...The Lambda Nu Kappa Society has gone into insolvency after a meteoric existence of one term. The Tau Delta Kappa Society on the contrary has just celebrated its second anniversary and is in a flourishing condition.

"Managed by boys"...The addition of music to the rhetorical exercises Saturdays is a pleasing and commendable improvement....The second anniversary of the Tau Delta Kappa Society was celebrated by the members Friday evening in royal style. The early part of the evening was passed in a debate and the oratorical power displayed would have done credit to Demosthenes. The subject under discussion was: Resolved, That examinations are a fair test for obtaining the rank of students. Mc-Loon 1st and Black took the affirmative, while Hayden and Spear 2d lent their eloquence to the negative, the effect of which on the judges was noticeable, for they decided in the negative as did the academy. This part of the program was followed by an exercise in Cushing's Manual in which the disciples displayed much knowledge. But the crowning feature of the evening was the banquet. Were your serine to state how much those hungry disciples devoured he would be set down as an author of fiction, and for fear of such a punishment hedesists. The evening's entertainment, which by the way has no parallel in the history of the academy, ended very pleasantly by singing, all who were in condition taking part. Everybody expressed a desire to witness the 3rd anniversary, and on quitting the building after giving three hearty cheers for the society....
The Senior Class only had two halfholidays last week....Five more weeks, and then—farewell class of '90.

SHOOTING AFFAIR.

A Rockland Woman Shoots a Man at the Door of Her Sleeping Room.

Last Sunday evening, at about half past ten o'clock, information was received at police headquarters that a shooting affray had taken place at No. 24, Rockland street. Early Monday morning a representative of the COURIER-GAZETTE called at the scene of tragedy for the particulars of the affair. The house is a low, unpainted structure on the same side of the street as the U. S. Marine Hospital, and only a short distance from it. The room in which the shooting occurred is on the second floor near the stairs which lead directly to the front door. Upon entering we found Albion H.
Titus, the victim of the shooting, propped up in bed in the room which was occupied the night before by his assailant, Mrs. Mary A.
Burgess. Her husband, Charles A. Burgess, is master of the schooner Mary Brewer, a time coaster owned by Perry Bros. Several persons were in the room at the time when the reporter entered, among whom were the husband and mother of Mrs. Burgess.

Making known our visit to Mr. Titus he kindly furnished us his version of the affair.

He stated that he was a hostler by occupation, and at the present time in the employ of Capt. Hurley and W. B. Hills of the Lindsey House. For some time he had been making his home at Mrs. Burgess' house. Upon asking him if in the capacity of a boarder, he replied that he was not, but was sort of staying there.

Sunday afternoon he made preparations to go out, but Mrs. Burgess angrily ordered him to remain at home. He left, however, and was seen during the afternoon in company with a young lady at the South-end. Shortly after 10 o'clock he returned to the house and knocked at the door of the sleeping room which Mrs. Burgess and her husband were occupying. She asked him what he wanted and on replying that he wanted his working clothes, she refused to admit him, saying he could not have them until morning. He repeated his request, but she took no notice of it.
He then began kicking and pounding the door and kept this up until he succeeded in knocking out the upper panelling. At this stage of proceedings she rose from her bed, grabbed a 32 calibre revolver, lying near her on a shelf, and covered him with it. Feeling sure that she meant business, he gave a leap to the floor below, but before he could gather himself up for his flight she opened on him. The bullet struck him in the left side, just above the hip, inflicting a bad wound. He fell to the room below, but had strength enough to ascend the stairs and remove his clothes unaided. Dr.
Hitchcock was immediately summoned and made an examination. He found the twelfth rib, which the bullet encountered in its course, badly splintered. He probed some time for the bullet but was unable to locate it. His left arm was found to be paralyzed, which would seem to indicate that the bullet had come in contact with the spine. The attack of paralysis is of a temporary nature as he had some control over the arm Monday afternoon. Mr.
Titus was quite comfortable Monday morning, but complained of a dull, heavy feeling near the lumbar region. Capt. Burgess and Mrs.
Herbert, Mrs. B.'s mother, have given Titus all the attention and assistance that could be possibly rendered.

Mrs. Herbert undertook to enlighten the reporter on some matters, but was told by some one present not to make any statements.

What led Mrs. Burgess to commit the deed has not at the time of writing been clearly demonstrated. She states that Titus made no talk with her when he smashed the door, and mistaking him for a burglar, she shot him. It is the opinion that in a moment of jealousy and pique, she was led to play the part of a tragedian in real life. It is well known that he has been in her company much of late when her husband was absent.

Mrs. Burgess has been matrimonially inclined, Mr. Burgess being her second husband.
Late Monday forenoon, Titus wrote a note to his mother stating that he shot himself, but this has no weight in the face of Mrs. Burgess' admission that she did the deed, acting under the presumption that Titus was a burglar.

She was arrested by Officers Crockett and Hamilton shortly after the shooting, and was at once lodged in the police station.

At 7 o'clock this morning the condition of Titus was greatly improved. Strong hopes are now entertained for his recovery. He is under the care of Nelson P. Hamilton, the capable nurse at the Marine Hospital. Titus slept from 11 o'clock last evening until 1.30 this morning. He then awoke with severe pains in the locality of the wound. His symptoms at this time were quite feverish. He again fell asleep about 5 o'clock and slept soundly for an hour. He was able to eat a light breakfast and converse quite freely with the writer. By request, he repeated the account of the shooting which did not vary in any particular feature from the one he gave the COURIER-GAZETTE representative early yesterday morning.

GEORGE'S VALLEY RAILROAD.

E. P. Clark of Salisbury, N. B., was in this city last week negotiating for a contract to build the George's Valley Railroad, to connect Warren with Union. He visited Warren Saturday to hold a meeting with the directors.

We learn that no contract could be made and Mr. Clark returned home. Mr. Clark must have entertained strong hopes of securing the contract as he had Mr. Frites, the foreman with him to make arrangements for the operations, and had engaged a large crew of Italians to do the work. The road is to be built, of that there must be no doubt, for the gentleman having the affairs at heart are workers and mean to "get there." We wish Mr. Clark had got the contract and the Etyallians were at work now on Knox County mud.

BOUND FOR CARDIFF.

"I want a ticket for Cardiff," greeted the ears of the business manager as he sat at the desk making out bills for delinquent subscribers
Monday morning.

On looking up—or down—he discovered a little five-year-old boy with a big valise packed full and labelled "Cardiff, Tenn."

"Who are you?" said the manager.

"I'm Pearl Mitchell, from West Camden, Maine, and I'm bound for Cardiff."

The manager gave him a penny to buy some tally, and while he was absent he looked over his valise and found among other things that he had been provided with the necessary thicksoled shoes for the return trip. When the boy returned further questioning revealed the fact that he had come from West Camden with his uncle, a prominent ice dealer, whose initials are E. L. Cleveland, and the later arrival of that gentleman revealed the joke.

