Co-operation

Every person who reads the following paragraph and gives it a moment's consideration will, I think, accept it as true:

Our operators are desirous of giving good service and are anxious to avoid errors. Error calls simply make additional work for them; therefore, every instinct of self-interest suggests that they answer calls promptly and correctly.

Mistakes occasionally will occur, some unquestionably resulting from operating errors, others from the calling of wrong numbers by subscribers. Not infrequently some defect in the delicate equipment of the central office is found to be responsible for a fault which the subscriber attributes to the operator.

It is our duty and our desire to strengthen these weak points in our service, whether the weakness be human or mechanical, and we can do it if subscribers do not wait until criticisms become complaints.

May I suggest this form of co-operation:

If there is reasonable doubt of the accuracy of our reports, such as "don't answer," "telephone disconnected," etc., I recommend that the chief reporter be called at once. She is directly in charge of the operating room and responsible for its discipline. Therefore service criticisms should be discussed with her because in the great majority of instances, she is in a position to make prompt investigation and adjustment.

If the trouble is persistent, I want to hear of it and I will be especially grateful to those whose criticisms give dates and facts upon which to base a definite inquiry.

Manager.

PROCLAMATION

In order that a proper observance of November 11th as Armistice Day be made, it is recommended that, as far as possible, business be suspended on that day.

Out of respect to the memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice in the World War, two minutes of silence will be observed by all, beginning at 11 o'clock.

AN APPRECIATION

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

An advertisement in your columns for a tenement brought immediate results and I am much pleased with the tenement I engaged. A few days later a For Sale ad. of a piece of household furniture brought two customers before the ink of the paper was fairly dry, and many more people the following morning. Call 'em off the door-bell battery is all worn out!

THIS TIME LAST YEAR

"Springtime" was presented in Park Theatre under the auspices of the Chapin class. Florence Merritt Lamb headed the cast as "Priscilla."

Miss Adelaide Holmes was appointed chief operator of the central telephone office, succeeding Mrs. Frederick Powers, resigned.

Dr. J. G. Hutchins of Camden was elected president of the Knox County Medical Society.

H. M. Bean well known retired shipbuilder died in Camden.

Representatives-elect and Senators-elect who will serve in the next Legislature had received special invitations to attend the hearing. Those who availed themselves of the opportunity were Representatives Rogers of Rockland, Rowell of South Thomaston, Pendleton of Islesboro and Keene of Belfast and Senator H. C. Buzzell of Waldo county.

Frank H. Ingraham, who is a member of the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation, and a punctual personage to boot, was the first to face the committee, and asked that it appropriate the sum of $400 each for the next two years, this being ordinarily sufficient to cover the per diem and other expenses of the members.

Asked if the Board was called in during the Livermore Falls strike, Mr. Ingraham replied in the negative. "We endeavored to do something," said he, "but found ourselves powerless to act because the International Paper Co. declined our services and the unions said it would be necessary to deal with the matter through the New York offices."

Mr. Ingraham appeared also in behalf of the Knox Memorial building, reading the statement of facts, with which nearly everybody hereabouts is already familiar. It is proposed, he said to erect a replica of "Montpelier" at the corner of Main and Booker streets, Thomaston, on a lot owned by the Chapter. Mr. Ingraham said that the women have been very persevering in the matter. It was on record as favoring an appropriation for some patriotic purpose at each session of Legislature, and naively suggested that the Knox Memorial, perpetuating the memory of the first Secretary of War, should be next in line. The memorial's prospective cost is from $65,000 to $75,000. When it is completed the great grandson of Gen. Knox will turn over to the Chapter relics and treasures of great value, which will be placed where they can be seen and serve as an inspiration.

J. E. Stevens urged an appropriation of $500 for Rockland's Home for Aged Women. The appropriation of $300 hitherto made had seemed sufficient at the time, but there are plans to enlarge the capacity and a waiting list of six. At present the Home shelters four women—all who can be accommodated. The society has an accumulated fund of $12,000. The inmates pay an entrance fee of $100, and nothing thereafter.

Gov. Baxter again called the roll of institutions which had appealed for aid, but nobody responded. "There appears to be a great many absentees this morning," said His Excellency.

At the end of a 5-minute recess, the stalwart form of Senator H. C. Buzzell of Belfast appeared in the doorway.

Speaking in behalf of the Children's Aid, Belfast, Senator Buzzell characterized it as a very deserving institution, and doing splendid work. "It is the most homelike institution I know," said he, "and the children instead of being made to feel like dependents are little independents, and associate with the other children of the city."

The Children's Aid asks the State for $2800. It is caring for 19 at present.

"What I have said about this institution," said Senator Buzzell, "will also apply to the Belfast Home for Aged Women. It is a real home and taken care of admirably. It asks for $300 now, but it is in hopes another year not to have to ask for anything as it has several endowments (including an endowment of $8000 from the Charles Swift estate) which will mature in a short time." The entrance fee is $500, and there are five inmates.

The Waldo County General Hospital, which asks State aid to the amount of $1500 is one of "Belfast's real children that we feel considerably proud of," according to Senator Buzzell. "It does splendid work, especially charitable work," said he, "and has come to be a refuge and haven for those who have been victims of misfortune or accident." The deficit this year will be between $2000 and $3000. Senator Buzzell told of Belfast's deep interest in this institution and of the recent drive which was successful in raising several thousand dollars. A new furnace will be installed, repairs made and the old defective taken care of. The hospital has 16 beds.

President Evans of the Waldo County General Hospital said that the institution has received bequests amounting to $6000 the past year. There is a mortgage of $2000 on the building and a loan of $1900, secured by bonds.

Mrs. Cecil Clay, matron of the hospital, declared that the institution would have been down and out, but for the assistance which it has received from Belfast's loyal women.

Dr. Small of Freedom Academy told of the need of a new heating plant for the school, and asked the State for $3500, which is $1900 more than was received a year ago. The Academy has about 45 students and the tuition is $60 a year.

