MASONIC HALL DEDICATED.

Twenty Different Masonic Lodges Were Represented.

One Hundred and Fifty Masons Witnessed the Ceremonies.

The new hall of Blue Mountain Lodge, F. & A. M. of Phillips, was dedicated Tuesday evening, Nov. 25, under auspicious circumstances and with very impressive and interesting ceremonies.

About 150 Masons were present from Maine lodge of Farmington, Davis lodge of Strong, Mystic Tie lodge of Weld and visiting brethren from many different lodges in Maine and elsewhere, including one member from a lodge in Ireland.

The following is a summary of the lodges represented and the location of each:

The dedicatory ceremonies were ably performed by Most Worshipful Grand Master Alfred S. Kimball of Norway, assisted by District Deputy Grand Master Charles F. Rowell of Wilton; George M. Currier of Farmington as senior grand warden; Lewis V. Winslow of Lewiston as junior grand warden; Fred J. Ward of Wilton as grand treasurer; John M. S. Hunter of Farmington as grand secretary; Enoch O. Greenleaf of Farmington as grand marshal; Rev. John A. Ford of Phillips as grand chaplain; Daniel F. Field of Phillips as grand architect; J. Clinton Metcalf of Farmington as senior grand deacon; William M. Pratt of Farmington as junior grand deacon; Charles B. Richardson of Strong as senior grand steward; Burton A. Davenport of Phillips as junior grand steward; Warren O. Carney of Portland, grand tyler.

After the ceremonies all retired to Lambert hall, where a banquet was served. Much credit is due the ladies, Mrs. W. A. D. Cragin and Mrs. M. S. Kelley, for the excellent arrangement of the tables and for the palatable variety of the viands placed thereon, also to the gentlemen who acted as waiters, carefully attending to their duties and watchfully noting that everyone was served.

The banquet consisted of cold sliced ham, cold sliced tongue, lobster salad, celery, bread, butter, jelly, soda crackers, cake, doughnuts, cheese, grapes, coffee, sugar, milk, ice cream.

After refreshments, Worshipful Master Eugene I. Herrick in a few chosen words called upon Hon. Newell R. Knowlton of Farmington for remarks. This gentleman responded in a timely speech that was listened to with much appreciation. The next speaker was Hon. A. D. Russell of Augusta, who for one thing called attention to the fact that 38 years ago he was made a Mason in Blue Mountain lodge. His remarks were very appropriate.

Mr. Charles F. Thompson of Strong was next called upon and made interesting remarks.

Enoch O. Greenleaf, Esq., of Farmington did not like the idea, as one who had preceded him had expressed it, of being termed old. "We are not old, we are young and there are many lessons to be learned from Masonry."

Mr. Lewis V. Winslow of Lewiston, in a happy vein, related some reminiscences of when he was a barefoot boy and played around the streets of Phillips, of playing ball on the green down by the Union church, not baseball, but round ball, and that he well remembered the first game of baseball ever played in Phillips; of the girl in Phillips whose father was a blacksmith, and when referring to his business or profession, she would always speak of him as an "iron artist" and not as a blacksmith. He spoke very kindly of the late William W. Quimby. He mentioned the molasses measure in Wilbur & Toothaker's store as running over, and that Mr. Wilbur would probably say that it was Mr. Toothaker who was in it with both feet.

Judge James Morrison of Phillips admitted that he had violated one of the Masonic virtues, at least so far as temperance was concerned, for he had not only eaten, but had drank so much (coffee) that he was too full for utterance. He had found a brother up ten miles away from here, out fox hunting, had brought him out to the meeting, should keep him over night and take him back in the morning to finish his fox hunt.

Most Worshipful Grand Master Alfred S. Kimball of Norway made a very enjoyable speech and among other things he said that he had no idea what a grand meeting he was coming to. He also said that he was glad allusion had been made to the harmony existing among the Masonic lodges. He was glad to be here for he had much enjoyed the hospitality which had been extended to him and that he should go from here feeling that all were his personal friends. Eugene I. Herrick, W. M., of Rangeley thanked all for their attendance and hoped they would come again.

Lumber In New Vineyard.

New Vineyard is to receive her share of the lumber business during the coming winter.

New Vineyard has an abundant growth of fir, spruce and poplar, and while there is a constant demand for birch, the first three named varieties of lumber up to the present time have been practically worthless to their owners. With the exception of small quantities this timber is salable only as pulpwood and in the town of New Vineyard, eight or ten miles from the nearest railroad, the selling of such lumber has not been at all profitable and has been allowed to stand.

The value of this timberland has recently been greatly enhanced, owing to a visit of a representative of the Great Northern Pulp Co., who says that it is possible to drive four foot pulpwood down a small stream which runs through the town to West New Portland, a distance of about six miles, where it can be emptied into the Carrabasset river and thus conveyed to Madison for consumption in the pulp mill.

A standing offer of four dollars per cord for all lumber landed at the stream has been made, and preparations for extensive lumber operations throughout that vicinity are now on foot and a busy winter is ahead.

All Wool Yarns.

About thirty years ago one of the characters of Strong was a man whom we will call Boggs, Ephraim Boggs. Mr. Boggs's great propensities were chewing tobacco and gaping. He was said to be able to handle a good sized chew of tobacco on each side of his mouth, besides one in the middle and then, after chewing the weed awhile, he would lean back in his chair and yawn a most prodigious yawn. However, he was only mortal after all, so one day he died, and a local poet soon after forged out the following epitaph to be put, he said, on Mr. Boggs's headstone:

"Ephraim Boggs lies buried here,
His mouth was split from ear to ear;
Gentlemen, tread lightly over the sod,
For if he gapes you're gone by —"

Mrs. Edmund McMurdie.

The funeral of Mrs. Edmund McMurdie, who died in Boston, Mass., Saturday, Nov. 22, was held at North Anson, Maine, Tuesday, Nov. 25.

