74 YEARS OLD,

But never in all his life took anything that equalled

ALLEN'S SARSAPARILLA.
A Well Known Rockport Man Speaks.

READ AND BE CONVINCED!
WILL WONDERS NEVER CEASE?

MR. H. J. ALLEN, ROCKPORT, ME., April 29.
Dear Sir:—Allen's Sarsaparilla has given me new life, and a medicine that will bring back youth to a man 74 years old, as I am, must be a wonderful medicine indeed. I have been running down for the last 5 years. I suppose the cause was bad blood. My strength was almost gone; I had no wind and could not do the slightest work without becoming exhausted. I had continually an all gone feeling in the stomach, and was restless and could not sleep nights. I tried two bottles of a well known Sarsaparilla but received no benefit whatever from it. ALLEN'S SARSAPARILLA was recommended very highly to me and I decided to try it. Before I had taken one bottle I feel like a new man. I am stronger and better, can sleep better nights, and have a better appetite than I have had for years. I am an old man but to all my life I never used any medicine that helped me so much and in so short a time as ALLEN'S SARSAPARILLA has done, and I shall continue to use it and recommend it to others.

There is a flurry in the wheat market and the price is advancing. Flour, acting in sympathy, has already gone up fifty cents a barrel. It is said that if the wheat crop of 1891 proves to be as small as that of 1889, the mills will reap a harvest such as they have not experienced since 1867, when wheat sold at more than twice its present price, though gold then commanded a premium.

It is reported that the strike of the painters at Boston is practically over. Neither the strikers nor members of local assembly 4405 will make any definite statements in relation to the matter, but it is ascertained from good authority that the strikers have decided to place their case in the hands of the State board of arbitration. It is claimed by the official members of 4,495 that all of the larger firms of master painters and decorators have agreed to pay 30 cents per hour on and after May 1. Many of the men who struck and a considerable number of those who did not have obtained $5 per day.

The miners of the Upper Monongahela river region, Pa., have thrown a bombshell into the labor camp there by giving notice of their extended refusal to go out for the eighth hour of May 1, when the general miner's move is to be made. The river miners, numbering 12,000, have just gone back to work, and are enjoying a prosperous run after a disastrous strike of several months. In addition to this, they deny that they are in one of the competitive districts ordered to strike.

Allen's Sarsaparilla
Costs but 50 cents per bottle of 125 doses, guaranteed to cure all diseases of the Blood, Bile, Kidneys and Liver. Sold by all Dealers. 13-16

Arbor Day.
The Governor has designated Friday, May 8th to be observed as Arbor Day and appropriately says: The beautifying of school grounds, highways and parks by the planting of trees and shrubbery, and the promotion of forest growth and culture is a work that may worthily engage the attention of all our people. The wisdom of our law makers in providing for this day is more and more apparent each year and the general interest taken in the day is growing stronger. Shade trees are a source of wealth, beauty and enjoyment. Our school houses need many more than they now have and it behooves all to have a kindly word for Arbor Day.

The Red Men.
Nahant Tribe No. 4, Improved Order of Red Men, received a visit from the Portland degree team last Friday evening. Red Men's Hall in Willoughby block was crowded. Delegations were present from Rockport, Bath, Belfast, Warren and Penikese. The Portland team numbering 25 and the local team of about 150, besides a large number of guests at the banquet later in the evening swelled the attendance to over three hundred.

Upon the arrival of the Portland braves, work began immediately upon the several degrees. Three candidates took the adoption degree, and six the chiefs, the exemplification being very interesting, and handsomely done. The degree work was under the general supervision of Great Sachem Dr. B. B. Foster, of Portland. Among the other Portland gentlemen who participated, were H. K. Sargent, great keeper of wampum, and C. W. Foster, great chief of records.

The Pillbury Will.
This case as before stated, attracted much attention in Boston where it was tried. Judge McKim refused to admit Mrs. Pillsbury's will to probate. When the will made Mrs. Pillsbury was living in Boston with her grand-son Mr. Geo. F. Dismore and it was claimed that undue influence was used by the Dismore family in whose favor the will was drawn. The trial was quite long and exciting. The jury were out 17 hours and brought in a verdict affirming the decision of the Judge and broke the will. John E. Hanley, Esq., of Boston and Hon. D. N. Morrill of this city represented the contestants and D. G. Lincoff, Esq., of Boston and J. O. Robinson, Esq., of this city appeared for Mrs. Dismore.

A motion for a new trial has been filed in the supreme court of Massachusetts. The motion alleges that the verdict was against the evidence and is based on other grounds usually made in such motions.

Change of Firm.
The firm of Pressey, Haviland & Co., who sell Rockland lime at 18 Centuries Slip, New York, has been dissolved. The lime and commission business of the late firm will be continued by Andrew Pressey and Howard Haviland at old stand, under the firm name of Pressey & Haviland, while Mr. Henry Brigham will continue the sale of cement and bricks at the same office.

Governor and Council.
The Governor and Council Saturday confirmed all the nominations except that of Mr. Cram for municipal judge of Biddeford, which was continued on the table at the request of one of the councilors. The Council commuted to three years the sentence of John E. Davis, serving a six years' term in prison for larceny at North Haven. Davis had no counsel at the trial. His sentence was considered severe.

Of General Interest.
The court of inquiry into Lieutenant Commander Richard H. Bland's responsibility for the sinking of the United States steamer Galena and Nina, War vessel, at the mouth of the Sagadahoc River, was held at the residence of the late admiral.

A Fearful Fate.

A laborer fell into a man-hole in a New York street the other day, the water was rushing through the sewer at a fearful rate and the poor fellow was carried, presumably, into the East River.

Hope She Will Get It.

Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., has gone to Sioux Falls, where in three months she will gain a residence and will then apply for a divorce. Throughout all of her trials and tribulations this lady has acted the perfect lady and she has the sympathy of the community. The only thing that gives her case prominence is the fact that she had the misfortune to marry the son of his father and she got the worst of it.

Even So.

The advertiser gets more for his money now than formerly, because the greater attractions of the newspapers increase the number of newspaper readers, and, besides, the newspapers are read more thoroughly now than ever before. The advertising columns are an interesting feature of well conducted newspapers, and are read about as generally as the news columns.

Maine Conference.

The business of the Brunswick Conference closed up last week. The attendance is reported as large and interesting. The Conference's share of the profits of Zion's Herald establishment was given as $298 and that from the book concern as $8.53. The preachers and society showed invested funds of $15,932.

