UNCLE SAM'S RADIO

Government Wireless Station
Will Furnish Material To Broadcasters.

Uncle Sam has been so badly bitten by the radio broadcasting germ that he has gone into the business of distributing information by wireless on a large scale. Eight big stations—two belonging to the Navy Department and six to the Postoffice Department—have been designated to feed the 400 radiophone broadcasting stations with interesting material for the ears of the public. Our genial Uncle Samuel has fixed it so that if he wants to tell the country anything important, he can put his message all over the United States within a few minutes.

Just at present, the program contains nothing more startling than market prices and data, weather reports, time signals, hydrographic news, statistics and educational material. But reservation on the program has been made for more important things under the general heading of "executive announcements." An executive announcement may be anything from a holiday proclamation to the declaration of war, its significance lies in the fact that the government has prepared the machinery to get the message to the public via radio.

In putting this new system in operation, the government has not gone into any expensive program of constructing new stations or equipment; on the contrary, use is being made of existing stations and apparatus.

Eight stations have been selected for the work and are designated as "primary" broadcasting stations. These "primary" stations, their locations and wave lengths are as follows: Arlington, Va., 5950 meters; Great Lakes, Ill., 4900 meters; Washington, D. C., 1980 meters; Omaha, Neb., 2500 meters; North Platte, Neb., 4000 meters; Rock Springs, Wyo., 3000 meters; Elko, Nev., 3000 meters; and Reno, Nev., 3200 meters.

The first two stations are operated by the navy; the others by the Postoffice Department.

This is one of the most important decisions with regard to government co-operation with broadcasting stations that has been made anywhere in the world, and reinforces the statement made recently by Marconi that the United States was showing the lead to the world in the application of radio to public enlightenment.

The practical operation of this system involves a technical difficulties, for it is a simple matter for the operator in charge of W J Z or W O R to pick up the material navy or postoffice station, take it down on a typewriter and turn it over to the announcer to be broadcasted by radiophone.

Supervision of the general scheme has been vested in a committee composed of one representative from each of the ten government departments with additional representatives from the office of the chief coordinator (Bureau of the Budget) and the United States Shipping board. Dr. S. W. Stratton, head of the Bureau of Standards, is chairman of the committee, and Dr. J. H. Deinger, chief of the Radio Laboratory of the Bureau of Standards is the secretary.

The job of committee is to classify material submitted for broadcast, in mind that radio must be used primarily for types of material that cannot be satisfactorily given by any other means of communication. Radio will therefore be used where wire telegraphy or telephony or printed publication is not as satisfactory. The committee will also consider radio matters of interest to the various governmental departments.

Postage stamps ranging in denominations from one cent to five dollars are to undergo radical changes as to design and color, with a view to preventing losses by the postoffice department due to lack of distinctive features. It was announced today. All stamps ranging in denomination from one to seven cents now bear the portrait of George Washington, while an etching of Benjamin Franklin appears on those ranging from 8 cents to 15. The department contemplates retaining the Washington and Franklin portraits upon certain stamps, but it was said, will substitute portraits of leading figures in American history on the others.

DULUTH QUEER CITY

But Lionel C. Wilson Likes
There and Is Advancing.

Lionel C. Wilson, who has a responsible position in Duluth, Minn., as assistant manager of the Travelers' Insurance Co., arrived Thursday, to spend his vacation at his old home in Thomaston. Yesterday he was a welcome visitor at The Courier-Gazette office.

Duluth has been his home the past three years, and he has found it typical of Western energy and bustle, a city of 100,000 inhabitants, stretching 18 miles along the side of a hill, goes above 80. It's a cold burg in height. The summer climate is delightful for the temperature seldom goes above 80. It's a cold burg in winter, however, with the thermometer frequently registering 40 or more below zero. Mr. Wilson's reputation for veracity gets him by with the statement that a few years ago 16 large steamships were frozen in the ice of Duluth harbor in the middle of June.

Lumbering, mining, and agriculture are the chief industries. Last year the lumber interests were hard hit, but the present year will see a revival of the business. Mr. Wilson hears it estimated that twice as much iron will be shipped down the lakes as last year. Grain and other crops are looking very fine.

Mr. Wilson misses familiar faces. Not until a few weeks ago did he learn that there was another former Knox county man in the same building where his office is located—a Dr. Sukeforth, formerly of Washington, who graduated from Bowdoin College in 1886, and who has been in the West since 1888.

"And you can say that home looks pretty good to me," said Mr. Wilson.

GOOD WILL GRANGE

The ladies of Good Will Grange held their regular circle with Mrs. Jesse Mills in Warren Wednesday and it was a day of pleasure and profit. These ambitious sisters are nearly ready for their annual fair at their hall, and those who wish to purchase rugs or beautiful underwear will do well to watch for the date. They also have some fine bedding near completion. Mrs. Mills threw open her whole house letting in the cool breezes from the river, making it very comfortable for sewing. At the noon hour she served an excellent dinner. Mrs. Linnell of Thomaston, Mrs. Robinson of Warren and Mrs. Warren Gardner of Rockland were special guests.

A BARN COLLAPSES

A scaffold in the barn of Sidney G. Andrews, West Rockport, probably over-weighted by hay, fell Wednesday, causing the complete collapse of the large structure. Two horses went through the flooring into the cellar, and escaped injuries, but had a very narrow escape. There were about 15 tons of hay in the structure. It was moved to another barn in season to escape Thursday night's shower.

MISS SIMON, Red Cross Supervisor for Maine, visited the Rockland headquarters this week, going over the work and making plans for future work for Miss Reilly.

The Silsby Hospital has made a gift of supplies to the local Red Cross work, including gauze cotton, adhesive plaster and rubber gloves, a contribution highly appreciated.

Miss Reilly, the Red Cross Nurse, may be found daily (except Saturday and Sunday) between the hours of 1 and 2 p. m. at 297 Main street, to meet those who wish to talk with her in person. At other times calls may be left with Arthur F. Lamb, at the same address. The telephone call for Miss Reilly is 69-J.

During the month of July Miss Reilly made more than 100 professional visits and gave help. She would greatly appreciate the gift of articles of infant's clothing for use in this work. Persons having such articles to contribute may send them to her, or to Mrs. Arthur F. Lamb, Red Cross Secretary, at 297 Main street—telephone 69-J.

HAS MADE GOOD

Yankee Pluck and Shrewdness
Seen In Fred W. Glover's
Rise Down South.

"The principal product of Maine is brains" says the old saw. The verification is found in the story of a local boy, Fred W. Glover, now visiting in this city. Twenty-two years ago this Yankee boy went into the South and he has made good in a typical Yankee way.

Mr. Glover now heads the Textile Mill Supply Co., which has an extensive plant and sales-rooms in Charlotte, N. C. The company operates the Charlotte Manufacturing Co. and the Textile Mill Supply Co. in Charlotte, shipping its products to all parts of the country. It produces all sorts of textile mill machinery, shafting, pulleys, shuttles, bobbins, belting, brushes, loom supplies, etc., but specializes in card clothing and reeds.

The labor situation in Charlotte is very favorable, owing to the low percentage of foreign population, the mild climate and exceptional living conditions of the city. Charlotte is a city of some 55,000 souls and is growing steadily though by no means a boom town. It is a city of small industries situated favorably with reference to hydro-electric power. In fact few of the plants have steam at all, and those few only as emergency power. The average Northerner has wild dreams of real war in the South, but Mr. Glover says that the feeling between blacks and whites in his particular part of the South is good. The negro laborer does not compete with the white but confines himself to sweeping, lumping and unskilled work in general. There seems to be no particular antipathy, and less actual trouble than one expects between two contiguous white nations.

The point Mr. Glover stressed was the great development of hydro-electric power in the South and its vital contribution to the very real prosperity of that section. The Piedmont country, from Danville to Birmingham, is particularly favored in this respect. J. B. Duke, former president of the American Tobacco Co., has control of the great power projects in this district and to him can be credited a large part of its expansion.

This thought is of particular interest owing to the present power-conservation campaign. Abundant power is available here and should be utilized. Mr. Glover points out that several small industries are more valuable than one large one, for such an industry may come to dominate a town and run it.

"Rockland always looks good to me," said Mr. Glover in his enthusiastic way. "The climate, in the summer, is wonderful and the scenery cannot be bettered in any part of the country. The homes are well kept up and the city makes a good appearance." Mr. Glover is evidently enjoying his stay here and Rockland is glad to list him as a native son.

THE COAL CRISIS

Gov. Baxter Drops All Political Activities That He May Meet It.