Knox County General Hospital was represented by its president, Blanchard B. Smith who said that $3500 a year is asked at this time for the reason the hospital is about to increase its scope by the addition of a new wing. He told of the recent drive, at which $50,000 net was raised; of the $32,000 indebtedness to be met; of the estimated cost of the new wing as between $40,000 and $45,000; of the annual deficit, which is between $3000 and $5000, because of the large amount of charity work done. Knox Hospital has 30 beds, but has taken care of 33 patients at one time, the committee learned. The average number of patients is 20. Private rooms bring from $25 to $35 a week, according to the location. The ward rate is $14 a week. President Smith said it is the Association's desire to add six or eight new rooms, and to eventually become a 50 bed institution. At present many applicants are turned away, in the run of a year. The hospital does a great deal of work for summer people, and takes all emergency cases. There is much difficulty just now in obtaining pupil nurses, in spite of the fact that the hospital offers as high as $7 a week. The expenses of the past year have included one item of $800 for additions to the X-ray equipment.

All of the above applications for State aid, with the exception of the Knox Memorial, are on the basis of the amount asked for each of two years.

PARK THEATRE

Elsewhere in this paper will be found a news reader telling of Paramount's big special picture "To Have and to Hold," which is the feature attraction at the Park today and tomorrow. It is the world's most gorgeous romance, living gloriously on the screen—a masterpiece of thrills and beauty. You'll see lovely Betty Compson as the Royal maid who jilts the King's favorite for a commoner. You'll see Bert Lytell as a dashing soldier of fortune who dares a hundred deaths to win her love. You'll see roaring fights on land and sea, a pirate ship blown to atoms, passionate love scenes in thatched huts and royal boudoirs and all the shimmering splendor of a profligate court, wild with revelry and excitement. Patrons are urged to attend the matinee and avoid the night crowds which are sure to be the greatest in the history of the Park.

PRESSED THEIR CLAIMS

Knox and Waldo Institutions Tell the State Budget Committee What They'd Like, and Why.

Rockland was visited Tuesday by a distinguished group of officials, who bent an attentive ear to the wants of certain institutions in Knox and Waldo counties. Cordial and urbane, in the extreme, were these men, and their countenances radiated sympathy—but necessity requires that the State Budget committee must also be flinty hearted on occasions which would have a tendency to increase the tax rate. So it remains to be seen what fate will befall the cherished desires of those who appeared before the committee at the Rockland session.

Heading the budget committee is His Excellency, Hon. Percival P. Baxter, governor of the State, fitted by legislative experience to know the State's wants and determined that the concession shall not be incompatible with the taxpayers' welfare. His associates on the committee are State Treasurer William L. Bonney, State Auditor Elbert D. Hayford, Senator Delmont Emerson of Island Falls, and Representative Frank A. Holley of North Anson, all of whom were present when the hour for Tuesday's meeting in the City Government rooms arrived. A quiet and demure young lady, who appeared not at all abashed by the high sounding figures, acted as stenographer. The governor's private secretary, G. R. Chadbourne, was also a member of the group wielding a pencil with the professional manner rightly belonging to one who used one so long and ably in Maine journalistic circles.

The audience at the start was composed mainly of women—Thomaston women—who were promptly on hand to press the claims of Gen. Knox Chapter, D. A. R., which asks the State to appropriate $25,000 toward the erection of the proposed Knox Memorial Building in Thomaston.

Champions of the other projects came somewhat tardily—in fact it was necessary to send out an S. O. S. call for somebody to act as spokesman for one of the institutions.

Representatives-elect and Senators-elect who will serve in the next Legislature had received special invitations to attend the hearing. Those who availed themselves of the opportunity were Representatives Rogers of Rockland, Rowell of South Thomaston, Pendleton of Islesboro and Keene of Belfast and Senator H. C. BATH NEEDN'T FEAR

Kennebec Bridge Will Not Be Built Above the City.

Hon. Luther T. Maddocks of Boothbay Harbor was the speaker Monday at the weekly dinner of the Bath Rotary Club. Mr. Maddocks is one of the most ardent supporters of the proposed Kennebec bridge proposition and gave a brief outline of the present agitation for it. He mentioned the waste of time lost in getting over the river and stated that it was the burning question with the people living in Lincoln and Knox counties. He hoped that the people of Bath would join in with the proposition and a campaign will probably soon be put on here to help raise funds for the necessary amount of preliminary work.

Mr. Maddocks stated that soundings will probably be made this week of the bottom of the Kennebec in front of the city. The first place to be examined will be opposite City Landing, then opposite The Texas Steamship Co. yard and finally at Winslow's Rocks.

Naturally that much mooted question came up as to whether the removal of the ferries would not tend to make Bath a desolate port in winter on account of the ice, now kept open by the ferries.

Mr. Maddocks declared that, up to now, no one had talked any particular location but said that he did not think Bath people need fear that the bridge would be built above the city as the matter of approaches was fully as great a consideration as the length of the bridge and other matters. He said that the Bridge Association had never taken up the matter of location but would leave engineers free to make a report of what they found to be the best.

Morse High will not play in Rockland Armistice Day due to a disagreement with officials and the amount of the guarantee, but arrangements were made to have the fast Brewer High team to play here Saturday. Rockland goes to Brewer the 18th. This team held Bangor to one touchdown in each of the games played, so real football is assured in the coming battle.

KING WITLAF'S DRINKING HORN

Witlaf, a king of the Saxons,
Ere yet his last day breathed,
To the merry monks of Croyland
His drinking horn bequeathed—
That, whenever they sat at their revels,
And drank from the golden bowl,
They might remember the donor,
And breathe a prayer for his soul.

So sat they once at Christmas,
And bade the goblet pass;
In their beards the red wine glistened
Like dew-drops in the grass.

They drank to the soul of Witlaf,
They drank to Christ the Lord,
And to each of the Twelve Apostles,
Who had preached his holy word.

They drank to the Saints and Martyrs
Of the dismal days of yore,
And as soon as the feast was o'er
They remembered one Saint more.

And the reader dreamed from the pulpit,
Like the murmur of many bees,
The legend of good Saint Guthlac,
And Saint Basil's homilies:

Till the great bells of the convent,
From their prison in the tower,
Guthlac and Bartholomew,
Proclaimed the midnight hour.

And the Yule-log cracked in the chimney,
And the Abbots bowed his head,
And the flames flared and flickered,
But the Abbots was stark and dead.

Yet still in his pallid fingers
He clutched the golden bowl,
In which a pearl dissolving,
Had sunk and dissolved his soul.

But not for this their revels
The jovial monks forbore,
For they cried, "Fill high the goblet!
We must drink to one Saint more!"

HAVE FAITH IN GOD:—And Jesus said unto him, Go thy way; thy faith hath made thee whole. And immediately he received his sight, and followed Jesus in the way.—Mark 10:52.