Frank Leslie.

N. Y. Press.
"Who is Frank Leslie?"
Like the original Mrs. Harris "there weren't never no such person." An artist by the name of Henry Carter took to himself the name of Frank Leslie. Miss Fuller was at one time Mrs. Peacock, later a Mrs. E. G. Squires and later the wife of Frank Leslie.

Methodist Conference.

The Fourth Quarterly conference of the Methodist church of this city was held last Wednesday evening and the following officials and committees were chosen for the ensuing year:
Trustees—Stephen Gould, E. H. Cookman, G. L. Farrand, R. B. Miller, W. O. Hewitt, Andrew Oliver, Aaron Howes, J. Fred Hall, Henry Howard, Sr.
Stewards—E. H. Cochran, John Crie, A. D. Pottle, J. C. Barber, Henry C. Day, L. S. Robinson, J. W. Kirt, R. L. Green, A. B. Clark, Ernest Perry, William E. Sadler, Jefferson Taylor, Tracts, George D. Sweetland, J. C. Barber, Fannie Bickmore, Education, Sara Bartlett, Addie Hall, George Henderson; Freedmen's Aid, J. C. Barber, Henry C. Day, Willard E. Sadler; Church Records, Jefferson Taylor; Parsonage and Furniture, G. L. Farrand, R. B. Miller, William E. Sadler; Preachers' Claims, Stephen Gould, J. Fred Hall, G. L. Farrand.

Ushers—Ernest H. Perry, Henry C. Day.
A resolution was adopted inviting the East Maine Conference to hold its annual meeting at Rockland next year.

Obituary Notices.

MRS. CLEMENTINE S. KEENE.
Mrs. Clementine S., widow of the late Eph. Keene of Rockville, died quite suddenly on Wednesday, the 15th inst. Mrs. Keene was visiting her children in Rockland at the time of her death. Her health had been quite good up to within a few days of her death, when she was taken suddenly ill but seemed to recover from it and her friends were greatly encouraged in regard to her recovery. She was seventy-eight years of age. Six children survive her, the oldest daughter Annie, whom she was visiting at the time of her death. Leader S., of Haverhill, Mass., Chas. U., of the firm of John Bird Co., of this city, Winslow A. of Rockville, Alvin O. of Thomaston, and her youngest daughter, Clementine S., of Boston, Mass. She has a great many warm friends in Rockville, where she has made her home for the past thirty-five years, who will miss her kind presence. The funeral took place Saturday from the church at Rockville and was attended by Rev. W. S. Roberts of this city. Her loss will be mourned by a large circle of relatives and friends.

STEPHEN A. EMERY.
Most people of middle age in Rockland remember Stephen A. Emery, who resided here with Rev. N. Butler, a relative of his. Mr. Emery died at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, the 15th of this month, after a long illness. He was a professor in the Boston University College of Music and as a musician, teacher and writer, his reputation was national.

The most elegant vestibule cars, yet, are to be run on the Maine Central's fast trains this summer. Two, costing $50,000 each, have been ordered.

Our City.

The permanent improvements in our city go merrily on. The powers that be advertise for proposals for furnishing material for the sewer and paving extensions, and for a wall along Main street, foot of Middle. This done and the sea street wall all finished we shall indeed feel proud.

A Hospital for Rockland.

The following call has been issued for the very laudable and important matter of establishing a hospital in the city. The movement should have the support of all our citizens, as it is one of great importance. The call is signed by Rev. J. S. Moody, John S. Case, F. E. Hitchcock and C. E. Littlefield:

A meeting of citizens, business men, and others interested in the establishment of a Hospital in our city, is requested at the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. on Friday, May 1st, at 2 o'clock. Remember the place and date and kindly be present to hear the plan proposed.

SCHOONER CARRIE A. COOKSON.

A Fine Specimen of Marine Architecture to be Launched Tuesday—Description of the Vessel.

"We know what master laid the keel
What workmen wrought thy ribs of steel."
On the thirtieth of last October was laid the keel of a large four-masted schooner at Gilchrist's shipyard in this city. Work has steadily continued since that date and should conditions prove favorable the vessel will be launched Tuesday, May 6th. The schooner has been named "Carrie A. Cookson" after the wife of Capt. E. W. Cookson, who will command her. Dimensions of the vessel are as follows:

Length over all 200 feet; length of keel, 170 feet; depth of hold, 17 feet; she registers about 900 tons. The vessel is full beam in both holds having double number of hanging knees, beams and stanchions; side and bow ports forward hatch is 12x16, other two hatches 10x10 feet. She is a double decker with poop deck aft of the third mast. Her outboard plank and ceiling and both deck are of hard pine. Both fore and after cabins are models of neatness and comfort, they are finished in hard wood, polished and are to be finely furnished. The cook has a large, roomy and conveniently arranged galley forward, while forecastle and carpenter shop are ample and well laid out. Engine room is very large and equipped with machinery of the latest improved patterns. Her four masts are of hard pine; jibboom and spanker boom of yellow pine; lower masts are 95 feet; topmasts, 51 feet; flying jibboom, 64 feet; fore main and mizen booms, 35 feet; spanker gaff 37 feet; fore main and mizen gaffs 34 feet; has boom jib and boom staysail. Libby Brothers of Warren were the co. contractors.

Exposed Hatch, joiner work, James Campbell, wooden water tanks; engine, boiler and other machinery worked by Bath Iron Works; a large iron water tank holding 2500 gallons is furnished by the same firm.

The Carrie A. Cookson is owned principally by New York and Rockland parties and will hail from this city. Cobb, Butler & Co. are her agents here.

In the construction of this large four-masted schooner, Messrs. Gilchrist & Co. have endeavored to have only the best of material used and only skilled workmen employed. Modern ideas have been used in all cases and as a result a schooner of beautiful model is built that should reflect credit alike upon builders and owners. The vessel will be employed in general trade and Capt. Cookson has our best wishes for a long and prosperous life on the ocean wave in the Carrie A. Cookson.

Geo. A. Gilchrist has achieved an enviable record as a ship builder in this city, and the Carrie A. Cookson adds one more credit to the long list of vessels launched from the Gilchrist yard.

REDSTONE N. H.

Everything is quiet here.

Some of the boys are leaving here for Munson, Mass., work having started up there again.

PERSONALS.—Wallace Gray has gone to Marlboro, Mass., to work.... Frank Gray who went to Lowell last week reports very warm weather there.

