HATHAWAY HOUSE

A Handsome Old Colonial Dwelling of Which Camden Is Proud.

One of the finest old places in Camden with a handsome old colonial house sitting back of a spacious lawn, with mighty old elms in front, is the old "Hathaway House," for many years more familiarly known as the "Cushing Homestead." It is located on Chestnut street just south of the Baptist church and is one of the most desirable, and attractive of our older residences. It was built and originally owned by John Hathaway, the first Camden lawyer, but he did not live to enjoy it, for just as it was completed, in October, 1799, he died of typhus fever at the age of 26 years. The house then became the property of his widow, Deborah Cushing Hathaway, and from her descended to her nephew, Edward Cushing, and is now owned by his daughter, Alice Cushing Truitt.

The story of John and Deborah Hathaway has often been told and comprises one of the most pathetic romances of our early history. John was a graduate of Brown University and on the completion of his legal studies came here from his native town of Wrentham, Mass., to begin his practice, arriving in 1796. He proved an able young man, and soon had plenty of business from the "Twenty Associates" the original proprietors of the township, and others, and began at once to prosper. He soon built for an office the small building, now the rear part of Mark W. Ingraham's hardware store, and in 1797 went to Massachusetts, returning with his bride, Deborah Cushing. Two years later he was dead, and his ashes now repose in Mountain Cemetery under an ancient, slate colored stone. A more modern marble headstone erected by his side in 1863, is proof that his young wife remained true to his memory for all of her long life, and she lived to be nearly 92 years of age. Their only son was lost at sea at the age of 23 years.

Edward Cushing, who afterwards owned and occupied the old place for so many years was born in Hanover, Mass., and came to Camden as a boy to live with his uncle. He was at first in the dry goods business with E. M. Wood, but spent the greater part of his life in the steamboat business. He was interested in politics and became prominent, serving in both the Maine House and Senate and at one time was prominently talked of for the gubernatorial nomination. Under President Cleveland he was Collector of Customs for the Port of Belfast. He died in 1889.

The old house is one of the few of the older places in town that have remained in the family of the original builder, and has been kept in a fine state of preservation.—Camden Herald.

HAMILTON WON

Portland Skater Beat Allen of Rockland, and Now Wants Nebes' Scalp.

Forrest Hamilton of Portland made no idle boast when he said he was a faster roller skater than Frank Allen, but the races of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights proved that the Rockland man was a worthy contender.

How Hamilton won the 2-mile race Monday night has already been noted in these columns. Wednesday night in the 3-mile race Allen kept the pole for half a mile, and then had the misfortune to fall in turning one of the corners. When he had again struck his stride Hamilton was a half lap ahead. Allen closed up part of the gap, but the old saying about a stern chase was sadly true and Hamilton won by quarter of a lap.

Last night came the grand climax, the 5-mile race. Allen led for nearly four miles. Hamilton then took the pole, and held it to the end of the race, although hard pressed on the home stretch.

Hamilton races in Bangor three nights next week, after which he is anxious to meet Al. Nebes. "I think I can take some of the 'fat head' out of him," said Hamilton. "I shall be in good condition and I know how to put a half lap on him the first night. I would like to hear from him through The Courier-Gazette."

AMERICAN LEGION

Island of Ceylon Would Organize Post—Other Interesting Items.

The "dead line" for payment of American Legion dues has been fixed for February 28. The names of members who fail to pay on or before that date will be stricken from the subscription lists of the American Legion Weekly.

A tour of Europe for $635, with emphasis on the battlefields of France will be conducted under the auspices of Hyde Park Post No. 34 of the American Legion this year. The itinerary will include Switzerland, England, Belgium and France. Reservations may be made through the Hyde Park Post.

Unified action in bringing about better conditions for disabled of the Southwest was insured at a meeting of post commanders and adjutants of the Arkansas, Colorado, Texas and Oklahoma Departments of the American Legion at Dallas, Tex. The Southwestern Conference was established as an annual affair.

American Legion members, scattered over the world, continue to band together. The latest application for information regarding a foreign post came from the island of Ceylon where two members of Akron, O. Post have decided to organize the ex-service wanderers. The nearest posts to Ceylon are located at Singapore and Yokohama, more than a two weeks' journey away.

A fighting chaplain quoted scripture to the members of the Missouri legislature in behalf of a boxing bill which the American Legion is pushing in that state. The quotation which was made by the Rev. Earl A. Blackman, is from Paul in the ninth chapter of Corinthians. It is: "I am a boxer and I hit hard and straight, not as one who beats the air, but I buffet my body."

To inform the world "where my heart is" Miss Alice Robertson, the new congresswoman-elect from Oklahoma, attended a dance of Muskogee, Okla. Post of the American Legion. Miss Robertson, who is an ardent church worker, took sides with the Legion when a Muskegoe minister assailed the Legionnaires for condemning Sunday blue laws.

The convening of an Americanism conference in every state, followed by the assembling of a national congress, to be attended by Americanism directors, and representatives of schools, industries and various civic and patriotic societies is on the program of the Americanism Commission of the American Legion for 1921. The Legion's plan was formed as a result of an Americanism conference in Massachusetts, which was held under the auspices of the Bay State Legionnaires.

THE SADIE NUNAN
Schooner Sadie M. Nunan, which for many years has sailed out of this port, has made her last "set" in this vicinity, as on Tuesday her former owner and master, Capt. Fred Bickford, will take her to Gloucester for delivery to the parties to whom he sold her a few weeks ago. The schooner on Friday came up from Rockland, where she took on a new mainboom to replace one broken a few weeks since.—Portland Herald.

A BETTER NAME
The former German liner Bismarck, the largest ship in the world, recently purchased by the White Star Line from the reparations commission, is to be renamed the Malabar. She is now being made ready for her new owners by German workmen in the Hamburg ship yards, in compliance with terms of the peace treaty. She will carry about 2500 passengers.

The battleship Tennessee has been having its second speed trial off the Virginia Capes this week. She will probably take her final tests on the Rockland course during the summer. On her first trial trip last October, one of her generators broke down and forced her to return to port.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM
Whatever your occupation may be and how ever crowded your hours with affairs, do not fail to secure at least a few minutes every day for refreshment of your inner life with a bit of poetry.
—Charles Elliot Norton.

SIX LITTLE FEET ON THE FENDER
In my heart there lived a picture
Of a kitchen rude and old
Where the firelight tripped o'er the rafters,
And reddened the roof's brown mold;
Up 'mid the rafters' gloom—
Because of the feet on the fender,
Six restless, white little feet—
The thoughts of that dear old kitchen
Are to me so fresh and sweet.

When the first dash on the window
Told of the coming rain,
Oh! where are the fair young faces
That crowded against the pane?
While his of freight stealing
Their dimpled cheeks between
Went struggling out in the darkness,
In shreds of silver sheen.

Two of the feet grew weary
One dreary, dismal day,
And we tied them with snow-white ribbons,
Leaving them there by the way.
There was fresh clay on the fender
That weary wintry night,
For the four little feet had tracked it
From his grave on the bright hill's height.

Oh! why, on this darkness evening,
This evening of rain and sleet,
Reg my feet all alone on the hearthstone?
Oh! where are those other feet?
Are they treading the pathway of virtue
That will bring us together above?
Or have they made steps that will dampen
A sister's tireless love?
—Cornelia W. Lissa.

MONDAY'S ELECTION

Tomorrow is the final day for registration, the Board closing that part of its work at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. It is to be hoped that every woman in the city who has not yet exercised her right of franchise will see that her name is put upon the voting lists, to the end that she may have a direct part in placing the city of Rockland definitely in the column with the other cities of Maine, in this year when almost the entire country stands overwhelmingly Republican.

In Mr. Stevens the party's ticket is headed by a man of highest personal and business character whose election, supported with the nominated tickets in each ward, guarantees to our city a commonsense administration of affairs, without narrowness and with the educational, moral and business interests equally cared for. No candidate has had a clearer title to support, not only by the straight adherents of the party, but also by the considerable independent vote that is accustomed to have in mind what is soundest and best in all branches of the city's interests. From every indication this group of citizens is enlisting itself to give the ticket bearing Mr. Stevens' name an emphatic endorsement.

This is the night of the Chapman concert, an occasion of such moment in musical circles as ought to bring out a great audience. The columns of this paper have had many occasions during the past quarter of a century to exploit the work of Mr. Chapman and to commend his faithfulness to promise with respect to the artists brought to Maine under his management. Here is another occasion when our people are able through his judgment and zeal to enjoy the work of artists of the high rank, a privilege that should not be lightly regarded.

