LOCAL NOTES

Wednesday morning was one of the coldest of the year thus far.

There was a meeting of the Ladies' Social Union at the church parlors next Tuesday afternoon.

Cold weather was responsible, it is believed, for the breaking of a car axle on the Rangeley freight train Thursday morning.

For the purpose of electing a boy and a girl to speak at Rangeley on March 7, a preliminary contest will be held in the Union church Monday night. There are eight candidates. The High school orchestra will furnish music.

Daniel F. Hoyt made a short trip to Portland the first of the week.

CUSHING GIVEN LONG SENTENCE

Gets 10 Years at Hard Leabor for Attempted Train Wrecking--- Other Court Sentences.

(Special to Maine Woods). Farmington, Feb. 11--Court convened at 2 p. m. after a recess from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m.

William Nichols, whose trial on a statutory offense, was scheduled for today, retracted his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. John A. Sweet, Jr., counsel for the respondent, asked that in pronouncing sentence the judge would take into consideration the fact that the respondent was nearly 70 years old; that never before had a criminal charge been brought against him; that he had a wife who was ill and that furthermore he was weak mentally and had already been in jail four months or more.

The judge stated that the age and its experience should be an added reason to keep from criminal life, but that he would make the sentence light, considering the expectation of life at the age of the man and the amount of time already spent in jail. Sentence was 18 months imprisonment and labor in the county jail.

Henry Jackman, who pleaded guilty to a statutory charge, was sentenced to imprisonment and labor for (Continued on page 5.)

ALL STARS WIN OVER RANGELEY TEAM 35-11

Great Crowd Attended Fast and Cleanly Played Game Thursday Night---The Battle in Detail---Opinions of Phillips and Rangeley Observers.

By Roy Atkinson.

It was a great victory and by the same token a clean victory, when Phillips' All Stars triumphed over the fast playing Rangeley team of basket ballers Thursday night in Lambert hall by a score of 35 to 11.

There was no chance to cry "unfair," no opportunity to accuse the Phillips of dirty tactics, for from the start the game was clean and well played as a competent critic of basket ball would care to see.

Lambert hall housed one of the largest crowds ever seen at a basket ball game in this town. A large delegation of loyal rooters was present from Rangeley, besides the generous support of the townspeople of Phillips. It was a cold night, but there was no lack of warmth of enthusiasm for the boys making up the famous All Stars team. And they were given credit to its friends.

It is probably that the game won by the All Stars was more talked about in advance than any basket ball contest that has ever occurred in this town. For there were rumors of something big things, something big enough, nothing else happened. The "bleachers" seemed to be people from Phillips, Rangeley, Madrid, Strong and other places. Many had arrived on Rangeley on the special train, but there were others who drove to the scene of the contest.

The game was marked by some star work by Chandler and Trecartin, although the other members of the team did well and at times played brilliantly.

The work of the Rangeley boys, while interesting, was not of the class handed to the spectators by the All Stars. One of the members of the team evidently remembered another contest of the kind, but the team as a whole showed that its knowledge of fair, clean playing was not limited.

Riddle did some wonderful work for the visitors. "Rid" has been doing some practicing of late and he certainly surprised his Phillips friends by his star playing.

The team work of the All Stars was in every way superior to that of the visitors, although neither team deserves especial credit for this feature, taking the game as a whole.

But there were times when the passing was a feature of the game.

The game opened with a brilliant pass by Trecartin to Chandler, which was returned and Trecartin made a basket so easily and quickly that the visitors gasped for breath.

"Ginger up there," yelled Druggist Preble. That was his war cry throughout the game.

From then on there was something doing the most of the time. In rapid succession Chandler, Parker and Sweetser tried hard for goals, but failed. Then a foul was declared on Rangeley with three men in. Trecartin threw the goal and then, without loss of time, Phillips fouled by holding and Rangeley missed the basket. Cheers from the Phillips crowd.

Chandler made a clean goal and then came a foul on Rangeley for holding. It was about this time that Riddle of Rangeley and Trecartin of Phillips got into a friendly clinch. "Hey, separate those two druggists," yelled Preble, who kept the crowd amused with his remarks on the progress of the game.

At this juncture there was a foul on Rangeley, "two arms around," and Trecartin made a goal. Then Chandler shot a difficult basket to the accompaniment of cheers, while Preble chanted, "play the game all the time, all the time."

Then Phillips fouled, two arms around, and Rangeley missed the basket, much to the delight of the All Stars and others. Right here there was a whirlwind mix up of the teams and then Barker of the All Stars emerged from the melee and shot a basket. Almost at once there was a foul on Rangeley and Chandler threw the basket and made another without loss of time. That was the finish of the first half, with a score of 17 to 1 in favor of Phillips.

The Second Half.

Just 29 seconds after the second half commenced Rangeley fouled, with two arms around. The second half was a very close right along on the heels of the first. Chandler just as easily as he made the first.

It is at this point in the game that Oakes of the visitors and Trecartin of the All Stars joined drives over the stove. A double foul was declared.

Then it was that Chandler did some great work. He got two goals running and was cheered to the echo. Hardly had the excitement subsided before Parker and Marshall had a little whirl and a double foul was declared. Rangeley made a goal and Phillips lost.

Chandler was quickly at hand with another goal, and after the yells of joy of the Phillips rooters had subsided he let loose another. Then Marshall got a goal and then another, while the Rangeley bleachers yelled themselves hoarse.

A foul was declared on Rangeley for holding and Phillips shot a goal that was not counted. A foul by Chandler missed the basket and Trecartin shot a goal. On a foul on Phillips Marshall shot and missed.

Then a bit of time was taken out while Riddle wiped his bleeding nose. When the game resumed Marshall missed a foul and later made a goal, threw another goal, misses a foul and throws a foul.

Phillips: Barker 1st half, 1 goal from floor; Chandler, 1 4 goals from floor; Trecartin, 3 goals from floor; Chandler, 1 foul goal. Second half: Chandler, 4 goals from floor; Trecartin, 4 goals from floor; Chandler, 2 foul goals.

Rangeley did not score from the floor the first half. Marshall, 1 foul goal. Second half: Marshall 4 goals from floor; foul goals 2, by Marshall.

Referee first half, Peaks; second half, Chas. Toothaker. Timers, Ellis and Hough. Scorers, Ellis and Kinney.

THE WAY IT LOOKED TO A PHILLIPS OBSERVER

Lambert hall was well filled last evening with a very fast and exceedingly fast and snappy game of basket ball between the town teams of Rangeley and Phillips, which resulted in a victory for Phillips of 35 to 11.

The Rangeley team played well, Riddle and his associates on the whole playing a very clean game. One of their number, Marshall, tried bunting in the stomach of his opponent, but this he dropped after one or two trials, as it was unpopular.

