RAILROAD DAY IN PHILLIPS.

Stratton and Rangeley People Visit Town by Special Train.

Hearing Before Railroad Commissioners Brings No Opposition.

On Wednesday morning of this week a special train from Stratton and Rangeley brought 42 people from those places to Phillips on free tickets. They were here to testify before the railroad commissioners in favor of the proposed new road—an extension of the new Eustis railroad—to Stratton village. The hearing was at the office of Harry F. Beedy, Esq.

Attorneys H. M. Heath and H. F. Beedy appeared for the petitioners. There was no opposition whatever to the petition presented.

Fletcher Pope, manager of the Phillips & Rangeley and Eustis railroads, speaking of the advantages of such an extension stated that the distance is less than six miles, the route is a good one, there is a large amount of lumber, including hard wood, in this section which would give business to a railroad for some time and that a railroad would assist the lumber operators in that vast region; that at the end of the proposed route the Stratton novelty mill would furnish a large amount of freight traffic for the road and on the other hand such a road would be a great help to the business of this mill. The village of Stratton has a population of from three to four hundred. The village of Eustis and also Flagstaff would be much helped by such a means of transportation. This plan would also connect the towns of Rangeley and Stratton by rail, thus connecting these two great fish, game and vacation sections. Mr. Pope stated that the capital required was ready and that the desire was to build a part of the proposed road this fall, in fact they would like to get the location at once as the proposition was to build, if the right was granted as soon as possible.

D. W. Brown, civil engineer, gave the distance as five and four tenths, a country easy to build over. It would have few grades and the approximate cost would be about $7,535.90 per mile, exclusive of rolling stock.

Hon. I. W. Greene, Coplin, proprietor of Greene's Farm, said he thought Stratton village would gain 150 persons in population, the business industries would be increased, the public convenience much benefited by such a line. He said that there is a great deal of lumber in this section that cannot be floated and there is no chance to do the transporting profitably by teams. He quoted the people as being universally in favor of the undertaking and that it is the general understanding that the road will be built. The summer travel along this line is considerable and such a road would take the summer visitor and sportsman to Stratton village, almost to the very game lands.

Allen Blanchard, a prominent merchant of Stratton, stated that he had lived in the town for about 43 years and he thought public convenience demanded that such a road be built. He stated that the people of this thriving little village had quite a business started, that the section was rich in lumber possibilities and there was much of the wood that could not be floated. That their freight had to come and go via Bigelow, a distance of seven miles, over quite a hard road and at a cost of $2.00 a ton. Flagstaff has a mill of about one-half the capital of the Stratton Manufacturing company, which is situated at a distance of about seven miles. This would contribute something to the freight traffic. Eustis freight also is now hauled to Bigelow, going through Stratton. Mr. Blanchard is an old lumberman and thinks there is lumber alone enough to warrant the building of the proposed road.

Mr. McLain, treasurer of the Stratton Novelty mill stated that the mill employed about thirty or thirty-five persons in summer and about seventy-five in winter; that their produce was all hauled to Bigelow, over a sandy and hilly road at a rate of $2.00 per ton and that there was a strong sentiment in favor of the road.

Geo. M. Esty, Deputy Sheriff from Rangeley was decidedly in favor of the extension, stating that as he had heard the people of Rangeley desired the road; that there was some hauling between Rangeley and Stratton and more or less business carried on between the two towns.

W. E. Twombly of Rangeley considered the proposition was for the interest of the people of the two towns, as there is considerable traffic between them and the distance by road is now nineteen miles.

Mr. Pope in closing stated that he thought the road would also be of benefit to the merchants of Phillips, and if a bobbin mill could be built in Phillips, such a road would be of great value to the plant; it would also assist the development of the hard wood business. Mr. Pope stated that what traffic such a road as the proposed extension would take from the Sandy River system at Bigelow, it would make up to them at Phillips and would be a great benefit to them at that point. He stated that there was no hostility to the Sandy River railroad.

A BIG SUCCESS.

King's Daughters' Harvest Supper and "Chestnut" Social, Given For Benefit of Eustis, Draws Big Crowd.

To say that the harvest supper and "chestnut" social, given by the King's Daughters last Tuesday evening at Wilbur's hall, was a big success is putting it mildly. In the first place a harvest supper, with its promise of good things to eat, always takes and then no one exactly knew what a "chestnut" social was. It savored of something good and although the committee in charge, Misses Annie Timberlake and Milia Bangs, were questioned early and often as to what might be the leading feature of a "chestnut" social, it remained a deep mystery till the eventful night.

But had the affair not been patronized for itself alone, the fact that it was for the benefit of the unfortunate town of Eustis was sufficient to draw a crowd, and how they came! In twos, threes and half dozens.

The hall had been made uniquely beautiful by the committee in charge, Mrs. C. E. Parker and Mrs. E. Greenwood. Each window was draped with shining ears of golden corn, red carrots, cabbage, squash and cauliflower, while two large pumpkins reposed on the piano and festoons of oak leaves and pine needles hung from the four large lamps that lighted the hall.