The services were conducted by the Order of the Eastern Star, No. 48 of North Anson, of which she was a member. The services were very impressive. Her illness was of short duration, she dying from a paralytic shock. Her age was 59 years.

Mrs. McMurdie was the widow of the late Edmund McMurdie, who was a Past Commander of Trinity Commandery, No. 7 of Augusta, Maine. He was for many years manager of the large publishing house of the late E. C. Allen in Augusta.

Mrs. McMurdie was a sister of Mr. W. A. D. Cragin of Phillips.

H. A. FURBISH.

Harry Albert Furbish of Rangeley was born at Auburn, Maine, March 15, 1867. He attended the public schools there until he was 12 years old, when he went to Rangeley and entered the general store of Mr. George W. Young as clerk. He remained with Mr. Young a year, when Burke & Rogers, who were at that time running a general store at Rangeley, employed the young man to clerk for them. He stayed with the firm seven years and at the end of that time bought out the junior member of the firm, Mr. E. A. Rogers, and commenced a general store business with Mr. John A. Burke, under the firm name of Burke & Furbish. This partnership lasted about two years, Mr. Burke dying in February 1889. He then formed a co-partnership with Mr. E. A. Rogers, under the firm name of Rogers & Furbish. About one year later they took into the firm Mr. W. L. Butler of Phillips, and the business continued under the firm name of Rogers, Furbish & Butler.

In 1891 Mr. Rogers sold out to W. F. Oakes. The firm then did business under the firm name of Furbish, Butler & Oakes until 1900, when Mr. Butler sold out to Mr. W. D. Quimby. This company is Furbish, Oakes & Quimby.

Mr. Furbish is also a member of the firm of Kempton, Furbish & Butler, who own and operate a steam sawmill and are dealers in long and short lumber, mouldings, etc. Mr. Furbish has done a large and profitable business in everything that he has undertaken and he is regarded as one of the most successful young business men in the state.

AMONG THE FARMERS.

In last week's issue of MAINE WOODSMAN the increase in the value of the dairy industry in the past, was alluded to, so along in line with the ever increasing demand for dairy products, came also a demand for succulent feed of some kind that could profitably be fed to dairy cows in the winter seasons when nothing but dry hay and meal could be obtained. Corn fodder could be raised in large amounts but no proper way of curing it in a manner suitable for feeding purposes in the winter season could be devised.

In the season of droughts which often occur in August and September a very small piece of ground will produce enough corn fodder to carry a good sized dairy herd to the time of coming to the barn and what to do with the surplus so that the cows might be benefited by it during the winter and until they went to pasture in the spring was the all absorbing question. At last, reports came from France that a method of preparing corn and other forage crops had been perfected there, which was by placing these green crops in silos.

By investigation, the writer of Among the Farmers in MAINE WOODSMAN, has found that the first recorded American silo for the storage of green fodder was built in 1875 by Dr. Manly Miles, who says he was led to make the experiment through the favorable reports made by farmers practicing this method of preserving green crops in France.

He used four small silos, two of which were filled with corn and two with the heads of broom corn, the results of which were most satisfactory.

One of the most effective agents in advancing the claims of the silo was the ensilage congress first held in New York City in 1882, in which two days were devoted to the discussion of this method of preserving forage. The opinion expressed in the resolution adopted by the congress was "that it has become a well established fact by six years' successful use in this country and by the concurrent testimony of many intelligent farmers that the ensilage system is of great advantage to the farming interest and to all mankind."

It is of interest to dairymen and stock breeders to note the advance that has been made since that time up to the present, both in the manner of building the silo and the treatment of its contents. The first silos were costly affairs, being largely built of stone or brick. These have given place to wooden structures which are found equally as good, and being vastly cheaper and more easily built.

We all remember that when the first silos were built it was thought that after being filled, the material in the silo should be heavily weighted to exclude the air and to properly preserve the forage. This idea was abandoned some years ago, for it was proven that the material kept just as well without the weights.

The value of ensilage is now pretty generally recognized all over the United States where dairying and stock raising are carried on. It is nowhere recommended to be fed alone as a regular diet, but is used in connection with a small amount of hay and grain with the most encouraging results. It has been shown by experience that the cost of milk and butter can be materially reduced by the judicious feeding of silage.

For Maine farmers probably no crop that can be raised is so profitable for the silo as corn. Although other green crops may be raised and would make good ensilage, yet nothing has been found that will produce the heavy yield and give the satisfactory results that can be obtained from corn fodder.

Points About Poultry.

It is poor economy to let the poultry suffer from cold. A hen house must be poor indeed that cannot be made warm enough to keep the biddies' combs from freezing.

Lice will not trouble the poultry so much in winter as in summer, but they are there all the same unless great pains had been taken in the summer and fall to eradicate them. Coal oil poured onto the roosts once a week is a good preventive of these pests.

Continuous judicious advertising is what pays in the poultry business as well as in anything else. If you have good birds or eggs to sell, let the people know about it.

Keep your poultry tame. It is much more comfortable to take care of them than if they are shying all over the pen or yard at your approach.

Be sure that the eggs are clean before being sent to market. There is nothing that looks more filthy than a dirty egg, or nothing that looks nicer than clean ones be they brown or white.

The egg farmers of New York say they can produce eggs at six cents a dozen.

Have roomy houses for the poultry and furnish plenty of dry litter.

It has been a good many years since eggs have been so high at this season of the year as now. The probable reasons for eggs ruling so high through the summer were given in MAINE WOODSMAN a few weeks ago, and those reasons coupled with the fact that eggs are always pretty well up at this time of year on account of the hens rebuilding and putting on their winter plumage and cannot well engage largely in producing eggs when making their cold weather coats, are good reasons indeed for the high prices, and which must continue in the line of advance until, at least, after Thanksgiving.

Poultry raising and keeping, as has been remarked in this column, is on the increase, and that is as it should be. It has been one of the most neglected of farm industries, when it should and could be made one of the leading paying branches. Give the hens good, clean, warm and comfortable quarters, with good feed, care and attention and they will give you in return plenty of eggs all winter, when the highest prices can be received and consequently the larger profit.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. Alden J. Blethen.