We had the little fellow photographed, with his valise and dandelion bouquet, and will add the picture to our curiosity collection.

benevolently presented by you, and tender to you our honest, heartfelt thanks. May its

WASHINGTON.

Sidney E. Kaler, who is at work in Union,
was at home over Sunday.

E. W. Farrar and T. S. Bowden went to Nobleboro Friday on a business trip.

PUNGENT AND POINTED.

Thought Out, Wrought Out and Dug Out.

Princess Victoria, sister of Emperor William, intends to start housekeeping in London. She will not marry.

Mrs. Hattie Johnson, wife of Clayton Johnson, a Syracuse hotelkeeper, shot herself with a rifle after a scolding by her husband.

Ben Butler no longer has that immortal "cock-eye." An operation has raised the drooping lid and Ben has lost his rakish air.

Bismarck has 103 decorations. Fourteen are set in diamonds of considerable value. His next decoration will be set in a granite socket.

William Waldorf Astor has given $5000 to the charitable fund of the New York Press Club. Wish he would remember the Maine Press Association.

Kemmler's application for a writ of habeas corpus has been denied by the United States Supreme Court. Applications has been made for a writ of error.

Yan Phoo Lee, a Chinaman and graduate of Yale University, who married Miss Elizabeth Mand Jerome, is being sued for a divorce on the usual grounds.

An Associated Press patch states that there was a hot fire at Purgatory Mills lately. We don't see how it could have been otherwise in that famed locality.

Nathan Arrow, an artist of New York, was arrested on complaint of a woman who claims him as her long lost husband. He says he never saw her before in his life.

Ella Taylor, aged 14, of Dysart, Ia., shot herself because she could not get the young fellow she wanted. She should have shot the young man to prevent some other girl getting him.

John F. Hickey, aged 13, a victim of cigarette smoking, died of lockjaw at the Wood Memorial Hospital at New Brunswick, N. J. This is the only kind of lock that will keep some people's mouth shut.

Mrs. W. H. Kelley, who has been elected mayor of Edgerton, Kan., is 23 years of age. She is the youngest mayor in the country. The law breakers of that town now go around armed with cages of mice.

George K. Felt, Jr., of Lansingburgh, great great grandson of Flores Dancker, who laid out Troy, N. Y., in 1786, owns the compass with which the original survey was made. Like Alexander Selkirk he was probably monarch of all he surveyed.

Harriet S. Benson is one of the wealthiest unmarried ladies in Philadelphia. She is worth $2,400,000. On learning the above we at once informed Miss Benson that we were yet unpledged fruit on the matrimonial tree, and extremely willing to be gathered.

Mr. Grover Cleveland has bought three lots of land at Plymouth, Mass. We do not know what kind were purchased, but presume, from recent occurrences, that they were cemetery lots. Probably one each is intended for David B. Hill, Editor Dana of the Sun and the New York World interviewer.

Burt Price and Alvin Willard, two young bloods of Lockport, N. Y., engaged in a prize fight to settle their rival claims to a girl's favor. Willard knocked his opponent out in the fifth round. If the young lady is wise she will choose the one who got knocked out.

A man has a perfect right to invest his money where he pleases. He may go south and put it in Hog Creek, or west and put it in Gulchville, but there is more money to be made right here in the next ten years than anywhere else you can name under the sun.

Many people have heretofore considered it no crime to steal an umbrella, but it was not until last week that it was judiciously established. John S. Herr of New York was recently arrested and tried for stealing an umbrella from the hand of a young lady who was walking on the street at the time. He admitted the taking, but the jury, not considering it a criminal offense, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

CORALLED COMMENT.

Lassoed From the Column of Our Wide Awake Exchanges.

Maine Farmer: By the defeat of the long pending copyright on their works published in this country, Congress has virtually decided that there is no such thing as property in brains.

Portland Advertiser: That little Newfoundland pup which is bristling up in the Yankee mastiff in such a ridiculous manner and pitching his fish overboard, will have to be taught a lesson. It will not take more than a million such outrages as that on the Gloucester schooner Rapid Transit to loose the dogs of war.

Bideford Standard: There is a touch of the pathetic in the announcement that Miss Frances Willard is trying to raise funds to secure a portrait bust of Miss Susan Anthony for exhibition at the World's fair. If these two young women were nicely married, they might accomplish a far greater amount of good in the world with a good deal less fuss.

Auburn Gazette: If any rum-seller is curious to test the efficacy of the "original package" decision in protecting his business, it might be a good idea for him to select Auburn for the scene of the trial. We are inclined to think that he would not have tried it on long before coming to the melancholy conclusion that the State of Maine's prohibitory law has a few teeth left yet, and that Auburn knows how to use them.

The "Machias," for which Mr. Bontelle wants one of the Bath-built gunboats named, captured, in 1775, the British war schooner Margareta off Machias, after a battle in which twenty men were killed. She was built in Maine, and her crew was comprised of Maine volunteers.

It's economical—Brussels soap.

QUERY DRAWER.

98. "P. A."—New Tipperary is a town in Ireland, two-thirds as large as Rockland, that has the distinction of being the only new and "quiet American" town in Europe. Tipperary, in south central Ireland, southeast of Limerick, is situated on Arra, a branch of the Suir which flows southeasterly to Waterford Harbor. Tipperary is owned by landlord Smith-Barry by ancestral royal grant, and has been tenanted by a rent-paying and oppressed people. By the help of friends who advanced the requisite money New Tipperary has been built, a mile and a half distant, in better style and with better streets and conveniences; and the lower rentals will enable tenants to put by enough savings to buy and own their homes. The whole town population moved in processions with music and banners, and Tipperary was deserted in a day, for New Tipperary which had risen in eight months like a city of the West.

99. "P. K."—The way a criminal could pass out of sight and notice in England, like Williams a century ago, was only too easy. He might be remanded to prison to await judgment and be forgotten. The turnkey could give him no information about his case, and the prisoner would never be the one called for. At last he would die and be buried unknown. Many a criminal thus perished in the prisons of the state. The "Man with the Iron Mask" was a prisoner in French prisons, the Pigneron, Isle of Ste. Marguerite, and Bastille, whose name as Guizot says "was never certainly known;" but he was not forgotten. He was closely guarded, to be killed if he raised his mask or spoke his name. He was at last buried under an assumed name. His poetical Iron Mask was prosaically a mask of black velvet, stayed with whalebone, and securely fastened behind. He was carried to the Pigneron in 1679; died at the Bastille in 1703.