The supper was such a one as the ladies of Phillips are capable of getting up. There were baked beans and brown bread, beet pickles, old fashioned molasses doughnuts, pumpkin pies and baked Indian pudding, with delicious coffee and cream. Although they had made allowance for a good sized crowd, the people who came far exceeded their expectations and like Jack Spratt and his wife, "They licked the platter clean."

After the supper came the social, and it was found to consist of readings and songs of other days, "chestnuts," in fact. But it was an excellent entertainment and took well. One of the notable features of the program was the reading of "Bingen on the Rhine" by Mrs. F. H. Wilbur. So much was the rendering of this old poem enjoyed that she was obliged to respond to an encore. The program was as follows:

|---|----------------------|
| Singing—Comrades, | Chorus |
| Reading—Barbara Frietochie, | |
| Solo—Sweet Marie, | Mrs. A. L. Pratt |
| Singing—Just One Girl, | Miss Cora Wheeler |
| Poem—The Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight, | Chorus |
| Piano solo—The Old Oak Bucket, | Miss Sarah Toothaker |
| Poem—Bingen on the Rhine, | Prinice Wheeler |
| Solo—Say Au Revoir, | Mrs. F. H. Wilbur |
| Singing—After the Ball, | Miss Marion Noble |
| | Chorus |

The sum of $25 will be sent to Eustis as a result of this supper and social and the King's Daughters are to be congratulated on their success.

Accident at Fairbanks.

Last Tuesday the staging on the Ranger & Haley mill at Fairbanks gave way and about half a dozen men fell a distance of about ten feet. All were more or less shaken up, but G. M. Ranger and Ben Stanley suffered the greatest injuries. Mr. Ranger was much shaken up and badly bruised, while Mr. Stanley was injured across the back. The extent of his injuries is not yet known as at the present writing, he is still unconscious. Dr. Palmer of Farmington is the attending physician.

Others who fell were A. E. Brown, Moses Bailey and Mr. Haley. Mr. Brown narrowly escaped falling into the flume.

NORRIDGEWOOK BURGLARS.

At Farmington, Then on Mt. Bigelow, but Where Now?

Special correspondence to Maine Woodsman.

FARMINGTON, Oct. 19, 1903.

Quite an excitement was aroused here Saturday night by the report that the Norridgewock burglars were in camp near or on the farm owned by Charles Pierce, a short distance below this village. A large posse of men and boys was hastily organized and then all repaired to the place in question. When the posse arrived at the place, they found their birds had flown—if there were any birds to fly. It is supposed by many that the story that the robbers were encamped on the farm was a pure fake. J. Ardine Blake, who went to Bigelow on business Saturday, telephoned Sunday that he had seen men answering to the description of the burglars at that place.

KINGFIELD, Oct. 20, 1903.

This town was thrown into quite a flurry of excitement by the announcement Sunday morning that the now famous Reynolds brothers had passed through here in the night and had called for breakfast at the boarding house at Bigelow.

As soon as the truth of the report could be ascertained, Deputy Sheriff Small, accompanied by Robert McMullen, started in pursuit.

The latest advices had located the burglars near Farmington Falls and how they had covered the intervening territory remains unknown. Hunger at last forced them to a habitation.

Mrs. Church keeps the boarding house at Bigelow, where they first appeared. She there Monday and gave a minute description of the men. They called at her door at 8 o'clock, Sunday morning, and asked for a lunch. She invited them in, but they refused, offering the excuse that the house was too warm. She brought food to them and they paid her, having only a few cents left as they said. Meanwhile the rumor reached her that they were the burglars wanted. She stepped up to them and said: "If you are the boys they are after, you'll have to look out for yourselves." "What had we better do?" said one. "You better come right in and quietly give yourselves up," replied Mrs. Church. He thought a moment and turned to his companion, who shook his head, although with apparent hopelessness, saying, "I believe I am not quite ready to give up yet." In a moment they turned and started up the road.

Mrs. Church describes them as quite tall and slim young men of 18 or 20, smooth faced, almost boyish looking. They were tired, careworn and nearly famished, and when they left it seemed to her that they did not step more than eight inches at a time. They had with them a beautiful cocker spaniel and she inquired what they asked for him. They replied that the dog should remain with them as long as they had a breath of life left. At Mr. Burrell's, two or three miles above, they said the dog was a favorite and pet of their mother.

Mr. Burrell furnished the boys with food to last two days, at least. They admitted they were the men wanted and talked freely. They had said to Mrs. Church: "We are in an awful scrape and don't know as we shall ever get out of it."

From Burrell's they cut through Mr. Hinds' field and it was here that Sheriff Small lost the trail.

He and McMullen had gone on to Eustis and purposed to go in to Chain of Ponds farm and so intercept them if they came that way. Later developments show that he was right and he would doubtless have captured his men had he gone on. He was, however, called back to Hinds' by the report that the men were there camping. If they were there at the time the message was sent, they did not appear afterward. The man who telephoned knew the boys and had a long talk with them. The report the following morning located the brothers at a point five miles above Eustis.

