NEWSPAPER HISTORY
The Rockland Gazette was established in 1868. In 1874 the Courier was established, and consolidated with the Gazette in 1882. The Free Press was established in 1885, and in 1891 changed its name to the Tribune. These papers consolidated March 17, 1897.

If a man take no thought about what he is doing, he will find sorrow near at hand.—Confucius.

THIS TIME LAST YEAR

Rockland was at the beginning of its Centennial Week celebration.
Knox county's census figures were announced, Rockland's population being 8,109, as against 8,150 the previous year. Camden was the only town in the county to show a notable gain, its new figures being 3,493, as against 3,015 in 1910.
J. A. Burpee, letter carrier went on the retired list, and was succeeded on the southend route by Theodore E. Perry.
John J. Padbury and family left for Pasadena, Calif., with the intention of making their residence there.
The corner stone of the new museum building in the Knox Arboretum was laid by the Knox Academy of Arts and Sciences.

ON THE ST. LAWRENCE

Mr. Gardner Has Been Investigating Its Feasibility For Navigation By Ocean Going Craft.

Hon. Obadiah Gardner, American chairman of the International Boundary Commission has returned from Canada, after making a thorough inspection of the St. Lawrence River, from the Thousand Islands to Quebec. In fact the inspection was so extensive that Mr. Gardner is convinced that he saw more of the St. Lawrence between those points than any native has.

At Toronto the harbor commission's yacht, Beth Alma, was placed at the disposal of the International Boundary Commission, in addition to which the party comprised U. S. Engineer (Col.) Wotton and his assistants, Chief Engineer Bowden of the Dominion of Canada, and his assistants, the secretaries of both commissions, and (a part of the time) Mr. Davenport, the Canadian minister of External Affairs.
The purpose of the inspection was to determine whether the project of making the river navigable for ocean going vessels through the Great Lakes is a feasible one. The commissioners wanted to fix in their minds the physical features of the situation, so that they could more understandingly when they face the tremendous mass of detail which the expert engineers are compiling. These statistics would cost a small fortune to print and would not be easy of comprehension, but they will be boiled down in the most concise manner possible, and eventually typed copies of the reports from the two governments will be presented.
As the project becomes one of legislative action the report and recommendations will eventually as a public document.
"It looks simple enough," said Mr. Gardner to The Courier-Gazette reporter, "but of course it will cost lots of money. On the American side the water power to be developed amounts to about 1,000,000. Along the same stretch, on the Canadian side there is about 4,000,000 undeveloped horse power, but manifestly that country has a market for no such power at present."

OWLS HEAD'S FIRST

Town Meeting Next Monday Night—Five Articles in Warrant.

There are five articles in the warrant which has been posted for Owls Head's first town meeting, which takes place in the Owls Head school house next Monday evening at 6.30, standard. Because of its historical interest and importance, the warrant is here published in full.

STATE OF MAINE.

To Harold W. Philbrook, a legal voter in the Town of Owls Head in said County of Knox.

Whereas, by Act of the Eightieth legislature of the State of Maine the Town of South Thomaston in said County was divided and all that part thereof lying easterly of the division line mentioned in section one of said act was incorporated into a separate town by the name of Owls Head, and invested thereby with all the powers and privileges and subject to all the duties and obligations incident to other towns of the State;

And whereas it is provided in said Act of incorporation that any justice of the peace in said County of Knox may issue his warrant to any legal voter in the town of Owls Head directing him to notify the inhabitants thereof to meet at a time and place specified in said warrant, giving at least seven days notice thereof, for the choice of town officers, and to transact such other business as towns are authorized to do;

And whereas application in writing has been made to me, a notary public residing in said Knox county (being authorized by law to do anything that a justice of the peace may be legally authorized to do) by at least seven lawful voters in said Town of Owls Head to call the first town meeting of said town, and of the legal voters thereof, for the purpose of choosing town officers and for the transaction of other town business;

Now therefore, you are hereby required, in the name of the State of Maine, to notify and warn the inhabitants of Owls Head aforesaid, qualified by law to vote in town affairs, to assemble in the Owls Head school house, in said Owls Head, on the twentieth (20) day of August, A. D. 1921, at half past six (6½) o'clock standard, in the afternoon, to act upon the following articles—said notification to be made by posting attested copies hereof in three public and conspicuous places in said Town of Owls Head, viz, one at the post office in Ash Point; one at the school house at Ingraham's hill and one at the post office at Owls Head:

1. To choose a moderator to preside at said meeting.
2. To choose a clerk to hold office until the March meeting, 1922.
3. To choose, to hold office for the same length of time, three selectmen, three assessors, three overseers of the poor; treasurer, tax collector, school committee, road commissioner, and other necessary town officers for the balance of the municipal year.
4. To see what sums of money the town will vote raise for common schools; free high schools, roads and bridges; support of poor; school books; repairs of buildings and all other necessary town charges.
5. To see what method the town will take for the raising of money that may be appropriated at said meeting for lawful purposes.

Hereof full not and make due return of your doings hereon.
Given under my hand and seal this sixteenth day of August, A. D. 1921.
Rodney E. Feyer,
Notary Public.

ROLAND C. PATTERSON

The remains of Roland Carleton Patterson arrived in Belfast last Thursday for interment in the family lot in Grove Cemetery. Mr. Patterson died in Brockton, Mass., Aug. 9, after a few months' illness. He was born in Belfast 69 years ago, the son of Alfred and Louise K. Patterson, and the greater part of his life was spent there, where he was employed as a clerk. During the World War he was employed in Camden and Rockland, going to Brockton later. His widow, formerly Mrs. Ella E. Hunter, three sisters and two brothers, survive him. Mr. Patterson was a good citizen, a kind neighbor, retiring and quiet in his manner of living.—Belfast Journal.

A Story of The Post Office Picnic At Clark Island, Not To Be Taken Too Seriously.

The good people of Clark Island surrendered Sunday without firing a shot, but instead of hoisting a white flag they extended the glad hand, and told the invaders that the dominion was theirs as long as they cared to stay. In this hospitable manner has the Rockland Postoffice crowd several times been received on the island, and it would be difficult to convince any man who has attended these annual picnics that there is a finer place for such an outing within striking distance of Uncle Sam's granite citadel on Limerock street. Sunday's crowd was the largest in the history of these outings, and the Weather Bureau manufactured a day which suited the occasion to perfection.

Forerunner of the many autos which wended their way through the stretch of woodland, and across the narrow bay which connects the island and mainland. Sunday forenoon was the one which contained the commissary general, Alvah F. Staples, and his valued associates, R. V. Stevenson, Wyman F. Cushman, S. K. Hatch and John H. Flanagan. While others strolled the island, on pleasure bent, this gallant quintet of workers set the fires in motion on which were boiled the big batch of lobsters, and the indispensable coffee. The lobsters were boiled on the seashore in the scientific manner of which Mr. Cushman is a past master, and the chowder and coffee were prepared by Messrs. Staples and Stevenson at the residence of the caretaker, John Caven.

The women folks admired the skill in which the work was done. The tables were set on the lawn, with azure skies and fleecy clouds as the overhead decorations. Nature was certainly in sympathy with that feast. Those who served the dinner, in addition to the above named chefs were Leroy D. Perry, Maurice Wilson and J. A. Collins.

A strolling orchestra composed of two Italians and 47 musical instruments, had been leased for the day, and its repertoire included everything from the "Marseillaise" to the "We're in the afternoon a large crowd assembled to witness the discomfiture of the Rockland team, which received its annual licking by the Clark Island aggregation. The score was 19 to 11. The teams lined up at the beginning of the game thus:

Clark Island: Stevens ss, McLoud 3b, Ulmer c, Baum p, Hamel 1b, Williams 2b, Smith if, E. Baum rf, Tracy cf.
Rockland: Richardson 2b, Rokes cf, H. Thordike 1b, Cottrell ss, McBae lf, Fred Winslow 3b, Mayo rf, Flanagan c, Perry p.

If noise and advice had been productive of results, Rockland would have had an easy victory, for there was some very strenuous coaching on the third base line.

There were lots of other sports besides eating and baseball. Bathing in the green and dancing on the green were among them. Frank M. Tibbetts, made up like a professor of zoology, strayed among the island's historic scenes, snapping a well filled camera whenever the occasion offered.

Charlie Merritt's busted olfactory organ, furnished the only serious item in the casualty list, but if Jim Hall hadn't picked a four-leafed clover during the forenoon, he, also, might have been calling upon a surgeon. Fancy walking through a door and discovering too late that the steps have been removed on the other side. Jim didn't exactly land on a bed of burdocks, but neither was it a bed of granite, and Mr. Hall missed none of the festivities on account of his accident. But they do say that his hair stood upright until after he left the island. It was a 15-foot drop.

Everybody had a good time and compliments thick and fast assailed the ears of the postoffice boys who are responsible.

"Old Stape" was again a shining success as general manager, while Roy Perry in the collection of dues gave a correct imitation of an undertaker—a role which is belied by his exceeding good nature. The other bosses and committees were: Chowder, A. F. Staples; coffee, R. V. Stevenson; lobsters, W. F. Cushman; caterers, Messrs. Stevenson, Perry and Flanagan; refreshments, Messrs. Wilson and Cross.

