Why not enter the COURIER-GAZETTE'S "Knox County Teachers Contest." They give a ten dollar dictionary to the teacher receiving the most votes. Let us combine on Thomaston a favorite teacher and some of the Rockland people might have to work hard to win.

At the Congregational church vestry Monday evening John O. Robinson, esq., read a paper on Criminals and their Punishment before the Literary Club. It was an able production, worthy of the ability of the writer. The next meeting of the Club will be on Monday evening, December 1st. Subject: "Christianity—Compared with other religions—History—Tendency."

Col. Henry B. Humphrey, a native of Boston and for many years a resident of Thomaston, who resided at his palatial residence on Wadsworth street, was well known to most of our citizens twenty-five or thirty years ago as a cultured and polished man, ever courteous in his bearing, possessing large social qualities, making friends with whom he met, and it was much to be regretted that he came to Thomaston with interest that those with whom he came in contact listened to the vast amount of interesting information he was enabled to impart of the amount of knowledge he had acquired in his extensive travels and well selected readings. He married Miss Pastora E. Mason, a native of Thomaston, in the city of Boston, and soon after came here, "purchased the three-story house on Wadsworth street, which he had renovated and filled with books, paintings and all the spoils of travel," and he continued to reside in this house many years until failing health compelled him to seek medical aid under hospital treatment. He died at the residence of Hon. William J. Swinburne in Newbury, N. H. (we believe) and was buried in the family burial lot near Boston. Mr. Swinburne, formerly mayor of Newbury and one of its leading citizens, married a sister of Mrs. Humphrey. After the death of Col. H. B. Humphrey his widow made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Swinburne until her death which occurred about two years since. Col. Humphrey took an active interest in the welfare of Thomaston and its citizens, and during the commencement of the rebellion was ready to respond to his country's call with patriotic work. During the term of Gen. Chamberlain, as Governor of the State of Maine, he was appointed a commissioner to the World's Fair at Paris, France, with the rank of colonel, and as such he attended this large convocation and acquitted himself with honor and dignity among the savans there gathered from all parts of the world. At her death Mrs. Humphrey left $10,000 as a sum to found the Henry B. Humphrey Scholarship at Harvard University, to be open for competition first to young men of Thomaston, second those of Knox County, third those of the State of Maine, and if neither apply, then it is to be bestowed upon whom the faculty of Harvard University may select. We learn that this amount has recently been paid over to Harvard, and that President Eliot will probably announce when they are ready to receive applications under this bequest. Mrs. Swinburne, who came here recently to visit her father, Capt. Robinson Monk, who was 91 years old yesterday (24th of November) has presented Order of the Free and Accepted Masons and Henry Knox Loyal Arch Chapter, or Thomaston, the following Masonic emblems and regalia belonging to the late Col. Henry B. Humphrey to be deposited in the archives of each organization forever: To Orient Lodge the lambkin or white leather apron worn in the Lodge of Mount Sinai in Paris, France, on the occasion of my initiation and elevation to a Master of the sublime order of Free Masonry—Henry B. Humphrey, Paris, France April 13th, 1845. This certificate was pinned on the back of the apron, and signed "Ben Perley Poor, of West Newbury, Mass., vouches." Accompanying this apron is the diploma given by Mt. Sinai Lodge after the initiation. To Henry Knox R. A. Chapter the regalia and diploma of Col. Humphrey as a Royal Arch Mason, made in Baltimore, Maryland, in Chapter No. IV, in April 28th, 1846. Joseph K. Stapleton, Grand High Priest. The diploma is in English and French, and is on parchment. There was also presented to the Chapter a large crayon portrait of Col. Humphrey in full Royal Arch regalia. While Col. Humphrey resided in Thomaston he was a member of Orient Lodge, and continued a member until the time of his death. He took great interest in the prosperity of his lodge. The lodge rooms bear evidence of his many gifts. He presented to the lodge an elegant sliver banner with the name of Orient Lodge painted thereon, together with proper Masonic emblems. Col. Humphrey made presents to the Lodge of a number of rare and choice paintings, purchased at a large cost, which are pronounced by connoisseurs as works of great masters. One of the largest and most striking is an oil painting of "The Destruction of the Temple," Beside it on the eastern part of the room is a life size oil portrait of "St. John, the Evangelist." A very attractive painting of "Peter and Andrew fishing at Antioch" is another of these paintings hanging in the lodge. The western side of the hall is a painting of "St. Thomas" (doubting Thomas) and in oil. These gifts were among the acts of kindness and favors which he bestowed upon his brethren.

of Orient Lodge when he resided here, and his memory is held in esteem by the fraternity. The above named regalia, diplomas, emblems and portrait of Col. Humphrey presented by Mrs. Swinburne have been received with pleasure both by Orient Lodge and Henry Knox Chapter, and they will forever cherish them with care.