Turning his back squarely upon the Maine political campaign, unheeding of the appeals of committeemen or candidates, canceling all speaking engagements, Gov. Percival P. Baxter is working night and day at the State House to protect the State's industries, hospitals, schools and homes from the dire threat of fuel famine during the coming winter as a result of the coal strike. The Governor admitted to newspapermen Monday, after 48 hours of almost unceasing inquiry into conditions, that "the situation is critical; it is dangerous. If the people of Maine will consider that the production of coal is short of normal by one million tons a day, that one million tons is 25,000 cars and that 25,000 cars would reach from Portland to Bangor and 20 miles beyond, they would just begin to grasp the meaning of the railway and coal mine difficulties. Maine cannot act too quickly or too decisively. Big jobs must be met in a big way as Maine always faces her difficulties."

Campaign leaders, seeking the Governor's assistance in political matters are resolutely turned away. He is devoting every energy to the task at hand, because he feels that Maine needs him just where he is until the crisis is passed.

By telegraph and letter he is in constant communication with Secretary Herbert Hoover in Washington. Among several telegrams from the secretary of commerce, during Saturday and Sunday, was the following:

"Priority orders will be issued as quickly as the State gets its organization going, when we will do our very best."

This wire is particularly significant in view of another from Andrew P. Lane who was dispatched hurriedly to Washington as the Governor's representative in conference with Secretary Hoover and the Fuel Administrator:

"Maine is first on the list!"

A staggering amount of work faces the Governor and his assistants in organizing and in furnishing Secretary Hoover with the schedules he requires. A flood of telegrams and letters—commendation, advice, appeals for coal, and reports from various sections is received daily at the executive offices.

On every hand is heard enthusiastic praise of the Governor's handling of the situation and of his refusal to entertain a suggestion of political activity while he feels his job is the quickest possible solution of this most sinister problem.

The eager response of the busiest heads of the biggest industrial, commercial and financial enterprises in Maine to the leadership Governor Baxter has undertaken is nothing short of amazing. They recognize the danger casting its shadow upon the State and are pledging their time and energy to the needs of the administration. More than 100 wholesalers and retailers of coal accepted the Governor's call to the meeting held Tuesday afternoon in the Senate Chamber. The Governor outlined existing conditions, appealed for just such public service in the present fuel crisis as was given during the war and received heartiest promises of support to the limit of the abilities of Maine's dealers.

Today all information gathered will be turned over to a special session of the Governor's Council and State department heads called for advisement in determining the course of the State.

Too much importance cannot be attached to the existing situation. Suffering in homes and institutions, closing factories, mills and business places hanging upon the result of Gov. Baxter's efforts.

BELFAST FOLLOWS SUIT

About To Raise Funds For the Bradbury Memorial Hospital

The citizens of Belfast and of Waldo county are greatly interested in the recent announcement that the Bradbury Memorial Hospital will be opened on or about Oct. 1st in Belfast. The city of Belfast is to be congratulated upon the energy and foresight of its citizens that have made such a valuable institution possible.

This hospital has been made possible through the generosity of Mrs. Enna A. Bradbury and other interested in the welfare of the city of Belfast. From now until its completion Waldo county will be alive with many functions given for the benefit of the Bradbury Memorial Hospital. A large committee composed of the names of some 300 prominent citizens is being organized for the purpose of raising a fund sufficient to assist the hospital for a long time after its opening.

BRING FLOWERS
Bring flowers to the captive's lonely cell.
They have tales of the joyous woods to tell.
Of the free, blue streams, and the glowing sky
And the bright world shut from his languid eye;

They will bear him a thought of the sunny hours
And the dream of his youth—bring him flowers, wild flowers.

Bring flowers, fresh flowers, for the bride to wear.
They were born to blush in her shining hair;
She is leaving the home of her childhood's smile,
She hath bid farewell to her father's hearth,
Her place is now by another's side;
Bring flowers for the locks of the fair young bride.

Bring flowers, pale flowers o'er the bier to shed
A crown for the brow of the early dead;
For this is leaves bath the white rose turn;
For this in the woods was the violet nursed;
Though they smile in vain for what once was ours
They are love's last gift—bring ye flowers, bright flowers.

Bring flowers to the shrine where we kneel in prayer.
They are nature's offering, their place is here;
They speak of hope to the fainting heart,
With a voice of promise they come and part;
They sleep in one, through the winter hours,
They break forth in glory—bring flowers, bright
flowers.

BIBLE THOUGHT
—FOR TODAY—
Bible thoughts memorized, will prove a precious heritage in after years.

LOVE MASTERS FEAR—There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear.—1 John 4:18.

ALMOST IN SIGHT

That in Rockland alone there has thus far been registered more than fifteen hundred individual subscriptions to the interest harbored for this public institution by our own people. These subscriptions vary in amounts, but the smallest equally with the largest carries an expression of local belief that the hospital is deserving of home support. To the best of its ability this city is registering its support. With equal earnestness the other communities are responding. Assured by this splendid exhibition of local pride and effort, the generous members of our summer colony are also proffering their help with a liberality that the most ardent of the hospital's friends hardly dared hope was to be expected. Monday is to see the finish of the campaign. There remains work yet to be done by the faithful committees, but we are confident that a continuation of this effort, one final long pull and a strong pull, is going to call forth a note of triumph such as Knox County never before has heard.

Is your subscription in?
What, would this country do should the present conditions take on proportions such as occurred in 1919 when the people of England were brought face to face with a strike which threatened to paralyze all land and sea traffic? There was an immediate response on the part of the English people to fill the places and do the work of the strikers that was so prompt and universal "that the world stood almost amazed at the solidarity of the English people and the common thoughts and impulses that moved them. All grades of Englishman, from humble cotters to proud lords became volunteers to fill the places of the strikers and to arrest the paralysis of business and commerce which impended. Earls became baggage men, peeresses station hands, a baron a fireman. So it went through all the grades of society. Volunteers came by the thousands and tens of thousands. British traffic lines were kept open and this vast army of volunteers broke the strike because it was a crisis in which the life of the people was menaced." We wonder if our people would make similar response under like conditions.

Alexander Graham Bell, who died Wednesday, was one of the world's greatest benefactors. Millions upon millions daily make use of his telephone invention, less than a half century ago a thing unknown. Today the world could not do business without it. Other methods of communication have multiplied since then, and doubtless further developments may be expected, even more marvelous, but the telephone was the forerunner of them all and its inventor's name will have a place among the greatest of all time.

Those lovers of a good story who were enraptured with "The Head of the House of Coombe" are glad to know that its sequel, "Robin," is now ready. There is no story-teller of our time more dependable than Frances Hodgson Burnett, and she always has been thus satisfactory. And of the many gripping stories from her magic pen none has exceeded in interest and delight this latest production.

If the amount of wages lost this summer through strikes could be computed its total would stagger belief. There ought to be some other channel through which to adjust matters between employers and employees, some method not so costly and disheartening.

In England they call it summer time, which is an improvement on "daylight saving." Next year they are to begin it late in April and end early in September.

There is yet time for you to register your subscription to the Knox Hospital fund. Almost everybody can give a dollar. Some can give more.

Mrs. Louise Dunbar has entered the employ of the Knox Clothing Co., 229 Main street, where they are showing a line of Ladies' Sweaters, Hosiery and several other articles. Orders taken and delivered at an early date. Office hours, 8 to 11:30 a. m. and 1 to 5:30 p. m., local time. 91-17

TO OUR CITIZENS

A large number of our permanent and summer residents have not yet been solicited for their contribution to the Hospital Fund. This is due to the inability of the workers to get in touch with every individual during the period of the campaign up to date. It is requested that every person not yet seen who desires having a share in this most necessary public forward movement send his or her check or pledge to the fund treasurer, Charles M. Kalloch, Security Trust Co., Rockland, or to Campaign Headquarters, Grand Army Hall.

NEWS OF THE MARKET

Furnished The Courier-Gazette by Kerney & Greenwood, stock brokers, 1 E. Luce, manager.

The general trend remains about the same. The recent tide of business reconstruction is in movement; its momentum cannot be checked by minor factors. The readjustment is being accomplished through agencies far more powerful than current destructive efforts for the majority of the world's civilized people are struggling to build up rather than tear down.

Some issues are making new highs. Unit Fruit 149 1/2, United Drug 81 1/2. Corn Prods recently gained four points from 106 1/2 to 110 1/2 and 111. American Ice from 108 to 113 1/2. Western Union stock since Wednesday has gained five points; still going higher.

In the oil groups the American companies are showing benefit from the reduced supply of Mexican oil. California Petroleum, Sinclair, Texas and Houston oil ought to be good bargains at present prices. Advise the purchase of copper right at this point for good advance. You are going to see a big reduction in surplus copper and the purchase of good copper such as Anaconda, Utah, Kennecott and Inspiration are good stocks for the long pull. The copper market looks very good. A good speculative copper buy Chili, producing its copper at 7 cents a pound.

We are advising purchase of such securities as American Telephone, Western Union, New York Central, Atchafalpa and Santa Fe, Union Pacific and Canadian Pacific, all sound investments, paying good dividends and surely going higher.

We have information that Loew's Theatre Corporation will make a good advance very soon. They are in a much better financial condition and it is rumored before the year is over they will go on a dividend basis.