From the start the Rangeley team was outclassed. The Phillips team played a very clean game. Trecartin of the Phillips team, didn't like the hunting tactics of Marshall and spoke about it in no uncertain words. Neither did Sweetser like to be

HUNDREDS ENJOY OUT DOOR SPORTS

New Toboggan Chutes Recently Opened at Franklin Park Are a Delight to Young and Old.

(Special to Maine Woods).

Boston, Feb. 11—Hundreds of people, young and old, have been enjoying the new toboggan chutes recently opened at Franklin park.

The cold snap of recent date froze the snow and water mixture placed in the trough-like slides, leaving only a coating of snow to be removed. Hardly had the last shovelful of snow been removed before there was a rush of enthusiastic youngsters and a few seconds later the air was ringing with the delighted cries of the boys and girls as they rushed in their toboggans down the chutes and off across the field at the bottom.

More interest has been displayed by the city government in out door sports this winter than ever before. And it is safe to assume that the people appreciate the interest shown.

"PUNGING" A HIT AT WELLESLEY

College Girls Say That It Beats Tobogganing a Mile as a Winter Sport.

Boston, Feb. 7—Stealing rides on pungs and sleighs that pass through Wellesley square, or "punging," as they call it, is the latest winter sport to be adopted by the students of the exclusive Dana Hall school and Wellesley college, and the young women declare it has skating, hockey and tobogganing beaten a mile.

Yesterday afternoon several hundred of the students, who are daughters of some of the foremost financial and business men of the country, deserted their expensive automobiles and hung around Wellesley square waiting for chances to steal rides on the pungs.

Snub the Boys.

The young men students at Rock Ridge Hall and other young men who are in the habit of taking the girls out for automobile rides in the afternoon, were snubbed and forced to take the rides without any of the fair maidens, who preferred punging to auto riding.

Shortly after 3 o'clock more than 100 Dana Hall girls appeared in the square all togged out in sweaters, heavy boots, heavy gloves and other articles of clothing that were necessary to insure their comfort.

A large pung, the property of Bailey's Boston & Wellesley Express company, happened along. The students made a rush for it and despite the protests of the driver, as many as possible climbed aboard and rode about town.

Capture Another Pung.

The girls who were left behind because of lack of room, spotted another pung standing in front of one of the fruit stores in the square and before the driver was aware of the happenings, he had a flock of the maidens on the seat with him and in every available space behind. The students even rode on the runners while they clung to their friend for support.

A few minutes after 4 o'clock when the studies at the college were over, a large crowd of students appeared in the square and augmented the forces of the Dana girls. Then the fun started for fair. When the girls were not on the pungs they were having snow fights with one another.

But one accident marred the afternoon's sport and that was when a pung, the property of a Natick laundry company, which was heavily loaded with students, tipped over on its side, throwing the girls into a snow bank.

LUMBER CAMP BALL BIG SOCIAL EVENT

North Woods Dance That Eclipses in Some Ways the Similar Events in City Circles.

Not all the society events of the world happen in the big cities, for now and then there is a dance in the north woods that eclipses, in some ways, much more pretentious events in urban circles of wealth and culture.

Once each year a dance is given at the Chesham Lumber company's camps Bowmanstown that attracts people from far and wide. It is an all night event and one once attended never forgotten.

All winter long the men in the camps have labored hard. They have chopped and sledged and yarded until they feel the need of social relaxation. They get it when the annual woods ball occurs.

The large camp is used for the ball room and refreshments are served in another camp nearby. The music is a mixture, but it has the merit of being lively. There is a fiddler (they call him a violinist) and a player on the clarinet. All the old time square and "string" dances are enjoyed. There are "French Fours" and "Durang's Hornpipe" and all the other old time favorites.

Dancing commences early in the evening and continues all night. It would not be a real dance if it concluded before that time, for the men and girls who attend go with the idea of dancing, not decorating the rough sides of their woods ball room.

The members of the Catholic parish at Chesham are those who come to the ball from the outside. Chesham is ten miles distant, but that does not deter many from making the trip over the rough road to the scene of festivities.

From the start the fun is fast and furious, the fiddler and his co-worker being kept on the job with little chance for rest from early in the evening until the morning rays of sun gild the snow of the countryside.

If you wish to see a real woods dance don't fail to make the trip to the Chesham Lumber camps. You will be as welcome as the flowers of spring.

BENEATH A LONE PINE ON THE HILL.

By W. L. Dougherty

I never was a hunter Roy, I never hope to be one—
The nearest that I ever came was once, I think, to see one.
But I like others learned to shoot in boyhood's happy days,
And slaughtered savage chipmunks—I think I shot two jays.

I well recall a fever for fox hunting came to me.
I bought a double-barreled gun and buying fox hounds three;
I started in the morning several hours before the dawn,
Like poet Gray "To meet the sun upon the upland lawn."

My dogs they said were thoroughbreds—that they could hole a fox
In less time than it takes a man to don his daily socks;
Guileless, I believed them—wouldn't sell those dogs that day
For all the wealth of Indies or jewels of Cathay.

At last we reached the open fields, the dogs had caught a scent
And crashing through the underbrush bent for Spain they went;
While I accoutered as I was with heavy rubber boots,
My gun half-cocked, proceeded to chase the wild galoots.

They ran me through that county and straightened for the next.
Then they turned and double-tracked until I grew so vexed
I vowed if something didn't flash across my vision soon
I'd see those dogs in regions where a cold wave is a boon.

But I was game and wouldn't quit—I kept on running till
At last I reached an eminence which some might call a hill,
And there beneath a lone pine tree with snouts stuck in the ground,
I found those pesky, baying curs, known as the genus hound.

No need to ask—the scent was there—much nearer than I knew—
I saw it—ducked—'twas useless—the thing had aimed too true—
I kept the bouquet all that day and then sneaked home at dark.
My father chased me to the barn—all told 'twas quite a lark.

I never was a hunter Roy, I never hope to be one—
The nearest that I ever came was once, I think, to see one.
But I like others learned to shoot—my Nimrod hopes were sunk
Beneath that lone pine on the hill the day I met that skunk.

POLICEMAN IS A GOOD SKATER

Boston "Copper" Watches Crowds
of Skaters While Himself
on Skates.

Boston, Feb. 7—The conspicuous figure of a police officer in blue uniform performing the Dutch roll and cutting the intricate grape vine on skates in the heart of the merry throng of skaters on the Public Garden pond yesterday afternoon, attracted considerable attention.

The fancy skating officer was Patrolman John Brett of Station 16, who had been stationed on the pond to look after the comfort and safety of the skaters.

He is Boston's first skating patrolman.