Three Weds died at the residence of Geo. Waggoner Friday. Mr. Waggoner was formerly book keeper at the Maine & N. H. Steamship Co.'s store, but was obliged to leave on account of ill health. He was a first class fellow in every respect, and leaves a large number of friends. The funeral was held at Mr. Waggoner's residence, Sunday at 2 p. m.

Salvini Makes a Hit.
ALBANY, N. Y., April 25, 1891. Alexander Salvini opened here this evening to one of the largest and most fashionable audiences ever assembled in this city. Among the notables occupying boxes were Gov. Hall and Lieut. Gov. Jones and friends. The star made a tremendous hit.

The date in this city is May 13th. With special scenery and the big original cast the "Three Guardsmen" will be produced in a splendid manner. The tickets are on sale at the box office of the Opera House where a plan of the floor can be seen. Don't wait too long, as the seats are being sold pretty fast.

[Written for THE COURIER-GAZETTE.]
A STORY OF 1812.

BY L. S. W.

The incidents connected with this story date back more than three-quarters of a century, when the beautiful, thriving town that lies overshadowed by the Camden Hills, was a sparsely settled region, possessing none of the artificial beauty with which it is now adorned, but rich in the picturesque scenery that still renders it one of the most charming towns on the Maine coast.

The village at this time was small, and boasted but few stores of cramped and narrow proportions, where the townspeople supplied themselves with such necessities as were not met by the productions of their farms, and where, after the day's labor, the male portion of the community were wont to assemble, to discuss the meagre fragments of news and enjoy a social smoke.

The most popular as well as the best-stocked of these stores, was that owned by Josiah Alton, a good-natured, royal-hearted man, with an abundance of the milk of human kindness in his composition, that was freely dispensed for the benefit of those less fortunate about him. His cordial air and genial smile, combined with his native love of wit and humor, rendered him a most agreeable companion, while the store itself, though often redolent with the odors of salt fish and tobacco, was not an unpleasant place in which to spend a leisure hour. Especially was this the case, when on damp and chilly evenings, huge logs were lighted in the roomy fireplace that dispensed a most cheerful glow and grateful warmth.

It was on such an evening as this late in September, that "Sil," as Alton was familiarly called by his companions, stood at the high desk which occupied one corner of the crowded store, copying by the aid of a tallow candle the sales of the day into a ledger, pausing frequently in his work to listen to the stream of talk poured out by the half score of men gathered about the fireplace.

Presently at some witty saley, the steady voices of the staid men grew into uproarious laughter, that was interrupted by the entrance of a tall, waggish looking fellow, answering to the appellation of Sam Brown. A keen, dark eye gleaming from under the brim of a slothead hat, and firmly closed mouth showing beneath a senty moustache, proclaimed him, despite his figure, a person of more than ordinary intelligence.

At Sam's entrance the laugh subsided, and all eyes were directed toward him, as he leisurely made his way to the farther side of the store, where he threw himself upon an empty box, in an attitude more suggestive of ease than elegance.

Sam's presence was usually the signal that heralded an entertaining story, or some rare bit of gossip, but tonight he seemed in no mood for either, as he leaned back, careful that his face was not obscured by a pile of boxes that stood near, and intently began studying the face of Alton by the light of the tallow candle.

Such moody silence on the part of Sam was unaccountable, and soon excited the curiosity of his companions, though they scarcely dared question him concerning his conduct. Suddenly one braver than his comrades jerked out, between a squirt of tobacco juice and a nervous shuffle of feet upon the floor:

"What's up, Sam?"

"Nothing unusual was up, was it?" Alton, who had caught the peevish expression upon Sam's face as he rose, rising, the light from the fire fallen full upon it.

Apparently satisfied with his silent attempts in acquainting Alton with his anxiety, Sam now joined the group at the fireside, and his voice was soon heard briskly relating some mirth-provoking incident.

Meanwhile Alton was mentally engaged in solving the problem of how to procure a few private words with Sam, for that he had knowledge of insurance to impart to him Alton was well aware.

Several times when the feeble light, striving to maintain the feeble light, which but a few minutes before had so hardly won, from the plungings of the plunderers, and men watched with foreboding signs that some thing worthy of note. It was when "vigilance" was the order of the day, and the forms the scene of the night, exempt from varied annoyances from this source, as he leaned thoughtfully on his ledger, wondered what now about to be perpetrated, and a doubt Sam possessed some new outrage.

He quill pen with which he was writing, the slight breath of the movement of his hand, the flickering flame, the sound of the de- with Sam.

From the fire, Sam, my formed a convenient barrier between the two men and the group at the fireside, and as Sam leaned over to re-light the extinguished flame, he whispered a few words in Alton's ear, that caused that strong man's cheek to pale with anger, while his grey eyes flashed dangerously.

Sam had scarcely resumed his seat, when a signal of alarm was heard from the fort above, followed by the entrance of a messenger in great haste telling of immediate danger threatening a town but a few miles distant, and calling for volunteers.

Simultaneously every man rose to his feet, and following the lead of the messenger, passed out, leaving Alton standing alone by the desk.

The spirit of patriotism burned strong within him, and he felt would have followed the volunteers, and lent his aid in their efforts to save a sister town that was in danger of falling into the hands of the enemy, but the thought of the scores of men stationed at the fort dependent upon him for supplies, decided the question and turning again to his ledger he became so absorbed in thought or the figures, that not until a clear voice spoke the word "father," did he notice that his daughter, a young girl of barely twenty years, stood before him.

"Well, child, what's wanted?" he asked half playfully, yet with a touch of tenderness, for Alton was a widower, and this bright, intelligent girl—his only child—was the joy and pride of his heart. "If you wish to follow the men father, I will stay here and take care of the store. The fort is so near I shall not be afraid."

Alton hesitated as he looked at the slender figure of his daughter, but love for his countrymen and the liberty they were striving to maintain, overcame his fatherly solicitude, and taking a small pocket piece from an inner drawer in the desk, he placed it in his daughter's hand. Then with a few minute instructions and a hastily imprinted kiss upon her cheek, he hurried away to overtake the volunteers, who had preceded him scarcely an hour before.

Though possessing in a high degree that spirit of dauntless bravery that characterized so many women of her period, it was not without a faint sinking of heart that Grace Alton found herself alone, at an hour near midnight, and in a time when danger lurked in the most unexpected corner. But knowing that timidity had no place in the part she was to play, she made secure the doors and spent the remaining portion of the night in walking back and forth the length of the room to keep herself awake.