Chas. Tague, who drives tote team for Thomas & Green, came out from Chain of Ponds Monday morning. At 7.30 he was five miles above Eustis. He was there accosted by the Reynolds boys. He knew nothing about them at the time, but his description tallies to a dot and identifies them beyond doubt, although the black dog was not in sight. The taller came to his buckboard and familiarly asked Tague numerous questions. Placing his hand on the seat he chatted with him for several minutes, inquiring very particularly about the road, crossings, camps, distance to the railroad and especially if there was telephone connection from Eustis to Canada.

Mr. Tague directed them so that they could not miss the route to the farm, and from there they could get further directions.

They were armed, as Mrs. Church had described, one with two revolvers and a knife, the other with two knives and a revolver. They wore their arms in belts and easy to be seen.

When Tague arrived at Eustis he was immediately interviewed by Officers Dunbar of Madison and Millay of North New Portland, deputy sheriffs, who had been guarding Tim brook bridge and other points all night.

A flood of light was then thrown upon the officers' minds and it was evident that during the brief half hour that they were at supper from 8 to 8.30, the burglars had crossed the bridge.

The pursuit was at once taken up. A buckboard and team was engaged from Chase & Sargent and Chas. Smart and Jack Parnell started with Dunbar and Millay by a route that may bring them to the trail ahead of the Reynolds' brothers. Tague told them of crossings and canoes and gave all needed instructions. They were then just an hour and a half behind their quarry.

Meanwhile the telephone wires were kept warm and officers left post haste for Lake Megantic and messages were wired to Cameron and other line points for men to be on the watch.

It seems hardly possible that the burglars can escape, but such luck has attended them from the start that predictions are quite useless.

When it is considered that the affair has been without profit to them and with the loss of a safe and from 75c to $2.00 in money to Brackett & Russell of Norridgewock, the fight and persistent pursuit of the Reynolds brothers and capture of their two accomplices, who are now in Skowhegan jail, is certainly one of the most remarkable and thrilling chapters in Maine's criminal history.

Wednesday Morning.

The pursuing officers captured the Reynolds boys early this morning within about 20 rods of the Canadian line. The young men fought valiantly until the last and were taken only when one had been shot through the ankle by his pursuers.

MILL AND ROUNDHOUSE.

Beginning of What Promises to Be Important Enterprise.

F. Pope, manager of the Phillips & Rangeley railroad, has begun the construction of a sawmill on the north side of the railroad bridge in Phillips. He plans to finish it this fall and be in a position to saw long lumber during the coming winter. He plans to do custom sawing of boards and dimension from hard or soft lumber and he will be in a position also to purchase hard or soft lumber in the log.

There is a prospect that a little later he will put in machinery to get out parcel handles, pail handles, etc., in addition to sawing shingles and lathe and running a cider press in the season. He will soon petition the town to run a highway from the end of the present one near the Major Dill house, to the railroad where his land begins and perhaps around to the Wm. True crossing at the foot of the hill.

Work is going along on the new stone Phillips & Rangeley roundhouse and it is expected that it will be ready with four stalls this winter. The total capacity will be eight stalls.

North Franklin Grange.

The regular meeting of North Franklin Grange, Phillips, held Saturday, Oct. 17, was largely attended, several visiting members being present from the neighboring granges.

At the appointed hour, the worthy master not being present, the meeting was called to order by the worthy overseer who called Brother C. E. Berry to the chair. The third and fourth degrees were conferred on a class of two, after which all marched to the dining room where a bountiful dinner was served.

At 1.30 the meeting was again called to order and the following program under the direction of the worthy lecturer, M. C. Cushman, was well carried out:

Music by the choir; reading, M. C. Cushman; reading, Cassie Worthley; music by the choir; question, Does a college education wear a girl from domestic life? Opened by C. N. French, followed by others and some very interesting remarks were made. Reading, Josie Hillgrove; reading, Rose Toothaker; reading, L. E. Morrison; music by the choir.

As the meeting was about to be closed a candidate who was unable to be present earlier in the day appeared, and the first and second degrees were then conferred, after which all returned to their homes, having spent a very enjoyable day.

SAM FARMER'S LETTER.

Former Phillips Man Opens Up the Fall Correspondence.

Tells of the Big Crops and the Success of Maine People.

Special correspondence to MAINE WOODSMAN

ARKANSAS CITY, KAN., Oct. 15, 1903.

It seems quite a task to undertake to write for your good paper after so long a delay, caused by so much business on hand, intermingled with our fairs here, and reading accounts of all the fairs in Maine as set forth in MAINE WOODSMAN and Turf, Farm and Home. The fairs seem to have been wonderfully successful this year everywhere, especially in Maine and here as well.