Quite extensive preparations were made and many a bountiful dinner had to be begged for lack of patronage. Messengers were sent out by some to intercept Brother Miller but they failed. But never mind, the convention was a success, the teachers showed much talent and culture and we hope they will visit Camden again.

Tidings from Prof. A. R. Dutton and his dog Jack, who left Camden a short time since for a more congenial climate in the South, was received by B. F. Adams in which he writes: "We arrived in Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 10th with health improved and a pleasant journey. Shall leave to-night for Palatka, Fla., to look for the best place to spend the winter." The dog Jack is very intelligent and companionable and Mr. Dutton would not part with him.

Our genial neighbor, G. H. Cleveland, who keeps a store on the spot cash or ready pay system, goods delivered on the counter, relates a little episode with a canine customer. The dog entered the store on a foraging tour and appropriated a piece of beef and started to leave. George remonstrated when the dog struck an attitude of defiance and showed his teeth, which aroused Mr. Cleveland, who caught up the cleaver with criminal intent. Meantime the dog stood his ground, which reminded George that he had signed the pledge of the "Band of Mercy" a few days previous which denied him the privilege of cruel treatment and he let the dog off.

We have taken much interest in our midst to make these entertainments very interesting, all we want is each one to do their part. We will not only have a good time, but the amount of cash towards the chapel will be increased. We wish to say to the people of Camden, wait until the Georges River Railroad is started up river, which will be ere long, then come across, which is a short distance, and a more feasible route for you to build, and at much less expense. She sighed, I sighed, I took her hand,

She said that on the road of life,
She'd journey with me, sighed by night.

What teacher will get the Dictionary?
Gilman Ulmer did not find five spot last week. The pig was too much for him.

Norris M. Tewksberry has moved to this city from Bangor and opened a boarding house on Crescent St.

The public schools were closed last Tuesday and Wednesday. Teachers and many scholars attended the Convention at Camden.

Thirty-nine dollars was taken in at the two suppers given at Ingraham's Hill. They will soon have stoves lamps or an electric light.

The Barre House Co. of Thomaston and the city companies are to attend the levee of N. A. Burpee House Co. in uniform, Thanksgiving night.

As President of the Knox County Teacher's Association, Mr. Levi Turner, Jr., of Rockland, proves himself to be the right man in the right place.

The hoops bust on a barrel of vinegar at Stephen Chase & Co.'s last week. A greater portion of the liquid found a resting place in the office below.

"A quarter of a year for a quarter of a dollar." This means THE COURIER-GAZETTE, December, January and February for 25 cents to new subscribers.

Domestic turkeys are scarce this season but the western article will be plenty. Prices will probably range from 25 to 25 cents a pound until after Thanksgiving.

The bee at Bay View Chapel, Ingraham's Hill, last Wednesday was well attended. Men and teams were hauling in for the function.

The fire which broke out at the Rockland High School, last night, was extinguished. The fire which broke out at the Rockland High School, last night, was extinguished.

In the Boston Globe voting contest Prof. J. P. Marston, formerly principal of the Rockland High School, leads the list in Maine. If some of his former pupils in the High School were to canvass the city they would doubtless capture a good many votes for him.

The N. A. Burpee House Co. has sent out their "cooking invitations" to the ladies of the city for cake, etc. for their Thanksgiving levee and ball, and we hope the ladies will not forget them. The fire ladders don't get much pay from the city, and these annual festivities are held to raise money for their treasury. They are always ready to turn out and save property in case of fire, and you can't tell when you may be obliged to call on them.