The sugars are particularly attractive. Cuban American making a new high today, 27 1/2. With the possibility of a shortage in sugar, Cuban American, Punta and American sugar look bargains.

The motor stocks and tires, as stated in our last letter, should be carefully bought. Will let you know when it is time to purchase them. Under present conditions there seems to be but one market—defective. Sound securities with attractive yields are bargains on reaction from copper levels and it looks as though the market was preparing for a good upward swing. Practically everything has been deflated except here and there on its way.

While this final liquidation may occasionally call a halt, the forward trend is considered economically irreversible and we believe the trend of the market is strongly upward.

WHAT WILL MONDAY SHOW?

Latest Progress of the Knox Hospital Drive and Some Observations Which Deserve Careful Thought.

This picture represents a class of citizens in real life who are willing to lay aside their own personal opinions as to how community enterprises should be launched and join wholeheartedly into the parade which will draw up before a bigger, finer, more efficient and more adequate building for the Knox County General Hospital. It represents a type of public-spirited citizen who has a sufficient breadth of view to disregard any personal feelings of prejudice that might tighten his purse strings or sour his viewpoint, and who has a discernment of mind which permits him to visualize a better Rockland, a better Knox county and manifold advantages accruing from a humanitarian project of this kind. These persons enter into everything that goes to make up the ideal community by giving their sincere cooperation. They have recognized the necessity of a bigger community hospital and they have gone after it with a generosity of mind and a willingness of temperament which has brought the goal within sight.

This is the last day of the campaign and—now is the time for all good men and true to come to the aid of their hospital.

Every reader of this paper should get in on this worthwhile parade, whether he or she has a quarter to give or $100. However small it might be necessary for some of the contributions to be, the attainment of success in this campaign now hinges upon the vim that is put behind this last day's spurt to the tape.

During the final luncheon meeting of the second week of the hospital campaign which took place yesterday in the Universalist vestry, Chairman S. T. Kimball said in part:

"During the course of this drive three points have been uppermost in my mind—the worthiness of the cause, the earnestness with which the workers have carried out their plans and the receipt of subscriptions from the sum-

Houlton, Maine, Aug. 2.—Col. Frank M. Hume, commander of the 103rd Infantry, Yankee Division, in the World war, probably will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator in the 1924 primaries. Asked to confirm a report Wednesday that he would be a candidate against Senator Bert M. Fernald two years hence, he said he had not fully decided, but probably would be.

BOBBED HAIR BANNED

American Hair Dressers Will No Longer Follow Paris and Vienna.

The "We Are It" banner was awarded to Team 6, W. H. Rhodes is captain, for collecting the highest sum—$123.25. The "So Are We" sign for the highest number of subscriptions went to Team 5, W. C. Ladd, captain, for securing 21 pledges.

The meeting was concluded by a few words from Director Williams to the effect that there was no necessity of feeling discouraged over the progress of the campaign. If certain plans materialize, he said that at the Monday meeting the executive committee would be able to report over the top results.

Bobbed hair was banned by the National Hair Dressers Association in St. Louis Wednesday. The edict, however, states bobbed hair may be tolerated for sport wear, but as a coiffure with evening dress, it will not do.

Charles Kozlay of New York, president of the Association, said that American hair dressers no longer would follow the lead of Paris and Vienna, but would create fashions of their own.

The fashionable fall coiffure of milady will follow the contour of the head in the front and mount high in the back.

Mrs. O. B. Lovejoy has returned from a visit in Kansas City.

The Methodist ladies serve a public dinner Wednesday at the church from 11 to 1.

Clarence Haraden of the Central Ice Co.'s service, slipped on the steps at O. B. Lovejoy's residence Thursday and had two ribs broken by the fall which resulted.

President Bullock of the Deep Sea Fisheries, Inc., arrived yesterday from New York and will stay in this city and vicinity for about a fortnight.

The Elks, with invited friends, are planning their annual invasion of Andrews Island one week from tomorrow. Al. Smith will be chief commissary.

Associate Justice A. M. Spear of Gardiner and C. J. Dunn of Orono were in this city yesterday to hear the case of Elmira Rollins and Alice Carroll vs. Sophie Hansen, all the parties being from Camden. The suit involves the title to one-eighth of the plaintiff's farm at Hosmer's Pond. A more complete account will appear in the next issue of The Courier-Gazette.

Dr. C. F. French has purchased a new Ford coupe of the Knox County Motor Sales Co.

The remains Margaret Harlow of Ash Point, who died in Chelsea, Mass., were brought here Friday and the funeral will be held Monday morning at 9 o'clock from the Catholic church, the interment at Thomaston.

Barnes' Concert Orchestra will furnish the music at Oakland Park tomorrow afternoon. One week from tomorrow there will be a novel attraction at the Park in the form of the Scottish Band of Lewistown, the members of which will appear in kilts and with their bagpipes.

The State shoot, which was held Thursday at Waterville, was attended by Donald P. George and Charles Creighton of Thomaston and J. F. Burgess of this city. The prize money, the 100-targets handicap was divided between Dr. E. W. Paine of Waterville and R. D. Hodson of Lewistown with a score of 95.

The series of standardization tests of the destroyer Brooks, to determine the effect of various loading and trim on speed and horsepower, was completed Thursday by the Navy Department. The trials, according to members of the Naval Board, were the most extensive of this nature ever made in this country or abroad. The destroyer was put through five tests, the maximum overload being about 35 per cent. The results, members of the board said, verified experiments made in the Navy Department with models in tanks and calculations made by naval architects. The data is intended for use in the operation of existing vessels and the improvement of future designs. The destroyer Putnam will be given similar tests in two weeks.

An opportunity will be offered Sunday evening at the First Baptist church to hear Otto Stahl, artist violinist, of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and the Barre Ensemble. Mr. Stahl is spending his vacation at Cecil Copping's cottage, Owl's Head, and leaving for New York next Tuesday evening. Mr. Copping and family are expected to arrive here in their Lexington Minute Man Six Sunday evening. Several years ago, when Mr. Stahl had been substituting in the Strand orchestra, Mr. Copping, who chanced to be living on the same street, was asked to deliver Mr. Stahl's pay check. A number almost directly opposite the house where Mr. Copping was rooming. Reading the house directory at the entrance, he was surprised to find that Mrs. Winifred Fales, Miss Alice Shaw and the Shaw and Wight families were his immediate neighbors. Although Mr. Copping had lived in the house with them when he first went to New York, they had lived in New Jersey for a time and lost touch since returning to the city.

FORTY-THREE DOCTORS

Knox County Medical Society Entertains Distinguished Guests At Wessaweskeag.

Had there been a case of sickness in South Thomaston last night, it would have been well cared for, as there were 43 doctors under one roof in that town.

The occasion was a special meeting of the Knox County Medical Society, with doctors from neighboring counties as special guests. The splendid dinner served by Mrs. L. B. Smith at Wessaweskeag Inn impressed the medical men as a perfect gastronomic occasion but it is hardly possible that the doctors gave it more liberal patronage than scientific rules would justify.

Dr. William Sharpe, neurological surgeon, connected with the Post Graduate Hospital of New York City, and one of the most distinguished members of the medical profession, was the principal speaker. His subject was "Acute Brain and Spinal Cord Injuries." Other speakers were Dr. Langdon T. Shippey of Bath and Dr. Bertram Bryant of Bangor, president and secretary, respectively, of the Maine Medical Association; Dr. Kendall State Health Commissioner; Dr. Kirschner of Bath and Dr. Small of Belfast.

The 43 supper guests were: Rockland—Dr. W. M. Spear, Dr. N. A. Fogg, Dr. C. D. North, Dr. E. B. Silsby, Dr. F. O. Bartlett, Dr. H. W. Frohock, Dr. F. B. Adams, Dr. William Ellingsworth, Dr. A. W. Foss, Dr. H. V. Tweedie, Dr. A. C. Hill, Dr. C. E. Buchanan.

Union—Dr. H. H. Plumer, Dr. L. W. Hadley.

Newcastle—Dr. J. W. Loughlin.

Vinalhaven—Dr. W. F. Lyford.

Thomaston—Dr. B. H. Kellar, Dr. A. P. Heald.

Augusta—Dr. C. F. Kendall, Dr. G. H. Coombs.

Warren—Dr. F. G. Campbell.

Searsport—Dr. M. C. Moulton.

Belfast—Dr. C. H. Stevens, Dr. Elmer Small, Dr. E. L. Stevens.

Bath—Dr. Langdon T. Shippey, Dr. H. F. Morin, Dr. Hannigan, Dr. W. E. Kerschner.

Woolwich—Dr. A. A. Stott.

Bangor—Dr. B. L. Bryant, Dr. John H. Thompson, Dr. L. J. Wright, Dr. W. Merritt Emerson, Dr. C. H. Burgess.

Dr. H. D. McNeil, Dr. A. W. Fellows, Dr. H. M. Goodwin.