100. "P. & C."—Fidelity and Casualty, 1876. The first company to insure an employee's fidelity to his employer, or to give bonds to secure the latter against dereliction or fraud, was the Fidelity and Casualty. It also assured against loss by accident to the employee. There are now several such companies. These companies benefit both employer and employee. They enable the latter to get bonds by paying for them, without calling upon unwilling friends; and sometimes the employee might not be able to find acceptable bondsmen. They furnish the employer with a safe collateral, and one that can be scrutinized. A friend may be a good bondsman when accepted, and yet may soon be valueless as security. A company's standing can be inspected and can always be ascertained or proven. The company's bonds though better as present security have a disadvantage in the single and rare case of fraud concealed for a lifetime and at last discovered, perhaps at a time when the liability of the company has ceased or when the company itself has ceased to exist. The personal bondsmen could still be held and his estate would have to pay the obligation. For this reason, we think, Savings Banks may prefer the personal security or the Commissioner may require it. State Legislatures, wherever the names of two or more parties were required upon a bond, had to permit the acceptance of the corporate or company bond signed by its president or authorized attorney.

101. "Quiz"—If your statement is right, there is no contradiction. An assertion may be "subjectively truth" and "objectively falsehood," if the one who made it supposed it to be true while it was actually untrue. Subjectively refers to the mind of the speaker; objectively, to the matter of the assertion. The assertion could not be called a "lie," for that word critically means that the assertion was untrue in the mind of the speaker. The other point is grossly exaggerated. A lie is forbidden by the same authority that forbids theft, murder, adultery, blasphemy, and other sins. Whether a lie is a greater sin than some other depends, we should say, upon the question of offence to the authority, or injury or treason to it. That sin must be the greatest which has in it most of wrong and least of right. Does your disputant consider the fact that motive, intention, ignorance, and other circumstances modify every kind of guilt, before the bar of highest justice? Let him also consider that disloyalty to great interests may be a species of lie. Words are not the only form it assumes. The doctrine that our highest allegiance is due to our country is quite loyal, but not very religious. It has been held that God and conscience demand the highest allegiance. The old Abolitionists so held. They were loyal and patriotic, for all that.

LITERARY NOTES.

A portrait of Murat Halstead, who regularly contributes a review of current events of the day to the Cosmopolitan magazine, appears in the frontispiece of the June number. This is followed by an article by the late Minister of Persia, Mr. S. G. W. Benjamin, on Farm Life and Irrigating in that remote and interesting country. Mr. Lafcadio Hearn contributes a study of the Half-Breed Races in the West Indies, and an extremely popular article, entitled Side Glances at American Beauty, by Eleanor Waddle, is illustrated with reproductions of photographs of some of the most beautiful women of the United States, selected from the more prominent cities, Memphis, Baltimore, Boston, New York, Leavenworth, and many others. Full descriptive personal notes accompany these engravings. The complete short novel of the number is entitled A Ghost At His Fireside, and is by Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton, with illustrations by Mr. Albert E. Steiner.

THE LOUISIANA LOTTERY.

Denounced in Vigorous Style by the Governor of that State.

In a message to the General Assembly last week, Gov. Nichol attacked the Louisiana Lottery in a vigorous style. He said if the lottery again became firmly planted in the state the most direful and consequential consequence would result. It will hold the purchasable vote of the state solidly in its hands forever and make and unmake governors, judges and all other officials at its will. He warns the Assembly of this great menace to the rights of the people and the good name of the state, and hopes that the ability, integrity and public spirit of the assembly will not permit a handful of men to promote their own personal interests to the disgrace and dishonor of the state.

BEAUTIFUL CAMDEN.

Norumbega Fountain the Largest One in the State—A Busy Season Assured.

Hon. J. B. Stearns has just finished his magnificent fountain and has it in playing order. He has had plumbers, masons and other laborers at work on it the past five or six weeks, getting the grounds ready and putting it up. It is in reality a triple fountain—one above the other. The lower fountain is sixteen feet in diameter, the middle fountain nine feet and the top fountain four feet in diameter. The height of this triple combination is thirty feet and its graceful proportions are very pleasing to the eye.

The beautiful fountain is a most appropriate addition to the grounds of Villa Norumbega. It is in full view as one drives along Belfast Road, rows about the harbor or rambles over Sherman's Point. It is the largest fountain in the state, is supplied with water from Mirror Lake and is a fitting ornament to Camden's picturesque scenery. Mr. Stearns is still continuing his improvements on Norumbega. Sagamore and Selborne. Five yoke of oxen and some fifteen hands besides carpenters are kept constantly at work, building, blasting, plowing, planting, hauling, draining, etc. Selbourne Cottage, furnished, has been spoken for by a wealthy New Yorker for the season, and Roseland Cottage is also rented for the season to a New York party.

Camden promises to be very lively this summer. Many inquiries for private board are being received. A fine opportunity is afforded in the vicinity for another first-class private boarding house. There would be no difficulty in having it filled early in the season. The little book "The Camden Mountains on the coast of Maine" is doing good service for our town by giving outsiders an idea of our many natural attractions and the ease of our accessibility, and by letting people know there is such a place as Camden with her mountains by the sea—a place where capitalists may invest with better chances for profits than in East Tennessee, and with a surety of health and pleasure.—Industrial Journal.

Salaries of Methodist Ministers.

Rev. C. S. Cummings pastor of the Pratt Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church of this city, takes exception to the statement which originally appeared in the Bath Daily Times to the effect that the salaries of the Methodist ministers of the Maine conference received on an average, but 80 cents per day. He denies this most emphatically in a vigorous article to the Times which we subjoin:

A paragraph is being circulated by the daily and weekly papers, to the effect that at the Methodist conference recently held at Bath, it appeared that the compensation of Methodist ministers at the Maine conference averaged but 81 cents per day! Whatever the source of this statement may have been it has not a syllable of truth in it. The annual minutes for 1889 show that 102 pastors received $347.15, on an average of a little more than $34 for the year. This would be an average for 313 working days of a trifling over $2 per day. Take out a half dozen places where the salary was very small the average would be much more.

In the East Maine Conference including the large but sparsely settled Aroostook county 205 Methodist ministers received in salaries $57,989, or an average of $547. As five preachers were on their charges but a part of the year the actual average receipts were more than this. But it must not be forgotten that a minister's total income is much more than his salary. Marriage fees, occasional gifts for officiating at funerals, various gifts from other sources, reduction of railroad and steamboat fares, discount in the prices of food and clothing, and often the gratuitous service of physical, class give ministers advantages that no other class of men enjoy. To be sure some men could get much more pay in some other line than in the ministry; but on the other hand, many others get much more money in the ministry than they could in any other occupation; but it would be a disadvantage even financially to the average Methodist minister in New England to be put out of the ministry.

Many superannuated preachers receive but little in their helplessness years. But physicians, lawyers, merchants, farmers &c, receive nothing under like circumstances. They live upon the earnings of earlier years. What worn out preachers receive, though it be but little, gives them just as much advantage over worn out men in any other profession.

Ministers give away more money than any other class of men of equal income. It is to be hoped that the time will never come when they will be tight fisted; but if they would remember that "he that provideth not for his own, especially for them of his own household, hath denied the faith and is worse than an infidel" and would remember that this scripture applies impartially to ministers as well as laymen, it would be a great advantage to the church.

Many worthy men are preaching for meagre salaries. Many pioneer preachers have endured much and received but little for it. When individual cases of this kind are presented to a congregation they will usually respond cheerfully. But much of the sniveling that some have witnessed of late has been evidently out of place.

