More than Just a Clean Shirt

You get more than just a clean shirt when you send your laundry to us. You get a shirt that is professionally finished—neck bands, cuffs, sleeves, bosom and back, a shirt that looks trim and jaunty. You cannot obtain such results without special equipment. It is not reasonable to expect such professional service from a home laundress. You will find this equipment for the proper finishing of your shirts and collars in our laundry.

We have at your service three specialists—one who has been with us five years, one three years and one less than two years. They are skilled people in this line. Don't be satisfied with less. Let us call for your bundle this week. Just phone.

ARBOR DAY PROCLAMATION

Arbor Day has a special significance for the State of Maine. Over fifteen million acres of all the land of the State out of the total of nineteen million acres are covered with trees. These vast areas once were the property of our people. This great inheritance was squandered by our forefathers and Maine today owns but a few thousand acres of forest from which most of the timber has been sold. The people of Maine, its men, women and children, should take an interest in trees, and should study and plant them. Trees are blessings, beautiful to look upon and useful to man, to birds and to beasts. May the day come when for both mental and practical reasons every city, town and village shall line its streets with shade trees, shall buy land for reforestation and shall own public wood lots.

Our State of Maine once again should begin to acquire land for reforestation that future generations may be supplied with timber, and that Maine may continue to be known the world over as the Pine Tree State. Now therefore, I, Percival P. Baxter, Governor of Maine, do hereby proclaim

SATURDAY, MAY FOURTEENTH

ARBOR DAY IN THE STATE OF MAINE and I urge our citizens to observe the day both at home and in the schools with fitting exercises. The planting of a tree is a public service for it benefits not only those who plant it but also those who pass it by.

PERCIVAL P. BAXTER, Governor of Maine.

WOMEN RECOGNIZED

Why Gov. Baxter Appointed Mrs. Mary Perry Rich As County Commissioner.

In 1920 the Republican organization of Maine attempted to prepare the women of the State for the franchise, first by arousing new interest in public affairs and then by organization. The Republican State Committee undertook to duplicate among the women of Maine its own army of 6000 committeemen. Its purpose was to create a Woman's State Committee made up of one from each of the 16 counties; a Woman's County Committee in each county, in which each town should be represented, and a Woman's Town Committee in each town and plantation of the State. How well that was accomplished and its effect were both seen in the election.

Chairman Ham of the State Committee, told the women of Maine that in the Republican party they should have equal rights in every caucus and convention, equal voice in every council, and that, eventually, they would come into equal share in public offices and civil affairs. This was agreed to by candidates and party leaders.

The first act of Gov. Parkhurst was to name a woman as assistant secretary to the governor. He believed that the purpose of his party should be first manifested in the executive department.

One of the first acts of Gov. Baxter was to ask of the Supreme Court Justices if women, "qualified in every respect other than sex," were eligible to any office within the gift of our people. The unanimous decision was affirmative, and since that time Gov. Baxter has nominated and the Council has confirmed many women notaries, justices of the peace and similar commissions.

And now Governor Baxter has named a woman to a big business position in a county's affairs. For the first time a woman is to serve as a county commissioner. She is Mrs. Mary Perry Rich of Glen Cove, Knox County.

By the death of Fred L. Waterman of Appleton, a vacancy occurred in the board of county commissioners in Knox County. Many candidates appeared, each strongly supported for the position. There were many good ones, but the man or woman should be named. Any one of the candidates undoubtedly would have been competent. The governor could have made no serious mistake, but he determined to nominate a woman if the right one could be found. It was an opportunity to make good on the pledges of his party.

Gov. Baxter is expected to name women to boards of trustees of State institutions. As such changes occur on such boards the governor will consider the names of women with those of men recommended, and sex will not be the determining factor, other qualifications being equal. In the State are many high-minded and competent women who would be glad to serve, and should be welcomed to public service.

NOMINATING P. M.s

President Harding Sends In His First Batch For Senate's Approval.

The first nomination of postmasters to be made by President Harding were sent to the Senate Wednesday, leading to reports that the administration's policy in regard to appointment of postmasters generally would probably be announced soon. The list contained the names of 84, all of whom, according to a statement issued at the White House, had made the highest mark in a competitive civil service examination, except where the veterans' preference statute operated.

Congressional leaders said their understanding was that the nominees were sent to the Senate Wednesday, leading to reports that the administration's policy in regard to appointment of postmasters generally would probably be announced soon. The list contained the names of 84, all of whom, according to a statement issued at the White House, had made the highest mark in a competitive civil service examination, except where the veterans' preference statute operated.

Members of both the Senate and the House said they expected within a few days a definition of policy in regard to postmasterships from President Harding after consultation with Postmaster General Hays. This would probably be, they said, in the form of an order containing, perhaps "with some modifications," the civil service requirements now existing for postmasters of all classes, and clarifying regulations providing for the retirement of postal employees.

What modifications might be under consideration was not indicated, although in some quarters it has been said that the civil service requirements for appointments might be continued with provision that selections could be made from among the first three or four in the list, so allowing some latitude in making nominations.

CLEVER ROCKLAND PUPILS

High School Stenography Class Does Great Piece of Court Reporting

The Courier-Gazette has been shown a piece of work done by the High School commercial department, that reflects great credit upon both the pupils and the director of the department, Miss Lena K. Sargent. At the time of the recent Bradburg case in Knox Supreme Court the stenography class of 30 members was sent to the courtroom to report the case in shorthand. This difficult assignment has lately been completed by the transcribing by each pupil of his notes, and it is one of the type-written reports in full that has been exhibited at this office. It is the first time anything of the kind has been attempted and the success of it is highly gratifying. The work of this department has been especially praised by Principal Quimby of Cony High, Augusta, and also by W. E. Carey, professor of one of the largest colleges in Massachusetts, Walter H. Euler, recorder of the Rockland Municipal Court, to whom the achievement of the pupils was submitted, wrote to Principal Coughlin: "I have read over the report of your Department of Stenography on the Bradburg case with a deal of interest and pleasure. I have made some minor corrections in order that the legal form might be preserved. I have no criticism to make, or suggestions to offer, except that the class reported a most difficult case in an exceedingly creditable manner. I heard the case myself, in almost its entirety, and the Court Reporter told me that he had a great deal of difficulty getting the evidence accurately. Therefore, this report reflects a great deal of credit upon the class and their teacher, and shows unmistakably the high standard of instruction, and the high grade of work done in the Commercial Department of the Rockland High School."

PROHIBITS BEER

Volstead Bill Would Limit Use of Wine To Actual Needs, Cutting Out Other Stuff.

A bill prohibiting doctors from prescribing beer as a medicine was introduced Wednesday by Chairman Volstead of the House Judiciary committee.

The measure, designed to tighten up the Volstead law in view of an opinion by Attorney General Palmer, would not prohibit use of wine as a medicine, but re-enact in more specific language the injunction that such prescription must be limited to actual needs for medicinal use.

Another provision would direct the prohibition commissioner to hold down the importation and manufacture of liquor to actual requirements of the people for non-beverage use and permit the importation and manufacture to supply current needs after the present liquor supply in the United States has been exhausted.

Chairman Volstead declared that the principal object of his bill was to meet the situation created by the opinion of Attorney General Palmer in regard to the use of beer and wine for medicinal purposes.

"That opinion, in effect, holds," he said, "that the commissioner of internal revenue has no power to limit the quantity of such liquors when prescribed, though the law expressly provides that the commissioner shall limit all permits."

"The bill prohibits doctors from prescribing beer. It is idle to argue that there is any real necessity for beer as medicine. Leading doctors everywhere deny that it has any value for that purpose, besides, everything in beer except the alcohol can be had in the so-called near-beers without any prescription. Thirty-eight states prohibit beer from being prescribed."

The new Volstead bill would close the gates to importation of liquor and shut down distilleries until the present stock of about 40,000,000 gallons now in bonded warehouses had been exhausted.

FALLING IN LINE

At a meeting of the representatives of the Lewiston textile mills and Auburn shoe shops it was voted to adopt daylight saving time and, commencing May 1, clocks in the mills and shops will be set on that schedule. The Lewiston Journal says "Unquestionably the remainder of Lewiston and Auburn business firms will follow this example." So Lewiston and Auburn will join Portland, Westbrook, Biddeford, Rockland and Bangor, as well as many other places in Maine, in having daylight saving. In Augusta and in Bath the chambers of commerce are taking straw votes on the proposal and it is very likely that these two cities will soon be in line with the others. The period of daylight saving will end Oct. 1.