The successful American of recent date had an interesting story about Alden J. Blethen, who was at one time principal of the Phillips High school.

Alden Joseph Blethen was born Dec. 27, 1840, at Knox, Waldo county, Me., where his father pursued the occupation of a merchant. The Blethens came from England to Ipswich, Mass., in 1660. The paternal grandmother of Mr. Blethen was a second cousin of Col. Ethan Allen of Green Mountain fame, and was of Scotch-Irish descent. His maternal grandmother was a Davidson, whose father came directly from Scotland. Mr. Blethen was educated at the Maine Wesleyan seminary and college of Maine, receiving the degree of M. A. from Bowdoin college in 1872, soon after which he was admitted to the bar and practiced law in Portland, Me., from 1874 to 1880 inclusive.

Mr. Blethen's first occupation in life was that of a country schoolmaster, commencing when only 16 years of age, and continuing to teach until he graduated from college and was admitted to the bar. He was lessee and principal of the famous Abbot Family School for Boys at Farmington, Me., from 1869 till 1874. His law practice in Portland was very successful, but his health beginning to fail he was recommended to try a change of climate and removed to Kansas City, Mo.

Soon after his arrival in that locality he became the manager of the Kansas City Journal, and so continued for four years, when, on account of the ill effect of the climate on his family, he made another change of location and settled in Minneapolis, Minn., again entering the journalistic field as half owner and editor-in-chief of the Minneapolis Tribune, and in 1885 he became proprietor of the Minneapolis Journal. But again did ill health overtake him, and he sold his interest in both papers in 1888 for a quarter of a million dollars in solid cash.

Mr. Blethen spent the winter of 1888-9 with his family in the city of Washington, returning to Minneapolis the following spring, and was induced to repurchase the Minneapolis Tribune in the interest of a large railroad scheme organization by Thomas Lowry of that city, and continued to manage the Tribune until 1891, when financial disaster, caused first by the great fire which destroyed the Tribune property, and the expenditures of large moneys for the purpose of rebuilding a new home and reestablishing a new plant compelled the transfer of that property to Lowry under most unfortunate financial conditions. And like many other men who strive to recover their losses by plunging into other occupations; the subject of this sketch went into the banking business only to be completely wiped out in the great panic which began in 1893 and continued until 1897.

In July of 1896, Mr. Blethen removed to Seattle, state of Washington, with his family, and in August following obtained control of the Seattle Daily Times, then an insignificant publication of four pages, at a cost of $30,000 and before the campaign of 1896 had passed was demonstrating the truth of his theory touching the possibility of that publication.

The growth of the Times was so rapid that a complete new plant was required and procured in the early part of 1898, only to be increased 200 per cent at the beginning of 1902. The gross income of the Times in March, 1898, was hardly $4,000, while the gross income for 1892 exceeded $31,800.

Mr. Blethen has a family of four children—two sons and two daughters—the sons being engaged upon the Times, one as managing editor and the other as news editor, and it is undoubtedly true that the success of the establishment, especially during the last two years, is quite as much due to the sons as to the father.

Mr. Blethen married Rose A. Hunter of Strong, Me. They have four children, Alden J. Blethen, Jr., (also something of an author), Clarence B., Florence A. and Marion Rose Blethen. —Successful American.

Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by W. A. D. Cragin, Phillips; E. H. Whitney, Rangeley; O. E. Dyer, Strong; L. L. Mitchell, Kingfield.

FOUR CRACK MARKSMEN.

Fancy scores by four crack marksmen with sharpshooter Wheeler at the front. The Rumford Falls Gun club met at the range near Stanley Bisbee's residence Friday afternoon, and some highly creditable shooting was indulged in. It would do credit to Creedmoor or Sea Girt experts at fifty yards. F. H. Wheeler was the crack marksman, but Messrs. Stanwood and Nile held him a close argument. The full score of the quartet engaged in the contest was as follows, 50 points constituting possible total:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	Tot.
F. H. Wheeler,	5	4	3	5	5	3	5	4	5	4	43
Frank Stanwood,	5	3	4	3	5	5	3	3	5	4	41
S. B. Nile,	4	3	3	4	4	4	3	4	4	4	40
Sherman Beare,	4	3	4	3	3	5	4	5	3	5	38

DEER AS WELL AS SALMON.

Clear Water pond in Industry is famed for its abundance of trout and salmon and the forest around its shores is full of game.

A few days ago Robert Spinney and Albert Hawes of West Mills strolled over there and each took out a splendid buck deer. One weighed 185 pounds and the other 195.

AT GREEN LAKE HATCHERY.

The United States fish car arrived last week at Green lake after much delay. It took out the first consignment of salmon fry from the hatchery there on Friday, going over the Washington County railroad with 120 cans for distribution. Saturday the car took out another lot.

There are many shipments which ought to be made this season from the Green lake hatchery on account of the limited amount sent out last spring, being confined to trout at that time only. The supply of salmon on hand now is the largest for some time.

The fish car was expected at the lake earlier in the season and left Washington three weeks ago, but only arrived Wednesday. The question now is whether the fish can with safety be shipped so late in the year when the lakes and ponds are freezing.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

John Hagar of Dover, Maine, a registered guide, was mistaken for a deer and shot dead Wednesday morning, Nov. 12, by Mr. W. Wheeler of Concord, Mass.

DOG GOT THERE FIRST.

A Calais suburbanite, who recently started out to hunt deer, was surprised by the sudden appearance of a fine buck in the field a short distance from his house. He took a hasty aim and fired, and was delighted upon beholding the deer sink to earth. Drawing his hunting knife, he ran towards the fallen animal, with the charitable intention of cutting his throat, but his faithful dog, which viewed the proceedings from the doorway was a trifle too speedy for him and reached the fallen deer first, setting its teeth in the leg of the buck. This unkindness aroused the deer, which was only wounded, and before the man with the knife reached the animal, it had bounded to its feet and disappeared in the neighboring woods. It is to be feared that the hunter used some strong words and severe disciplinary measures towards his well meaning but over zealous dog, when he realized that his game was lost to him.