At Monday night's session of the Elks these officers were nominated for the annual election: Exalted ruler, Charles W. Proctor; esteemed leading knight, Everett Davis; esteemed loyal knight, Dr. F. E. Follett; esteemed lecturer, knight, H. B. Walz; secretary, A. W. Clarke; treasurer, A. H. Jones; tiler, E. B. Hastings; trustee for three years, E. B. McAllister; representative to Grand Lodge, Frank A. Tirrell, Jr.; alternate, Lucien K. Green.

WARD ONE WOMEN VOTERS

Next Monday, March 7th, your liberty will give you the right to cast your vote in the municipal election. I can assure you that I am extremely anxious to see you cast your vote on the side of righteousness and justice.

I cannot refrain from expressing my admiring appreciation of what the good women of this country accomplished the last Presidential election; I am sure that a triumphal victory awaits you on Monday next, when you will vindicate good old Ward 1.

You noble women have begun the fight for imperishable moral treasures, your home and your precious children. Please remember that you cannot accomplish results unless you apply tremendous earnestness. I wish to say with all possible emphasis that you should make next Monday another red letter day for the women of Ward One. I believe that the steps of a good woman are ordered by the Lord, and that He will surely bless you with victory. You all know that in past years the corrupt political parties have in wanton defiance of every law of God and man ruled as they pleased, and you mothers have sorely suffered from its deadly demoralizing effects. Now you have been given your long-desired freedom of the ballot; you are able to cleanse your country from its corrupt and dastardly political conditions.

I can assure you that in casting your vote for James E. Stevens for Mayor, that you will vote for a man of rare personal and sterling business qualities. As Mayor I believe that he will not favor friend or foe, but will give an honest administration for all the people of Rockland.

THOMAS HAWKEN,

The General Knox Memorial Matter Effectively Presented At Committee Hearing Yesterday.

[Special to The Courier-Gazette.]

Augusta, March 2.—The resolve in favor of the General Knox Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, asking the legislature to appropriate $25,000 to aid in the erection of a memorial to General Knox, in the form of a suitable fire-proof building, resembling "Montpelier," was presented to the Committee on Appropriations and Financial Affairs in the Executive Council's chambers this Wednesday afternoon.

The case was presented by Frank H. Ingraham of Rockland, who read the resolve and statement of facts. He called first Mrs. Richard O. Elliot, past regent of General Knox Chapter, who eloquently told the story of Gen. Knox and presented the claims of the chapter for a suitable memorial in behalf of that great figure of the Revolution. Mrs. Elliot presented the case with great eloquence, effectively marshaling facts such as have been printed in recent issues of The Courier-Gazette, and which are familiar to readers of this paper.

Mrs. Elliot was followed by Senator Thompson of Knox County, who forcibly presented the claims of General Knox to recognition and told how hard the members of the General Knox Chapter have worked and the many sacrifices that have been made, particularly appealing to the committee from the patriotic standpoint.

He was followed by Miss M. J. Watts of Thomaston, a member of the chapter, who reminiscently told of the Knox Mansion as she knew it when she played about it as a girl, and described in detail the furniture, wall-paper on the rooms and architectural design of the building. She called attention to the fact that the D. A. R. had made this appeal before. They had said at that time, that they would come again if their request was not granted, and here they were, and in closing she added that they would come again before the committee if their request was not granted at this time. She spoke of the fact that the archives in Washington show that General Knox planned all the victories that General Washington won and none of the battles in which Washington was defeated, so that we owe to Knox more than to anyone else our independence.

Mrs. Charles A. Creighton of Thomaston, past regent of the chapter and past State regent, next appealed to the committee, telling particularly of what the chapter members have done to earn money for this purpose and how near to their hearts the matter lies.

Mr. Ingraham called the attention of the committee to the fact that that former Governor Cobb has warmly endorsed the matter and also that the press has been unanimously in favor of the idea. The late Governor Parkhurst, he said, sent a telegram to the hearing four years ago urging that a favorable report be given it. The national organization of the D. A. R. is also the State or organization of both the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution have always warmly endorsed the matter.

Many valuable Knox mementoes now in his possession, which will be presented to the Knox Memorial under his will and when it is in position to receive them. Professor Fowler stated that the present money value of these articles in his possession greatly exceeds the $25,000 now asked for.

Mr. Ingraham summed up in closing, eloquently and forcibly contending that General Knox is entitled to a memorial and that this one as proposed is the most appropriate from that it can take. Among those present at the hearing was Mrs. Maurice Derry of Rockland, the present regent of Gen. Knox Chapter.

Representative Peaslee of Thomaston and Representative Spear of Rockport spoke in favor of the resolve, giving it warm commendation. There was read a strong endorsement in the form of a letter to Senator Thompson from Henry Thatcher Fowler of Brown University. Professor Fowler, who is a great-grandson of General Knox, enumerated.

Augusta, March 1.—With the adjournment of the legislature, Friday afternoon, a large number of senators and representatives leave on the afternoon trains for the weekend at their homes, while those who live in remote sections remain here do not return to their district until the session finally ends, which will probably be the week in April. The past week has probably been the busiest in the matter of committee hearings. Every afternoon there are scores of new faces seen at the State House. Citizens, both men and women, come to urge the passage of certain measures that will affect the community in which they live.

It may be the question of dividing the town into separate municipalities, or a change in the city charter, or a request for an appropriation, perhaps for a road, or a pension. At all events there is generally a good attendance from the section under discussion. It has been at these committee hearings that you will observe the shrewd Maine Yankee at his best. In the House or the Senate you will seldom hear keener thrusts of wit or sarcasm, shrewd reasoning or native eloquence of a higher order than on almost any of these winter afternoon sessions when continuing elements from some section are trying to convince the committee that one side or the other is right.

Governor Baxter and council will continue to hold daily meetings during the rest of the session.

Representative Percy T. Clark of Stonington appeared before the committee on legal affairs in favor of an act to amend the revised statutes relating to the sale for taxes of real estate in incorporated places. He explained that although the law permitted a redemption period of 18 months for non-resident real estate owners whose property is sold for taxes, it permitted the filing of deeds to the property so sold at the end of one year and 30 days. This works a hardship upon non-resident owners, said Mr. Clark, and often results in loss of the property. The amendment reduces the redemption period to one year for non-residents, thus closing the transaction at that time and keeping the deed to such property in the hands of the municipal treasurer.

Senator Thompson of Knox has introduced an act additional to the law of the road relating to one vehicle passing another vehicle while traveling in the same direction. It provides that the driver of a carriage, motor vehicle or other vehicle passing a carriage motor vehicle or other vehicle travelling in the same direction shall drive to the left or the middle of travelled part of the road or bridge, and if the road or bridge is of sufficient width for the two vehicles to pass, the driver of the leading one shall not willfully obstruct the same.

The hall of the House of Representatives was filled at the hearing before the joint committees of Judiciary and Appropriations on the measure to establish the Maine Medical School and to provide for its maintenance. A number of medical men appeared in its favor and fully as many who opposed it. The proponents of the measure maintained that it was due the State that such an institution be established, while those opposed held that the expense to the State at this time was not only enormous, but also that there was no telling where the expense would stop, once started.

Governor Baxter went to Boston Saturday to attend a conference of New England Governors and the executive heads of New England railroads as to the general railroad situation, including the apportionment of freight and passenger traffic, and to listen to remedies which may relieve the situation. The other Governors attending are Albert O. Brown of New Hampshire, James Hartness of Vermont, Channing H. Cox of Massachusetts, Emory Sans Souci of Rhode Island and Everett J. Lake of Connecticut.

Governor Baxter and his private secretary, Gilbert R. Chadbourne, left Wednesday night for Washington to attend the inaugural exercises on March 4 of Warren G. Harding of Ohio and Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts as president and vice president of the United States. The Governor plans to arrive back in Augusta next Monday. A uniform poll tax of $5 was endorsed by the House, Thursday when the bill providing this was first given its reading, after an amendment making the amount optional with the towns had been rejected.

Declaring that the divorce laws were a crime against the laws of God, Melihon of Lewiston, Friday in the House, moved the substitution of his bill repealing all the divorce laws of the State for the Judiciary committee's report ought not to pass on the bill. Buzzell of Belfast told the House that he hoped the motion to substitute would not prevail. The motion was put and on the viva voce vote declared lost. Melihon doubted the vote and called for a division of the House. "I would like to see the man," said he, "who will rise in this House and defend the practice of divorce." The House voted 87-2 against substituting the bill for the report, and the ought-not-to-pass report was then adopted.