THE CLASSICS

An Appeal For Their Wider Study In The High Schools of Knox County.

Avard Richan, Rockland High School 1916 and Bowdoin 1920, writes from Harrisville, R. I., to Principal Coughlin as follows:

"I have been following with interest the various articles in The Courier-Gazette encouraging the continuation of Latin in High School courses. Knowing how ignorant I am of that language, you will think it strange that I write my opinion on its continuation. However, five years contact with it had no little effect on me. I write, thinking that if my views are of any value at all you may use them in showing some fellows how graduates feel.

"Too many High School pupils follow up the course of least resistance. They spend more time in avoiding some coming than in trying to accomplish them. They are not now, always generally speaking, urged by their parents to study Latin—for the parents have either forgotten all they knew about the subject, and therefore think it a waste of time; or never studied it, and are satisfied with their successes without it. And it is sadly true that many parents feel their children should acquire knowledge of some business or trade in order to commercialize that knowledge at as early an age as possible. As a result many students lose a grand opportunity to obtain mental discipline and intellectual development.

Latin, when studied faithfully, will broaden a student's mind. The fundamentals of music, art and science are found in these famous masterpieces. To become familiar with these three is an education in itself.

"But people ask, 'How does this bear on the practical things of modern life? Latin is a dead language.' Latin is not dead! The trouble is, people do not know how dependent they are on it. The fundamental principles and laws of religion, government, social order and economics were laid down by the Romans and Greeks. In literature one cannot fully appreciate standard authors without some knowledge of the classics. Aren't all these things modern enough?"

"The articles in The Courier-Gazette have brought out very clearly how one can increase his vocabulary and knowledge of his own language by study of Latin. My viewpoint is that of a younger graduate talking to a pupil. I believe parents should advise pupils to avoid the courses of least resistance. The son or daughter will thank them later. Let them broaden out instead of specializing too young. Business needs men with broad minds and 'hoss sense.' The latter is 'straight thinking' and comes by solving problems. Difficult Latin translations are real problems and require close and accurate work.

"Is the American High School going to stop producing lawyers, doctors and great statesmen such as has been produced in the past, by dropping Latin from her curriculum? I hope not!"

MASONIC GRAND LODGE

The Grand Lodge of Masons of Maine will hold its annual session at Masonic Temple, Portland, beginning Tuesday. Grand Master Edward W. Wheeler of Brunswick will preside at the session. During the week there will be sessions of all of the Masonic bodies. This meeting will be one of the most important since the Grand Lodge was established and it is expected that the number of delegates will exceed that of any former session. The fraternity has had one of the most successful years in its history, reports from every section of the State indicating unusual activity.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

AUNT SHAW'S PET JUG
Now there was Uncle Elnathan Shaw—
Most regular man you ever saw—
He'd start four in the afternoon
He'd start and whistle that old jig tune,
Take the big blue jug from the butter shelf
And trot down cellar, to draw himself
Old enough to last through the war
The whaler's skin. Two quarts would do—
Just as regular as half-past four
Come round, he'd tackle that cellar door,
As he had for thirty years or more.

And as regular, too, as he took that jug
Aunt Shaw would yelp through her old cross
jug.
"Now, Nathan, for goodness' sake take care!
You allus trip on the second stair;
It seems as though you were just possessed
To break that jug. It's the very best I own,
There is in town and you know it, too,
And 'twas left to me by my great-uncle Sue.
For goodness' sake, why don't yer lug
A tin dish down, for ye'll break that jug!"
Alas the same, tub, for thirty years,
Alas the same old tub and jern,
Slammed for the nineteenth thousand time;
And still we wonder, my friend, at crime.

But Nathan took it meek's a pup
And the worst he said was, "Please shut up."
You know what the Good Book says befall:
The pitcher that went to the old-time well;
Well, whether 'twas that jug or not, I come,
Or his stiff old limbs got weak and numb,
Or whether his nerves at last giv' in
To Aunt Shaw's everlasting cussin—
One day he slipped on that second stair,
Whirled round and grabbed at the empty jar,
And clean to the foot of them stairs, her smack
He bumped on the bulge of his humped old back.

And he'd hardly finished the final bump
When old Aunt Shaw she giv' a jump,
And screamed down stairs as mad's a jug,
"Dod-rot your hide, did you break my jug!"
Poor Uncle Nathan lay there flat,
Knocked in the shape of an old cooked hat;
But he rubbed his legs, brushed off the dirt
And found after all that he wasn't hurt.
And he saved the jug, for his last wild thought
Had been of that; he might have caught
At the cellar shelves and saved his fall.
But he kept his hands on the jug through all,
And as he loosened his jealous jug
His wife just screamed, "Did you break my jug?"

Not a single word for his poor old bones
Nor a word when she heard his awful groans,
But the blamed old hard-shelled turtle just Wanted to know if that jug was bust.
Old Uncle Nathan he let one roar,
And he shook his fist at the cellar door:
"Did you break my jug?" she was yellin' still.

"No, darn your pet, but I sowed I will."
And you'd thought that the house was a-goin'
to fall.
When the old jug smashed on the cellar wall.
—Solman F. Day.

Six Velie Savings

- 1—SAVING of hundreds of dollars in first cost. No other car of Velie 34's quality is today priced anywhere near so low. Examine its units carefully—you will understand.
- 2—SAVING of gas and oil. Velie 34 in the hands of owners in all parts of the country is showing fuel costs even lower than the predictions of Velie engineers.
- 3—SAVING in cost of tires. With its exceptionally light weight and its perfect balance, Velie 34 is making the long distance tire record for all light sixes. Cord tires are regular equipment.
- 4—SAVING in cost of upkeep. Let us show you the splendid specifications, or better still, go over the car. See for yourself why Model 34 will match the great Velie 100,000-mile record with lowest cost for repairs.
- 5—SAVING of refinishing and refurbishing. Model 34 has the Velie deep plaited genuine leather upholstery, and the famous Velie lasting mirror finish.
- 6—SAVING in having your Velie now. We guarantee against decline but not advance. Any change will give your car a greater cash value.

Personally appeared Frank F. Lydell, who on oath declares that he is president in the office of the Rockland Publishing Co., and that of the issue of The Courier-Gazette of April 30, 1921, there was printed a total of 3,871 copies.
Before me, FRANK B. MILLER, Notary Public.

Fish Director Crie's plea for co-operation of the lobster fishermen with his department is worth heeding. With proper protection the lobster can be made to continue as a source of prosperity to the sturdy band of men who follow this occupation on our coast. It is demonstrated beyond a doubt, says Director Crie, that under the present law the lobster if protected will increase, and he fittingly adds: "Why don't we all make up our minds to work together with but a single thought, and that thought to build a larger, more profitable and a better industry?"

And among other things Rockland did for the visiting Shriners was to furnish them with a glorious brand of spring weather. We overheard a number of 'em commenting on it.

THE SHRINERS' CEREMONIAL

Kora Temple Visits Rockland and 112 Candidates Tread the Hot Sands—Eight Hundred Nobles in the Parade.

"To lighten and share life's burdens; to scatter sunshine by the way; to practice and teach the great Shrine virtues of Justice, Charity and Benevolence."

Such is the motto of the great fraternity which yesterday assembled in the Oasis of Rockland, adding new converts to its faith, and impressing all spectators with a conviction that is a brotherhood among Mystic Shriners which is excelled by no other organization in the world.

Yesterday's session in this city was one of several Ceremonial sessions to be held in the State this year by Kora Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, an organization which now has a total membership little rising 4000 members. It is the only Temple in the State of Maine, and is located in the Oasis of Lewiston. Its growth in the past few years has been very rapid, 1030 candidates having been taken in during 1920. The membership is scattered all over the United States, but the jurisdiction of Kora Temple is limited to Maine, and at its ceremonies are brought together members who have traveled for days to attend and enjoy the Arabic gathering, and trip to Mecca.

Eventually there will be another Temple in Maine, probably at Bangor, but the Nobility from Knox county owes its allegiance to Kora, and the ceremonies in Lewiston will ever find the local members making their pilgrimage to that Oasis, where they have enjoyed so many grand gatherings.