GAME OF DIFFERENT KINDS.

The Mt. Vernon Hunting club have had an annual camping trip for a number of years and this year was no exception to the general rule. Their "stamping" ground is always the Dead River region.

They camped this year at the dam on Dead river in the vicinity of Grand falls. They were there two weeks seeing and getting all the game they wanted. They brought out five bucks, four does, fifteen partridges, two raccoons, a mink and a muskrat.

Mr. Tyler, a member of the party was said to be slightly "rattled" one day when a beauty of a buck came up with in ninety yards of him. As he looked at the noble animal he pumped every cartridge from his rifle onto the ground, not thinking of trying to shoot.

A sad and wet affair was when Mr. Allen tipped his canoe over, receiving a thorough wetting in the cold Dead river water. He also lost his rifle in ten feet of water. The gun was afterward recovered.

SPORTSMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

The Maine Sportsmen's Fish and Game association will meet in Bangor, Wednesday evening, Dec. 10, as the following circular letter now being sent out by the secretary of the association, Col. E. C. Farrington, sets forth:

"A special meeting of the Maine Sportsmen's Fish and Game association will be held at the Bangor House, Bangor, Wednesday evening, Dec. 10. A banquet will be served at 8.30 o'clock, sharp, and immediately following the special meeting will take place for the purpose of considering the question of securing money for the protection of large game and game birds.

"Shall it be a fee for the hunting of such game, or by a direct tax?

"Will the association ask that the state prohibit the use of firearms entirely on the West Branch of the Penobscot river from Northeast Carry to Chesuncook lake?

"Will the association ask the state to prohibit the carrying of firearms into any of the game sections during close time?

"While the discussion may not be limited to such questions as are suggested above, these matters will be the prominent matters for consideration.

"This will be one of the most important meetings of the association ever held in the state, and members are urgently requested to be present.

"It is not intended to limit the attendance to members only, but an invitation is extended to such as are interested to join the association at this banquet and meeting.

"The enclosed postal card is for you to sign and promptly send to the secretary, that the needed arrangements may be made.

E. C. FARRINGTON, Secretary.

Augusta, Nov. 15, 1902."

The officers of the association are as follows: President, Hon. P. O. Vickery, Augusta; secretary and treasurer, Col. E. C. Farrington, Augusta; directors, Hon. P. O. Vickery, Hon. John Fremont Hill, Gen. W. S. Choate, Hon. J. F. Sprague, Hon. Victor W. Macfarlane, G. G. Weld, M. D., Hon. Wm. T. Haines and E. C. Farrington; committee on legislation, Hon. P. O. Vickery, Mr. A. M. Goddard, Hon. A. M. Spear, Hon. W. E. Parsons and Hon. L. T. Carleton.

The Maine Central railroad will sell tickets from the principal stations on its lines at greatly reduced rates, and the Bangor & Aroostook and Washington County railroads will sell tickets at one fare for the round trip, the tickets being good on the day of the meeting and the day following.

"Stonewall" Jackson's Baptism.

Robert E. Lee and Thomas Jonathan ("Stonewall") Jackson were once stationed at Fort Hamilton, New York harbor, the former while it was being built. Jackson was baptized at old St. John's church at Fort Hamilton, and the records contain the following entry: "On Sunday, 29th of April, 1849, I baptized Thomas Jonathan Jackson, major in the United States army; sponsors, Colonels Taylor and Dimmick, also of the army." The baptismal font used for this ceremony is still preserved.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

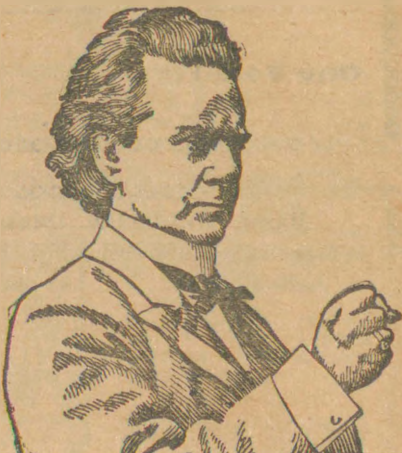

No Excuse.

A member of a volunteer fire brigade did not appear on the scene of the conflagration until after the fire was under control. He was severely taken to account by the chief for thus neglecting his duty.

"I could not help it," replied the fireman. "I live a long way from the fire."

"That's no excuse," snapped the chief. "You must move nearer the next fire."—London Answers.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

Franklin County Will Have Three This Fall on Dates Given.

Everybody Should Attend These Meetings and Help Good Work.

The farmers of Franklin county should certainly take advantage of the institutes which are to be held in the county in the early part of December and no doubt many will avail themselves of this opportunity. The first is to be held at New Sharon, Dec. 11, and there will be both a day and evening session. The next meeting will be at Phillips, Dec. 12, and at Strong, Dec. 13. Commissioner Gilman will bring an able corps of speakers into the county and the communities in each locality, where the institutes are to be held, should see to it that these important meetings are well attended. An excellent program will be arranged and the sessions will be made interesting as well as profitable and instructive. As was mentioned in the case of New Sharon there will also be day and evening sessions at both Strong and Phillips. As the time for the institutes draws nearer and the plans are more fully developed, MAINE WOODSMAN will be able to inform its readers more definitely in regard to arrangements.

Twins and Triplets.

Special correspondence to Maine Woodsman

RUMFORD FALLS, Nov. 25, 1902.