Camden—Dr. A. J. Greene, Dr. J. G. Hutchins, Dr. W. F. Hart.

New York City—Dr. William Sharpe.

Tenants' Harbor—Dr. C. H. Leach.

The Christian Science church, corner of Cedar and Brewster streets, is being shingled and other needed repairs will be made.

Miss Gertrude Saville, who recently entered the employ of the Maine Music Co. went today to Portland, where she will attend the Victor school the coming week.

Maurice A. Dennison, who has been keeled up with rheumatism all summer, has resumed his duties with C. E. Bicknell & Son.

J. W. Turner, president, and John H. Thomas, secretary-treasurer, have issued their call for the annual reunion of the Fourth Maine Regiment, Second Maine Battery and Navy Veterans' Association which will be held at 11 o'clock, dinner and supper, Sept. 12. A full attendance of each organization is desired. Members are requested to report at the hall at 10:30 a.m. The business meeting will be held at 11 o'clock. Dinner and supper will be served at the hall.

The hand tub Albert R. Havener, operated under adverse conditions, did not make a very formidable showing Thursday night, but it will take more than the Senator Baxter's throw of 207 feet, Wednesday night, to scare the Rockland Veteran Firemen's Association. The second class hand tub, Kennebec burst its chamber in Bath Wednesday night, while throwing a stream of 197 feet.

Polley, the "Human Fly" climbed Old Fellows block in Belfast. From the Belfast Journal's report it appears that he was half an hour in making the ascent; that he used a rope as he twice did in Rockland, and that he considered it one of his few failures in 15 years. This begins to have a familiar sound.

Sergeant George J. Wood, U. S. A., covers more ground than two ordinary persons on an average day, by virtue of his numerous activities. So nobody begrudges him the new Ford coupe with which he blossomed out this week. For Old Home Week purposes Sergeant Wood will use a good old-fashioned four legged horse, feeling that he can steer him around corners and into nooks where even a Ford cannot penetrate.

George Everett has at his home, Ingraham hill, a large flock of hens, Rhode Island Reds, about 600 in all. He also has several guinea-fowl and small chickens of both breeds. It is very interesting to watch them at feeding time, when they come running from all directions for the food thrown out to them, such a whirling of wings and tumbling over one another. The guinea-fowls will be completely pushed aside by the Reds, but they do not seem to mind. They give their peculiar note, and with heads held high will strut away as much as to say: "We don't care, we don't want your food." It is really amusing to see them. In all probability they get enough to eat, for they look plump and as if they are well fed.

SMALLEY FAMILY
 The Smalley family reunion will be held at Martinsville, with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Pierson, Wednesday, Aug. 16. Dinner will be served at 1 o'clock standard time.

F. H. Pierson, Secretary.

Hon. Elmer S. Bird, formerly Executive Councilor for this district has been asked by Governor Baxter to act as coal administrator for Knox county, and with a full knowledge of the responsibility it may involve has agreed to serve, and will do everything in his power to aid in the emergency.

Cov. Baxter is working day and night to perfect a statewide organization in order that Maine will be in a strategic position to obtain whatever aid the government may be able to offer when the crisis comes.

The standing in the popular girl contest, after last night's counting, showed a new leader, Margaret (Peggy) Ahern, who had 7,130 votes. Her pal, Frances Flanagan, was second, with 6,290. Ruby Conary was third with 5,330, and Annie Lavoie was fourth, with 3,710.

A seaplane will be one of the attractions not down on the original program. It will arrive Tuesday morning and will be moved near the Simsbury White & Co. float at Tillson wharf. The aviator will be Frank Prescott, a former Rockland boy, who was in the aviation service three years Overseas.

The Women's Republican Club voted Thursday night to send a delegation to the annual convention of the organization in their organization, which action met with prompt approval and witty comments from Judge Miller and Senator Thompson. The name of the new organization will be the Rockland Republican Club. A new membership committee was appointed, with Representative W. O. Rogers and Miss Elizabeth Marsh as chairmen of the respective divisions. Each ward will have party workers, charged with the duty of securing members. There will be a meeting of the Republican county committee at the campaign headquarters next Monday. H. Sanborn.

REPUBLICAN ACHIEVEMENTS
 The official statement issued by Senator McCormick of Illinois, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee, serves several useful purposes. One thing, it is an unanswerable presentation of facts which make the election of a congress Republican in both branches an urgent necessity and the loss of either house a serious obstacle to a complete return to normality.

Senator McCormick shows that since the Harding administration came into office the Republican congress has saved the taxpayers at least $7,000,000,000—a sum almost inconceivable only a few years ago, and a huge one, even in these days of billions.

These enormous savings are in contrast to those "sought to be spent under the Wilson administration," in the words of Senator McCormick, and this fact proves the dangers which the country escaped when it elected President Harding.

The national debt has been reduced by $1,000,000,000. A like sum has been cut from the annual expenditures of the government, equal to 25 percent per annum. The annual aggregate of taxation has been reduced another $1,000,000,000. Income taxes have been reduced heavily; scores of annoying and costly "nuisance taxes" have been abolished.

The government now collects only a third per capita as much as the government of Great Britain collects. Senator McCormick emphasizes the fact that no other government in the world has achieved any such record as this.

While some restless citizens are playing into the hands of the interested critics of the administration and of the opponents of the Republican party, by joining in the hue and cry against them, thoughtful voters of both parties will have no difficulty in realizing the tremendous accomplishments of President Harding and the present congress, in which there is ample ammunition for a successful appeal to voters who are fair and honest in giving credit and placing blame where they are due.—Kansas City Journal.

Embroidery as a trimming is one of the outstanding features of the new models in knitted apparel for this fall and where this is not the case fancy Jacquard weaves are much in evidence. Bright colors give a touch to the more somber shades of autumn. Colors, by the way, which seem to be most advocated are tan, brown, gray and some green, while, of course, white, black and navy are always in demand. The straight lines of the chemise type of knitted dress remain practically unchanged; new touches being introduced by means of embroidery in both the Russian and the chain stitch patterns. Designs similar to those used recently on pure silk models are now seen on wool as well as on silk and woolen mixtures. For strictly sports wear much emphasis is being placed on the English cardigan jackets or sweaters that resemble the cardigan striped-rib. These are shown in more brilliant colors and are particularly suitable for wear on the golf course.—Dry Goods Economist.

ASH POINT DOINGS

Gay Times Down Around Otis Villa—Mr. Hurd Has a Birthday

To banish gloom during the foggy nights at Ash Point the guests at Otis Villa have recently given several amusing and enjoyable entertainments. Last week a costume party was arranged by a number of clever Philadelphia college girls and many of their amusing acts thrilled all who were fortunate enough to be present. Last Wednesday was the anniversary of Alvin Hurd's birth, and as a fitting celebration for the birthday of that genial and interesting "native," Mrs. Hurd and family with the help of the guests gave an interesting entertainment.

Mr. Hurd's daughter, Annabelle, and Mrs. W. A. Thomas played a duet as the opening number, and also played other piano selections in a most artistic and skillful manner. Mr. Moody of Rockland and Mr. Condon of New York gave a number of vocal selections. These were followed by Miss Lerner of Philadelphia, whose piano selections displayed amazing technique for an 11-year-old girl.

A most interesting feature of the evening was the dance given by Mrs. Alice Munro, who appeared in a native Scotch costume and danced the Highland Fling with amazing grace. She thrilled the audience and was encircled so enthusiastically that she was forced to dance the Sailor's Hornpipe as an encore. Other features of the evening were card tricks, magic shave and a memory test in which a guest named 50 objects and repeated them in reverse order while blindfolded.

John Albert Tinn aged 7, gave two cute recitations, and Karl Hurd demonstrated that he could free himself from a heavy rope passed between his arms while his hands were securely tied together. At the close of the entertainment refreshments were served and Miss Reeves told fortunes while others danced with rhythmic grace to the strains of jazz from both piano and victrola.

THE COAL PROBLEM

So Urgent That Governor Confers With Dealers—Organization To Be Effected.

When The Courier-Gazette's readers saw in Tuesday's issue that the local coal dealers had been summoned to a conference with Gov. Baxter there was naturally much interest to know of the outcome. The story of the meeting is told thus by the Kennebec Journal.

One hundred wholesale and retail coal dealers and representatives of chambers of commerce and business interests attended a conference in the Senate Chamber Tuesday to discuss the fuel situation.

Gov. Baxter said that the conference was held because he felt that the State was meeting a great crisis.

"The stocks of coal in the State are depleted," said Gov. Baxter. "I believe that this problem can be worked out," he continued, "but we must see how to get coal into the State, how to distribute it and how to pay for it. The answer to this problem is a word which is used a good deal and that word is 'Co-operation.' Everyone must put his shoulder to the wheel."

Gov. Baxter then read telegrams which had passed between himself and Secretary Hoover regarding the situation.