Adjutant General George McL. Presson explained to the Committee on Military Needs the reason why he was asking $100,000 for his department. He said that whereas in the past the State had never maintained a greater military force than 1,500 men and that 1,200 had been about the average, in the future under the new federal program it would be called upon to keep 4,500 men. During the last period they spent $60,000, so that the increase was not so great in proportion to the added strength of the National Guard which Maine was to be required to keep. During the next two years, he said, the federal government would give to Maine from four to five million dollars worth of equipment. Already the State had received 50 automobile trucks for military use and would have a total. The federal government helped pay many of these expenses of the department, but the State had its proportion to meet and he felt that $100,000 was the least possible amount with which the work of his department could be efficiently carried on.

Lewis A. Burleigh of Augusta, chairman of the State Park Commission, appeared before the Committee on Military Affairs in behalf of the resolve for the creation of a War Memorial Commission, and asked for $10,000 to properly conduct a State-wide campaign for contributions from the public for the erection of a suitable memorial to the soldiers from Maine in the World War. It is proposed to erect the State park in Augusta, provided the plans and location are approved by the Governor and Council and the Park Commission.

Mr. Burleigh stated what other states are doing in the same direction, large sums being appropriated, but in Maine the people will attend to the financial end. The State park is in process of being developed and will be a beautiful spot, a credit to the State and logically and for other reasons the proper location for the War Memorial. The expenditure for the memorial may be many thousands more than now talked, but the people will look after that every cent of the contributions will be spent for the memorial.

Rep. Cram of Bristol conducted the case for an appropriation of $1687.50 for repairs, care and maintenance of Fort William Henry, a historical spot at Pemaquid, W. D. Patterson of Wiscasset and Frank B. Nichols of Bath, members of the Fort William Henry Commission, also endorsed the resolve, to preserve the memorial and its priceless relics and historical data. The commissioners serve without pay.

Judge Albert M. Spear spoke for the resolve carrying $600 to place a suitable tablet on the State of Maine marker on the famous field of Valley Forge, the present tablet being entirely unsuitable. The area now including Maine furnished over 1000 men or one-eighth of Washington's army at Valley Forge.

Dr. Robert J. Aley, president of the University of Maine, spoke in favor of the resolve for co-operation work between the College of Agriculture of the University of Maine and the United States Department of Agriculture. The resolve calls for the sum of $7,300.36 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1921, and the sum of $40,957.28 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1922. President Aley explained to the committee how the government duplicates the money which is appropriated by the State and the money is used in extension

The saving of 10-cent pieces, begun by a Rockland professional man more than 20 years ago, has grown into such a confirmed habit that he will change a large bill rather than spend a stray dime. Fancy his embarrassment the other day when a hole in his pantaloons pocket allowed 60 ten-cent pieces to roll out on the sidewalk while he was talking with a lady.

"When a traveler is told that the Atlantic door to the Panama Canal is farther west than the Pacific door he is inclined to be a bit puzzled," writes Chief Boatwain's Mate Peter Nelson, who was at Balboa, Canal Zone, Feb. 18, with the U. S. S. Oklahoma. "The anomaly is explained by the fact that the general direction of the waterway is from northwest to southeast, thus placing the Pacific port of entry about 23 miles farther east than the Atlantic port of entry. The entire length of the canal, including the dredged portions, extending to deep water at either entrance is 48.84 nautical miles, and a boat requires 10 to 12 hours in passing through. A depth of 35 feet is maintained in the channels. During the fiscal year 1919 vessels to the number of 2025 passed through the canal."

Local subscribers of Zion's Herald will learn with regret of the death of Dr. Charles Parkhurst, who was editor of the Herald for 32 years, until his retirement two years ago.

J. E. Kingsley, illustrious potentate of Kora Temple will be at Hotel Rockland Friday evening at 7:30 to discuss the proposed Rockland Shriners' Day with all who are interested. The presence of a large number will convince Mr. Kingsley that Rockland is as much interested in the proposition as he has been led to believe.

The men of the Littlefield Memorial Church and society will serve a public supper in the vestry of the church next Wednesday evening, the proceeds to be used toward paying a pledge made to the church.

The Stonington Furniture Co. has put a new delivery truck into commission to take care of its Rockland business.

All ex-service men are invited to the smoker which Winslow-Holbrook Post No. 1 is to give in American Legion hall at 7:30 tonight. A good sociable time is offered.

Clifford Witham, who has been in the employ of the Texas Co., in Bath, has returned to this city, and will probably "go steamboating" again this summer. The Texas Co., in the process of curtailing operations is laying off large number of employes.

Billiards is enjoying unusual popularity in this city at the present time, and the very few tables are much in demand. At the Star Pool Room, tonight a quintet of ambitious "sharks" from Jim's Corner will try conclusions with a team representing the Star Pool Room.

Kenneth Stare of Boston has become associated in the ownership of Dyer's Garage, and has been elected president of the corporation. He will reside in this city.

Ladies night at the Elks Home this week will be held on Friday evening instead of Thursday. Mrs. Charles A. Mitchell and Mrs. Clarence Shaw, chairmen of the housekeepers, announce an unusually good supper.

The Chapman concert takes place tonight. Everybody should be present to hear Guarnieri. Rosa Raisa of the Chicago Grand Opera Co. liked his voice so well that she sang a duet with him and will soon be heard on a Columbia record. In addition to Guarnieri will appear Justin Lawrie, tenor, and Madeleine Sokoloff, violinist.

The Lincoln Academy basketball team which comes by special train, with 150 followers, tomorrow night, hopes to win in Rockport the game which will give it the championship of the Knox & Lincoln Basketball League. The Lincoln county basketballers have won 12 straight games thus far, making 477 points against 182 for their opponents.

In celebration of its first anniversary, the Rockport Line Rockport Bulletin emerges from the printers' hands as a double number, and an illustrated edition at that. The "blue un" is edited and printed by Alvah B. Clark at the lime company's own printing office and in point of appearance is a credit to the skill shown by Mr. Clark, while acting as foreman of The Courier-Gazette and other newspapers. The publication serves the double purpose of supplying its clientele with the price current of the Employees' Co-operative Store, and the latest news concerning the big industry in whose behalf it is published. The items are not all serious for the readers evidently enjoy jokes perpetrated at the expense of each other, and these are imitatively told by Editor Clark, whose personal popularity is alone responsible for the fact that he has escaped unscathed, without ever going to the trouble of packing a gun.

The exquisite combination of color in dress goods, displayed in the W. O. Hewett Co. show-window, has been the subject of much complimentary remark this week. The decoration is the work of Miss Annie McLaughlin, one of the firm's sales force, whose artistic taste and skill are decidedly pronounced.

Albert S. Tompkins, who succeeds to R. A. Tompkins & Son, as proprietor of "Ye Olde Curiosity Shop" at the corner of Main and Cottage streets, shows The Courier-Gazette a State Bank bill with the denomination of $5, which was issued by the Eastern Bank of Bangor. It was found in somebody's attic, and is an interesting reminder of days remembered only by older residents.

In these days when Main street signs change so frequently it is interesting to note that one was put in place yesterday which was first hung in December, 1869, and which has never been more than a bliscuit toss from that location except when it was being repainted. Reference is made to the sign of G. W. Palmer & Son, jewelers and optometrists, who vacated the store of the Burpee block to make way for the Burpee Furniture Co., and leased Singh block, which adjoins the Burpee establishment on the south. The new store, by the way, is proving to be just what the doctor ordered, and Mr. Palmer and the associate, "Charles" Proctor, are more than delighted with their handsome new quarters. The business was founded in 1861 by Greenleaf W. Palmer, father of the present proprietor, who formed a partnership with the late Simeon Blood. In 1869 Mr. Palmer formed a partnership with his son, Eugene W. Palmer, and the firm style of G. W. Palmer & Son has never changed. Mr. Palmer senior died 15 years ago.

CAPT. PETER QUINLAN

Accidental Death in Baltimore of Former Rockland Mariner.

News was received in this city Tuesday of the accidental death in Baltimore of Capt. Peter Quinlan, a master mariner who had sailed many years out of this port. Beyond the fact that he died after being taken to a hospital no particulars have been received. A. H. Newbert, secretary of Aurora Lodge, F. and A. M., was notified that the funeral services will be held today.

Capt. Quinlan was about 60 years of age and was survived by his wife and a daughter. Sailing out of this port for Francis Cobb he became well known in the lime markets as commander of the schooners J. R. Bodwell and Silver Heels. Entering the employ of Crowell & Thurlow he commander of the schooners J. R. Bodwell, Robert Graham Dunn, Star of the Sea, and Augustus H. Babcock. More recently he had officiated as port captain for the Crowell & Thurlow fleet in New York.