A reporter's attention was called to the following fact by having a friendly conversation with a gentleman on the train a few weeks since. Mr. Belens of Lisbon, from whom these interesting lines were gained, is a master mechanic and special engineer, having served as steam and boiler inspector in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Rhode Island for over eleven years. He is now nearly 55 years of age and although his birth date bears record of Dec. 3, 1847, New Hampshire, Scotland, no one would take him for over 35 to 38. The remarkable part of this communication is that Mr. Belens is a twin, having a sister, who has deceased and his father, grandfather and great-grandfather were all twins. His youngest uncle on his paternal side had three pairs of triplets and two older brothers in his family each had two pairs of twins and one aunt on his father's side also had twins.

Although the family seems to be remarkably prolific this gentleman says he has never been married and attributes his youthful appearance to that fact, together with the incident that he has always been temperate, honest and spiritual.

Now Mr. Editor, I wish to ask you, after you have been quite on the top round for years as far as twins are concerned, to modestly step down one peg and allow room for that other fellow who seems to be going up.

Why Coughing Is Weakening.

The amount of energy expended in coughing is very considerable. Indeed one of the patient statisticians for which Germany is renowned has calculated that a patient who coughs once every quarter of an hour for ten hours expends energy equivalent to 250 units of heat, which may be translated as equivalent to the nourishment contained in three eggs or two glasses of milk. In normal respiration the air is expelled from the chest at the rate of four feet per second, whereas in violent coughing it may attain a velocity of 300 feet.

Considerate.

Paterfamilias—See here! What does this mean? The parlor clock is stopped. Mr. Nicefellow was here last night, as usual, wasn't he?

Daughter—Yes, pa, and I told him what you said about the cost of coal and gas in the parlor every night, and we began to wonder how we could economize for you, and finally Mr. Nicefellow decided that we could at least stop the clock and save wear and tear on the works, you know.

Wholesale.

A Frenchman was teaching in a large school where he had a reputation for making some queer mistakes. One day he was taking a class which was rather disorderly. What with the heat and troublesome boys he was very snappish. Having punished several boys and sent one to the bottom of the class, he at last shouted out in a passion, "Ze whole class go to ze bottom!"

Relatively Speaking.

"He must be put out of the way," said the feudal king. "But, your majesty," protested the lord high executioner, "he is your first cousin." "I know; but I prefer to have him my 'cousin once removed.'"—Philadelphia Record.

RANGELEY NEWS NOTES.

Special correspondence to Maine Woodsman

RANGELEY, Nov. 25, 1902

The committee that was appointed at the town meeting last spring to secure a schoolhouse lot, has not as yet accomplished its purpose. It is evident, however that there is no vacant lot suitable for the purpose with anything like right locations. It is necessary that a schoolhouse lot be situated near the centre of the town and not at some far corner. It is understood that the committee has agreed upon the land owned and occupied by W. E. Twombly at the corner of Pleasant and Main streets, also a piece of G. L. Kempton's. At the next town meeting the proposition of appropriating the land by the town and compensating its owners will probably be one of the chief issues. As the land is in a very desirable location and pleasantly situated it is believed that the price will tend to stagger some of the supporters of the measure.

Haley-Smith.

A pretty home wedding took place in Rangeley on Nov. 14, at the residence of E. L. Haley. The contracting parties were Ernest L. Haley and Lillian L. Smith, both of Rangeley.

The bride was attired in a dainty gown of light blue Venetian cloth, silk waist with white tucked silk front and pearl trimmings. The groom wore the conventional black.

The bay window in which the bridal party stood was so arranged as to form an arch of white, trimmed with evergreen. Just over their heads hung the lucky horseshoe. A number of pretty plants made an effective background.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. H. Prescott, in the presence of immediate friends and relatives, after which congratulations were offered, followed by a dainty lunch consisting of ice cream and cake.

WM. K. MOODY.

Mr. William K. Moody, a regular visitor at the Rangeley Lakes region and an enthusiastic sportsman, died at the City hospital, Boston, last Saturday night.

Mr. Moody was known for years as a correspondent for Forest and Stream from the New England territory. His signature was "Special" and it was familiar to all forest and Stream readers.

Mr. Moody was editor of the Marker Specials of the Boston Herald.

His age was 62 years. His death was the result of an operation for the cure of an internal constitutional weakness, from which he had suffered for a long time.

Mr. Moody, in addition to being editor of the Marker Specials of the Boston Herald was also a frequent contributor to other departments of the paper, his articles always being valuable and interesting. He was particularly interested in everything pertaining to hunting and fishing, especially in his native state, and his vacations were always spent at this favorite recreation. For many years he had a camp on Richardson lake, in the Rangeley region, until failing health led him to dispose of it.

In this connection he was widely known among sportsmen, and was a recognized authority upon matters connected with the rod and gun. He took a deep interest in amending the laws of Maine for the preservation of game and regulating the taking of the same. He was a frequent contributor of articles to the Herald during the fishing season and was also a regular correspondent of Field and Stream.

Mr. Moody was a lover of nature in art and left many photographs of wood and water and mountain scenes, taken by himself during vacations. He was an ardent amateur photographer, and was the inventor of several patented articles for photographers' use. He was also a builder of cameras for his own use, being skilled in metal and wood work.

Mr. Moody was respected by all with whom he came in contact in daily business and social life. Honest and upright, he could not bear to see anybody or anything oppressed, and always championed the cause of the weaker party. He will be much missed by a wide circle of friends and business associates, besides the immediate relatives.

He was married Feb. 24, 1866, at Waterville, to Miss Emma Scates of Dorchester, who survives him. His only brother is now the principal of the High school at Auburn, Me. A married sister lives in Oxford county, Maine.

He was a member of the Delta Upsilon, a society in Waterville college, and was also a member of the fraternal insurance society, the Knights of Honor. He was a past dictator and for many years treasurer of Suffolk lodge of Boston.

William K. Moody was born in the town of Strong, Me., April 19, 1840. He was the oldest son of Dea. John Moody, well known in Oxford county. The elder Moody was for years employed by William King, the first governor of the state of Maine, and naturally his firstborn was named after that distinguished citizen. He was educated in the public schools and at Hebron academy, and Waterville college, now Colby university.