What has been witnessed in other "off years" of this country's political history was repeated in Tuesday's election, when the party in power found itself subjected to a severe mauling. It was not altogether unexpected. The condition of unrest attendant upon the war has by no means subsided and the party in power naturally comes to be held responsible for whatever policies are sought to be applied to the great work of reconstruction. The tariff, the Volstead act and minor contributing causes fostered by this spirit of uneasiness, allied to a reaction from the tremendous avalanche that two years ago overwhelmed Wilsonism, serve to explain in general the victory registered this week by the Democrats—and yet so curiously mixed with victories here and there is the defeat of such strong Democrats as Senators Hitchcock in Nebraska and Pomerene in Ohio, that there is a good deal of ground to be regarded with satisfaction on the part of the Republicans. For while their opponents made large gains in Congress, the control of both chambers remains safely in Republican hands, Massachusetts returns Henry Cabot Lodge in spite of the bitter fight waged against him, and Ohio, confidently claimed by the Democrats, gives its endorsement to President Harding and his administration. It was not altogether a victory upon one side, as our friends of the opposition would comfortably like to have understood.

We will not lose sight of what Armistice Day stands for. How could it be possible to do so, when our minds cast back to the glorious day in the world's history, for which it stands? While the young defenders of the Nation live there will not be needed reminders of who they are and what they meant to this country and the world in those momentous days of peril.

The American Red Cross is forever on the job, serving steadily in those communities organized for its work—as Rockland is—and ready at a moment's notice to respond to the call of great emergencies, the latest instance of which is supplied by the horrors of war in Asia Minor. During the World War—how vividly it all comes back to us—the Red Cross was the world's great mother, into whose lap we poured our money unselfishly and without stint; but with the passing of those days of stress the interest has to a considerable, and under all circumstances natural, degree declined. And yet the need of this great organized agency of mercy never was more urgently felt. Beginning on Armistice Day the entire country will enter upon the annual roll-call, re-enlisting old members and engaging new, the small fee of $1 being all that is asked for that purpose. The Rockland Chapter will hold its roll-call the last Sunday in November. The present list of nearly 1000 it is safe to count upon for renewal, but with the local work constantly expanding, under direction of the trained nurse, it should be possible to reckon upon a considerable enlargement of that membership.

The series of telephone advertisements appearing in The Courier-Gazette Thursday and Saturday issues of the preceding week and each issue of this present week are addressed to every person using the telephone and so weighted with advice and instruction as that their careful reading is to be earnestly recommended. There are 14,000,000 telephones in use in the United States and we fancy that Knox County will fully measure up to the average community in point of instruments in active daily employment here. What the telephone is and how it can be rendered of the highest possible efficiency is not fully understood even by the great body of people to whom it is almost an hourly necessity. It is a fine piece of public service that the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. is doing through the medium of these instructive advertisements.

We never drive over the Old County Road, in those parts of it that skirt the open limerock quarries, without an accession of carefulness in driving and a swift thought of what might be the consequence if one of the many complications incidental to these days of the automobile should unhappily occur in the vicinity of those spots where the road closely approaches a quarry's edge and the protection is a rail or low wall of rock, adequate enough in the old horse and carriage days but of doubtful value against the great weight of a motor car. If the city were to protect those points of danger with heavy rails solidly set into the rock the act should be regarded as a wise piece of insurance.

TIDAL WAVE, OR EARTHQUAKE?

Some Sort of Political Upheaval Struck the Country Tuesday—Senate Remains Republican But House In Doubt—Lodge's Narrow Escape—Ohio Loyal to President Harding.

Democratic victories, not wholly unexpected, prevailed throughout the country in Tuesday's elections. With 26 districts yet to be heard from the Republicans retain control of the House, being assured of 209 seats, while the Democrats are positive of 198. The balance of power will be determined by those districts in which the results are so close that the winners have not yet been determined. The Democrats had gained 67 seats at last accounts, and the Republicans had failed to unseat any Democrat who is now serving.

The Senatorial elections resulted in 11 victories for the Republicans and 19 for the Democrats. Five contests still in doubt, but with the Democrats leading in all of them, are in the States of Montana, Utah, New Mexico, West Virginia and Washington.

Among the Republican stalwarts who went down to defeat on additional returns were Senators Kellogg of Minnesota, beaten by Hendrik Shipstead, farmer-laborer; Senator Sutherland of West Virginia and Senator Townsend of Michigan, the latter losing to former Gov. Woodbridge N. Ferris, the first Democratic senator to be elected from Michigan in 70 years. Also definitely defeated by Senator Kendrick, Democrat, was Representative Mondell of Wyoming, Republican floor leader, who aspired to the senate.

If the election was supposed to register approval or disapproval of the Harding administration, it was emphatically the latter, yet by a strange contradiction Ohio, the President's own State, believed for weeks to be in Democratic clutches, elected Fess, Republican, to the Senate, and defeated Pomerene, who was regarded as a strong probability for the next Democratic presidential nomination. Another national figure in the Democratic ranks who went down to defeat was Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska.

Here in New England interest centered strongly on the result of the Senatorial election in Massachusetts.

On the basis of early returns Senator Lodge appeared to be elected by a substantial majority. His margin dwindled as the later figures came in, and after the Boston result had been announced he was running nearly 15,000 behind. The strongly Republican localities gradually wiped out Gaston's lead, and the evening papers of yesterday announced that Lodge's majority was 1995. The Associated Press tabulation was found to contain a transposition, and Lodge's majority instead of being less than 2,000 was 8,425. Cox, the Republican candidate for governor, was re-elected by nearly 57,000.

Results Elsewhere

In New York State a tremendous tidal wave elected Alfred E. Smith, Democrat, to the gubernatorial chair by a plurality of 418,000. Copeland, Democrat, defeated Calder, Republican, for the U. S. Senate by 275,000. Smith's followers immediately proclaimed him as the next President. The neighboring State of New Jersey also registered a strong Democratic victory. Senator Frelinghuysen being defeated by Gov. Edwards.

New Hampshire showed a reversal of form, going Democratic for the second time since 1876. Connecticut was a disappointment to the Democrats, who had been stoutly claiming the State for weeks. Substantial Republican majorities were given. Vermont also remained loyal to the party.

Clifford Pinchot was elected governor of Pennsylvania by 257,000. Albert J. Beveridge was defeated for Senator in Indiana by about 30,000.

Congressman Andrew Volstead, father of the prohibition act, apparently was defeated for congress in Mississippi by Rev. O. J. Kavalie, who, however, has declared he is "drier" than Volstead.