A Ceremonial in Rockland seemed almost like a prohibitive undertaking, as there are few cities in the State qualified to handle a gathering of such size. The idea was conceived by George F. Barbour, proprietor of the Corner Drug Store, and one of the most enthusiastic Masons in the State. "Get 50 candidates and we will come down to Rockland said Potentate Kingsley." Assisted by Noble R. W. Jamieson of Camden, Mr. Barbour began his search for material, and the diligent pair of workers soon found that their task was not going to fall short of success. Committees were raised and preparations were speedily made for the Ceremonial. How well it

Noble Benjamin S. Whitehouse had been detailed as chief marshal and handled his duties so efficiently that the parade was well within schedule time when it finally disbanded. Noble Almon P. Richardson of Rockland and Noble L. M. Chandler of Camden marched at the head of the procession as aids to Mr. Whitehouse, and the other members of the parade committee whose names will be found elsewhere, acted as aids for the various sections.

Main street was gay with flags, and crowded with spectators, as the imposing procession passed over it from Pleasant street to Rankin block. A platoon of the city's regular police acted as escort, and a large force of specials was on duty. Much credit is due City Marshal C. E. Gilchrist for keeping the streets entirely free of automobiles and teams. He rode several rods in advance of the procession, seeing to it personally that this work received proper attention.

The Shriners were headed by their own band, a fine organization of about 30 pieces, with Noble Charles M. Brooks as leader. Next came the Kora Drum and Bugle Corps, 22 men, led by E. E. Ramsdell of Lewiston. The drum major, Benjamin Jones of Lewiston was easily the most conspicuous figure in the parade. He stands 6 feet, 4 inches in his stocking feet and wore a chapeau which towered two feet above his head.

Comes now the Arab Patrol, captained by Noble Charles A. Jumper. The 27 men in this famous organization were clad in brilliant zouave uniforms, which contrasted strikingly with the Continental costumes worn by the members of the drum corps. The Patrol is skilled in fancy marching, and it was a source of disappointment that it did not make a display of its prowess in the street parade. Both drum corps and patrol were nevertheless liberally applauded all along the line.

Following such worthy escorts came the long line of officers, Nobles and Novices. The Novices had worn during the day conspicuous badges which designated them as "Candidates," but when they appeared in parade, wearing long white coats, and their heads enshrouded in dominoes, they certainly became a striking feature of the procession. Had the Ku-Klux Klan suddenly appeared on Main street it could

Ceremonial Echoes
The Y. M. C. A. lot on Union and Limerock streets was reserved as a parking place for the visiting Shriners' automobiles, and for a while it was the busiest spot in Rockland. Officers were always in attendance.

To be eligible to the Mystic Shrine one must be a Commandery Mason or have received his 32 degree.

E. W. Cummings of Lewiston, formerly Maine Central Station Agent in this city, attended the Ceremonial. It was his first visit to Rockland in a year but he keeps well posted on local doings by being a steady reader of The Courier-Gazette.

Three Shriners well known in Maine hotel circles were in the parade: Carl Glidden, proprietor of the Falmouth Hotel, Portland, and a time manager of the Narragansett Hotel in this city, H. M. Castner of Damariscotta, who was for many years proprietor of the West End Hotel, Portland; and E. A. Jones, one of the proprietors of the Windsor Hotel, Belfast.

Claremont Commandery's pennant adorned the front of Masonic Temple.

Dr. J. F. Starrett of Bangor, a former resident of Warren, was given the glad hand by many friends.

Rockland Lodge of Elks kept open house, serving sandwiches and other light refreshments. Quite a number of the visitors were recipients of this fraternal courtesy.

James T. Jack, who came regularly to Rockland as a traveling salesman, and who is now manager of the Portland cold storage plant; P. L. Dennison of Portland, who was deputy warden of the State Prison, under Warden Smith; and Cyrus A. Anderson, who was conductor for many years on the Rockland and Lewiston division were among the well known paraders.

Obed Buck of Lewiston, who formerly resided in this city is a member of the Arab Patrol, and a new acquaintance with many old friends.

Edward P. Dudley of Charlestown, a well known member of the Crescent Beach summer colony, was one of the marchers, accompanied by A. W. Lincoln, Jr., of Cambridge. They are members of Aleppo Temple.

The ceremonial session in the Arcade began at 8 p. m. and lasted until midnight. There were 112 candidates, 20 of whom were selected for the full degree work. The Arab Patrol gave a splendid exhibition of its skill in drill work. Frank H. Jordan, warden of the State Prison, was presented by some of his friends with a handsome Shrine pin, the presentation speech being made by Potentate Kingsley.

The following candidates were received into membership:

The dean of the candidates was Albert I. Mather of Rockland, who is 79 years of age, and who has been a Mason more than 56 years. Another veteran who took the obligation was Asa P. St. Clair of Rockland, aged 73.

A GIANT HALIBUT

Capt. Melvin B. Webber
Lands 300-Pounder After a Vigorous Struggle.

A 300-pound halibut, said to be the largest ever caught in Penobscot Bay, was brought to port Thursday by Capt. Melvin B. Webber, who landed the big fish unaided in his power boat at Jenkins Ledge near Green Island.

A tremendous sag on his handling acquainted the veteran fisherman with the fact that he was on the verge of making an unusual catch. Presently the fish came to the surface, blowing, Capt. Webber says, like a whale, and he saw that the halibut was choking in an attempt to swallow a large codfish which had been hooked while taking the bait. Capt. Webber fought nearly 10 minutes before he beat the monster fish into a state of unconsciousness with his gaff.

How to get the creature into the boat was a problem, which a rough sea helped Capt. Webber to solve. Maneuvering skillfully he finally dragged the fish over the rail, and proceeded to Rockland with the biggest catch, in more senses than one, of the fishery. Choked and beaten, the fish still had fight left in him, and flopped about vigorously when hoisted onto the wharf. The fish was exhibited to hundreds of sightseers, and when finally cut by Capt. Webber found a ready sale at 25 cents a pound, one-half of the halibut being purchased by the proprietor of Hotel Rockland in anticipation of the unusual demand for food made by the Shriners' Day visitors.

The average halibut caught in these waters weighs from 75 to 100 pounds.

SHOOTING IN BURKETTVILLE

Maynard Robbins First Claimed Attempted Murder, Then Admitted Shooting Himself.

Maynard Robbins, aged 25, who resides a mile or so beyond Burkettville, in the town of Appleton, was brought to Knox Hospital in dangerous condition this morning suffering from gunshot wounds, which he now admits were self-inflicted. His stories as told last night, after the shooting, were to the effect that some unknown person had discharged the weapon at him through the window. The gun was found lying outside the house, on the ground, and the window was shattered.

Robbins returned home from a dance at 11 o'clock last night. His wife who came half or three-quarters of an hour later, heard groaning, and found her husband lying in bed. Relatives and neighbors were summoned and to them Robbins told the story of attempted murder.

Dr. Plummer of Union, summoned at 1 o'clock this morning, found that there were two or three shots in Robbins' body which were probably lodged at the edge of the lung, while others were embedded in and under one of the arms. Dr. Plummer telephoned for the Crozier & Bove's ambulance, and came to Rockland with the wounded man, together with Mr. Robbins' wife.

It was not until the hospital was reached that Robbins admitted that he was the author of the shooting and finding that it was not to be immediately fatal had thrown the gun through the window with a view to casting suspicion upon other parties.

succeeded was apparent yesterday, even to those who are not affiliated with fraternal organizations.

Preceding by 48 hours the visit of Kora Temple there came Illustrious Edward S. Stetson, who wears the title of director of work, and who seemed nowise disturbed by the fact that he must transport an Oasis bodily from Lewiston to Rockland, and prepare the Torturers for work on a large class of candidates. The paraphernalia was brought on auto trucks, and behind the closed doors and curtained windows of the Arcade was skillfully whipped into shape for the Ceremonial.

Out of the mists which enshrouded a fog-bound city yesterday morning came the advance guard of feecrowned Nobles, eager for the day's festivities to begin. From all points of the compass they came, radiating such good cheer that it soon burned away the fog and revealed skies that smiled in sympathy with that quest. The forenoon train brought large numbers of the Nobility.

The mayor's office in the City Building was placed at the disposal of the Shriners for the registration of Nobles, and the busiest man there, while that task was in progress, was Ernest L. Wellman, Kora Temple's popular recorder. As the hour approached for meeting the afternoon train the Nobles were hustled up another flight to the City Council chambers and fittingly prepared for their initial appearance in a Shrine parade.

have hardly created a greater sensation.

Kora Temple was headed by its potentate, Illustrious James E. Kingsley, whose administration is having such marked success. Music in this division was furnished by the Oakland Park Concert Band, Clarence A. Fish leader. The organization received many compliments from the visitors. Two of its members—Charles L. Robinson and Chester Munro—are Nobles of Kora Temple, the latter being one of last night's candidates.