He taught school for a time, but shortly after leaving college, entered the newspaper business as the editor and publisher of the Winthrop Gazette, a weekly newspaper established by him at Winthrop, Me. After spending two years in that town, he removed to Mechanic Falls, where he established the Androscoggin Herald. He remained here four years, and then, taking advantage of a favorable opportunity, purchased a half interest in the Somerset Reporter, published at Skowhegan. Later he purchased his partner's interest, and for a long time was sole owner.

In 1875 Mr. Moody sold the paper to Messrs. Kilby & Woodbury, and came to Boston, where for a time he acted as editor of the Weekly Advertiser. Later he was publisher of the Women's Journal, with which publication he was connected for several years. While connected with that paper his attention was directed toward commercial affairs for which he had a natural aptitude, and for a short time he filled a responsible position on the Boston Commercial Bulletin.

About this time he wrote a series of articles for The Herald on Boston banking methods, which attracted wide attention and secured him recognition upon the regular staff. Under his direction the market specials department was started and early grew into a position of widespread influence and importance.

Where Smoking Is a Sin.

Palgrave, in his interesting book describing his journey to the sacred city of Mecca, gives an amusing account of his conversation with a mollah.

On asking the reverend gentleman which he considered the most deadly of all sins the holy man replied:

"Smoking the shameful."

"And next, O son of the prophet?"

"Drinking."

"Are these the two greatest sins, father?"

"Verily, my son."

"And murder?"

"Ah, that's nothing—nothing. It's forgivable."

"And stealing?"

"Ah, that's forgivable too."

"But smoking?"

"It is the unforgivable crime," replied the mollah sternly and looking keenly at the fictitious Mohammedan.

And this is the Afghan's creed. Murder and theft are forgivable crimes, but for smoking and drinking there is no redemption.

The Man With the Fiddle.

The little old man fiddled very hard as he stood near the curbstone in Twenty-third street. The passersby looked at him curiously. Some of them smiled. No one gave him a penny. Presently he was seen to totter and then to fall, but he kept on fiddling just the same, even when he lay prone upon his back. A man helped him to his feet. He never missed a note. A little boy who had been regarding him with keen interest went up to him. Suddenly the bow hung poised and motionless. The little old man had run down. The boy bought him for a quarter, however. The vender showed him how to start the fiddle up again, and the two went off together, happy and contented.—New York Press.

Unconvinced.

A Presbyterian preacher in the central part of New York state tells this story on himself:

"It was Sunday morning, and I had started for church. The family were preparing to follow when the youngest, a five-year-old, protested, 'I do not want to go to church.'"

"I don't feel much like it myself, Fred, this morning," replied his mother, 'but we must go. Father has to go—has gone already, and he has to preach.'"

"Yes," said Fred, unconvinced, 'but we have to listen, and that's worse.'"

How Do You Make a Circle?

The intelligence of people may be gauged by asking them to make a circle on paper with a pencil and noting in which direction the hand is moved. The good student in a mathematical class draws circles from left to right. The inferiority of the softer sex, as well as the male dunces, is shown by their drawing from right to left. Asylum patients do the same.—London Family Doctor.

The Suit.

Lawyer (to timid young woman)—Have you ever appeared as witness in a suit before?

Young Woman (blushing)—Y-yes, sir; of course.

Lawyer—Please state to the jury just what suit it was.

Young Woman (with more confidence)—It was nun's veiling, shirred down the front and trimmed with a lovely blue, with hat to match—

FARMINGTON NEWS.

Special correspondence to Maine Woodsman.

FARMINGTON, Nov. 24, 1902.

Farmington is interested today on account of a report brought in by a messenger that the Portland & Rumford Falls Railway management were contemplating building a railroad from its terminus at Chisholm's Mills down in the southern part of Jay to Madison, over in Somerset county.

If this report be true it would open up a section of country that has never known the whistle of a locomotive, only as it has been heard in the far distance. The report has not been verified but is awakening a good deal of interest on the streets here.

It was further stated by the informant that a surveying party were already on and had surveyed and driven stakes as far as Farmington Falls.

Supposing that the building of this road should materialize, one can come pretty close to calculating the points of the compass that it would run, and also the towns it would traverse on its way to that hustling ambitious Somerset county town—Madison.

Leaving Chisholm's it would take a northeasterly course through the southeastern part of Jay, striking the thrifty farming town of Chesterville near its northwestern boundary, somewhere in the vicinity of Keith's Mills in North Chesterville. Here is a nice water power and a good deal of business has been done here in years past.

From here it would strike the southern limit of Farmington near Knowlton's corner, going through at or near Farmington Falls, so on through New Sharon, leaving Weeks' Mills, a little to the north.

After leaving New Sharon it would strike into Somerset county in the town of Starks. It could cross the Kennebec at the northeastern part of the town and from this point, which would then be in the town of Madison, and so on up the Kennebec on the east shore to Madison Bridge, where are situated the immense pulp and paper mills, or it could keep on the west side of the Kennebec from Starks to Anson, where it could cross directly into the heart of the big business at Madison Bridge.

It is a splendid agricultural district through the territory named, although not a large amount of lumber along the route. It would make an outlet for the products of the farms, at the same time placing the farmer nearer to market. Farmington would naturally lose a large amount of business from that section, viz., from Chesterville, Vienna, New Sharon, Industry, Mercer and a part of Starks, because the dwellers along the route, would in the event of a railroad, seek the towns of Madison and Livermore Falls.

However this may be, if the Portland & Rumford Falls railway decide to build the road it will be because their business demands it, and you know this corporation has the habit of forging 'itself along and getting there' with push and vim. But as has been said these rumors have not been verified, but it would not by any means be the strangest thing that ever happened if in the near future the Portland & Rumford Falls engines were hauling big loads over rails laid over this very route.