Senator Johnson was re-elected in California.

Reed, Democrat, who was opposed by ex-President Wilson, was elected U. S. Senator from Missouri.

Speaker Gillette was re-elected.

The only woman in Congress, Miss Alice Robertson of Oklahoma, was defeated by her Democratic opponent.

The Republicans failed to break the Solid South, and lost the only Congressional district which they have carried.

Republicans carried Indiana, although Beveridge was defeated for the Senate.

The Volstead act, the tariff bill and the general unrest are cited as the chief causes of the political revolution.

Have you ever thought of your local merchants as business advisers? Have you ever realized that when you buy of them you get the benefit of their friendship and advice—that oftentimes they can and will protect your purchases by telling you plain facts about merchandise?

When you buy out of town you usually deal with strangers who are interested chiefly in getting your money. True, they give you something for it; but if they would talk it over with you as freely as your local dealer does, there are many times when your purchase would be differently and more economically made.

Just think it over and give your local dealer a chance to be your friend. He'll thank you for the opportunity, and you will profit by it.

FEED THE BIRDS

And Make Them Stay With us all Through the Winter.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—The chickadees are on investigating tours apparently, so it behooves us to prepare feeding places for them and other winter birds, if we want their delightful company and beneficial work. It is important to begin feeding early so that the birds may form a habit of coming to the food before winter comes.

Chickadees, nuthatches, and woodpeckers are attracted by the animal food, and juncos, and tree sparrows acquire a taste for it during deep snows, when their usual food is buried. Unsalted bones with meat, fat, or marrow attached, beef or mutton tallow, fat, or suet, may be used for this purpose, the last mentioned will give the needed animal heat on which birds must rely during the cold stormy weather.

Bones or suet should be wound on branches firmly with string, or wrapped in wire netting, so that it cannot be carried away bodily—for birds have a fondness for carrying and hiding even bits of food for future use. Seeds and crumbs may be thrown upon the ground or snow, or feed boxes or shelves may be attached to window sills and give great pleasure to the family especially the children. The most satisfactory shelf is one bound round with a narrow cleat and covered with burlap to prevent the seeds and crumbs from blowing off. A small evergreen tree on which various food materials are hung, may be attached to the shelf and thus have a "Birds' Christmas Tree."

Birds show decided preferences for food, so it is wise to provide varieties. Jays prefer corn and nuts, although they will eat bread. Grosbeaks like apples and crossbills are said to be fond of salt pork. They shall have an opportunity to indulge their fondness this winter if they will stay here, instead of making one ceremonious call, as has been their usual custom.

Seeds, crumbs, and cracked nuts prove attractive to many birds and it is interesting to feed various kinds as an experiment.

No one can tell what winter birds we may see. My winter observations are mostly from the house and I usually see chickadees, tree sparrows, snow buntings, bluejays, shrikes, redpolls, crossbills, pine grosbeaks, evening grosbeaks and crows.

CHISHOLM BROS.

ROCKLAND

BORAH & BAXTER

Progressive Ticket That Will Sweep the Country in 1924, Correspondent Says.

Editor of the Courier-Gazette:—

"Several months ago I heard a leading Republican of Union say in effect: 'The success of the Republican party in the future depends largely on the recognition of the Progressives.'"

Since then the Progressives in the primaries have won in quite a number of States, including Pennsylvania, Indiana, California, Wisconsin, Nebraska, and several other States.

I believe the majority of Maine Republicans, Governor Baxter included, are Progressives. Evidently Wall street has a hold on some of the politicians of both parties in Maine. What this country needs today is a Theodore Roosevelt to make secure the victories achieved along the lines of democracy during the past 25 years, and to shake the big stick at the coal barons, the railroad kings and labor unions and bring them to terms when they disagree and trample on the people's rights.

I think Roosevelt did more to establish the direct primary throughout the Nation than other statesman. In 1912 the direct primary was the issue at the Republican State convention of New York. Roosevelt led the forces of democracy and the Old Guard (Wall street) those of autocracy. In the early part of the debate the Wall street politicians were in the ascendancy and for awhile it looked as if the resolution for the direct primary would be lost. Roosevelt was the last speaker to take the floor, and the way he poured out the vials of righteous wrath on the heads of the Old Guard was a caution. He completely refuted every argument made by his opponents and the direct primary resolution was adopted by a good majority.

Wall street was defeated but not conquered. At the polls the Old Guard joined drives with the Democrats and the Republican candidate for governor was defeated. The Wall street element of the Democrat party played the same trick when Bryan was nominated in 1896, when they supported the Republican candidate and Bryan was defeated as the result.

The reason why Wall street is so bitterly opposed to the direct primary is because it possesses more democracy than they can control. It can easily control the old convention system with its handful of delegates but cannot control the direct primary with its hundreds of thousands of voters when the voters decide to have a voice in nominating their candidates. A few years ago the progressive Democrats of Idaho nominated a State ticket consisting largely of farmers and laborers. Then the Wall street element of the Democrat party supported the Republicans and the result was the Progressives were defeated. When the Legislature met the enemies of democracy had control and abolished the direct primary law. Idaho was the first, and let us hope the last State to repeal the direct primary.

Early in the season the Progressives of Idaho held a State convention and organized and adopted a platform demanding a statewide primary law, and limiting private ownership of public utilities to the end that monopoly might be broken. The convention nominated William Borah for President in 1924. In his public speeches Senator Borah advocates the registration of the primary law. At the next National Republican convention, if the Republicans of the east and of the west unite their forces and nominate Senator Borah for President and Governor Baxter for vice president, they will sweep the country like a whirlwind from the Atlantic to the Pacific. But if they should fail to recognize the Progressives the history of 1912 will repeat itself, with a difference. In 1912 the farmer and laborer vote was divided among the several parties, but if the Progressives should nominate an independent presidential candidate he would get the united support of the farmers and laborers and win.

V. F. Studley and Fred Fernald, left yesterday morning for Jonesport with a determination not to return empty-handed. Mr. Studley attributes his failure to get the goods in the Moosehead woods to a lack of snow and a preponderance of dead leaves.

Howard Gray, who spends his summers in Friendship, is playing a brilliant game as one of the ends of the Princeton football team this season, and will probably have a further chance to shine in the approaching Harvard game.

The Ingraham Hill School Improvement League is to serve an Armistice Day supper at the home of Mrs. G. S. Everett Friday evening, and present an entertainment at the chapel Nov. 16.