The official list of those who comprised the picnic party follows:
John L. Donohue, F. M. Tibbetts, John H. Flanagan, Millard Weymouth, Louis Wilson, H. W. Thordike, H. T. Petrie, S. W. Lawry, Charles Ferrara, ing of the Green." The Irish national anthem signaled the arrival of Postmaster John L. Donohue, who came in a jaunty car, accompanied by one of his old associates, William W. Case(y). Postmaster Donohue wore a rakish felt hat, which gave him a very striking appearance—something of a cross between a Turkish brigand and a millionaire at the seashore. When the strains of the immortal Irish air fell upon his ears, his features expanded into a smile suggestive of nothing so much as a harvest moon. Mr. Case was prepared with an eloquent response to this unique address of welcome, but he mistook the bell ringer's head-shake for a dissenting act, and the speech was never delivered.

The arrival of Postmaster Hobbs and a delegation from the Camden Postoffice was marked by another demonstration, which showed the fine spirit of comradery which exists between the Rockland and Camden men of letters. An informal welcome was also given by J. A. Davis, formerly deputy sheriff from Vinalhaven, who came all the way across from his boarding-house to exchange greetings with such of his old friends as might be present. Mr. Davis has 35 boarders at the present time, including eight from Rockland, who are building a new wharf at Clark Island.

The forenoon ball game was played largely by men of varying ages, who got onto the score card about once a year, but who have never lost their zest for the game. Theodore Perry and William Flanagan acted as battery for the winners and Henry Jordan and Austin Brewer held a similar responsibility for the losers. The score was 15 to 11. Charlie Merritt had the misfortune to stop a foul tip with his nose, which swelled to such alarming proportions that he went later to Thomaston and was treated by Dr. Alden. It was found that the nose had been broken. There's heroic material in Mr. Merritt, however, and he boldly reappeared in the afternoon, as umpire of the big game.

Harry Cohen, barred from the morning game as a professional, on account of having played against the Vinalhaven Old Timers, acted as umpire of that contest until displaced by "Siv" Thordike, who thought that a knowledge of indoor sports qualified a man to umpire a ball game. Harry Mayo's home run was easily the feature of the morning performance, but possibly not the cause of the bleachers breaking.

In the afternoon a large crowd assembled to witness the discomfiture of the Rockland team, which received its annual licking by the Clark Island aggregation. The score was 19 to 11. The teams lined up at the beginning of the game thus:
Clark Island: Stevens ss, McLoud 3b, Ulmer c, Baum p, Hamel 1b, Williams 2b, Smith if, E. Baum rf, Tracy cf.

PARK THEATRE

Gladys Klark Stock Co. Opens Three Days' Engagement Thursday.

Manager Packard announces as the attraction for the last three days of this week the Gladys Klark Stock Co., with a change of play every day. For the past five years, Julia Marlowe, E. H. Southern and Robert Mantell have been appearing in repertoire of the same kind that Gladys Klark and her talented players are about to give local theatre patrons. Miss Klark keeps away from the beaten paths and does not gain patronage by amateur night, or the many schemes that are being resorted to by the popular priced attractions. She depends entirely upon the merit of the productions, the strength of the cast and the perfect detail that characterizes each and every play. With these Miss Klark has scored a success that has not been duplicated by a traveling stock organization. She has succeeded in attracting a following from among the most exclusive theatregoers.

Miss Klark has found that clever players and good plays can appear year after year in the larger cities to ever increasing patronage. She realized that the cosmopolitan cities would appreciate in an equal way, the best of modern dramas intelligently presented, and therefore went about gathering a company which has been an instantaneous success both financially and artistically, so great in fact, that she has broken house records for attendance nearly everywhere the attraction has appeared.

The opening play for Thursday night is the great New York and Chicago success, "That Girl Patsy." The seats are on sale at the Box Office. Matinees will be played daily—adv't.

MONSTRANCE BLESSED

Lime Rock Council's Gift Blessed At St. Bernard's Church Sunday.

A beautiful gold monstrance, the gift of Lime Rock Council, K. of C., was blessed and used for the first time at the benediction service at St. Bernard's church Sunday night. It was presented by the Council in memory of its deceased members, whose names were read at the service.

The monstrance, which is one of the principal sacramental used in the Catholic church services, was blessed by Rev. James A. Flynn, who gave a short sermon.

Benediction was celebrated by Rev. Flynn, assisted by Rev. Fr. John L. Drury. The hymns were sung by the children's choir.

REX DODGE NOMINATED

Gov. Baxter has nominated Rex W. Dodge of Portland as trustee of the University of Maine to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of ex-Senator William H. Looney, also of Portland. Mr. Dodge, who is a member of the present House of Representatives from Portland made several speeches during the last session antagonistic to the University of Maine. He is connected with the investment house of Charles H. Gilman & Co., of Portland and was formerly an official of the N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co.

MAYFLOWER IS ENTERED.

The schooner Mayflower, built by a Boston syndicate as a contender for the right to represent the United States in the International fisherman's race in October was formally entered Thursday for the elimination trials to be held off the Massachusetts coast beginning Oct. 1. The schooner is at present on a fishing trip, and is expected in Boston early next month.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

Whatever your occupation may be and however crowded your hours with affairs, do not fail to secure at least a few minutes every day for refreshment of your inner life with a bit of poetry.

THE PETRIFIED FERN.

In a valley, centuries ago,
Grew a little fern-leaf, green and slender,
Veining delicate and fibres tender;
Waving when the wind crept down so low.
Rushes tall, and moss, and grass grew round it,
Playful sunbeams darted in and found it,
Drops of dew stole in by night, and crowned it,
But no foot of man ever trod that way;
Earth was young, and keeping holiday.

Monster fishes swam the silent main,
Stately forests waved their giant branches,
Mountains hurried their snowy avalanches,
Mammoth creatures stalked across the plain;
Nature revelled in grand mysteries,
But the little fern was not of these;
Did not number with the hills and trees;
Only grew and waved its wild sweet way,
None ever came to note it day by day.

Earth one time put on a frolic mood,
Heaved the rocks and changed the mighty motion
Of the deep, strong currents of the ocean,
Moved the plain and shook the haughty wood,
Crushed the little fern in soft moist clay—
Covered it, and hid it safe away.
Oh, the long, long centuries since that day!
Oh, the agony! Oh, life's bitter cost,
Since that useless little fern was lost!

Useless? Lost? There came a thoughtful man,
Searching Nature's secrets, far and deep;
From a fissure in a rocky steep
He withdrew a stone, o'er which there ran
Fairy pencillings, a quaint design.
Veilings, leafage, fibres clear and fine,
And the fern's life lay in every line!
So, I think, God hides some souls away,
Sweetly to surprise us, the last day.

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

Rockland, Maine, August 23, 1921.
Personally appeared Frank S. Lydie, who on oath declares that he is pressman in the office of the Rockland Publishing Co., and that of the issue of the Courier-Gazette of August 20, 1921, there was printed a total of 5803 copies. Before me, FRANK S. MILLER, Notary Public.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

The Public Library trustees yesterday completed an important matter, lately had under consideration (and alluded to in this column,) by voting to adopt the "open shelf" system, which is in vogue among the great part of the modern libraries of the country. Under this system the patrons have immediate access to the stacks, thus being privileged to select their books, which they then submit to the librarian for the usual card recording. The convenience of the arrangement is apparent and the innovation will be welcomed, both by the public and by the clerical staff of the library.

Another forward step was taken by the trustees in voting to turn the north wing of the library into a juvenile department, transferring to it all the matter pertaining to the young patrons of the institution. The room is to be properly equipped with shelves and will be placed in charge of one of the library assistants. Thus the children are to be grouped by themselves, an arrangement that will highly gratify them, giving them convenient access to all the matter in which they are interested and affording them a reading room in which they will not be disturbed by the older patrons. It will interest citizens generally to know that the use of the library by the children has steadily grown since it was opened five days a week, and this growth is likely still further to be extended now that the library's privileges are to be made available every week-day. In particular is the place frequented by the public school pupils.

There will be a small cost occasioned by these changes, in the building of new shelves, desk alterations, etc., an amount approximating $200. It is well understood that the library has no fund upon which it can draw to meet an emergency of this character, and the trustees frankly make appeal to citizens to supply the not very large required sum. The Courier-Gazette is glad to be a vehicle for presenting this appeal, and opens its columns to public subscriptions for the worthy purpose. In advance it is able to record an initial subscription of $25 and will be happy to receive and pass on through the proper channels any additional amounts that its public-spirited readers may out of their generosity provide.

KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO

Miss Martha Gundlach, Summer Visitor At Martinsville, Severely Injured.

Miss Martha Gundlach of Washington, D. C., who has been spending the summer at the home of Mrs. Nellie Gardner in Martinsville, was knocked down by the automobile of another summer visitor Sunday forenoon, while attempting to cross the road. The fender truck the young woman, and she was drawn under the car in a doubled up posture. The wheels, however, did not pass over her.