An attack the enemy had planned of surprising and thus gaining possession of a neighboring town was destined to be defeated, through the knowledge of the scheme reaching the ears of the townspeople in time to call assistance. Though not without prompt and untiring efforts on the part of the volunteers throughout a long and tedious day, was the happy result accomplished.

It was a very quiet day for Grace at the store, nearly all the men being absent from the town and the women too engrossed with their own fears and necessary duties to be running about, and it was not until late in the afternoon that a boy came in for some provisions to be used at the fort. As the day wore on and no signs of disturbance appeared, Grace became unconcerned, and settling herself comfortably upon a box, yielded to the fatigue and weariness consequent upon her night's vigil and was soon fast asleep.

She had not slept long however, when the sound of loud voices issuing from the cellar awoke her.

Springing to her feet and opening the trap door which led into the room below, Grace beheld a trio of men in the dress of British soldiery, freely helping themselves at a barrel of pure Jamaica rum. Knowing at what cost this article was obtained and realizing the deprivation its loss would necessitate, Grace sprang fearfully forward placing her hand over the opening in the barrel bade the intruders leave the place. A villain presented his musket, but the cry of "coward" from one of his comrades in whose breast lingered a bit of the flower of English chivalry, caused him to withdraw it and the men soon skulked away leaving Grace mistress of the situation.

Weak and faint from fright and excitement, Grace crouched upon the floor, too exhausted to return upstairs. How long she remained in this uncomfortable position, she was not aware, when she heard a familiar voice call her name, and though her own sounded low and strange to herself, the cheering response that greeted her ears dispelled all fear and she was soon lifted in a pair of strong arms—which proved to be Sam's—and borne upstairs to the improvised couch from which she had been so unconsciously summoned.

Having been dispatched to the fort on some errand, Sam, as he entered the "Hush not at this fact, ye temperance men and women of Maine, for to your efforts and to those of the generalists that preceded you in your noble work, is due the fact that this necessary (?) commodity, is now banished to the disreputable position which it deserves. And while we pay all honor to that noble band of men who in the legislative halls of our capital wiped the stain of the legality of the liquor traffic from our state forever, let us deem it no disparagement to this brave girl that she followed the light path, opened by that day and generation.

village, had caught sight of the British skirmishers, and by the aid of his field glass traced their course directly to the store. Attending first to his errand which was important, he made all speed to reach the building, arriving there but a short time after the marauders had left.

Fortunate in finding a supply to take his place Sam refused to leave Grace, though she earnestly entreated him to return to his post. He had not long to remain however, for the volunteers, having succeeded in repulsing the enemy, soon returned, to the great fear of the intruders, who made all haste to board their British ship.

Josiah Alton was the first to enter his store and hear from Grace's lips the story of her adventure; and while proud of the patriotic spirit displayed by his daughter, he could scarcely forgive himself for leaving his child alone to encounter so great a peril.

Fortunately Grace suffered no inconvenience from her adventure, and before the winter was over a quiet wedding was the outcome of the incident, Sam being the happy bridegroom, and Grace the sweetest of brides.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Dr. Talmage has shaved off his whiskers, and his congregation think he looks like Henry Clay.

John Teemer challenges Jake Gaudaur to row three single scull races of two, three and four miles respectively for $2,500 a side.

Reports show that the maple sugar season just closed has been the best one Vermont ever had. It is estimated that over 17,000,000 pounds of sugar and syrup have been made and that the market value of the crop will exceed $1,200,000.

Directors of the Charter Oak Driving Park, Hartford, Conn., have decided to offer a purse of $20,000 for trotting foals of 1881, to be trotted for at the grand circuit meeting in 1894, the total entrance to be one and a half per cent. The purse is named the Nutmeg futurity.

The retail prices of ice in Boston for the season from May 1 to Oct. 1, as adopted by the leading companies in Boston, are: For 12 pounds daily, $6; 18 pounds, $9; 24 pounds, $12; 36 pounds, $17. The cash prices by weight are: One hundred pounds, 25 cents; 50 pounds, 15 cents; 25 pounds, 10 cents.

It appears that hunting for the North Pole is about the safest business one can engage in. In a recent review of explorations it is found that ninety-seven out of every hundred men engaged in the work have come back alive. This is safer than staying at home and taking chances with the grip.

The Galena was taken into the dry dock last week and a hasty examination of her bottom by some of the officials leads to the belief that she is not injured so badly as supposed. A more thorough examination may, however, bring to light injuries not yet visible to the eye.

C. H. Nelson offers to bet $20,000 that his stallion Nelson can beat any trotting horse in the world. It is unnecessary to state that Mr. Nelson can find a lot of men in Maine who would bet to go shares with him in that game. That the stallion is a world beater was shown last season and no further proof is needed.

Years ago a young woman told Barnum she had a cherry-colored cat. Barnum told her to bring it and he would give her $100 for it. The next day she appeared at the office with a covered basket. Barnum lifted the lid and found a black cat inside. "Where's the cherry cat?" said he. "Why, that's the one," said the young woman; "a black cherry cat." Barnum handed her $100, told her to leave, and gave orders never to admit her again.

A monster vessel has just arrived at New York from Calcutta. She is called the Pinmore, and was built at Greenock, Scotland. She is 310 feet long at the water line, 42 1-2 feet beam, and 24 feet 7 inches depth of hold. She is built of steel throughout, having a steel hull, steel decks, steel houses, steel masts and steel spars. Three of her four masts are 163 feet high, and the main, or jigger mast, is a single casting of steel, 146 feet long from heel to head, being the longest piece of steel ever put on board of a ship. There are 700 yards of canvas in her mainsail alone, 600 in the cross-jack, and 520 in the foresail. With all sail set on her recent passage she covered 308 miles in one day, which means a sustained speed of thirteen miles an hour. The Pinmore carries a crew of thirty-four men. Below, the Pinmore presents an immense sweep of hold in which 5000 tons of cargo may be stowed.