In spite of the blustering cold hundreds of young people took advantage of the ice at the Garden yesterday afternoon. Because the ice was not any too thick Patrolman Sullivan kept the skaters scattered in order to not create too great a pressure at any given spot. Several times during the afternoon the ice boomed as great cracks crept across its surface, but there were no breaks through. Everybody had the jolliest kind of a time.

However, the skating officer was the attraction and he certainly can skate.

SHOT A HOUSE CAT.

Roy Pratt and "Doc" Robinson recently went fox hunting with Pratt's extra fox hunting hound. On the highway from South Paris to the Fore street covered bridge, the dog was let loose showing many manifestations of being near a fox. A lively chase and much barking followed. The gunmen came up and in the top of a tall pine was a picked eared loupervier looking animal. After a fusillade it came to earth and proved to be a house cat.—Norway Advertiser.

"MANSLAUGHTER"
WAS THE VERDICTAmato DeMarco of Jay Sentenced to 11 Months in Prison for Shooting Joseph Sandillo
--The Defense.

(Special to Maine Woods).

Farmington, Feb. 11.—After a short trial Amato De Marco, the Italian
of Jay, who shot and killed Joseph Sandillo on the night of Dec. 31,
was found guilty of manslaughter
Saturday morning. He was immediately given a sentence of 11 months.
He had been in jail, awaiting trial,
for one month.The murder trial of Amato De Marco establishes a new record for speed in Franklin county in a case of this kind. Little time was lost in im-panelling a jury, trying the case, finding the verdict or announcing the sentence of the court.The defense in the Demarco murder trial opened Friday morning. Former Attorney General Philbrook in his opening stated that their claim was that the respondent had acted in self-defense. The state had presented the testimony of the men now alive, who were engaged in the card game, but there were other witnesses present in the store who had not been called. The defense will attempt to show that Torrereiri came to the store window and asked the clerk for a bottle of beer.
It was given to him and after a short parley, Toreiri drew his revolver and fired at Demarco. The latter reached for his revolver and fired.
The shots from Toreiri's revolver passed so near Demarco's head that it punctured the rim of his hat. The second shot from De-marco's revolver was fired without aim and impulsively, and the defense will not deny that it struck Sandillo in the head and caused his death. The defense will claim, however, that it was not a felonious act
and will attempt to corroborate the statement by witnesses.James L. Barry of Boston was the first witness. He is employed on the construction work at Jay Bridge and had charge of building the quarters for the workmen.The witness introduced a plan of the premises and attempted to locate the position of articles within the store, but the attorney general objected and the objection was sustained. Witness was in the house immediately after the shooting. Cross examined, he stated that he had made no measurements about the premises. There were two lamps burning in the dining room when he entered, and the air was hazy with smoke. There was no light in the entry where the dead man lay.Henry G. Spencer of Boston testified that he had investigated the premises at the request of the respondent's brother. He made meas-

THE MAN ON THE JOB

I am informed that there are a multitude of black bears in the town of Lincoln, Maine. How they came there or why they were allowed to live in the vicinity of so many mighty hunters I cannot say, but the fact remains that bears in numbers are reported. Now it seems to be up to the nimrods of that section to gird up their loins and make a raid on the furry fore-The Man on the Job notes that Senator Wing of Franklin is out with an act to prevent the pollution of the waters of the state. The act provides a penalty of not less than $100 and not more than $500 for persons, partnerships and corporations who shall place or permit to be placed slabs, edgings, sawdust, chips, bark, mill waste or other waste created by the manufacture of lumber dye stuffs, etc., into the waters of the state or in such places as they will wash into the waters of the state.I note that my friend, Dr. Heber Bishop, had a narrow escape from being killed one day recently, when a huge moose head fell from its position over the doctor's desk and struck at a point where the doctor would have been had he been in his chair. But it so happened that Dr. Bishop was late to business that morning, for which he is duly thankful. The head that fell was the largest in Dr. Bishop's big collection.
It was the head of "The King of the Deadwater", which Dr. Bishop shot in New Brunswick several years ago.
The head and the base on which it was mounted weighed in the vicinity of 200 pounds. Dr. Bishop says that he is now more firmly convinced than ever before that no business man should appear in his office before 10 o'clock in the morning. The Boston papers all give the residence of Dr. Bishop as Brookline, Mass. As a matter of fact it is Harmony Lodge, Clearwater Lake, Industry, Maine.Does it pay to advertise? For an answer to this question the reader is referred to the great crowd from Phillips and Rangeley that attended the basket ball game and dance Wednesday night. Publicity made the game the most talked about event this section has known for some time past.Measurements and the shelf in the show window was 3 feet, 7 1-2 inches from the floor.Henry J. Lebuque of Ware, Mass., was in the storeroom at the time of the trouble. He was standing near the window and not more than two feet from the clerk. He heard conversation between the clerk and someone outside the window, but paid no attention to it, as they did not seem angered. His first knowledge of any trouble was when he heard a shot fired and turned around and saw De Marco reach down and take his revolver from the drawer
under the shelf. He saw Demarco fire twice. The shot he heard and the first shot Demarco fired were very close together. Witness advised Demarco to give himself up, saying that the other man had fired first. There were five men in the store besides the witness and the clerk. After the shooting, witness said, "This is no place for us,Former Attorney General Philbrook was sitting in the library of the court house one day last week gazing at the portraits of various lawyers of the past and present which adorn the walls.
Some of the faces Mr. Philbrook recalled and some of them other lawyers present named, but there was not one in the assemblage who could go the entire round. "Those pictures should be labelled", remarked the former attorney general, a sentiment that was seconded by a member of the Franklin county bar present.It would appear that there is a probability that John Robinson, for many years Farmington's night watchman, will be re-appointed to the job. It was suggested that Deputy Lester D. Eaton be given the work, but after Mr. Robinson had thought the matter over he evidently decided that he would like to make a few more rounds of the village before retiring in the work.In newspaper times it is the custom to designate anything that has passed its usefulness as "dead". Gallies of type, after they have been used, re-usually marked dead, but if they are going to be used again they are labelled "live". One day recently a visitor in this office saw a "dead" sign over a case of type. The visitor was unused to the vernacular of the print shop and looked behind the case to see if he could glimpse the deceased. When the matter was explained the visitor joined in the general hilarity that followed.Through his parcel post advertising Druggist Preble says that he has received many orders for goods from all parts of the county. People send in their prescriptions to be filled and order various articles to be had in a drug store. This seems to The Man on the Job to be good proof that it pays to advertise in the home.Not a was not in the trial of the

One of the men present was the

had no knowledge who fired it.
He turned his head and saw Demar-

LENTEN MEDITATIONS.

LENT.