THE BIGGEST YET.

The Keel of the Largest Schooner Afloat Being Laid at Bath.

Kelley & Spear of Bath are laying the keel of what will be the largest schooner of any kind afloat, exceeding considerably the Governor Ames. Capt. John R. Kelley will be managing owner.

GRANITE.

The granite cutters' strike at Hallowell is settled. The cutters' committee conferred with the company, agreeing on prices, which the cutters ratified Tuesday, and it was voted to return to work Wednesday. The strike was on two weeks. The new bill of prices gives the men 33 cents an hour, with nine hours for a day's work and eight hours on Saturdays. This is considered a complete victory for the men.

A country editor said of his rival: "Aside from his heavy fights and fancy his paper is pretty good, as it advocates the use of the economical Brussels soap."

Mr. Lane is making great improvements on Atlantic Avenue, widening the street, which cuts off about six feet from the premises of the Ocean House, and the bank of the Magnolia House and bringing the sidewalk on a line of the Granite bridge on the south side. Buildings are going up on both sides of the street, giving it an air of business and thrift.

J. B. Swan, undertaker, has moved from the old stand into the Knight's brick block on Mechanic street. He will devote all his spare time and give his attention to the care and improvement of burial lots in Mountain Street Cemetery the present season. As improvement seems to be in order and greatly on the increase, it is hoped our town authorities will see that the cemetery is piped for water as per contract.

Monday evening 12 inst. about 10 o'clock the fire going started the people of our village from their repose by its hideous groans as well as fears of fire at the next door. The Engine, Hook and Ladder Companies were on the street and people running to and fro, exclaiming "Where's the fire." After a time it proved to be in a house about half a mile out on the Lincolnville road owned by Wm. Thordike, occupied by "Uncle Billy" Boardman, who awoke and found his room filled with smoke, proceeding from his bed, where (he says) the mice took some matches for a luncheon. Mr. B. got a little scorching in getting his things out, but succeeded, and closed up the house and went for assistance, which finally came and extinguished the fire with the loss of the bed where the fire originated.

The scalping knife of the Republican party has been flourished about the head of our postmaster, and Capt. Lewis Creamer has been appointed to that position. This action must be regarded as a strictly partisan move, as nearly the entire population within the delivery of the office, including all the Republicans, excepting two or three, signed a remonstrance against the removal of the P. M., or of the office from its present site. This P. O. was established in 1874, and the business has been regularly increased. This change will take the office out of the business centre more than a mile, and will be a great inconvenience to those having the bulk of the mail matter. It is understood that the study and Vinal district mail will go to So. Warren, while the larger part of the present South Waldoboro mail will stop at Waldoboro. Much indignation is expressed by both Democrats and Republicans that an infirmity of a town committee should have so much more weight than their protest.

Mr. John Newbert of the National Military Homes is visiting in town. He claims to be an heir to the estate of Mr. White the millionaire who died at Key West, Fla. He is cousin to Geo. Morang at Lincolnville, spoken of in a recent issue of THE C. G. as an heir of the White estate.

Here is a conundrum propounded by our Health Officer, Ambrose Linnekin. "Why are the Gushuees supposed to be always supplied with money?" Oh you'll never guess it. No one has. He says: "Because they have a mint (Amint) of their own." (He means Amintyas.) Mr. L. is still at large and liable to perpetrate another at any time.

C. Hanrahan has a schooner load of lumber on her way to his shed here and many are awaiting her arrival so as to get lumber to repair with. We hope Mr. Hanrahan has come to stay with coal, lumber, etc.

F. J. Dow, Chas. Sleeper and Will Sleeper are going to start Monday for St. Cloud, Minn., where they expect to work. Many of our stone cutters are leaving this vicinity and going West where they can do better.

Quite a number of dogs died here quite suddenly last week, among them being a valuable English retriever belonging to Dr. Horn. They obtained some kind of poison, but just what kind or where is as yet a mystery.

If there could be a branch of the S. P. C. A. established at the village none of the old horses would say neigh.

Our roads have been neglected and have been going from bad to worse all the spring. It would be a great saving, to say nothing of the comfort it would afford all hands, if quite an amount of our highway money was laid out early in the month of April when the frost first comes out of the ground the stones are all loose, and they can be removed for half the cost than at any other time. Roads go to destruction if under water. Early spring is the time to open the ditches and leave the road bed high and dry, so that when later plowing and scraping are done, much of the work will not have to be done in mud in water. It is poor economy to neglect the roads all the spring so some one may have a big job between hay and grass. Instant in season, here a little and there a little. A constant watch of our own ways and of the highways is better than occasional revivals followed by general apathy and neglect.

CITIZEN.

MEMORIAL WORDS.—An acquaintance and friend of the late Richard Oliver, son of Richard R. and Fannie E. Bartlett, whose death recently occurred, thus speaks of him: "Although only 11 years of age, he had many many qualities, was considerate and thoughtful of his family, very prompt and business like. He only came among us three years ago, but many a friend has said: 'I knew I could trust that frank, honest face.' We are reminded always in the death of a child that our blessed Lord said 'Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven'; and also that 'A little child shall lead them.' So while our hearts are aching for those he left, we feel they will be drawn nearer the eternal home where their treasure lies.—Haverhill Gazette."

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett in this vicinity heard with sorrow of the death of their little boy. He had naturally a sweet and loving disposition, was ambitious and industrious in school, and gave promise of a noble manhood. The family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their bereavement.

The tires were seven feet in diameter and six inches wide. With almost superhuman strength he lifted the tires and ladder and succeeded in freeing himself. Kind friends did all they could to alleviate his suffering and succeeded so well that he is now able to be about the house on crutches.

Packet Greyhound on her Saturday trip brought on a big iron tank for the Hospital at Widow's Island, which was made at the Bath Iron Works. A crew of men came with it to set it up.

Sch. Lilvet, Capt. Lander of St. John, N. B., for Rockland with kiln wood, struck on Iron Point ledge last Sunday afternoon at high water, as the tide ebbed the vessel heeled over so far that she lost off twenty cords of her deck load which was afterwards picked up by the people along shore. Sch. Medora, Capt. Dyer, lightened part of her cargo and she was floated and taken to McDonald's lower wharf for repairs. She was leaking some but was not otherwise much damaged.

The patrons of Seven Tree Grange, Union, met Arbor Day, set out a tree and otherwise improved their lot.

TWELVE IN ONE.