In local shipping circles yesterday the news caused universal sorrow and many fine tributes were paid to Capt. Quinlan's efficiency as a mariner, and to the qualities which made him so highly esteemed personally.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY IRVING MYERS.

CHAPTER I.—In the village of Blingville, thirteen-year-old Robert Emmet Moran, crippled son of a poor widow, is known as the Shepherd of the Birds. His world is his mother and friends, his little room, the flower garden of Judge Crocker, and every thing that he sees from his window. The painting of pictures is his enjoyment, and little Pauline Baker, small daughter of a neighbor, the object of his boyish affection. To him, J. Patterson Bing, the first citizen of Blingville, is the ideal of a really great man.

CHAPTER II.—The village becomes money mad, reflecting the great world in its state of unrest. The Bing family is a leader in the change. To them the village has become "provincial." Pauline Baker, victim of her surroundings, elopes with a stranger, and her parents are unable to trace her.

CHAPTER III.—Severe winter weather brings distress to Blingville. Spoiled by false prosperity, the citizens have failed to look ahead, and many suffer absolute privation. The Reverend Odis Singleton, one of the few in the village who seek to stem the tide of extravagance and folly, effects a reformation in Hiram Blenkinsop, town drunkard and general "black sheep."

CHAPTER IV.—Mainly owing to Judge Crocker, the village awakes to its short-sightedness in having considered money essential, and neglecting the real things of life and true democracy. Some of the leading men also receive a lesson, in the increasing waywardness of members of their families.

CHAPTER V.—The Bing family feels the strain of the prolonged "gliddy whirl." Phyllis, the daughter of the house, is threatened with nervous prostration. Mr. Bing purchases a pearl necklace costing $10,000 for her. His employees, hearing of this extravagance, demand more pay and less work.

CHAPTER VI.—Hiram Blenkinsop, after a period of right living, falls from grace. Following a prolonged debauch, ill and penniless, he takes refuge in the churchyard. There he meets Pauline Baker, deserted by her husband, and with a baby in her arms. Hiram takes them to the Widow Moran, who gives them welcome and shelter.

May had returned with its warm sunlight. The robins had come back. The blue martins had taken possession of the bird house. The grass had turned green on the garden borders and was now sprinkled with the golden glow of dandelions. The leaves were coming but Pat Crowley was no longer at work in the garden. He had fallen before the pestilence. Old Bill Rutherford was working there. The Shepherd was at the open window every day, talking with him and watching and feeding the birds.

Now, with the spring, a new feeling had come to Mr. Hiram Blenkinsop. He had been sober for months. His Old Self had come back and had imparted his youthful strength to the man Hiram. He had money in the bank. He was decently dressed. People had begun to respect him. Every day, Hiram was being noticed and worried by a new thought. He persisted in telling him that respectability was like the Fourth of July—a very dull thing unless it was celebrated. He had been greatly pleased with his own growing respectability. He felt as if he wanted to take a look at it from a distance, as it were. That money in the bank was unaging and calling him. It seemed to be lonely and longing for companionship.

"Come, Hiram Blenkinsop," it used to say. "Let's be off together and get a silk hat and a gold-headed cane and make 'em set up and take notice. Suppose you should die sudden and leave me without an escort?" The warmth and joy of the spring had turned his fancy to the old dream. So one day, he converted his bank balance into "a roll big enough to choke a dog," and took the early morning train to Hazelmead, having left Christmas at the Widow Moran's. In the mill city he bought a fine silk hat and a gold-headed cane and a new suit of clothes and a boiled shirt and a high collar and a red necktie. It didn't matter to him that the fashion and fit of his garments were not quite in keeping with the silk hat and gold-headed cane. There were three other items in the old dream of splendor—the mother, the prancing team, and the envious remarks of the onlookers. His mother was gone. Also there were no prancing horses in Hazelmead, but he could hire an automobile.

In the course of his celebration he asked a lady whom he met in the street, if she would kindly be his mother for a day. He meant well but the lady being younger than Hiram and not accustomed to such familiarity from strangers, did not feel complimented by the question. They fled from each other. Soon, Hiram bought a big custard pie in a bake-shop and had it cut into small slices and had, having purchased pie and plate, went out upon the street with it. He ate what he wanted of the pie and generously offered the rest of it to sundry people who passed him. It was not impertinence in Hiram; it was pure generosity—a desire to share his riches, flavored, in some degree, by a feeling of vanity. It happened that Mr. J. Patterson Bing came along and received a tender of pie from Mr. Blenkinsop. "No," said Mr. Bing, with that old hammer whack in his voice which aroused bitter memories in the mind of Hiram.

That tone was a great piece of impudence. There was a menacing gesture and a rapid succession of footsteps on the pavement. Mr. Bing's retreat was not, however, quite swift enough to save him. The pie landed on his shoulder. In a moment, Hiram was arrested and marching toward the lockup while Mr. Bing went to the nearest drug store to be cleaned and scoured.

A few days later Hiram Blenkinsop arrived in Blingville. Mr. Singleton met him on the street and saw to his deep regret that Hiram had been drinking.

"I've made up my mind that religion is good for some folks, but it won't do for me," said the latter.

"Why not?" the minister asked.

"I can't afford it."

"Have you found religion a luxury?" Mr. Singleton asked.

"It's grand while it lasts, but it's like pison gettin' over it," said Hiram. "I feel kind o' ruined."

"You look it," said the minister, with a glance at Hiram's silk hat and soiled clothing. "A long spell of sobriety is hard on a man if he quits it sudden. You've had your day of trial, my friend. We all have to be tried soon or late. People begin to say, 'At last he's come around all right. He's a good fellow.' And the Lord says: 'Perhaps he's worthy of better things. I'll try him and see.'"

"That's His way of pushing people along, Hiram. He doesn't want them to stand still. You've had your trial and failed, but you mustn't give up. When your fun turns into sorrow, as it will, come back to me and we'll try again."

Hiram sat dozing in a corner of the bar-room of the Eagle hotel that day. He had been ashamed to go to his comfortable room over the garage. He did not feel entitled to the hospitality of Mr. Singleton. Somehow, he couldn't bear the thought of going there. His new clothes and silk hat were in a state which excited the derision of small boys and audible comment from all observers while he had been making his way down the street. His money was about gone. The barkeeper had refused to sell him any more drink. In the early dusk he went out of doors. It was almost as warm as midsummer and the sky was clear. He called at the shop of the Widow Moran for his dog. In a moment Christmas came down from the Shepherd's room and greeted his master with fond affection. The two went away together. They walked up a deserted street and around to the old graveyard. When it was quite dark, they groped their way through the weeds, briared aisles, between moss-covered toppling stones, to their old nook under the ash tree. There Hiram made a bed of boughs, picked from the evergreens that grew in the graveyard, and lay down upon it under his overcoat with the dog Christmas. He found it impossible to sleep, however. When he closed his eyes a new thought began nudging him.

It seemed to be saying, "What are you going to do now, Mr. Hiram Blenkinsop?"

He was pleased that it seemed to say Mr. Hiram Blenkinsop. He lay for a long time looking up at the starry moonlit sky, and at the marble, weather-spotted angel on the monument of the Reverend Thaddeus Sneed, who had been lying there among the rude forefathers of the village, since 1806. Suddenly the angel began to move. Mr. Blenkinsop observed with alarm that it had discovered him and that its right forefinger was no longer directed toward the sky but was pointing at his face. The angel had assumed the look and voice of his Old Self and was saying: "I don't see why angels are always cut in marble and set up in graveyards with nothing to do but point at the sky. It's a cold and lonesome business. Why don't you give me a job?"

His Old Self vanished, and, as it did so, the spotted angel fell to coughing and sneezing. It coughed and sneezed so loudly that the sound went echoing in the distant sky and so violently that it reeled and seemed to be in danger of falling. Mr. Blenkinsop awoke with a rude jump so that the dog Christmas barked in alarm. It was nothing but the midnight train from the south pulling out of the station, which was near the old graveyard. The spotted angel stood firmly in place and was pointing at the sky as usual.

It was probably an hour or so later, when Mr. Blenkinsop was awakened by the barking of the dog Christmas. He quieted the dog and listened. He heard a sound like that of a baby crying. It awoke tender memories in the mind of Hiram Blenkinsop. One very sweet recollection was about all that the barren, bitter years of his young manhood had given him worth having. It was the recollection of a little child which had come to his home in the first year of his married life.

"She lived eighteen months and three days and four hours," he used to say, in speaking of her, with a tender note in his voice.

Almost twenty years she had been lying in the old graveyard near the ash tree. Since then the voice of a child crying always halted his steps. It is probable that, in her short life, the neglected, pathetic child Pearl—having been her name—had protested much against a plentiful lack of comfort and sympathy.