The whirling procession of the years has again brought Lent to us. We do not have to belong to the Roman Catholic or even the Anglican church to heed the message that the season brings.To remember Jesus of Nazareth;
to study the sublimity of his teachings; to familiarize ourselves with the matchless life he lived; and especially to contemplate his sufferings and cruel death for us that we might have a more abundant life; to do these things is to realize the heart of the Lenten message.Again, Lent is a time to meditate upon God and learn of him. Jesus' teachings are important because they tell us about God and make known His will for us. Jesus' example is valuable because it illus-trates to us the way in which to live that we may please our Creator. Jesus' sufferings and death are chiefly of avail because they make known both the awful results of human sin, and the matchless, tender, all-embracing love of our Heavenly Father toward us. Our lives will never be what they ought to be until we take more time to learn of God.The Lenten season brings a final message when it urges us to self-examination. "Jesus' teachings were beautiful and good, am I trying to live by their direction? Jesus' example was one of constant faithfulness to God and man, am I trying my best to obey my God and be a friend to my fellowmen? Jesus showed that God is love, am I letting that love draw me from the dark paths of selfishness up to the bright heights of God?"curly moustache. He was dressed in dark clothes with a black and gray checked mackinaw. He was composed but seemed to realize that he was in a serious position.He gave his age as 25 years and said he had been in this country for seven or eight years. On the night of the shooting there were five or six other men in the store with him. Witness did not know there were many men playing cards in the dining room; he could not see from the store. Accused then told his story of the shooting. He said:
"On New Year's eve while I was in the store and near the window Turreiri came. He told me I had put down a bottle of beer which had not been given to him. I asked, 'Didn't I give it to you?' and he replied, 'No, you didn't.' I then gave it to him. Turreiri then said to me, 'If you hadn't given the beer
to me, I would have shown you what I've got.' When he said that I saw the handle of the revolver."De Marco testified that Turreiri then aimed the revolver at him and fired. De Marco said that he dodged to one side and then fired twice, just as quickly as he could.
After the shooting he became frightened and ran out. He walked to East Livermore and took the train
there for Boston, but was arrested in Lewiston and brought back.The brown felt hat worn by the accused on the night of the shooting was introduced at this point.
Witness said that it was whole when he put it on that night but that the next day there was a bullet hole
through the brim on the right side close to the crown. The hat was produced in court and identified by the witness. He said that the shot fired by Turreiri made the hole in the hat and he could feel the air from the bullet. He thought at first that he had been hit. Witness denied any intention of killing Sandillo when he fired, or of killing anyone else. His intention was to fire at the floor and frighten
Turreiri so that he would run away.
Did not know until later that he had hit anybody. Did not aim at anybody when he fired. Thought his life was in danger and was afraid that Turreiri's friends would pursue him and he was afraid all night.On cross examination witness stated that he had money in thedrawer at the store, in his trunk up over the store in the room where he slept and in his pocket. He denied that he took the money from the drawer or went upstairs after the shooting.Hon. Warren C. Philbrook of Waterville made the closing argument
for the defense and the state's case
was presented by Attorney General Scott Wilson of Portland. The judge then gave his charge to the jury and the 12 men who have been considering the case since Thursday morning retired to the jury room to complete their deliberations.The jury in the De Marco murder trial was made up as follows:Walter S. Lovejoy of Salem, 55, years, farmer, foreman.
E. I. Gilman of Chesterville, 40,
years, farmer.
Saul A. Collins of Rangeley, 35, years, carpenter.
Herschell O. Lisherness of Strong,
47 years, farmer.
Norman E. Butler of Phillips, 35
years, farmer.
Laforest W. Norton of Farming-

Andrew W. Davenport of Phillips, 65 years, farmer.

farmer.

years, carriage maker.
E. B. Tibbetts of Temple 44 years,
farmer.
F. E. Boynton of Kingfield, 36 years, farmer.The opening for the state was made by County Attorney J. Blaine Morrison, who described the killing of Joseph Sandillo. He stated that De Marco cautioned those present to say nothing about the shooting and then fled into the night, boarding a train at East Livermore the next morning.Other witnesses examined in behalf of the state included Dr. Geo.
L. Pratt, the medical examiner for Franklin county, Prin. W. G. Mallett of the Normal school and Bernardino De Marco.

four years.

Wm. J. Cushing, for placing obstructions upon a railroad track, was sentenced to imprisonment and hard labor in State's prison at Thomaston for 10 years. The other cases against Cushing, one of the same tenor as above, the other for breaking, entering and larceny, were continued for sentence.

No other business coming before the court adjournment without date was made.

An interesting fact in connection with this February term of court, is that of 105 cases on the civil docket at the beginning and with nine indictments brought in by the grand jury, only one case came to trial. This is not however, a criticism on the institution, rather a commendatory fact since the financial and time expense necessary for jury trials of these cases have been saved.

Lewiston, Feb. 7—Frank Buzzell of Minot got a daylight view of a large and ferocious looking animal believed to be the much talked about Auburn panther. He and his son were together when the animal crossed the road leading from Hebron to North Auburn at a point about one mile from East Hebron. The animal, said Mr. Buzzell, looked to be about five feet long and about two and one-half feet high, had a large cat-like head and a long tail. When the animal which was walking along slowly, saw the men, it stopped, gazed at them intently for a minute or two and then walked along. Mr. Buzzell and his son were near enough to the animal to get a good view of him. His color is said to have been of a yellowish brown.

The animal disappeared in the William Ramsdell woods and its tracks were seen by several different persons. There appears to be no question but that it is the same animal that has been prowling about Maple Hill and North Auburn. Benjamin Bea's followed the tracks which led in a northwesterly direction toward Hebron station. The tracks were as large as those previously described in the Auburn panther stories and Mr. Buzzell declares the animal would weigh at least 100 pounds.

Frank Keene was hauling lumber to the Ramsdell woods yesterday and all of a sudden his horses began to paw the snow and snort as though they were terribly frightened. He believes that the panther passed near enough to his team so that the horses got his scent. The horses were uneasy for the remainder of the day.

Joe Dignard, who has been searching for puma tracks in the vicinity of Maple Hill, the big swamp and at North Auburn, for the past few days, was last night in communication with East Hebron people, and will start for that place this morning. The people of Hebron and vicinity are much alarmed and are anxious that immediate action be taken to capture the animal and clear up the mystery.

McCard, whose birthday was the day following. The eye test, where those present marched around the dining room table on which were placed 20 articles and then tried to write a list of the things seen, caused much fun. Only two, Mrs. George Kempton and Mrs. Fred Burns were able to make a complete list. Miss Richardson's songs were much enjoyed, as was a poem written for the occasion by Mrs. Sylvester Hinkley. Chocolate and cake were served and Mrs. McCard cut and distributed generous slices of a big birthday cake.