A renewed interest in singing is being manifested in the First Baptist Sunday School. New books, "The Finest of the Wheat," have been purchased and social singing for the practice of the new pieces are held at homes of different members of the school. This is as it should be. There is much latent talent among the members of all our Sunday Schools which if developed and cultivated would add greatly to congregational singing in the churches.

Season Notes.—All the schools will close from Wednesday night till Monday morning of next week. Friday will be made up by teaching the two first Saturdays of the next term.

The regular monthly meeting of the teachers will be held at the councilmen's room next Friday evening, opening at 7 o'clock. The teachers will be addressed by Dr. Bartlett and Rev. W. O. Holman. Each teacher will read monthly report, and give special report on drawing and music. The schools close Friday, Dec. 5th for the holiday vacation of four weeks.

STEAMBOATS.—The Lucy P. Miller has big freightage every trip. Thousands of Christmas trees have been on her last trip to New York.

THE TURKISH AND CASTLE PACKING CO. of which G. E. Tilden is manager, ship lots of their canned sausage products. On Friday on the downtrip of the Lewiston, Capt. Ingraham made a landing at Verona Campground to land a Commercial traveler who had been carried by the previous landing. "Twas a handsome thing to do, and the gentleman will not soon forget the kind act. Last season of him was climbing the steep hill from the wharf with his big military sample bag and his new $50 overcoat waving a farewell to his friends on board.

THANKSGIVING CHAT ON FRUIT AND THINGS.—Alumnae grapes are plenty and nice. Oranges coming in the market rapidly and prices will be low. Eggs and dates are cheap. Peanuts are plenty and quoted low.

Honey is high and scarce. Confectionery is sold at all prices, as usual, and a low assortment can be seen in all the stores that deal in such things. Nuts of all kinds are plenty and prices are firm. California grapes are offered at low rates, they are nice ones. Send in your votes for the most popular teacher.

Prices on things we eat are given below: Turkeys are selling at from 22 to 25 cts. a lb. Chickens 14 to 16 cts. Geese 16 to 18 cts. Ducks 16 to 18 cts. Chickens of uncertain age 12 to 14 cts. Pork steak goes for about 10 cts., while a good roast can be had for 12 cts. upwards and steak from 12 to 25 cts. per lb. Lamb is quoted at from 10 to 12 cts. Mutton is selling for 8 cts. in, and special good lots for 10 cts. Turnips and cabbage had a steady sale for 2 cts. a pound. Onions go for 4 cts. a pound. Potatoes quoted at 20 cts. a peck.

Apples for cooking are sold at from 2 to 2.50 a cask. Winter apples are worth from 30 to $1.00 a cask. Sausage is lively at 12 cts. a pound. Saus Krout is a good seller at 20 cts. for a half barrel. These are Thanksgiving prices.

Apples are coming in more plenty and prices are not strong.

Grapes and oranges are plenty in our city stores. Prices are moderate.

Sherman, Glover & Co. will commence work on their big wharf at an early day.

Steps are being taken towards raising a fund for the G. A. R. Memorial building.

E. K. Gould has been invited to deliver the Memorial address at Eastport next year.

We have cause to be grateful for many thanks. Remember Thanksgiving Day Thursday next.

THE COURIER-GAZETTE in lots of ten for 25 cents during the continuance of the Knox County Teachers' contest.

A successful sociable was given in Good Templars Hall last Friday evening. A large crowd was present and report an enjoyable occasion.

Delegates from various lodges throughout Knox and surrounding counties were in town last Friday to attend the Masonic gathering held at Rockland Lodge of this city.

The school teachers of Rockland held their regular monthly meeting Friday evening next. Rev. W. O. Holman has been invited to address them. His subject will be "Elements of Successful Teaching."

G. Howe Wiggins on account of his many duties at the bank felt obliged to decline the administration of the Maynard Summer estate and John Lovejoy has been appointed, who, together with Mr. Merrill, will take charge.

Our Dictionary offer to the most popular school teacher has excited much interest throughout the city. We offer THE COURIER-GAZETTE in lots of ten for 25 cents during the continuance of the contest. This will enable all to vote early and often.

One sentence was omitted from our item last week regarding the petition compelling the proper registration of dentists. It is the desire of the petitioners to have a committee appointed who shall examine all applicants and grant diplomas to those who can pass satisfactory examinations.