The 19th of April 1891 was very much the same sort of a day as the 19 of April 1775, says the Boston Transcript. The season was much further advanced in 1775, and there had been scarcely any winter worthy of the name. So far east as Falmouth, Me., there had been but little ice or snow. A journal kept by a resident of that town records that March so far from being boisterous and chilly was soft and balmy. There was really no reason why Gage should not have struck at Concord three weeks earlier than he did. Tradition says that on the nineteenth of April at Concord the grass was high enough to wave in the breeze. Forty years ago there were many old people in Concord who had talked with participants or eye witnesses of the fight. One of the eye witnesses, a child at the time of the battle, said that while with boyish interests he watched the march of the regulars, he noted the rhythmical "swish-swish" of the grass as they marched through it, a sound that lingered in his ears fifty years afterward. It may be added for the benefit of the curious that some of the British soldiers taken prisoners that day never rejoined their corps but settled in Concord, where they married and left descendants.

SIMONTON BROS.

Stony Creek Items.

Peter Murray, who has been visiting at Vinalhaven returned here recently.

Geo. M. Brainerd of Rockland, Me., was in town recently in company with officials of the Stony Creek Red Granite Co.

About thirty cutters are employed at the Brantford Granite works and reports say they will add to their number soon.

The Red Hill firm, so called, employ nearly one hundred cutters and their sheds at the Point presents a busy appearance.

Wm. McNicol and Arthur L. Pierce of Vinalhaven arrived here last Tuesday and are at work for the Stony Creek Granite Co.

W. W. Kittredge, foreman of the granite works at the point, who has been visiting his family at Vinalhaven, returned last Tuesday.

About forty cutters are now at work at the Norcross job with a prospect of an increased price soon. They are cutting stone for the Harlem depot at New York.

The numerous readers of your paper ought to present you with a handsome testimonial for your bravery in so earnestly advocating the passage of the Australian ballot bill. Thanks to the press of Maine who so nobly fought for the right.

Preparations are being made for the coming summer boarders, of whom a large number visit here in the summer. Being in such proximity to New York and other large cities and railroad accommodations being good, we get in company with millionaires and "such like mortals" who came here to spend their cash.

This is the locality for trailing arbutus and the sweet little flower can be found very easily during the present warm days. I have seen some that were gathered early in March, and there is one particular spot where the flower was found as early as the 12th of February this year. Large parties from New Haven come here most daily in quest of the coveted little flower.

At the graduation exercises last evening the school committee strongly urged the kindergarten system of teaching, also the purchase of a stereopticon, a telescope and a powerful microscope for the use of the schools, believing it would cause a greater interest in studying than the present tedious way through books. We hope to see the above instruments in use in the spirited town of Vinalhaven whenever we may chance to call that way.

Through the kindness of a member of the S. S. Committee I attended the graduation exercises of the Brantford High School last evening and heartily enjoyed the occasion. The usual program was carried out and the class of five young ladies and one gentleman acquitted themselves well. Among the graduates was Miss Grace E. Holdsworth, a daughter of the superintendent of the Norcross Works. A large number of her friends from this place went over by train to witness the ceremony. The young lady, who is very popular, gave the class history in fine style, and her essay on the "Monuments of Egypt," was a thoughtful, well written article and being delivered in clear, distinct tones gained a strong outburst of applause at the close. Rich and beautiful flowers adorned the stage and the sweet girl graduates were almost buried with flowers by their numerous friends.

REDSTONE N. H.

We are having fine weather here.

Where are the paving cutters? Echo answers "where?"

The boys still keep coming; last week Elmer Weeks and John O'Leary of Hallowell went to work here. John has been in Graniteville, Mo., the past winter and reports a fine job there.

The company is extending the track from the upper sheds direct to the middle and lower sheds, which will be a great advantage as the stone from the quarry will not have to be handled so many times, but can be run from the quarry direct to any part of the works.

Some fine carving is being done here. Mr. Hurley is a thorough workman and understands his business.

Herbert Colson has been appointed head blacksmith. Am. Drake of the "Keog" having gone home. We are sorry to lose Am. but wish him good luck wherever he goes.

Adelbert Drake has a fine black stallion which is quite a stepper when Dell gets him started the right end first.

Frank L. Gray of North Conway and Arthur Snow of Redstone went to Lowell this morning to work jobbing on the Lowell library building, which is being cut here. Mr. Gray is accompanied by his wife; he is an experienced stonemason, and understands what is needed in such a place. He was one of the two who were sent to Chicago last fall to do the jobbing on the Leiter building, and gave great satisfaction. Oh, Frank is in it. We shall miss them all, but hope to see them back soon.

HARRISON'S "Town and Country" READY MIXED PAINTS

are unsurpassed (if equalled) in the following particulars:
They are painter's paints.
They are perfectly pure.
They may be used by any old-line painter just as he would use White Lead mixed by himself.
They will save money to painters.
They are uniform.
They are as bright as the best tinting colors can make them.
They are permanent.
They are good for many years' wear when properly applied.
They will stand unlimited brushing out.
They are cheaper than any similar color mixed by hand.
They will cover on a good surface 400 square feet, 2 coats, per gallon.
When fully thinned out with pure, raw Linseed Oil, their spreading capacity is still greater.
Sold by Clifton & Earl; C. E. Hays & Co.; W. H. Glover & Co., and Paint Dealers generally.

Over the State

The Bowdoin boys call the Maine State college and Bates base ball league the Farmers' Alliance.

The Augusta jury was out half an hour in the case of James Foley, charged with the murder of John Cronin on March 14, during a drunken row. The verdict was guilty.

The freight business on the Maine Central continues to boom. An extra train follows the west bound Pullman nearly every night, and several other extra trains run both ways during the day.

The new pulp paper mill owned and operated by the Webster Paper Co., is now turning out 35,000 pounds of paper daily. Three kinds are made; newspaper stock, hanging paper, and book paper.

Hereafter all marines enlisted at the navy yard at Kittery will be sent to Washington for instruction, the secretary of the navy having approved the scheme for a school for marines at the Washington marine barracks.

The interested lumbermen estimate that at least 100 men will be employed this spring in driving the immense lumber cut of the Upper Aroostook and its tributaries to market. This is likely to make business pretty good in this section this summer.

On account of her health Mrs. Joseph E. Moore has declined the appointment as member of the world's fair managers, and the Governor has nominated Mrs. Kate May Andrews of Lewiston, for the position. Mrs. Andrews is the wife of Mr. Harry E. Andrews of the Lewiston Journal, and is a young lady of many accomplishments.

It is said that Messrs. Homan & Haynes will rebuild Granite Hall, Bangor, August, at once, and that the building will be ready for occupancy in October. The north wall will be allowed to stand, but the Water street wall will be torn down and replaced with a brick front. This will be quite elaborate and will be a novelty in Bangor, as no building has ever been built with granite facing on one street and brick on the other.

