West Paris.

Mrs. Marietta A. (Curtis) Fuller, widow of Caleb Fuller, passed to the higher life Tuesday morning at 4:30, at her home on Main Street. Mrs. Fuller had been in poor health for many years and several years ago she suffered a fall which fractured her hip, and since then she has been confined most of the time to an invalid chair. The last few days were fraught with great suffering, but her mind was clear and she was able to make such arrangements as she wished. She was the wife of William Marcella (Swift) Curtis, and was born Sept. 9, 1839, in Paris. In 1861 she married Caleb Fuller whose death occurred Tuesday morning. She was survived by two sons, Lullie B., who died when about 4 years of age, and Winnie E., wife of George W. Ridgion, who survives, also one granddaughter, Bertha A., wife of Chester Buck, two great-grandchildren, Kenneth and Lucille Buck, and two brothers, Eugene Curtis of Norway and Charles Fuller of Paris.

Mrs. Fuller was a member of the Universalist church, which she attended as long as health permitted. Since being confined at home she has firmly kept to the faith which gave her peace and joy in suffering, and so irradiated her soul as earthly life was closing that she felt only peace and joy in the reunion with dear ones gone before. Before her marriage she was a successful school teacher.

A kind friend, loving mother and grandmother. She will be greatly missed, especially as the families of daughter and granddaughter have always enjoyed a home with her and cared tenderness.

Another who in the early years of her life shared her attention and received the kind interest and love of a mother was her stepson, the late Herman Fuller, of whom many friends yet hold tender memories.

Mrs. Fuller's funeral was held from her late home Thursday afternoon at 1:30. The flowers were beautiful and abundant. Interment in West Paris cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Dunham and Mrs. Dunham's mother, Mrs. Hawley, of Danville, Vt., and Mr. and Mrs. Horace of Philadelphia were guests Thursday of Mr. Dunham's father, Mr. W. Dunham, and brother, H. W. Dunham. They were on a motor trip by way of Portsmouth, N. H., Portland and Bangor, and will return to the White Mountains.

Mrs. Geo. F. Farnum and Miss Lou Chase were recent guests of their sister, Mrs. C. P. Dunham.

Mrs. Agnes Pratt is visiting at Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ricker have been spending several days with relatives at Falmouth.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Tubbs of Seffer, Fla., were guests two or three days last week at H. R. Tuell's and E. J. Mann's. Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs came by auto from Florida to Oxford County in July, and since then enjoyed auto trips around the mountains and have visited friends in Andover, Vt., Groton, N. H. Since being in Oxford County they have made their home with the family of John Tuell at Waterford.

Mrs. Tuell has a son, who is attending to purchase new after his return to Florida. They will return by train.

Schools opened Monday. Miss Wall, principal, and Miss Flint, assistant, were the teachers who came last week. Miss Wall remained and was the guest of Mrs. Edwin J. Mann, and Miss Flint returned to her home at West Baldwin.

Henry Barker of Haverhill recently visited his brother, C. H. Barker.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Porter of Boston, Mass., are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Marshall.

Rev. Sarah Robinson, Ella Berry, Mrs. Roscoe Tuell, Mrs. W. W. Dunham, Mrs. R. T. Flavin, E. L. Porter, Mrs. Martha Dunham and Mrs. T. White attended the United Baptist Association at South Paris Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Mabel Bartlett of Newry, who is teaching school in Dixfield, was a member known as the Beacon district, in boarding at Mrs. Julia Curtis'.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Coburn and Helen are visiting at Dixfield.

Practical Pickling.

Practical pickling is simple and easy, if you know how, yet many fail because of ignorance of a few simple rules.
Many put cucumbers in brine, only to have them spoil, get soft. This is caused, not so much because of mold microbes as by the lack of certain germi-cides. It is stated by good authority that the pickle factories of one state have lost yearly a thousand dollars each, just from cucumbers becoming soft in the brine.
It seems that the cucumber, unwashed contains or has, the microbe needed for its preservation, and if the cucumbers are washed too much before brining, this useful factor is eliminated. Hence, in washing, do not use a brush, and if with your sense of proper cleanliness you can be brought to brine your cucumbers unwashed, the chances are much greater for their keeping properly. This is of course, applicable only to such cucumbers as are kept in brine long periods for future pickling. Another great factor of loss is that the brined cucumbers are not kept tightly closed.
This is as essential as the microbe.

Where one does not put down pickles on a large scale, it is really better to put them up either in cans or as open vat pickles. We have used the two following recipes for many years, and find them hard to beat.

For open jar cucumber pickles, put the cucumbers into a weak brine to which has been added a little vinegar, just enough to give it an acid taste. To each 2 quarts of water used, add 1 c. of vinegar and 1 c. of coarse salt. (We have found the dairy and fancy prepared table salt non-effective in brining cucumbers. Especially is this true of cucumbers left in the brine.) Wash the cucumbers, and put in the above brine over night. Next day put into a vinegar prepared as follows: If this vinegar is spiced and mixed a week or two ahead of time so much the better. To 1 gal. of cold vinegar add 2 c. of sugar; this is merely to feed the vinegar and keep it strong. 1 c. coarse salt, 2 c. white mustard seed, 2 oz. ground mustard, 2 oz. celery seed, 1 oz. stick cinnamon, 1 oz. whole cloves, with softening removed, as this turns the vinegar dark, 1-2 tsp. whole black pepper. Mix this and put the pickles, wiped from the brine in it.
Cover closely and stir occasionally.
These pickles keep well, and are peculiarly fine flavored.