"I intend to appoint a coal committee, an advisory committee," continues Gov. Baxter, "if the State fuel administration is to be responsible for coal coming into Maine we want to know where our authority begins and ends. I know you gentlemen will not think that we want too much authority but we want to know how far this authority extends. The only way to conduct this affair is to take the public into our confidence. I have cancelled all my engagements and I am going to stay right here in this crisis. The public utility companies have coal enough to last but a few weeks."

Judge Benjamin F. Cleaves of Portland, secretary of The Associated Industries of Maine, said that if the situation is as it has been represented to him the trouble is going to be for the household in getting coal. At best in Maine and the northern states, there is going to be a shortage of coal. Judge Cleaves stated that he had been in communication with Morris McDonald, manager of the Maine Central Railroad and President Percy R. Todd of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad and they agreed to give a reduced rate in the transportation of wood provided that the consumer would be obliged to pay an exorbitant price for it. Judge Cleaves thought that the committee should give some attention to the proposition of using wood for fuel and he further stated that he and the organization which he represents stand ready and willing to cooperate in every way.

"This wood idea is a good one, for every cord of wood under cover means so much less coal," said Gov. Baxter.

"During the war when we had a fuel administration there was no coal strike or no railroad strike," continued Gov. Baxter. "When I realize that we may have frost in six weeks in Maine, we must act promptly."

Ex-Gov. Curtis of Portland, a wholesale coal dealer, said that he did not think that the situation was very serious at present. He said that the great trouble would come over the hard coal. He could give no estimate of the amount of coal now on hand in Maine.

W. Fred Spear of South Portland, a coal dealer, thought that the organization should ask the advice of the small retailer who personally knows every one of his customers.

"I am kind of an optimist," said Mr. Spear.

"I thought I was an optimist, so I didn't buy my coal last spring," said Gov. Baxter. "I haven't a shovel in my house and frost is six weeks away."

Ex-Mayor John F. Woodman of Bangor, a coal dealer, thought that all dealers in his city had told their customers when coal comes that they would get a proportionate amount and they will not have their bins filled.

Gov. Baxter stated that he had issued an appeal to the people of Maine to economize in the use of both hard and soft coal. He said that he was going to set up an organization, but that it would not be any more than is necessary.

"I don't want any more governmental supervision than is necessary," said the governor, "as I do not believe in it; but we must conform to the rules laid down by Secretary Hoover and Fuel Distributor Spencer. We want to show the citizens of the State that we are protecting their interests and also the interests of the people who have money invested in the coal business."

Mr. Gerrish of Portland asked all those who favored cooperation with Gov. Baxter and the fuel administration to stand up. Every coal dealer did so.

Robert Bruce MacGregor of Seattle, Wash., soldier of fortune who has spent the greater part of his 48 years drifting around the world looking for 236 former soldiers. In MacGregor's career he found seven different times and jumped into them all. His last war was the one where the Allies won from the Germans. He served with the original Princess Pat regiment which numbered 1093 men in 1914. Eleven of these 1093 are now alive. Two of the eleven can walk. One of them is MacGregor. Before the World War MacGregor fought in the Philippines as his bit in the Spanish-American War. The Boxers started mixing it up in China and he was off to that fracas. The Natal Rebellion cropped up in South Africa. MacGregor made a jump from China and landed in the middle of that war. The Matabele Uprising and the Jamieson Raid followed. Twelve medals, four decorations and wounds which keep him constantly under the doctor's care are his spoils. Despite his disabilities he still fights. Just now he is giving the unemployment problem a battle in his home city, Seattle. Besides that he has adopted and is educating a fifteen year old boy.

The entire issue of The Western Kansas News of June 29 was turned over to the Goodland, Kansas, Post of the American Legion to use as the Post saw fit. T. A. McCants, editor of the News, who is an enthusiastic Legion booster, said that the "American Legion Edition" was a decided success and added that the columns of his paper are always open to whatever the Legion may want to go before the public.

A. H. G. Pokker, whose airplanes were used extensively by the Germans during the war, has come to America and is now co-operating with the American Naval designers, according to American Legion information. Experiments in which Fokker is taking an active part are being made at the government aviation station at Anacostia, D. C.

So many ex-service men in Ohio applied for compensation under the State law that the original appropriation fund was exhausted. In order that all veterans might receive the payments due them the American Legion urged Governor Harry L. Davis to call a special session of the legislature to enact the necessary legislation for additional funds.

"The former service men of America represented by the American Legion have a deep regard in their hearts for France—for there exists between our two great republics the strongest of all bonds, those between men who have fought side by side against a common enemy, and the gift of your wonderful painting 'America' to the American Legion has welded those bonds even stronger," wrote Hanford MacNider, national commander of the Legion in a letter of appreciation to Leon Reni-Mel, painter of the French picture which has just been presented by the French government to the American Legion. The painting is now on exhibition in an Indianapolis art institute and will be placed at Legion headquarters sometime in the near future.

Because it represents the defenders of right and justice, the American Legion was asked to lay the cornerstone of the Rappaport, Neb., county court house, which will cost over a half million dollars.

"There will be no adjournment of Congress until the soldiers' compensation bill has been made a law. It will be taken up and disposed of under a special agreement as soon as the tariff bill is passed," says a statement made by Senator McCumber of North Dakota, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, to Mrs. H. R. Smith of Whitman, Mass. Mrs. Smith, accompanied by scores of American Legionnaires and twenty wounded veterans from the Walter Reed hospital, carried a petition bearing a million signatures to Congress, urging the passage of the bill.

More than 100,000 former soldiers will attend the New York state American Legion convention and soldier reunion to be held in Syracuse, according to Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the Navy and chairman of the convention and reunion committee. General Pershing, Admiral Sims and Admiral Wilson will be among the guests of honor.

The Pinedale, Wyo., American Legion baseball team has its nine regulars and three bench warmers from twelve different States of the Union. When the team takes to the road it does not travel in Pullmans for the very good reason that Pinedale is 106 miles from the nearest railroad.

Gilbert Patten Gets After Discourteous Camden Ball Fans.

Gilbert Patten, the well known Camden author, who cannot disguise his identity with the initials "F. A. N." reads the riot act in the Camden Herald to those spectators who do not treat visiting teams with due respect. He says:

"During the recent game with the Comets of Lewiston, a few raw-mouthed spectators in the vicinity of first and third bases persisted in baiting the visiting players, although the latter were deporting themselves like real sportsmen on the field. This was boorish, and the mass of square Camden fans who watched that game and admired the deportment of our opponents wish to offer apologies to them. That their fast work on the field was admired by the crowd was proven by the number of times that they were given a rousing hand when they pulled off something particularly kippy."

"We'll go further than that. We offer apologies and regrets to a certain Rockland player, a clean, fair-playing young man, who was black-guarded on the Camden field not long ago. The manner in which he was treated by a few roughnecks was shameful, and if it is repeated when he comes here again it is to be hoped that decent Camden people won't stand for it. Somebody ought to button up the mouths of those offenders. Let's show Rockland we've got the edge on them in politeness, as well as in other things."

It is because of sportsmen like Gilbert Patten that Knox county has enjoyed such high class baseball in the past, and the sporting editor of The Courier-Gazette is glad to see him again taking such a pronounced interest in his favorite game. All honor to him for the stand he takes.

Director Crie Organizes Fishermen and Meets One Still Active At 97.

For the past week H. D. Crie, Director of Sea and Shore Fisheries has been canvassing the eastern part of the State and organizing the fishermen in their Protective Association, assisted by Hon. Ellis F. Baker, of Steuben. Mr. Baker was a member of the last Legislature, and worked continuously and energetically to protect the rights of the fishermen. No other member was more interested and enthusiastic than Mr. Baker and his good work will be remembered in the future. He is now giving his time organizing the Protective Association among the fishermen. When they are organized he believes their rights will be protected, their industry improved, and that the fishermen will be known and recognized as one of the most honored and respected classes of laborers in the State. These men should have every encouragement possible for they brave the storms and seas to furnish food on which we live, without the products of the sea and soil it would be impossible to exist.

H. E. Allen, captain of the State patrol boat, Pauline has assisted greatly in the good work among the fishermen. Capt. Allen worked with these men along the Maine coast continuously for a number of years before the United States entered the war, when he enlisted, and continued to patrol the coast winter and summer, until the armistice was signed, when he returned to the State patrol work. He is very popular among the fishermen and his assistance was manifest at every gathering.

Capt. Haskell Woodward and his son Ernest, two State wardens, who are doing excellent work with and among the fishermen in the vicinity of Corea, assisted in advertising the work of the Association and the result of their efforts shown by the enthusiasm expressed at the meeting in Corea, where an association was organized and launched on its mission of assistance, instruction and protection. These two men never tire of assisting and encouraging in every way possible the fishermen among whom they work, and the fishermen in their turn sound the praises of these wardens on every occasion.

The director was well satisfied with the work in the eastern part of the State. At every meeting the fishermen were anxious to organize and cooperate with the Commission in its work. The glad hand was extended to Director Crie by every fisherman he met, thus giving him courage to continue his work with a new zest.