There was quite a bit of excitement the other day when a man was seen pursuing a colored girl with a shotgun. It developed that the gun was a harmless fake, but the victim of the hoax hasn't fully recovered from her fright yet.

The benefits of Rockland's White Way are by no means confined to Main street. According to Capt. David L. Haskell of the steamer Westport the reflection on the clouds Tuesday night was so strong that it illuminated North Haven Thoroughfare, and the land could be seen plainly by those on board the steamerboat.

The peculiar manner of ringing displayed by the Baptist church bell of late is not caused by the installation of a toller, as was generally suspected but is due to the loss of the heavy iron counterweights, giving the bell no chance to breathe between strokes. The result much resembles the clamor of an old fashioned fire alarm and at first produced almost the same results. This bell is now a more or less distant relative of Independence Bell, for the accident occurred during the celebration of the Salvation Army drive victory.

Rockland is going to sit up and take official notice of Armistice Day.

Saturday is an awkward day for the closing of barber shops by a number of the local tonorialists are going to observe Armistice Day, regardless. Stepping from a trolley car in front of her home near Oakland Tuesday night Mrs. Fred Collamore had the misfortune to sprain her right ankle badly. She suffered much pain until medical treatment was given. The step from the car to the ground is a very long one at the place where the accident occurred and Mrs. Collamore lost her balance.

W. G. Robinson of Gardiner was in the city Tuesday on business. The former foreman of the Warren shoe shop is now one of Gardiner's prosperous merchants, applying himself so closely that he is obliged to forego his pursuit of baseball and football, two sports to which he is deeply devoted. His interest in them is now lessened, however.

Would you enjoy going on a pilgrimage to the W. C. T. U. Shrines in Maine, and then take a trip to the World's Convention in Philadelphia? If so, you are invited to join the official party which leaves Rockland tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the First Baptist vestry. Tickets will be on sale, guide maps will be distributed, newspapers will supply the latest papers and refreshments will be served enroute. This is your chance to enjoy a personally conducted tour in comfortable parlor cars with congenial company. Proceeds of tickets goes to the W. C. T. U. State Budget. Don't miss your train!

Capt. F. L. Green arrived the first of the week for a sojourn here of 10 days between trips on the patrol 96-foot boat owned by A. G. Duke, of which he is the skipper. He has just returned from a trip along most of the Atlantic coast and at the termination of his stay here, will leave for Southern waters. Mr. Duke is a tobacco man and the progenitor of the famous "Duke's Mixture." "Cap" Green has already been up to his old tricks and came in Tuesday with his full quota for the day of partridges. He has not been able to get at the ducks yet, but in this view has sent over his "sneak-boat," the mysterious craft that was exploited in the Prattier column of this paper last winter.

Philip Doyen of Portland was in the city Tuesday having come down to Waldoboro to superintend the shipment of lumber from the wrecked schooner Melissa Trask. The lumber will be taken to Lynn, Mass.

What appears much like a battery of French 75's recently installed in what used to be Lindsey's orchard on Lindsey street, is nothing that should cause the neighborhood any particular concern, it being nothing more alarming than a storage place for large water pipes used by the Camden & Rockland Water Company.

Capt. Smith of the Salvation Army has received a box containing half a dozen handsome head necklaces, the handiwork of an inmate of the State institution, accompanied by a note the sale of these necklaces sent you today to the $2.50 you received for the hen, and oblige A. Prisoner at Thomaston." Capt. Smith has the attractive articles for sale.

Reuben Rich, who has been spending a week's vacation in Bath, has rejoined the staff of the F. W. Farrell Co. The weather was not propitious for him to indulge in his favorite sport duck hunting, but he didn't come home empty handed, as an inspection of his game bag revealed two ducks and two crows. At last accounts the proprietor of the Bee Hive was negotiating for the latter with a view to making some Republican pies.

The first polo game of the season at the Arcade will be played Monday night, between the two best teams that can be selected from among the Rockland "apple-chasers." The line-ups will appear in Saturday's issue, and they will sure look good to those who remember the fascinating sport of last season. There will be roller skating tonight, but none on Saturday night, owing to the fact that the rink is leased for the Armistice ball.

The southern window of Sheldon's drug store is devoted to the display of S. E. Wells' violins, or rather as many as the window will contain, for this energetic violin maker of Rockland has produced 26 violins, 46 Kaiser fiddles and many other stringed instruments since he began this trade 23 years ago. Mr. Wells says 200 hours work are necessary for the completion of a violin. The materials with which his instruments are made come from Russia, Italy and Germany.

Thirty-five members of Golden Rod Chapter and five members from Grace Chapter accepted the invitation of Lakewood Chapter of Jefferson to meet with them on the evening of their inspection. A wonderful supper of chicken pie, beans, salads, cakes and pies of every description was thoroughly enjoyed by the hungry visitors, after their long ride. The work by the officers was exemplified in an excellent manner, and interesting instructions were given by Mrs. Davis, D. D. G. M. of Boothbay Harbor; also by A. H. Newbert of Rockland. The Rockland "Stars" arrived home about 12 o'clock, much pleased with their visit to Lakewood Chapter.

Does our responsibility end when we have secured enough food, clothes and fuel to keep ourselves warm and comfortable for the winter? If so what would become of the less fortunate ones, who on account of ill health or age are unable to provide for themselves, and the children who go to school with scant clothing in the winter and whose health is thus impaired so that when they are old enough to work they are handicapped by being unfit? There are those who are willing to work if they may have the things to work with. Gifts of clothing, bedding, material with which to make clothes are all needed and welcome. Christmas is coming, and after that a long winter season, and there are many yet to be clothed and fed. If you have anything to give to help out, call Miss Dorothy Snow (158) and leave your address and goods will be called for or leave the articles at the City Store, Spring street, between 4 and 6 on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

LOCAL RED CROSS

Will Hold Its Annual Roll Call on Sunday Afternoon, Nov. 26.

The afternoon of Sunday, Nov. 26, was set aside for the annual roll-call and officers and committees elected as the principal business of the executive board and nursing committee of the local Red Cross at the annual meeting Tuesday evening. A. Ross Weeks was made general chairman of the roll call, thus assuring its success. The canvassing force will consist of from 10 to 20 girls from each of the city's churches who will call on each Red Cross member and invite renewal. The funds so acquired are needed to carry through the nursing program for the winter and naturally the demand for the services of the nurse is greater during the cold months.