We usually use the above rule for open cucumber pickles, through the pickling season, as from the supplies can be added any time. If vinegar is good they will be ready to use in from three to ten days according to the size of the cucumbers and the strength of the vinegar.

To can cucumber pickles, it is first needful to know that the large growing cucumbers do not lend themselves to canning for small pickles when small.
One must use the German or cluster cucumbers, which are small growing and are raised for pickles, although if allowed to grow are all right for table use.
The large growing cucumbers, when when two to three inches in length for small pickles will invariably shrivel and the pickles be undesirable. Cut the cucumbers at night; they are then as fresh from water as at any time. Put into a weak brine, made in the proportion of 2 qts. water to 1 c. coarse salt. Wash the cucumbers and put in this brine, the next day remove and drain or wipe, make a weak vinegar with a lump of alum the size of a walnut, put the cucumbers in this and heat to the boiling point but do not cook at all. Pack closely into 2 qt. glass cans, while boiling hot cover with the following vinegar. For 2 qt. can of pickles about 3 c. vinegar will be needed, unless the cucumbers are packed very firmly. To this vinegar add 1 c. sugar and 1 tsp. spiced pickling spices. Bring to boiling heat and pour over the cucumbers. Fill the can to overflowing and seal. These keep years if desired and have a fresh taste when opened. Sweet cucumber pickles are brined and heated in weak vinegar the same as the sour ones; then the sweet vinegar is made: 3 c. vinegar, 3 c. brown sugar, 2 sticks cinnamon broken up, 12 cloves, 1 bay leaf. After packing the hot cucumbers in the glass can, pour over them boiling sweet vinegar. Cans set on a wet cloth will not break with the pouring in of hot liquid.

Sweetened cucumber pickles, use medium-sized cucumbers sliced with the sides on. To each quart of sliced cucumbers add one large onion sliced, one sweet pepper chopped fine. Sprinkle lightly with salt and let stand in colander three hours. Add to the drained mixture 1 c. sugar, 1 tsp. tumeric, a dosen cloves with soft top picked out, 1 tsp. white mustard seed, 1 tsp. ground mustard. Enough vinegar to cover.
Heat to boiling but do not cook, pack these while hot and seal.

Chunk cucumber pickles. Use medium-sized cucumbers. Put into a very strong brine, a brine strong enough to hold up an egg is sufficiently strong.
Leave the cucumbers in this three days.
Remove from the brine, and cover well with cold water, and change this each day for three days. This process is for the hardening of the cucumbers, so that they will not cook up mushy. Cut into inch cubes. Measure and cook slowly for two hours on back of stove. A few grape leaves and a piece of alum will help keep the cucumbers green. To each four quarts of cucumbers add measured before cooking, add 8 lbs. of brown sugar, 3 lbs. vinegar, 1 oz. each of whole allspice, cinnamon stick and celery seed.
Boil vinegar and sugar for ten minutes, pour over cucumbers, after they are well drained and packed in cans.

We also make a pickled beet which meets with great approval by selecting small beets about two inches in diameter. Wash and boil tender, adding salt to cooking water ten minutes before they are done. Peel and pack beets in cans.
Have ready a sweet vinegar made as follows: To each 2 c. of strong vinegar add 2 c. white sugar and 1 c. water. One stick cinnamon broken, 12 whole cloves with soft head removed, 2 bay leaves.
Bring this to a boil and pour over hot beets in the cans. These are the best pickled beets we have yet found.

Raw Piccalilli. Chop fine one head of cabbage, 12 green tomatoes, 6 good sized cucumbers peeled, 6 large onions, 3 green peppers, and add 1 c. salt. Let stand overnight, then drain. Add good vinegar to cover and sweeten to taste, then add 2 tsp. whole mustard seed, 1 tsp. celery seed, 1 c. celery chopped fine, 1 c. grated horseradish. Set in a cool place. Will keep a long time.

Hints.

Promptness, dependability and attention to detail are the foundation of successful business and life, and they are best learned at home. In fact the whole adult life will suffer if these habits are not well grounded in childhood.

Nothing, probably, is more healthful than the tomato, with its just-right acid, and there are so many uses for serving, both fresh and cooked, plain and in combination, that no one need tire of it.

Never wring or twist silk after washing. Squeeze gently and roll up in a Turkish towel. This will absorb the excess moisture and leave the silk just right for ironing in an hour or two.

Put the peaches you want to peel in a drainer or colander, dip into a kettle of boiling water then into cold and the skins will slip off easily and without waste.

The best way to cream butter and sugar for cake is to use the potato masher. In cool weather wash the butter (but do not melt it) and the mixing bowl.

A film of butter spread over the cut sides of cheese that is to be put away, will prevent the drying and cracking that spoils its appearance.

It is foolish to be bothered with starch sticking to the iron when a little borax, soda water, or some oily substance used in the making will prevent it.

Keep a jar of beet extract on hand to help out the emergency dinner if the soup or sauce lacks flavor.