After counter-marching on Main street the procession passed up Park street to Union and the rear division was dropped off at the Methodist church. In succession other divisions were left at the Universalist church; Grand Army hall, Odd Fellows hall and Masonic Temple and First Baptist church.

In this manner was the banquet served, and the visitors were amazed, not only at its excellence but at the completeness of the preparations which had been made. All of the dining rooms were attractively decorated, and in each instance the feast was served by the housekeepers and waiters with the precision of clockwork.

The committee had guaranteed 640 guests, but in the final round-up it was learned that nearly 800 suppers had been served. The menu consisted of grape fruit, oyster cocktail, ham, hot rolls, lobster salad, mashed potatoes, ice cream and cake and coffee. At Judge Pike is attending court at Calais.

Set your timepieces ahead one hour tonight.

The city schools will adopt the daylight saving schedule next Monday.

The Simmons Garage building on Tillson avenue has been repaired.

W. C. French has gone to Greenville, where he will manage the A. & P. store.

The bakery department, which has occupied a large portion of the Main street window of M. B. & C. O. Perry's market, has been transferred to the basement and the window will now be used for the purpose originally intended. The concern is also about to install an ammonia refrigerating plant, thereby doing away with the use of ice.

Winter street residents are to be provided with a continuous concert this season, Charlie Russ having located his merry-go-round just to the eastward of the fire ruins. The organ has been in use at the Skating Rink the past winter.

Miss Jewett, State House Demonstrator of the College of Agriculture, U. of M., writes that the demonstration planned for May 10, at Pleasant Valley Grange hall will be cancelled. The reason is an interesting one, namely, that money has recently become available to pay for more State demonstrations, and the work and plans are to be re-organized with additional demonstrators in the field. Instead of one demonstration in May, Rockland may have several after July 1. Those who have the matter in charge will avail themselves of the new offer and announcements will be made later.

There was a good-sized crowd at the re-opening of the Skating Rink Thursday night, and the new manager, Frank B. Allen, was praised for his efforts to please the patrons. R. G. Ingraham's Orchestra is furnishing music. There will be skating Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights, and Saturday afternoon.

Highway work calling for a total expenditure of $1,211,935 has been authorized by the governor and council. The State Highway Commission's plans do not call for any portion of the work in Knox county, but motorists will be interested to learn that 3.23 miles of road will be constructed in Stockton, which with Edgecombe, has been an eyesore to all travelers this spring.

When you retire tonight set the clocks and watches ahead one hour. Daylight saving will be in effect Sunday morning. Bear in mind, however, that the trains and steamboats will continue to use standard time.

While Legislature was in session Senator Rodney I. Thompson, as a member of the committee on Libraries, received a handsomely illustrated volume entitled "Hinckley Township, or Grand Lake Stream Plantation." The author is Minnie Atkinson of Newburyport, Mass., and the book is dedicated to her uncle, Fred L. Atkinson, in whose camp at Grand Lake Stream she had spent many pleasant months. Senator Thompson learned that Mr. Atkinson was a gentleman who had treated him very courteously while he was in Massachusetts on legal business, and pleasant correspondence followed the receipt of the book. Mr. Atkinson is a coal dealer who has a number of friends in this section.

Leslie Steward, whose eccentric doings have frequently brought him to the attention of the public and the police, will be remanded to the Knox county jail today to serve 30 days for the larceny of a boat. Judge Miller had committed young Steward to the State School for Boys, with an alternative jail sentence. His behavior at the State School was such that the trustees voted to discharge him from that institution and remand him to the Knox county jail. Supt. Dunn was reluctant about taking this course, as he had never before invoked the alternative sentence, and he paroled the boy in the custody of the latter's stepfather, Mr. Marks. The family moved to Thomaston, where young Steward soon fell back into his queer ways. His latest episode was to enter the house of A. E. Prescott on Fluker street, Thomaston, where he is alleged to have taken a stick pin, together with $3 in change from a boy's bank. He denied the theft, but later produced the pin, which was returned to the family. Because of this having broken his parole the alternative jail sentence will be placed in effect. Supt. Dunn recommends another examination as to the lad's sanity. Steward had previously been sent to the Bangor State Hospital for that purpose, and was pronounced sane.

Way down in Fruitland Park, Fla., Frank H. Whitney had a hanker for Cod Bits, which he saw advertised in The Courier-Gazette. Result was an order through George A. Wooster's market. "Hope to see you some time before June 1st," writes Mr. Whitney.

The Street Railway will conform to the daylight saving schedule, commencing tomorrow.

Dog licenses are being taken out rather slowly. City Clerk Keene had issued only 84 up to yesterday noon. Save the purp!

Rev. Carl N. Garland, formerly pastor of Pratt Memorial M. E. church, and recently superintendent of the Deaconess Hospital in Billings, Mont., has been appointed pastor of the Grace church in Bangor, and will enter upon his duties with the new conference year. Rockland friends are pleased to learn that he is again a member of the East Maine Conference.

A unique demonstration is being staged in Maine by the New England Velle Co. They are driving one of their X-Ray Model 34's through the State giving demonstrations. Next week, May 5 and 6, are the dates for Rockland and Camden.

The 5th Company C. A. C., will hold its next meeting Monday night instead of Tuesday, for the convenience of Major C. T. Marsh, who will be here at that time to inspect it.

Power on the transmission lines of the Knox County Electric Co. will be shut off from 3:30 to 5:30 Sunday morning while necessary repairs are being made. Several of the insulators have been destroyed, and evidence points to gunners as the guilty parties. The early hours of Sunday morning are selected for the repair work as being the time least likely to inconvenience the general public.

R. G. Ingraham received a post card Saturday from Knox county's champion globe-trotter, "Ann" bringing you some send from the Sahara Desert. "He wrote—and at that time he did not know that the Mystic Shriners were building a little desert of their own up in the Arcade."

Rockland High plays Lincoln Academy in Newcastle this afternoon. Many local fans will see the game between Thomaston High and Vinalhaven High in Thomaston. Rockport High plays in Camden. All three games are scheduled in the Knox and Lincoln League.

The Oakland Park Band will give an outdoor and indoor concert in connection with its dance in the Arcade Thursday evening, May 5. The band dances are very popular.

The May meeting of the City Government will be held next Monday night. The passage of the appropriation resolve will be the chief item of business.

A squad of over 15 reported the first day of Freshman baseball practice, among them being men who have played on the Grammar school team for three years. The field was a bit soft so that the men were at a decided disadvantage, but in spite of this they made a fine showing. The most notable observation from this practice was the supply of promising material and the vim and spirit with which they began the season. Competition for the various positions is quite keen, so that before the first game is played a first-rate team will have been developed. The fellows out for the first practice Wednesday night were: Fred Stewart, (captain), S. Snow, R. Snow, C. Staples, Ludwig, Perry, Grant, Witham, Winchenbach, Cole, Rising, Knight, Ames, Pettingill and Baum.

There will be a public supper at the Methodist church tonight from 5 to 7—adv.

The WRECKERS

By FRANCIS LYNDE

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Graham Norcross, railroad manager, and his secretary, Jimmie Dods, are marooned at Sand Creek siding with a young lady, Sheila Macrae, and her small cousin. Unseen, they witness a peculiar train hopup, in which a special car is carried off.

CHAPTER II.—Norcross recognizes the car stolen by John Chadwick, financial magnate, whom he was to meet at Fort City. He and Dods rescue Chadwick. The latter offers Norcross the management of the Pioneer Short Line, which is in the hands of eastern speculators, headed by Breckinridge Dunton, president of the line. Norcross, learning that Sheila Macrae is stopping at Fort City, accepts.

CHAPTER III.—Dods overhears conversation between Rufus Hatch and Gustave Henkel, Fort City financiers, in which they admit complicity in Chadwick kidnapping, their object being to keep Chadwick from attending a meeting of directors to reorganize the Pioneer Short Line, which would jeopardize their interests.

CHAPTER IV.—To curb the monopoly controlled by Hatch and Henkel, the Red Tower corporation, Norcross forms the Citizens' Storage and Warehouse company. He begins to manifest a deep interest in Sheila Macrae. Dods learns that Sheila is married, but living apart from her husband. Norcross does not know this.

CHAPTER V.—Hatch, aware that Dods has knowledge of his and Henkel's participation in the Chadwick kidnapping, offers him inducements to leave Norcross. Dods refuses. Leaving the office, he is knocked senseless. Recovering consciousness, he learns that Norcross has disappeared and is believed to have resigned and gone east.

CHAPTER VI.—Dods connects Norcross' disappearance with machinations of Hatch and Henkel, and on recovering strength sets out to solve the mystery.