Thanksgiving services will be held Thursday in the various churches throughout the city. The Congregationalists held service at 10:30 a. m. The Baptists at the same hour. The Methodist and Universalist churches will unite in their Thanksgiving service. Mr. Cummings will deliver the sermon, and the service will be held in the Universalist church.

The Lincoln Baptist Sunday School convention met in this city last Thursday. All Sunday schools belonging to the association were represented. Addresses on subjects relating to the work were given. Committee of arrangements was as follows: Rev. F. M. Probie, Camden; Rev. F. A. Snow, Bucksport and Rev. P. J. Ricknell of this city.

Sealed proposals are advertised for in this issue by Postmaster Lovejoy for the improvements on the post office lot. The annex lot is to be ditched around and a granite curbing laid, the curb to be surmounted with some kind of an iron railing. The driveway between Limerock and School streets is to be paved and the whole job done according to specification that may be seen at Mr. Lovejoy's office. Good "no".

Mr. E. W. Palmer had in his embrace this morning the first mileage book ever issued over the K. & L. R. R. It was sold yesterday by Mr. G. A. Felner, a Boston travelling salesman. It is numbered 10 and signed by Payson Tucker, good for 200 miles. It was presented by Mr. Felner last evening and will go on record as the first mileage book ever used between Rockland and Bath. Truly the sun do move.

We notice by an extract from a Baltimore paper that our former K. & L. Superintendent Mr. C. A. Combs, has just been elected a director of the Annapolis & Baltimore Shore Line R. R. Mr. Combs has been managing director of this line a little more than one year and his efforts have been crowned with success. The board compliment him very highly and his many eastern friends will be glad to know of his prosperity.

Michael Coughlin who has for many years been quite a well known character in our city, was found dead in his home on Winter street last Sunday morning about ten o'clock. Some neighbors noticed him sitting in a chair partly undressed. This incident aroused suspicions that something was wrong and the police were notified. Officer Meservy was soon on the spot and after entering the room, discovered that the man was dead. Coroner Otis was notified. He considered an inquest unnecessary. The city physician was placed in possession of the facts. Mr. Coughlin was a man about 65 years of age. He was known as "Mike Hoot" by young and old.

Not many of our citizens are aware of the fact that our representative to the legislature, Mr. G. L. Farrand, is quite an extensive farmer, but such is the case. In addition to his extensive business as line manufacturer his farm operations are by no means on a small scale. He owns about 200 acres of land, 90 acres in mowing and pasture, and 110 acres of wood land. He has an orchard of 200 trees and raises on an average 100 barrels of apples annually. He cuts about 60 tons of hay and now owns 11 horses and 11 cows. The greater portion of the milk produced is sold at his store. His mowing land is kept in excellent condition much of it being underdrained and yielding heavy crops. He has all the modern improvements in farm implements and every convenience around his buildings and finds that it pays to keep up with the times in all the varieties of farm work. He feeds his stock well and gets good returns for so doing.

CHAT.—The papers have been working on the new building. Main street. Perry Bros' addition to the store has been receiving some attention by artists of the brush. M. H. Nash & Sons have painted their residence on Spring street. S. G. Prescott & Co. are having a store on Tilden's wharf. Vote. The literary sale at Mrs. Mathers' greenhouse was a great success, the plants were very handsome. Labor Commissioner Campbell receives acknowledgments from his peers in France. Christmas trees are being shipped to New York. Bill Nye comes this C. G. composite story and literally "muzzes the babies up". Belfast complains about their electric lights. The Sunday morning mail is very convenient. Thanks Mr. Lovejoy. The dust bloweth but the street sprinkler smelt not. B. A. Emery of Rose Hill farm raises the best looking turkeys (we think) in Knox County. K. & L. R. R. moving next week. A New York firm offers 10 cent cigars for five cents. Anderson's are good enough for us.

During the continuance of our Teachers' Contest we will sell THE COURIER-GAZETTE in lots of ten for twenty-five cents.

Levenseller; S. J. S. Mrs. J. W. Turner; W. F. Melvin; M. Fred Brown; P. C. T. Ernest Mears; S. J. T. Mary Bartlett. After the installation the lodge took a recess for the purpose of dining. A lot of popcorn and home made candy. After recess there was a short literary entertainment. The session was a very pleasant one.