Dr. Walter D. Hall of Port Clyde was summoned and later the patient was brought to the St. Mary's Hospital in the ambulance of the Burpee Furniture Co. At the hospital this morning it was stated that Miss Gundlach was suffering from many bruises and lacerations. There are no broken bones, and so far as yet ascertained there are no internal injuries.

It is understood that no blame is placed upon Dr. Everett, who was driving the car; that the accident was quite unavoidable.

CENTRAL MAINE FAIR

The "fair sex" will be welcomed royally at the Central Maine Fair, Waterville, Aug. 29 to Sept. 2, R. M. Gilmore, secretary.

Everything is being done to make the fair of vital interest to women in all departments. There will be a wealth of education and entertainment for every sort of woman. A bigger, better outlook on life is what every woman may expect to take home with her from the Central Maine Fair.

First of all, she will learn all the newest principles of home-making, "the greatest occupation in the world." How can a woman retain interest in her housekeeping? How can she care for her home and still have time for other things? The answer is, "Attend the Central Maine Fair."

There are many entertainment features to interest the public. The fair management have provided for horse racing, music, fireworks, aviation, a midway show, baseball and other forms of amusement. There will be something entertaining each day of the fair. Many entries have been received for educational departments. A premium book telling all about the $9,154.50 prizes to be won may be obtained by writing to Secretary Gilmore.

A CORRECTION

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—The fishermen in the ship Minerva, which sank at the McLoon wharf Friday morning, were taken care of on the schooner Kimball, and afterward taken to the police station in the patrol wagon. Nobody walked as was stated in the paper. Mr. Smith had no clothing and went in the wagon with a quilt around him. Everything was done for the men that could be done under the circumstances.

Robert W. Husey, Watchman at McLoon wharf.

Why We Say "She."

The discussion began on why we refer to an automobile as "she," one man said it was because when a car is slicked up and attractive we all admire her; when she acts properly she is charming; yet we often drive her into improper action by lack of care, and when she gets old and has lost her style we try to discard her and get a more pleasing one.—Boston Transcript.

FROM LAST OUTPOST

Explorer MacMillan Sends Word To Gov. Baxter That It's Chilly.

Gov. Baxter Friday received a letter from Donald B. MacMillan, the Arctic explorer, now on an expedition to Baffin Land, in which he states that he has reached what may be called the last outpost of civilization.

"I have taken on the last provisions and fresh water and am now awaiting weather to clear before proceeding northward to Hopedale, the first Eskimo settlement," writes Capt. MacMillan.

"It was two above freezing here Friday with many ice bergs in sight, but no drift ice to bother us on the coast, according to wireless reports," he continues. "The Bowdoin is proving to be a wonderful seaboat. Had her going the other day with sea rail under and fore rigging cutting every wave. Was a bit anxious about my main boom which was bending like rubber, but she came through all right."

Arthur Cohan of Mattapan, Mass., who was arrested at Lake Umbagog last Thursday night in connection with an alleged 50-cent club swindle in Vermont, was taken to Newport Sunday by the Sheriff of Orleans county, who came to this city after him. Inquiry from Brockton, Mass., indicated that Cohan is also wanted there for some misdemeanor. A full description of the man was sent to the Brockton police.

CAMDEN

The regular meeting of Maiden Cliff Rehearsal Lodge will be held Wednesday evening.

Cards announcing the marriage of Ralph Staples Colson to Miss Inez Frances Hall in Portland on Aug. 13 have been received.

The Misses Gilman of Gardiner are guests of Miss Teresa Acot.

Charles W. Jones of Jersey City, N. J., is a guest at J. L. Tewksbury's.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Prince, who have been visiting his mother, Mrs. Sarah Pendleton, have returned to their home in Arlington, Mass.

Central Maine Fair, Waterville, Maine, Aug. 29-Sept. 2.

THE TWILIGHTS BIG WEEK.

Double-Headers, Commencing At 4.30 P. M. Every Day, From Now On.—Snows Leading.

The Legion team has dropped to third place since the last issue of this paper, but is only a full game behind the leaders, and is by no means eliminated. Rockport is gradually working its way out of the cellar, and now has a team which they must all respect. The standing:

	Wn	Lost	P. C.
Snows	9	3	.750
Lobsters	10	4	.713
Legion	7	8	.666
Chisox	7	8	.468
Electric	5	9	.351
Lime Co.	5	10	.333
Rockport	3	9	.250

The Weekly Statistics

The Lime Company, though still occupying a lowly position in the League standing, continues to have the highest batting average. In fact has increased its percentage eight points. Rockport and the Chisox have made noteworthy gains, the former now being but six points behind the Lobsters and Snows, which are tied for third place.

All of the teams have improved their fielding averages except the Legion and Rockport, and their decline was only slight. The Chisox again top the list. The averages follow:

	Team Batting
Lime Co.	.251
Legion	.239
Lobsters	.221
Snows	.221
Electric	.220
Rockport	.215
Chisox	.213

	Team Fielding
Chisox	.909
Snows	.905
Electric	.899
Lobsters	.888
Lime Co.	.876
Legion	.873
Rockport	.870

The outstanding features of this week's batting averages are the drop taken by Thomas and the ascension made by Lamb. It was not to be expected that Thomas could maintain an average of .500, because the Babe Ruths don't do that, but neither was it to be expected that Lamb could jump from .395 to .426. By following his average in this astonishing manner the crack centerfielder of the Lobsters takes second place in the standing, and the writer predicts that he will give Thomas the battle of his life to stay in first place until the averages are made up a week hence. Hart has also shown wonderful improvement in his all around work, and by increasing his batting average from .375 to .414 has jumped from fifth to third place. The 29 leading batters up to last night's game were:

Thomas, Rockport	.440
Lamb, Lobsters	.426
Hart, Chisox	.414
Foster, Snows	.413
Wotton, Lime Co.	.383
Quigley, Rockport	.383
Dahlgren, Legion	.383
Fogarty, Legion	.383
Tripp, Lime Co.	.383
Rogers, Lime Co.	.383
Bunker, Legion	.383
McDonald, Lime Co.	.383
Black, Electric	.383
Allen, Electric	.383
Black, Chisox	.383
Rose, Lime Co.	.383
Foster, Chisox	.383
Baker, Legion	.383
Dunais, Snows	.383
R. Whittier, Rockport	.383
Louraine, Electric	.383

Black is now leading the field in point of stolen bases, with 15 to his credit. Lamb is his closest competitor.

SMALLEY REUNION

St. George Gathering One of Season's Largest With 115 Present.

The annual reunion of the Smalley family was held last Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Barter in St. George. The picnic dinner was served on the lawn, and it was a happy assemblage of 115 persons which did justice to viands bearing the famous Smalley label.

At the business meeting these officers were elected: President, Edgar Brown; Rockland; vice president, Roy Smalley, Tenant's Harbor; secretary, F. H. Pierson, Martinsville; treasurer, Mrs. Flora Smalley, St. George. It was voted to meet on the third Wednesday of August, 1922, with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Pierson in Martinsville, and these committees were chosen: Arrangements, F. H. Pierson, P. W. Pierson, E. P. Smalley, T. Maxwell of Everett, Mass. and E. D. Maxwell of Waltham, Mass.; tables, Mrs. F. H. Pierson, Mrs. Flora Smalley, Mrs. Gertrude Brown, and Mrs. Maud Patterson; entertainment, Mrs. Lottie Smalley, Miss Nettie Maxwell, Mrs. Emma Sholes, Mrs. Gertrude Pierson and Mrs. Mary Smalley.

A literary program was interestingly presented. These were the numbers: Fancy dancing, reading and recitation, Miss Helena Maxwell, Waltham; readings, Miss Evelyn Barter, Miss Rita Sholes, John Taylor, Mrs. Gusta Kellogg and Miss Bessie Blackwood; songs, E. P. Smalley and family, A. S. Smalley and Mrs. Jennie Maxwell; closing song, A. S. Smalley.

THE SHIBLES REUNION

Novel Entertainment Furnished by the No-Bo Band—A Jolly Occasion.

The 33d annual reunion of the Shibles family was held at Penobscot View Grange hall Thursday, Aug. 18 and although it rained nearly all the day it was attended by a jolly crowd. The out of town members present were Mrs. A. Belle Skinner of New Rochelle, N. Y., Mrs. Fred Sylvester of Quincy, Mass., Miss Helen Shibles of Montague, Mass. and Dr. Granville Shibles of Salem, Mass.

The officers chosen for the ensuing year are: Dr. Granville Shibles, president; Guy Overlock, vice president; Mrs. Guy Overlock, secretary and treasurer.

The committee of arrangement accepted the invitation for next year's meeting to be held at the home of Edgar P. Shibles, Beach street, Rockport.

Rockport 8, Legion 6.