CHAPTER VII.—With Kirgan, the road's master mechanic, Dods gets a line on Norcross' disappearance and follows a clue given them through a missing locomotive.

CHAPTER VIII.—The rescue party finds and releases Norcross from captivity to which he had been lured. Norcross resumes control of the Pioneer Short Line, refusing to give place to man whom Dunton has sent to take charge.

CHAPTER IX.—Dods follows an emissary of the Red Tower people, spying on Norcross, to a coal yard, where he overhears a plot to put Norcross out of business, and at the risk of his life frustrates it.

CHAPTER X.—At the home of Sheila Macrae Dods is witness of strange actions of a man he believes has designs on the life of his friend and boss. He prepares to defend him.

"But that is a man's point of view," the boss persisted. "How do you get it? You are all woman, you know; and your mixing and mingling—at least, since I have known you—has all been purely social. How do you get the big overlook?"

"I don't know. I was foolish and frivolous once, like most young girls, I suppose. But we all grow older, and we ought to grow wiser. Besides, the woman has this advantage of the man in one respect; she has time to think and plan and reason things out as a busy man can't have. Your problem has seemed very simple to me, from the very beginning. It asked for a strong man and an honest one. You were to take charge of a piece of property that had been abused and knocked about and used as a means of extortion and oppression, and you were to make it good."

"Again, that is a man's point of view."

"Oh, no," she protested quickly. "There is no sex in ethics. Women are the natural house-cleaners, perhaps, but that isn't saying that a man can't be one, too, if he wants to be."

"At this, the boss got up and began to tramp up and down the room; I could hear him. I knew she had been having the biggest kind of a job to keep him shut up in this sort of abstract corral, when all the time he was loving her fit to kill, but apparently she had been doing it, successfully. There wasn't the faintest breath of sentiment in the air; not the slightest whiff. When she began again, I could somehow feel that she was just in time to prevent his breaking out into all sorts of love-making."

"The time has come, now, when you must take another leaf out of my book," she said, with just the proper little cooling tang in her voice. "Up to the present you have been hammering your way to the end like a strong man, and that was right. But you have been more or less reckless—and that isn't right or fair or just to a lot of other people."

The tramping stopped and I heard him say: "I don't know what you mean."

"I mean that matters have come to such a pass now that you can't afford to take any risks—personal risks. If the plan the enemy is trying doesn't work, it will try another and a more desperate one."

"You've been talking to Ripley," he laughed. "Ripley wants me to become a gun-toter and provide myself with a body-guard. I'd look well, wouldn't I? But what do you mean by the plan the enemy is now trying?"

"She hesitated a little, and then said: 'I shall make no charges, because I have no proof. But I read the news papers, and Mr. Van Buren tells me something, now and then. You are having a terrible lot of wrecks.'"

"That is merely bad luck," he rejoined easily.

"Rashness is no part of true courage," she interpolated, calmly. "As a private individual you might say that your life is your own, and that you have a perfect right to risk it as you please. But as the general manager of the railroad, with a lot of your friends holding office under you, you can't say that. Besides, you are fighting for a cause, and that cause will stand or fall with you."

"You ought to be a member of this new reform legislature that some of our good friends think is coming up the pike," he chuckled; but she ignored the good-natured gibe and made him listen.

"I was visiting a day or two at the capital last week, and there are influences at work that you don't know about. If the opposition can't make your administration a failure, it won't hesitate to get rid of you in the easiest way that offers."

"There was silence in the major's den for a minute or so, and then the boss said:

"As usual, you know more than you are willing to tell me."

"Perhaps I am only the on-looker—who can usually see things rather better than the persons actually involved. I'll tell you what I have urged you to be bold, and then again to be bold. Now I am begging you to be prudent."

"In what way?"

"Careful for yourself. For example: you walked out here this evening; don't do that any more. Come in a taxi—and don't come alone."

I couldn't see his frown of disagreement, but I knew well enough it was there.

"There spoke the woman in you," he said. "If I should show the white feather that way, they'd have some excuse for potting me."

There was a silence again, and I got up quietly and crossed the dining-room to the big recessed window where I stood looking out into the darkness of the tree-shaded lawn. It was pretty evident that Mrs. Sheila knew a heap more than she was telling the boss, just as he had said, and I couldn't help wondering how she came to know it. What she said about the increased number of wrecks looked like a pointer. Was she in touch with the enemy in some way?

Then my mind went back in a flash to what Maisie Ann had told me. Was the husband who ought to be dead, and wasn't, mixed up in it in any way? Could it be possible that he was one of those who were in the fight on the other side, and that she was still keeping in touch with him?

Pretty soon I heard the murmur of their voices again, but now I was so far away from the bamboo-screened door that I couldn't hear what they were saying. I wished they would break it off so the boss could go. It was getting late, and there had been enough said to make me wish we were both safely back in the hotel. It's that way sometimes, you know, in spite of all you can do. You hear a talk, and you can't help reading between the lines. I knew, as well as I knew that I was alive, that Mrs. Sheila meant more than she had dared to say.

It was while I was standing there in the big window that I saw the man on the lawn. At first I thought it was Tarbell, who was never very far out of reach when the boss was running loose. But the next minute I saw I was mistaken. The man under the trees had on a long traveling coat that came nearly to his heels, and his cap was the kind that has two visors, one in front and the other behind.

Realizing that it wasn't Tarbell, I stood perfectly still. The house was lighted with gas, and the dining-room chandelier had been turned down, so there was a chance that the skulker under the trees wouldn't see me standing in the corner of the box window. To make it surer, I edged away until the curtain hid me. I was just in time. The man had crept out of his hiding-place and was coming up to the window on the outside. As he passed through the dim beam of light thrown by the turned-down chandelier, I saw that he had a pistol in his hand, or a weapon of some kind; anyway, I caught the glint of the gas-light on dull steel.

That stirred me up good and plenty. I still had the gun I had taken out of Fred May's drawer; I had carried it ever since the night when it had mightily nearly got me killed off in the Red Tower coal yard. I fished it out and made ready, thinking, of course, that the skulker must certainly be one of Clannahan's gunmen. I still hid that idea when I felt, rather than saw, that the man was pulling himself up to the window so that he could take a look into the dining room.

The look satisfied him, apparently, for the next second I heard him drop among the bushes; and when I stood up and looked out again I could just make him out going around toward the back of the house. I knew the house like a book, and without making any noise about it I slipped through the butler's pantry and got a look out of a rear window. My man was there, and he was working his way sort of blindly around to the den side of the place.

I knew there was only one window in the major's den room, and that was nearly opposite the screened doorway. So I ducked back into the dining room and took a stand where I could see the one window through the door-curtain net-work of bamboo beads. I was so excited that I caught only snatches of what Mrs. Sheila was saying to the boss, but the bits that I heard were a good deal to the point.

"No, I mean it, Graham. . . . It is as I told you at first. . . . there is no standing room for either of us on that ground. . . . and you must not come here again when you know that I am alone. . . . No, Jimmie isn't enough!"

I wrenched the half-working ear-telephone aside and jammed it into my eyes, concentrating hard on the window at which I expected every second to see a man's face. If the man was a murderer, I thought I could beat him to it.

The suspense didn't last very long. A hand came up first to push the window vines aside. It was a white hand, long and slender, more like a woman's than a man's. Then against the glass I saw the face, and it gave me such a turn that I thought I must be going batty.

Instead of the ugly mug of one of Clannahan's gunmen, the haggard face framed in the window sash was a face that I had seen once—and only once—before; on a certain Sunday night in the Bullard when the loose-lipped mouth belonging to it had been babbling drunken curses at the night clerk. The man at the window was the dissipated young rouser who had been pointed out as the nephew of President Dunton.

CHAPTER XI

The Name on the Register

So long as I was holding on to the notion that the man outside was one of Clannahan's thugs, hanging around to do the boss a mischief, I thought I knew pretty well what I should do when it came to the pinch. Would I really have hauled off and shot a man, in cold blood? That's a tough question, but I guess maybe I could have screwed myself up to the sticking point, as the fellow says, with a sure-enough gunman on the other side of that window—and the boss life at stake. But when I saw that it was young Collingwood, that was a horse of another color.

What on earth was the president's nephew doing, prowling around Major Kendrick's house after eleven o'clock at night, lugging a pistol and peeking into windows? I could see him quite plainly now. He had both hands on the sill and was trying to pull himself up so that he could see into the end of the room where the fireplace was.