It would have surprised your many readers to have witnessed our fairs at Newkirk, O. T., where ten years ago it was a bare prairie with no signs of cultivation or any improvements, whatever, except the railroad and its equipment. Now it looks like a country having been settled fifty years with magnificent farms, buildings and fruit orchards, shade trees, etc. The Newkirk fair this year, of which am proud to say Sam was the principal mover, was a stunner.

The grounds are supplied with a fine race course, two commodious fair buildings, one for textiles by the ladies, the other for vegetables, cereals, machinery, etc. Also about one hundred, mostly double, horse stalls, and around fifty other stalls for cattle and other stock. There were right around 100 entries in the trotting and pacing classes, with purses from $150 to $500 each, besides about sixteen running contests with much smaller purses. The grand stand which accommodates about 1,000 people, was packed on the two best days at 25 cents each, and lookers on in carriages around three fourths of the track and estimated to be from fifteen to twenty thousand in attendance, each of the two best days. The fair at Winfield, our county seat in Kansas, was a good duplicate of Newkirk.

The wheat crop in Kansas this year is claimed to be one of the biggest in its history, although in this section and northern Oklahoma, less than half a crop is claimed. The corn is better than expected; in the flooded districts much good corn is found planted in July. Oats were struck by rust and are almost a failure in this section. The potato crop is the best for years and many carloads have been shipped away as they will not keep here through the winter. All kinds of fruit is plenty, especially apples. One orchard a few miles from here produced this year about 10,000 bushels of fine fruit, an exhibition of which will be shown at the World's fair next season. We have a large cold storage here which is being packed full of fruit, mostly apples.

The new packing house here started up last Monday morning, when the slaughtering commenced. Cattle, hogs and poultry are plenty here and will supply the demand which is expected to be big. Cattle are cheaper than for a long time. Cows and heifers sell from 2 cents to 3 cents a pound on foot, steers, 34 cents and hogs, 54 cents, but dressed meat sells for the same old price, from 6 cents to 15 cents a pound, which is making many Socialists among the people as the producer and consumer are suffering alike while a few middle men are the robbers.

The wheat planting this year is much behind the average for the following reasons. First, the September drought retarded the plowing till the first of October. At that time the sowing of wheat is usually finished. The second reason is on account of the fly which has been working havoc with the wheat the past season. It is claimed the fly lays the eggs in the fall on the early sown wheat and if not sown till late the egg laying will be over and the crop of flies avoided. Opinions, however, differ on the question but time will tell.

The Maine people are all glad to welcome Henry True from Phillips. He has a good show for business if help can be obtained to make up the clothing, the demand is good for good workmen. Mrs. M. E. Lord of East Wilton has been here most a year and has made many friends. She has dressmaking rooms, hires help and is one of the most popular dressmakers in the city.

Mr. Charles Eaton, her brother from Farmington, has a farm of 320 acres in Kingman county, Kan., where he is a real Kansas farmer. He has a fine four-horse team and rides to plow and harrow with no stones or rocks in the way. He is putting in over a hundred acres of wheat this fall. He bought his land and built buildings and is batching now, but if all signs don't fail it is thought things will change some day before very long. He is all right any way and has a bright prospect ahead as we see it.

Mr. Byron Farrar can't seem to let Sam alone but tells in MAINE WOODSMAN all about the big taxes he pays, but don't say a word about his own taxes, which if rightly informed are some twenty dollars the most right around $150. Now Mr. Farrar is a small man in some ways, a little over 120 pounds in weight and I believe has but one eye, but don't think for a moment he can't see an old-fashioned three-cent piece, and everyone paying $150 tax is no light fool any way.

S. FARMER.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

Rev. E. H. Prescott of Rangeley preached at the Union church in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Ranger. The text for the morning sermon was from I Peter ii, 21, "For here unto were ye called; because Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example, that ye should follow his steps."

This passage of Scripture is familiar to you because it is found at the beginning of a little book which has been more widely read and more freely commented upon than any other, perhaps, of the last few years. I refer, of course, to Mr. Sheldon's "In His Steps." This book tells of the conduct of one meeting the duties and experiences of life as he judged the Christ would have met them were he in the position of the man in the world today. The apostle says we are to follow his steps. Jesus says, "Follow me." The command is to all alike. To the rich and the poor, to those who have accepted his authority, and those who have enrolled themselves as his disciples, and those who have refused to do so. Many a man says that he is ready to follow Jesus, he honestly wants to do so, but he can not see clearly where Jesus leads. He is asking what shall be the next step. Let us inquire this morning what we mean by following Jesus and how we shall do it.

To follow Jesus is not to take just the steps that he has taken and do the deeds that he did, but in our place to be guided by the principles that governed life and to answer life's questions as Christ would answer them did they come to him as they do to us.

