UNDER ARREST.

A Knox County Man Who Is Charged With Desertion.

A Boston despatch of the 22nd says: "Remly S. Sidelinger, prominent for several years as a temperance and labor reformer, has been arrested as a deserter from the U. S. army in December, 1877, when with troop L, 7th cavalry, stationed at Fort Lincoln, Dak. Sidelinger was president of the Barbers' Union, and was a leading champion of the Sunday closing. His record was good. He has a wife and two children here."

Mr. Sidelinger was at one time a resident of Warren, and his wife was Georgia Kimball of South Thomaston. They have two children, a boy six years of age and a daughter aged two years. When he was 16 years old Sidelinger enlisted in the regular army, calling himself 21 to be accepted. He was assigned to the Seventh Cavalry, L Troop, and was first stationed at Fort Lincoln, Dak. In 1877 he deserted, and went to live with a sister in Ohio. During his residence here he was seriously troubled with rheumatism. Getting over his rheumatic troubles he returned to Warren, and worked in the shoe shop, afterwards learning the barber's trade with his brother, A. C. Sidelinger. He then ran a barber shop in Harwich some time, and in 1880 went to Boston and opened a shop there. It was in 1880 that he was married. Efforts are being made to secure his release. He has been sent to Jefferson, Mo., for trial by court martial. The penalty fixed by law for his offence is from two to five years in the military prison.

PENOBSCOT OR NOT.

We learn from the Belfast Journal that Sheriff Wadsworth of Waldo county has received a second batch of writs against the salmon fishermen in that vicinity, and on Friday served a number of them. But one Belfast man, George Gilmore, is complained of. There are three warrants each against L. A. Dow, of Sears Island, Crawford Treat, James Treat, Atwood Gilmore, of Searsport, and George Gilmore, of Belfast. The writs are returnable to the October term of court, when they will be heard. The charge is for violating the weekly close time. The question to be decided is what is meant by Penobscot river, as the law says those on the river are exempt. The fishermen think it is an injustice to allow the 135 to fish at all times and compel the 17 to open their weirs forty-eight hours every week. Experience proves that the greatest catches have been made during the alleged close time. The prosecutor, Fish Warden Thompson, claims that these fishermen are not on the river but are on the bay, and are not exempt under the law. The defendants say that there are no boundary lines to the river, and that all the government maps and charts call it the Penobscot river as far down as Owl's Head. T. P. Pierce, of Rockland, is the attorney for the state, and Fogler and Williamson, of Belfast, and Drummond, of Portland, are for the defendants.

CONSUL BORSTEL.

An Adopted Son of Rockland Receives an Important Appointment.

Capt. H. C. Borstel of this city, as was stated by us last week, has been appointed American consul at Pernambuco. Capt. Borstel was born in Hamburg fifty-two years ago, and has been engaged in the merchant marine service ever since he was fifteen years of age. He holds three captain's certificates—German, English and American—the first he received when nineteen years old. He is connected by marriage with one of the most prominent families of this city.

Since 1863 he has sailed as master of ships in foreign trade, for over ten years upon vessels owned in New York; for the last thirteen years he has sailed on his own bark, the Lorinda Borsrelle, which was so badly damaged off Cape of Good Hope on her last voyage that she was abandoned to her underwriters.

Pernambuco, if our readers will consult their geographies, as the editor did, is a city of considerable importance, on the east coast of Brazil, with a population of 100,000. It is a noted maritime port. Its exports are sugar, cotton, hides and dye woods. Capt. Borstel will proceed to his post of duty as soon as he can settle up his private affairs.

GLAD OF IT.

Somerville Journal:—"Toby Lyons, who is playing base ball professionally this year, has signed with the Rochesters, of the Strafford county, N. H., league, with whom he made his first appearance as pitcher on Friday of last week, against the Dovers."

The Rochester Leader, in speaking of the game, says: "Up to the ninth inning the Dovers had played an almost faultless fielding game, but the great obstacle to their making runs was their inability to bunch their hits upon Lyons, who pitched for Rochester. His work in the box was superb, and after the game enthusiastic admirers gave him quite a purse of money. It was a very successful first appearance."

Let us hope that this club will not disband.

ACCIDENTS.

Mrs. Harriett Lunt fell Thursday and dislocated her right shoulder.

SUCH IS FAME.

A letter from Brussels, on the continent, directed simply to "Rockland Gazette, America," without state or county, arrived here safe and sound.

PERSONAL POINTS.

Miss Lizzie Currier of Bangor is the guest of Mrs. A. A. Duncan.

Mrs. F. J. Orbeton and son are at Vinalhaven. They will probably remain several weeks.

Mrs. G. F. Hemingway, nee Miss Nettie Lane of Rockland, is visiting at Capt. H. J. Hemingway's, Camden.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Jones of Boston are visiting N. A. Jones, Camden.

J. W. Jackson of Saccarappa was in town Wednesday on a flying business trip.

B. J. Richards of Hallowell, formerly of Vinalhaven, made us a pleasant call. Wednesday. Mr. Richards was here on business.

Alfred Thompson, who has spent the summer in this city, returned to Detroit Tuesday.

A. A. Leavitt and wife of Charlestown, Mass., are visiting in this vicinity. Mr. Leavitt is a Rockland boy, and his wife a Thomaston lady.

Mrs. Aaron E. Henderson and daughter of Warren, W. A. Packard and wife of California, Mrs. Cogan of Warren, Mrs. C. R. Packard of Warren, Mrs. N. A. Packard of Rockland have been cottaging at Northport.

Fred R. Sweetser of New London, Ct., now visiting his old home in Searsport, has been giving the people there some fine music, as we see by the Searsport correspondence of the Belfast Journal. As those who participated are so well known here we use our scissors:

Thursday under his auspices Mrs. Ella Cleveland Fenderson, of Boston, gave a song recital accompanied by Mr. Sweetser as pianist. Mrs. Fenderson is a great favorite here, having appeared on several former occasions, and she has lost none of the sweetness of her voice and is as charming as ever. By special request the concert was repeated Monday evening, but by an unforeseen event Mrs. Fenderson was at the last moment prevented from coming. Fortunately Mr. Sweetser had met Mrs. H. F. Knowles, the celebrated soprano singer of Boston, at Belfast the day before, and upon his request Mrs. K. kindly consented to fill the engagement, and although a stranger to her audience she at once won their hearts by her sweet tones and easy grace, and the second concert proved a perfect musical success.

Rockport village has again been bereft of one of her oldest and best citizens. James McLain died at his home Sunday, Aug. 28., at 2 o'clock a. m. in his 71st year. Mr. McLain came from Ireland to Camden in 1837 and began life under very humble and discouraging circumstances. At that time a school was a place he had never seen. He managed to support himself and to attend a few courses of school in winter and thus to acquire some knowledge useful to him in his life. From 1842 to 1844 he lived with Dr. Joseph Huse, in whose family lived at that time Miss Hannah Coombs. Mr. McLain and Miss Coombs were united in marriage Nov., 1884. In December of the same year they moved to Rockport in to a small house on Union street, which stood on the ground now occupied by their beautiful and spacious home. Mr. McLain, for the greater part of his life, has been engaged in the trucking business. He has owned at times considerable real estate. A few years since he possessed one half of the Coombs quarry at Simonton's Corner. By enterprise and economy on the part of both Mr. and Mrs. McLain they have gained a handsome competency, so that in their declining years they have rested upon the efforts of stronger years. Mr. McLain has always been strictly honest, temperate and charitable. We have heard many men of the village speak of him, but never a word in his discredit. His remains were placed in the Mountain street cemetery, Camden.

A GIFT.

For Which the Appleton Soldier Boys Are Very Grateful.

Charles O. McLain of Haverhill, Mass., a former resident of Appleton, recently presented David Esancy Post, G. A. R., an elegant banner. At a recent meeting of the Post this generous gift was acknowledged by the following appropriate set of resolutions, drawn up by A. R. Davis, E. D. Gushee and E. H. Hilton:

Resolved, That we, the members of David Esancy Post, G. A. R., will ever guard the dear old flag with watchful care, always remembering how the donor fell wounded and bleeding to preserve it. So we will keep it intact, and when we have erected a staff, commensurate with the length and breadth of said flag, thereon the flag shall be flung to the breeze and may it waft to our comrade the grateful acknowledgement of the Post. And as often as he visits the home of his boyhood, his native hills of Appleton, so often shall the flag wave him a kindly greeting.

NOT PROBABLE

That Camden Will Get Railroad Connection With Augusta.

There is talk of running a railroad from Camden to Augusta, through West Camden, South Hope, Union, Washington, Somerville and Windsor, connecting with the Maine Central at Augusta. This would be accepted by Camden, making Camden a port for the back towns. But as the Waterville Sentinel says Camden will not go fifty miles to connect when it can get one by building eight miles.

Editor Simonton of the Camden Herald, who has vigorously championed the road, cheerfully says that the present set-back is but a temporary one and that the matter will go through with a rush before many months. If Camden is not totally blind the Herald's prophecy will certainly be fulfilled.

WORK OF ART.

Principal H. A. Howard of our Commercial College has been amusing himself during vacation with an elaborate piece of pen work which is now on exhibition at Spear & May's.

It is centered by a spirited group of wild horses, around which is grouped other bright scenes and various styles of ornamental letters. The entire picture is finely gotten up and is executed with rare skill. Mr. Howard easily takes front rank among the penmen of the country.

THE STARRETTS.

On Wednesday the 24th inst., about thirty of the Starrett family assembled at Reunion Grove but the weather looked so threatening that they concluded to adjourn to the next fair day. The adjournment was none too soon as the heavy rain in the afternoon proved. The morning of Thursday the 25th was not very promising but cleared up late so that 72 or 80 of the family assembled and partook of a bountiful repast. While the older ladies were removing the dishes and clearing the tables the young people strolled about the woods or went boating till a little past three when L. F. Starrett of the executive committee called order and proceeded with the following exercises: prayer, reading of records, reading of letters from those unable to be present, closing with a poem written for the occasion by A. C. Anderson. Obituary notices by L. F. Starrett of the following persons, all of whom were well advanced in years: Mrs. Crocker of Machias, Agnes S. Lippincott of Columbian Falls, and Mrs. Thomas P. Burgess of Warren. After remarks from many present, the president appointed L. J. Hills and A. P. Starrett as a committee to report a board of officers for the next year. The following officers were reported and elected:

President, L. F. Starrett; vice presidents, E. M. O'Brien, A. L. Vaughn; executive committee, J. E. Starrett, Wm. C. Burgess, Edward Starrett, Franklin Starrett, Gilbert A. Starrett and their ladies; obituary committee, L. F. Starrett; secretary and treasurer, I. P. Starrett.