So Mr. Blenkinsop's agitation at the sound of a baby crying some where near him, in the darkness of the old graveyard, was quite natural and will be readily understood. He rose on his elbow and listened. Again he heard the small, appealing voice.

"By thunder! Christmas," he whispered. "If that ain't like Pearl when she was a little, teeny, weeny thing no bigger'n a pint o' beer! Say, it is, sir, sure as sin!"

He scrambled to his feet, suddenly, for now, also, he could hear the voice of a woman crying. He groped his way in the direction from which the sound came and soon discovered the woman. She was kneeling on a grave with a child in her arms. Her grief touched the heart of the man.

"Who be you?" he asked.

"I'm cold, and my baby is sick, and I have no friends," she sobbed.

"Yes, ye have!" said Hiram Blenkinsop. "I don't care who ye be. I'm yer friend and don't ye forget it. There was a reassuring note in the voice of Hiram Blenkinsop. Its gentleness had in it a quiver of sympathy. She felt it and gave to him—an unknown, invisible man, with just a quiver of sympathy in his voice—her confidence.

If ever one was in need of sympathy, she was at that moment. She felt that she must speak out to some one. So keenly she felt the impulse that she had been speaking to the stars and the cold gravestones. Here at last was a human being with a quiver of sympathy in his voice.

"I thought I would come home, but when I got here I was afraid," the girl moaned. "I wish I could die. No, ye don't, either!" said Hiram Blenkinsop. "Sometimes, I've thought that I hadn't no friends an' wanted to die, but I was just foolin' myself. To be sure, I ain't had no baby on my hands but I've had somethin' just as worrisome, I guess. Folks like you an' me has got friends aplenty if we'll only give 'em a chance. I've found that out. You let me take that baby an' come with me. I know where you'll get the glad hand. You just come right along with me."

The unmistakable note of sincerity was in the voice of Hiram Blenkinsop. She gave the baby into his arms. He held it to his breast a moment, thinking of old times. Then he swung his arms like a cradle saying:

"You stop your hollerin'—ye go! darn little skeezicks! It ain't decent to go on that way in a graveyard an' ye ought to know it. Be ye tryin' to wake up the dead?"

The baby grew quiet and finally fell asleep.

"Come on, now," said Hiram, with the baby lying against his breast. "You an' me are goin' out o' the past. I know a little house that's next door to heaven. They say ye can see heaven from its windows. It's where the good Shepherd lives. Christmas an' I know the place—don't ye, ol' boy? Come right along. There ain't no kind o' doubt o' what they'll say to us."

The young woman followed him out of the old graveyard and through the dark, deserted streets until they came to the cottage of the Widow Moran. They passed through the gate into Judge Crocker's garden. Under the Shepherd's window, Hiram Blenkinsop gave the baby to his mother and with his hands to his mouth called "Bob!" in a loud whisper. Suddenly a robin sounded his alarm. Instantly, the Shepherd's room was full of light. In a moment, he was at the window sweeping the garden paths and the tree tops with his searchlight. It fell on the sorrowful figure of the young mother with the child in her arms and stopped. She stood looking up at the window bathed in the flood of light. It reminded the Shepherd of that glow which the wise men saw in the manger at Bethlehem.

"Pauline Baker!" he exclaimed. "Have you come back or am I dreaming? It's you—thanks to the Blessed Virgin! It's you! Come around to the door. My mother will let you in."

It was a warm welcome that the girl received in the little home of the Widow Moran. Many words of comfort and good cheer were spoken in the next hour or so, after which the good woman made tea and toast and broiled a chop and served them in the Shepherd's room.

"God love ye, child! So he was a married man—bad 'cess to him an' the likes o' him!" she said as she came in with the tray. "Mother of Jesus! What a wicked world it is!" The prudent dog Christmas, being afraid of babies, hid under the Shepherd's bed, and Hiram Blenkinsop lay down for the rest of the night on the lounge in the cottage kitchen.

An hour after daylight, when the judge was walking in his garden, he wondered why the widow and the Shepherd were sleeping so late.

PORT CLYDE

A village located on the banks of Penobscot Bay, extending far out into the ocean, having an excellent piece of State highway running from Thomaston and only one half hour from all trains. Town water suitable for all purposes, supplied from an artesian well bored through a solid ledge, purity guaranteed. Stores large enough, centrally located and amply stocked to care for every need. Excellent High School available with college instructors equal to any in the State. Rents from $4 to $10 per month, located in healthy surroundings, with no objections to children.

Fishing one of the leading industries. It is here that the fish are landed all alive to the dealers. One of the very few fishing villages located practically upon the fishing grounds. No one ever bought fish caught at Port Clyde but what purchased the very highest grade of fresh fish that the Atlantic coast can produce, all handled by men schooled in the business of the fishing industry. In purchasing fish for your table it is to your interest to insist upon fish caught at Port Clyde, in a place where no fish are allowed to remain in the boats over one and one-half hours. Like the water of the village, purity is guaranteed. Sardine factory centrally located, employing all members of the family who wish to work, wages equal to any village on the coast of Maine, with rents and living as low as you could ask for modern facilities.

The village has vacant tenements to let to suit your pocket-book, with the delicious Maine coast clams right at your feet and cod and haddock that none can beat, right at your fingertips. Two churches, well-conducted and attended, and the whole village makes an ideal place to live, where Nature will help you make a living away from the narrow and cramped quarters of the city where you are now struggling for a living and only partly existing. Give this village a looking over just as soon as the young Mr. Spring makes his debut. We are looking for good citizens.

Meat
—then and now

THE meat peddler of the old days, who killed his own live stock and then sold the meat from the tail of a cart, is gone from our larger towns and cities. He was a pioneer and did good service but he couldn't keep up with his job. Crude methods had to give way to new ideas in sanitation and distribution.

Concentration of population drove the peddler and his wagon out and brought the modern packing industry and the neighborhood retailer in his place.

And the modern packing business means this: That near the farms and ranches, the centers of live stock production, are packing plants that assemble and manufacture the meat products you use.

That swift and sanitary refrigerator cars carry your meat from these packing plants to every part of the country.

Dealers in towns and villages are supplied directly and regularly from these refrigerator cars.

And in cities the refrigerator car is unloaded into branch houses, chilled and sanitary, from which deliveries are made to your meat shop. And all the time the meat is kept so chilled that deterioration is prevented.

Swift & Company's plants and branches are co-ordinated, inter-changing supply and supporting each other, when necessary, so that no section of the country may ever lack its daily meat.

MARTINSVILLE

Nearly everyone in this vicinity has his wood all out and many are inviting the new sawing machine into their yards.

Mrs. Mary L. Hart of Tenants' Harbor was the guest of Mrs. H. L. Mason last Wednesday.

The Ladies Sewing Circle met with Mrs. Ada Harris last Thursday afternoon. There were fifteen present and a very pleasant afternoon was spent. The next meeting is to be held with Mrs. Etta Harris.

Elmer Winchaw who is stopping with his grandparents, C. C. Skinner, at Warren is spending his vacation with his parents.

Mrs. Emma Keene of St. George visited her sisters at the "Marie Celeste" recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hart of Clark Island spent Sunday at F. W. Hart's.

Frank Gardner of Thomaston was the guest of his mother Mrs. Clara Gardner recently.

Mrs. James Taylor and daughter Barbara visited Mrs. Alice Mason Thursday.

Alma Seavey of Port Clyde was the guest of her cousins, Muriel and Evelyn Hooper, recently.

F. W. Hart, Harold Mason and Edward Harris have had their wood saved and Clarence can certainly make the wood fly with his new machine.

The entertainment which was given by the young ladies of Martinsville at the Grange Hall, Thursday evening was a decided success. A fine program had been prepared and was presented to a very attentive audience. Of especial interest was the last number on the program entitled "Truth for a Day." The characters were represented by Gladys Pease, Margaret Harris, Ethel Jones, Blanche Cook, Flora Ervine, and Gladys Chadwick. Each one took her part so well that it showed the interest they had taken and the good training they received. Ice cream and home made candy were for sale and the sum of over $28 was realized, which will go towards starting a fund for a new piano for the lower hall which is much needed. All admire the courage of the girls who were so plucky in starting the fund and it is hoped that everyone will lend a hand so that by summer a new piano will be installed and all paid for.

Saturday evening a number of invited guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Freeman. The occasion was Mr. Freeman's birthday and the affair was planned as a complete surprise to him. Mrs. Freeman had prepared an especially fine supper consisting of a delicious lobster stew with crackers, assorted cake, apples, peanuts and candy. A large birthday cake beautifully decorated was cut and served and after a social evening spent in music by violin, mandolin, harmonica and victrola, the party broke up, all having highly enjoyed the occasion.