WOMAN SICK FOURTEEN YEARS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

The work of the evening was conducted in a thorough and impressive manner and much enjoyed by the large number of members present. During her interesting remarks Mrs. Fellows stated that the Rangeley lodge is the first of all she and Mrs. Smith have visited in their capacities of installing officers, to extend them the courtesy of having some one at the station to welcome them. A delicious supper was served in the banquet hall after the installation.

Miss Janet Chesney, who read so delightfully at the church Tuesday evening was greeted by a small audience, owing to the installation of the Rebekah officers, but her impersonations were very much appreciated by all who heard her.

SKATING FACTS OF THE PAST AND THE PRESENT

Some Historical Data in Regard to Skates--- Skating Said to Be an Older Sport Than Tennis.

Observant citizens may have noticed during the past few days groups of small boys gathered about the edge of some pond in the public parks of various cities cautiously advancing, one foot upon the thin surface of ice and then withdrawing with an expression of deep gloom mirrored upon every face. If they should take the trouble to glance back some 20 or 30 or 40 years in their own history they would have no need to ask questions as to the cause of this behavior. The answer is not that the small boys have any fault to find with the fundamental principles of the park commission or that they are investigating the bacteriological contents of the pool with disappointing results. On the contrary, it exists from a more deeply-rooted source of worryment, namely, that "the ice won't bear."

Beginning with a cold snappy fall, ideal weather for football, the weather man brought a little diversion by handing chilled citizens a reminder of summer days. Then, at the time that the small boy and his big brother, or perhaps his father, were getting their skates down from the closet shelf where they were relegated for the summer months, the weather man indulged the longings of their hearts by sending the mercury in the thermometers down to the bottom of the tube.

Skating Ancient Sport.

Those of the present generation who are inclined to pity people of former days because of their lack of participation in the exhilaration of skating, would do well to pause a moment. Tradition tells us that tennis is the oldest sport which survives today, but a glance into the remote periods of history and legend would seem to controvert this theory. Ancient chronicles tell us that the hardy Norsemen skimmed over the rivers of the new land on bone runners, but the folk of today look skeptically upon the idea of bone runners and are generally of the opinion that if such things really existed there was many a hardy Norseman who came to grief on the rough ice and many a bloody Norse nose to tell the tale of excessive daring.

Some years later the Pilgrims found the Indians indulging in the same sport and tales are rife of how the great chief Massasoit sped up the frozen surface of the Connecticut bearing a club instead of a hockey stick and a tomahawk in place of a skate key. The Pilgrims themselves probably looked with scorn upon the antiquated contrivances of the redskins and yet it is likely that the skates of the Pilgrims would cause the modern skater much merriment. The blades of these skates were of iron and projected so far beyond the toe that it would seem that the Pilgrims must have found it necessary to have a small boy go ahead to tell them when a turn in the river was coming. The iron runner curled up neatly at the end and coiled into a circle, the whole terminating in a cute little brass acorn, an affectation of vanity and the foibles of the world which perhaps caused many a scathing sermon from some staid elder of the church.

Modern Innovations.

The Pilgrims got their skates from Holland, always the home of the best in the skating line. One day some inventive John Alden grew weary of having to strap his skates on when he took his fair Priscilla on the ice, and then came the diabolical invention of the skate which screwed into the sole of the shoe. The discovery did not last long for every skater had to be his own carpenter, but at least it had one good result by doing away with some of the straps and there were fewer calls for medical attendance for chilblains and frozen toes.

With the passing of the years the screw skates sank peacefully into obscurity and then came the most profane of all modern inventions, the heel plate. The chief object of these was to secure a place where a pebble might lodge safely and the first hour or so on the edge of the ice was always devoted to the breaking of pocket knife blades in attempts to extricate the foreign matter. Cutlery establishments grew and their owners waxed fat and prosperous. Owing to the strict laws against profanity which were in force in those days something had to be done to keep the county population out of jail, and Everett H. Barney appeared in the role of rescuer.

Mr. Barney to the Rescue.

The Barney American club skate was really the first step toward the evolution of the modern contrivance which has done so much to make the youth of the nation and some of their elders happy. In 1854 Mr. Barney took out a patent on a pair of skates which had a clamp which fitted onto the heel and the forward part of the skate. Friends who tried these skates were convinced that they were the best ever, and soon Mr. Barney conceived the idea of coining a little of this popular appreciation into ready cash and the now famous Barney & Berry skate factory was accordingly built. Since its inception the Barney & Berry skate factory has been turning out skates by the thousand and its name is now forever inseparably linked with the sport. Some day an absolutely perfect skate will probably be discovered, but today people look back with the same complacent scorn at the skates of their forebears that the youth of the 21st century will be feeling toward the de luxe contrivances of today.

Limit of Luxury.

When the clamp skate first made its appearance people came to the conclusion that the limit in luxury had been reached and that nothing could be added to better conditions.

thickness of a playing card, which crumpled like a bit of paper the moment a clamp was adjusted. Then it devolved upon the escort to hurry to the nearest house and buy a pair of 10 cent straps for 50 cents, thereby reverting to the skating methods of his forefathers. Then the young woman stood up, protesting that everything was all right now, took one step forward, gave a lurch and fell upon the neck of the waiting youth while the small skate went skimming serenely over the ice some dozen yards away. Then might the escort concede that there was still room for improvement.

The English, with a natural aversion to Yankee inventions, took up the idea of having the skates fastened to special skating shoes before starting out, and thus saving any annoyance as told above. For a time this looked like the ideal principle, but soon people began to weary of tramping several miles to

KING WINTER HOLDS COURT AT FAMOUS POLAND SPRING

Winter Sports of Skating, Snow Shoeing, Tobogganing, Skeeing, etc. Are Much Enjoyed at This Well Known Place.

(Special to Maine Woods).

Poland Spring, Feb. 10.—Winter sports have been enjoyed and appreciated here for years, although they have really come into their own within a comparatively short time.

The location of the Mansion House is such that those who wish for a course that is as smooth as the proverbial "kitten's ear"

In winter horses come into their own at the Spring. In summer they are used as well, but there is something much more fascinating about a sleigh ride behind a pair of swift horses in winter. One of the thoughtful acts of the management of the hotel is to provide a big fur coat for every guest wishing to enjoy a sleigh ride.

It is said that skating and snow shoeing easily outdistance the pleasures of golf, although there are magnificent links on the estate.

After a day of winter sports there is nothing more cheerful than to gather about the great fireplace in the Mansion House and tell stories of days of the past. The leaping flames and the crackling logs seem to inspire conversation of this kind and many happy hours are spent in this manner.

It is surprising how quickly people from the cities become accustomed to snow shoes and skees. Perhaps they have never had them on their feet before, but in a very short time they are able to manage them very well, and sometimes become very expert in their use.