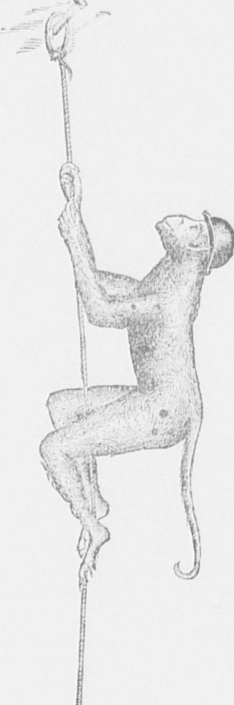

The coming of Frank A. Robbins' twelve big circuses in one has been eagerly looked for in this vicinity and it is our pleasant duty to chronicle the fact that the great amusement venture (the greatest in amusement annals) will positively exhibit at Rockland on Monday, May 26. The big show cannot afford to change its date, come rain or shine, and as it is equipped with the latest patented weather and rain-proof tents, patrons of the mammoth unification need fear no discomfort. The number of performers in the twelve shows in one is astonishing; there are more than a hundred hippodrome and bare-back riders, and one hundred young ladies in the great ballets and marches of the two spectaculars. As the gymnasts, vaulters, athletes, aerial artists and other actors are in the same ratio, as twelve to one when compared to the ordinary circus, so the actors with the twelve big shows and the acts performed by them make the big Robbins consolidation a twelve-fold wonder. The menagerie contains many splendid specimens of wild, tame, trained and led animals; and the curios in the double museum are counted by the thousands. One ticket and one price of admission admits the holder to the twelve shows.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

DR. TALMAGE PREACHES ON THEIR PROPER RELATION.

To the Common Eye There Seems a Great Conflict Just Now, but the Eye of Faith Discerns a Remedy Near—There Is a Straight Road to Reconciliation.

BROOKLYN, May 18.—The Tabernacle congregation is still worshipping in the Academy of Music, but expects next September to have the main auditorium of the New Tabernacle ready for use in the holding of services. After the usual preliminary exercises this morning, Dr. Talmage preached on "The Old Fudge to Be Settled," from the text: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, ye even so do to them."—Matt. vii, 12. Following is the sermon in full:

Two hundred and fifty thousand laborers in Hyde park, London, and the streets of American and European cities filled with processions of workmen carrying banners, brings the subject of Labor and Capital to the front. That all this was done in peace, and that as a result, in many places, arbitration has taken place, is a hopeful sign. The greatest war of the world has ever been between capital and labor. The strife is not like that which in history is called the Thirty Years' War, for it is a war of centuries. It is a war of the five continents, it is a war hemispheric. The middle classes in this country, upon whom the nation has depended for holding the balance of power and for acting as mediators between the two extremes, are diminishing, and things go on at the same ratio as they have for the last twenty years being going on, it will not be very long before there will be no middle class in this country, but all will be very rich or very poor, princes or paupers, and the country will be given up to palaces and hovels.

DANGER IN PRESENT METHODS.

The antagonistic forces have again and again closed in upon each other. You may pool pool it; you may say that this trouble, like an angry child, will cry itself to sleep; you may bottle it by calling it Fourierism, or Socialism, or St. Simonism, or Nihilism, or Communism, but that will not hinder the fact that it is the mightiest, the darkest, the most terrible predicament of this century. Most of the attempts at pacification have been dead failures, and monopoly is more arrogant and the trades unions more bitter. "Give us more wages," cry the employees. "You shall have less," say the capitalists. "Compel us to do fewer hours of work in a day," say the laborers. "You shall work longer hours," say the others. "Then, under certain conditions, we will not work at all," say these. "Then you shall starve," say those, and the workmen gradually using up that which they accumulated in better times, unless there be some radical change, we shall have soon in this country three million hungry men and women. Now, three million hungry people cannot be kept quiet. All the enactments of legislatures and all the constabularies of the cities, and all the army and navy of the United States cannot keep three million hungry people quiet. What then? Will this war between capital and labor be settled by human wisdom? Never. The hour of the one comes more rigid, the fist of the other more clinched.

But that which human wisdom cannot achieve will be accomplished by Christianity if it be given full sway. You have heard of medicines so powerful that one drop would stop a disease and restore a patient, and I have to tell you that one drop of my text properly administered will stop all these woes of society and give convalescence and complete health to all classes. "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, ye even so do to them." I shall first show you this morning how this controversy between monopoly and hard work cannot be stopped, and then will show you how this controversy will be settled.

Pardon remedies. In the first place there will come no pacification to this trouble through an outcry against rich men merely because they are rich. There is no laboring man on earth that would not be rich if he could be. Scarcely through a fortunate invention, or through some accident of prosperity, a man who had nothing comes to large estate, and we see him arrogant and supercilious, and taking people by the throat just as other people took him by the throat.

There is something very mean about human nature when it comes to the top. But it is no more a sin to be rich than it is to be poor. There are those who have gathered a great estate through fraud, and then there are millionaires who have gathered their fortune through foresight in regard to changes in the markets, and through brilliant business faculty, and every dollar of their estate is as honest as the dollar which the plumber gets for mending a pipe, or the mason gets for building a wall. There are those who keep in poverty because of their own fault. They might have been well off, but they smoked or chewed up their earnings, or they lived beyond their means, while others on the same wages and on the same salary went on to competency. I know a man who is all the time complaining of his poverty and crying out against rich men, while he himself keeps two dogs, and chews and smokes, and is filled to the chin with whisky and beer!

POVERTY AND RICHES BOTH HONORABLE. Micawber said to David Copperfield: "Copperfield, my boy, one pound income, twenty shillings and sixpence expenses; result, misery. But Copperfield, my boy, one pound income, expenses nineteen shillings and sixpence; result, happiness." And there are vast multitudes of people who are kept poor because they are the victims of their own improvidence. It is no sin to be rich, and it is no sin to be poor. I protest against this outcry which I hear against those who, through economy and self denial and assiduity, have come to large fortune. This bombardment of commercial success will never stop this controversy between capital and labor.

Neither will the contest be settled by cynical and unsympathetic treatment of the laboring classes. There are those who speak of them as though they were only cattle or draught horses. Their nerves are nothing, their domestic comfort is nothing. They have no more sympathy for them than a horse has for a hare, or a hawk for a hen, or a tiger for a calf. When Jean Valjean, the greatest hero of Victor Hugo's writings, after a life of suffering and brave endurance, goes into incarceration and death, they clap the book shut and say, "Good for him!" They stamp their feet with indignation and say just the opposite of "Save the working classes." They have not all their sympathies with shylocks, and not with Antonio and Portia. They are pharisees, and their feelings are infernal. They are filled with irritation and irritability on this subject. To stop this awful imbrigo between capital and labor they will lift not so much as the tip end of the little finger.

Neither will there be any pacification of this angry controversy through violence. God never blessed murder. Blow us tomorrow the country seats on the banks of the Hudson, and all the fine houses on Madison square and Brooklyn heights and Brooklyn hill and Rittenhouse square and Beacon street, and all the bricks and timber and stone will just fall back on the bare head of American labor. The worst enemies of the working classes in the United States and Ireland are their demagogic conductors. A few years ago assassination—the assassination of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke in Phoenix park, Dublin, Ireland, in the attempt to stop the wrongs of Ireland—only turned away from that afflicted people millions of sympathizers. The attempt to blow up the house of commons, in London, had only this effect: to throw out of employment tens of thousands of innocent Irish people in England.