When a man realizes he is backed by a class of men such as these, who are honorable, upright, honest producers of the necessities of life, he knows and feels that he is among friends, such being manifested by the hospitality offered by the many families living in the most beautiful locations of God's green earth among which are Jonesport, Bangor, Corea, South Gouldsboro, Milbridge, Dyer's Bay, South Addison, Winter Harbor and Prospect Harbor, all showing that prosperity and happiness prevail.

If anyone desires a pleasant and happy vacation, visit either of the above mentioned villages and he will find excellent scenery, beautiful homes and be among cordial, upright, honest, God-fearing people, and if the writer is not greatly mistaken, he will go home with praise only, for the community visited, and will in the future class the fisherboys of Maine among his dearest friends.

While in Winter Harbor it was Mr. Crie's pleasure to meet Capt. Merrill Sargent, an honored gentleman, 97 years of age who is still an active, prosperous and happy harvester of the seas. Mr. Sargent has been lobster fishing for 90 years, a record unsurpassed by any other fisherman to the director's knowledge. When visited at his home he had just returned from his mackerel nets with a catch of one and one-half bushels of mackerel. This old gentleman has fished for lobsters the past spring, and intends to fish again this fall as soon as the closed season is over. He is also cutting his hay and his picture was taken while mowing with a hand scythe which he wields as energetically as a man of 30.

When we left his home he was reading the daily paper without glasses, the most wonderful specimen of perfect manhood ever witnessed at that age. Mr. Sargent is respected and honored by all who know him for his square dealings, and those who have had the pleasure of knowing him best say that his life has been filled with activity, that he has always stood for the better things of life, and has been an example of manhood that any citizen of the United States would be glad to accept as a standard to follow.

Before driving away from his home he expressed the wish that he might live and enjoy good health for many years to come.

The good fortune of meeting Mr. Sargent added an unexpected pleasure to the very busy, profitable and pleasant trip.

Woman Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Makes This Offer

Cumberland, Md.—"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I was cured of my troubles between thirteen and fourteen years old and was going to school, because I suffered with pains and could not rest. I did not have any more trouble after that until I was married, then I was troubled in my back while carrying a child and could not do my work until I took the Vegetable Compound. I am strong, do all my washing and ironing and work for seven children and feel fine. I always have an easy time at childbirth and what it did for me it will do for other women. I am willing to answer any woman if she will write asking what it did for me."

Mrs. JOHN HEER, 83 Dilley St., Cumberland, Md.

During girlhood and later during motherhood Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought relief to Mrs. Heer. Her case is but one of many we constantly publish recommending our Vegetable Compound. She was willing to answer your letter. Write to her.

A woven metal lace in large and distinctive designs is the newest note in fall styles, and silver leads gold in popularity with scarcely any copper being shown at all. The same type of lace worn last year, except that in some instances they are wrought in two tones, are used for afternoon and dinner wear, while Chantillys continue in favor for skirt and arm drapes. For houses Irish crochet and fret are used, but the Irish crochet leads in style. It also is the leading lace for lingerie, with Valenciennes close second.

Let him (or her) send his check to this paper and we will see that his contribution not only gets into the general fund but is also credited to whichever town quota he would prefer it to appear in.

World's Shipbuilding Decline—England Most Active—Germany Next.

World shipbuilding is now actually below the pre-war level, following a steady decline beginning in the fall of 1919, according to figures issued by Lloyd's Register of Shipping. The United States' tonnage, the report shows, while slightly above pre-war production, is 95 per cent below the high peak reached in the early part of 1919. England is shown to have the greatest tonnage under way, with Germany second. That the movement has not ceased is shown by the fact that although in April 3,679,622 gross tons were in hand, the July 1 figures show that this world total had declined to 3,235,450.

Stoppages ordered on this work fell more heavily on British shipyards than all the other maritime nations combined, Lloyd's Register reports. As a result, it points out, while the actual British total is nearly 306,600 tons below pre-war figures, the aggregate of the other shipbuilding countries is about 250,000 tons higher than in 1914.

The total work now under way in German shipyards is estimated in this report as 500,000 gross tons, or about 200,000 tons more than any other country except Great Britain. Danish alone is reported to be building 45,000 tons.

Look to the future, says Lloyd's, France and Holland still retain their position as to tonnage, while among the smaller shipbuilding nations it is noted that Japan shows the least decline, her decrease being only 1800 tons from April 1 to July 1.

The world construction now actually under way shows a decline of nearly 5,600,000 gross tons from the peak, which was attained in September, 1919, when 8,048,000 tons were being built, Lloyd's Register states. It is interesting to note that the relative proportions of the world's shipping have changed considerably since the pre-war period. Great Britain, which then had 39 per cent of the total, now has only 58 per cent; the United States has still its 6 per cent as in 1914; and the other countries have increased their share from 25 per cent to 36 per cent.

Returns from all countries of the construction being done under the supervision of Lloyd's Register and intended to be launched with that society show a total of 2,010,912 gross tons, of which 1,470,977 tons represent orders placed in Great Britain. Nearly two-thirds of the sea-going merchant tonnage ordered through Lloyd's by the British, and more than three-fourths of the British total.

Returns of orderings and new work for British shipyards show that the output still continues markedly in excess of the volume of new work. During the three months ended July 1 launchings in the United Kingdom aggregated 148,606 gross tons, compared with work begun on new vessels which will have a total tonnage of only 37,857 tons. A slowing down in output, however, is indicated by a comparison with the returns for the previous quarter, when launchings represented 333,000 tons, as against new work totaling 49,000 tons.

CARELESS MOTORISTS

How They Imperil Life At the Railroad Crossings.

Every thinking person realizes that caution is necessary in driving over railroad crossings. Every person who has mind knows that it is almost suicidal to act about the same there as in other places. For many years those long stretches of iron rails have been used by engines and trains.

Only at intervals are the crossings occupied by trains. When so occupied, the highway traveler must keep back on the way if he desires to keep alive.

The men at the throttle of the locomotive is charged with the duty of getting his train through safely and promptly every day, thousands of travelers are eager to get through on time and if the engineer meets their expectations, he must roll off the miles on schedule time. No stops at crossings.

In the course of his trip that engineer sees a lot of things that worry him. He notices that some drivers of motor cars come pell-mell up the crossing, acting as if they intended to make a dash across ahead of his train.

Some of them make a sudden stop just before they reach the tracks, while others speed across, risking their lives just for the sake of gratifying a desire for one more thrill.

He notices some drivers whose thoughts seem to be centered upon far-off things. They appear not to listen, and it is a sure thing that they do not look both ways for the trains.

On a fair day, the country looks very agreeable to the men on the engine, who wonder that with life presenting so pleasing an aspect, so many automobile drivers seem willing to risk losing their share of it. It is no wonder that the engineer says to his fireman "Why in the name of all that's good and glorious can't these autoists use horse-sense?"

This engineer has heard that five thousand people riding in automobiles were either killed or injured driving across railroad tracks last year. "No wonder the casualty list is a big one!" he exclaims, "And that fellow who just bent his way across came mighty close to getting his name on to the 1922 list!"

Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Pratt of Boston and Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Upham and daughter Elizabeth of Winthrop were in the city yesterday, the Pratts on a fishing trip to Bangor, and the Uphams on their way to New Brunswick. The former Rockland pastor, looking not a day older than when he left this city, was most cordially greeted by many friends during his brief tarry in his former town, and a few of them unfolded a very good tale. It appears that Mr. Pratt is still engaged in the backyard farming business, and with his usual success, except that the European corn-borers destroyed about two-thirds of his crop of golden bantam corn. When he left on his vacation he left behind himself a what a fine idea it would be to put some undamaged ears in his auto, and partake of them at a picnic dinner somewhere in Maine. Every time he shifted from high gear to low, every time he coasted down a long hill, every time that he "stepped on" to ascend a high hill, there ran through his mind one refrain: Wait till I tackle that golden bantam corn.

Crossing the State line at Kittery he brought his car to a halt when a stranger made a motion for him to do so. "It's a fine day," said Mr. Pratt. "What can I do for you?" "You don't happen to have any green corn in your car do you?" was the reply. And then came the crushing truth. The stranger was an inspector, detailed to see that no corn from the infected border was brought across the border. Mr. Pratt passed over the eight ears, trying to remember as he did so that he is a minister of the gospel and must bear his cross cheerfully. But no use. He can't quite forgive the officious inspector who stepped on his corn.

Several members of the Killoch class of the Baptist Sunday School enjoyed a pleasant outing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Everett, Ingham's Hill, Wednesday afternoon and evening. It had been planned to have the supper on the shore, but on account of the fog and dampness, the tables were spread in the house. Vocal and instrumental music by Misses Charlotte Brown and Margaret Everett gave much pleasure to all. Those who did not attend missed a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Pillsbury and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown arrived from Portland today to spend the weekend at Mrs. C. A. Crockett's. This evening they will be guests at a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Glenn A. Lawrence, and Sunday they will be entertained with a shore dinner at Hewett's Island.