When they got there their troubles were not lessened for they must either pocket their walking shoes or else leave them in the nearest safe repository. Then after skating up the river a dozen miles and meeting a sudden thaw one of the thousand other occurrences which make a return on the ice undesirable, there was the alternative of sliding over the country road and ruining the skates or toddling home in stocking feet.

Years ago there was a prominent figure in the city of Springfield, Mass., known as the "mysterious

Tobogganing, snow shoeing, skeeving, skating and other sports of this nature, including the ancient Scotch game of curling are held in high favor here. There is one toboggan or bob sled slide a mile in length. One goes dashing down and down in an exhilaration of speed that makes the blood tingle. There is no sensation comparable to a slide like this, for you go with the speed of an express train over

THE MANSION HOUSE WITH ITS ENCLOSED SUN PARLORS AT POLAND SPRING.

The first time the youthful swain took his lady love onto the ice he was convinced that there was a new definition to the word luxury. On his heavy shoe the skate fitted to perfection, but when he had arrived at the stage when he knelt on the edge of the rink in an inch of icy water and attempted to clamp a size five skate on a size three shoe trouble began. The young women of that day were less conversant than those of the present with the art of skating, and it generally happened that they wore to the rink the same shoes they were accustomed to wear at home, with a sole the skater." Tradition built itself about this solitary figure seen daily skating over the frozen Connecticut, never accompanied, until he became a veritable Rip Van Winkle of Connecticut valley legend. Yet one day an inquisitive citizen made an investigation and dispelled all the romance and glamor of mystery from him. It appeared that he was a conductor on the Boston and Albany railroad who was passionately fond of skating, and who never missed an opportunity to indulge in his favorite sport. At that time the New York express stopped 20 minutes some distance east of the station to get water, and the conductor would always hurry off the train and skate up the river as far as he could. When the train overtook him it slowed up obligingly in order that he might get aboard. The name of the conductor has long since passed into obscurity, but the figure of the "mysterious skater" still lingers vividly in the minds of some of the older citizens who were children at the time and who watched him on the banks, awestruck and with a delicious dread that he would attempt to work some of his reputed magic spells upon them.

ern wilderness by way of the Kennebec river which should eventually co-operate with the other party to cause a diversion of the enemy that would be favorable o its movements.

"Col. Arnold was selected to command this hazardous expedition and Sept. 18, 1775, he marched from Cambridge at the head of 1100 men to Newburyport, where they embarked on 11 transports and sailed the next day for the Kennebec river.

"At the end of two days' sail the transports arrived at Gardiner on the Kennebec.

"Two hundred batteaux had been constructed at Pittston on the bank of the river opposite Gardiner, and to the men and provisions were transferred.

"The next stopping place was a few miles higher up the river, at Fort Weston opposite the present town of Augusta. Here the hard struggles, sufferings and dangers were to begin.

Wild and Desolate Region.

"1100 men with arms, ammunition and all the apparatus of war, head lake, and entered the Kennebec by its eastern branch. He returned by a western branch, or Dead River, and through lake Megantic and the Chaudiere. This latter route was to be pursued by Arnold.

"While the preparations were making at Fort Weston for the departure of the army, a small reconnoitering party was sent forward under Lieut. Steel with orders to go as far as lake Megantic or Chaudiere pond, as it was sometimes called, and procure what intelligence they could from the Indians, who were said to be in the neighborhood on a hunting expedition. Lieut. Church with another party was sent to take the exact course and distance of the Dead river.

"Next the army began to move four divisions, each setting off a day before the other, and thus allowing sufficient space about them in passing up the rapids and about the falls.

"Having seen all the troops embarked, Arnold followed them in a birch canoe, overtaking the advanced party on the third day at Norridgewock Falls. Seven days were spent here in getting the army around the falls. As soon as the last batteau was launched in the waters above Arnold again betook himself to his birch canoe, quickly shot ahead of the rear division and in two days arrived at the great carrying place, 12 miles below the junction of the Dead river with the east branch of the Kennebec. Here he found the first divisions.

Army Was Reduced.

"Sickness and desertion had now reduced the army to 950 men. Arn-many miles a smooth surface and gentle current, interrupted here and there by falls of short descent at which were carrying places.

Men Sent to the Rear.

"A party of 90 men were now sent to the rear for provisions which were beginning to grow scarce.

"For three days it rained incessantly and one night after they had landed at a late hour, and were trying to take a little repose, they were roused by a freshet which came rushing upon them in a torrent and hardly allowed time to escape before the ground on which they had lain down was overflowed. In nine hours the river rose eight feet.

"The current continued so rapid that progress forward was very slow and at length a disaster happened which nearly put an end to the expedition. Seven batteaux were overturned by the turbulent waters and their contents lost.

"This made such a breach in their provisions that the bravest among them was almost ready to despond. They were now 30 miles from the Chaudiere river and had provisions for 12 or 15 days.

"It was decided to send the sick and feeble back and that the others should press forward.

"Arnold wrote to Cols. Green and Enos, who were in the rear, to select such a number of their strongest men as they could supply with 15 days' provisions and come to them; leaving the rest to return; but Enos misconstrued the order and retreated to Cambridge.

"After dispatching this order Arnold hastened onward with 60 men under Captain Hauchet, intending to proceed as soon as possible to the itself, which conducted the boats by a crooked route into Lake Megantic, the great fountain head of the Chaudiere.

"Here were found Lieuts. Steel and Church, who had been sent forward a second time to explore and clear paths at the portages.

"Early the next morning Arnold sent instructions to the rear of the army, and then ordered Capt. Hanchet with 55 men to march by land along the margin of the lake while he crossed it with the rest of the party in the batteaux. In three hours they reached the outlet of the lake and reached the Chaudiere, which carried them along with prodigious rapidity on its tide of waters, boiling and foaming over a rocky bottom.

"Three days after leaving Megantic, Arnold arrived, after an exciting and disastrous trip, during which three boats were lost at Sertigan, the first French settlement, four miles below the junction of the river Du Loup with the Chaudiere and 70 miles from Megantic.

"The remainder of the army arrived in three or four days and proceeded slowly down river and on the 13th day of November they were all assembled at Point Levis, opposite Quebec."

Aaron Burr on the Trip.

Accompanying Arnold on this trip was Aaron Burr, a young man, afterwards vice president of the United States.

In the above historical sketch no mention is made of the attempt of Arnold to sight the spires of Quebec from the lofty vantage point of Mt. Bigelow's highest peak near Flagstaff. Such was the case, however, the town of Flagstaff being named for a flag staff planted there at the time of Arnold's visit.

SPORTING NOTES

One of our local fishermen while fishing in Meganticook lake pulled out a 4 1-2 pound trout recently, and the fact having made its way to Warden Hodgkins of Augusta the young man paid his fine and costs according to fish and game laws of Maine, says the Camden correspondent of the Rockland Courier-Gazette.