In this country the torch put to the factories and the houses and the schools, good or bad reason; obstructions on the rail track in front of midnight express trains because the offenders do not like the president of the company; strikes on shipboard the hour they were going to sail, or in printing offices the hour the paper was to go to press, or in mines the day the coal was to be delivered, or in house soundings so the builder fails in keeping his contract—all these are only a hard blow on the head of American labor, and cripple its arms, and lame its feet, and pierce its heart. As a result of one of our great American strikes you find that the operations of the mill are stopped, and thousands of worth of wages, and have had power ever since. Traps sprung suddenly upon employers, and violence, never took one knot out of the knuckle of toil, or put one farthing of wages into a callous palm. Barbarism will never cure the wrongs of civilization. Mark that!

ETERNAL JUSTICE COMMANDS.

Frederick the Great admired some land near his palace at Potsdam, and resolved to get it. It was owned by a miller. He offered the miller three times the value of the property. The miller would not take it, because it was the old homestead, and he felt about it as Naboth felt about his vineyard when Ahab wanted it. Frederick the Great was a rough, and terrible man, and he ordered the miller into his presence, and the king, with a stick in his hand, and a piece of cloth in his hand, and he said to the miller: "Now, I have offered you three times the value of that property, and if you won't sell it I'll take it anyhow." The miller said: "Your majesty, you won't." "Yes," said the king, "I will take it." "Then," said the miller, "if your majesty does take it I will sue you in the chancery court." At that threat Frederick the Great yielded his infamous demand. And the most imperious outrage against the working classes will yet cover before the law. Violence and contrary to the law will never accomplish anything, but righteousness and according to law will accomplish it.

Well, if this controversy between capital and labor cannot be settled by human wisdom, it is time for us to look somewhere else for relief, and it points from my text resolute and jubilant, and puts one hand on the broadcloth shoulder of capital, and puts the other hand on the ragged and creased shoulder of toil, and says, with a voice that will grandly and gloriously settle this and settle everything, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, ye even so do to them." That is, the lady of the household will say: "I must treat the maid in the kitchen just as I would like to be treated myself, and if it were my work to wash, and cook, and clean, and it were the duty of the maid in the kitchen to preside in this parlor." The maid in the kitchen must say: "If my employer seems to be more prosperous than I, that is no fault of hers; I shall not treat her as an enemy. I will have the same industry and fidelity downstairs as I would expect from my subordinates if I happened to be the wife of a silk importer."

The owner of an iron mill, having taken a dose of my text before leaving home in the morning, will go into his foundry, and, passing into what is called the puddling room, he will see a man there stripped to the waist and sweating, and exhausted with the labor and the toil, and he will say to him: "Why, it seems to be very hot in here. You look very much exhausted. I hear your child is sick with scarlet fever. If your wages a little earlier this week, so as to pay the nurse and get the medicines, just come into my office any time."

At once he will, crash goes the money market, and there is no more demand for the articles manufactured in that iron mill, and the owner does not know what to do. He says, "Shall I stop the mill, or shall I run it on half time, or shall I cut down the men's wages?" He walks the floor of his counting room all day, hardly knowing what to do. Toward evening he calls all the laborers together. They stand all around, some with arms akimbo, some folded arms, wondering what the boss is going to do now. The manufacturer says: "Men, business is bad; I don't make twenty dollars where I used to make one hundred. Somehow, there is no demand now for what we manufacture, or but very little demand. You see, I am at vast expense, and I have called you together this afternoon to see what you would advise. I don't want to shut up the mill, because that would force you out of work, and you have always been very faithful, and I like you, and you seem to like me, and the business has been so good, and your wife will after awhile want a new dress. I don't know what to do."

THE GRATEFUL WORKMAN. There is a dead halt for a minute or two, and then one of the workmen steps out from the ranks of his fellows and says: "Boss, you have been very good to us, and when you prospered we prospered, and now you are in a tight place, and I am sorry, and we have got to sympathize with you. I don't know how the others feel, but I propose that we take off twenty per cent. from our wages, and that when the times get good you will remember us and raise them again." The workman looks around to his comrades, and says: "Boys, what do you say to this? All in favor of my proposition will say ay." "Ay! ay!" shout two hundred voices.

But the mill owner, getting in some new machinery, exposes himself very much, and takes cold and it settles into pneumonia and he dies. In the procession to the tomb are all the workmen, tears rolling down their cheeks and off upon the ground; but an hour before the procession gets to the cemetery the wives and the children of these workmen are at the grave waiting for the arrival of the funeral pail. The minister of religion may have delivered an eloquent eulogium before they started from the house, but the most impressive things are said that day by the working classes standing around the tomb of that night in all the cabins of the working people where they have family prayers, the widowhood and the orphanage in the mansion are remembered. No glaring populations look over the iron fence of the cemetery; but, hovering over the scene, the benediction of God and man is coming for the fulfillment of the Christlike injunction, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, ye even so do to them."

"Oh," says some man here, "that is all Utopian, that is apocryphal, that is impossible."

No, I cut out of a paper this: "One of the pleasantest incidents recorded in a hour time is reported from Sheffield, England. The wages of the men in the iron works at Sheffield are regulated by a board of arbitration, by whose decision both masters and men are bound. For some time past the iron and steel trade has been extremely unprofitable, and the employer cannot without much loss, pay the wages fixed by the board, which neither employers nor employed have the power to change. To avoid this difficulty, the workmen in one of the largest steel works in Sheffield hit upon a device as rare as it was generous. They offered to work for their employers one week without any pay whatever. How much better that plan is than a strike would be."

GOLDEN RULE CORPORATIONS.

But you go with me and I will show you—not so far off as Sheffield, England—factories, banking houses, store houses, and costly enterprises where this Christlike injunction of my text is fully kept, and you will find more get the employer to practice an injustice upon his price, or the men to conspire against the employer, than you could get your right hand and your left hand, your right eye and your left eye, your right ear and your left ear, into physiological antagonism. Now, where is this to begin? In our homes, in our stores, on our streets, not waiting for other people to do their duty. Is there a divergence now between the parlor and the kitchen? Then there is something wrong, either in the parlor or the kitchen, perhaps in both. Are the clerks in your store irate against the firm? Then there is something wrong, either in the counting room, or in the private office, or perhaps in both.

The great want of the world today is the fulfillment of this Christlike injunction, that which he promulgated in his sermon Olivet. All the political economists under the archivist of the heavens in convention for a thousand years cannot settle this controversy between monopoly and hard work between capital and labor. During the Revolutionary war there was a heavy piece of timber to be lifted, perhaps for some fortress, and a corporal was overseeing the work, and he was giving commands to some soldiers as they lifted: "Heave away, there! you heave!" Well, the timber was too heavy; they could not get it up. There was a gentleman riding by on a horse, and he stopped and said to this corporal, "Why don't you help them lift?" That timber is too heavy for them to lift. "No," he said, "I won't; I am a corporal."