SUNSHINE

Mrs. Albert Shepard has been visiting her daughter here.

Capt. W. S. Green has been visiting W. I. Conary and friends.

Mrs. Emory Burckminster has been to Stoughton visiting her mother.

Freeman Sprague, and family have returned from Seaport after spending the winter there.

D. L. Conary who has been spending the winter in Sunset was home over the weekend.

Capt. W. I. Conary took a party of his friends out to Zook's Hub, on a fishing trip Saturday. They had excellent success until the wind breezed up and forced them to more quiet waters, where the cook, Capt. Greene, made a fish chowder which by the evidence must have been extremely tempting.

On Friday, the buzz of the saw resounded over the hills of Sunshine for it was wood saving day, with Capt. W. I. Conary and D. L. Conary and a few friends. They cut into store length about 20 cords, quick work, considering that they started to saw at the late hour of 10 a. m.

There was a card party at Mr. and Mrs. Elmer McDonald's Friday night. Many were present and the evening was much enjoyed.

On Thursday evening one of the social functions of the winter season at Sunshine was a pie social held in the schoolhouse. There was much merriment when the drawing of pies took place and it was a sure guess that not every husband would eat his own wife's pies.

THE PAST WEEK IN REVIEW

The Courier-Gazette's Brief Glance At the Most Important Things Engaging the World's Attention.

Limiting Immigration.

The Senate, on the 19th of February, by a vote of 61 to 2 passed the Dillingham bill, limiting immigration to 3 per cent of the number of foreign-born persons of any nationality who were resident in the United States as determined by the census of 1910. This bill, if it becomes law, will permit a maximum immigration of 355,461 persons during the year beginning April 1—which is about one third of the immigration in the years immediately preceding the World War. It will slow the admission of 502,212 immigrants from northeastern Europe, the United Kingdom leading with 77,206, and Germany second with 75,040; and 153,249 from countries outside of northeastern Europe, Russia leading with 51,974, Austria-Hungary next with 50,117, and Italy third with 42,294. The boundary readjustments following the war, including the practical wiping out of Serbia and Montenegro, and the carving down of Austria-Hungary, will make these allotments of immigrants no easy matter.

Some Relief for the Railroads

The Winslow bill, reference to which was made in this column a fortnight ago, when it passed the House—was passed by the Senate on the 22nd of February. It provides, it will be remembered, for partial payments to the railroads under the provisions of the Transportation Act; and the effect will be to release for the benefit of the roads about $300,000,000 which had been held back under a ruling of the Comptroller of the Treasury. The money is payable only on bills for the roads to pay over due bills and to buy new equipment. The bill had been threatened with defeat through a filibuster, but it without charge, thus avoiding the necessity of sending it to conference.

The Full Cabinet.

The announcement of the selection of Mr. Hughes for the post of Secretary of State, and of his acceptance of the office, which was made on the 12th of February, was followed on the 23d by the names of those chosen for other positions: Andrew W. Mellon of Pittsburgh Secretary of the Treasury; John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, Secretary of War; Herbert C. Hoover of California, Department of Commerce; Harry M. Daugherty of Ohio, Department of Justice; Will H. Hays of Indiana, Postmaster-General; Albert B. Fall of New Mexico, Interior Department; Henry C. Wallace of Iowa, Department of Agriculture; James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, Department of Labor; and Edwin Denby of Michigan, Navy Department.

EMPIRE THEATRE

Enid Bennett achieves a personal triumph in her latest Paramount picture "Silk Hosiery." This dainty star never has been seen to finer advantage than in this delightful romantic photoplay. Miss Bennett is seen as a model in a fashionable modiste's shop, and because of this, the women spectators are treated to a veritable fashion show. The heroine is of a romantic turn of mind and when she arrays herself in a customer's gown and begins to dream of love and wealth, some startling things happen. There is plenty of romance and thrills in the action, but the nature of the finale must not be disclosed as it is in the nature of a surprise. The picture made a great hit yesterday, and will repeat it today.

A fascinating story that will appeal especially to the feminine element of the audience, a talented and beautiful star, and a most elaborate production, beautifully photographed are what the patrons will see when Elaine Hammerstein appears in "The Woman Game" Friday and Saturday.

The story is based upon the idea that it is no more than fair that a woman should be entitled to pursue the same tactics in her business life—which is the matrimonial game—as the man does in his—adv.

FATHER OF THREE CHILDREN WRITES FROM PANAMA CANAL ZONE

Balboa, Canal Zone. A father of three children writes: "Will you kindly send me by mail two bottles of your Dr. True's Elixir. I cannot buy it here in Panama, and don't care to be without it in the house, because I have three children, and the Elixir is the best family remedy I ever used. When one of the children isn't feeling right, I give him a dose of Dr. True's Elixir and he comes out hale and hearty in the morning. Our children have shown no signs of worms since they have taken the Elixir. Last summer one of our boys was very sick—but all who ate of the Elixir fixed him in the shape of F. H. Purgation. The prescription, Dr. True's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller has done wonders for sick people, men, women and children. No harmful drugs—works quickly and effectively."

ed a home, with piano, rocker, rugs and table on which was a picture of our first President, Mrs. Newbert acted the part of the mother of the home. Mrs. Carrie Cummings favored the company with choice readings, and solos were rendered by Misses Frances Mears, Nellie Meserve and Ada Wadsworth. Homemade candy and ice cream were on sale and the young people enjoyed in games, which all were enjoyed. The ladies' social netted $16.25, a part of which will defray the expenses of the delegates who are to attend the Boys' Conference in Portland this week.

Wedding bells ring often of late in Appleton, bringing a wedding each week. On Friday evening, Feb. 25th at the home of Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Cronkrite one of our popular school teachers, Miss Edith Louise Tucker of Bluehill, was united in marriage to Maurice Arthur Howard of the same town. The ceremony was witnessed by a few friends, but the couple was unattended. The impressive single ring service was used. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of brown jersey silk, embroidered in silver, with collar of white lace and hat to match. During the ceremony friends found and gaily decorated their train and outside garments with streamers of varied colors and when they drove away they were showered with rice. Mrs. Howard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Tucker of Bluehill, and for the past year has been the efficient teacher in what is known as the Gurney school, where she has won a place in the hearts of her pupils and their parents. During the closing days of the term the scholars delighted to hear the chime of wedding bells, and on the last day of school presented their teacher with a fine pair of towels. Mrs. Howard is also a member of the Ever Faithful class of the Appleton Sunday school, which was on that night celebrating the birthday of their teacher, Mrs. Lizzie Newbert.

On the day of the wedding, Mrs. Howard was called to the telephone, and the teacher and members of the class showered felicitations to them over the phone. Mr. Howard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Howard and popular in his home town. He is quartermaster on the steamer "Yoncon" on the Portland river. The young couple will reside in Appleton.

Arriving at their boarding place they found the dining table decorated, and upon it cake and confectionery arranged by one of the bride's pupils living in the home.

SOUTH THOMASTON

Correspondent Hears Rumors Connected With Town Division Question.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

The question of the division of South Thomaston is not a question of politics. It is a question of justice to the people, to the inhabitants of the town. It means much more to the person who has been brought up in this community, than to the summer visitor who while owning a cottage, perhaps is only in the town for a couple of months or so and cannot become intimately concerned with its conditions and affairs. The new corners, while perhaps taking a vital interest, because it may mean business to them, are not looking at the good of the whole town but are possibly considering the personal good it may bring to them—a selfish viewpoint and one not to be considered.

The rumor is afloat that lobbying is being done in Augusta, that the head is trying to buy the votes of the Legislature by saying that the village of South Thomaston is Democratic while Owl's Head is Republican. As I said, this is not a question of politics and if our Maine Legislature is so rotten, that votes can be bought in such manner, it is time that all right-thinking people should rise in a body and clean up our State of such underhanded methods. I am neither a Republican nor Democrat. It is the measure that counts and not party, and how the division of the town of South Thomaston can be made a political question is beyond my comprehension. "Right is Right" and if such low, underhanded, unscrupulous methods are being used by buying votes from those who are supposed to be the representatives of our State the measure must fail.

One Who Stands for Justice.

Mrs. Laura Leach of Rockland is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Coates.

Fred W. Andrews aged 74 years died in Bangor Monday. Mr. Andrews was born in Rockport and was the son of the late Joseph and Eveline (Thorndike) Andrews. The most of his life was spent in his native town where he was a well known and respected citizen. He was a genial man and had a kindly word for everyone with whom he came in contact. A mason by trade, he was always interested in the affairs of the town and for a number of years served as one of its selectmen, and had represented this district at the Legislature. He was a member of St. Paul's Lodge F. and A. M. and was well known outside the circle of his home town. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Ellen Shepherd of Rockport. The remains were brought to Rockland Tuesday and funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at Burpee's undertaking rooms.