Benediction was pronounced by Rev. D. Q. Cushman after which the company dispersed to their respective homes. This, owing to the uncertainty of the weather, was the smallest reunion yet held, but all seemed to enjoy themselves unusually well.

OUR VICINITY.

 The Georges River Trotting Park was sort of dedicated the other, some of the fast stepping horses skipping around the track. Walker & Littlefield's Morgan Knox led the procession——The High School here began Sept. 5th, with Principal Luce at the helm——A. A. Brown is making an addition to his farm buildings, a big crop of hay leaving no room for his grain.

 "The Isle of Pines" where Camden and Lincolnville people are having such fine times, is a beautiful island situated near Megunticook Lake about half a mile from the Turnpike road and about the same distance from Lake City. The island is under the proprietorship of G. H. Cleveland & T. C. Atwick, two enterprising business men of Camden, who have built a large platform thereon and a wharf at which to land the steamer Tit-Willow, a small craft recently built by E. H. Bramhall of Camden, and placed in the lake by the proprietors of the island. The Tit-Willow is under the command of Capt. B. F. Young and runs between the various landings around the lake including the Isle of Pines, where there have been several all day picnics this year and will probably be several more.

THE NOVELTY.

We had an item last week stating that the fishing steamer Novelty, Capt. Hans. Joyce of Swan's Island stocked $10,000. Later reports place the amount at $12,000. Capt. Joyce and his crew are to be congratulated, as his confidence in this mode and venture of fishing has never wavered. It will be remembered that the steamer Novelty was built specially for the prosecution of seining mackerel, this being the only vessel employing steam. It has been and is at the present time thought to be too expensive a way of taking fish as compared with sailing vessels. The steamer carries a crew of 40 men, three large seine boats and the same number of seines. Two of the seines are of very large dimensions, for deep water fishing; the other is what is called a shoal seine, for use where the fish are inshore or shallow water. The steamer also carries a seine with a bottom known as the "Sabins' patent apron."

Last week the Novelty came into Portland with another fare of 400 barrels of extra A 1. mackerel, caught off Chatham. In his last two trips Capt. Joyce has stocked about $20,000. Capt. Joyce is about 45 years of age and a fine specimen of the American fisherman. A Rockland man remembers Mr. Joyce's first command. It was the fishing schooner G. W. Reed of Swan's Island, a vessel of about 50 tons. His first fare consisted of 80 barrels of fine mackerel. The Novelty has not paid until this year, the expense of running her being about $50 a day. We are glad to learn of her success this season.

EQUINITIES.

Belfast is feeling real stuck up over the fine performance of her youngsters at the Fairfield races. Wait awhile, Knox county has some young colts which are going to be heard from this fall....Albion Hewett has a fine draft horse bought of Cal. Burrows.....Dr. F. E. Hitchcock rides one of the finest saddle-horses in this vicinity. The doctor, of course, is an exceptionally fine rider, but the horse is also an exceptionally fine saddle-horse.

SUMMER SOUNDS.

A corn roast at the kilns is the latest North-end wrinkle.

Last week was a busy picnic season, and Warrenton, Owl's Head, Crescent Beach and our other numerous beautiful resorts were taxed to the utmost.

Seven members of the M. S. C. Sophomore class have been indefinitely suspended for creating a disturbance in some of the Freshmen's rooms. The faculty seems disposed to put a stop to hazing in all forms at any cost. The general sentiment seems to be that the suspended students will soon be allowed to return, as the offence was very light.

THE COURIER-GAZETTE

By PORTER & JONES.

HERBERT M. LORD, EDITOR.

A MODERN PAPER.

Forty-first year.....of the....Rockland Gazette
Fourteenth year.....of the ...Rockland Courier

Two dollars a year in advance—$2.50 if paid at end of year; $1 for six months; 50 cents for three months' trial trip.

HERE AND THERE.

The Augusta Loan & Building Association is flourishing, and is doing a $40,000 business. Many of Augusta's young men are getting neat homes with the aid of the association.

Harry Andrews, the old and favorite "Rambler" of the Lewiston Journal, is to start his new paper in Auburn, with new presses, and new type. It will be a weekly, and will, of course, be decidedly interesting and newsy. We want to exchange, please. We spoke first.

The rusticators are going, but they leave something behind for remembrance's sake—money. The season has been short and in many places very unprofitable. One seashore house has not had quite a month of business, and is now preparing to close. The frequent rains and cool weather have served to disperse the pleasure and health seekers.

The lobster close time began two weeks earlier this year than last season. W. S. Trefethen, well posted on Maine fishery matters, estimates a consequent loss of $50,000 to the state, and claims that the fishermen find their trade broken up, and at the expiration of close time, when they can take the same lobsters that can be taken during these two weeks, they find a difficulty in getting a market for their catch.

Advertiser: The difference between land and land stock is not always appreciated. If one buys land he knows what he gets, and can hold it or dispose of it, as he thinks prof... C. M. Kalloch hands us a copy of the statement of the standing and condition of the Equitable Loan & Building Association of Washington, D. C., organized in 1879. The association has been successful from the start, and has had no little to do with helping forward the growth of the city where it is located. Thousands of young men in that city can point to neat and comfortable homes which they own, and which they can thank the Equitable Association for.

Col. Smith, the retiring president of the Heavy Artillery Association, sends the following graceful card of thanks to the association's generous hosts at Vinalhaven:

Editor of THE COURIER-GAZETTE: Permit me as the president of the First Maine Heavy Artillery Association for the year past to use your columns to express to the women, the citizens and the Grand Army Post of Vinalhaven the deepest gratitude of its members for the most cordial reception and the most perfect entertainment which was tendered it, August 23 and 24. The association has always met with rare hospitality, but that which was poured upon its members by the people of Vinalhaven will ever be cherished as the model in that line. Should Vinalhaven ever be attacked by an armed foe while the First Maine Heavy has surviving members the grateful remnant will turn out as one man to protect its patriotic and generous entertainers.

In behalf of the Association,
Z. A. SMITH, President.

THE GRANGE.

From interesting grange notes in the Belfast Journal we steal the following:

If the farmers of this country ever expect to get the upper hands of produce gamblers, or to remedy any other extensive evil they must unite. These are in the province of the granges.

At the present time, and during the past few months, grange work has been most encouraging and satisfactory all over the country. The order has made more progress and has demonstrated its usefulness, during the past year, more than ever before in the same period of time. This is not owing to any excitement or novelty. It is entirely due to the fact that thoughtful and intelligent farmers recognize the necessity of concerted thought and action. The grange is the medium through which the best results can be quickly reached.

In Texas there are 150 grange retail stores in successful operation, besides a large wholesale house in Galveston. Without a single exception these co-operative stores which started on the cash system and have stuck to it have succeeded, while the credit system has resulted in failure. Has not the co-operation in purchasing taught the same lesson in Maine? It is the spot dollar that buys the most goods and brings the promptest delivery.

While there is much of enjoyment in a good grange it cannot be kept up for the fun of it. There must be work about it—earnest, thoughtful work on the part of the members. This work must not be spasmodic. If so, the condition of the grange will ebb and flow with the work put into it, and the danger is that all ceasing to work its life may go out. It is only by persevering efforts continually put forth that this work can continue. If the mission of the grange is a good one, it is worth working for.—Farmer's Friend.

ANOTHER KILN.

Capt. Chas. Williams has removed his hoister and gear from the Twin kilns to the Point where A. F. Crockett & Co are building a new kiln alongside the two with smoke-stacks.

FATHER NEAR.

Our edition last week numbered 2664, and was used up clean. That 2700 isn't far off.

OUR CIRCULATION.

The regular weekly circulation of the COURIER-GAZETTE is 2641. This is the largest circulation attained by any paper in Knox County, and nearly all of it is in that county and in the neighboring ones of Lincoln, Waldo and Hancock. We invite the most complete investigation of our claim, and will show our edition or our books to anybody who may wish to see.

OLD CENT.

While at work for the C. & R. Water Co. at Thomaston, Fred Snow excavated in front of the old Academy an American cent dated 1797. It was found down about three feet, and was in a good state of preservation.

BELAY THERE.

A correspondent of the Boston Globe in a report of the evolutions of the Thistle speaks of the sailors going up aloft and coming down on the main-sheet. Is the Thistle's main sheet made fast to the cross-trees?

DID THE BUSINESS.

The big blast at the Doherty quarry was fired yesterday, Bert McLoon touching it off with the battery. Somewhere in the neighborhood of 200 tons of rock was lifted out, and the tramway buckets can now ride up, clear of the quarry wall.

COMING EVENTS.

The Payson family has its annual gathering at the home of Silas Hawes, Union, Sept. 7 ....The Ingrahams will meet the first Wednesday in September, in the oaks in the rear of the home of Geo W. Ingraham in this city.... The Vinal reunion occurs Wednesday, Sept. 7th, at Ezekiel Vinal's, West Camden.

WORK BEGUN.

The contract for the new North-end schoolhouse has been awarded W. H. Glover & Co. for $8900, or in that neighborhood, subject to certain changes and alterations which are to be made in plans and specifications. Work was commenced yesterday, and the North-end after a long and patient wait will soon have a fine school-building.

BACK NUMBERS.

A law student pouring over the court docket the other day found two cases pending at the present time that were pending when the county was organized more than 20 years ago. The plaintiff in the first case has gone into insolvency and the defendant is dead, but the case still pends. The law's proverbial delay is here well illustrated.

DOWN DEEP.

Workmen, who are excavating at the Brook, have discovered an old granite hitching post twelve feet down, which our older citizens will remember. The old post stood in front of or rather at the corner of the old Shepherd building, and has checked the fiery impetuosity of many an old time Rockland steed, and afforded a hard but inviting resting place for the way-back loafer.

ALL RIGHT.

E COURIER-GAZETTE of last week said: Free Press appeared last week as neat dy as ever, and materially enlarged." Free Press of last week doesn't agree s, however, and says: "If the Courier lsify where its dishonesty is so easily de- no credit can be given to its statements matter where the facts are not easily d from other sources."

WHEEL SPLASHES.

The Richmond ran into a sailboat containing three young men Thursday afternoon, at Castine one of the occupants of the boat being drowned. The sailboat was entirely in the fault, tacking back and forward in front of the steamer, the young men being so frightened that they didn't know what to do. Capt. Dennison acted very promptly, and by his cool and decided action the lives of two of the party were saved.

COSTLY CANINES.