Just for the moment, there wasn't any danger of a blow-up. Unless he should break the glass in the window, he couldn't get a line on either the boss or Mrs. Sheila—if that was what he was aiming to do. All the same, I kept him covered with the automatic, steadying it against the door-jamb.

While the strain was at its worst, with the man outside flattening his cheek against the window-pane to get the sidewise slant, I heard the boss get out of his chair and say: "I'm keeping you out of bed, as usual; look at that clock! I'll go and wake Jimmie, and we'll vanish."

Just as he spoke, two things happened: a taxi chugged up to the gate and stopped, and the man's face disappeared from the window. I heard a quick padding of feet as of somebody running, and the next minute came the rattle of a latch-key and voices in the hall to tell me that the major and his folks were getting home. I had barely time to pocket the pistol and to drop into a chair where I could pretend to be asleep, when I felt the boss' hand on my shoulder.

"Come, Jimmie," he said. "It's time we were moving along," and in a minute or two, after he had said good-night to the major and Mrs. Kendrick, we got out.

At the gate we found the taxi driver doing something to his motor. With the scare from which I was still shaking to make my legs wobble, I grabbed at the chance which our good angel was apparently holding for us.

"Let's ride," I suggested; and when we got into the cab, I saw a man stroll up from the shadow of the sidewalk cottonwoods and say something to the driver; something that got him an invitation to ride to town on the front seat with the cabby when the car was finally cranked and started. I had a sight of our extra fare's face when he climbed up and put his back to us, and I knew it was Tarbell. But Mr. Norcross didn't.

When we reached the Bullard the boss went right up to his rooms, but I had a little investigation to make, and I stayed in the lobby to put it over. On the open page of the hotel register, in the group of names written just after the arrival of our train from the West at 7:30, I found the signature that I was looking for, "Howard Collingwood, N. Y." Putting this and that together, I concluded that our young rouser had come in from the West—which was a bit puzzling, since it left the inference that he wasn't direct from New York.

EMPIRE THEATRE

The eccentric comedian Will Rogers is starring today in "Boys Will Be Boys." It is the story of a "town character," who having been reared in an orphan asylum, grew to a ragged and brab manhood without a taste of real boyhood. He falls heir to a fortune in Ireland, and determines to make up for lost time and buy the red-topped boots he craved as a boy, and all the handy he could eat. It was this queer manner of spending his fortune that roused the avarice of a money-lender, who plans to have him adjudged insane, and obtain control of the money. A woman neighbor also has designs in the same direction, but her plan is to set him to marry her. A delightful love-story, centering about a young sinner in the town and the school-mistress is interwoven in the plot. Bryant Washburn will be the chief entertainer Monday and Tuesday in a highly interesting photodrama called "Burglar Proof." "Ruth of the Rockies" has nearly run its course, this episode being the last but one. Lots of thrills are bundled up in this installment.—adv.

WEST ROCKPORT

Mrs. Ida Goss of Massachusetts is the guest of her twin sister Mrs. Ada Lucas.

Mattie Gardner of Rockland was a recent guest of Mrs. Lina Burkett.

Mrs. Myra Vaughn has returned from the Rockland hospital and is again staying with Mrs. Helen Cummings.

Harris Smith and R. M. Carroll have new cars.

We are all glad to know that Rev. and Mrs. Charles Smith are to remain with us another year.

Our town fathers are building a sidewalk on the hill opposite the Methodist church.

Herbert S. Hills who has been ill is able to be out.

The Congregational Ladies Aid held a very pleasant all-day meeting at the home of Bertha Simmons Monday.

When this meeting was planned it was for the purpose of giving Mrs. Stella Cummings of Rockland a birthday party. On Saturday night Mrs. Cummings was married to William E. Perry of this place (noted on another page) so there was a reception and welcome home party as well. A bountiful picnic dinner was served and while all were enjoying it a beautiful birthday cake was placed before Mrs. Perry, decorated with the initials of the bride and tiny pin candles. When the meeting was called to order, Mrs. Lullie Ufford in a few well-chosen words in behalf of the Ladies Aid and friends presented the bride with a lovely "Friendship" quilt. Mrs. Perry was very much surprised but poured out her thanks in such a hearty manner that there was no mistaking how she felt about it. Mrs. Perry was born and has always lived in Union, until over a year ago when she moved to Rockland, and her many friends are glad to welcome her back to her home town.

High School Notes

A program was carried out on Bird Day.

Helen Wellman has returned after a week's sickness.

Helen Carleton has left school. The physical geography class have made a hotbed near the schoolhouse, and radish and lettuce are peeping through the ground.

The school regrets the absence of Mabel Ayer, who will be unable to come but two days a week on account of ill health.

The sophomore class have been reading "As You Like It." We have had parts assigned for dramatization. By mistake the teacher appointed two very suitable characters for Rosalind and Orlando.

The Juniors went to North Waldoboro Saturday night where they played their drama "Kicked Out of College."

It rained so hard that he audience was not very large.

Miss Howes went to Rockland Thursday to visit the High School.

Sara Hill is back at school after being out because of sickness.

The scholars are enjoying outdoor basketball during recesses.

Mr. Wood and the boys taking the agricultural course visited the farm of Charles Burgess Thursday to see the new dusting outfit in operation.

Principal Wood had an operation performed on his nose during the last vacation. On account of his absence the first two days of this term there was no school. Glad to say he is much better and that the last time is made up.

WHEN HILLS GROW GREEN

(For The Courier-Gazette)

When hills grow green 'neath April's sun
And brooks sing with gladness
Rings out from every tree
When robins sing with gladness
Perfumes the woodland way
Hepatica's frail pastel flowers
In wind-taught dances sway—

When all the world is veiled in mist
Shot through with rainbow gleams
When all the fields are filigreed
With little silver streams
When every breeze that sweeps the trees
Shakes down a diamond shower
When slender leaf and tender bud
Are fantasies of flower—

'Tis then my soul is out of me
And speeds on gauzy wing
Companion of the butterfly
And all the birds that sing
Or, turns a fay in woodland way
And shares the nectar pure
With the first honey-bee that seeks
The maple's crimson bower.

Along the brook the elfin plays
At hide-and-seek and tag
With every little sunbeam
That wakes its golden flag
Or peers within the placid pool
At foot of silver tree
The spots to count on pooling trout
And silver bubbles see;

Or swings on budding branches
Of elm-tree slim and tall
To keep in Oracle's cradle
With never fear of fall
It races with the breeze
Across the vale and hills
It dances and it gambols
In dew the grass distills

Mocking and talking with Echo,
Leaping and shouting with joy—
It sails the kite and plays each game
With care-free girl and boy!
Oh, I could never tell the half
My soul has felt and seen
On April day, when it flies away
O'er hills that grow so green

Rockland, April 29.

The heavy rain Sunday washed out the roads, overflowed cellars, brooks, fields and roads. Chickawake Lake is very high.

Charles Barrows is ill. Dr. Adams of Rockland is attending him.

J. M. Kirkpatrick picked the largest and most lovely bunch of Mayflowers seen this season. They were packed and sent to Maine parties, living in New York, their fragrance and beauty to remind them of their native State.

Leslie Lamson has an increase in his farm stock, twin calves.

Farmers have not planted much yet.

Frank Curtis is home for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lamson are guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lamson.

Oscar Carroll is having a refrigerator built in his slaughter house.

If some of the automobilists going through Rockville do not cut their speed, there will be a complaint made.

THE PAST WEEK IN REVIEW

The Courier-Gazette's Brief Glance At the Most Important Things Engaging the World's Attention.

France Rejects Germany's Offer

Germany has continued through the past week her efforts to modify or evade her reparations obligations. Her latest attempt being an unsuccessful plan to secure the aid of the United States and Secretary Hughes as mediator. Secretary Hughes declined the role of mediator, but expressed willingness to transmit the German proposals to the Allied Governments, if the Allies regarded them as a proper basis for discussion. While the correspondence was in progress, the Allies delayed for several days the contemplated occupation of the Ruhr region. Meanwhile, the Allied Reparations Commission, April 25, sent a note to Germany, demanding the deposit of one billion gold marks in the Bank of France, on or before April 29.

Germany Still Dickerings

The German note on reparations, sent to Washington for transmission to the Allies on April 25th, contained eleven proposals, so intricate and involved that it was difficult to grasp their full meaning. They were promptly rejected by France as entirely insufficient and unsatisfactory, and accompanied by unacceptable reservations. One of the proposals was that, in case the United States and the Allies should wish it, "Germany would be disposed to take over to the limit of her capacity the payment of Allied obligations to the United States with regard to their debts to the latter." This would make the United States the creditor of Germany to the amount of ten billion dollars or more, the collection of which would be no easy task. Immediately upon her rejection of the German proposals, France went ahead with her preparations for the occupation of the Ruhr region.

