OBITUARY

April 3, 1894.

Andrew D. Pottle, who had been in critical health for two or three weeks, passed away at his home 87 Union street Saturday.

His family, relatives and friends have gathered about his grave, but the cause of death was not ascertained. Complicated kidney trouble the attending physicians pronounced the cause.

The death of Mr. Pottle removes a citizen, who from his long and prominent connection with business and church circles will be greatly missed.

Andrew Pottle was born at Seabrook Oct. 19, 1810, the son of an industrious blacksmith at that place. The early part of his life was spent in Seabrook, Lincolnville, St. Albans, Appleton and Rockland, where he engaged in numerous industries of the time, learning in turn the trades of a blacksmith, carpenter, joiner and cabinetmaker. There was plenty of opportunity for hard and skillful labor in these varied employments, but young Pottle was industrious and contracted the habit of thrift which has been such a prominent characteristic of his after life. Shoe-making was the trade upon which he finally settled, and coming to this city thirty odd years ago, he opened a shop with his brother in Kimball block. With the departure of this brother to the battle-field, Mr. Pottle became associated with others of our well-known cabinetmakers, and for a number of years was connected with the late Albin Hills. He continued in business until about three years, when advanced age compelled his retirement. In this time he was scarcely ever absent from his work on account of sickness and it is little wonder that he became one of the most familiar figures of our every day business life. Scarcely one of our older generation of men has not known him, and with reverence for a man of honest, upright principles.

Mr. Pottle was twice in the army, enlisting as a musician with the 28th Maine regiment. He is said to have been at the time of his death the oldest Grand Army man in the state.

By religion he was a Methodist, and since his conversion at the age of 17 has been steadily adherent to that faith. He was regarded as a pillar of the Pratt Memorial Methodist Episcopal church and aside from laboring in the interest of all that contributed to the welfare of that church, could claim the honor of being, with one exception, its oldest member. He was a faithful member for ten years in succession. The members of the church together with Edwin Lilly Post, G. A. R., have manifested their thoughtful care in many ways during his illness.

Mr. Pottle was twice married. By the first wife, Harriet Smith of Lincolnville, one child was born, Mrs. Eliza Sleeper of Hiramscotta. His second wife was Susan Pease of Appleton, the surviving children by this union being as follows: Mrs. Susan Haskell of San Francisco, Fred Post of Bangor, Mrs. M. E. Barker and Mrs. Fanny Calderwood of this city.

The funeral will take place Tuesday at 2 p. m. under the auspices of Edwin Lilly Post, G. A. R., Rev. G. W. Bradlee officiating.

VINALHAVEN.

Wm. Harlow, Colby '95, is visiting his sister Mrs. May.

J. F. McManus, who broke his forearm a few days ago, is improving.

Dennis Harriman is nursing a lame eye caused by a chip he tried to catch in it last week.

The minstrels played to a full house Thursday night in spite of the storm. They gave good satisfaction.

Robert Loud who lives "across the pond" is making preparations to open up a quarry on quite an extensive scale.

Last Department Commander Wainwright Cushing of Foxcroft has been engaged to deliver the Memorial Day oration here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Roberts who have been staying with their daughter Mrs. Brown this winter, have returned to their old home.

Mr. W. French returned Saturday from a trip to Franklin, his home in Maine, which he was called by the death of his brother, Frank French.

At the quarterly meeting of the Advent Church Society Saturday evening, Elder R. S. Sidelinger was unanimously called as its pastor for a year.

Schoolmaster George Lawry came into the harbor Friday, and is loading at the Sands quarry for New York. Part of her cargo will be taken from Spruce Head.

Lafe Smith, Ulmer Smith and Frank Rogers went on a wild goose chase Thursday— and it was a "wild goose" chase too, as they all did was to spend the day chasing them, and returned empty handed.

At the Dyar island meeting Friday night to settle on the wishes of the inhabitants to have a postoffice established in that district, George Lawrence presided. Among the petition was signed and will be at once forwarded to the Post Master General.

The date for W. D. Fuller, Jr.'s lecture has at length been fixed for Wednesday, April 11, at the opera house. Mr. Fuller delivers his celebrated humor lecture on "Smoking in Kansas," which has won him such fame last past season. The Odd Fellows engage him, but wish it understood that this event has nothing to do with their anniversary celebration which occurs later in the month.

John W. Hopkins died Thursday night. He was one of the prominent young men of the town, and was born here about 33 years ago. He had held many important positions in town, among them being tax collector and selectman. He was formerly clerk for Lane & Libby, but his last employment was that of clerk of the steamer Vinalhaven. The burial service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Gaskin, after which the Masonic body took charge and the beautiful and touching service rendered. The Odd Fellows to the number of 63, Knights Templar 22, with 40 Masons from Rockland, who had come over on the Silver Star, acted as escort. The services were held in his former home. Among the beautiful floral tributes we would mention a pillow given by the Knights Templar; Maltese cross by T. G. Libby for Lane & Libby; anchor, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sanborn; bouquet of white carnations, Mrs. and Mrs. H. P. Jones, manager of the Vinalhaven Steamboat Co. Every one has a good word for the deceased, and his large circle of friends and acquaintances will miss his familiar figure upon our street.