E. S. Bird shipped two valuable dogs yesterday. One was an English mastiff by Jumbo out of Juno, aged 3 1-2 years and in whelp to Cromwell Doone. Mr. Bird received $100 for her. She goes to Kansas City. The other was a cocker spaniel pup for Wilkesbarre, Penn., parties. The spaniel answered to the stirring name of Revolution. Revolution is by Champion Obo 2nd, out of Lady Learning. Oboe 2nd is owned in Saimon Falls, N. H. Mr. Bird is the owner of Lady Learning, and has refused $150 for her. He has 25 dogs in his kennels, and 25 more out.

SPORTING NOTES.

C. E. Bicknell and E. J. Wardwell bagged four fat partridges each, Thursday.

The Cushing sheep pasture did not pan out in woodcock so well this year as last. Last year the gunners captured 17 the first day, where this year they bagged but 16.

The new law was off Thursday and so were our Nimrods—off to Cushing.

Lindsey Brook and its tributaries were evidently favorite places for woodcock in years past. Each season birds of this species are found along the banks.

BLUE TRIP SLIP.

Mr. Eastty, the well-known reader and impersonator, gave one of his entertaining readings in the Baptist church, Camden, Tuesday evening to a large audience. He was ably assisted by Miss Fannie Berry with organ recitals. This evening Mr. Eastty repeats his entertainment in Rockport. Tomorrow he reads on Vinalhaven assisted by local talent. He comes to this city from Vinalhaven and goes thence to Bangor, Searsport and Bucksport. Mr. Eastty is as good as ever.

STOCK FARM.

An Old Resident of this City Buys a Nice Union Farm.

J. P. Fish of Boston, formerly of this city, has bought the Morse farm in Union, and will stock it with the best blooded animals that can be secured. Mr. Fish was formerly in business in this city, occupying the G. A. Safford store, and living in the house now occupied by W. O. Fuller, Jr. He moved from here to Boston, where he has been conducting a successful business, which he has recently sold to advantage.

Mr. Fish has many friends in this city and vicinity. He is very fortunate in securing the Morse place which is one of the most valuable farms in the county. It is especially well adapted to stock raising.

THE MEADOWS.

Lyman D. Smith and daughter of Foxboro, Mass., are visiting at F. W. Smith's. Mr. Smith is the author of the excellent copy books, now in use in our public schools. He is a beautiful penman.....A narrow escape from a serious accident occurred at the Crockett-Farrand quarry Saturday. The men had put in a blast and retired the usual distance. The rock was soft, however, and great masses flew out and fell among the crew of a dozen men. One man's hat was cut, a horse was cut in the nose, while big fragments of rock fell on the buggy of C. A. Crockett sadly wrecking it. Mrs. N. I. Ashton and daughter Mattie, who have been spending the summer at Mrs. Julia A. Ingraham's, at the Meadows, returned to their home, Boston Highlands, Saturday.

THE KALLOCHS.

One of Our County's Best Known Families Assemble.

The reunion of the Kalloch families in McIntire's grove at Rockport, Wednesday, was a very enjoyable occasion. These annual family gatherings are of frequent occurrence and the Kallochs, Ingrahams, Lermonds, Starretts, etc., now hold their annual meetings at different points in this county. The tendency of these annual festivals or picnics is socially and morally good, and much pleasure is experienced by the members of families coming together from all sections to spend a day in friendly greetings and social chats.

The Kalloch families are not an exception, and on the above occasion quite a number assembled in McIntire's grove and spent the day very pleasantly. The old, the middle aged and the young, from different sections in Knox County, fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, uncles, aunts and cousins were present, and many were the greetings extended, and acquaintances renewed. The old board of officers was re-elected, with the exception of secretary, and one vice-president. Mr. Smith of Ash Point, proprietor of Crescent Beach, extended an invitation to these families to meet at his place next year. This invitation was very gladly accepted, and a vote was passed that the Kallochs hold their next annual gathering, the last Wednesday of August, 1888, at Crescent Beach, Ash Point. This location is quite central and is one of great interest. A pavilion, stables, and other accommodations are to be found at this place, and ample accommodations for comfort and pleasure can be found at Crescent Beach. We shall look for a large gathering in 1888.

There are now living eight children, 31 grand-children and 14 great-grand-children. Capt. Carver is the only survivor of eleven children of Thaddeus Carver, one of the first settlers on the island.

Capt. Carver served the town as selectman when North Haven and Vinalhaven were one town. The towns were divided in 1847. He has served as selectman several times since, and one term during the Rebellion, and one term in the legislature. He has built 14 vessels and until within a few years has been a healthy and enterprising man. The youngest son George is at the old home to care for him, and Annie Coombs, daughter of his second wife, is one of the family which together make the old gentleman's last days comfortable and happy.

The K. & L. R. R. will run excursion trains to the Fair at Lewiston this week at low round trip rates. Thursday Sept. 8th will be the big day and the very low fare of $1.50 for round trip and admission to park or hall should call out a crowd that will make the old road groan.

Thoughtful friends of Frank Barker have made up a little purse of $25 or so for him, to sort of encourage him through a long and severe attack of sickness from which he has been suffering. Fred Clark was the author of the benevolent scheme. Mr. Barker is a deserving young man.

Mrs. A. R. Morse has bought the Stackpole house and will soon open a first-class boarding-house there, many of the rooms being already engaged. Miss N. T. Sleeper will purchase Mrs. Morse's stock and business, and will move her millinary goods there. We wish success to both parties in the transaction.

The annual reunion of the old Fourth Maine and Second Battery Association will be held in this city on Wednesday, Sept. 14th. Members will assemble at G. A. R. Hall on the morning of that day, and arrangements will be made for a clam bake, etc., at Owl's Head or some other place in this vicinity.

W. C. Haines, formerly agent of the International Express at Lewiston, and at one time connected with the International Co. in this city, was arraigned in Lewiston last week charged with embezzling $600 from the company. Mr. Haines bore a good name while in this city, and his friends here hope to see the charges against him disproved.

That Singhi the photographer makes a fine picture is beyond question. That he is more than liberal in his offer to the public his prices prove. His rooms are modern and convenient, and there is no call or excuse for any one to go from home to get an artistic job. The club rates should have special attention from those who may think of sitting, for the time is limited.

People who visit Rockland are pleased with everything but our streets. Now no one will gainsay that our streets have not been unusually good this year, thanks to the hard work of Road Commissioner Fogg, but how are they after a rain? Muddy! Rockland would get its share of summer business if the proper steps were taken, and the first and most important step is to give us better streets.

W. P. Rice of Kansas city while in this city met Mr. Vicary and after hearing some of his selections was so deeply impressed with the young man's talent that he made him the handsome gift of $100 which W. O. Fuller, Jr., and E. J. Wardwell increased to $150, giving $25 each, the money to be used towards defraying his expenses in Italy, where he goes in the fall to fit himself for the operatic stage.

There seems to be quite a fever of wharf improvement in the city. White & Case have had a granite abutment built about their wharf, and now F. Cobb & Co. are having the same important work done to their wharf, adjoining. The sloop M. M. Hamilton commenced work there Friday. F. Cobb & Co. are also to rebuild the big kiln in the rear of the store of James Donahue & Co., which has been idle for several years.

Capt. Thomas Dermont has bought the jewelry business and good will of T. W. Hix, Jr., and is now in charge. Capt. Dermont is too well known in this city to need extended comment, but we can promise our readers that he will always be found a pleasant man with whom to deal. He will retain the skillful services of M. M. Genthner, so well and favorably known here by his connection with Mr. Hix. Mr. Hix, after a rest of a few months, will go into some other branch of business.

At the reunion of 20th Maine Regiment at Waterville last week, S. L. Miller of Waldoboro was toastmaster, and Rev. C. A. Southard, formerly of this city, was one of the speakers. Mr. Southard told the boys how he felt and the experiences he passed through at Shepherdstown Ford, where he was severely wounded. He was carried to a church in the town of Sharpsburg, where he passed several weeks under the surgeon's care and where he afterwards had the pleasure of preaching a sermon.

The new North-end school-house will cost some where near $10,000. Half of that would build a shoe-factory. We need both, and we need the factory as much as we do the school-house. We put $10,000 into a new school-house, considerably more is spent for teachers and other school expenses in educating our children, and then when they get their good common school education they are obliged to leave town and seek other places to earn a living because we do not furnish business for them here. It's poor economy isn't it? Expend thousands of dollars in making our children valuable members of society, and then compel them to go out of town to benefit other places with the knowledge they have gained here. We're not saying a word against the schools. Let's have good schools and convenient and suitable school-buildings, but don't stop there. Let's have the factories and other business, too.

THE TESTIMONIAL.

PRISON POINTS.

Cashier Wm. E. Gould has served less than a year of his ten years' sentence, and the preliminary steps are already being taken looking to a petition for his pardon.

Labor Commissioner Matthews visited the State Prison last week and made a thorough examination of the labor department there and the working of the new rules relative to the division of labor.

Warden Bean on Friday brought William Bertaine, who has a sentence of six years, and William Francis, who is sentenced for one year, to Thomaston from Bangor on the steamer Mary Morgan, to serve their terms.

Graves, the game warden murderer, is employed in the wood-shop, and bids fair to make one of the best workmen in the prison. He keeps steadily about his work, and is considered by the prison officials an unusually good convict.

Mexican War Veteran.

The wonderful efficacy of Swift's Specific as a remedy and cure for rheumatism and all blood diseases, has never had a more conspicuous illustration than this case affords. The candid, unsolicited and emphatic testimony given by the venerable gentleman must be accepted as convincing and conclusive. The writer is a prominent citizen of Mississippi. The gentleman to whom Mr. Martin refers, and to whom he is indebted for the advice to which he owes his final relief from years of suffering, is Mr. King, for many years the popular night clerk of the Lawrence House, at Jackson.

JACKSON, Miss., April 29, 1887.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—I have been an invalid pensioner for forty years, having contracted pulmonary and other diseases in the Mexican War, but not till the 1st of March, 1875, did I feel any symptoms of rheumatism. On that day I was suddenly stricken with that disease in both hips and ankles. For twenty days I walked on crutches. Then the pain was less violent, but it shifted from joint to joint. For weeks I would be totally disabled, either on one side of my body or the other. The pain never left me a moment for eleven years and seven months—that is from March 1, 1875, when I was first attacked, to October 1, 1886, when I was cured. During these eleven years of intense suffering I tried innumerable prescriptions from various physicians, and tried everything suggested by friends, but if I ever received the least benefit from any medicine taken internally or externally, I am not aware of it. Finally, about the first of September, I made arrangements to go to the Hot Springs of Arkansas, having despaired of every other remedy, when I accidentally met an old acquaintance, Mr. King, now of the Lawrence House of this city. He had once been a great sufferer from rheumatism, and, as I supposed, had been cured by a visit to Hot Springs. But when I met him he told me that his visit to the Hot Springs was in vain—he found no relief. On his return from Hot Springs he heard, for the first time, of the S. S. S. as a remedy for rheumatism. He tried it and six bottles made a complete cure. Several years have passed since, but he has had no return of the disease.