The first direction that we will take for so following him is to practice the presence of Jesus. I do not coin this phrase, but I will illustrate what I mean by it by showing how a child may practice the presence of his mother. The boy loves his mother. He does not wish to cause her sorrow. When she is near he does the things she will be glad to see him doing, and says the words she will delight to hear him saying. But when he is away from her, some times the words are hasty and vile, and the deeds such as he would wish her never to see. But if this boy begins to do everywhere and in all society just the things he would do were his mother there with him, he is practicing the presence of his mother. In like manner we practice the presence of Jesus, when, remembering that he is with us in the house, on the street, when about our work or business, we live as though having his visible presence. The late Dr. Gordon, formerly pastor of the Clarendon Street church in Boston, once wrote of a dream which came to himself. In his dream he thought that, one day as he was preaching, a stranger entered the church and took his seat in one of the pews. Afterward he learned that it was Jesus and he thought how his words that day might have been changed had he known who was one of his listeners. The dream had a powerful influence upon his after life helping to make him the man who could bring spiritual truth to untold numbers of people, convincing, persuading, comforting, as Dr. Gordon did. Practicing the presence of Jesus is the first thing necessary in following his steps.

Something more is necessary, however, than simply to know that Jesus is present and to have the purpose to please him. We must have a criterion for conduct. The dictionary tells us that a criterion is a standard by which to determine the correctness of a judgment or conclusion. We need, then, a standard by which to determine what acts will be pleasing to Jesus.

When the tabernacle was to be builded and the utensils prepared for use in the worship of Jehovah, Moses was told to make all things according to the pattern shown him in the mount. The Scripture reads like an architect's specifications, so exact it is. Turning to the New Testament we find in the Sermon on the Mount specifications for the building of character. If we follow them, our characters will be like the pattern, like the example which Christ has set for us. Can we do better than to take as our ultimate standard that which Jesus accepted for his own life? It was this, an unswerving loyalty to righteousness. When he began his public ministry, he came to John to be baptized of him in the river Jordan. John protested against baptizing one so infinitely above him and the answer of the Christ was that thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness. In the terrible hours of temptation which followed so soon after his baptism, he met the assaults of the devil by steadfastly standing by the word and the commands of God. When the people would have made him king this glory was set aside that he might do the work which God had set before him. Even in the agony of Gethsemane, he prayed to his Father, saying, "Thy will be done." Nowhere in his life did he deviate from the right. Sometimes we wish for our ministers to be careful in their speech lest they offend someone who is influential, or who, perchance, helps to support the church with his wealth. They may speak against wickedness in a general way, but may not mention specific sins, intemperance, adultery and others, lest they displease. Jesus was never swayed by policy, by a desire for popularity or power, but followed always the right. If we would follow his steps this must be our standard, also,—unswerving loyalty to righteousness.

But once more, we need not only to purpose and to know, but to have the power to do. Jesus said as told in the tenth verse of the tenth chapter of John, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly." But the life can be ours only as we take Jesus into our hearts and lives. Then we shall have the power to follow his steps. You remember the story of the untutored Genoese monk who carved from a block of ivory the most beautiful image of the Christ that human hands had ever chiseled. He was unskilled in the knowledge of art, but because Jesus had entered his heart and dwelt there, because he had come to know the glorious loveliness of the Master whom he loved he could fashion an image of exquisite beauty to represent that Master. The beauty of life that belongs to those who really follow Jesus is found in those in whose hearts he dwells, and who because of that indwelling, picture something of his life in their own.

We are told of a vessel bearing a valuable cargo sinking in the harbor which it entered. The owners employed powerful engines and skilled workmen in the effort to raise the vessel, but without avail. When it seemed that nothing could be done, an old seaman came and said if he could be furnished with strong chains and timbers and allowed the use of scows which were there he would raise the vessel. So positive was he of his ability to do this that the owners, though greatly doubting, provided that for which he had asked. The timbers were fastened to the masts of the sunken vessel and to the scows placed on either side. Then the waves came rolling in and breaking on the shore farther and farther beyond the place where the vessel was held down by the mud and ooze and slime into which it had sunk. Soon the chains began to tighten, and as the scows were lifted on the rising waves they became taut and surely the great vessel rose higher and higher set free by the resistless power of the incoming tide. So like a mighty tide will the power of Jesus's spirit and of his love come into the heart that receives it, setting the life free from the sins that were holding it down to that which was base and vile, and giving power to follow him.

After his conversion the great French painter, Tissot, painted a picture of the Christ as he had been revealed to him. A story is told of a rough, debauched sailor, who because of a promise made his mother came to look at the picture as it was exhibited in the city of his home. Long he gazed upon it. As he came away reverence and awe were seen in his face. Tears fell from his eyes. "I never knew Christ was like that. I love him," he said. O, that we in our lives might so paint the Christ that someone would be led to love him. Let us follow his steps, practicing his presence, knowing his will, filled with his power.

Kingfield Churches.

The text for the discourse Sunday morning in the F. B. church by the pastor was taken from Luke xxiv, 12,

"Where thy treasure is there will thy heart be also." He said in part—

This a pivotal truth round which cluster others resplendent and glorious. As the miner drops down the shaft to bring to light the hidden treasures below so we must drop beneath the surface of these words to reach the gems of thought and truth in the mind of the Master.