STARVING TO DEATH.

Plenty to Eat but They Get No Nourishment from their Food.

Dangerous Loss of Weight—Doctors can do nothing.

There are in America perhaps 5,000,000 people who, in the midst of plenty are starving to death.

Not paupers, simply people who cannot digest their food. What is to be done with them? Give them a food that is easily digested—Paskola.

There is no medicine in nature's laboratory that will keep people who cannot digest their food from starving to death. There is only one thing that will do them any good—Food. If ordinary food doesn't feed them, Paskola will.

But people who want to get thin abstain from starch food. Thin, starved people, who want to get fat, should do the opposite, of course. Paskola is prepared according to this scientific fact. It is a pure starch food, artificially digested—not "pepperminted." People don't digest starch. The starch in Paskola is digested with the natural ferments discovered in the human saliva and prepared from other natural products.

People who are starving, show it by losing weight. Consumption starves to death. The loss of two pounds wouldn't make a hundred pounds difference in your weight.

What must people do who are actually losing weight? Eat starch food. But if that doesn't help? Paskola.

Do You Use Salt?

It will pay you in numerous ways to use the salt that's all salt. This is especially true as to the butter maker. You recognize no difference in butter. You can put you out a difference in salt. You strive for the best milk, but not so for the salt.

Test, compare, ask questions. Investigate what.

Diamond Crystal Dairy Salt

has done for others. There's no secret about it. Write and get particulars. We want that salt in cheap, but it is that a good reason why you should not have the best? Look fairly and fully into the salt question, and you'll find the way to better flavored butter, and better prices through our Dairy Salt. Indispensable for cooking and table use also. Write us about it.

Sheriff Rexford

Of Winchester, N. H., had an experience with a severe disease and many medicines, which should be of great benefit to others. He says: "I suffered terribly three years with

Rheumatism

In my shoulder, and at times I found it impossible to raise my hand to my head.

"I tried many kinds of medicine, but got no relief until I took that marvel,

DANA'S

SARSAPARILLA

Which completely cured me."

Messrs. J. A. Powers & Son, Druggists, of Winchester, N. H., were asked to investigate this case, and report that Mr. W. L. Rexford's statement is absolutely correct. Is it any wonder that Dana's Sarsaparilla is known the country over as

"The Kind That Cures."

THE MILLIONTH OF A SECOND.

This Astonishingly Small Amount of Time Measured by Electricity.

Instantaneous photography has made us familiar with the fact that very minute subdivisions of time are possible.

Successful negatives are now frequently taken where exposure lasts only the one-millionth part of a second.

But at the first blinch the statement that a single tick of the clock—the three thousand six-hundredth part of an hour—can be divided into millions seems almost incredible, so infinitesimal is the fraction of time to be determined.

This is a scientific age, and science is nothing if it is not exact. Man has measured and weighed the abysses of the great oceans that cover three-fourths of the surface of our migratory planet and can give approximately the number of drops of water and grains of sodium chloride of which it is made up.

He has also computed the size, measured the distances and analyzed the composition of stars so distant as to be not even visible to the naked eye. After this it requires a very bold or a very ignorant individual to set any limit to human ingenuity.

That extremely minute fractions of time could be accurately determined was incidentally discovered by a celebrated electrician while making some famous experiments with regard to the velocity of electricity.

For the purpose of his experiment he caused an electric discharge from a Leyden jar to be sent through half a mile of copper wire with a break in the center. This gave rise to three sparks, which were reflected in a rapidly rotating mirror revolving at the enormous rate of 800 times a second.

The position of the sparks in the mirror showed that the central spark was slightly out of time, or was slightly retarded as compared with the other two, which were strictly simultaneous. The mirror, therefore, had moved forward somewhat while the electric charge was traveling through the quarter of a mile of wire to the central break.

The difference between the position of the sparks was found to be one-fourth of a degree, and as the mirror revolved through 360 degrees in the one eight-hundredth of a second the actual retardation of the central spark amounted to one one-millionth part of a second.

This is the smallest fraction of time ever determined. It is obvious that by simply lengthening the wire through which the electric discharge is sent less minute fractions of time can be accurately determined in a similar manner.

If it takes an electric discharge to travel one-millionth part of a second to travel one-quarter mile of wire, it takes four times as long to journey a mile, or, to be exact, the two hundred and eighty-eight thousandth part of a second.

In other words, electricity travels 288,000 miles per second.

It is by the above method scientists have been able to ascertain the velocity of electricity and duration of electric flash, the speed and duration of light rays, the velocity of light and much other valuable information respecting the properties of these forces of nature.

John Ruskin's Home.

Brantwood, the chosen lakeside home of John Ruskin during the last quarter century of his life, occupies one of the most favored spots in all England. Situated on the border line of Lancashire and Cumberland in the lake district, it overlooks the smallest of the waters in that "lake country" with which the names of Wordsworth, Southey, Coleridge, Lamb, Lloyd and Wilson are in delicious connection.