I immediately returned to try it. In September I took four bottles, and by the first of October I was well—as far as the rheumatism was concerned. All pain had disappeared, and I HAVE NOT FELT A TWINGE OF IT SINCE.

I have no interest in making this statement other than the hope that it may direct some other sufferer to a sure source of relief, and if it has this result I am well rewarded for my trouble. I am very respectfully and truly your friend.

J. M. H. MARTIN.

A VERY BAD CASE

of Scrofula cured by Brown's Sarsaparilla, has excited the people living in and around the town of Lee, Maine. It appears that a son of Mr. Nathan Averill, a prominent citizen and Trial Justice had a son, Wm. H., who was seriously afflicted. Mr. Averill writes as follows: "I wrote you some time ago about my son. He has now taken fourteen bottles of Brown's Sarsaparilla, and I am sure it has completed a cure. In my first statement I described his case which was the worst I ever saw. His face was covered with what seemed to be scales or scabs, and the feeling was so intolerable that he tossed about in agony through many a sleepless night. He commenced some weeks ago to use Brown's Sarsaparilla in connection with the salve you sent to allay the irritation, and now, as I first mentioned, he is so far recovered that we consider his complete cure as certain." Mr. J. W. Burke of Lee, who was at the time chairman of Penobscot County Commissioners, is cognizant of the facts and said at that time and says now, that "it is wonderful what Brown's Sarsaparilla has done for young Averill." In this case Brown's Sarsaparilla threw open the Bowels and pores of the skin, at the same time entering the blood, beginning a vigorous warfare on the impure matter found there, and which was a constant source of supply for the scrofulous humor on the outside. In time this was expelled from the system, and only pure matter entered the blood. The disease, deprived of material on which to thrive, died and disappeared, leaving the body clear and clean.

UNION'S NEED.

The Courier-Gazette Furnishes More Capital for the G. V. Road.

UNION, Sept. 1st, 1887.

Mr. Editor.—we recently took a ride over the beautiful town of Union. Everything looked its best, free from dust, and the country was dressed in the most beautiful shades of green. The hills and valleys never looked fairer than after the recent rains. The orchards are now sending forth their early fruit, red, juicy and crisp, and our mind wanders into the future and we ask: "When will the whistle of the Georges Valley locomotive be heard shrieking through here?" Then these beautiful farms will produce double what they do now, and then we shall not have to drive to Rockland with a load of produce worth five or six dollars. Get up in the morning at three o'clock, spend all day in Rockland trying to dispose of it, then return about eight or nine o'clock, weary with our day's work, having spent eighteen hours in disposing of five or six dollars worth of produce. Is it any wonder there are so many farms for sale here when there is no market near for what the farmer raises?

There are also many other branches of business here that need only the railroad to develop them, and we see in our mind's eye large factories for which are the best of privileges, and need only the railroad to locate them here. A week or so ago the corn canning factory started up, employing about twenty-five persons. It will require considerable freighting to dispose of all the sweet corn that will be raised here this year, and there could be raised five times as much if all the farmers would go into it, and no doubt they will after this year. Most of the land in Union is well adapted for corn-raising. On Ellis Payson's farm on Crawford's River was the only place where corn was raised about here in the cold season of 1816. We think if THE COURIER-GAZETTE'S gas holds out we shall some day hear the shrill whistle of the iron horse wending its way through our beautiful town. Then we will wonder how we ever got along without a railroad. Seventy years ago our great grandfathers carried their produce to Boston in an ox team, requiring two months to go and return, travelling at the rate of fifteen miles a day. The amount received was $80 per ton in time of war. We are not satisfied with such slow locomotion, nor even with a railroad within seven miles, but we want it in our immediate vicinity, and we must have it, and will if we keep agitating the matter.

Some three weeks ago a young son of Frank Emmons, Head of the Tide, Belfast, found a pearl in a fresh water clam taken from the stream in that vicinity. J. J. Atkins, Chief of Police, Knoxville, Tenn., writes: "My family and I are beneficiaries of your most excellent medicine, Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; having found it to be all that you claim for it, desire to testify to its virtue. My friends to whom I have recommended it, praise it at every opportunity." Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup and every affection of Throat, Chest and Lungs. Trial bottles free at W. H. Kittredge's drug store. Large size $1.00.

BRACE UP.

You are feeling depressed, your appetite is poor, you are bothered with headache, you are fidgetty, nervous, and generally out of sorts, and want to brace up. Brace up, but not with stimulants, spring medicines, or bitters, which have for their basis very cheap, bad whiskey, and which stimulate you for an hour, and then leave you in worse condition than before. What you want is an alterative that will purify your blood, start healthy action of Liver and Kidneys, restore your vitality, and give renewed health and strength. Such a medicine you will find in Electric Bitters, and only 50 cents a bottle at Kittredge's drug store.

A BIG MISTAKE.

The moulting season, or the season when hens shed their feathers, will soon be at an end. The process is one that in certain respects debilitates and prevents hens from laying. The reason of this is that the growing of new feathers requires all the nitrogen and phosphates contained in the food and there is none left to form the egg. A curious fact about the hen, and one that illustrates the foregoing statement, is this, if a hen's leg be broken during the laying season, she will lay her eggs without shells until the break is mended. The reason for this must be that all the lime contained in the food is required to unite the broken bone, there is therefore none for the formation of egg shells. The formation of new feathers does not require any carbonaceous or fat producing food, consequently well fed hens get very fat during the moulting. Many farmers and poultry raisers not understanding all about these things kill off their old hens because they think they have stopped laying and are fat. This is a great mistake, because if the proper material be furnished them with their food to supply the increased demand for nitrogen and phosphates before mentioned the old hens will be through shedding feathers much sooner and will begin laying on the approach of cold weather and they will continue to lay vigorously all winter, while the young pullets, reserved to take the place of the old hens may not begin to lay until much later in the season. Very many people have learned from experience that Sheridan's Condition Powder mixed once daily with their food will supply the extra material needed to strengthen and invigorate their hens, enabling them to grow new plumage quickly and commence laying early. Those who commence now to use Sheridan's Powder, will find that their young pullets will commence to lay at from four to six months old, and will lay continuously through the winter. The Farmers' Poultry Raising Guide, published by I. S. Johnson & Co., at 22 Custom House St., Boston, at 25 cents, contains a vast amount of information on this subject. Johnson & Co. will send post paid, two 25 cent packs of powder and one Guide for 60 cents, or a 2 1-4 lb. can of the powder postage or express prepaid for $1.20 and a guide free.

MAINE STATE FAIR.

The trustees are making the final preparations for the great exhibition at Lewiston this week, Sept. 6-9, which will be one of the best ever made.

We have no space at this late date more than to say that no citizen of Maine can fail to be well repaid for the trouble and expense of attending the State Fair.

All the departments will be filled. The art exhibit, corporation manufactures and ladies' handiwork of all kinds will be shown in City Hall, down town; all other departments on the Park.

The Lewiston Brigade Band, assisted by other bands, will furnish fine music through the whole Fair, day and evening. The trotting purses have brought out the fastest horses in Maine, and there are enough trials arranged to fill every hour's time of the four days.

The special pony exhibit, including a trio of baby ponies will, in itself, be worth the admission price. The acres and acres of stalls, sheds and pens will be crammed with blooded horses, cattle, swine, &c., while a whole large building will be filled with poultry.

Everything is on an immense scale. The grand stand will seat thousands, and the park will accommodate hundreds of carriages. A fully equipped police force will maintain the best of order, and no violation of the liquor laws or other statutes will be allowed.

Wednesday, the 7th, will be Grand Army day, which will bring in car loads of old veterans. Conveniences for tenting, eating, or living on the Park are within the reach of all.

The Trustees have in contemplation a wonderful machine, which will be on exhibition and prove a great surprise to the visitors.

Half-fare on all the railroads in the state. Take your flocks, your specimens and your families and spend a day or two at the State Fair.

Sketches on Ship-board, by Albert H Munsell, will be much appreciated by those who love the flavor of the salt sea waves. The style is crisp and interesting and the subject timely.

A Table Made of Human Bodies.

In the Pitti Palace at Florence is a table which, for originality in the matter of construction and ghastliness in conception, is probably without a rival. It was made by Giuseppe Sagatti, who passed several years of his life in its manufacture. To the casual observer it gives the impression of a curious mosaic of marble of different shades and colors, for it looks like polished stone. In reality it is composed of human muscles and viscera. No less than 100 bodies were requisitioned for the material. The table is round and about a yard in diameter, with a pedestal and four claw feet, the whole being formed of petrified human remains. The ornaments of the pedestal are made from the intestines; the claws with hearts, livers and lungs, the natural color of which is preserved. The table top is constructed of muscles artistically arranged, and it is bordered with upward of a hundred eyes, the effect of which is said to be highly artistic, since they retain all their lustre and seem to follow the observer. Sagatti died about fifty years ago. He obtained the bodies from the hospitals, and indurated them by impregnation with mineral salts.

TOLD YOU SO.

Mr. Editor,—I told you so, I told you so, as the old woman said when the horse ate up the grindstone. Limerock is going to be hauled on rail cars, as you see the wide tire agitation is taking tangible shape in that direction. I see by the names of the men who promise to do something that business is meant. Of course it will be impracticable to take car loads of rock to the top of all the kilns, but when that can't be done the rock must be hoisted by a crane. The more labor it requires to get the rock into the kiln the better for all concerned provided the business will pay.

THE MISTY VEIL.

Written for the COURIER-GAZETTE.

Upon the ocean's breast the gathering mists
Hung low and dark to hide the fleeting sail,
That bears our loved ones when our Father list s
To snap the golden thread of mortal life so frail,
Which moors them to this anchorage of earth!
We watch with eager eyes the outward wake
That soon is lost amid the surging waves
Of those remorseless tides which rise and break
Across the bosom of our love-kept graves,
Regardless of earth's sorrow or earth's mirth.