The Lincoln Academy basketball team will play the R. H. S. team Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. and the game promises to be a most interesting one.

Wednesday evening there was a very pleasant gathering at the home of George Long, Broadway, the occasion being an informal celebration of the 17th birthday of F. S. Philbrick, a Civil War veteran. The Conant-Philbrick Trio gave a few old fashioned musical selections, after which ices, cake and candies were served. Then came old time games and singing by a special choir of boys and girls. Among those present were Mrs. and Mrs. George Long and their family of seven boys and girls, Mrs. Elsie Verrill, Mrs. Charles Merrill, Elsie Conant and Miss Jessie Conant.

Browne, Miss Beulah Rokes and Miss Stella Lord, piano solos by Beth Hager and Luella Joyce; vocal duet, "Loretta Curry and Gladys Grant."

SANDISON-LAWRY
From the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot-Ledger of Feb. 28 the following is taken:
"A very pretty home wedding took place at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon when Miss Helen Lawry, younger daughter of Captain and Mrs. Melvin Lawry of Putnam street became the bride of Thomas Sandison, son of Mrs. Annie Sandison of McDonald street. The double ring service was used by Rev. Thomas C. R. Richards of Medford, former pastor of Bethany church, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. The bride wore pearl gray taffeta and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The maid of honor, Miss Ruth Cropper of Hoxbury, wore Copenhagen blue taffeta and carried sweet peas. The groom was attended by his brother, John A. Sandison as best man. The groom's gift to his bride was a bar pin with pearls and his gift to the best man a gold pocket knife. The bride's gift to the groom was a pair of gold cuff links and to the maid of honor, a string of pearl beads. After the reception the young couple left for a short trip to New York after which they will make their home with the bride's parents at 101 Putnam street, Quincy."

Capt. and Mrs. Lawry are natives of Friendship and at one time lived at Vinahaven where the bride attended school.

MUSICAL NOTES

Caruso is still among the living—and unvanquished.

A cablegram tells us that Puccini is dying, though there are reports that this is not authentic.

At the business meeting of the Harmony Club at Mrs. Madeline Lawrence's further plans for the success of the card party to be held March 10 were made.

Three Maine musicians—Phoebe Crosby, soprano, Pauline Danforth, pianist and Kathryn Lee, soprano, have figured prominently on recent Boston programs.

Lilli Lehman surely holds the record—for longevity in musical circles—"Seventy-two years old, still singing, many concerts and recitals," says an extract from her letter.

The Rubinstein Club chorus met at Mrs. H. S. Gardner's Wednesday afternoon and rehearsed music for the Lenten program which has been postponed on account of conflicting dates until March 14.

A pleasing feature of the music program at the First Baptist Church last Sunday night—mention of which was unintentionally omitted in the newspaper mention—was the tenor solo by Harold W. Greene.

The Boston Music Publishers Association, whose membership includes some of the most distinguished firms in the country, have made an initial move to form an organization to provide scholarships for talented young musicians who need assistance.

Mr. Freund, editor of Musical America, says "that we must not consider music as something apart from ordinary life and its needs, as so many musicians, critics and educators do, but that it belongs to all humanity, expresses great human need—and consequently it is not what we can do for music but what music can do for us in all every phase of activity."

A double b flat sousaphone has been added to the instrumentation of the Oakland Park Band, and will be heard at next Sunday's concert in Park Theatre. The owner is Joseph Nuccio of Camden, who parted with a good round sum for the sake of obtaining the instrument. Another feature of the concert will be the waltz song, "Daddy's Boy," composed by Mrs. Angus McInnis, and sung by her 10-year old son, John.

The program for the concert to be given in the First Baptist Church one week from tomorrow night by the Bowdoin Musical Clubs, indicates a very delightful evening for lovers of vocal and instrumental music. Bowdoin songs, rendered by the combined clubs, will usher in the evening's entertainment, and "Bowdoin Beata" and "Phi Chi" will close it. Features of the Bowdoin concert in New York were the vocal solos by H. C. Lyseth and the banjo solos by H. Sprinck, both of whom will take part in the Rockland concert. Rockland has two representatives in the Glee Club, Standish Perry and I. C. Tuttle; and Camden furnishes two members of the Banjo club, J. W. Dalgren and H. S. Hart.

OVER TOP AGAIN

Can it be done? Is there a bowling team in Knox county that can beat Rockland's American Legion five?

The answer was certainly not forthcoming last night when the service men piled up the handsome total of 2337 against the All-Stars. The game was played on the Princess alleys, and the spectators were rewarded by a particularly fine exhibition on the part of Shapiro, the new local champion. His total of 546 was 65 ahead of his nearest competitor's and contained one string of 122.

During the game announcement was made that Shapiro has challenged Ralph Pearson of Portland, who holds the State championship title.

Summary of last night's game:

All-Stars—Lawry, 435; Soffayer, 420; Thomas, 465; Peters, 416; Phillips, 481; totals 2217.

American Legion—Ferrara 470; Kallouch, 437; Perry, 445; Fogarty, 439; Shapiro, 546; totals, 2337.

FROM CAPT. HALL'S LOG

Schooner Horace E. Monroe Had Adventurous Cruise Before Being Sunk In Collision.

After battling with the elements for days and nights at a time nearly losing his schooner, the Horace E. Monroe, Capt. John O. Hall of Bath finally managed to continue his voyage from Norfolk to Lisbon. Passing through nerve racking experiences that must seem like a nightmare to him, Capt. Hall finally lost his command when she was sunk in collision with the steamer Palma about 300 miles to the westward of Gibraltar on Feb. 15, and the crew landed at Gibraltar. It is now believed Capt. Hall is on his way to the United States by steamer.

His experiences after sailing from the Azores Nov. 28 were the worst in his whole seafaring career for it was nothing but a succession of gales, one after the other. After reaching Horta bay at Fayal a German bark bore down across his bow and did considerable damage, and his own anchors became fouled about the cables so that it appeared he would have to slip his chains and then be at the mercy of the seas and call upon an English tug for assistance. He fought this however for he realized the tug would have a good salvage claim against the vessel. And yet, there were the lives of his crew to be considered. He rode out the storm however, then called up on the tug which towed him to a better anchorage and finally he reached Lisbon. It was after such a voyage as few men live to tell, that he finally reached Lisbon and then lost his vessel on his return by a collision.

His log, kept with faithful accuracy during those harrowing experiences, is included in a letter to ex-Alderman Dura L. Howard and which tells its own graphic story as follows:

Left Norfolk Nov. 26 for Lisbon. Encountered one gale after another. Third day out lost second mate who was swept overboard and drowned. The night the second mate came to grief, seas which constantly swept the decks took strong backs off the hatches, ripped holding irons out of the combings, etc. Heavy confused seas for 17 days and not able to unbend the old rig and get a new mainsail on her which we lost the third day out.

Dec. 13—Barometer very low with heavy seas coming from N. W. Lost small boat, smashed up while being lashed to fore hatch.

Dec. 19—Heavy old sea coming down from northward, carrying whole fore-sail, trysails set on main and mizzen, reefed spanker, all head rails and fore gaff topsail, a little sloppy around decks.

Dec. 22—Horta bay, Fayal. Blowing a gale from S. S. E., and storming hard, riding with big anchor and 120 fathoms of chain. German tramp is anchored just outside of us and tugs have made their escape behind the breakwater.

Dec. 24—Another gale is blowing from the northwest with barometer down 29-14, wind blowing with hurricane force.

Christmas day, Azores—About 6 a. m. today hurricane burst on us with full force. Never saw it blow harder or in fact half so hard; meanwhile have given schooner the second anchor together with every link of chain with which she is equipped. She held on all right but German bark parted her chains and came down across our bow breaking off our jib-boom at the cap and carrying every thing attached including iron work, etc.

With bark across our bow and the two vessels tumbling in the seas, and the iron hull of the bark chewing our stem out, imagine my relief when with a heavy roll the bark carried away her mainmast with rigging attached and shot across our bow and went clear, the bark with one anchor gone drifted out into deep water straight across Fayal channel for the shore of Pico and had not assistance reached her not one of the crew would have survived to tell the tale.

When the tug and its tow passed by us I broke out the Stars and Stripes at our spanker topmast and blew him three blasts on the whistle which were acknowledged by three whistles from the tug.

