-grown cat. They are now safely caged at the Graves home in Hancock, and they are jealously guarded, for it is not often that a Maine hunter bags several thousand dollars in one day.

The amount that Mr. Graves will get for the animals will depend upon the demand for them at present. If the right person can be found, that is, a wealthy man who really wants a black fox skin, the amount may be as high as $5,000 for one.

BIRD NOTES FROM MAINE.

City Point, Me.—On April 8 there was a flutter of wings on the porch where crumbs had been scattered. "Robin red-breast," I said, for my eye caught the warm reddish tinge of an old friend's feathers. Looking more closely, my interest in our visitor increased, for he was a stranger, a smaller bird than the robin, and the red markings were on his wings and tail feathers, while his body and breast were a mottled, speckled gray. The bird lover, who was looking over my shoulder whispered "a fox sparrow," and with bated breath we watched until some noise startled the bird, and he flew away. The bird lover told me that fox sparrows are only seen here for two or three weeks, stopping on their way further north and that they are sweet singers. He saw the first one this year on March 20, which was unusually early; in fact, all the birds arrived early this year, as his records show.

"It's a strange thing," he said the other morning at breakfast, "how the song sparrow sings at this season of the year while the birds are mating. His song lasts a full minute or longer, and is as liquid and sweet as that of any bird I know. Later in the season the song changes; it lasts only a few seconds and is much less musical." When he talks of the feathered folks, we are glad, for they are close and intimate friends of his. He has made a life-long study of their ways and habits. His mind is stored with interesting facts concerning them, and he seems to enjoy their confidence to a great degree.

The purple martins are his favorites and he has a large colony. His three houses were filled last summer, and he has just completed another large house, built in the shape of a castle, with turrets and towers, which we have no doubt will prove attractive to his feathered friends. The musical, gurgling notes from the throats of a hundred or more of these martins fill the air around his home through the long summer days, and the sudden silence when they migrate some day late in August is almost oppressive.

One day on a mountain top in the solitude and silence we found the bird lover on his knees beside a nest which held three little helpless hermit thrushes. The day had been a wonderful one of mountain climbing, and memory holds many of its pictures, but the one that comes to us most often is that of the birds' nest hidden away so carefully among the mountain grasses, with the strong man bending over it. We think that even the anxious mother bird must have trusted his good will when she saw the gentleness and friendliness of his expression at that moment.

Summer brings us many happy days in the Maine woods. We look forward to them eagerly, longing for the trout brooks and the freedom from care that come to those who follow their winding ways, and for the companionship of the feathered folks.

R. T. Newell, in Forest & Stream.