A dizzy 3d inning, in which Rokes allowed two doubles and a single, passed one and hit another, and in which Dahlgren had two passed balls, gave Rockport four scores Saturday night, and practically put the game out of the Legion's reach. A star catch by Quigley saved the other half of the same inning from being a disastrous one for Rockport. The up-track team presented its strongest lineup, and the Twilight fans had a chance to see a newcomer, Taylor, in action. His extreme activity saved McLoon a number of wild pitches, and incidentally the game. The score:

Lobsters 4, Lime Co. 3

Darkness caused another "chew" last night, when it caused the interruption of a very close game between the Lobsters and the Lime Company. The latter team had everything its own way until the last half of the third when Cooke's triple, following McLoon's single and two bases on balls tied the score. Kenney's single sent Cooke home and the Lobsters in a single inning had taken the lead. Neither side scored in the next three innings, by which time it was much darker than it was Saturday night when the game between Rockport and the Legion was stopped at the end of the fifth. Umpire Pease allowed the Lime Company to bat in the seventh and the comedy resulted in three scores. He would permit the game to go no further, however, and greatly to the vexation of the Lime Company's supporters the score reverted to the end of even innings, which gave the game to the Lobsters, 4 to 3. The game was protested. The score: Lobsters..... 0 0 4 0 0 0-4
Lime Co..... 1 1 1 0 0 0-3

MAXCY REUNION

The annual reunion of the Maxcy family was held Tuesday, Aug. 16, with Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Achorn, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur S. Cross, 27 Chestnut street. Forty-three members of the family were present, and the tables spread on the spacious lawn were laden with almost everything imaginable in the shape of eatables. The meeting was called to order by the president, William H. Maxcy, and at the close of regular business all enjoyed a social hour which proved of a most interesting nature. All greatly regretted the fact that Joseph Maxcy, his mother, wife and three children of Everett, Mass., arrived just too late to participate in the reunion. They made the trip by auto, and before returning called upon relatives in this city and suburbs.

FULLER-COBB-DAVIS

This week, beginning Monday the twenty-second, we are staging an interesting DEMONSTRATION OF RINSO, the wonderful work saver. Unlike any other Washing Product, pure in composition and rich in soap value, it cleanses clothes merely by soaking. Correctly used, Rinso does all the dreaded work of Monday morning. Don't neglect to tarry a moment at this attractive counter and learn from Miss Brown the RIGHT RINSO WAY, thereby seeing the agony of Wash Day dissolve into thin air.

Suspicious actions of a stranger on the Thorndike & Hix wharf at dusk Sunday evening drew the attention of the watchman, who gave chase. The man was soon lost to sight, but dropped a burlap bag, which was found saturated with kerosene oil.

A little boy, 7 or 8 years old, is said to have started the fire which gave a temporary scare near the Texaco plant on the McLoon wharf Sunday evening. The blaze was started in a box of refuse, uncomfortably close to a tank car from which gasoline had been discharged only a short time before.

The Burpee Furniture Co. has recently redecorated and refurbished the funeral parlors of its establishment. A very elaborate piece of work has been done, and the Burpee parlors challenge comparison with any other funeral establishment in this part of New England.

At its August session held last night Rockland Lodge of Elks initiated three candidates—Lester Snyder of the Samoset, Sergt. George L. Wood, U. S. A., and Walter J. Clifford of Belfast. Arrangements were made for the annual outing of the Lodge which is this year to be held in Round Pond, the bake and shore dinner to be served by experienced caterers at the shore.

A CAMDEN CONCEERT
 In Which a Rockland Artist Won Warm and Deserved Praise.

A talented Rockland artist took part in a concert at Camden last week in connection with the fair given by the ladies of the Baptist church. Brief allusion to the occasion was made by The Courier-Gazette, which now reprints the words of commendation that appeared in the Camden Herald:

"The concert in the evening was a most enjoyable and successful one and was listened to with pleasure by a large audience. The selections of the four young artists were enthusiastically received and every number was heartily enjoyed. Those taking part in the concert were Hazel Hall, soprano; Lewis Pendleton, baritone; Augusta Tabot, violinist, and Mrs. Ruth Sanborn, pianist and accompanist. All of these people, with the exception of Mrs. Sanborn, the charming and talented pianist, who is from Rockland, are Camden or quasi-Camden artists. Mr. Pendleton is a native of the town, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Pendleton. He is now studying music in New York. Miss Hall lived here for a long time as a girl and Miss Tabot is the daughter of Mrs. Dudley Talbot of Camden and is both in natural musical ability and training, one of the finest violinists in this section. Her selections were beautifully rendered and greatly enjoyed. Miss Hall has a fine soprano voice of great range and her singing, always pleasing, and greatly improved under recent training, was a very pleasing feature of the entertainment. Mr. Pendleton has a rich, well trained baritone voice and he has an attractive stage presence. All his numbers, particularly his last selection, "Sword of Ferrara," were greatly enjoyed by the audience. A no small part of the success of the concert was due to the finely rendered piano solos and skilful accompanying by Mrs. Sanborn."

A delighted listener informed The Courier-Gazette that Mrs. Sanborn's piano work throughout the evening was of the most exacting and brilliant character and adds that Rockland may justly be proud of numbering that young lady in its musical circles. The program of the evening was:

Master Alton Black, Jr., returns Wednesday to his home in Waterville after several weeks' visit at the cottage. R. L. Sprague of Portland spent the week-end with his family at the Soper cottage.

The Kallach class of the First Baptist church will hold a cooked food sale in H. H. Crie's hardware store, Saturday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. 100-101

Cause of Earth's Fragrance.
 The real cause of the peculiar fragrance of the earth, which is noticeable especially in the spring and after rains, has been found by recent experiments. It was formerly explained as a result of certain chemical decompositions, but has now been discovered to be the emanation of thread bacteria, of which two species are particularly odorous. Not only do the bacteria isolated from the soil have the earth fragrance, but they retain it when cultivated on very varied substances, even on such inorganic materials as pea soup, milk, glycerine and starch paste.

Bear Invaded a Flivver.
 Even bears like motorcars, as is proved by an incident which occurred in Giant forest, California. A sedan was left at the foot of Moro rock while the occupants climbed the stairway for the glorious views of the Saw Tooth range and the San Joaquin valley. On their return they found a black bear cub comfortably seated inside the car, which he had entered through an open window. Bruin was licking up the last of the sandwiches in the lunch and was persuaded to leave his comfortable quarters only at the point of a pole.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Returning home after a day's shooting, Dyck, a young Irish gentleman of the time of the French and American revolution, meets Sheila, a seventeen-year-old girl visiting in the neighborhood. They are mutually attracted. Sheila never knew her mother having divorced him and resumed her maiden name.

CHAPTER II.—Reaching home, Dyck finds Leonard Mallow, son of Lord Mallow, with a message from the attorney general summoning Miles Calhoun, Dyck's father, to Dublin.

CHAPTER III.—They go to Dublin and there Mallow quarrels with Dyck and a duel is arranged. They fight with swords and Dyck is victor.

CHAPTER IV.—Errie Boyne, secretly in French employ, gets Dyck drunk and tries to persuade him to join in revolt against England. They quarrel and Dyck is overboard to threaten Boyne. While the former is overcome with drugged wine, Boyne's second wife enters the room and slays her faithless husband to the heart.

CHAPTER V.—Hours later the room is entered and Dyck arrested on a charge of murder. He does not know if he killed Boyne or not, he was so muddled with the drugged wine.

CHAPTER VI.—Sheila begs her mother to go to Dublin with her to help Dyck. Mrs. Lynn opposes the idea. A letter from Mrs. Lynn's wealthy brother in America invites them to come and live with him, and they decide to go.

CHAPTER VII.—Dyck refuses to enter any plea to the charge of murder except "No Defense." He might have escaped by revealing Boyne's treachery but refuses to do so, on Sheila's account. He is sent to prison for eight years. Sheila writes Dyck, assuring him of her belief in his innocence and urging him to come to America after his prison term.

CHAPTER VIII.—Released after serving four years, Dyck is welcomed to freedom by his servant, Michael Clones, and a humble friend, Christopher Logan. These two are all who care to remember him. He is practically destitute, his father dead and his estate swallowed by creditors.

CHAPTER IX.—In London, almost penniless, Dyck receives a letter from Sheila inviting him to come to America and sending money for the voyage. He feels he cannot in honor go to her.

CHAPTER X.—With Michael Clones, Dyck joins the British navy as an enlisted man. There seems nothing else to do. Bad conditions in the fleet result in mutiny.

CHAPTER X—Continued

"That may be," he said, "but the petitions were sent weeks ago, and there's no sign from Lord Howe. He was at Bath for goat. My idea is he referred them to the admiral commanding at Portsmouth, and was told that behind the whole thing is conspiracy—French socialism and English politics. I give you my word there's no French agent in the fleet, and if there were, it wouldn't have any effect. Our men's grievances are not new. They're as old as Cromwell."

Suddenly a light of suspicion flashed into Ferens' face.