The gentleman got off his horse and came up to the place. "Now," he said to the soldiers, "all together—ye heave!" and the timber went to its place. "Now," said the gentleman to the corporal, "when you are a piece of timber too heavy for the men to lift, and you want help, you send to your commander-in-chief." It was Washington! Now, that is about all the gospel I know—the gospel of giving somebody a lift, a lift out of darkness, a lift out of earth into heaven. That is the gospel of helping somebody else to lift.

"Oh," says some wiseacre, "talk as you will, the law of demand and supply will regulate these things until the end of time." No, it will not, unless God dies and the batteries of the judgment day are spiked, and Pluto and Proserpine, king to the underworld regions, take full possession of this world. "Now," said the gentleman to the corporal, "when you are a piece of timber too heavy for the men to lift, and you want help, you send to your commander-in-chief." It was Washington! Now, that is about all the gospel I know—the gospel of giving somebody a lift, a lift out of darkness, a lift out of earth into heaven. That is the gospel of helping somebody else to lift.

Supply and Demand own the largest mill on earth, and all the rivers roll over their wheel, and into their hopper they put all the men, women and children they can get, and the centuries and the blood and the bones rot in the valley while the mill grinds. That diabolic law of supply and demand will yet have to stand aside, and instead thereof will come the law of love, the law of co-operation, the law of kindness, the law of sympathy, the law of Christ.

A RECONCILIATION IS PROMISED.

Have you no idea of the coming of such a time? Do you not believe that the Bible is full of promises on this subject, and as the ages roll on the time will come when men of fortune will be giving larger sums to humanitarian and evangelistic purposes, and there will be more James Lenoxes and Peter Coopers and William E. Dodge and George Peabodys. As that time comes, there will be more parks, more picture galleries, more gardens thrown open for the holiday people and the working classes.

I was reading some time ago, in regard to a charge that had been made in England against Lambeth palace, that it was exclusive and that church demonstrated the sublime fact that to the groves of the wealthy estate eight hundred poor families had free passes, and forty croquet companies, and on the half day holidays four thousand poor people recline on the grass, walk through the paths, and sit under the trees. That is gospel—gospel on the wing, gospel out of doors, worth just as much as in doors. That time is going to come.

That is only a hint of what is going to be. The time is going to come when, if you have anything in your house worth looking at—pictures, pieces of sculpture—you are going to invite me to come and see it, you are going to invite my friends to come and see it, and you will say, "See what I have been blessed with! God has given me this, and so far as enjoying it, it is yours also." That is gospel.

In crossing the Allegheny mountains,

American statesman! You and I today stand on the mountain top of privilege, and on the rock of ages, and we look off, and we hear coming from the future the happy industries, and smiling populations, and the conservative fortunes, and the innumerable prosperities of the closing Nineteenth and the opening Twentieth century.

And now I have two words, one to capitalists and the other to laboring men.

To the capitalists: Be your own executors. Make investments for eternity. Do not be like some capitalists I know who walk around among their employees with a supercilious air, or drive up to the factory in a manner which seems to indicate they are the autocrats of the universe with the sun and moon in their vest-pockets, chiefly anxious when they go among laboring men not to be touched by the greasy or smirched hand and have their broadcloth injured. Be a Christian employer. Remember those who are under your charge are bone of your bone and flesh of your flesh, that Jesus Christ died for them and that they are immortal. Divide up your estates, or portions of them, for the relief of the world before you leave it. Do not go out of the world like that man who died eight or ten years ago, leaving in his will twenty million dollars, yet giving how much for the church of God? How much for the alleviation of human suffering? He gave some money a little while before he died. That was well; but in all this will of twenty million dollars, how much? One million? No. Five hundred thousand? No. One hundred thousand? No. Two cents? No. One cent? No. These great cities groan in anguish, nations crying out for the bread of life. A man in a will giving two millions of dollars and not one cent to God is a disgrace to our civilization.

THE GAINS OF LABORING MEN.

To laboring men: I congratulate you on your prospects. I congratulate you on the fact that you are getting your representatives at Albany, at Harrisburg, and at Washington. This will go on until you will have representatives at all the headquarters, and you will have full justice. Mark that. I congratulate you also on the opportunities for your children. Your children are going to have vast opportunities. I congratulate you that you have to work and that when you are dead your children will have to work. I congratulate you also on your opportunities of information. Plato paid one thousand three hundred dollars for two books. Jerome ruined himself financially, by buying one volume of Origen. What vast opportunities for intelligence for you and your children! A workman goes along by the show window of some great publishing house and he sees a book that costs five dollars. He says, "I wish I could raise five dollars for that costly and beautiful book." A few months pass on and he gets the value of that book for five cents in a pamphlet. There never was such a day for the workingmen of America as the day that is coming.

But the greatest friend of capitalist and toiler, and the one who will yet bring them together in complete accord, was born one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five, and he is the child of a city that had heaven's swing, stirred by the angels. Owner of all things—all the continents, all worlds, and all the islands of light. Capitalist of immensity, crossing over to our condition. Coming into our world, not by gate of palace, but by door of barn. Spending his first night amid the shophouses, and his chief attendants him the fishermen to be his chief attendants. With adze and saw, and chisel, and ax, and in a carpenter shop showing himself brother with the tradesman. Owner of all things, and yet on a hillock back of Jerusalem one day resigning everything for others, keeping not so much as a shekel to pay for his sequenses. By charity he is going to the suburbs of a city that had cast him out. Before the cross of such a capitalist, and such a carpenter, all men can afford to shake hands and worship. Here is the every man's Christ. None so high but he was higher. None so poor but he was poorer. At his feet the hostile extremes will yet renounce their animosities, and countenance which have glowered with the prejudices and revenge of centuries shall brighten with the smile of heaven as he commands: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, ye even so do to them."

Goods shipped to and from all the principal points in the South, West, East and West Indies, Central and South America, on through bills of lading, as all connections are established. Also through tickets sold to all principal points and baggage checked through.

The Boston Freight and Charter list of May 16, says: The freight market gives evidence of increased activity all along the line. Though there are but few off shore orders on the market for forward shipment, business is being secured for our surplus square rigged tonnage to load at near-by ports, the charters being made at home. In the ice trade, orders for immediate shipment exceed the supply of tonnage at hand. Vessels of medium draught are most largely sought, and the sailing rate from Maine ports to New York for this class of vessels is $1.25 per ton. Vessels of light draft secure $1.50 per ton, while $1 per ton is quoted for large vessels. Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington are quoted at $1 and Richmond, Va., at $1.50. There is a better feeling at the coal ports, and the demand for vessels to load soft coal at Baltimore, Norfolk and Newport News is very urgent. The routing of stone from paving trade is a little slow, though rates are well maintained.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

The fog signal at the new light at the south end of Lubec Narrows has been discontinued.

The black can buoy, No. 1, and the red can buoy, No. 3, off Crabtree's Ledge Light, Frenchman's Bay, have been removed.