The case of George L. Snow of Rockland in Equity vs. Andrew Pressey of New York, before Hon. A. R. Savage of Auburn, Master in Chancery, had a hearing here last Wednesday and Thursday. Mr. Snow's counsel are Robinson & Libby of this city and Ed. Judge Symonds of Portland. Mr. Pressey is represented by Hon. H. H. Fogler of Rockland. Decision will be given later.

The sixteenth annual report of the Maine W. C. T. U. for the year, is a book which should be read with interest by every one, and especially every woman in our state. From its pages those who were unable to attend the state convention recently held in Portland can learn of the proceedings, and the president's address and reports from superintendents of the various departments will be found interesting and encouraging. The report of the committee on the subject of a Reformatory Prison for Women, 500 extra copies of which have been printed and distributed throughout the state, is a strong and earnest plea for such an institution in our state. This grand work for "God and Home and Native Land" is a cause in which every true woman should feel a heart thrill of sympathy and interest. Some of the noblest and most gifted women of our land are engaged in it, and although they find the path not entirely free from obstacles they are steadily and surely marching on—gaining ground. The books can be obtained of the Cor. Secretary, Miss Clara M. Farrell, this city, for 10 cents each.

CHURCHES.—Rev. S. C. Cummings of the Methodist church occupies the pulpit of Cedar street church next Sunday afternoon at half past two o'clock. At the First Baptist church, Thanksgiving Day, the pastor will deliver a sermon appropriate to the occasion, a chorus of voices will assist in the singing, and it is urged that a large number of the young people as well as older ones be present. The collection taken will be contributed to the Maine General Hospital, Portland. Rev. Mr. Keim will preach at the Free Baptist church next Sunday morning in exchange with Rev. Mr. Dutton pastor of that church. Services at St. Peter's church on Thanksgiving Day will begin at 10:30 a. m. Next Sunday being the first Sunday in Advent, marking the beginning of the Christian year, the first of a series of sermons will be delivered on the general subject, "Life after Death." THE JOINT WORK OF W. H. Ballou, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Maj. Alfred C. Calhoun, Alan Dale, Howe & Hummel, Pauline Hall, Inspector Byrnes, John L. Sullivan, Nell Nelson, Mary Eastlake, F. T. Barnum, Bill Nye.

CHAPTER 10.—By John L. Sullivan.—Henshall awaits the arrival of Miss Crawford at the stage door of Baldwin's theatre, and attempts to speak to her, but is thrust aside by Jim Burns, a detective hired by her manager. Later Miss Crawford receives Dr. Watson's bogus telegram, announcing her father's death, and the concert is postponed. Henshall listens while the stage manager apologizes, and learning that she has started for Chicago rushes from the theatre, jumps into a cab and drives to the depot. He catches the train, sees Miss Crawford and speaks to her when the detective, who is on board, hustles him out. They fight on the platform, meanwhile the train pulls out. Henshall is arrested. Explanations follow, and he and the detective join forces and start for Chicago.

CHAPTER 11.—By P. T. Barnum.—While Henshall has been pursuing his ideal, his wife, left alone and neglected at the hotel, grows very dependent on the detective who is her snapper, who she knows is then in Chicago. Hastily packing a few articles, she catches the same train in which Edna started for a passenger. Edna has neglected to secure a berth, and touched by the girl's despondent air, Mrs. Henshall offers her the vacant berth in her own compartment. Lena finds her husband's card case on the floor of the car, where it had been dropped in the struggle. Edna innocently tells her that it must belong to the man who for some reason has been persecuting her with his attentions. Lena, almost overcome at her husband's duplicity, retires to her berth. That night there is a terrible accident on the road, and Miss Crawford disappears.

XII.—CONCLUSION.

By BILL NYE. Illustrated by W. H. SPRAGUE.

(Copyright. All rights reserved.)

Across the peaceful bosom of the great plains no sound disturbed the night save now and then when at long intervals the shadowy figure of a coyote crossed an aisle in the sage brush, and opening his snapping, drooping jaws gave forth that justly celebrated diabolic scold of his which is so well calculated to call out the goose pimples even on the death mask of Methuselah.