"You're with us, aren't you? You see the wrongs we've suffered, and how bad it all is! Yet you haven't been on a voyage with us. You've only tasted the life in harbor. Good God, this life is heaven to what we have at sea! We don't mind the fighting! We'd rather fight than eat! An evil grin covered his face for a minute. "Yes, we'd rather fight than eat, for the stuff we get to eat is hell's broth, God knows! Did you ever think what the life of the sailor is, that swings at the top of a mast with the frost freeze in his very soul, and because he's slow, owing to the cold, gets twenty lashes for not being quicker? Well, I've seen that, and a bad sight it is. Did you ever see a man flogged? It ain't a pretty sight. First, the back takes the click of the whip like a d-d washboard, and you see the ridges rise and go purple and red, and the man has his breath knocked clean out of him with every blow. Nearly every stroke takes off the skin and draws the blood, and a dozen will make the back a ditch of murder. Then the whippers stop, looks at the lashes, feels them tender like, and out and down it comes again. When all the back is ridged and scarred, the flesh, that looked clean and beautiful, becomes a bloody mass. Some men get a hundred lashes, and that's torture and death."

"Mind you, there's many a man gets fifty lashes that don't deserve them. There's many men in the fleet that's stirred to anger at ill-treatment, until now, in these days, the whole lot is ready to see the thing through—by heaven and by h—ll!"

The man's face had taken on an almost ghastly fervor, until it looked like a distorted cartoon—vindictive, fanatical; but Dyck, on the edge of the river of tragedy, was not ready to lose himself in the stream of it.

As he looked round the ship he felt a stir of excitement like nothing he had ever known, though he had been brought up in a country where men were by nature revolutionists, and where the sword was as often outside as inside the scabbard. There was something terrible in a shipboard agitation not to be found in a land-rising. On land there were a thousand miles of open country, with woods and houses, caves and cliffs, to which men could flee for hiding; and therefore the danger of rebellion was less dominant. At sea, a rebellion was like some beastly struggle in one room, beyond the walls of which was everlasting nothingness. The thing had to be fought out, as it were, man to man within four walls, and God help the weaker!

There Was Something Terrible in a Shipboard Agitation.

"How many ships in the fleet are sworn to this agitation?" Dyck asked presently.

"Every one. It's been like a spread of infection; it's entered at every door, looked out of every window. All the ships are in it, from the twenty-six-hundred-tonners to the little five-hundred-and-fifty-tonners. Besides, there are the Delegates."

He lowered his voice as he used these last words.

"Yes, I know," Dyck answered, though he did not really know. "But who is at the head?"

"Why, as bold a man as can be—Richard Parker, an Irishman. He was once a junior naval officer, and left the navy and went into business; now he is a quota man, and leads the mutiny. Let me tell you that unless there's a good round answer to what we demand, the Nore fleet'll have it out with the government. He's a man of character, is Richard Parker, and the fleet'll stand by him."

"How long has he been at it?" asked Dyck.

"Oh, weeks and weeks! It doesn't all come at once, the grip of the thing. It began at Spithead, and it worked right there, and now it's working at the Nore, and it'll work and work until there isn't a ship and there isn't a man that won't be behind the Delegates. Look, half the seamen on this ship have tasted the inside of a jail; and the rest come from the press-gang, and what's left are just the ragged ends of street corners. But—here the man drew himself up with a flush—"but there's none of us wouldn't fight to the last gasp of breath for the navy that since the days of Elizabeth has sailed at the head of all the world. Don't think we mean harm to the fleet. We mean to do it good. All we want is that its masters shall remember we're human flesh and blood; that we're as much entitled to good food and drink on sea as on land; and that, if we risk our lives and shed our blood, we ought to have some share in the spoils. We're a great country and we're a great people, but by G—d, we're not good to our own! Look at them there."

He turned and waved a hand to the bowels of the ship where sailors traded with slop-sellers, or chattered with women, or sat in groups and sang, or played rough games which had no vital meaning; while here and there in groups, with hands gesticulating, some fanatics declared their principles. And the principles of every man in the Nore fleet so far were embraced in the four words—wages, food, drink, prize-money.

Presently Ferens stopped short.

"Listen!" he said.

There was a cry from the ship's side not far away, and then came little bursts of cheering.

"By Heaven, it's the Delegates come in here!" he said. He held up a warning palm, as though commanding silence, while he listened intently. "Yes, it's the Delegates. Now look at that crowd of seamen!"

He swung his hand toward the bowels of the ship. Scores of men were springing to their feet. Presently there came a great shouting and cheering, and then four new faces appeared on deck. They were faces of intelligence, but one of them had the enlightened look of leadership.

"By Judas, it's our leader, Richard Parker!" declared Ferens.

What Dyck saw was good evidence of the progress of the agitation. There were officers of the Ariadne to be seen, but they wisely took no notice of the breaches of regulation which followed the arrival of the Delegates. Dyck saw Ferens speak to Richard Parker after the men had been in conference with Parker and the Delegates, and then turned toward himself. Richard Parker came to him.

"We are fellow-countrymen," he said gently. "I know your history. We are out to make the navy better—to get the men their rights. I understand you are with us?"

Dyck bowed. "I will do all possible to get reforms in wages and food put through, sir."

"That's good," said Parker. "There are some petitions you can draft, and some letters also to the admiralty and to the houses of lords and commons."

"I am at your service," said Dyck.

He saw his chance to secure influence on the Ariadne, and also to do good to the service. Besides, he felt he might be able to check the worst excesses of the agitation, if he got power under Parker. He was free from any wish for mutiny, but he was the friend of an agitation which might end as successfully as the trouble at Spithead.

CHAPTER XI.

To the West Indies.

A fortnight later the mutiny at the Nore shook and bewildered the British fleet.

The day after Richard Parker visited the Ariadne the fleet had been put under the control of the seamen's Delegates, who were men of standing in the ships, and of personal popularity. Their first act was to declare that the fleet should not leave port until the men's demands were satisfied.

The government had armed the forts at Sheerness, had sent troops and guns to Gravesend and Tilbury, and had declared war upon the rebellious fleet.

At the head of the Delegates, Richard Parker, with an officer's knowledge, became a kind of hocus admiral, who, in interview with the real admirals and the representatives of the admiralty board, talked like one who, having power, meant to use it ruthlessly. The government had yielded to the Spithead mutineers, giving pardon to all except the ring-leaders, and granting demands for increased wages and better food, with a promise to consider the question of prize-money; but the Nore mutineers refused to accept that agreement, and enlarged the Spithead demands.

The Delegates demanded a deputation from the admiralty, Parker declaring that no accommodation could occur without the appearance of the lords of the admiralty at the Nore. Then followed threatening arrangements, and the Delegates decided to blockade the Thames and the Medway.

It was at this time that Dyck Calhoun—who, by consent of Richard Parker, had taken control of the Ariadne—took action which was to alter the course of his own life and that of many others.

Since the beginning of the mutiny he had acted with decision, judgment and strength. He had agreed to the Ariadne joining the mutinous ships, and he had skillfully constructed petitions to the admiralty, the house of commons and the king. His habit of thought, his knowledge of life, made him a power. He believed that the main demands of the seamen were to enforce them. It was only when he saw the mutineers would not accept the terms granted to the Spithead rebels that a new spirit influenced him.

He had determined to get control of the Ariadne. His gift as a speaker had conquered his fellow-sailors, and the fact that he was an ex-convict gave them confidence that he was no friend of the government.

One of the first things he did, after securing his own pre-eminence on the ship, was to get the captain and officers safely ashore. This he did with skill, and the crew of the ship even cheered them as they left.

None of the regular officers of the Ariadne were left upon her, except Greenock, the master of the ship, whose rank was below that of lieutenant, and whose duties were many and varied under the order of the captain. Greenock chose to stay, though Dyck said he could go if he wished. Greenock's reply was that it was his duty to stay, if the ship was going to remain at sea, for no one else could perform his duties or do his work.

Then, by vote, Dyck became captain of the ship. He would not have accepted the doubtful honor had he not had long purposes in view. With Ferens, Michael Clones, and two others whom Ferens could trust, a plan was arranged which Dyck explained to his fellow-seamen on the Ariadne.

"We've come to the parting of the ways, brothers," he said. "We've all become liable to death for mutiny. The pardon offered by the king has been refused, and fresh demands are made. There, I think, a real wrong has been committed by our people. The Ariadne is well supplied with food and water. It is the only ship with sufficiency. And why? Because at the beginning we got provisions from the shore in time; also we got permission from Richard Parker to fill our holds from two stopped merchant ships. Well, the rest of the fleet know what our food and drink amount to. They know how safe we are, and today orders have come to yield our provisions to the rest of the fleet. That is, we, who have taken time by the forelock, must yield up our good gettings to bad receivers. I am not prepared to do it."

"The fleet could not sail now if it wished; but one ship can sail, and it is ours. The fleet hasn't the food to sail. On Richard Parker's ship, the Sandwich, there is food only for a week. The others are almost as bad. We are in danger of being attacked. Sir Erasmus Gower, of the Neptune, has a fleet of warships, gunboats, and amateur armed vessels getting ready to attack us. The North sea fleet has come to help us, but that doesn't save us. I'll say this—we are loyal men in this fleet, otherwise our ships would have joined the enemy in the waters of France or Holland. They can't go now, in any case. The men have lost heart."