LATER—Since setting the above in type we have learned positively that a survey is actually being made over the territory referred to above. The survey is in charge of Leonard T. Keith, the civil engineer for the Wiscasset, Waterville & Farmington railroad. The Portland & Rumford Falls road owns the right of way from Chisholm's Mills to Shy Corner, some three miles. From Shy Corner Mr. Keith is making his survey.

The Franklin Agricultural society is in a very prosperous condition. The premiums are nearly all paid and the treasurer of the society is ready to pay any outstanding premiums at any time when they may be presented. The society has $800 in cash in its treasury above all liabilities. It owns its real estate, for which it has paid out in buying land, erecting buildings, building track and other necessary expenses, the sum of $15,000.

The ground where the annual show and fair are held was purchased in 1879.

The receipts of the society for the show and fair of 1902 were $4,251.87, which were the largest in the history of the society. The premium list is increasing each year. The annual members number 640. There are also 75 life members. The society voted some time since to give free admission to widows and minor children of life members.

The annual meeting for electing officers and transacting all other business that is necessary to come before the annual meeting is held on the first Wednesday of December. Probably no other agricultural society in Maine is any better situated or can show so solid financial standing as can the Franklin Agricultural society of Farmington.

Mr. Samuel S. Stackpole, who was at one time station agent here for the Sandy River railroad, lies in a critical condition at the home of his father in Winthrop. He suffered two paralytic shocks last week. At present he can neither move nor speak. Mr. Stackpole has the sympathy of the community as he has many friends in this vicinity.

The Norton Brothers are in the city this week.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Corthren, a Farmington lady living on a farm about three miles out of the village, narrowly escaped being burned to death one night last week at her home. She was alone during the evening and while reading, fell asleep in her chair. It is supposed that while asleep she leaned her head so close to the table that a celluloid comb, which was in her hair, was ignited by the flame of the lamp and this set fire to her hair. Upon awakening, Mrs. Corthren had presence of mind enough to wrap a shawl, which was on a chair near by, about her and this smothered the flames and without doubt saved her life. As it was her head was badly burned.

Played Out.

That "played out"—"done up" feeling makes life miserable for every sufferer from Kidney ills, backaches, headaches and urinary troubles, painful and annoying.

Doan's Kidney Pills

bring new life and activity, remove the pain and cure the cause, from common backache to dangerous diabetes.

Mr. L. T. Wilson, sailmaker on Market street, Portsmouth, N. H., says: "I contracted a very bad cold which affected me in the loins and in the upper part of the chest, causing distressing lameness, some urinary difficulty and I was quite stiffened up. As I had read considerable about Doan's Kidney Pills I went to Philbrick's pharmacy and got a box. They went to the spot at once, and I did not use but part of the box before I was quite over my trouble. I gave the balance of my box to a friend, and there was plenty to cure him, although neither of us are very lightweights. I am prepared from my personal experience and from their effects on others to highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. You can refer to me."

—A Phillips housewife, who happens to be very fond of sweet cider, was grinding apples a few days ago for mince pies. She noticed that she was losing a great deal of apple juice that she thought would be very nice. So she originated a scheme for catching the cider which was very simple. She simply put a pail under the apple grinder and the "cider" dropped into it. When the work was over she tried the beverage, but it "wasn't much good," she said.

Closing Out Cape and Coat Sale.

No man living can sell goods below cost and keep it up without becoming a bankrupt. Some of the people are very credulous, but no one is so simple as to believe advertisements which hold out this sort of a promise.

But it is true that there are times when most merchants are mighty glad to sell or close out some line of goods at or below cost.

And that is exactly what we shall attempt to do in the next 30 days.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

At the Union church the sermon was preached by Rev. O. W. Peterson who had chosen two passages of Scripture for his text: Deut. xxxiv, 4, "I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither," and Deut. xxxiii, 27, "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms."

The closing chapters of the book of Deuteronomy seem to me to hold one of the most pathetic records of human history, a story of the hopes and disappointments of a human life.

For forty years Moses had been the leader of God's chosen people. Before assuming the leadership for forty years he had been in preparation for the work. As he looks back now the goal of all the struggles of the long eighty years was the land promised so long ago to the children of Israel. To add it he has led the nation. His heart is full of thoughts of it. Now he is near its borders and God has said "Thou shalt not go over thither."

There is much of grandeur in the story of his going alone upon Mount Nebo where God prepared for him a grave.

"And had he not high honor?
The hillside for a pall,
To lie in state, while angels wait
With stars for tapers tall
The dark rock pines like tossing plumes
Above his bier to wave
And God's own hand, in that lonely land,
To lay him in the grave?"

God hath his mysteries of grace
Ways which we cannot tell,
And he hides them deep like the secret
sleep
Of him he loved so well."

But there is more than grandeur in the story. Moses had given to his people a brave and solemn farewell. He had left messages of courage and trust. They were to go forward, to be strong and of a good courage. There is no word of complaint because the hope of his life is not to be realized by his entrance into the promised land, but because he knows that the eternal God is his refuge, calmly, obediently he goes into the lonely mountain.

We ask why God took him away from his work and his people, and without possessing the reward for which he had striven, and we can not say. We know that God's view of events is broader and more far reaching than ours. A little child in school learns that two plus two equals four. It is a truth which he can not be made to doubt. It will be the basis of mathematical work through all the years of his life. Yet from that knowledge it would be impossible for him to understand all the calculations and computations of the learned astronomer, although his one little fragment of truth, two plus two equals four, never fails him.

Moses knew, and we know, that the eternal God is a refuge, that underneath are the everlasting arms, but we can not tell the why and wherefore of all his ways.

The history of man gives many an example of those who have been called to their Mount Nebo, just as their work has been, apparently, about to result in that for which they have labored. We cannot understand why it has been so.

We do not know why the loved child for whom the parents have given the strength of their best days, is called one side, just as the parents are beginning to look to him to bear the burdens and fight the battles.