Even the wind trod softly over the scorched and withered grass, and the well lubricated motor of his wheels, among the clouds without a creak, with the exception of Bitter creek, of course, which laved its alkali shores in the eternal solitudes, and bleached still whiter, as the years went by, the snowy bones of those who once had sought to invade this great undertaking establishment of nature's petrified lush of centuries.

But what sound is this that gently beats upon the tense drum of the listener's ear?

The distant jar and gentle palpitations of a coming train from the west!

Scarcely do we hear this and catch the yellow twinkle of a headlight when another muffled roar from the east and a little crawling light growing rapidly out of the dark and distance swallow the intervening miles, and in a flash the two screaming, snorting, panting monsters have met like mail clad giants in a mighty tournament.

Come to the bridal chamber, Death! Come to the mother when she feeds! For the first time the blessed night! Which close the pestilence are broken. And crowded cities wait its stroke!

Come in Consumption's ghastly form! The earl's wife's aunts, the count's story! Come when the heart beats high and warm With banquet, song and dance and wine. And thou art terrible! The force! The green, the sand, the salt, the tear. And all we know or dream or fear.

Of agony art thou? But to the heart, where love is dead, And hope is kneeling over its bier, Day face with joy is overproud, And all lights out with bleeding tread. The soul that only sorrows here.

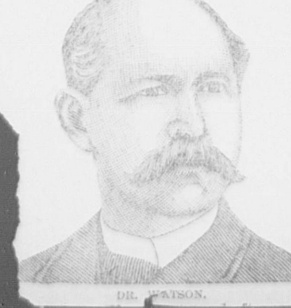

When Lena awoke with this dull pain in her head she felt certain that she was dead, and was almost tickled to death to think that her head would sorrow no more and that Harry was free; but almost at once came the smell of hot varnish and the slight suspicion of an overdone porter who ought to be turned over.

"Great Gawd," she said, as her breath came in brief pants, "the car is on fire. I must go away."

To a spectator who might have seen the collision it would have seemed impossible that a living thing could come out of this terrible wreck and holocaust; but ere long a venerable apple worm crawled out of the cool side of a nice eating apple, and seeing that he could be of no further use on board the train, came out of the car and stunk away in the darkness.

Soon the cheerful car stage begins to get in its work, and the clatter of broken woodwork begins to burn, at first slowly, then, as the swift winds of the plains catch it, the red blazes leap out and greet the frightened night with a crackling laugh.

ing his lying telegram to Edna he found the house empty and the door locked, the shutters drawn and everything deserted. The reader will ask how he knew that every one was gone when the door was locked and he could not get in, but we must remember that he was in the hypnotic business, and could do things that other people might consider difficult. Many a time as a boy he had hypnotized a watermelon dog and then helped himself to the melon fruit.

He soon learned that Mr. Crawford had taken his whole household, and with light baggage had fled to the depot. He followed rapidly, and fortunately caught up with the carriage containing the party, for they were near the depot and had been for nearly an hour. He tried to hypnotize Mr. Crawford, but the old man had shrewdly had himself vaccinated, and so he was safe.

There was nothing for the doctor to do but to follow the procession, for Crawford had evidently heard that his daughter was in California, and had resolved to go to her.

For some time the doctor argued with the old man, but without avail. He then tried to hypnotize the ticket collector, giving him a lower berth, but the agent had been exposed when he was young, and so wasn't afraid of getting it now.

Therefore Dr. Watson had to jump hurriedly on the rear platform as the train pulled out and sleep in the smoking car with his front teeth resting heavily on his knees all the while.

In the drawing room of a pleasant and airy sleeping car supplied with electric bells and a thermometer was a buffet, the sandwiches in which smelled like lower eight, while lower eight got even by smelling like a corned beef sandwich, and here sat Mr. Crawford and Miss Brown.

Below is given a picture of Miss Brown. Her name was Edna Brown, but her friends called her Ceil and Brown with an air of badinage which brought a rosy flush and sweet bright smiles to her fair face.

The picture was originally a full length figure, but owing to the pressure on our advertising space and a note just received from the chief of police we have decided to condense the portrait as much as possible.

MISS BROWN.