The trustees of the Insane Hospital met Tuesday evening and among other business regulated the salaries of the assistants under the new law passed last winter appropriating $3200. Dr. Hill was given $1000, a rise from $900, and Drs. Lowell and Rowe $850 each, an increase of $100. Dr. Vaughn was given $600. In addition to these salaries, of course, the assistants are given their board and other conveniences.

Maine cannot claim Chicago's new mayor as a son, but she can call him a grandson. Hemphill Washburn is about 40 years old, was born in Illinois and has lived in Chicago since manhood. Like his father, the secretary and diplomatist, he is popular with the German element, which accounts in a measure for his large vote. As mayor of the western metropolis during the Columbian exposition, Mr. Washburn will occupy an important and responsible position; but he comes of the best Maine stock and will no doubt prove equal to his duties.

Benjamin A. Burr, of the firm of Bouelle & Burr, publishers of the Bangor Whig, died last Wednesday after an illness of 12 days, at the age of about 70 years. He was one of the best known citizens of Bangor, and leaves a widow and two daughters. Mr. Burr was born in Brewer, but had always been in the printing and publishing business in Bangor. He was publisher of the Jeffersonian and Burr's Monthly. In recent years he had been one of the owners of the Whig and Courier, and acted as its business manager.

It has been considered false economy by persons interested in the enforcement of the Maine liquor law that the barrels in which contraband beer comes to the state are carefully preserved by the officers in some quarters and sold, only to be returned again to the brewers. These barrels are worth $2 each, and a considerable revenue is realized by the county from their sale. From a moral point of view it would seem no worse to send the beer back to the brewers than to suffer the barrels to be returned to be filled again. Economically considered, it might be a good scheme to send back the beer, as well as the barrels, as the revenue of the county would be considerably augmented by the sale of the same. This beer barrel question is a perplexing one.

It will be remembered that the Maine legislature recently voted to buy a thousand dollars' worth of silver plate to present to the cruiser "Maine" as a token of appreciation of the honor of having one of the big cruisers of the new navy, named after the Sunrise State. Col. C. H. Osgood of Lewiston, has just received from the Gorham Manufacturing Company of Providence, R. I., designs for the proposed plate, which he will submit to the governor and council at their next meeting on Friday. The designs show a tureen and silver dishes to be made of coin silver. The escutcheon of Maine is emblazoned on the body of the dishes, the covers and sides being amply significant of Maine's pine spires and cones. The effect is unique, and almost anybody might agree that the cabin of the Cruiser "Maine" could hardly covet a more

The annual apron sale of the sewing circle of the Congregational church took place at the vestry Wednesday afternoon and evening. In the evening the Nursery Maids' drill was very pleasant and amusing. Food, cake, ice cream and other refreshments served. A very handsome sum indeed was realized from the sale and entertainment.

As W. S. Hinckley of the firm of Hinckley & Weber, was returning from dinner Saturday to his place of business, the rocker bolt in the wagon broke, and threw Mr. Hinckley to the ground. He received a severe shaking and bruising around the quarter deck; the stagings were removed and at 11:30 a. m. the sick Katherine D. Perry laid into the briny water, and as her stem left the ways, the bottle left the lady's hand over the bowsprit in many places, and the schooner stood proudly upon the water "a thing of beauty." It was pronounced by critics a perfect launch.

W. S. HINCKLEY.

Sch. Geo. Pierce, Arey, is discharging coal for Derby & Co.

Chas. Derby has a load of coal at his wharf unloading and will soon have some lumber for building purposes.

Mrs. H. S. Sweetland returned from Boston last Thursday, where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. A. Fales and other friends.

John R. Robinson was thrown from a road cart last Tuesday and sustained some severe bruises, which confined him to his house for a week, but we are glad to see him on the street again.

Citizens of Camden will rejoice to learn that the iron fence on the front of Mountain st. cemetery, so long in course of construction, was finally finished April 20, 1891. Now that we have a good fence in front, it remains to enclose the rear, (which has been open three or four years), before Decoration day, so that cattle will not steal the march on us and decorate, not only the graves of soldiers, but others as well.

On account of the prospect of a low tide last Sunday morning, report was made that the launching of the new four masted schooner in H. M. Bean's yard would be postponed. Yet, notwithstanding snow squalls, quite a large crowd gathered about 11 o'clock, evidently determined not to lose the opportunity of witnessing so novel a sight. The schooner was all ready, Mrs. Perry, her namsake, took her station forward about 11 o'clock with the luck bottle in hand. W. V. Lane was on hand ready for a photo. A large number of ladies and gentlemen were on the quarter deck; the stagings were removed and at 11:30 a. m. the sick Katherine D. Perry laid into the briny water, and as her stem left the ways, the bottle left the lady's hand over the bowsprit in many places, and the schooner stood proudly upon the water "a thing of beauty." It was pronounced by critics a perfect launch.

We understand that a photograph saloon will soon be here for a short time. Tintypes, photographs and views of residences may be had.

Mrs. Worcester Farrar's grand-daughter, Alice Pool of Searsmont, picked and cooked greens the 18th for her grandmother. These are the earliest we have heard of here.

We were informed a few weeks ago that B. T. Hies was sick with typhoid fever at Augusta, which was a mistake. It was clergyman's sore throat, a disease he contracted doing his recent gospel work. His many friends here will be sorry to learn that he will never be able to sing again.

The many friends here of Miss Minnie Howard of Lowell, Mass., will be sorry to learn of her death. She left this place some ten or twelve years ago and went to Lowell where she worked in the mill till about three or four years ago; she then learned the dress makers trade and about two and a half years went into business for herself; she was considered one of the best if not the best dress maker in that city. About six weeks ago she was taken with rheumatic fever, last week it went to her heart and she lived but a few days. She has a large circle of friends there and here, who deeply mourn her death. She was the youngest daughter of the late Sanborn Howard.

PERSONALS.—Mr. and Mrs. Poor and children of Searsmont visited at Henry Clark's last week—Miss Susie Thompson of Hallowell is visiting her grandfather Mr. George Clark—Albert Brown is in Palermo working for a short time—Mrs. W. E. Overlock and Mrs. J. B. Howard made a short visit at North Washington last week—A. C. Collins and wife visited at North Washington, Wednesday—John L. Savage was suddenly taken blind in his right eye last week and it is doubtful if he ever recovers the sight again—Miss Maud Bowes is to teach the summer school at North Washington—Charles Irish of Lawrence, Mass., is visiting at Geo. Clark's—Joseph Glidden has gone to Worcester, Mass., to work in the insane asylum—James D. Clarke, who has been working at barbering in Gardiner, is at his father's, Geo. Clark, spending a few days.