It should be borne in mind that the Red Cross is not merely a war-time organization, but functions in peacetime as well. The local nurse, Miss Maud A. Reilly, has done a fine service in the city and is available for any call at any time. The national organization stands ready with efficient and powerful relief for any disaster as demonstrated recently at Smyrna.

Miss Sally Moses of Boston, Field Secretary, gave a lively survey of the affairs of the association in the State and deplored the failure of some of the smaller branches in eastern Maine. Conferences and general cooperation serve to keep the interest glowing brightly in the other sections and the nursing service has come to be very important. The Brunswick-Topsham district, smaller than Rockland's, employs three nurses. Miss Moses is a live wire and her visits in this city have been most valuable to the work.

At this meeting the annual election of officers of the local chapter was held, those serving the past being re-elected as follows: Executive Board—A. W. Gregory, chairman, W. O. Fuller, vice chairman, H. A. Buffum, Dr. A. W. Foss, C. H. Duff, H. N. McDougall, George E. Wood, H. B. Bird, Harrison P. MacAlman.

The fire alarm furnished an informal concert last night, due to crossed wires.

Edward J. Johnson of Rockland and Lena B. Robbins of Stonington have filed intentions of marriage.

All patriotic bodies of the city are invited to attend Armistice Day services at the Legion hall Armistice Day, Saturday.

Can you spare two minutes Saturday? If so please remain silent for the two minutes directly following 11 a. m., as an Armistice Day tribute.

Something decidedly different in the line of window decoration is to be found at the E. H. Erie Co. store where a large stuffed dog with tin cans tied to his tail is apparently in full flight, demonstrating the November Columbia records.

Golden Rod Chapter holds its regular meeting Friday evening at 7:30. There will be work. Members of other chapters who are now living in the city are invited to meet with it. Supper will be served at 6 o'clock, with Mrs. Annie Collamore as chairman. Those not solicited please furnish pie or cake.

At the regular meeting of Rockland Encampment last evening 27 applications for membership were received; 23 of them were the result of a visit to St. George Lodge, I. O. O. F., Tuesday night by a delegation of Rockland Patriarchs with John A. Karl, F. C. P., in charge. The camp has made a good start in its drive for 100 members this winter. There will be a drill meeting Friday at 7 p. m. Every member should attend.

Limerock Valley Pomona Grange meets with Pleasant Valley Saturday. The program for evening session follows: Opening song, "The Grange is Marching On" grange; recitation, Mrs. Mary Gardner; vocal solo, Raymond Anderson; recitation, Adella F. Veazie; question for general discussion, led by Fred A. Blackington: "In which way would the United States be more benefited, by demanding immediate payment of all foreign countries indebted to her, or receiving partial payments?" vocal solo, Marie Brown; recitation, Mrs. Fasset; vocal solo, Robert McIntosh; "What Armistice Day" means and how it should be celebrated," Frank B. Miller; singing of patriotic songs by the grange.

CIRCULATION 5986

The net average circulation of The Courier-Gazette for the six months ending Oct. 1, 1922, was 5986 copies each issue. This is exclusive of copies unsold or sent to advertisers, etc., and represents subscribers who value the paper, and pay for it, the class of readers that the careful advertiser desires to reach. There are few papers of its class published in New England with circulations so large as this, and yet the advertising rates of The Courier-Gazette are much lower than are the rates of most papers giving advertisers similar quality and quantity of publicity—another point that the careful advertiser bears in mind.

RED CROSS HEALS WOUNDS OF WAR

25,000 Disabled Ex-Service Men in Hospitals After Four Years of Peace.

CHAPTERS' FIELD OF SERVICE

Every Veteran Needing Help Gets Individual Attention of Sympathetic Workers.

When on November 11 the world halts to observe the fourth anniversary of Armistice Day, and the American Red Cross inaugurates its Annual Roll Call for the enrollment of the 1923 membership, the people of the United States may well pause to think of the unparalleled contribution to the cause of peace made by our Army and Navy in the World War. The glory of it is a common tradition; but the wounds of war remain. They are not healed in a day, in a year, nor in four years. And on Armistice Day there will be under treatment in Government hospitals over 25,000 ex-service men, broken physically by wounds, exposure, nervous strain and exhaustion incident to their service in the war.

The Government without stint is undertaking to furnish these disabled men with the compensation and medical care to which they are entitled, yet their special care is a duty of the Red Cross. Why? Because the Government cannot handle the cases of ex-service men individually; it must handle them in bulk under a standardized policy. The Government has neither the authority, the funds or the equipment for working out the problem of the individual man. There is where the American Red Cross finds its greatest field for service, aiding through its very active Chapters in reaching the disabled man with immediate practical help, assisting his family while his claim is emerging from the process of adjustment, furnishing articles of comfort, funds to tide over the difficult periods, the friendly touch of personal encouragement, helpful recreation and worry-dispelling amusement. It is the warm hand of sympathy and understanding which the American Red Cross extends to the majority of these disabled ex-service men, some of them friendless in the whirl of life, thousands of them with wives and children dependent upon them, and hundreds of them frequently helpless in the face of grim necessity.

2,679 Chapters Aiding Veterans
In this work, upon whose accomplishment the American Red Cross is urging a record-breaking enrollment in the Roll Call which opens on Armistice Day and closes with Thanksgiving Day, 2,679 Chapters in all parts of the country are engaged. This is 350 more than were working for ex-service men last year when approximately $10,000,000 was expended by the National Organization and the Chapters working together in harmonious unity. For the current fiscal year National Headquarters appropriated $3,030,622.90, an increase of $365,569.84 over the amount spent for the work among ex-service men in the year ended June 30 last. Since it is estimated that the Chapters will expend close to $7,000,000 from their own funds, the grand total of Red Cross expenditures for this single work is expected again to reach the $10,000,000 mark by June 30, 1923.

Hospital and District Office Work
During the fiscal year a total of over 1,000 persons, paid and volunteer, has been engaged in Red Cross duty in hospitals or district offices of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau. An average of 8,000 new cases requires definite and particular attention each month. The demand for Chapter-made articles for hospital patients is constant.

During last year Service Claims and Information Service at National Headquarters handled 37,200 compensation and insurance claims, 24,560 allotment and allowance cases, and 9,700 miscellaneous claims. Since February, 1919, it has disposed of 64,174 allotment checks payable to veterans which the Post Office Department reported undeliverable.