"For the moment we have a majority in men and ships; but we can't renew our food or drink, or ammunition. The end is sure against us. Our original agitation was just; our present obduracy is madness. The ship is suspected. It is believed by the rest of the fleet—by ships like the Invincible—that we're weak-kneed, selfish and lacking in fidelity to the cause. That's not true; but we are in this position—we have either to fight or to run, and perhaps to do both."

"Make no mistake. The government are not cowards; the admiralty are gentlemen of determination. If men like Admiral Howe support the admiralty—Howe, one of the best friends the seamen ever had—what do you think the end will be? Have you heard what happened at Spithead? The seamen chivvied Admiral Alan Gardner and his colleagues aboard a ship. He caught hold of a seaman Delegate by the collar and shook him. They closed in on him. They handled him roughly. He sprang on the hammock nettings, put the noose of the hanging-rope round his neck, and said to the men who advanced menacingly:

"If you will return to your duty, you may hang me at the yard-arm!"

"That's the kind of stuff our admirals are made of. We have no quarrel with the majority of our officers. They're straight, they're honest, and they're true to their game. Our quarrel is with parliament and the admiralty; our struggle is with the people of the kingdom who have not seen to it that our wrongs are put right, that we have food to eat, water to drink and money to spend."

He waved a hand, as though to sweep away the criticisms he felt must be rising against him.

"Don't think because I've spent four years in prison under the sternest discipline the world offers, and have never been a seaman before, that I'm not fitted to espouse your cause. By Heaven, I am—I am—I am! I know the wrongs you've suffered. I've smelled the rotten meat. I've seen the honest seaman who has been for years upon the main—I've seen the sears upon his back got from a brutal officer who gave him too big a job to do, and flogged him for not doing it. I know of men who, fevered with bad food, have fallen from the main masthead, or have slipped overboard, glad to go, because of the wrongs they've suffered."

"I'll tell you what our fate will be, and then I'll put a question to you. We must either give up our stock of provisions or run for it. Parker and the other Delegates proclaim their comradeship; yet they have hidden from us the king's proclamation and the friendly resolves of the London merchants. I say our only hope is to escape from the Thames. I know that skill will be needed, but if we escape, what then? I say, if we escape, because, as we sail out, orders will be given for the other mutiny ships to attack us. We shall be fired on; we shall risk our lives. You've done that before, however, and will do it again."

"I'm not inclined to surrender, or to stand by men who have botched our business for us. I'm for making for the sea, and when I get there, I'm for striking for the West Indies, where there's a British fleet fighting Britain's enemies, and for joining in and fighting with them. I'm for getting out of this river and away from England. It's a bold plan, but it's a good one. I want to know if you're with me. Remember, there's danger getting out, and there's danger when and if we get out. The other ships may pursue us. The Portsmouth fleet may nab us. We may be caught, and, if we are, we must take the dose prepared for us; but I'm for making a strong rush, going without fear, and asking no favor. I won't surrender here; it's too cowardly. I want to know, will you come to the open sea with me?"

"We may have to fight when we get out; but I'm for taking the Ariadne into the great world battle when we can find it. This I want to ask—isn't it worth while making a great fight in our own way, and showing that British seamen can at once be mutineers and patriots? We have a pilot who knows the river. We can go to the West Indian Islands, to the British fleet there. It's doom and death to stay here; and it may be doom and death to go. If we try to break free, and are fired on, the admiralty may approve of us, because we've broken away from the rest. See now, isn't that the thing to do? I'm for getting out. Who's coming with me?"

Suddenly a burly sailor pushed forward. He had the head of a viking. His eyes were strong with enterprise. He had a hand like a ham, with long, hairy fingers.

"Captain," said he, "you've put the thing so there can be only one answer to it. As for me, I'm sick of the way this mutiny has been bungled from first to last. There's been one good thing about it only—we've got order without cruelty, we've rebelled without ravagement; but we've missed the way, and we didn't deal with the admiralty commissioners as we ought. So I'm for joining up with the captain here—he waved a hand toward Dyck—"and making for open sea. As sure as God's above they'll try to hammer us; but it's the only way."

He held a handkerchief—a dirty, red silk thing.

"See," he continued, "the wind is right to take us out. The other ships won't know what we're going to do until we start. I'm for getting off. I'm a pressed man, I haven't seen my girl for five years, and they won't let me free in port to go and see her. Nothing can be worse than what we have to suffer now, so let's make a break for it. That's what I say. Come, now, lads, three cheers for Captain Calhoun!"

A half-hour later, on the captain's deck, Dyck gave the order to pass eastward. It was sunset when they started, and they had not gone a thousand yards before some of the mutineering ships opened fire on the Ariadne. The breeze was good, however, and she sailed bravely through the leaden storm. Once—twice—three she was hit, but she sped on. By daylight the Ariadne was well away from the land.

The first thing Dyck had done, after escaping from the river, was to study the wants of the Ariadne and make an estimate for the future with Greenock, the master. He calculated they had food and water enough to last for three months, even with liberal provisioning. Going among the crew, he realized there was no depression among them; that they seemed to care little where they were going. It was, however, quite clear they wished to fight—to fight the enemies of England.

Perhaps no mutineer in the history of the world ever succeeded, as did Dyck Calhoun, in holding control over fellow-mutineers on the journey from the English channel to the Caribbean sea. As a boy Dyck had been an expert sailor, had studied the machinery of a man-of-war, and his love of the sea was innate and deep-seated; but his present success was based upon more than experience. Quite apart from the honor of his nature, prison had deepened in him the hatred of injustice. In soul he was bitter; in body he was healthy, powerful and sane.

Slowly, sternly, yet tactfully, he had broken down the many customs of ship life injurious to the welfare of the men. Under his system the sailors had good coffee for breakfast, instead of a horrible mixture made of burnt biscuits cooked in foul water. He gave the men pea soup and rice instead of burgoo and the wretched oatmeal mess which was the staple thing for breakfast. He saw to it that the meat was no longer a hateful, repulsive mass, two-thirds bone and gristle, and before it came into the cook's hands capable of being polished like mahogany. He threatened the cook with punishment if he found the meals ill-cooked.

Of the common sailors, on the whole, Dyck had little doubt. He had informed them that, whatever happened, they should not be in danger; that the ship unless every man except himself received amnesty. If the amnesty was not granted, then one of two things should happen—the ship must make for a South American port, or she must fight. Fighting would not frighten these men.

It was rather among the midshipmen that Dyck looked for trouble. Sometimes, with only two years' training at Gosport, a youngster became a midshipman on first going to sea, and he could begin as early as eleven years of age. A second-rate ship like the Ariadne carried eighteen midshipmen; and as six lieutenants were appointed from them, only twelve remained. From these twelve, in the dingy after-cockpit, where the superficial area was not more than twelve square feet; where the air was foul, and the bilges reeked with a pestilential stench; where the purser's storeroom near gave out the smell of rancid butter and poisonous cheese; where the musty taint of old ropes came to them, there was a spirit of danger.

Dyck was right in thinking that in the midshipmen's dismal berth the first flowers of revolt to his rule would bloom.

Sailors, even as low as the pig-sty men, had some idea of fair play; and as the weeks that had passed since they left the Thames had given them better food and drink, and lessened the severity of those above them, real obedience had come.

It was not strange that the ship ran well, for all the officers under the new conditions, except Dyck himself, had had previous experience. The old lieutenants had gone, but midshipmen, who in any case were trained, had taken their places. The rest of the ship's staff were the same, except the captain; and as Dyck had made a friend of Greenock the master, a man of glunness, the days were peaceful enough during the voyage to the Caribbean sea.

The majority saw that every act of Dyck had proved him just and capable. He had rigidly insisted on gun practice; he had keyed up the marines to a better spirit, and churlishness had been promptly punished. He was, in effect, what the sailors called a "rogue," or a "taint one"—seldom smiling, gaunt of face but fearless of eye, and with a body free from fatigue.

As the weather grew warmer and the days longer, and they drew near to the coast of Jamaica, a stir of excitement was shown.

"You'd like to know what I'm going to do, Michael, I suppose?" said Dyck one morning, as he drank his coffee and watched the sun creeping up the sky. "Well, in three days we shall know what's to become of us, and I have no doubt or fear. This ship's a rebel, but it's returning to duty. We've shown them how a ship can be run with good food and drink and fair dealing, and, please God, we'll have some work to do now that belongs to a man-of-war!"

"Sir, I know what you mean to do," replied Michael. "You mean to get all of us off by giving yourself up."

"Well, some one has to pay for what we've done, Michael." A dark, ruthless light came into Dyck's eyes. "Some one's got to pay." A grim smile crossed his face. "We've done the forbidden thing; we've mutinied and taken to the open sea. We were fired on by the other mutiny ships, and that will help our sailors, but it won't help me. I'm the leader. We ought, of course, to have taken refuge with the nearest squadron of the king's ships. Well, I've run my luck, and I'll have to pay."