Lincoln Chronicle: W. J. Clayton, taxidermist, had an opportunity recently to buy two passenger pigeons for the small sum of $200. Probably members of the older generations can remember when these birds abounded in large numbers all over the country. They are now nearly extinct and are prized very highly.

burdened with clothing to protect them from the inclemency of the weather, were to pass through a region uninhabited, wild and desolate, forcing their batteaux against a swift current and carrying them and their contents on their own shoulders around rapids and cataracts over craggy precipices and through morasses, till they should reach the French settlements in Canada, a distance of more than 200 miles.

"Arnold had for a guide an imperfect copy of the journal of Col. Montrosser, an officer of the British army, who some 15 years previous, had started from Quebec ascended the rivers Chaudiere and Du Loup, crossed the highlands near the headwaters of the Penobscot pursued his way through Moose-old now had provisions for 25 days and hoped to reach the Chaudiere river in 8 or 10 days.

"The great carrying place extended from the Kennebec to the Dead river, 15 miles distant, with three small ponds intervening.

"With incredible toil the batteaux, provisions and baggage were taken from the waters on the Kennebec and transported on the men's shoulders along a rugged path for more than three miles to the first pond. Here the batteaux were again put afloat; and thus they continued by alternate water and land carriage until they reached the Dead river.

"A block house was built at the second portage at which the sick were left, and another near the banks of the Kennebec.

"The Dead river presented for inhabitants on the Chaudiere and send them back provisions to meet the main force.

"The rain changed to snow, thus adding the sufferings of cold to those of hunger and fatigue.

"Ice formed on the surface of the water, in which the men were obliged to wade and drag their boats.

"Finally the highlands were reached which separated the eastern waters from the St. Lawrence.

"A string of small lakes, choked with logs and other obstructions, had been passed through near the source of the Dead river and 17 falls had been encountered in ascending its whole distance, around which were portages. The carry over the highlands was about four miles.

"A small stream then presented

ROLLED IN FIRST SNOW HE EVER SAW

Californian Had Lots of Fun with White Substance--Then Bathed in the Pacific.

Boston, Feb. 6.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

You are soon to issue a "Winter Sports Number" of the Maine Woods, I hear. The announcement arrived last night, just after Boston had received, and then gotten rid of, almost its first "white mantle" of snow of the season. Either the announcement or the draft through the nearby window as I prepared to write the slightly "weather story" made me shiver.

For some utterly inexplicable reason on the announcement and the mental picture of Phillips lying white and quiet--principally quiet--under the snow, brought to mind a couple of occurrences of many years ago that might be of interest to those of your readers who are accustomed to the annual season of long cold and much snow.

Incident number one may be interesting because it is so different. Incident number two is related just to show you that you folks way down in Maine are not the only people who get real sport out of winter.

The scene of incident number one is laid in California. My chum--he was wise enough in later life not to go into the newspaper business as you and I have done and so today 's a regular, sure-enough property owner in foggy Frisco--had been born and brought up on the eastern side of the coast range where it rains much and shines more but snows never.

From the little town of Palo Alto, as different from Phillips as any town of the same approximate size could be, one could see the spire-like redwood trees that rose from the tops of the ranges from which the Pacific always seemed to be lying in perpetual sunshine below.

One February, just about this time, we woke to see the top of the range clothed in white. The unusual and unexpected had happened and the rain we had got in quantities had been snow on the mountains.

For the first time in all his life my chum saw snow. He was familiar with the "feel" of ice but he had never felt nor even seen snow before. As a result he had all the curiosity to examine it at first-hand that the inhabitant with a record for longevity might have to shake the dust of Madrid or Kingfield from his feet and cross the equator.

Together we made the trip up the slopes of the range, he intent upon the white glare that lay ahead of us, yet incredulous of my insistent declarations that he would not enjoy contact with it half as much as he anticipated.

The sun had well-nigh melted the poor little snow fall by the time we got to the top of the range. On our one hand lay the steep and smiling slope down to the shimmering Pacific, lying for all the world like a mill pond in summer sunlight.

And in a little hollow, not over 25 feet square, was all that remained of the wonderful snow fall. It was already getting slushy but it was snow. That was all my chum cared for. He took a big gasp of breath as one does entering a cold shower, and then proceeded to lie down and roll in the snow much as a tired horse rolls on the pasture lot after he is unharnessed. Nor could I get him away from it until he had made snow men to shoot to pieces with his shotgun, and had felt, tasted and gloated over the innovation.

Then--just by way of contrast--we went down the slope to the smiling Pacific and--went in bathing. Indeed, you in Phillips do not know what it is to have access to such a combination of the pleasures of a snowy winter and mid winter bathing!

My other incident is more in the nature of a boast. Its local is in the little city of Ithaca, New York, famous for its hills and its regular, old time winters and perhaps, for the fact that it is the seat of Cornell University.

Anyway it is one of the few towns I know of where the officials take cognizance of winter, and voluntarily champion the cause of the small boy.

Re-writing story after story here in dull and drab Boston, with its minimum of real winter and maximum of slushy counterpart, it has been my ill fortune night after night to come across these ever-recurring tale of the small boy who has coasted on his Christmas sled into the unseen auto or car.

That at least never happened in Ithaca. Equipped with hills the like of which Phillips never saw, not even the one that leads onto the bridge and thus over to Preble's store, coasting was and is an institution there.

We used to pick out the huskiest football player of all our athletes and put him at the head of a regular sled--one on which as many as 14 could sit--and let him pilot us down a stretch of a mile and a half. Meanwhile envious policemen, who had been boys themselves, guarded the roped off side streets and suspended all cross-wise traffic until the kids had had their funning.

Not in all the country, I maintain, not even in Montreal, is there such winter sport as has been an institution in Ithaca three times a week since snow first began to fall. You in Phillips may think you know what winter 's, but no Winter Sports edition should be complete without a word of credit to inland Ithaca, its hills--and its complacent "cops" who guard the safety of the coasters.

Success to the Winter Sports issue. With the snow blanket which I am recently assured surrounds you, you should find inspiration in plenty to make it as much of a success as your Mid-Summer edition was.

Yours, summer or winter,

Phil Powers.

P. S. From the tone of the above you might get the erroneous impression that I like winter. I don't--not the Boston kind at least. The draft from the window is altogether too keen a reminder. I'm convinced your issue will most surely be successful if your stove in the Maine Woods office is red hot while you get up your copy. And I'd much rather stroll from the office to the Elmwood than have to hurry over the distance through drifts. On second thought you can put me down for next summer for my next visit.

PLEASES ALL WITH HER READINGS

Miss Chesney Worked Hard in a
New Solo Program, Monday Night, at the Union Church.