Fort Ticonderoga. There was not an unpleasant day in the whole journey, although it did rain some nights, while the tourists were snugly under cover. Essex, N. Y., was the objective of the trip, and two delightful weeks were spent there, visiting Mr. Mather's myriad of relatives and making a great number of side trips by steamer or motor. Forty-two years had ensued since Mr. Mather's last visit, and most of his old friends were sleeping the eternal sleep, but he received a most cordial greeting from their children and grandchildren, some of whom did not hesitate to remind him that they had been "wised" as to the pranks which he used to cut up there during his boyhood days. Some of Mr. Mather's relatives have large farms, and raise blooded cattle, as a great collection of blue ribbon testifies. "We lived on the fat of the land, and enjoyed every minute," said Mr. Mather, "but home and familiar faces certainly do look good."

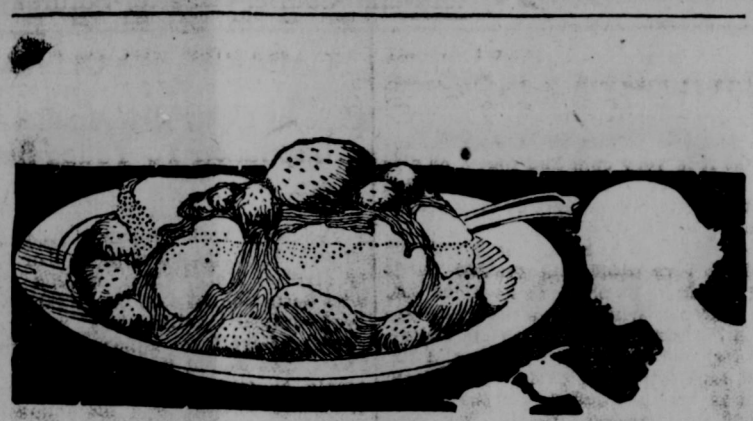

C. W. Clifford Jr., of Bath is here for a few days.

Miss Dorothy Coburn is expected from New York Monday to visit her grandmother, Mrs. F. W. Babbidge, Camden street.

With Fresh Fruit

SERVE Jersey Ice Cream frequently with fresh fruits as they come in season—on a heaping dish of Jersey, or a generous slice from a "Triple-Seal" brick of vanilla cream. Crush a little of the fruit to make a sauce and pour over the ice cream, adding a few whole berries or bits of the fruit.

The fruit flavors make a delicious combination with the smooth richness of the pure Jersey cream. Try one of these different Jersey desserts.

Tie Games In the Twilight League Getting Fashionable—No Scores Last Night.

Next Week's Games
Monday—Legion vs. Snows.
Tuesday—Lime Company vs. Electric.
Wednesday—Rockport vs. Texacos.
Thursday—Electric vs. Legion.
Friday to be announced.

What Percentages Show
The Texacos are near the bottom of the list, for the time being, but statistics show that they are doing well at bat and field, as they lead the League in both divisions. This is the way it figures:

Team Batting
Texacos	256
Electric	251
Lime Co.	244
Rockport	210
Snows	196
Legion	154
Team Fielding
Texacos	917
Electric	914
Rockport	912
Snows	910
Lime Co.	905
Legion	863

The Texacos also have seven in the list of 20 leading batters, which list is headed by Vernon Hart of the Snows with a margin of 31 points. Neil Kenney of the Texacos is a strong second. The standing:

Hart, Snows	425
Kenney, Texacos	394
Burns, Rockport	382
Perry, Electric	382
Sullivan, Legion	370
Colburn, Lime Co.	355
Skinner, Texacos	333
Cottrell, Texacos	333
Dimnick, Texacos	333
Wotton, Lime Co.	324
Killoch, Electric	316
Lauraine, Electric	308
Lamb, Texacos	306
A. Rogers, Lime Co.	298
McLoud, Texacos	292
Tripp, Lime Co.	292
Record, Electric	292
Thornton, Electric	268
M. Foster, Legion	258
I. Cunningham, Texacos	250

The above figures relate to players who have participated in six or more games. Has base stealing become a lost art in the Twilight League? So it would seem, for Mealey is the only player whose achievement requires two figures. Here is how the leaders stand:

Mealey, 12; A. Rogers, 8; McLoud, Snows, Record, 7; Flint, Kenney, Foster, 6; Lauraine, Young, Wotton, 5.

Electric 3, Rockport 3
Generally there's not much satisfaction in the game, but the crowd which saw Thursday night's contest came away convinced that they had seen one of the best games of the season, and that both sides ought to be satisfied with a draw.

Rockport offered a new pitcher by the name of Bolduc, who is said to have done some playing with an amateur team in Portland. He appeared wilder than the proverbial hawk in the first inning, but soon struck his stride and when account of stock was taken at the end of the game it was found that only two hits, both singles, had been made off him, and that there were only two men on the Electric that he had failed to strike out. The fans were much impressed with the modest appearing stranger and hope to see him in future games.

The Rockport team made all of its runs in the first inning, on singles by Daucette and Murray, a double by Burns and a sacrifice fly by Hooper. It began to look as though Killoch had been sent to the well once too often. But in the six innings which followed the only Rockport man to reach a base was Murray, who made a double in the 3d, and reached third on a steal. Killoch's team-mates played errorless ball behind Killoch. Special word is deserved for Henry Alperin, who substituted at second base, with no recent practice, and wearing his vacation togs. He covered lots of ground, and accepted all of his fine chances in splendid style.

Second base was the center of attraction Tuesday night, for Burns the Rockport middle sacker was playing the game of his life. A marvelous one-hand and back-hand catch robbed Alperin of a smashing hit, and on another occasion Burns caught a line drive sideways and so close to the ground that he fell, but still clinging triumphantly to the sphere.

Murray was the only man on either team to make more than one hit. The score:

THE PRATTLER

NCVI

A column like this is all right after a fellow gets warmed up, but somehow these mornings we start hard. Perhaps something is wrong with the mixture. Our inspirational godmother sort of stalls along without getting anywhere for quite a stretch before we are able to step on her and let her out. Poor old girl! She has had some pretty rough going lately and needs a thorough overhauling. The strain of The Pearl of Gooseneck Reach of which she has borne the entire responsibility, has been enough to shake the slats out of any self-respecting godmother. We offer consoling with her while we are getting out a Prattler, sort of a conversation between our conscious and sub-conscious selves.

"Listen, feller," she just said, "don't you think it's about time we wound up this Gooseneck Reach stuff? As the English say, I'm getting rather sick of it, you know, old dear, aren't you?"

"Indeed I am," we told her, "but you must bear in mind that we can't be influenced by our feelings on the subject. You and I are honor bound to see this girl through. We owe it to the people—get this now—we owe it to THE PEOPLE, to have the incidents of this story proceed logically forward, and come to a conclusion only in logical style."

"You know best, boss. I was never much on this moral obligation stuff. In plain language I was simply sick of it, that's all. But if we must, we must. Where were we last time?"

"You got me."

"No, but where were we? If you don't know, who do you expect does?"

"I always depend upon you for those minor matters."

"Oh, do you really old chap? After this you'd better count me out on that. Think I'm going to bother my brain by remembering all that junk? I should say not! Well, go look it up in the files."

"Seems to me you are getting a bit dictatorial—who's running this column you or I?"

"You are, boss."

"All right—don't forget it. Now let's see what the last issue of The Courier-Gazette has to say. Hm! Oh yes! We had the seaplane falling until there was a hissing as from escaping steam. We'd better go back to the island, don't you think?"

"Suits me."

"All right, let's go."

Chapter XXXI.

Cappy Jose continued to stare from the window of his little cottage by the sea out into the inky blackness of the night. Breakers tumbled on the shore with a hollow roar. It was an ominous sound. The air seemed charged with some horrible foreboding of evil. Wind screamed down the old fashioned chimney. Rain beat a sullen and persistent tattoo on the frail roof. Sheets of water were swirled by the wind against the window panes that faced the angry sea. The cat out in the kitchen began to yowl dismally. The timbers of the frail little cottage shook in the ferocity of the gale. A cuckoo cocked his head out of a cuckoo clock and cuckooed twelve times. Then it went back in evidently thinking that this was the time for all good cuckoos to be in bed. The floor boards began to creak. Water began to drip down over the sides of the frail little cottage. The lamp would occasionally stream up the chimney, lighted up in bold outline but for a second was the most curious thing the old readog had ever seen. He tottered to the front piazza in spite of the fact that the rain was slanting violently against his aged chest. He did not feel the rain, even though there were no top buttons on his flannel shirt, which left his aged chest bared to the elements. He did not mind the rain. Not he. His one thought was to get another glimpse of the apparition he had just seen, so that he would know he had not been dreaming.