The Chapter is the unit of the Red Cross organization which is accessible to every disabled veteran or his family. Between July 1, 1921, and June 30, 1922, the Chapters had reported 1,657,079 instances of service to ex-service men and their dependents, at a cost estimated from reports now at hand of more than $5,340,000.

The basis of this far-reaching work of the Red Cross is the individual needs of the disabled veteran to the end that he may obtain his rights under the law, that his special wants may be immediately supplied, that his own and his family's situation may be rendered happy and cheerful, and that their outlook for the future may be visualized incentives for independent and fruitful effort.

Spread Christmas Joy Abroad
More than 100,000 Christmas boxes for the children of Central Europe were packed by the Junior Red Cross last year. The spread of Christmas joy through these boxes will be largely increased this year because of the plans already under way.

ANCIENT OWL'S HEAD DAYS

When It Was a Busy Seaside Hamlet and Rockland Was Nothing But An Alder Swamp.

A trip to Owl's Head and a delving among reminiscences and relics of the past, brought to light several amazing revelations to the effect that this little community among the pine trees and sea breezes was flourishing long before Rockland was even in existence. It is a splendid place to live in now and is superior in many respects to some communities a dozen times its size; but even its most loyal residents will admit that Rockland now boasts of several advantages that must necessitate a departure from the Head to obtain.

So Owl's Head folks go to Rockland to do their shopping; and perhaps to go to the moving pictures; but there was a time when Rockland went to Owl's Head. Not to attend moving pictures, for there was no such thing in those days, but for any number of reasons such as would prompt a small community to seek a larger one. Father Time often sees fit to play curious pranks, and incongruous as it may seem in comparing the two communities today, years and years ago Owl's Head was Owl's Head and Rockland was an alder swamp.

An atmosphere of romance has forever pervaded the premises of an ancient inn or hostelry and most citizens who have one in their midst are wont to point with pride to such a structure as something to be cherished, since it has been passed down to them through the years as a sort of municipal heritage. And the post of an old inn always seems to have infinitely richer possibilities than a private house possesses. The doors of an inn have been thrown open to so many different types of people—so many different lives have been associated with them—so many varied tales have been told before their prelates. If walls could talk, what a story could the walls of an old tavern tell.

Few people of Rockland and possibly not all from Owl's Head, are aware that Owl's Head Inn is one of the very oldest hostels in this part of the country. It has been repaired on several occasions, but parts of the original structure are still standing—a venerable building such as was erected at a date estimated as nearly a century and a half ago. Some of the stories that these ancient walls could tell would include tales of powdered wigs, knee breeches, hoop skirts and minuets, such as were in vogue when America and the Owl's Head Inn were young.

Romances of several generations have no doubt been born and nurtured on this beautiful and picturesque spot by the sea. Guests have sat upon the piazza at times when it would have been difficult to count the great white ships that went by the Head under full sail, as numerous as the birds that now wheel querulously past the same piazza railing. Soldiers from any number of wars may have dined there during the passage of a furlough or enroute to camp. Innumerable merry parties have no doubt been staged there since it came into being so many years ago.

Such are some of the inferences issuing from a conversation between a reporter for The Courier-Gazette and George Philbrook, not far from his little cottage tucked in among the spruces between the shore and the village. Such information as he was able to supply was given freely and with a graciousness that made the reporter feel perfectly welcome in the little cottage among the birches and spruces. A dory pulled alongside the shore and a few lobster traps gave away the trade of the occupant. A neat pile of wood to the rear, crystal-clear window panes and a few downy white dish towels flying from the line in the breeze also evidenced his methodical habits as a housekeeper.

The Owl's Head Inn was called the Ocean House in the old days. Mr. Philbrook could remember old Jacob Merrillman telling him he used to set up pins for the hotel folks when he was a little shaver. He was 77 years old when he died and that was 27 years ago. Even in those remote days, when prices were not exorbitant, Jacob was able to put away quite a tidy sum each week from the tips he received from the hotel's guests, either for setting up pins or rendering oyster's service in the stables to the rear.

"Yes, Owl's Head was a thriving village when Rockland was an alder swamp," he went on to say. "Not that it has had anything that Rockland hasn't in my day, but the old-timers used to tell me of the time when the Boston boat used to stop here and set out at Rockland—in fact they were not enough people up there to warrant a stop, let alone a wharf where the boat could be brought alongside. They used to tell me that a stage brought to Owl's Head whatever passengers there may have been in Rockland and beyond who wanted to go to Boston or up the river. The fare used to be $6. The first Boston boat that I can remember was when I was a little boy 62 years ago. She was the Daniel Webster and was painted black—I can see her now.

CAPT. TUPPER DEAD

Jacksonville Steamship Man Well Known To Maine Mariners.

Capt. William Marsh Tupper, who died suddenly at his home in Jacksonville Oct. 23, was a nephew of the late Capt. Chandler Peck of Rockland, and was well known in Maine maritime circles. From an obituary published by the Florida-Times-Union the following is taken:

Capt. Tupper was at the time of his death superintendent of the Clyde and Mallory lines, with headquarters in Jacksonville, a position which he held for the past fifteen years. He was also vice-president of the Gulf & Southern Steamship Company. At one time he was a director in the Logan Coal Company and also in the United States Trust & Savings Bank of this city. He always took an active interest in the affairs of Jacksonville and was one of its staunch citizens. The steamer W. M. Tupper, of the Gulf & Southern Steamship Company, was named after him. The steam tug W. M. Tupper was also named after him, the tug being now in the service of the Jacksonville Light House Company.

It was some 40 years ago that Capt. Tupper came South, first locating in Brunswick, Ga., where he was for a time engaged in the steamboat and with her big paddle wheel amidstships like a Mississippi river boat you used to see pictures of. "Do I get homesick here? No, not so very," he went on. "I sleep here in my little house nights, cook my breakfast and for the last five years I've been getting my dinner and supper wherever I happen to be. I don't seem to have a whole lot of pleasure, and if I can manage to make both ends come together it's about all I want. There are lots of folks around here who are older than I am and better able to tell stories of days gone by. Treasure? Why, yes, old Eben Pinkham, who died seven years ago, used to dig for sunken treasure down around the lighthouse somewhere. And he also had a line on a treasure trove on Sheep Island amounting to $38,000, but I don't believe he unearthed enough to make it worth while." "But there was a story over on Islesboro, where I was brought up, that was probably more true. There were somebody's folks who had seen places on the ledges where pirates had come in to beat bits of tar and pitch to mend the seams in their vessels. And there was a spot that for years folks used to think was the imprint of a money pot. But I guess Eben didn't get rich," concluded Mr. Philbrook with a smile.