Set in the background of a half encircling wood of exquisite grace and mystic beauty, as seen in the green half light of its tranquil shade, Brantwood is protected from the east winds by the open, rising moorland that stretches far to the rear and faces a long slope of lawn that sweeps down to Conistone water's edge. Behind the green and purple moor the water of its overhanging walls runs swiftly down the rocks with all the fuss of a real cascade, and the exalted rock of "Naboth" rises just beyond the borders of his estate—a sort of natural pulpit which is rented by Ruskin, so that from its greater height, which he loves to climb, he may gaze upon the wide view. In front the narrow lake, sparkling in the sun and blue as the waters of the Rhone or of Thun. Then the rising banks beyond of broken green, with white faced houses blinking behind the trees, and the gray village of Conistone nestling away to the right, close down by the head of the lake, and beyond the "Old Man" himself towers above the summer hills that rise close about his knees.—McClure's Magazine.

The Small Has Thirty Thousand Teeth.

Don't believe a word of it, do you? Well, that makes but little difference—it is on the authority of one of the most noted of the modern school of naturalists, and that is sufficient. In the peculiarity of teeth and mouth the small is the most wonderful of all the created creatures, and it has been truly said that it is fortunate for mankind that some of the larger of the wild animals are not similarly constructed. The mouth of the small is armed with a wonderful organ in the shape of a rasplike tongue. This tongue resembles a long, narrow ribbon, coiled in such a manner that only a small portion of it is in use at any one time. Thickly distributed over the entire surface of this ribbonlike organ are an immense number of very minute but strong and sharp teeth, designed in a manner which admirably adapts them to the purpose for which they are intended—viz, that of rasping on the solid portions of the vegetation upon which the creature lives its busy life.

The number of the teeth, as indicated in the speaking and also in the rasping, is perfectly incredible, one species having been shown by actual count under the microscope to possess not less than 80,000.—St. Louis Republic.

A SPRING STORY.

A Few Things You Ought Surely to do at This Season.

In the spring we feel tired, languid and debilitated. The change from cold to warm weather causes a depression of the vital forces resulting in an inactive state of the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys. Headache is common, and the blood undergoes changes which greatly debilitate the system.

The complexion is apt to be sallow, and dark circles gather under the eyes. If something is not done to overcome these conditions, they will last indefinitely and may result in severe sickness. Read the experience of the well known Mrs. A. A. Herick, of 40 Everett Street, East Somerville, Mass.

"Two years ago I contracted a very severe cold that settled all over my body. My head and left side pained me all the time, I had no appetite and could not sleep at all nights. I was so nervous I thought I would be insane and any work seemed like a mountain ahead of me.

"I would become completely exhausted on the slightest exertion. I was obliged to give up and take to the bed. I lay there several weeks but got no better. I began to fear I should never get well, as nothing seemed to affect me. I was finally advised to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and did so.

Landlord Thompson of the Burton House reports business picking up somewhat. Union will do a big business this season. The cars make the town accessible and give our beautiful lakes and drives, and pure air, and fishing privileges, a chance to get in their work.

There is a talk of constructing an old-fashioned line on the Geo. W. Thatcher place, to burn some of the fine lumber which abounds there in unlimited quantity on the very surface of the ground. With this fine material and our excellent shipping facilities, with near access to fuel, there is no good and sufficient reason why Union, the best town in the county should not develop a flourishing lumber business. We have lime, sand, fuel, casks, men, money and a railroad, all things that are necessary, assembled conveniently together. The only thing needed to give us the desired result is enterprise, push, and Union never has been accused of lacking these important qualifications.

C. I. Burroughs is home from Thomaston where he has just disposed of an invoice of fine Canada West horses. H. Ingraham, Rockland, brown mare, 1,100; F. M. Simmons, Rockland, extra nice gray, 1,200; Patrick Walsh, Rockland, pair heavy draft horses, 3,000; John Incey, Thomaston, bay horse, 1,000; Will Conant, Thomaston, gray horse, 1,200; Will Newcomb, No. Union, horse, 1,000. Mr. Burroughs will have another load at once.

Hillard Smith is talking of rowing from here to Boston in a 16-foot boat. He says he can do it within the limit of 48 hours from the time he leaves Carver's Harbor. As usual, there are those who take sides for and against the feat, but the probability is that Mr. Smith will soon make arrangements whereby he will be tested.

A paper is being circulated by the Adventist church to obtain pledges for the support of Elder R. S. Sumner for the coming year. He came here last winter on a mission trip, and has been very successful in his work. That is a queer argument in favor of unlimited silver coinage put out by Senator Stewart in effect that as the low price of silver makes it profitable for anybody to make dollars of standard weight and fineness, the government ought to keep the mints hard at work on them.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years were supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors prescribed a local disease, and prescribed local remedies and by constantly urging cure with local treatment pronounced incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Lowell, Mass., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It goes directly to the seat and supports the surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Act of October 3, 1917. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Lowell, Mass. Sold by Druggists, Etc.