And yet, to us whose hearts were closely bound
So your frail bark now floating on the tide
Whose echoes on the circling years resound,
Nor bear a message from the farther side.
The deathless trust of love will ever bring
A light resplendent with eternal glow,
To dissipate the mists of heavy gloom
Which settle on the waiting ones below,
And draw them to the land beyond the tomb
Where brightest hopes to full fruition spring.

That ocean on whose dark and heaving breast
Is borne the richest freightage of our lives,
May beat upon the shore in deep unrest;
But still we know that purest love survives
The years that for a little while divide
The now and then, until the kindly hand
Of hope shall guide us to the brighter skies,
And faith shall bear us to the farther strand,
Though intervening mists may blind our eyes,
And for a time its wondrous glories hide.

The hand of God from out the joyous West
Shall lift the somber clouds as sinks the day,
And after toil shall come the welcome rest.
"At evening tide it shall be light!" A ray
Of his refulgent glory breaks the gloom
And then we plainly see the shades of death
That overhang the sea of human life
Are but the vapors of our mortal breath
Which vail, amid our earthly toil and strife,
The land where God's eternal beauties bloom.

WHEN LOVE AWAKES.

You say the dear old love is dead.
Love does not die, dear heart of mine;
We may not kiss the sweet lips, red,
No love light in the eyes may shine,
But love, once born, decreed by fate,
Sleeps transiently or turns to hate.

And is this hate, my own dear heart,
That comes and gently strokes my hair?
Hate does not bid the swift tears start
At hasty words, nor does it care
To fondly raise the drooping head
And breathe good cheer. Love is not dead.

It sleeps, it wanders, wanders far
Beyond the horizon's outmost rim,
Goes blindly on, from star to star,
But evermore comes back to him
Who worthily will calmly wait,
Love's wakening comes. You will not hate.
—James Clarence Harvey in Home Journal.

A FRONTIER HERO.

My first introduction to Dakota was hardly one to impress either—that is, the territory or myself—with any very great liking for the other. But we were both young at that time, and Dakota, at least, has greatly improved.

It was early in the '70s—fifteen years ago—that I found myself on a Missouri river steamboat leaving Omaha and headed up stream. I was not altogether clear as to where I was going, but I had an idea that I would stay by the boat as long as my money held out—which would not be very long. I hoped at least to reach Dakota. Not that I had any particular reason for going to Dakota more than to Texas; but, on the other hand, had Texas been as near I should certainly have been as apt to have gone there.

About all I knew—or any one else, for that matter—concerning Dakota was that Yankton, in the extreme southeastern part, was the capital, and that there was a little settlement in that region, a little more in the northeastern corner, with perhaps a very few scattering settlers along the rivers elsewhere and a number of forts, each with a few United States troops.

The reason that I came to think I was going to explore the west was that several weeks before I had run away from home with that determination—not a very good reason, but the only one I had. My reason for running away from home was even less obvious. But I was away and too proud to go back—though subsequent events reduced my stock of pride several hundred per cent.—if I may be allowed to put it somewhat strongly. I was almost beginning to consider myself a man, though I have since looked back at the time calmly, and could not remember that anybody else ever acted as if he considered me anything more than a boy.

On the occasion of which I write the boat Sadie Bolton plowed her way up the thick, muddy waters of the Missouri. The mate swore at the deck hands as occasion required, the pilot swore at the river, the engineer swore at the fireman and pilot by turns, and the captain occasionally appeared and swore at things in general.

Being of an inquiring turn of mind, I explored the lower deck and got into conversation with one of the crew. From him I learned that Buck Hawkins was on board. I had heard of Buck Hawkins as the most dangerous man in that part of the country. He staid up the river in the neighborhood of Yankton most of the time, but I understood from my informant had been down to St. Louis on some sort of business and was returning to Yankton. I felt anxious to see him as soon as I found he was on board. The man told me I doubtless could do so if I would take the trouble to hunt up the bar, as he and some friends were indulging in a poker game in the immediate vicinity.

I soon found the place, and to my whispered inquiry a spectator informed me which of the four gathered around the card table was Hawkins. I was somewhat surprised, as he did not look as I had pictured him. He was small, not over five feet and seven or eight inches, and evidently weighed less than 150 pounds. He had brown hair and gray eyes, and although his face showed determination and force, there was nothing of the reckless desperado which I knew he had the reputation of being. I watched the game for some time. I learned that the other three were all professional gamblers and that Hawkins was losing. The room was full of spectators, as it seemed to possess interest for every one on the boat. Everybody expected trouble. There were great stacks of chips and money on the table and Hawkins and the gambler opposite him each had a heavy six shooter lying on the table in front of him, while the others had similar weapons in their belts. Every one knew that the gamblers were not playing a square game, and that it was only a question of time when they got all of Hawkins' money. That was the time trouble was expected. He had been drinking heavily, and should he detect them cheating it was known he would not hesitate to shoot them all unless they shot him first.

All the afternoon I remained close by the table watching the game intently. I had become almost as much interested as the players. Hawkins' money was slowly but surely going. Once when Hawkins was dealing he happened to touch a pile of his chips and they rolled off on the floor. Instantly I sprang and gathered them up and placed them on the table. He just glanced at me and said "I thank you," and was deep in the game again. A few minutes later there was a jack pot. Hawkins and the gambler went in. They raised each other till there was several thousand dollars in it. At last they laid down their hands. Hawkins had four kings, but the gambler had the four aces, and reached for the money and chips.

"I reckon that was all fair, parson?" said Hawkins as he looked across the table at his opponent.

"Ye bet it was, Buck: ye know I never play no other way," replied the gambler, showing some signs of nervousness.

"I'm glad of it," said Hawkins, picking up his revolver and holding it carelessly, "ye all know what I'd do if I thought it wasn't."

"Shoot, of course, Buck, that would be all right—but it's squar', an' ye can bet on it."

"All right," and Hawkins arose from the table and went out. I saw nothing more of him that night.

The next day he approached me on deck and talked a few minutes. He guessed that I had run away from home and advised me to return, saying that it was no country for boys. I could scarcely conceive as he gave me this advice, which I knew to be good, that he had without doubt killed a dozen men—perhaps more. But it was a fact.

Hawkins left the boat at Sioux City and I went on to Yankton. The next five or six weeks I spent in the vicinity of that place working on various farms. I did not get very high wages, but I managed to make my living. After some time I hired out to a man who was driving some stock up the river to the Yankton Indian agency. There were some 200 or 300 head, and there were several men along with them. To make this trip I had invested in a pony. We arrived at the agency after several days, and, finding that my services would no longer be required, I started to return on my pony. I was opposite Niobrara, Neb., and back some four or five miles from the river, when I met two men on horseback, each leading a string of five or six horses. Some of the ones which were being led were wild, and were giving the men considerable trouble. They hailed me, and after, as I thought, asking an unnecessary lot of questions concerning who I was, where I came from and where I was going, one of them said:

"I'm sheriff down in Newbrasky, an' my podner here is dep'ty. We've got some hosses what was stole that we're takin' back. They don't lead very well, and I'll give you $5 to go with us this afternoon an' to-morrer an' help us."

"All right," I said. "Where are you going to cross?"

"Down at Chouteau creek."

"I should think there were better"——

"That's the best crossin' 'round here—we know this country like a book."

I saw that no information was wanted from me, so I said no more and went along with them. I soon saw they were remarkably well acquainted with the country, and appeared to rather avoid what few roads and trails there were than otherwise. We soon struck Chouteau creek and started down it, frequently crossing from one side to the other. I noticed that the men were both heavily armed, and appeared rather nervous and in considerable of a hurry. I thought nothing of this, however, as nearly everybody went armed, officers especially, and it was likely they wanted to make the crossing that night, and possibly they feared that the thieves might attempt to recover the stock. We passed through several groves of large cottonwood trees, and then turned up the river.

"Do you mind riding all right?" asked the sheriff.

"No," I replied.

"I'll make it a couple o' dollars extra. We want to cross up here an' get 'cross the p'int of the reservation an' over to Red Bird on the Niobrara 'fore we stop."

"Go ahead, I'll stay with you."

A little later I heard the sound of hoofs behind us. This gave me no uneasiness, but the moment it struck the ears of my companions they took their Winchesters from where they were fastened on the saddle and began to look back intently. A moment later a dozen horsemen came around the point of a bluff at full speed. Several of the party fired at us. My companions returned the shots and dashed away, leaving the horses they were leading. I had no doubt that the thieves from whom they had recovered the horses were in pursuit, so followed as fast as I could. We were in an open place near the river and headed for some cotton woods about a quarter of a mile distant. Our horses were on the run, and though when I glanced back I saw that our pursuers were gaining on us, still we could easily have reached the timber ahead of them had not a shot from the party behind hit the deputy sheriff. He fell forward and struck the ground heavily, while his horse dashed away. The sheriff stopped and returned to him, while a ball whistled so uncomfortably close to my own ears that I concluded to do the same. Our pursuers came up and surrounded us. It was growing quite dark by this time, and I could not well make out their features, though I thought they looked more like farmers than horse thieves. In a moment my suspicions were confirmed.

"I reckon we've got ye this time," said one of the party, "an' ye bet we'll show ye what this 'ere vigilance committee considers good for hoss thieves!"

The wounded man was taken up and placed on horseback, two men were detailed to guard each one of us and we started back. I tried to explain my connection with the others, but was silenced by the gruff voice of the leader, who assured me that I would have a chance to explain things at the trial. This relieved me somewhat, as I had no doubt that I could easily prove my innocence. We rode till about midnight, when we came to a small cluster of houses called Mineral Springs. We drew up before a long log house, which proved to be a saloon and hotel combined. The bar room was lit up and there were a number of men inside and horses tied outside. They gave a loud cheer when they saw the prisoners, and there was a great deal of hurried conversation. We were taken inside and placed under guard. Twenty or thirty men gathered in the room, when a man said:

"Well, boys, we've brought 'em in, an' we got the hosses. I reckon we'd better try the men an' fix everything up to-night. The cheerman will please come for'ard."

A man elbowed his way through the crowd and took his seat on a box behind a card table. It was Buck Hawkins. I felt still easier, as I had no doubt he would recognize me and set me at liberty.

The trial was very informal, and the other two were quickly disposed of. They claimed that they had found the horses cached further up the creek and never stole them. It was admitted that perhaps they found them hidden, but it was charged that some others of the gang put them there. "Besides," said one man, "s'pose they did find 'em cached—what bus'ness they got tryin' to run 'em out the country?"

"That's it," said Hawkins, whose judicial mind instantly grasped this important point, "they hadn't no business at all, an' I reckon we'd better hang 'em fer luck."