A Formidable Strike Threatened

The marine engineers have issued a strike call effective May 1, aimed at all American shipping, excepting vessels on the Great Lakes. The call followed the breaking off of wage negotiations between the union leaders and ship owners. The threatened strike involves 15,000 marine engineers, and 110,000 unlicensed workers; and the union leaders claim that it will affect indirectly about 300,000 men, including longshoremen, drivers and other shore workers. The engineers' strike alone, according to the leaders, would tie up all American ships, without the aid of other workers. The walkout would affect 1,317 privately owned seagoing ships and 1,775 vessels under the control of the United States Shipping Board. A conference of all parties concerned was called by Admiral Benson, chairman of the Shipping Board, to meet at Washington April 27.

American Patents for German Use

Secretary of War Weeks, in an official letter to Vice President Coolidge, as President of the Senate, in called the attention of Congress to the fact that, since July 1, 1920, the United States patent office has issued 201 patents pertaining to ordnance, which patents have been assigned to Frederick Krupp of Essen, Germany, the head of the famous Krupp works. Two thirds or more of these patents pertain to railroad artillery, some of them embodying many of the principals of American railroad artillery. It would have occasioned some surprise if it had been found that so large a number of German Americans were turning their efforts to building up German industry through American patents; but the fact that the patents were on munitions and other war supplies seemed especially significant.

RAZORVILLE

Mr. Haynes of Bath, who has been visiting Miss Vernetta Farrar, returned home Sunday.

The heavy rain of Saturday and Sunday wet the ground so badly that it is impossible to do any farming. It was the heaviest rain for a long time.

W. E. Overlock was in Waldoboro on business Wednesday.

William C. Lessner is in Augusta painting a house for Mrs. Gertrude Grotton of North Washington.

Ernest Wellman has rented John Howe's farm and stock for a year and is moving over there.

George Weeks of Jefferson was here last week looking for a big pair of oxen.

Mrs. Minnie Roseland, who has been in poor health for the past year, has gone to a Rockland hospital for treatment.

Willard and Malcolm Clark are visiting their sister, Mrs. Carrie Clark at Manchester. They made the trip on their bicycles.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kahrmann have moved into their new home, bought of the late Sylvester Jones.

The Masons had a tea Tuesday, finishing their stable and grading in front of it. This work was very much needed and they got a good job done considering the few who responded to the call. The ladies served a nice dinner.

Miss Vernetta Farrar has had a telephone installed, 8-9.

Ralph Hibbert is working in the East Palermo woods for Curtis & Rowe.

Frank Dolham of Somerville is working for Mont Grotton in his blacksmith shop.

Mrs. Mary Mitchell is spending a few days in her home in Burketville with her son Linwood.

On the Way to a Budget System

The United States Senate, on the 26th of April, after a brief debate, and without pausing even to take a record vote, passed the budget bill, which was killed by President Wilson's veto on technical point, in June, 1920. The House budget committee had already reported favorably the same bill, with trifling changes. The bill provides for a bureau of the budget in the Treasury department, to prepare the estimates of appropriations needed by the various departments and it creates the office of director and assistant director of the budget. It is believed that the practical operation of the system will save the Treasury hundreds of millions of dollars annually by preventing overlapping and duplication of government activities, and eliminating superfluous employees.

The Immigration Bill

The Immigration restriction bill, which was described in this column last week, was passed by the House April 22. Three amendments slightly modifying its provisions were adopted; one of them permitting immigration in excess of the fixed limit, to all aliens providing that they had been subjected to religious persecution in their native land; another admitting children of American citizens under 18 years of age, independent of the percentage of limitation; and the third giving preference to the families and relatives of American citizens and former service men, regardless of whether they had been naturalized. A proposed amendment to admit political refugees was vehemently opposed and voted down, on the ground that it would open the gates wide to bolsheviks and similar "undesirables."

Haywood's Disappearance

William D. Haywood and 46 others of the I. W. W. who were sentenced to varying terms of imprisonment several years ago for seditious acts and utterances, but have been long at liberty on bail, were recently denied a new trial by the United States Supreme Court and were ordered to complete their sentences in the Federal prison at Leavenworth. Most of them complied, returning to prison in groups, within the specified time, but Haywood, the leader, disappeared, and there were conflicting reports as to his whereabouts. The fact soon developed, however, that he had gone to Russia, to serve the Soviet government officially in its propaganda and other activities. He is of the Soviet temper, and the work will be congenial to him.

An Anxious Week

The last week in April must have been an anxious one for Premier Lloyd George and his associates in the British Cabinet. There was the coal strike still in force, with no immediate prospect of settlement, in spite of the moderate attitude of the other members of the "Triple Alliance"—the restriction of coal supply being already so serious as to interfere with the schedules of the ocean liners, and to compel a strict rationing of domestic and industrial supplies; there was the near-war in Ireland, with desperate attacks and counter attacks, on the very eve of the elections which had been planned in the hope of securing peace; and there was the German contention over reparations, and a flat rejection of terms, which promised to lead to the occupation of more German territory, and even threatened a new war. Rarely has any administration, in any country, faced so many momentous problems at one time.

WARREN

High is planning to take part in the Knox-Waldo Festival, May 27, at Camden. We are very fortunate in having Mrs. Wentworth to help us in practicing the music.

At Glover hall, Case on the docket is Scroggins versus Scroggins, on grounds of non-support, cruel and abusive treatment and intemperance. The cast of characters: Judge Pompos, Dwight L. Libby; Elizabeth Scroggins, Lloyd Sparrow; Resolute Scroggins, Alvin L. Watts; Quirk, Earle Spear; Parson Pray Wright, Emerson Henrick; Sam Simple, Arnold Teague; Algeron Styles, Clement Moody; Quiz, Maynard Young; Melinda Meddle, Bertha Kenniston; Polly Pry, Ruth Peabody; Martha Shupper, Beatrice Wilson; Sally Scroggins, Ethel M. Hart.

In connection with the mock trial will be another short farce "The Sewing Circle." Watch our posters!

SPRUCE HEAD

Walter Drinkwater celebrated his birthday Wednesday evening by entertaining his schoolmates, sandwiches, cake, cocoa and candy being served. He was the recipient of many nice presents and his guests voted him a fine host as they wished him many happy returns of the day.

IN THE MOVIE WORLD

Items Which Deal With the Public's Most Popular Recreation.

(By R. Wall Doe)

Charles Ray, who will star in Charles E. Van Loan's story, "Scrap Iron," will be supported by several "scrapers" of ring fame, and the antagonistic encounter in the picture will be a real knock-out affair between Ray and Tom O'Brien.

German photodramas are invading the American market. Two of them have been very recently released, of which dramatic critics speak very highly from an entertaining standpoint. One is "Deception," released by Paramount; and the other is a Goldwyn release, "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari."

How many persons noticed on the posters of "Way Down East" the gentle crack taken at the legitimate stage in large letters across the top—Not a Stage Play? Stage producers delight in calling the attention of the public to the fact a certain play which they are exploiting is not a motion picture, probably because they are jealous of the enormous following which the screen has compared to that of the stage.

The majority of dramatic critics in New York in reviewing D. W. Griffith's latest production, "Dream Street," are unanimous in declaring it another great accomplishment of the silent drama. Surely this master director has an exceedingly long list of successes to his credit, and it is hard to believe that his brain could conceive such another great success so soon after "Way Down East." Yet it is announced even now, with "Dream Street" scarcely out of the studios, that Griffith will start at once on his most elaborate production yet undertaken, "Faust."

That Holman Day, popular author of out-door stories is becoming one of the most important screen writers of the day is apparent from the urgent demand for his pictures at the Pathe Exchange, Inc. which now controls his output and which is making a series of two-reelers from his stories. The scenes are laid in the head-waters of the Kennebec river where the producing company is now at work. Day's special production, "Rider of the King Log," has just enjoyed a private showing in Augusta, of which the Exhibitors' Trade Review writes: "Several of Day's stories have already been put into pictures, and being of different material than most stories they have created an unusual interest which reflects the versatile ability of Mr. Day as a writer whose stories are especially desirable for screen publication." The writer understands that through the special effort of the management of the local theatres many of the Holman Day stories will soon be seen here. The first, which has been positively booked for presentation at the Empire Theatre May 6 and 7, is titled "Red Lane," and features the popular Frank Mayo.