Miss Janet Chesney, who appeared before a good sized audience in the Union church Monday night in the role of a reader and impersonator, gave a very pleasing entertainment.

Miss Bates and Mr. Keyes assisted with some instrumental and vocal music but the burden of entertaining fell on the young woman from Boston.

Miss Chesney was at her best in character and humorous readings, although she had a few selections of depth and dramatic worth. One of the refreshing things about her work was her evident desire to please. After the audience had warmed to her a bit the hand clapping was more generous than it was at first.

Miss Chesney was gowned in red, her dress being cut semi-decollete. She has an attractive stage presence and a pleasing personality.

Miss Chesney's program was as follows:

- "Saunders MacGlashan's Courtship," David Kennedy
- "Keeping a Seat at the Benefit," May Isabel Fisk
- "The Other Wise Man," Henry Van Dyke
- "Aunt Hitty's Cleaning," Myrtle Reed
- "Little Boy Blue," Eugene Field
- "Mrs. Harrigan In the Shoe Shop," Chas. Batzell Loomis
- "Who's Afraid," Marjory Benton Cooke

WEDDING GIFT
FROM AUSTRIA

Mrs. Glidden Parker Receives a Wonderful Silver Tea Set from Jack Hubel of Vienna--
Other Phillipians
Remembered.

A silver and cut glass tea set of rare workmanship and beautiful design has been received by Mrs. Glidden Parker as a wedding present from Jack Hubel of Vienna, Austria.

This tea set was made to Mr. Hubel's order in Austria by some of the skilled silver smiths for which that country is famous. It reached Phillips in perfect condition after its long trip, and has been admired by many people since.

The tea set consists of the kettle, alcohol lamp, six cut glasses and holders, tea kettle stand, gold lined sugar bowl and pair of sugar tongs. These articles are on a silver tray. All the pieces of the set are finished with a satin luster.

Besides this magnificent gift Mr. Hubel remembered other Phillips friends. He sent Mrs. O. H. Hersey Mrs. Eva Toothaker, Mrs. W. I. Blanchard and Mrs. J. F. Hilton each a gold lined silver fruit dish and John M. Teague a solid silver cigar lighter of novel design.

Mr. Hubel is pleasantly remembered by many Phillipians as having been a resident of this place for some time, returning to his home in Austria last summer. Mr. Hubel was here for the purpose of studying the toothpick business. He made the acquaintance of the Hersey family some years ago while Mr. Hersey was touring Europe.

MUCH LUMBER IS BEING SHIPPED

Seven Full Train Loads of Hard Wood Ready for Transit at
One Time--Barnjum Mill
Starts Up.

Large quantities of lumber are being shipped daily over the narrow gauge lines and hauled over the icy roads of this vicinity.

At one time early in the week the Sandy River & Rangeley Lakes railroad had seven full train loads of various kinds of lumber ready for shipment.

Work at Barnjum started up again Tuesday after a shut down of some days. The cause of the mill stopping was the change from a band saw to a rotary saw in the mill. It was found that the band saw could not cut the frozen logs, and as there is no steam box at the Barnjum plant to thaw logs with, it was necessary to put in a circular saw. At the present time this mill is shipping about four or five cars a day of hardwood. Later, and until June, much birch will go forward from the cuttings.

Other lumbering operations in North Franklin are progressing well, although there is a scarcity of horses and snow.

CHURCH PARTY
WELL ATTENDED

Acting Charades a Feature--Suffragette Demonstration Was Very Funny.

Charades acted by the guests was a pleasant feature of the party given in the club rooms of the Congregational society Friday night.

The first charade was "parade" in which a suffragette demonstration was introduced. There were banners and all the paraphernalia of a parade of this kind.

Some of the words were easily guessed, but the last was a sticker.

It was arquebusade. After the charades had been acted the people gathered about the piano and sang college songs. The rooms were filled and a very enjoyable evening passed. Refreshments of tea and cakes were served.

FIRE ALARM HAS GOOD TRY-OUT

$25 Blaze in Hackett's Stable Friday Afternoon Brought New Alarm System into Use for First Time

Fire in the office of Norris J. Hackett's livery stable Friday afternoon caused damage estimated at $25 and brought out a portion of the Phillips fire department on the first alarm blown at the mill of the International Mfg. Co. since the installation of the new alarm system.

The fire itself was of little moment, although it might have been much more serious if it had remained undiscovered any length of time. But it demonstrated that the new fire alarm system works well, for hardly had the number "23" been blown before the streets were filled with people rushing to the stable.

A pipe in the pocket of an imitation fur coat ignited the coat, it is said. Then the blaze spread to some underclothing owned by Percy Phillips, hostler at the stable. Soon a good, brisk fire was in progress, which was discovered by Mr. Phillips, who telephoned an alarm and commenced to throw the burning material out of doors.

Several people from out of town who had horses in the stable for the afternoon, came rushing to the scene, expecting that some strenuous work would be necessary to get the animals out of the building.

A Phillips citizen, who was present at the blaze, remarked: "No matter how small a fire we have, the people in the village are always quick to turn out. Sometimes their presence is not needed, but the occasion now and then arises when a good sized crowd is of value in helping take things from a burning building or to assist in other ways."

We heard a man say the other morning that the abbreviation for February means "freeze every body, and that man looked frozen in his ulster. It was apparent that he needed the kind of warmth that stays, the warmth that reaches from head to foot, all over the body. We could have told him from personal knowledge that Hood's Sarsaparilla gives permanent warmth, it invigorates the blood and speeds it along through artery and vein, and really fits men and women, boys and girls, to enjoy cold weather and resist the attacks of disease. It gives the right kind of warmth, stimulates and strengthens at the same time, and all its benefits are lasting. There may be a suggestion in this for you.

If Mothers Only Knew!

By Dr. True

Nineteen-twentieths of the sickness of children have two causes: constipation and worms!

The danger of constipation is understood, but there are 50 different kinds of worms that may exist in the stomach and bowels, and children are especially apt to have them. Usually stomach and pin worms.

Signs of worms are: Indigestion, with a variable appetite; abnormal craving for sweets; nausea and vomiting; swollen upper lip; scur tongue; offensive breath; hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; face at one time flushed, then pale and in a few cases the face takes on a dull leaden hue; eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids; itching of the nose; itching of the rectum; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; little red points sticking out on tongue; starting during sleep; slow fever; pulse quickened and irregular; body may be hot; and often, in children, convulsions.

Rid the child of worms and you will have a healthy, happy child.

NOTE—Dr. True's own prescription, sold under the name of Dr. True's Elixir, is the best remedy in the world for worms. It destroys all worm life, expels worms from the body and makes the child healthy again. All dealers, 35c, 50c and $1.00.