This was assented to with a yell and Hawkins started to get up. I saw that I had been included with the others and that I must crowd in my defense. I accordingly asked them to hold on and told my story. When I finished a short thick set man shoved his hands a little deeper into his pockets and said.

"Gentlemen, I want 'o remark I've heered that air story occasionally before this!"

This was greeted by a loud laugh and everybody agreed to it.

"But see here, Hawkins," I said, my heart beginning to sink, "you know me—you've seen me before."

"Oh, I reckon I seed ye once," he replied without looking at me.

"Then you know I'm not a horse thief."

"Can't say that I do. I saw ye on a steamboat a couple of months ago, but hoss thieves can ride on steamboats."

Like nearly everything else this was agreed to with loud applause. I saw that my chances were growing desperate, and used every argument in my power to convince them that I was innocent. The men I had fallen in with put in their testimony in my behalf, but to no effect. They were especially anxious to see me hang after one of the committee closely scrutinized me, and identified me as Doc Billings, one of the leaders of the gang. "He looks young, but he's a hard one," explained the man. So it was settled that I should hang with the others. All seemed to be in favor of carrying the sentence out immediately. Here Hawkins rose and said:

"Gentlemen, it wouldn't be a fair shake for the other boys—wait till mornin' till they come in to help. Besides, they may bring in some more of the gang, an' we can string 'em all up together."

This was agreed to as readily as everything else, and we were taken to an empty log house a little distance from the rest and three men detailed to guard us.

We were each given a blanket, and I wrapped mine about me and sank down in a corner with the most terrible feeling I had ever experienced. My past life came before me vividly, and my mother and the home I had so recently left without cause rose up before me and caused me more bitter anguish than it seemed I could endure. My companions, hardened by a desperate life and perhaps by former hair breadth escapes, conversed in whispers for some time, and seemed to take it very coolly. After some time the leader said:

"Young feller, I reckon ye got to dance on air 'long with us."

Whether I replied or not I do not remember, but he continued:

"I'm mighty sorry we got ye into it, but we 'lowed we'd get 'way all right. Ef they swing ye jes' keep up and show yer sand. They say ye're a hoss thief; act 's if ye was one. A feller can't die but once;" and with this philosophical reflection he rolled himself in his blanket, and he and his companion were soon fast asleep.

I tossed and rolled in the corner unable to sleep, and, I might almost say, unable to keep awake. I felt dazed and stupid.

It must have been 3 o'clock when I was startled by the door opening and one of the guards stepping in. He came over to my corner and told me to come out. I did so, and as I stepped through the door I saw a man on horseback and another horse saddled and bridled.

"There's your hoss," said the man as he leaned down from the saddle, and I recognized his voice as that of Hawkins. "Get on, an' I'll show you out o' this."

At first I could hardly comprehend him. The prospect of deliverance—and that by the judge who sentenced me—fairly overpowered me. He warned me to be quick, and I scrambled on my pony and rode away by Hawkins' side, none of the guards offering any resistance.

We rode for some distance in silence. Then Hawkins said:

"There's a loose board in the floor, an' they'll think ye got out there. I can't go with you very far, but I reckon ye can get away. Keep north o' Yankton, an' don't show yerself to anybody ef ye can help it. Skip down into Iowa, an' then go home an' stay there."

"I'll do that," I replied, "if I get away."

"That's right—this is no country fer boys. Ye did me a little favor pickin' up them chips on the boat that time an' I'm willin' to do as much fer ye."

"Why, Hawkins, I can't tell you how thankful I am—but that was no favor I did on the boat—nothing at all, and this saving my life—look at the difference."

"Oh, that's all right—no difference at all—jes' what we both had a chance to do, an' neither of us couldn't do no more. Don't say no more 'bout that. I knew ye didn't steal them hosses an' didn't want to see ye hang fer it."

"But how did you know I didn't have something to do with it after all?"

"Why, cuss it, ye see I stole the hosses myself!"

"You?"

"Yes, me an' some other fellers. We cached them up on Chouteau creek an' these Nebraska fellers tried to run 'em off. I reckon the moral health o' the community demands that they swing."

"But was that crowd horse—that is—were they all your friends?"

"Oh, no, some of 'em were farmers. Ye see I'm cheerman of the Anti-Horse Thief society, and all my gang are prominent members. We have to have in some o' the farmers an' other people to lend respectability to the society, ye know, but I'm elected cheerman every time, an' we generally put the outsiders in as vice presidents or something. I find my position mighty handy in my profession. Well, I can't go any further with ye; hurry 'long an' I reckon you'll be all right, though the vice presidents will be lookin' fer ye in the mornin' an' we may hev to hunt easy like ourselves. Go back home an' stay there!"

He turned and rode back in the gray dawn of morning. I went on as fast as possible and got safely out of the country. I went home and appreciated it, and when I struck the territory again five years after I can truly say that it was with regret that I learned that Buck Hawkins had been treacherously shot and killed by a member of his own gang, who was also treasurer of the Anti-Horse Thief association.—Dakota Bell.

Bystander—Doctor, what do you think of this man's injuries? Doctor—Humph! Two of them are undoubtedly fatal, but as for the rest of them time alone can tell.—Texas Siftings.

Where Are the Manly Boys?

Can you find me in any of our great cities a manly boy?

If so, he is an exception. Where are the roystering youths of our early days? Where the boys who defied the police, upset ash barrels, raced around the block, played ball in defiance of authority, climbed trees, flew kites, played marbles, wrestled with each other by the hour, had hearty appetites, red cheeks, sturdy muscles and dirty hands?

You can't find them.

There is no such thing in existence within the bounds of any city. Your boys now are milksops, with long tail coats and dude collars that hold their chins in air, rings on their fingers and jewels on their shirt fronts, pale, weak eyed, puny fisted, cigarette stinking machines. If in the very heyday of youth, when red blood should pump thro' their veins with the vigor of an avalanche, if when sleep should be sweet and restless occupation a continuous desire, they are flabby muscled, feeble kneed, listless as to manner, aping the manners and fashions of the vile, what will they be when age settles upon them and the duties of life confront them? And yet these are to be the husbands of our girls, these effeminate, puling, monkeyfied babblings are to be the fathers of our grandchildren, whose votes are to shape the destinies of the republic, whose faculties are to be the props of great enterprises in years to come.—Joe Howard's Letter.

A TEMPERANCE CHAMPAGNE.

We notice the widely advertised Lactart Champagne, whose cut has for some weeks been displayed in our advertising columns, as a refreshing indication that a temperance drink, strictly non-alcoholic, is now coming into vogue. The evil that results from the widely spread indulgence in alcoholic livuors, makes the appearance of this temperance champagne a matter of national importance; for its exhlarating and refreshing qualities will make it without question a formidable rival to the imported liquors. Lactart Champagne is entirely non-alcoholic, is delightful it taste and flavor. It cannot intoxicate. It is sparkling, invigorating, and beneficial to the digestion. Nothing better and calculated to aid the temperance cause, by furnishing a delightful substitute for the injuriour drinks, has ever been introduced to the American public. Its sale is already immense, and increasing at a wonderful rate.

PECULIAR

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," pecular in the phenominal sales it has attained, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purifying the blood, giving strength, and creating an appetite.

A large and appreciative audience assembled at Glover Hall Thursday evening to listen to the operetta "Hunt the Thimble." The young lads and lassies who took part in the concert reflected great honor on their teacher, singing and keeping perfect time and tune. We would notice among the prominent ones Edith Parker, Jennie Teague, Lena Gould, Grace Moody, Josie Hovey, also Harry Chase, Fred Moody and Maurice Feyler, who received many compliments during the evening. Little Hattie Rice as "Little Nell" carried her part finely. No better selection could be made for this part. In part second Mrs. Annie Roakes and Mrs. Hattie Payson gave a duet, and Mrs. Payson a solo on the piano, both receiving great applause for their nicety of touch and expression. Geo. Hallowell won many flattering notices for his fine playing in solo and orchestra. Misses Grace Teague, Nina Mathews and Grace Moody were very pleasing in their trio, being loudly applauded. Blanch Jones sang very sweetly, "Little Maid of Arcadee," Misses Tirzah Burgess and Virgie Richmond were applauded heartily for their duets. Miss Virgie has a wonderfully clear contralto voice. Miss Nellie Parker was very pleasing showing talent of high order as a reader. Myra Kalloch delighted the audience with her recitation, as this little lady always does when called upon to do her part. Altogether it was voted that Mr. Richmond gave a very delighttul and pleasing concert, and the thanks of our people are due him for his interest in the musical welfare of our people, and for giving us so nice an entertainment in every way.

THE EDUCATORS.

They Discuss New Methods of Storing Youthful Minds With Knowledge.

The Knox County Educational Association held its annual session at Vinalhaven last week beginning Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock and closing Friday forenoon. The sessions were well attended and of unusual interest. Interesting papers were presented as follows: "Temperance and Physiology," Miss Louise L. Walker, Rockland, "Best Methods of Conducting Reading Exercises," Miss Maria M. Barrett, Rockport, "Mathematics," Miss Mary B. Grant. In addition to these papers, which elicited discussions of a most spirited character, many practical queries and topics were exhaustively discussed. Among those taking active part in these discussions, under the lead of State Superintendent of Schools N. A. Luce, were C. W. Turner of North Haven, I. J. Burton Warren, Miss Dunton Searsmont, Miss Lillian Wise Colorado, Phebe E. McKinnon Vinalhaven, J. P. Marston Rockland, T. H. McLain Rockland, C. A. Benner Warren, Miss Barrett, F. A. Alden, I. A. Jenkins and Miss Walker.

One of the most interesting portions of the exercises was Mr. McLain's talk on the teaching of Grammar and his outline and analysis work. Mr. McLain's system is original with himself and far superior to anything of the sort published.

The Association officers for the ensuing year are as follows: President, Rev. W. H. Littlefield, Vinalhaven; vice president, C. A. Benner, Warren; secretary and treasurer, Miss Maria M. Barrett, Rockport; supervisor of professional reading, J. P. Marston, Rockland; executive committee, T. H. McLain, Rockland, W. E. Mason, Thomaston, Misses Etta Mullin, Camden, Eliza E. Swan, Warren, Winifred B. Thorndike, Rockport, F. A. Alden, Union, F. H. M. Witham, St. George. Plans for an "Educational Column" in a county newspaper were set forth and the following committee appointed to make necessary arrangements: Rev. W. H. Littlefield, C. A. Benner, Miss Louise Walker, and Miss Walker was elected agent.

STRAY CHUNKS.

Vinalhaven's proverbial hospitality was abundantly exemplified.