Notice is given that the fog signal at Pond Island Light Station, mouth of the Kennebec River, is again in working order and will strike as usual.

The black can buoy marked "T. R." off Taylor's Reef, has been moved to a position 8-10 of a mile S. E. 1-2 S. from Cape Elizabeth Light (west).

A red spar buoy, No. 4, has been placed off the S. W. end of Little Hog Island, 1 2-10 miles E. 1-2 S. from Breakwater Light, entrance to Portland Harbor.

The H. S. buoy at the western entrance to York Narrows, Bluehill Bay, has been moved to a position on the southwest edge of the 18 foot lump indicated on the chart, 1 4-10 miles E. S. E. 1-4 E. from Egg Rock beacon.

The H. S. buoy, indicating the 16 foot lump 3-8 mile E. of the Porcupines, Penobscot Bay, has been moved to a position close to, and to the southward of, the lump. The red nun buoy, No. 2, off Bay Ledge, Penobscot Bay, has been moved to a position close to, and to the southward of, the ledge.

NEW YORK CHARTERS.

May 17.—The freight market has been subject to no appreciable change this week, and business in the leading departments has been rather moderate, due in part to a continued small available supply of handy sail tonnage in the off-shore trades. Yellow pine lumber freights coastwise are very firm, but the extreme difficulty in obtaining outward cargoes tends to restrict business. Coal freights are looking up a little, especially to the shore water ports, whilst rates for ice are substantially unchanged, with a brisker demand since the prevalence of a higher temperature. Ship A. G. Ropes (to arrive), New York to San Francisco, private terms; quotable about $10.

Bk. C. P. Dixon, from a Maine port to New York, lump saw logs, Schs. Belle Brown from Machias to Monte Christo, lumber, $7.50.

Ada A. Kennedy, from Perth Amboy to Portland, coal, 75 cents; Samuel C. Hart, from Hoboken to Gardiner, coal, 95 cents; Edw. S. Stearns, from Fernandina to New York, lumber, $7.25—free wharfage; Marynard Sumner, from Perth Amboy to Portsmouth, coal, 80 cents; J. L. Maloy, from Hoboken to Haverhill, coal, $1.15; Geo. H. Prescott, from Hoboken to Boston, coal, 75 cents; Grace Bradley, Philadelphia to Cardenas, empty hulls, $1.10; Belle O'Neil, Kennebec to Charleston, ice, $7 1-2 cents.

NEW KILNS.

McLoon & Stover broke ground yesterday for two new kilns at Warren. The firm has a good plant and a large demand for their lime.

FOUR ABREAST.

There goes four teams abreast said a man as he pointed to them on Main street. Before the street was paved two was enough and three was a crowd. Pave some more, gentlemen.

A BADGE GIFT.

P. J. Burns foreman of James F. Sears Hose Co., has been presented with a fine silver badge, the gift of a friend in Massachusetts. The inscription is finely executed and Mr. Burns is justly proud of his gift.

W. S. R. C.

Mrs. J. E. Rhoades, assistant inspector of W. S. R. C., has returned from her annual tour of inspection, after an absence of one week, in Eastern Maine. She visited seven corps and found them in an excellent condition, far better than at any previous time in the history of the order.

A ROCKLAND BOY.

Warren Healey has been appointed Ivy Day orator by his class at the Maine State College. He is also a contestant for the Prentiss prize. Mr. Healey was a member of this year's graduating class of our High School, always taking a high rank in all his studies, and we are assured that his success is deserved.

E. M. S. F.

The Eastern Maine State Fair to be held at Maplewood Park in Bangor, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 24, 3d, 4th and 5th, will be the eighth exhibition given by this society. The trotting and running purses, and the premium lists for the park and halls are to be issued the first of June.

TRY AGAIN, GEORGE.

George Millay sawed 1000 staves in his mill Thursday in one hour and five minutes. Lewis Speed sawed 100 staves in his mill in seven minutes. Who has the next smart mill?

The above item appeared in the C-G. May 6th, and a correspondent at Jonesboro writes that in the Jonesboro Lumber Co.'s mill at Jonesboro this spring they sawed in 24 minutes 500 staves, and in 56 minutes 1000.

DICK DEADEYE.

Dick says a man, is a man even though he is a sailor. Probably Commander McCalla now thinks so as the court martial sentence him to suspension from rank and duty for three years. Naval officers think the sentence severe but the most of us land-lubbers will agree that the punishment fits the crime.

PENSIONS.

The following pensions have been allowed at Gen. Cilley's office:

Augustus W. Kimball, Lowell, Mass., Co. H., 1st Maine Cavalry; original at $4 per month from Feb. 16, 1889.

Evelina C. Knight, Camden, widow of Cyprian M. Knight, Co. C., 1st Maine Cavalry; original at $12 per month from June 16, 1888.

Margaret Riley, Rockland, widow of Thomas Riley, 6th Maine Battery Light Artillery; original at $12 per month from Sept. 6, 1888.

THE RED SCHOOLHOUSE.

Our notice of the old red schoolhouse last week was the occasion of many reminiscences of old times at the "Shore Village." We are told that the old buildings remodelled and enlarged is now numbered 14 Holmes street and that every man in the town that had a yoke of oxen had them hitched on at the moving, they would pull for about 50 feet and at every stop and every time a chain broke the drivers would take a drink all round. Our informant says that they declared it was the best rum they ever drank, and that they consumed half a barrel.

KNOX DISTRICT LODGE.

The quarterly session of Knox District Lodge of Good Templars met with Washington Lodge last Wednesday.

On account of the storm but few lodges were represented. Both lodges in this city sent delegates, Hamilton Lodge sending three and Progressive Lodge nine. The took passage in Donohue's barge arriving at Washington at 12.30.

The afternoon session began at two o'clock at which 38 delegates took the District Lodge Degree, eight from Progressive and two from Hamilton lodge. At the evening session speeches were made by Messrs. Sprague, Mank, Hewett and others. N. W. Woodbury of Portland accompanied the Rockland delegation.

The next session will be held at Rockland with Progressive Lodge, August 28th.

QUARRY NOTES.

A blast in the quarry on the south side of Limerock Street threw a piece of rock as big as a water pail through the roof of the house in the vicinity.

Probably the largest amount of limerock ever thrown out at one blast was at the Winslow quarry Friday, when a blast of 18 eight and ten foot holes dislodged 5,000 casks. They used two cases of "giants," and the rock was worth $600.

Your correspondent at South Thomaston visited the granite quarry of Messrs. Bab & Son the other day, and was much pleased to find what a splendid quarry they had opened about a mile from the village. The stock, and there is plenty of it, is not inferior to the best of the South Thomaston and St. George granite, is easy of access, easily drained and quarried.

The facilities for removing the granite are first class; and in order to meet the increasing demand for their stone, they are re-building the Ezekiel Hall wharf by an extension of fifty feet. They will re-build with granite which will defy the rot and the teredo.