Now to return to the Horace Monroe. When the bark was across our bow we couldn't hold ourselves and her too. We dragged out of the bay and are now holding on in 42 fathoms of water with every inch of our hardware doing its full duty, waiting for the hurricane to blow itself out. (We are now up again, by the way.)

Dec. 26—The tug is still holding the bark on the hawser having held her in the shelter of the mountains all night while no assistance has thus far reached him from ashore. At this time we are hanging on in 42 fathoms of water with light on end of breakwater bearing N. W. by W. 1/4 W., a little over a mile off.

At noon wind suddenly died away but still raining, started to get anchors with view of getting vessel back into bay in shoaler water. Found one of our anchors to be hooked into anchor chain left by the schooner. Worked all the afternoon trying to get it clear and finally did it. In the meantime another gale broke upon us and we are now riding with both anchors and every link of chain out and are now in 21 fathoms of water, close up to the breakers off Espalamaca point. Just before dark the English tug came out and asked if I wanted assistance. I told him no. I realize that if that tug ever gets hold of us it will mean a salvage claim and goodbye.

Dec. 27—Morning broke with conditions unchanged. Held on all right through the night, but it was a mighty long night.

Dec. 29—Wind has moderated some and sort of drawing off the point. Got our sails up with intentions of getting into the harbor, or at least away from perilous lee shore in the event of winds swinging back suddenly. We find both anchors hooked into the telegraph cables and have been unable to clear them, either to cut them or to do anything else and after working all day and all night forced to stick out our chain again and can do nothing more while these conditions prevail.

Dec. 30—Heavy southwest gale raging with vessel's stern not far from the breakers. No communication with shore since last night when the English tug came off just before dark and said he would be off again in the morning. Both anchors out with 75 fathoms of chain on each but hanging to telegraph cables. That wasn't bad enough and during the night a big German sailing ship parted chains and dragged down on us and is fetched up on cable so now there are two of us being held. At this time gale is increasing. There are several ships dragging down while two steamers are feeding the sea fleas.

Dec. 31—Gale let go during the night and now almost calm, but with heavy seas piling in. Have been trying to haul in our chains but with twisted conditions impossible. The German ship is still afloat with chains and anchors hanging to cable, fouled like ourselves. The wire telegraph cables held and kept us afloat through last night's gale and saved us from feeding the sea fleas.

9 p. m., same date—Have been ashore all day and am now waiting for cable ship which has been ordered from Gibraltar.

New Year's day—Wind moderate today and barometer up to about normal conditions, first time since leaving Norfolk, but heavy old ocean rollers heaving into the bay. Shipping board steamer total loss on next island, crew saved. French four master, full rigged ship, just arrived with loss of captain and four men swept overboard and drowned.

Jan. 3—Held on through last night's gale all right. Wind moderate again but heavy seas heaving in, causing vessel to roll rails-under and seas constantly washing the decks. Trying again to heave in chains but can't do it. Have just sighted cable ship.

7 p. m., same day—Cable ship caught the devil on passage from Gibraltar and is now behind breakwater for repairs to machinery, etc. One thing is certain every cable connecting Fayal with the outside world is broken excepting the one we are hanging to and before they are repaired they will have to disconnect the Horace Monroe.

Jan. 5—We are again riding out another gale. They want us to slip our chains, but I refuse to be separated from them as long as they see fit to hold.

Jan. 8—Anchored in the bay all day. Cable ship got to work on the job before noon and went back in behind the breakwater. Decided not to monkey with the cable ship any more so got ashore and made a deal with the tug to come off and get us out of the bay. The tug came off at 8 a. m. and after parting our seven inch hawser, pulling out chock and breaking stanchion rail, he gave us his nine inch hawser, turned us around five times untwisting chains and finally landed us at dark tonight. One anchor came up clear, the other badly fouled with one big cable and that already stranded, so you will note that out of the four cables that were fouled with our anchors at first we parted them all but one. The ship and crew are safe.

Jan. 14—Another southerly gale broke upon us today, but we are riding it out with both anchors and the schooner riding the seas like a gull. Court estimated our damages, declared the whole mess caused by an act of God, thus finding the schooner not liable to the cable companies or anything else. I feel lucky to get out of it with a whole skin, for at one time in particular that night of Dec. 30 I felt my chances of seeing another day break mighty slim as I had refused the only possible assistance which left the lives of my crew as the storm increased the heaviest weight my shoulders have ever borne and as long as my memory lasts that night will never be forgotten.

Jan. 18. (37 miles N. E. Fayal).—Am again on the high seas. This morning we were the only sailing ship to get away. (29 days in that place).

Reached Lisbon, Portugal, the 27th. Commenced discharging this morning into coal bulk. Anchored about a mile off shore. Trust we will be here about eight weeks and then sail for the United States light.—Bath Times.

PARK THEATRE

From the intoxicating strains of high-priced violinists to the razz of the hurdy-gurdy is the switch in life's position taken by Mary Pickford, as Amy Burke in "The Hoodlum," the second production from her own studios which will be seen today. When Amy goes to live with her father, a sociological writer, in his East Side location, she eschews a trip to Europe with her grandfather, Alexander Guthrie. Instead of Fifth Avenue acquaintances with long names, Amy meets Dish Lowry, a little fellow with big ideas; William Turner, an artist who can draw everything but a check and old Peter Cooper who hasn't anything but a mean disposition. How a general reconciliation of the Burke family revolves about Amy's acquaintance with Peter Cooper tells the story after a long series of remarkably laughable incidents.

Exciting pistol duels between famous "gun slingers" of the West is one of the big elements that holds the spectator's interest in a vice-like grip while watchman "Dr. Harkn," the latest of the William Farnum star series which will be shown Friday and Saturday. Farnum has the part of "Dr. Harkn," the famous Pardo two-gun man, who rides an entire community of its outlaws. A charming romance runs parallel with the element of adventure. Charles Alden Seltzer wrote the story from which the picture was filmed. Jackie Saunders as the leading woman is as charming as ever.—adv.

There was a good attendance at church Sunday considering the bad traveling. Rev. Mr. Ufford took for his text "How Opened He Thine Eyes."

Miss Fuller of North Warren is visiting her sister, Mrs. Gard Daniels.

There will be a dance at the Town hall Saturday night and Dean's Orchestra will furnish the music.

Progress in education must always be made by progressive steps, even though mistakes may often occur, and if we want our own High School to keep on functioning for the good of our young people and to increase from year to year its usefulness to them, we must be wide awake to what its functions should be and how they may best be carried out. We can't hold back.

Conservatism often means needed restraint for checking and curbing the extremely radical. In education, however, conservatism has often meant stagnation—a fact so conspicuous that no one who honestly considers the matter can deny it. We must have a variation in our school curriculum in order to give pupils a degree of choice.

We need the elective system in some form, even though it provides for only two or three courses with no chance for election within them. At least let us have those who honestly consider the matter can deny it. We must have a variation in our school curriculum in order to give pupils a degree of choice.

work will be done Monday and Tuesday afternoons and other days if necessary.

Helen Wellman who lost a week of school on account of ill health, has returned.

Everson Overlock has been absent a few days, much to the grief of his classmates.

One of the teachers was on the way to the first of the week which resulted in the death of one of our dear (?) little pet mice. His family still visits us frequently, however; no hard feelings are shown.

The school is preparing for a Parents' and Friends' Day in about two weeks and a committee has been appointed to arrange a program of entertainment which will be furnished by the pupils. It is hoped that all interested in the school will come.

We'll try to show you some things that we can do worth while. Refreshments will be on sale.

The following is the second of a short series of student articles. Read it; it contains some pointers for thought for any class, school, church, lodge, or organization of any kind whatever where there is need for co-operative effort.

"Many as are the material needs of Union High School, great needs at that—there is one greater need of another nature that makes itself manifest nearly every day. It is something that, without which, a school cannot exist long as a school. It is the foundation of the school, every bit as important as the books and teachers and even the scholars themselves. That something is school spirit.

"School spirit" is not defined in the dictionary; but spirit, according to Webster, means vigor, ardor, vivacity, courage, enthusiasm. So, connect those qualities in reference to this school, to any pupil in this school, then that person possesses 'school spirit' if he has them. But who can be used as an example? What student in Union High School has the Colby Hupper and family who have spent part of the winter in Rockland, are at their cottage here for a short time before returning to their home in Cribhaven.

because it is actually as fine as the finest silk can make it.

Every pound of William Tell is sifted through silk, so fine that there are 21,000 meshes to the square inch.

It must go through this silk—not just once, but thirteen successive times.

Because we take no chance on William Tell being clean and fine and pure, you take no chance in using it for all your baking.

Ask your neighbors who use it. They'll tell you William Tell. Tell your grocer.