Mr. Luce's remarks throughout the sessions were very timely and valuable, and the teachers present felt themselves well repaid for attending.

The following resolutions were passed:

"That the Knox County Educational Association extend heartfelt thanks to Rev. W. H. Littlefield and the other members of the school committee for their interest and earnest attention, to the citizens of Vinalhaven for their hospitality and to the steamer Pioneer for reduced rates."

THE YACHTS.

The committee has selected these dates for the trial races to determine which yacht shall defend the America's cup:

First race—Sept. 13th, at 10 a. m., over the inside course of the New York Yacht Club.

Second race—Sept. 15th, at 10.30 a. m., 20 miles to windward or leeward, and return from Scotland lightship.

Third race—Sept. 17th, at 10.30 a. m. triangular outside course, starting from Scotland lightship.

Besides these dates the America's cup committee, if they so elect, have the option of ordering the sloops to sail also Sept. 14, 16 and 18.

The following are the days on which the races for the America's cup will be sailed, barring unavoidable accidents to either yachts:

First race—Sept. 27th, at 10. a. m., over inside course of New York Yacht Club.

Second race—Sept. 29th, at 10.30 a. m. 20 miles to windward or leeward and return from Scotland or Sandy Hook lightship, as will be determined on the morning of the race.

Third race—Oct 1st, at 10.30 a. m., triangular course of 40 miles, starting at Scotland lightship.

FINE FAIR.

Bangor Again Gives a Big Show—Knox County's Part.

Hundreds went to the Eastern Maine Fair from this vicinity, and were well pleased with the exhibit and all echo the sentiment of the Lewiston Journal in regard to the crowd at the fair, which speaks volumes for the management: "It was an orderly crowd, just such a one as Maine can and does turn out whenever the spirit moves. Intelligent, hardy, well-informed and well-clothed, the people presented a fine appearance, and it is doubtful, numbers being taken into consideration, if the distinguished ladies and gentlemen from Washington, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia were ever in better company. No intoxication, no brawling, no recklessness, no accidents. It speaks volumes for the fifteen thousand men, women and children present.

But we are sorry to chronicle the fact that fertile and thrifty Knox county with her fine herds and extensive farms was so sparingly represented. In the races one Knox county horse, Ganymede, the property of G. B. Ingraham of West Camden, won the free-for-all for pacers in three straight heats, time 2.32, 2.31, 2.32. The gray stallion Aral, bred by J. G. Spaulding of North Haven, once owned by A. B. Fales of this city, and now the property of F. G. Hastings of Damariscotta, was second in the first heat and third in the other two.

C. G. Whitney of Thomaston had on exhibition his fine herd of Jerseys, entering the bull sired by Paugus, dam Flora, Daisy Dean, a Jersey cow. Agnes, a thoroughbred, Ida, Toinette, Midas, Minette, Ivey Bevis, and bull Thomaston Boy, all thoroughbreds. Mr. Whitney carried off his share of the prizes, getting 1st for bulls, 2nd for calf, 1st, 2nd and 3rd for heifers.

SAD SUICIDE.

An Estimable Rockland Lady Becomes Suddenly Insane and Takes Her Life.

Fannie B., wife of Frank B. Shaw, engineer of steamer Henry Morrison, committed suicide by hanging, early yesterday morning. For the past few months Mr. and Mrs. Shaw have been in Boston where the husband was busy about the engine of the new steamer for the Bluehill & Ellsworth line. Recently they returned to their pleasant home on Franklin street, in this city. Mrs. Shaw has been in very poor health for a year or more, but was not one who allowed her bodily troubles to weigh her down. Sunday she and her husband were out riding, and they also called on several neighbors, the lady seeming in her usual good spirits.

About four o'clock yesterday morning Mrs. Shaw got up, telling her husband that she must go out to the barn. She had been gone about twenty minutes when Mr. Shaw went to look for her and found her hanging by a swing rope in the barn. Mr. Shaw called his son, a boy about 16 years of age, and with his help untwisted the rope from the neck of the unfortunate lady and carried the lifeless body into the house. Neighbors were called and a doctor summoned, but medical skill was of no avail. Mr. Shaw is nearly crazed with grief, being tenderly attached to his wife, and she to him.

Besides the boy mentioned there is a little daughter about four years of age. The crazed woman must have ascended the stairs, and twisting the rope about her neck jumped off. She was Fannie B. Shea of Bath, and a most estimable lady, her intimate neighbors, who knew her best, speaking warmly of her many kind and thoughtful acts, and beauty of character. She was 41 years of age.

Creighton; Washington, John L. Savage.

Hastings; Union, C. R. Dunton, C. C. Daggett; Vinalhaven, J. L. Ingerson, H. A. Arey, Dura A. Raymond; Warren, George W. Davis, Elbridge Burton; Washington, J. F. Davis.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

✠ Tenant's Harbor has been having a boom in the ship repair business, three large vessels being in there for extensive repairs and changes.

✠ A crew of eighty men are at work on the two vessels now in process of construction in H. M. Bean's yard, Camden. The first vessel is sealed up and seven streaks of planking put on. She will be off in about two weeks. Schooner Meyer & Muller of Belfast has just discharged a cargo of three hundred and fifty thousand of hard pine from Darien, Ga., for Mr. Bean.

✠ The Belfast Press says that J. F. Wiley, of Lincolnville, is the owner of a rare freak of nature, a lamb which has seven legs. It is about five months old. Its two hind legs and left fore leg are in accordance with nature. Its right fore leg from the shoulder to the foot joint is double boned, and terminates in two distinct feet. From the knee of this leg three other small legs project two of which have regularly formed feet, the third having no foot upon it. Although this lamb has thus seven legs and feet, it goes upon the three natural ones, the others being incapable of use.

FISHING FACTS.

The mackerel which have been taken off Chatham the past week have run very large, some weighing three pounds....Sch. David Osier landed 13000 pounds of hake and haddock for Stephen Chase & Co., Thursday. Wednesday the Ida Grover landed 9000 pounds. They were caught off Matinicus....A Portland and Gloucester vessel each landed small fares here during the week....A fleet of 50 sail of fishermen arrived in Portland early last week with good fares of mackerel....The receipts from the fleet at all New England ports for the past week foot up 8546 barrels, and the total catch is now 39,405 barrels, against 40,083 barrels for the same time last year, and 227,333 barrels in 1885, according to the statement of the Boston Fish Bureau. Several good fares were caught at Block Island and off Cape Cod last week. The total catch of mackerel by the New England fleet up to Sept. 1st, was 37,715 barrels against 37,473 barrels for the same time in 1886, and 235,453 barrels in 1885.....The shore mackerel boats are bringing in from 300 to 1000 pounds each of big fish into Portland every night.....Schooner John M. Plummer arrived in Portland Saturday morning with 225 barrels of prime mackerel. Some of them are so large that ninety of them will fill a barrel. The catch was made off Boone Island. The schooner will try her luck again immediately....Sch. Gracie Young, Whitmore, arrived here Thursday with 12 barrels of mackerel. She is now fitting out for halibuting.

VERY VALUABLE

Is the last Harpers Weekly to Rockland people, or outsiders who wish to learn something about our city. Harry Fenn, the Harper artist, as we stated a week or so ago, has been down this way with his pencil and transferred some of our county scenes to paper. The result of his labors appears in the last Weekly. Camden's beautiful scenery he has very faithfully and admirably depicted, while Mirror Lake is finely portrayed, but when he reached Rockland he must have had the night-mare. He gives one alleged picture of Rockland, purporting to be seen from over the bay, and we fear it was. He shows the cement works in full blast with volumes of smoke pouring from the tall chimneys which have been silent for five years, while near by is what is probably intended for a picture of one of our kilns, but which resembles rather the dismantled remains of some old burned building.

The article accompanying the picture is also valuable for the originality of its data. It says: "Rockland's name is most intimately connected in the public mind with the famous Portland cement" etc. We have quoted enough. Portland cement has not been manufactured here for five years, and but very little was ever manufactured.

Some one says: "Rats!"

HARD LUCK.

The Particulars of the Burning of the Tourist's Home, Isle au Haut.

The particulars of the burning of the Tourist's Home, Isle au Haut, show that the proprietor, E. G. Des Isle, and family had a narrow escape. All the family had retired, when Mr. Des Isle smelling smoke found the house to be on fire. He had barely time to get his family from the house when it was enveloped in flames.

Nothing was saved from the fire; they lost money and clothing. Nearly $250 worth of provisions were in the house at the time. It is supposed that the fire caught from some smouldering soot in the kitchen chimney. The insurance on the house was about $6000. The insurance policy was burnt with the rest of the valuables.

Frank C. McNeely, 19 years old, a clerk in the Saco and Biddeford Savings Bank at Saco, has disappeared with $279,000 in money and securities belonging to the bank.

A BEE HIVE.

Busy Green's Landing—Its Quarries and Other Business.

The Deer Island Gazette has appropriately called Green's Landing the "Bee Hive." The past year has been a prosperous one for this picturesque and busy little place. Real estate has been active, and though lots for building have been in good demand, yet prices have been kept down to reasonable rates, so that prospective house builders are not scared away by fancy figures.

At this Landing, backed up by a continuous high elevation, there is to be obtained one of the grandest and most picturesque views of the ocean and islands found on the Atlantic coast. It is said there are 355 islands in this bay. The great and growing industry of this place is quarrying granite and canning sardines, there being three factories in the place, two of which are now in full operation. Fifteen quarries are mostly in full operation the year round, a good part of them being located on the islands in the harbor and bay.

There are now thirteen granite quarries in full blast. They are getting out stone for the Boston and New York markets and also for the Harlem River bridge. The cutters are making from $80 to $100 per month. The Union Granite Company (Russ & Bray) have shipped since June 1st, eighteen cargoes of granite, six of them being cut stone. The manager, G. L. Bray, is a very energetic and enterprising business men, and when he takes hold of any project it has got to move.

Among others of the prominent and progressive granite dealers of the place are B. S. & C. C. Thurlow, who do a big business, and C. A. Russ, who keeps a well-stocked variety store at the Landing, and is also a heavy operator and owner of these quarries, among which is the famous Crotch Island Quarry.

Music Hall, built last season, has been patronized by numerous traveling companies this season. It is a fine building standing on an eminence, having a fine view of the bay and surrounding islands. It is 80 feet long by 40 wide and has a seating capacity for one thousand; with a good stage and one of the best floors for dancing in the state. The proprietor, C. U. Russ, is one of the town's young, enterprising business men.