He scratched his chin with a thumb-nail—a permanent physical trait. "You see, the government has pardoned all the sailors, and will hang only the leaders. I expect Parker is hung already. Well, I'm the leader on the Ariadne. I'm taking this ship straight to his majesty's West Indian fleet, in thorough discipline, and I'll hand it over well found, well manned, well officered, on condition that all go free except myself. I came aboard a common sailor, a quota man, a prisoner, penniless. Well, have I shown that I can run a ship? Have I learned the game of control? During the weeks we've been at sea, bursting along, have I proved myself?"

Michael smiled.

"What did I say to you the first night on board, sir? Didn't I say they'd make an officer of you when they found out what brains you had? By St. Patrick, you've made yourself captain with the good-will of all, and your iron hand has held the thing together. You've got a great head, too, sir!"

IN FINAL INNING

Rockland's Four Runs Proved Bath's Undoing—Cutting Suffers Broken Collar Bone.

Local fans who cherished the notion that the Bath team was going to be easy picking revised their views before the game was over, Saturday, for it was nothing but a last inning battling rally that prevented the shoe from being on the other foot.

Foster was again in his element, in spite of having pitched a game the previous night. Seventeen times the Bath men went down on strikes, and of their four runs only one was earned. Carleton, pitching ace for the Bath team was hit safely in all except the sixth inning, but with better support would have held Rockland to a small score. Cottrell's batting proved a timely feature of the game, for his two hits drove in four of Rockland's runs.

The game was marred by an unfortunate accident, which put Bath's crack left fielder, Cutting, out of the game in the third inning. Kenney had made a short line toward Cutting's territory. The Bath player ran swiftly down the incline, and fairly dove for the ball, which he caught close to his feet. He fairly turned a somersault, but arose with the ball in his hands and threw it to an infielder, while the audience thundered its applause of the best play which has been seen on the ground this season.

The play was followed by Cutting's immediate collapse, however, and Dr. C. D. North, who was called from the crowd, found that the player's collar bone was broken. Cutting was taken by Dr. North to Knox Hospital, where he received surgical attention. Meanwhile E. M. Lawrence had "passed the hat," and Rockland's sympathy for the injured man found expression in a collection of $30, which was turned over to Arthur G. Oliver, a Bath newspaper man who accompanied the team. "That's what I call d-n white," said one of the Bath players when he learned of the act. And his words spoke volumes. The score:

CARD OF THANKS

To those who so generously contributed a purse at the ball game at Oakland Park Saturday:
Cold print cannot express my thanks for your generosity. There will always be a warm spot in my heart for Rockland fans who like a good ball game and demand fairness. You might easily teach a lesson to other sports in Maine by your conduct Saturday and it is such as you who make baseball the best outdoor game in the world. For the purse accept my heartfelt thanks. For your sportsmanship accept my poor praise.
Sincerely
Harold Cutting.

NORTH HAVEN

The Pythian Sisters held their Fair in Library hall Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Howard Deane was chairman, assisted by Mrs. Ella Ames, Mrs. Cora Ames and Mrs. Nora Cooper at the cake table; Mrs. Mabel Stone and Mrs. Mildred Stone, fancy table; Mrs. Lillian Hopkins apron table and Mrs. Bertha Tabbutt, candy table.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Brown of Rockland spent Sunday here with relatives. Mrs. Vesta Mills spent the weekend with her daughter, Mrs. F. W. Brown. Mrs. James Lewis has as her guests her mother and sister, Mrs. Louise Smith and Miss Maude Smith.

J. O. Brown celebrated his birthday Saturday. We are not telling how many candles were on the cake for no one would believe us. Congratulations and best wishes Mr. Brown and many more such birthdays.

Carl Turner is visiting relatives in town having driven through with Mr. Ames in his car.
There were two dances in Calderwood's hall last week Tuesday and Friday evenings. Both orchestras were from Vinalhaven.
The next time the Herald sends a reporter to North Haven we hope they send one who will do justice to our beautiful Isle. Some one has compared the scenery around here to the Bay of Naples. It must be beautiful here or so many summer visitors would not come to us. Besides Mayor Peters who has come to North Haven since a boy and T. W. Lamont we have Charles D. Norton who during the war was chairman of the Red Cross, F. W. Benson and Joseph De Camp two famous artists; Endicott Peabody president of Grotton-school for boys and many others who stand out in our country for things worth while.

Arlene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Grey, entertained 11 of her little friends Friday from 4 to 6 o'clock in honor of her seventh birthday. The party took place on the lawn at her home, 15 Adams street. The afternoon was spent with victrola music and games. Those present were Vivian Chaples, Olive Jameson, Helen Pettie, Helen Grey, Francis Hammond, Madeline Philbrick, Helena Latham of Halifax and Dorothy Roth of New York; and Arlene's sisters, Blanche, Gladys and Marguerite. They had as special guest Mrs. Eugene Philbrick, who is very fond of such occasions. Ice cream, candy, cookies, sandwiches, cake and fruit punch were served by Mrs. Maynard Grey and Mrs. Rhama Philbrick. The hostess received many pretty and useful presents, including a very pretty cake with several bright candles. Many more happy birthdays was the wish expressed for her by the departing guests.

Adelyn Bushnell has returned from a trip to Boston.

Mrs. Sadie E. Leach pleasantly entertained Rockland and Thomaston friends over the weekend at her cottage at Megunticook Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred McWilliams and son Fraser of Crescent, Penn., are guests of Mr. McWilliams' father, James McWilliams, at the Highlands. They motored from Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Grace L. Kellar entertained the "Moonlight Club" of Thomaston at her home, 43 Warren street, Saturday evening. Picnic supper was served at 6.30, covers being laid for 14. The menu consisted of baked beans, salads, cucumbers, cake, pie and coffee. The evening passed all too quickly with victrola music and whist. Prizes were won by Mrs. Horace Vose, Mrs. Lettie Young and Justin Davis. The guests are hoping for a repetition of the pleasant event at an early date.

The Universalist Mission Circle will picnic at Oakland Park Wednesday. Arrangements have been made to buy dinner at the restaurant.

Maynard F. Farrington of Somerville is spending a week's vacation in this city, the guest of his aunt, Mrs. Langmaid, on the Old County road.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. M. Grant of West Somerville, Mass., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Grant at Long Cove.

Relatives and friends of Mrs. Ella Grimes have received glorious accounts of her trip through Alaska. Early in the summer Mrs. Grimes went to Atlantic City, thence to California and to Vancouver, and from there to Dawson. From Dawson she journeyed to Skagway, far up on the Yukon River, where she wrote of having lunch in a gold camp, of seeing the gold being "hauled", and of gathering mushrooms at 11.30 p. m. when it was as "light as day." She writes that nothing she has seen, even in the Yosemite Valley in California can compare with the grandeur of the scenery in far northern Alaska.

Miss Ruth Spear is in Portland visiting her aunt, Miss Mabel Spear.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvah F. Staples returned to Boston yesterday.

Hon. Obadiah Gardner motored to Portland Monday, accompanied by Miss Mabel Spear, who has been spending the week here at her home; Mrs. C. S. Beveridge, Miss Lucy Rhodes and Little Edith Gardner.

Mrs. Louise Sawtelle, who has been spending the summer with her daughter Mrs. Sidney M. Bird, goes to Bath today for a week's visit with her son, W. F. Sawtelle.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Knight of Camden were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bird at their camp at Crawford Lake.

Mrs. Frank Perry has returned from Nobleboro.

Mrs. B. P. Browne arrived home last night from Somersworth, N. H., accompanied by her sister Mrs. Beulah Bowers, and the latter's two children, who will be guests at the Baptist parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Morse of Portland are visiting Mr. Morse's cousin, Mrs. David H. Connor, for a few days. On account of ill health Mr. Morse, who is a son of the late Asa Morse, and formerly resided on Upper Pleasant street has not been in Rockland for 10 years, but in revisiting the scenes of his boyhood he runs across many old friends, and is getting a most cordial welcome. Mr. and Mrs. Morse have a fine home at Falmouth Foreside.

Mrs. W. P. Hurley is home from Togus for a few days.

Woodbury Purington celebrated his birthday Sunday, when friends gave him a surprise party. He received many gifts, one of which was a beautiful kitten. Among the guests were Mrs. W. W. Purington of New York and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fortin of this city. The occasion was a most enjoyable one.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harrison arrived Wednesday from Boston, accompanied by the latter's brother, Maurice Chase, for a month's vacation visit with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chase of Camden street.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden Ulmer have returned from a visit in Boston.

Governor and Mrs. W. T. Cobb and Miss Martha Cobb returned Sunday from Bath, where they were guests several days of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Shaw.

Mrs. A. R. Wood and daughter Ethel of South Boston are the guests for a week of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ripley, Warren street. Arthur G. Hawley of Revere, Mass., was Mr. and Mrs. Ripley's weekend guest.

Mrs. William Pratt of Grace street is entertaining Mrs. E. R. Moseley of Springfield, Mass.

Miss Edith Duncan has returned from Lincolnville, where she was called to attend the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. Grace Little, which occurred Sunday.