When we do so we find that the Master here touches one of the greatest laws governing humanity. A law that has had much to do with making the world what it is today and what we are at the present moment, and that law is the loss of affection.

I call affection a law because it dominates, governs and controls us. Intelligence may arise, assert her claim, protest, denounce and condemn, but affection sweeps all these aside and carries the day.

Thousands bear testimony to this fact and go down, down, lower and lower, knowing they are wrong, knowing they do wrong. What these people need is not education, not greater intelligence. They are intelligent enough now, but what they do need is change of purpose in life if that purpose is too low, for the greatest purpose in life is the greatest treasure and where the treasure is, there the heart will be also.

The greatest purpose or treasure is to the life of a man or woman what the spring or fountain is to the stream. It is the power that sends them all and all and as the stream never rises above its source, so our lives never rise above our greatest purpose or treasure. If the wine cup is a man's greatest treasure, his life will reach the wine cup's level. If pleasure is the greatest treasure, he will reach that level. If wealth is his greatest treasure, some day he will hear, "Thou foolish soul, today is thy soul required of thee."

In this way his life never rises above this world. These things are temporal and fade away. How necessary then we heed the council of the apostle who said: "Set your affections upon heaven and heavenly things." Making Jesus Christ the greatest treasure, then our lives flowing on and on will rise higher and higher above earth, through the gates up to the throne and find ourselves upon a level with that divine treasure and source of life, Jesus Christ, the righteous.

Next Sabbath the pastor will consider the question, "How would Christ live as a young man today?"

The Mission of Light.

Let your light shine. Matt. 5: 16. This is a beautiful world but it is a world full of beauty because it is a world full of light. Take away the sun, and our glowing hillside would turn quickly to rotting heaps of unseen dust, and life would be extinct.

The light of sun and moon and stars, auroras, and volcanoes and the lesser lights that flit across our meadows on dewy evenings tell the wonderful work of God and glorify his marvelous power.

From this same earth by the skill and in sight of man have been drawn the other marvelous lights which have made man's path more attractive and our life today more satisfying; among these gas and electricity would astonish us greatly were we not so well accustomed to them.

Light has a mission on earth and its mission is to reveal good things and expose bad things. Evil, sin, wickedness, all shams, hypocrisies, bribes, briberies, the clear light of truth, as spiders in a dark cellar hate sunshine. But sunshine is the greatest purifier and truth is mighty where darkness is veiling the understanding, the moral sense or the spiritual vision of man. People of good deeds and of high motives do not fear investigation or searching examination.

If the conscience is clear, we shall have confidence in full knowledge given to the world of any or all actions. Exposures of Masonry have never harmed it but rather have helped it. So with all movements where there is truth or character, they win because falsehood is powerless to harm.

Misrepresentation or slander may delay or hinder but they cannot prevent the growth of truth.

All our lives are open to the world or will be open some day for nothing can be permanently hid. Hence there is need that we have a light worth looking after and worth having people look to, a light of which we shall not be ashamed anywhere. The light that hides is a travesty on light, and truth that hides behind fear or favor is false to its worth. We know the weakness of men, the importunities of existence, the demands of business; we know the power of Mammon and Mode, and yet, to the life united to God in purpose and earnest endeavor, there sounds the battle cry "Let your light shine. Shine though the powers of modern hell beat against you; the stars in their courses are fighting for you! Shine though the world in its rage strike you low; it loves its own, and so does God and God is ever with the right and true man! Shine, everywhere and always! Shine, for God and righteousness and holy living among men."

Mr. Geo. E. Willis of Salem sent a bunch of Red Astrachan apple blossoms to the MAINE WOODSMAN office this week. Even the apple trees are getting "all mixed up" this season.

FARMINGTON NEWS.

Special correspondence to Maine Woodsman.

FARMINGTON, Oct. 21, 1903.

In a talk with the Woodsman Monday night, Dr. F. O. Lyford stated that there were no new cases of smallpox in Farmington, but that there were four new cases in Chesterville. Mrs. Belle Ludden, who has the disease and is at the Farmington pest house on the west side, is reported as comfortable as could be expected. The Stoddard House still remains under a strict quarantine, and one or two individuals in the village, and Mrs. Arthur Church at Fairbanks, are under quarantine as well. Of course the business in town is very quiet, owing to the scare, but really no fear need be felt, as all precautions are being taken to prevent a general spread of the disease.

The apple harvest in town this year is exceptional. Secretary D. H. Knowlton of the State Pomological society says that farmers will doubtless have to accept the present price of $1.50 per barrel for winter apples as they have no facilities for cold storage of the fruit. Right here Mr. Knowlton makes a good suggestion, to wit: That the farmers endeavor to get cold storage facilities. Mr. Knowlton says the annual meeting and exhibition of the state society, of which he is secretary, will be held in City hall, Auburn, Nov. 10-11-12, 1903. All are cordially invited to attend the meeting and to contribute fruit for the exhibition. Papers and discussions relating to the growing of fruit and flowers will be offered by the best talent available. The hall will be opened on the 10th and tables will be placed for the display of exhibits. The exhibition promises to be very fine and it will facilitate the displaying very much if fruit can be brought in the 10th. The invitation to hold this meeting comes from the Auburn board of trade, who will extend a cordial welcome to the society and its friends, and the officers of the society hope to make this meeting the best in its history.