The new hotel, the Ocean View, is having a liberal patronage. The guests speak in glowing terms of their accommodations. The landlady, Mrs. Violette Goss, has a word of welcome for each guest, and with the good-cooked, appetizing food, clean, soft beds and home-like welcome given each one, we bespeak for the Ocean View a prosperous future.

The village is rapidly increasing in population and its real estate is increasing in value. Although perhaps it does not expect to rival Bar Harbor as a summer resort, it can offer as great inducements to capitalists as any place on the coast of Maine. The island has a population of four thousand, and with its numerous villages and various business enterprises, it bids fair to rank as one of Maine's smartest watering places, as the capitalist there can combine business with pleasure.

The island is connected with the mainland by four different lines of steamers, and there are at Green's Landing two express offices, nine stores, a telegraph office and two sardine factories.

APPLETON ARTICLES.

The Simmons reunion has been postponed until Sept. 13th.

Carrie L., the little daughter of A. C. Gushee, is quite sick with gastric fever.

E. D. Gushee is building a cooper shop. Will save him a lot of carting of cooper stock.

Jedediah Simmons is making extensive repairs on his house, in fact, building it new on the outside.

Fannie Gushee is teaching the fall term of school in the Morang district. She is much pleased with the school.

John Hall raised this season 248 1-2 bushels of grain, mill measure. Think he takes the cake on grain in this town, but it must be either a barley cake or oat cake as he raised 70 bushels of barley and the balance oats.

NORTH HOPE.

Geo. Hall is making a visit on Matinicus.

Miss Annie Fuller has been at Mrs. F. P. Conant's.

D. H. Mansfield and wife attended the Bangor fair last week.

Mrs. Nancy Simmons is entertaining a houseful of summer company.

Geo. D. Parker and wife and daughter and Charles Ramson, all of Malden, Mass., have been visiting at D. H. Mansfield's.

Misses Lillian Rich of Lewiston, Bessie Merry of Bath, Mamie Heal and Ethel Balch of Lynn, Mass., are spending their vacation at E. H. Heal's.

HURRICANE ISLE.

The campers have gone.

Sch. Active is loading paving blocks for New York.

W. A. Hill of Rockland was in town Tuesday.

Thomas. F. Landers is confined to the house with sickness.

Miss Mamie Shields has returned from a brief visit in Rockland.

HOPE HAPPENINGS.

L. P. True of Hope has a contract for 15,000 cans of squash and 22,000 cans of corn for the European parties. Nothing is too nice for Europeans. They evidently know where to get good goods.

At Bartlett & Payson's cider mill from 3000 to 4000 barrels of apples are converted into 11,000 gallons of cider each fall.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

WORDS OF WELCOME.

Selectman Ware's Timely Speech to the Heavy Artillery Boys.

On the occasion of the recent reunion of the First Me. Heavy Artillery Association at Vinalhaven the guests were welcomed by Selectman Ware in words so appropriate and eloquent that by request we publish the speech:

Gentlemen of the First Maine Heavy Artillery Association: On behalf of the people of Vinalhaven, I welcome you with open hands and warm hearts. This day is your day in Vinalhaven, and with no reluctance may you enjoy the freedom of our island town. We hope your entertainment may be such while with us, as to afford you no reproach for having voluntarily designated Vinalhaven your place of annual meeting. You, gentleman, are the living representation of the First Maine Heavy Artillery. Your organization is the first to honor us with an annual reunion of this kind. We receive that honor with deep significance. May you enjoy today what we, from our geographical location, enjoy every day, a sniff of the ocean's balmy breeze. The freedom to inspect our granite works, to ramble through our quarries, and in fact to visit any of our industries is yours. Let me say to you, this is where our present governor first engaged in the granite business in Maine. Our little island town is represented in all the large cities of the United States by our buildings. Fish caught by our fishermen furnish a good supply found in the markets of all our large cities, and, by the way, in which Col. Libby is a large dealer. Your annual reunions are the perpetuation of your organization. Civil organizations are typical of the American people. Organization is the life of our government. Organization first gave the United States birth. Organization, such as you are the survivors of, in one of the most bitter of wars, saved this Union. We can scarcely believe the story of the sacrifice of blood for this treasure. In how many cities and towns can we behold beautiful and shapely monuments, erected in memory of the brave soldiers who gave their lives for their country's defence. Yonder stands Vinalhaven's silent emblem in memory of her brave boys who never returned alive. How many mothers never saw their sons return alive! How many wives never saw their husbands return alive! How many children became fatherless from that most terrible war. Your Grand Army organization is found in almost every town. Ours is here and will greet you on this your annual reunion, as no new acquaintance, but as old acquaintances, parted long ago.

Gentlemen, what a gratification it must be to you, after being participants in that fearful struggle, to see a reunited country. May the stars and stripes peacefully float over an undivided union forever. May you, gentlemen, survivors of that war, have a warm reception wherever you hold your annual reunion. May you all live to enjoy many more.

SIGNAL SERVICE.

The Department Announces a Change in the System.

The chief signal officer at Washington has decided to display signals with a view to distinguish between light and severe storms, and with the intention of showing whether the storm-center has reached or passed the display station as well as the probable direction from which severe winds are expected. The new system will take into consideration the fact that westerly winds of high velocity with clear weather are less dangerous than those from easterly quarters with freezing weather. Displayman Shea of White Head has received the following orders:

From September 1st there will be displayed, as storm conditions may demand, day signals of two kinds.

1st. A cautionary signal, a yellow flag with a white center, will indicate that the winds expected are not so severe but well-found and sea-worthy vessels can meet them without great danger.

2d. A storm signal (now in use), a red flag with a black center, will indicate that the storm is expected to be of more marked violence.

In order to afford the public as exact information as possible regarding the relative position of the storm and the winds expected, two pennants will be displayed. A red pennant will indicate that the winds are to be easterly, that is, from northeast to south, inclusive, and that the storm-center is approaching. The white penant will indicate westerly winds, that is, from north to southwest, inclusive, and that the storm-center has passed. While it is intended that the pennant shall indicate positively only whether the winds will be easterly or westerly, yet, in order to give still more definite information, the red or easterly pennant will be displayed above the cautionary or storm signal for winds from the northeast quadrant and below for winds from the south-east quadrant. In like manner, the white pennant, while indicating westerly winds alone, will show by its position above the cautionary or storm signal that northwesterly winds are probable, or by being below that they will be from the southwest quadrant.

In view of the difficulty of varying night signals, they will not distinctively show the force, but indicate the wind-direction only; a red light for easterly winds, and red and white light for westerly winds.

ITS GALLANT CHARGE.

One of the Most Noteworthy Occurrences of the War.

It has always been a disputed question as to who ordered the charge of the First Maine Heavy Artillery, on the 18th of June, 1864, when so many men lost their lives, there being left unhurt but 268 men out of the 900 who went into the fight. In the forthcoming history of the regiment by Col. F. E. Shaw, the following letter from Major General Robert McAllister will appear, which fully explains the matter, and fixes the responsibility of the order that sent so many brave men to their deaths. The letter was written in January last to Major Fred C. Low, formerly of Bangor:

ALLENTOWN, PENN., Jan. 14, 1871.

Major FRED C. LOW:—

My Dear Sir:—In all my army experience no scene of carnage and suffering is so impressed on my mind as that fatal charge made by your regiment on the 18th of June, 1864. The history of that charge, as well as the one preceding it, is very familiar to me; I took part in the first.

I was in command, temporarily, of the 2d Brigade of our Division for a few days. The Commander of that Brigade having been wounded while advancing on the enemy on the evening of the 16th, I was ordered by Gen. Birney to take command of it. On the morning of the 18th we moved forward on the enemy's works—carried the first line without much difficulty, as the enemy were about leaving this line for the stronger one in the rear of it. Arriving in front of that, we found it manned by a strong force of artillery and infantry. After delaying a little I was ordered to advance on the enemy's works. We went forward. They poured on my Brigade a terrific storm of shot, shell and musketry, and my men fell like forest leaves under a hail storm.

Seeing the utter impossibility of advancing further, we dropped down, planted our standard along the line and kept up the fire. I sent a report back to Division Headquarters and asked what I was to do. Orders came to retire from my position. In doing this I lost heavily. On reporting to Gen. Mott for orders I was ordered to place my Brigade on the reserve ready for action. I asked, "Where is my old Brigade?" Gen. Mott replied "Just going in where you came out." I exclaimed, "God help then!" He asked, "Why?" I answered "They cannot advance on those works—they cannot live—the entilade fire will cut them down." Just as I said this, an aid from Headquarters rode up and said to the General "Order the advance at once." It was done.

The Brigade moved off—your fine Regiment handsomely in front. You went gallantly not to meet success. That was impossible—you were a forlorn hope. In a few minutes, out of your regiment which advanced 900 strong, 632 lay low on the battlefield. Darkness soon overspread the field, and I was very anxious that my wounded men who had fallen in the previous charge and lay between the enemy's line and ours should be brought off, as well as those belonging to your Brigade and Regiment, some of whom had advanced still further than mine. Expressing this anxiety, some of my command volunteered the hazardous undertaking; and that it might be done as quietly as possible, I sent only a few with orders to move very quietly lest the enemy should discover them. With these orders they went. It was necessary to go very close to the enemy's line, which they did. The enemy detected them—opened fire, and the opportunity was lost.

All that night we could distinctly hear the groans of the wounded and their cries for help; but no succor could be sent them on account of the constant fire. My Brigade worked the whole night long to push our works forward, so that we might rescue them. That terrible night at last broke into another day, (the 19th); the battle continued with increased fury; the sun poured down on the dying and wounded, and amid the rattling of musketry and roaring cannon, we heard the cries of our comrades for "water!" "water!"

When that long, terrible day was over and night again threw her dark mantle over the contending forces, and the fire slackened, I pushed my Brigade forward and built new breastworks, the line of which ran through where your men lay the thickest, and most of your dead and wounded as well as mine were brought off. That line was never pushed further but remained as our advanced outpost until the end of that great and terrible struggle before Petersburg.

Whether history will do you justice or not, permit me to say that no language can be too strong in its praise of your gallant Regiment in that splendid, noble, heroic charge—when almost three-fourths of your number fell—fighting for their country; this, then, my dear Major, is why I regard the 1st Maine Heavy Artillery as a good Regiment.

I am yours very truly,
ROBERT MCALLISTER,
Late Brevet Maj. Gen. U. S. A. Vols.

"Volunteer" writes to the World that the defeat of the Thistle in the coming race is certain, because there are seven letters in the name, and all the British yachts that have heretofore competed for the cup and been beaten had seven letters. He mentioned the Livonia, Cambria, Genesta and Galatea.