Briefly but truthfully and tearfully Miss Brown made a clean breast of her sorrowful slavery to Dr. Watson, the hypnotist, and on her knees she promised the old man that never again would she give him an opportunity to wield his ghastly and disagreeable influence over her.

As the fair head of the beautiful girl rested on his knee, and with trembling fingers he screwed up her Psyche knot a little tighter, so that it could not get muddy as the spiritual master sped along the track he thought he had never saw so fair a being, taken all around, as she was. [Mr. Crawford always used the choicest English in his conversation, but occasionally his thoughts were ungrammatical.]

"I also have a confession to make, dear one," he said. "Prepare for a piece of information which you can hardly credit. I save that I, who am, or is, or are, as the case may be, the criminal, tell it to you myself."

"Would you believe that I, who am your comrade on this journey, whose face is so refined, so spiritual, could have taken the life of Dr. Cronin?"

"Could you believe that I, a professor of religion and a worthy inside guard for two terms in the Little Belial Independent Order of Good Templars, No. 28,702, could have gone under the cover of darkness and with a bright new clasp knife cut into the nice warm vitals of a neighbor, and then, with his hot blood spurting up my sleeve, lashed the dying man to pieces, put him in a shawl strap and carried him away to a sewer trap and concealed his discolored remains so that the police could not get on to my

"And yet for months this terrible secret has been preying upon my soul. Yesterday while Dr. Watson was up-town it occurred to me that possibly I did not kill Cronin, and so, picking up a paper, I read that another man did it. Following up this germ of thought, I soon also discovered that I was abroad all the year of the Cronin murder. I am now wondering if Dr. Watson has not been wielding an unholy influence over me which the delightful climate of California and some light stimulants like rye whiskey and opium may overcome."

A quick sob came from the bowed form before him. "Oh, Ephraim, thank God. You may be able to prove yourself innocent after all," she said. She had never called him Ephraim before.

He stooped and whispered a few low, passionate words in her ear. Her head bent lower and a quick flash of shrimp pink bathed face, neck and shoulders.

It was but the work of a moment for Ephraim to call up a sleepy but clerical looking man in upper five, also in pajamas, who quietly slid down into the drawing room and in the presence of the sleeping car conductor and porter made the two men and wife.

And what of Henry Henshall, the hero and artistic side of this story? Leaving his art to shirk for itself, and forgetting that he had promised on that very day to paint two large banners for a party in Oakland, he fought manfully for a place on the train in order to follow an unknown flaxen haired fiddler, who did not care a cent for him or his art. Henry Henshall was not a bad man, but he needed some great calamity or severe concussion to jolt a little sense into him.

That night, life had been too smooth with him. He had painted several portraits of Beatrice Ceci, which had been accepted by the family and paid for, yet after all he needed something that would almost kill him, but not quite. This would, the doctor thought, knock the talents out of him, and give him an ambition to do as he agreed and pay his debts.

Such an episode was in store for him. For, by a strange fatality, this train he rode upon a few nights later (although Mr. Barnum, by a slight oversight, which is perfectly pardonable in a man who has a large amount of stock to feed and water and bed down and take care of nights, places the accident on the first night out—crashed into the train which brought Mr. Crawford west in search of his child.

On that fatal night Edna placed her violin in her berth, where it could not get overturned by the steam pipes, and then, letting down her angelic hair till it fell about her slight figure like a halo of molasses candy, she looked so sweet that the porter thoughtlessly swallowed a pillow which he was holding in his teeth as he watched her skin up the steep ladder and plunge into her coach with a glad cry.

She soon stuck her head down into Mrs. Henshall's berth, however, and said loudly:

"My dear friend, I do not know why, but I think I am going to die," and she thoughtlessly quoted some lines from the deathbed scene in which Little Eva gently glides up the flames at 22 a week in an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company.

"I have saved quite a little fortune from my recent engagements before the public, and I wish you would give it to my father if I die."

A quick sob came from the lower berth occupied by Mrs. Henshall. It was hers. She made it herself.

"Nay, nay, my dear," she said, "if ever I die, let it be I—or me, if that comes better. Oh, let me die!"

With that she moaned piteously, like a person who does not feel well.

"Yes, dear lady," said Edna, handing her a crocheted purse containing $8.