Mrs. W. H. Glover of Talbot avenue is giving a party Thursday afternoon in honor of the birthdays of Miss Julia Heyburn of Kentucky and Miss Bertha Knight of Rockland, whose anniversaries are separated by only one day. There will be about 30 guests, including the mothers and friends from the Samoset.

Mrs. R. H. Britt of Springfield, Mass., is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Harrington.

George Smith of Norwood, Mass., is spending a fortnight's vacation in this city, with headquarters at the Brunswick apartments. Mr. Smith, who was formerly in the employ of St. Clair & Allen, is making his first home visit in ten years. His motor car arrived on the boat this morning.

Mrs. T. A. Wentworth and Walter V. Wentworth, of Oldtown are spending a few days in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Spear had their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Dennis of Boston, and Miss Josephine Thorndike as supper guest at the Copper Kettle Porch Sunday evening.

Miss Blanche Winslow is spending her vacation in Bangor.

Miss Carrie E. Tibbets has returned to Rockland after a visit with Capt. and Mrs. Charles Joy in North Haven.

Social festivities at the Samoset Hotel, Rockland Breakwater, are now at their height. One of the most successful events was the black and white dance given Saturday evening by Mrs. D. E. Arnold, wife of the hotel's popular and energetic manager. The costumes, likewise the decorations, were all in black and white, and an amazing amount of ingenuity was exercised, as well as the most discriminating taste. Music was furnished by the Samoset orchestra, without which no event at the big summer hotel could really be classed as a success. The occasion was featured by the "lucky number" dance, in which about 20 couples won the admiration of the 300 or more spectators. The prizes were won by Miss Dorothy Havemeyer of New York and Mr. Severance of Philadelphia. Mrs. Arnold has received many compliments on the charming affair.

Capt. and Mrs. de Roquehaine of Washington, D. C., and William Steadman of Baltimore, who are summering at North Whitefield, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. I. Leslie Cross. Capt. de Roquehaine gained great fame during the World War as commander of the one of the companies of "Blue Devils," and has been engaged as instructor of French in the Baltimore college, where Mr. Steadman has an important faculty position. Sunday the party enjoyed a deep sea fishing trip, with good results.

Prof. C. W. Snow, who has been with the University of Indiana as assistant professor in English, has severed his connection with that institution in order to accept a similar position at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., where he will receive a considerable increase of salary. Prof. Snow is a guest at his old home in Spruce Head until Sept. 20.

Mrs. Cora Farwell has returned from Cooper's Beach, and is confined to her home on Lindsey street by illness.

FOUGHT IN WORLD WAR.

Names Of Those Who Went From Rockland.—County Towns To Follow.—Help Us Complete List.

It has long been a matter of regret on the part of this newspaper and its constituents that a list of men who served in the World War from Rockland and the rest of Knox county had not been compiled. It has remained for Harrison MacAlman, an employee of J. P. Gregory & Son, clothiers, and himself an ex-service man, to assemble this important data. It has been a great task, and he is indebted to Adjutant General John A. Hadley, Knox county postmaster and all others who have assisted him.

The present addresses of the men have been given so far as Mr. MacAlman could obtain them, the object of his research being to get as complete a list as possible of men who are eligible to membership in the American Legion. Winslow-Holbrook Post, in common with similar organizations throughout the country, is planning to double its membership, and through Mr. MacAlman's efforts the success of the undertaking will be aided. There are doubtless errors and omissions, and The Courier-Gazette hopes to do its share by asking readers everywhere to supply the required information and corrections.

This paper today publishes the Rockland list, and will follow it Thursday with the other towns.

Health Information
Furnished by Red Cross
No. 6. Cancer

Cancer in America is one of the major causes of death. Statistics indicate that cancer is of greater frequency at ages over 40 than tuberculosis, pneumonia, or typhoid fever, and that an average of one woman in eight and one man in fourteen over 40 years of age dies of cancer, and the disease has shown an increase of late years.

Cancer is no respecter of persons, attacking rich and poor impartially. At the beginning the disease starts as a local malady and is easily cured if recognized as such and given proper treatment in time. Speed means life in the cure of cancer, for if let alone all cases will end in death.

Danger signs are usually located in some unhealthy spot or at site of some irritation on the skin, such as a wart, mole, lump, or a scab. If the cancer begins within the body constant indigestion and loss of weight may be regarded as a danger sign. At first no pain whatever accompanies the disease.

If any lump or mark on the body becomes sore or changes in appearance, especially all lumps on the breast, go to a doctor for an examination. It is too late for certainty of cure to wait until you are sure it is a cancer.

The only cure for the malady is to remove every trace of the disease, and medicine which relieves pain do not have any appreciable effect on the disease itself, simply delaying the treatment.

A surgical operation is the only sure way to cure cancer, and best chances for recovery lie in an operation. The danger of certain death increases with each 24 hours of delay.

PARK THEATRE

Sessue Hayakawa is playing today in a sensational drama called "Black Roses."

By a curious chain of circumstances three criminals were able to pin the blame for the murder on Yoda. But to close the lips of Yoda's bride, Blossom, they were forced to carry her away. While she was transported to a virtual prison in Chinatown, New York, Yoda was sent to a penitentiary for murder. There a friendly convict aided him to make a sensational escape on a locomotive. He followed his enemies to New York. Posing as a Japanese nobleman, he fought a brilliant battle of wits which ended by their arrest.

Should a Prince be subjected to such an indignity as a slap on the back by a man in whose veins flows plebeian blood? It was this question, and the fear that a certain Franklin Pinney, laundry owner and member of the Santa Yacht Club, would take this uncouth liberty with the club's royal guest, that his fellow members decided to take advantage of his weakness for detecting plots and hatch up a kidnapping story so that the jovial Pinney would follow the scent and thus be away when the Prince arrived. But the plot turned into a real one but Pinney saves the Prince from real anarchists and becomes a hero. See "Fatty Arbuckle Wednesday in 'The Dollar a Year Man'—adv.

IS GRANDEST ON EARTH, SHE SAYS

"I Don't Feel Like The Same Person Since Taking Tanlac," Says Burlington Woman.

"The days of my worrying and wondering how I would ever hold out to earn a living for myself and my children are all over, for since taking Tanlac I don't feel like the same person," said Mrs. Eugene Lafond, 36 Marble Ave., Burlington, Vt.

"For three years I suffered with a severe case of stomach trouble that finally came near wrecking my health completely. I could scarcely eat anything, and what I did force down soured and bloated me with gas until I suffered awful pain around my heart for hours. Often I got dizzy, and at times I got so weak I looked like I would faint. I had rheumatism in my arms and legs that gave me an awful lot of pain. I was so nervous I could get very little sleep and always felt tired and worn out, and was so weak it didn't seem like I had a particle of energy and it looked like I would never be able to support my family.

"Finally I saw a Tanlac testimonial in one of the papers which so impressed me I decided to try the medicine, and I want to say right now I am not surprised that so many people are praising Tanlac. Why, my stomach trouble is gone, I eat anything I want and as much as I please, and everything agrees with me perfectly. The rheumatic pains have left me, I never feel weak, tired or faint any more and am feeling better and stronger in every way than I have for years. I sleep like a child every night, and the fact is I hardly feel like the same woman, and I think Tanlac is the grandest medicine on earth."

Tanlac is sold in Rockland by Corner Drug Store, in Washington by F. L. Ludwig, in North Haven by W. S. Hopkins, in Vinalhaven by F. M. White, in South Thomaston by L. O. Hanley, and by the leading druggists in every town.

MATINICUS ROCK

Rough sea prevented us from getting last Thursday's mail.

Mrs. M. D. Gott has arrived home after a short visit in Rockland.

The ladies from here enjoyed the trip to Matinicus last Saturday. There won't be many more good days for them to go for an outing.

Mrs. Florence Dawes of Rockland is visiting Mrs. M. D. Gott.

Misses Julia, Jennie and Linola Young of Matinicus are visiting here for a few days.

A large picnic dinner was enjoyed last Wednesday. There isn't much here in the way of entertainment but we all join together and do our best to keep visitors from getting homesick. After dinner Capt. Hill and Keeper Beal took the party for a boat ride around the Rock.

Mrs. M. D. Gott gave a Toddler party Thursday evening and was enjoyed by all. We are sorry Pauline and Linola had to take themselves from the party just after refreshments were served.

Members of the Red Clover Club went to Cribhaven Saturday to dispose of the collar they put on sale there. Mr. Wilson held the number that drew the collar. Members of the Club wish to thank all who helped in this work. The money will be sent to the Post Santa Claus.

MODERN WAY.
Your daughter and her husband seem very happy. They ought to be. Pa and I were married 20 years before we thought of putting on half the style they're starting out with.

CRAMPED.
This parlor is very cute, but it's so small I'm afraid to gaze in it.

SAME EFFECT.
Has your wife got back from the West yet? No, I've had the grip, that's why I look this way.

HORSE SHOW.
Did your horse get a blue ribbon? No, but I got black eye when I protested.

THE WRONG PRIZE.
Did your horse get a blue ribbon? No, but I got black eye when I protested.