ATLANTIC.

One of our farmers, Gilman Staples, the week of the 12th planted a bushel of potatoes. Wednesdays the last two weeks on account of boisterous weather we have failed to have mails go out (therefore making news late to press.)

We have a doctor in town and also the grip. We have more sickness at present than in the period of five months that we were without a physician.

An alarm of fire was given one morning last week. Capt. Orlando Trask's house was discovered by fire. Neighbors quickly gathered, the fire not doing much damage. Cause unknown.

PERSONALS.—Miss Nellie Staples returned to her home in Sedgewick last week, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. E. M. Staples—Miss V. M. Torrey has gone to Gull's Island to do dressmaking for two weeks—Mrs. Rilla Joyce arrived home on Monday's boat, having been on a short visit to S. W. Harbor—Clarence Joyce from Gull's Island was in town recently—W. D. Stanley had his foot badly jammed by a large granite block falling on it a few days ago—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Burns are both very sick with the grip—Adrian Stockbridge of Rowley, Mass., is here on a short visit.

SOUTH LIBERTY.

Farmers are planting early potatoes about here.

Chas. Cunningham has invested in a new water mill. The mill is running on half turn owing to low water.

The life insurance agent has been here collecting regular assessments.

Your correspondent would like to know what has become of the band boys.

Isaac Robinson has had his pension increased through the agency of J. P. Chiley, Rockland.

HOPE.

PERSONALS.—Marcellus Metcalf, who has been so ill, is, we understand, much better—Mrs. Nellie Wilkins is stopping at her father's for a while—Josiah Hobbs will take the place of Henry Payson the first of May in Johnson Knight's store, Camden.

The Corner school district chose Henry Wooster agent, and he has employed Miss Sarah Leadbetter to teach. School began yesterday.

Fred Barnes lost a valuable heifer and calf. A meeting of the pew holders of the church was held last Saturday.

We think the crows must have had delegates at Augusta last winter and learned that the bounty was taken off their heads. They are very plenty this spring.

Some planting has been done.

OWL'S HEAD.

F. M. Smith bought one thousand bushels of lime ashes in Rockland to use on his low land. Sch. Gold Hunter landed them on Arey's wharf.

PERSONAL.—Henry P. Bradbury is doing mason work for Chas. G. Dyer—Miss Nettie E. Dyer, who has been stopping in Rockland, is at home—Dr. Seth Emery was in town last week.

She was run ashore on the east end of Horse Shoal in fourteen feet of water. The vessel will be stripped when the wind moderates.

Sch. Geo. A. Pierce, Arey, met with a very serious accident in the Keag river Friday. The vessel came in there with a cargo of coal, and while trying to make a wharf became unmanageable on account of the shallow water and would not steer; she drifted on to a rock, and the tide leaving her there, started the fire and caused other serious damage. Next morning they hauled in to the wharf to discharge, after which the vessel will be brought here for repairs.

WEIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

Boston, April 23.—The aggregate of fixtures for the week is considerably in excess of any previous week for several months past. The movement toward the Windward Islands is developing considerable strength, and while rates are far from being satisfactory to shippers an improvement is noted, and the call for tonnage continues fairly active, giving promise of a still further softening of rates. Vessels in the coastwise trade have been taken up rapidly during the week, and notwithstanding the large number of recent arrivals the available supply today is not excessive. The coal companies are keeping their stock on hand reduced to immediate requirements and a brisk movement in this commodity cannot be expected until the latter part of next month. Rates from New York to Boston are quoted at 55 cents per ton; from Philadelphia, at 80 and 90 cents; from Norfolk and Newport News, at 90 cents, and from Baltimore, at $1. There is but little ice moving, most of which is destined for Philadelphia or Baltimore, and 50 cents per ton is the ruling rate for either port. Paving and rough stone is being freely moved and several orders remain on the market for immediate shipment. Rates are firm at $15 per M. for Philadelphia and from Cape Ann ports at $1.50 and 12.

The following engagements are reported: schs. Elbridge Souther, Turk's Island to Philadelphia, salt at p. t. . . . W. S. Jordan, Vinalhaven to New York, paving blocks at $15 per M. and loaded. . . . W. H. Hopkins, Carver's Harbor to New York, stone, at $15 per M. . . . E. A. Stimpson, Fernandina to Fall River, lumber, at $5.25 per M. . . . Lizzie Carr, Clark's Island to New York, paving stone, at $15 per M.

Snow & Burgess' Weekly Freight Circular of April 23 says:—The business of the week has been in the condition of the freight market this week. The available supply of medium size and large carriers continues at $15 per M. and there is not sufficient inquiry to promote an advance upon the low rates current in all departments. There is, however, a prevalent feeling that the advance of the season may bring some improvement upon the existing wretched condition of the freight market. A realization of present harvest prospects, which are exceptionally promising on this side of the Atlantic, and unpromising on the other side, will have a tendency to improve the condition of things somewhat during the latter part of the year. For though steam tonnage has gained a virtual monopoly of the trans-Atlantic grain trade, renewed shipments of cargoes upon a materially enlarged scale would incidentally afford a better support to sail tonnage, by reason of a lessened competition from their fleet competitors in other departments of the carrying trade. The prospect of another fine harvest on our Pacific Coast will be likely to insure another season of fairly good freights from San Francisco. West India freights, outward and homeward, are without decided change in the late enquiry. Coas. W. & Lumber and Coal freights show no improvement as yet, seeking vessels being more numerous than orders.

A great scarcity of charters for local vessels is noticed. Among the few we find: Sch. Carrie T. Italiano, from New York to Havana, W. P. Lumber, $4. . . . Sch. Addie E. Snow from Wilmington, N. C., to Cape Hayti, lumber, $7.25 and port charges, and back from a second port North of Havana, logwood, $4.50. . . . Sch. Fannie Whitmore from Fernandina to New York, lumber, $5.25. . . . Sch. Rita A. Stimpson, from Fernandina to Fall River, lumber, $5.25. . . . Sch. Wm. H. Allison from Appalachicola to Baltimore, cyprus lumber, $7. . . . Sch. Helen Montague, from South Amboy to Boston, coal, 90 cents. . . . Sch. Addie E. Snow, from Rockland to Wilmington, N. C., cement, 17 cents.