"This will lift the mortgage on the old farm and wipe out the personal indebtedness of my father. I am a poor, persecuted girl, followed at all times by either a wild-eyed hypnotizer who is out of a job, or else a spitz whiskered artist who barely earns enough by huckstering to follow me about like a mutter-headed Neneus all the while. I shall die content, dear lady. Good night."

I cannot go on to any great length to describe that horrible night. It was a wonder that one human being came forth alive from the terrible wreck—and awful hell, I was going to say.

Henry Henshall was struck on the head by a fresh train fire, and for a time lay unconscious, but the smell of his burning trousers aroused him, and he got up and went out of the car.

Strangest of all, the blow had cleared his intellect and knocked the laudable part out of his mind, as it were, and "Lena" was the first word on his lips. The awful picture seemed to bewilder

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Notice is given by the Light House Board that on or about Nov. 25th the fog bell at Crabtree's Ledge Light Station, Frenchman's Bay, Me., will be discontinued until after Dec. 1st, after which it will be sounded as at present—a single blow every ten seconds.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

Boston, Nov. 21.—Fixtures at this port for the week have been on a limited scale, the coastwise movement being only fair, while off shore business is entirely neglected. Medium regular schooners to load ice, coal and paving are receiving the largest share of attention, and rates are about as quoted one week ago.

The engagements of local interest are: Schs. in files, lugs and lumber, Bangor to New York, at $2 25 per M on lumber and 65 cents on lugs; Sch. Laura L. Sprague, Kennebec to Washington, at 70 cents per ton.

There is but little doing in West India charters, which are not likely to show up more at present. The very few that are being chartered are not likely to be beyond the average yield. The crop in Cuba is expected to be larger and freighting will probably begin in January.

New York, shows few changes of local interest. The chaotic condition of the exchanges, incident to the financial disturbance in London and New York (largely a legacy of the collapsed paper currency boom in the Argentine Republic), has served to circumscribe the week's business in foreign freights within a comparatively narrow compass, and to intensify the depression which had been a conspicuous characteristic of the market for many weeks.

The monetary crisis, however, is believed to have passed, in which event business will be likely to settle down to something like its normal condition, although it must be confessed there are no surface indications of a substantial betterment of freight rates in the immediate future. The only characters we find are: Sch. Robert A. Snow, hence to Jaenel, $700 and port charges, and back from St. Marc, Logwood... Sch. A Notable Event.

If nothing prevents, the Washburn Marine Railway Co. will launch their three masted schooner, "Fred B. Balano," next Wednesday forenoon. She is 255 tons and is called a very handsome vessel, well built, light draft and adapted for most every kind of business. She will be commanded by Capt. O. C. Sawyer of Round Pond, Me.

The launching of a new vessel at Port Clyde is something that has not occurred for thirty-nine years. The last schooner built here was the Kendrick Fish in 1851. Washburn Marine Railway Co. will commence another as soon as this one is launched.

Let Us Be Thankful.

The citizens of Rockland have cause to return thanks for many events that have taken place during the past year. We should not for a moment forget that a season of prosperity has passed and that the outlook for further improvements and a continuance of good times, is encouraging.

From a financial, intellectual, and moral standpoint we should return thanks. Let us then properly observe Thanksgiving Day, because of these things:

Main street has been paved for a long distance and the work will go on....The Knox & Lincoln R. R. has been sold and a burden is lifted from our shoulders....The Penobscot Shore Line is giving us a good service and will make further improvements....The shipbuilding industry is taking a boom....Our line continues to be considered the best in the world....We have electric lights, a fine water supply and our fire brigade is unsurpassed for any city of its size....Our merchants have done a prosperous business the past year....The COURIER-GAZETTE is increasing its number of subscribers....We have fine public buildings, beautiful churches and earnest, sincere preachers....The Y. M. C. A. is doing good work and is in a prosperous condition....Our public school system ranks high and our corps of teachers are worthy of their positions....Our population is increasing. Our city editor has wealth enough to eat turkey and cranberry sauce once a year....The outlook for ballot reform is encouraging....We are likely to have a street railroad....Our city fathers have succeeded in getting the long needed receiving tomb, which is located at Bay View Cemetery....All of this and much more causes us to believe that Rockland people should return thanks this day of Thanksgiving and prayer.