Coming back to "Way Down East" Rockland is indeed fortunate to get the exhibition of this great drama so soon after its release. Taking into consideration that there are a limited number of copies out, that even larger cities than this in the West are still clamoring for this picture and that it is still doing phenomenal business in the large cities, you can readily see why I say, indeed, that Rockland theatregoers never turned out to see a more wonderful picture than this, said to surpass "The Birth of a Nation," which picture holds the world's record of 655 consecutive performances in one theatre in New York.

Although Griffith's talent dates away back beyond the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation" it is safe to say he swung into the limelight on this picture, which still lives as a masterpiece and which plays a return engagement on Broadway at the Capital Theatre commencing May 1st. It is safe to believe that it is Griffith's talent as a di-

Augusta Man Says He Feels Like a Different Person
Since Tanlac Restored Him
—Mother and Daughter
Also Helped.

"I have recommended Tanlac personally to a number of my friends and I am glad to give this public statement for what it may be worth to others," said Mrs. Ellen M. Harrington of 64 Winthrop street, Augusta, Maine.

"Really, you might call ours a Tanlac family, for after it restored my health so wonderfully I gave it to my little girl and then got my mother to taking it, and it has done each of them a world of good already.

"For some years I had been in a weak, nervous, rundown condition, and then last winter I had the influenza, which left me with all my old troubles worse than ever. My nerves were terribly upset, my stomach was all out of order and I couldn't eat or sleep at all well. I felt weak and tired out all the time and, in fact, my condition was getting to be alarming.

"Well, I never in all my life saw anything like the way Tanlac has relieved me of these troubles. My appetite is fine now, my digestion seems perfect and I am never the least bit nervous. Actually I weigh more than I ever did before in my life and just feel like a different person altogether. I can't say too much for Tanlac."

CRIE TO FISHERMEN

Asks Their Co-operation In Protecting the Lobster Industry.

Director Horatio D. Crie of the Maine Sea and Shore Fisheries Commission is sending out letters to the hundreds of lobster fishermen along the coast, in which he calls their attention to the imperative need of co-operation between the men and the department. Director Crie thanks them for their co-operation in the past and expresses the hope that the same pleasant condition will continue.

"Why isn't this a good time of the year to start, right," says Director Crie in his letter. The two years just passed have demonstrated beyond doubt that if the lobsters are protected they will increase under the present law.

"You are just about to start fishing this season. Why don't we all make up our minds to work together with but a single thought, and that thought to build a larger, more profitable and a better industry?"

"The commissioners are willing to do all in their power to improve and develop the lobster business. You personally must do all you can to help us, for without your assistance we can do very little. If each one will do his part, there will be no question about the future.

"The only way we can know if the lobsters are increasing is a correct report of the number caught, the price per pound and the amount received; that is what we are anxious to know."

Report cards are enclosed with each letter, to be filled out and sent to the commission once a month.

TENANT'S HARBOR

Capt. Warren C. Allen, aged 85, died at his home in Willardham last Monday, after a long illness. He followed the sea during all his active life. He was a member of the Baptist church. Eight children survive him—five sons, Orland, Charles, Everett, Joseph and Wilbert Allen; Mrs. Edward Haskell, Mrs. Orren Elwell and Mrs. George Frisbie. Capt. Allen had made his home for the past ten years with his youngest son and he will be greatly missed, not only by his children but by many friends as well. His wife was Priscilla Hart, who died several years ago, and he was laid to rest by her side in the family burial lot at Turkey. Mrs. Elwell, Mrs. Haskell and Everett Allen of Rockland and Orlando Allen of Mexico were here in attendance on the funeral.

WHERE WERE YOU THEN AND WHERE ARE YOU TO-DAY?

Where were you when Henry Ford was trying to raise the first few thousand dollars necessary to start the enormous industry known as the Ford Motor Company? Had you invested $1,000 in Ford's stock, IT WOULD HAVE BROUGHT YOU IN 1919, $122,700. TO SAY NOTHING OF THE ENORMOUS DIVIDENDS IT HAS PAID.

If you really had such an opportunity, would you grasp it?

SUCH AN OPPORTUNITY IS NOW OFFERED YOU.

The Tractor Industry today stands on about the same level as the Automobile Industry did at the time Henry Ford offered his stock for sale.

In the agricultural field the tractor market is usually based on the number of farms of one hundred acres or more. According to the last census figures, there are 2,669,391 farms of this size or larger in the United States alone, and 1,438,069 farms averaging very close to one hundred acres. The potential tractor market, therefore, can be conservatively estimated at 3,000,000 tractors, which will be absorbed within the next ten years. The present tractor output of the country is between two and three hundred thousand per year, with a large part of this output immediately taken up for replacement, the life of the average tractor being less than three years.

The Nelson-Four-Wheel Drive Tractor is a revolution in tractor construction. It is built on entirely new mechanical lines, designed to give universal, all-year-around service.

It is dependable, easy and economical to operate.

Its unusual mechanical construction fits it to work on bottom land or on steep, rocky, hillside surfaces and to give the same steady, efficient service in winter and summer.

You are herewith invited to become a stockholder in the corporation manufacturing the Nelson Tractor.

A SMALL AMOUNT OF PREFERRED (8% Cumulative) STOCK IS OFFERED BY US SUBJECT TO PRIOR SALE AND ADVANCE IN PRICE. Subscriptions will be accepted in the order received. All reservations for stock must be made before May 10 of this year.

With the tractor industry in its infancy, its markets are yet almost wholly undeveloped, and with a product of such a wide range of usefulness, it is obvious that the stock of the Nelson Manufacturing Corporation has possibilities of great and increasing value, far beyond the ordinary realization from investment in products not having these almost unlimited fields of activity.

It is rarely that such an opportunity is offered to the public, for participation in an industry which is rapidly becoming one of the great enterprises of the present day.

PARK THEATRE

Last Showing of "Way Down East" Today — Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid" Next Week.

No better testimonial can be offered for "Way Down East" than the enthusiastic praise which is volunteered by those who have seen the great picture since it came to Rockland. Better than the play itself, is the almost unanimous verdict, for in the play the blizzard and the sensational river scene are left largely to the imagination, while in the picture all of the details are shown in an amazingly vivid fashion.

Almost everybody is familiar with the story, which tells how a young woman became an outcast because of a mock marriage, in which she was unwittingly the victim, and of her ultimate triumph when everybody had turned against her except the man who loved her. Quaint rural characters furnish many opportunities to laugh, and there are many times when tears come. After the most thrilling climax ever shown on the screen all ends happily, and audiences leave the theatre wondering where the time has flown.

The picture is shown in two parts of six reels each, and the music by the professional orchestra adds greatly to the enjoyment. Through Mr. Black's influence in the moving picture world Rockland was the third city in the State to see this great production.

Could you spend a million dollars in one year, and come out at the end of that time flat broke, with no assets, and no wife to help you send it? This is no easy task as Fatty Arbuckle, noted comedian roves in his latest Paramount picture, "Brewster's Millions," which will be shown Monday and Tuesday. The picture is an adaptation of the widely read novel of the same title by George Barr McCutcheon, and the famous play by Melville Stone and Winchell Smith. Mr. Arbuckle plays the role of Monte Brewster, fatherless, with two wealthy grandfathers. One of the grandfathers is an aristocrat and the other self-made man. Each wants the boy reared in his own way. When Monte is twenty-five, grandfather Brewster gives him one million dollars. Grandfather Ingraham comes back with a proposition to Monte that if he will spend Brewster's million in one year, he will give him five million in stock. From this grows one of the funniest and fastest plots that has ever been put on the screen—adv.

Close on the heels of "Way Down East" comes another picture which is having an amazing run, all over the country. Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid." Patrons of Park Theatre will see it next Wednesday and Thursday.—adv.

MRS. T. J. GUSHEE

The following clipping from the Daytona Beach (Fla.) Sentinel of April 22 tell of the sudden death of a former Appleton woman:

"Mrs T. J. Gushee, beloved wife of T. J. Gushee of Daytona Beach, and highly respected citizen of the Triple Cities, died at an early hour this morning, following the suffering of a stroke in the office of Horn & Wilson yesterday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Gushee had gone to the real estate office to attend to the transfer of some property which they had sold at the Beach, and while there Mrs. Gushee is said to have suffered a stroke. Dr. Guy was called and rendered medical aid, but her condition steadily became worse, the end coming early today."

Funeral services were held from the late home on Orange street, Daytona Beach, Saturday afternoon. Rev. D. H. Rutter conducting the services. Interment in Pinewood cemetery.