Another Transfer.

It is reported on what is considered to be good authority, that the Knox & Lincoln Railway will be transferred at once to the Maine Central corporation.

The Grant Monument.

While life remains, hope remains, and the Grant monument may yet be erected. Ground was broken in New York yesterday and the work will probably be continued throughout the nineteenth century. For heavens sake, gentlemen, don't hesitate, but keep the good work in motion.

Man Drowned at Spruce Head.

William Crockett, a sailor on board the schooner William Doughton, was knocked overboard by the anchor chain last Saturday morning, and drowned. Repes were thrown near him but the man appeared not to notice them, and he sunk from view. The body was not recovered. Crockett belonged to Seaboard and was about twenty four years of age.

Maine Boys and Girls.

"Hallo Maine," "Are you from Maine," "I didn't know you came from Maine," "Yes, and the woods are full of 'em." Such were the exclamations that greeted the ear as the sons and daughters of Maine assembled at their meeting in Natick, Mass., the other day. Large in members and great in enthusiasm, brilliant in speechifying and great in eating, the meeting might safely be called a success. The statement was made that there were four hundred and fifty Mainers in the city. Among them are quite a number of Rockland natives.

Did You Ever Meet

A clerk that knew more than his employer?
A man that would admit his ignorance on any question of the day?
A young man that keeps company with but one girl?
A chap that never told a lie?
A man who has many pains and thinks whiskey is a sure cure?
A person that talks too much and tells the same story every time you meet him?
A girl that won't learn housework, but is crazy to attend a dance?
A crank that always is giving advice?
A rich fool and a poor genius?
A temperance man whose breath is strong?
A messenger boy in a hurry?
A woman that could poke a fire as well as you can?
A man in Rockland that didn't read THE COURIER-GAZETTE?
A chap that didn't know it all?

Granite Chips.

It is reported that Nelson & Shields, Green's Landing are employing Italian granite cutters. C. E. Ward & Co., Georges River, have taken down their derrick at that place and will remove to High Island, which they have purchased. They will carry on the paving business there.

Mrs. J. H. Robinson, formerly of this city, is running a granite quarry at Somes Sound, Mt. Desert.

Workmen on the Hallowell granite quarries have been at work a day, with eight Saturday, with no reduction of pay. The whistle blew at 5 p. m. for the first time Friday. The men asked for the change.

Hon. A. R. Bixby, World's Fair Commissioner for Maine, tells the Kennebec Journal that the finest site of all those set apart for the 44 states at the great Chicago show, has been assigned to Maine. As to the Maine building, Mr. Bixby says: "In this State I believe there are at least 27 varieties of granite, and I think the granite men ought to give us sufficient of this material to construct the walls, having each kind of stone represented. Then have a roof of Maine slate and the interior finished in Maine woods. I would have a Maine architect and a Maine builder."

MAN ABOUT TOWN.

AS the season for the asses ors to begin getting in their work approaches numerous anecdotes appear in the papers. One of them relates that a man who was swearing both loud and deep about the "robbery of the people" was found, upon investigation, to have had his tax of $4.50 paid by another man for a consideration, probably for his vote. Another tells of a woman who kicked because her husband was so heavily taxed. It was looked up and found to consist of real estate $1.50, poll, $3 and dogs $2. Probably he would hang to the "purps" if he lost his wife.

The young man that postponed his wedding last week because his favorite clergyman had an engagement on the evening selected for the ceremony, will, no doubt, enjoy life in the future with the wife of his choice. Any man that will make a martyr of himself on such an occasion as this deserves sympathy and encouragement.

A hard hearted specimen of manhood, tied a tin pot to a dog's hind quarters and sent the animal howling through the streets last Saturday morning. It's human nature to impose upon those weaker than ourselves and some people think it's fun to abuse animals; but if the society with a long name gets hold of these funny men the result might be otherwise than agreeable to them.

Rockland ought to be proud of her Young Men's Christian Association. Only ten places in the country with a population of 8000 or less have as large a membership as our local branch. Only 566 places raise as much or more money for current expenses, and of these there are 157 places as large or larger than Rockland which have smaller memberships, of these twenty-four raise more money for their associations while fifteen do not report amount contributed.

Recently I had occasion to print a "Lymph Cure" for drunkenness and advised hyperemic doses. Since then I noticed a couple of fellows who were pretty full steering round into a dark place and had curiously enough to watch them thinking, perhaps, they were to try the "cure" on each other. They did, but instead of the hyperemic erysipe they took the rumph from out of a quart bottle and seemed to like it, too. I told them whiskey and business wouldn't mix and they said they didn't care a — if it didn't. What's the moral?

The installment agent is abroad and in his goodness of heart offereth unto the public four dollar rugs for seven dollars only, and verily I say unto you that the multitude buyeth quickly and the agent waxeth fat o'er his gain. . . . The merchant announces a suit of clothes for ten dollars, but the public would not purchase; a clerk suggested that the price be reduced and on the very next day the papers announced a great mark down sale. The ten dollar suit was marked down to $9.99 and they are disposed of before sun had set. I tell you, brethren, it takes a lot of things and so forth to make the whee trade go around slick and smooth.

The new liquor law is "corker" and the man who transports or sells the ardent after May 3d must have a nerve that would do credit to a dentist. Those who imbibe have reason to be pleased with that portion of law that relieves them from doing hateful jury duty.

It's hard on a man's nervous system to be compelled to read a thrilling account of some terrific storm, or a murder, or a suicide, or a railroad accident or anything else of a sensational, remorseful, stupendous, diabolical nature in a paper, and then have the stuffing taken out of the whole the whole thing, by its ending up, with a line or two, advising the use of "Peter Pauls Preventive Pellets" or some other nostrum. Here is a specimen: When all the world is cold and drear, And nought remains to live for here, When the body is full of aches and chills— 'Tis then the time to take Hare's pills.

If you wish a record clean and bright, That in any climate will keep all right, And never sour, thicken or mould, Sandens will do it, so I've been told.

Why Not?

Bishop Foster in the course of some remarks before the Brunswick conference said the Methodists claimed fellowship with all orthodox churches, and that any evidences of growth and progress of other denominations were pleasing to them and expressed his pleasure at President Hyde's suggestion of union churches in small communities, calling it a common sense view of the case. He said that it was a doctrine of the Methodists that one well paid minister in a town was better, and did better work, than five starving preachers in five different struggling churches.