We do not know why one who has fitted himself to take a good stand in the work of the world is called to leave the world with the work undone. We do not know why the results of years of labor that one might have a competence for the declining years of life are often swept away in an hour.

We do not know why one who has gathered together much to enjoy with his family is suddenly taken away. Yet all these things and many others equally mysterious are continually occurring. Life is full of tragedies. This life with its visible experiences cannot justify human existence.

We must rest upon the facts that underneath are the everlasting arms and that God knows that which justifies all the pathos and sadness of life; that his hand leads to the Nebos of our experience and that in his "eternal years" shall be wrought out much of which we do not know.

Think you that Moses upon the Mount, looking over into the goodly territory of the promised land, mourned that he had had a part in leading the people there? Go on steadily, faithfully in the work God has given you, remembering that the eternal God is thy refuge and underneath are the everlasting arms.

Miss Rose Peterson, Secretary Parkdale Tennis Club, Chicago, from experience advises all young girls who have pains and sickness peculiar to their sex, to rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many beautiful young girls develop into worn, listless and hopeless women, simply because sufficient attention has not been paid to their physical development. No woman is exempt from physical weakness and periodic pain, and young girls just budding into womanhood should be carefully guided physically as well as morally.

If you know of any young lady who is sick, and needs motherly advice, ask her to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., who will give her advice free, from a source of knowledge which is unequalled in the country. Do not hesitate about stating details which one may not like to talk about, and which are essential for a full understanding of the case.

Miss Hannah E. Mershon, Collingswood, N. J., says:

"I thought I would write and tell you that, by following your kind advice, I feel like a new person. I was always thin and delicate, and so weak that I could hardly do anything. Menstruation was irregular.

"I tried a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and began to feel better right away. I continued its use, and am now well and strong, and menstruate regularly. I cannot say enough for what your medicine did for me."

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Fannie Kumpe.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it is my duty to write and tell you of the benefit I have derived from your advice and the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The pains in my back and womb have all left me, and my menstrual trouble is corrected. I am very thankful for the good advice you gave me, and I shall recommend your medicine to all who suffer from female weakness." — Miss FANNIE KUMPE, 1922 Chester St., Little Rock, Ark. (Dec. 16, 1900.)

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure any woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, nervous prostration, and all forms of woman's special ills.

PRESIDENT'S BEAR HUNT.

The president and party, who were down in Mississippi bear hunting last week, captured a bear weighing 235 pounds last Friday. The animal was killed by the hounds and by being clubbed with the butt end of a rifle in the hands of Holt Collier, the noted bear hunter. Everybody regrets that the president did not get a shot at bruin.

As soon as the dogs were released and began to give tongue, the president and his guides dashed into the thick forest in pursuit of the game. Holt Collier, who had had a large experience in hunting bears, made up his mind that the bear would come out at a certain place so he ordered that the president be taken to a shorter cut on the trail. Several swamp deer were jumped on the way but no attention was paid to them. The president, with a companion, waited several hours at the cut off, but the bear took the noisy hounds out of hearing and shortly after noon the two left their station and went to camp for luncheon. If they had remained at their post they would have had an excellent shot at the beast, for he crossed at the very place which Holt had surmised.

After running perhaps a mile from this point he became exhausted by the hard pressing he had received from the hounds and he ran into a water hole, where he turned upon the dogs. He grabbed one by the neck, crunching the bones and killing him instantly.

The bear was just making another sweep with his paw at the second dog when Collier jumped from his horse and with his rifle struck the bear a clip over the head.

A guide was sent back after the president, while Collier roped the bear and tied him to a tree. The president soon arrived but he would not shoot it nor allow anyone else to do so. "Put it out of its misery," he said, and guide Par ker ended its existence with a knife.

"If the colonel had stayed where I put him he would e'r done got this yere one" said the sorrowing Collier.

On the way back to camp a fresh trail was struck. At dark there was no sign of the president and all were anxious lest he would get too far away and be obliged to stay all night on the trail.

No newspaper men were allowed at camp save three Press association representatives, who went with the party.

Stepped Against a Hot Stove.

A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and his mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well-known resident of Kellar, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by Cragin, Phillips; Whitney, Rangeley; Dyer, Strong; Mitchell, Kingfield.

Image in Maple Tree.

W. J. Bradford of Saco cut down a maple tree in his front yard last week and when cross sections were made of the trunk by sawing there was revealed in the heart of the tree one of the most unique curiosities ever seen. The tree was about 18 inches in diameter and when the first length was cut off about three feet from the butt, there was discovered a perfect image of a woman the outlines being very distinct and the profile of the face clearly marked. This was about ten inches in length. Mr. Bradford says that whenever the tree has been sawed this figure appears and he thinks it runs the entire length of the trunk. He intends to have it cut into small lengths and to present one to the York institute. —Portland Advertiser

W. A. D. CRAGIN.

T. M. 'Tis Mince; T. M. 'Taint Mince.

A Phillips lady, noted for her excellent cookery, was to have her usual amount of company on Thanksgiving day a few years ago, so she set about her cooking as she was in the habit of doing, a week or ten days before the day appointed by the governor for a day of Thanksgiving and prayer. She could make up nonperishable goodies like cake, doughnuts and pies and they would "keep" until the day when they would be needed arrived.

A large number of pies had been made, the principal of which were apple and mince. As everyone knows, these two kinds carry about the same expression and as a matter of fact, it is pretty hard to tell from a casual glance, which is which and which is "tother."

It was difficult even for the lady who made them. She was somewhat at a loss to know how to mark them, so she could tell—when her oldest son, John, who was away at college and always spent Thanksgiving at home should arrive and call for a piece of mother's mince pie—which to cut and not be liable to make the blunder of cutting two and only take a piece from one. A happy thought struck her so she seized some paper and a pencil and cutting the paper into slips she marked on them all, T. M. Then pasting the slips onto the plates containing the mince pies said to herself: "T. M., 'tis mince," then pasting some of the same letters on the apple pie plates, mused again, "T. M., 'taint mince."