Jacob Wirth and party of Boston and Capt. Geo. McL. Presson of this place daily practice target shooting on the Co. K. rifle range. It is said that Mr. Wirth is a very expert rifle shot, as well as his friend, Dr. Pillsbury.

Bert Hardy of Hardy & Tarbox has an ancient Damascus blade that was formerly owned by his father. The steel will bend freely and is perfectly elastic.

The saw and grist mill at Fairbanks is rapidly nearing completion.

At the regular meeting of Pilgrim Commandery, K. T., last Friday evening, the following officers were elected: Edw. C. Merrill, commander; Emery V. Varney, generalissimo; Daniel B. Belcher, C. G.; Jas. Morrison, S. W.; Burton A. Davenport, J. W.; Geo. C. Purinton, prelate; B. M. Hardy, Treas.; Geo. B. Cragin, R.; Jas. Russell, S. B.; Levi G. Brown, Sw. B.; Wilfred N. Fowler, warden; Wm. H. Holly, T. G.; Frederick P. Adams, 2d guard; Roy F. Gammon, 1st guard; Jas. E. McKeown, sentinel; finance committee, E. O. Greenleaf, L. G. Brown, H. B. Austin.

The apple canning industry in the Titcomb neighborhood, operated by Titcomb & Marble, is now in full blast. Some twenty-four or five people are employed in canning the apples, which are put in gallon cans. This year the company will probably can nearly 60,000 cans, as the crop of fruit is so excellent. These apples are shipped to New York and western cities mostly, while some find a local market. From first to last in the process of canning, the apples pass through many hands. First they are peeled by men using large paring machines and then they go to women who carefully remove all cores, worm holes, etc., left by the paring machines. They then go into a harmless bleach that greatly whitens them and the last operation is putting the apples in the can, which is done by women. This operation is, at times, somewhat painful, as the mouths of the cans have sharp edges and are liable to cut the packers' thumbs. The ladies packing use thumb cuts as a precautionary measure against cuts, etc. From the packers they are

Doan's Kidney Pills

Cure every kidney ill from Common backache to diabetes.

Mr. Joseph Clewley, of 47 Church street, bookbinder for J. E. Knox & Co., Lynn, Mass., manufacturer of dies and cutting tools, says: "I used several prescriptions from physicians, trying to get relief from attacks of backache. The pain was in the region of the kidneys, and the medicine seemed to relieve me for the time being, but it always returned. If I took cold it was always worse, and at such times I was downright sick. I had a severe attack and used Doan's Kidney Pills. The first box relieved me a great deal. Continuing the treatment a short time longer I was entirely cured, and I have had no return of the complaint."

Letter to Dr. J. F. Hilton, Phillips, Me.

Dear Sir: You can put $100 in your pocket if you can put us in the wrong.
Devco Lead and Zinc is all paint. It takes fewer gallons to paint a house than with mixed paints. It wears longer than lead and oil—mixed paints, too. The State chemists of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania have analyzed it and say it is pure.
If you can prove that any of these things aren't so, we've a hundred dollars waiting for you.
If these things are true, what paint will you use next time you paint your nouse? What will you say to the people that ask you? —for doctors get asked queer questions.
If you know of an honest young painter who isn't getting the grip on life that he ought to have, give him this hint: Devco lead and zinc—that'll do it, if he does his work as well as the paint does its.
Yours truly,
F. W. DEVCO & Co.,
New York.

STRONG NEWS.

Special correspondence to Maine Woodman.
STRONG, Oct. 19, 1903.

Mrs. Wallace Welch committed suicide by hanging, at this place Sunday at 1 p. m. Mrs. Welch was the wife of Wallace Welch, a gentleman well known in this place. For some time she had been complaining of not feeling well and Sunday seemed to be particularly ill. Sunday about noon she suggested to her husband that she go to a neighbor's "to see if I can't get something to make me feel better." Later on Mr.
Welch went to the stable for a time and when he returned to the house, seeing nothing of his wife, for some time supposed she had gone to the neighbor's in question. A little later he thought possibly she might be in the house and so called for her several times. Getting no answer he searched the house and found his wife hanging by her neck from a collar beam in the garret. It seems that in a moment, probably of insanity, she went to the garret and securing a piece of rope, attached it to the beam and her neck and then, either jumping from a bed near by, or a chair, it has not been decided which, hung there till she died. Mr. Welch at once notified the coroner at Farmington and pending his arrival, the body was cut down on the advice of friends. The funeral will occur Wednesday at the late home of the deceased. The deceased has been twice married, her maiden name being Celestia Allen. She leaves two children, Clarence Gardner and Mrs. Matilda Worthley. Mrs.
Welch was about 50 years old at the time of her death.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Hav-land of Armonk, N. Y., "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and today she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds, 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by W. A. D.
Cragin. Trial bottles free.

