Purest Flour

"Of the various qualities of flour obtained from the same wheat, the lower grades are those most contaminated with grease, dirt and objectionable bacteria; the freedom from these, increases with its purity."

PROF. Wm. Jacob, the world-known English chemist.

The purity of William Tell flour is due to the costly equipment and exceptional care to keep the grain and flour clean.

The wheat is stored in hermetically sealed tanks at the big mills of Andover & Burck Co.

Before grinding, it is cleaned six times.

Neither grain nor flour ever touches anything but the bright, clean surfaces of dust-proof machinery. Even the flour bags are sewed up by machinery.

William Tell comes to you from the mills with all the brilliant bloom that only Ohio wheat can make.

The Wars of Our Country

XIX.—War of 1812
A Year of Disaster
By Albert Payson Terhune

HE war of 1812 was on! England, as ever, had boundless credit, unlimited wealth to draw upon, all the men, arms and equipment necessary. Thou- sands of her soldiers and sailors also were hardy veterans of her various recent European wars. America, on the contrary, could muster but a beggarly force on land and sea, was sore pressed for money and still further hampered by internal dissensions.

The British navy consisted of 144,000 men and more than 600 warships. Against so much of this vast armament as might be sent against us the United States could muster only twelve good sized war vessels, with a total of 300 guns, and some gunboats.

Already in 1811 British emissaries had stirred up the Indians against the western frontier against the United States. Tecumseh, the famous Shaw- nee chief, and his brother, "The Prophet," had taken the warpath in Indiana and Nov. 7, 1811, had been routed at Tippecanoe by General Harrison, gov- ernor of Indiana. In a bloody battle.

An elderly and not especially com- mitted Revolutionary veteran, Henry Dearborn, was appointed commander in chief of the United States forces. The subordinate generals chosen to serve under him were also past worthy Revolutionary relics. Dearborn, ap- parently forgetting that his greater American leaders than he had failed to capture Canada, made that his domi- nant object of his first campaign's at- tack. General Hull, governor of Michigan, had served with credit in the Revolution. He was placed in command of 2,000 men and sent across the Detroit river into Canada. July 12, 1812, to begin the invasion. He en- tered Canada with the object of storm- ing Fort Malden, eighteen miles from Detroit. But the expedition was a dis- astrous fizzle and accomplished nothing, for the British general, General Brock, had swept down from Canada with a swarm of regulars and Indians, had crossed the border, attacked and captured Mackinac (our powerful bar- rier against invasion from the north- west) on July 17 and then marched to Detroit. Hull retreated before him, recrossed the river and sought safety in the fort at Detroit. Brock on Aug. 9 followed and demand- ed the surrender of Detroit. The garri- son was so small and so ill equipped that Hull was forced to surrender. Hull was captured and sent to England. The British then moved on to capture the city of Detroit.

Early Ideas.
"Arthur, dear, why do you keep that chestnut colored coat which you bought for me?" asked the artist's bride. "It is to retain my ideals of you, love," answered the artist, "to retain the one impression I have of you in my mind. It is the only thing I have of you in my mind. It is the only thing I have of you in my mind."

A Narrow Escape.
Edgar N. Baylis, a merchant of Robinsonville, Del., wrote: "About two years ago I was thin and sick, and when all the doctors failed to cure me, I had a consultation with a friend who had been cured of the same complaint. He told me to take a course of F. A. Shurtliff's Kidney Remedy, and after four years I am again pleased to state that I have recovered my health, and am now as well as ever."

A distinguished specialist in Wash- ington was called upon one week or two ago by an eminent business leader for treatment for a nervous ailment. "The first thing you must do," said the physician after an examination, "is to get rid of the acid in your system. Whereupon the eminent official became real peevish. 'Look here, doctor,' he burst out, 'how you're talking just like my wife!'

Drop by drop the offensive discharge came from the throat, setting up an inflammation that is likely to mean chronic bronchitis. The most satisfactory remedy for Catarrh in the throat is F. A. Shurtliff's Kidney Remedy, and after four years I am again pleased to state that I have recovered my health, and am now as well as ever."

With cap and bowdlering, he burst into the King's presence. "Have you heard my last joke, your majesty?" he asked. "I have," was the reply, as the royal ax descended on the neck of the court jester.

Many people delude themselves by saying "I will wear away," when they notice symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble. This is a mistake. Take F. A. Shurtliff's Kidney Remedy, and stop the drain on the vitality. It cures backache, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, and all other troubles of the urinary system. F. A. Shurtliff & Co., Boston, Mass.

Skill Wins in a Heeling Match.

By looking at the accompanying picture you will see just what is needed to prepare for a heeling match. A stout broomstick for what you might appropriately call your "heel bit" and two lengths of strong, softest of end of the stick form the reins. Grasp the reins firmly in your clenched fists and draw the heel bit taut so that the balls of your feet are off the ground and your weight resting entirely on your heels.

The course must be short, as the race must be run entirely on the com- petitors' heels. This would not seem at all hard, but the heel bits must be kept in place, and it is in this condition which makes the race difficult. The second you lift your heels from the ground there is a great chance of your heel bit slipping out of its position, which disqualifies you.

You are also disqualified if you let the ball of your foot touch the ground, a ruling that will compel you to pro- ceed slowly and with care.

TALES OF ANIMALS.
They Enable Their Possessors to Turn In the Air.

An ingenious man has been con- structed to show why a cat in falling always rights itself. The inventor has constructed a cat of cardboard, with legs and a tail devised on similar prin- ciples, and the object is to show that a cat's faculty of falling on its feet depends on the rotation of its tail.

Some interesting information on this- ing, furnished by the superintendent of a zoological garden, who has made several experiments. The faculty of always falling on the feet is one which is especially developed, he claims, in climbing and leaping animals, in which category are included all the cat tribe—monkeys, squirrels, rats and most mammals. The instinct is born in them, and the art of twisting is per- formed without any conscious effort on the part of the animal.

The solution is that the tail plays an important part in the turning process. "All tree inhabiting monkeys have long tails," says this authority, "and there is not the slightest doubt that the tail is one of the greatest possible ad- vances to all climbers in holding them- selves. It also acts as a good balancer. You may see a squirrel walk on a tightly stretched wire or string, swing- ing its tail from side to side, just as a tight rope walker balances his pole."

Some time after I had some rat, whose tails had been cut off, and they were not such good climbers as ordi- nary rats. And it is just the same with monkeys—those which have long tails are not so good at climbing as those which have short tails. The extent of the tail is, it is noticeable, that climbing monkeys have given up climb- ing trees have lost their tails."

What Am I Doing?
The play in this comic seat itself seems in a row, and the leader of the game takes his place behind them, be- ginning at the top of the row. He makes some absurd gesture and then asks the person behind whom he is standing, "What am I doing?" and the person behind him, in turn, asks the person behind him, and so on, until the last person in the row, who asks the first person, "What am I doing?"

First Aid.
"If you were called upon to deal with a hysterical person," asked the exami- ner at the emergency class, "what would you do?" "I'd amputate his funny bone," said the student with a turn for surgery and humor.—Youth's Companion.