There was another flash more blinding than the first. There it was, out there still. What could it be? Cappy Jose reached up and pinched his cheek to see if it were really he, Cappy Jose. That is who it appeared to be. The wind began to blow up with a fiercer velocity. Fiercer, fiercer! A shutter flew down from the side of the frail little cottage and blew out to sea. Bewildered, Cappy Jose clung to a piazza rail. Out of the night, there came to his old ears an unmistakable sound. It was a human cry.

Chapter XXXII

The storm threatened every minute to root the little cabin from its foundations and drop Jerry and his radio outfit somewhere off the coast of Spain, but he kept manfully by his receiver, hoping against hope to get a line on his sweetheart, Petunia, whom he suspected had become victim of tragic circumstances. Tuning vigorously with his tuner, he finally thought he had picked up a new sound above the screaming of the wind.

"This is Broadcasting Station H. O. G. Getting any rain down your way? It looks like a shower here. This evening's program will start by a dissertation on 'Rainfall in South America,' by Professor Percy Umbrellaford. The professor is particularly qualified to address you tonight on this interesting subject, having spent the rainy season in South America for the past fifteen years. It is with the greatest of pleasure that I—"

"I don't have any luck at all," muttered Jerry. "If somebody should throw a hunk of coal out of Mars in the general direction of the Earth, I'd get it right on the head."

Chapter XXXIII

The lightning continued to flash along the skyline of the roof of the Lone Tree Club in New York where a beautiful woman was leaning her shapely shoulders against a chimney. It was not a roof garden roof, but just an ordinary one sprinkled with pebbles. Soon a loud hissing sound came to their ears.

(To be continued.)

Question for today: If summer comes, can the flies be far behind?

TO THE GOLDEN WEST

Lester D. Ingerson Tells of His Voyage In the Steamship Nebraska.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Just a few words in regard to my trip to the Golden West. While going to school I read and heard so much about the Golden West that I always wanted to go there. At last I got the chance and signed ship's articles for a trip and return. We left Boston for the west coast via New York.

During our eight days from New York to Panama Canal there was not much to note, only we passed a few ships bound both east and west. We arrived at Colon, Panama, during the early evening and as the locks in the canal close at 4 p. m. we had to anchor until the next morning. At 8 a. m. the canal pilot came aboard and we got under way. We proceeded up the canal to the first lock, passing the old French canal at the first locks, called Gatun Locks.

We were raised 55 feet to the level of Lake Gatun (which is an artificial lake), with the assistance of the donkeys, which are electric cars. We then sailed under our own steam through this lake, passing many islands and the Culebra Cut, where the dredgers are at work all the time. We passed under Pedro Miguel Locks, dropped to Lake Maliflor and proceeded to the last locks which are of the same name as the lakes, then passed Balboa, the American settlement, with Panama City in the background, and thence up the coast to San Pedro, or Los Angeles Harbor. On leaving San Pedro we went up the coast to San Francisco.

This is supposed to be the Golden West, but if it is golden, then give me dear old Rockland, Maine, every time. All that is golden is the name, because it is very cold and foggy, or was on my voyage. We entered the Golden Gates where the scenery is very pretty, if one can see it.

Leaving Frisco bound for Seattle we had the very same cold weather, needing blankets to sleep in at night and an overcoat while on watch. In Seattle the streets are all on an incline, the city being built on a hill, and the cars are nearly all cable cars. From Seattle we proceeded up the Puget Sound to Tacoma, Wash., not very large but a nice little city, also built on a hillside. The chief industry is lumber. In the distance can be seen snow-capped Mt. Tacoma, fifty miles away. Thence we went down the Sound and the coast to the mouth of the Columbia River. The scenery along the river is very beautiful.

Our first stop was Portland, Oregon, later leaving there for Tacoma, the cargo taken on in Portland being Douglas fir. We then proceeded to Astoria, a Finnish town, mostly salmon fishermen. Here we took on salmon and more lumber, leaving for Frisco to take on cargo which comes from all parts of the Orient. From there to San Pedro and finished our cargo, then through the canal back to New York. Our cargo consisted of 1,500,000 feet of lumber (700,000 feet being on deck and the rest in the hold), 20,000 doors for New York and Boston, salmon and Near East Relief goods. At this writing the deck lumber is nearly all discharged.

But when people speak of the Golden West I wish they could see how "golden" it is!

There are some very fine buildings and parks on the coast, also a few of the Pan-American buildings are still standing in Frisco. They were holding the Rose Festival in Portland, one of the big times of every year, Portland is called the Rose City. Nearly everybody has a rose bush in his back yard. While I was in Frisco the Shimmers were having their big celebration.

I am now third officer on the Nebraska. The ship's people are mostly from Maine. The company, formerly the Hamburg-American Line, is now called the United American Lines, Inc.

Do Not Neglect

Your Blood

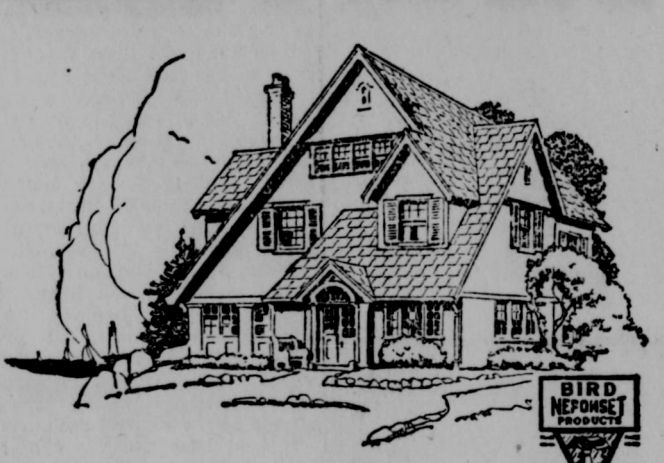

If it is in abnormal condition, the longer you delay taking a good blood medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, the longer it will take and the more difficult it will be for you to get back to "normalcy."

Not only boils, pimples, eruptions, but headaches, nervous spells, "all-gone" feelings, indigestion and loss of appetite are readily traced to impure blood. Thousands date getting on the right road to health from the day they began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Why not try it?

CABARET TO OPERA

Case of Kitty McLaughlin An Inspiration To Young Singers.

The New York Morning Telegraph of July 23 contained a picture of Kitty (Lottie) McLaughlin of this city, who according to Leo A. Marsh, New York dramatic critic has "run the gamut of art from cabaret to grand opera, and should be an inspiring example to struggling young singers."

With the portrait was the following: "For those of the rising generations with aspirations toward achieving success in the arts, the case of Kitty McLaughlin should furnish much inspiration."

"For many years, the young artist has struggled toward her goal—the grand opera stage—and after many vicissitudes that would have discouraged a less stalwart ambition, she is about to arrive. Miss McLaughlin, when she first began the study of vocalism, found desire and realization a vastly different thing and her first experience with the professional stage was gained in the cabarets."

"For several seasons she appeared at Rector's in this after-theatre form of entertainment, but through it all she continued her studies and never lost grip on her desire for an operatic career. At last, she graduated from the ranks of the cabarets and went on to vaudeville and then the concert programs of the big motion picture theatres of Broadway attracted her."

"She completed a week at the Strand last night, and so well has she been received that the management has held her over for one more week. But the big news comes in the fact that she is to sing the role of Micaela in 'Carmen' at the annual Maine Music Festival in October, and after that she will take to the concert stage, pending an opportunity to appear in opera in New York."

"Miss McLaughlin's case is not unusual in the field of music, but it is an excellent example of what hard work, pertinacity and ambition will accomplish in struggling to the top of the artistic ladder."

Valuable Advice To Pedestrians Who Walk In the Road.

The State Highway Commission desires to add its approval to the suggestions made by the American Automobile Association in the following statement:

"Pedestrians along country roads and those who walk in the streets at night in preference to using the sidewalk can contribute materially toward the reduction of automobile accidents by walking on the left side of the road facing oncoming traffic, according to Dan H. Lewis, acting executive chairman of the American Automobile Association."

"Courtesy on the part of the automobile driver demands the use of dimmed lights at night," said Mr. Lewis, "and this factor while it contributes to the safety of passing motorists, makes it exceedingly difficult for the automobile driver to see a pedestrian walking along the edge of the road in the same direction the car is traveling. This difficulty is increased if the pedestrian happens to be wearing dark clothing. The result is that the driver is practically on top of the pedestrian before the latter becomes visible."

"Walking on the left side of the road is just as good for the pedestrian and enables him to see the approaching automobile in time to step aside if the motorist does not see him in time to swerve."

"The pedestrian should remember that the rules of the road require the autoist to keep to the right and should contribute to the factor of safety by keeping to the side of the road which best enables him to escape the oncoming car and especially the occasional speed fiend or 'hivewheel' who cares nothing for consequences and speeds regardless of the rights of others, for it has been truly said that whether you were in the right or not does not matter after you are in the hands of the undertaker."