MOUSE CAUSES AUTO MISHAP.

Rodent Frightens a Young Lady Who Scares the Chauffeur and Machine Is Wrecked.

Through the vagaries of a pet mouse, which had secreted itself beneath the upholstery of a large automobile, Miss Helen Finerty, of New York city, who with several friends had planned an outing to Ardsley, was frightened into hysterics. Alarmed by her sudden screaming as the little rodent, ambling about the floor of the automobile, began to ascend her ankle, John C. McCafferty, the chauffeur, ran into a fence on the sidewalk, and came near going down a cliff. The machine was smashed. Miss Finerty fainted and was taken home.

Miss Finerty, however, may be $100 richer for the accident, for she learned later in the day that the mischievous mouse belonged to John J. Dooley, a rich contractor, who is a candidate for Tammany leadership in his district. The mouse has been trained to eat from the hand and to do other tricks. It is the same mouse that a little more than a month ago at a picnic of policemen's wives was used to test the courage of women. One evening at the close of a meeting of the United Democratic Clubs it succeeded in getting away. Superstitious about his loss, Mr. Dooley offered a reward of $100 for its recovery.

Weld.

A very pretty but simple home wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Baker last Sunday afternoon. The occasion was the marriage of their daughter, Lillian E., to Mr. Charles A. Kehew of Roxbury, Mass.

The bride was prettily gowned in white silk with pearl trimmings. The groom wore the conventional black.

The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Samuel York, took place under a wreath of evergreen and flowers, the centre of which formed a horse shoe.

Besides the immediate members of the family there were present: Miss Clara Baker, Mrs. Sarah Burpee and Mr. F. L. Baker, relatives of the bride, and Mrs. Emma Hodsdon.

Miss Clara Baker, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and Mr. Lubert Baker, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

The happy couple will spend a week in Boston and vicinity, after which they will return to Weld, where a reception will be given on the evening of Nov. 7, at the home of the bride, to which all friends and relatives are cordially invited.

Mrs. Cora Brown of Farmington and Dr. C. E. Proctor of this place were united in marriage at Farmington on the evening of Oct. 10. They are now enjoying life at Mr. Proctor's residence in this town.

Mr. Chas. Horne, whose health has been gradually waning for some time, passed away at his home on Oct. 16. The funeral services were held at 2 p. m. last Sunday, with Rev. Samuel York officiating.

Messrs. Harry Masterman and Freeman Watts are the owners of a new cider press. They have been making cider at the grist mill but plan to go to Carthage sometime this week. On their return they will finish the work in this place.

DOGS ALL THE RAGE.

The Animal Very Popular at Present in London Society.

Prominent Women Follow Queen Alexandra's Example in Their Affection for Canine Pets—Bull Pup a Favorite.

It would, of course, be absurd to say that a love of dogs is in any way new to English society. The grandmother of the present Lord Lytton, when paying calls, used to leave with her own card a tiny card upon which was inscribed, "Miss Fairy Bulwer-Lytton," the name of her lap dog. It may be doubted if even the most ardent members of the Women's Kennel association would now think of doing such a thing.

Still, at the present moment, man's and woman's best friend has no reason to complain. The list of ardent dog lovers is headed by Queen Alexandra, whose portrait as princess of Wales was painted with a pet skye terrier in her lap. Many of her most familiar photographs show her with Alix, a noble Russian wolf hound, often exhibited at dog shows, and whose death was a great grief to the royal household.

As in duty bound, most of the women who belong to the court circle follow the queen's example. Miss Minnie Cochrane is a devoted dog lover. So is Lady Knollys. The young duchess of Westminster is very learned in dog lore, but probably the most "doggy" feminine wearer of the strawberry leaves is the duchess of Newcastle, who shares with the duke the presidency of the Brocol club.

The countess of Aberdeen and her daughter, Lady Marjorie Gordon, make a specialty of the Scotch terriers, known as "Aberdeens." Another dog lover is Mrs. Sydney Waterlow, who belongs to a great literary and legal family, and is noted for her intelligent affection for animals.

In sharp contrast to the pampered "pups" of patricians, now all the rage in aristocratic circles, is the pugnacious bulldog, which has become extremely popular of late with the London public, because of the strenuous part he takes in a new farce now running at a certain theater.

To judge from the comments of some of the newspapers, the dog is regarded as "the whole play."

Ran a Ten Penny Nail Through His Hand.

While opening a box, J. C. Mount of Three Mile Bay, N. Y., ran a ten penny nail through the fleshy part of his hand. "I thought at once of all the pain and soreness this would cause me," he says, "and immediately applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and occasionally afterwards. To my surprise it removed all pain and soreness and the injured parts were soon healed." For sale by Cragin, Phillips; Whitney, Rangeley; Dyer, Strong; Mitchell, Kingfield.