A marvelously beautiful and picturesque site is that which is still occupied by the Owl's Head Inn. A spacious and terraced front lawn reaching down to the sea is flanked on one side by a row of aged willow trees and on another by a natural divide of land, separating it from the village proper. A whirlwind of gulls is almost always above the ancient building and the tang of the ocean is invariably there, as it has been through the years. The same stable as functioned in colonial days is still standing, now in the capacity of a twentieth century garage. Its girders are hand-hewn and put together with wooden pegs after the fashion of the days before such progressive articles as nails came into use. Many a fine gentleman's horse may have stamped in those stalls and probably never again will a horse be kept therein. It is more than probable that some northeastern in the near future will render it impracticable for carriage. The bowling alley, once located not far from the stable, suffered just such a fate some fifty years ago, within the memory of another old resident of Owl's Head. Even fifty years ago, it had become quite infirm in its old age and one stormy night a northeast gale picked its attenuated form up in its arms and carried it out of sight and to sea. Since then bowling has not been exactly popular at Owl's Head.

"Oh, yes, many is the string I have bowled in that alley when I was a young man," said Lewis Arey, another exceedingly gracious source of information, as was immediately noticed somewhere. Then there was a young boy, a very fast big, and the last ship that was built there was the Jennie Cheney, built by my brother, Seth C. Arey. She was a lime schooner and after catching aflre out here somewhere, was towed in to the Head of the Bay and sunk there as a total wreck. Perhaps you've seen her ribs sticking up there at low tide.

"Yes, the Boston boat used to come in right there by the point that you can see through the window. I used to live on that point when I was a little boy. The wharf was all rotting to pieces then. I guess it wouldn't do for the Boston boat or any other to come in there now."

Going back over the road the reporter thought over the things he had heard and seen during the afternoon and their possibilities for a story—the ancient hostelry with the surf running up on the beach, a cat-boat canted picturesquely on its side nearby; the old bowling alley, torn away by time and the wind; the landing place for the Boston boat; the quaint house of George Philbrook and the hospitable home of Lewis Arey; the ship Child of the Regiment and the Jennie Cheney; the paused and stopped his car to take in the beauty of sunset time at the Head of the Bay. There stretched out the harbor blue as a Maxfield Parish painting, blending beautifully with the more subdued tints of the mountains and sky. And sure enough, down by the shore was a protruding rib of the Jennie Cheney, the last remnant of Owl's Head shipbuilding days, immersed in the waters of the Head of the Bay, where the sea birds hover fishing.

Lighterage business. Later, fifteen years ago, he came to Jacksonville to occupy the important position with the Clyde and Mallory lines which he held up to the time of his death.

Capt. Tupper was a close personal and life long friend of H. B. Raymond, president of the Clyde and Mallory lines and of the Gulf & Southern Steamship Company. To Mr. Raymond the death of Captain Tupper comes as a distinct loss, the passing of a great friend and one who was greatly loved and admired for his fine character. Mr. Raymond is in the city at the present time.

From early boyhood, Capt. Tupper followed the sea. His first experience dates back to the time when at 17 years of age he went to sea in a sailing craft. He rapidly rose to captaincy and at the early age of 21 commanded a schooner. His life on the sea carried him around the world a number of times, but most of his great and varied experience was along the Atlantic seaboard, between Maine and Florida.

Capt. Tupper was born January 1, 1849, in Bangor, Me. He was in his seventy-fourth year. Surviving him are his son, and granddaughter, Ralph B. Tupper, and Miss Alva Tupper, of Jacksonville. He is also survived by a brother, Frank B. Tupper and his sister, Mrs. E. P. Whitaker of North Berwick, Me., and two sisters residing in Boston, Mrs. Stacy Hall and Mrs. Samuel Colewood.

ON ARMISTICE DAY

The Wounded Boys Led the Procession Instead of Bringing Up the Rear.

(Written for The Courier-Gazette by Susanne Alice Rantlett.)

The city was to celebrate Armistice Day and the committee of arrangements was holding a meeting. They had planned a procession, plenty of music, citizens in line, trade and business organizations, School Cadets, Knights of King Arthur, Girl Scouts, and Boy Scouts. These would at intervals repeat the thrilling cry of the London Scouts on first Armistice Day—the same cry which these lads had given reassurance after air raids during the war. "All Clear!"

There would be in the procession a large body of young veterans from the city and the surrounding district, and the wounded and invalided would, as usual, in their cars bring up the rear. When the mention of these, Vivian Benton looked troubled. Vivian had been a Y. W. C. A. worker in France, and beside having intimate acquaintance with American boy soldiers, she had a way of "noticing" and feeling as others did.

"I think," she said in her quick, unconventional way, "that it is mean and cruel to put those splendid hero boys always at the end of processions."

"Why, Miss Benton," returned Frank Crosby, a young councilman, "those boys are comfy in their cars, and how they capture the cheers!" "Yes; but they're trailing along at the end of things. Even in their brave smiles haven't you seen a wistful look? And if you could hear their thoughts, you'd know they were thinking how they are out of the activity and joy of life—just bringing up the rear! They've learned, perhaps, to weave baskets or seat chairs, but what real blooded young American doesn't in his heart despise that kind of employment and ache for a man's job? Where's the lively part of the procession? The general and staff, fine music, prancing horses, and all—getting the first fresh applause of the crowd. Generally there isn't even a band to cheer the wounded. I do believe they'd gain new courage and actual power to do things if they weren't always dragged along behind!"

"What's your idea, Miss Benton?" asked the Reverend Richard Howland. "You'd have the wounded in another part of the procession?" "Yes, I'd have them lead the procession, with the best band, lots of flags, and a guard of honor."

"Certainly we ought to do the best for them who have done their best for us and their country," said Mr. Howland.

Two members of the committee, members of the American Legion, agreed enthusiastically. "Let's do it! They've sure earned the first place. Anything more, Miss Benton?"

"Yes," replied Vivian; "it isn't necessary for all those boys to be hauled round like babies in 'prams.' If they have lost an arm or a leg or an eye, they have not lost of livingness left. There's Rob Long—he was a cavalry officer and even if he has only one arm now, he can manage a horse as well as that degenerate Mr. Hohenzollern who for years posed in his vanity on horses. And there are others who can ride. Give them good mounts. Some of the boys who have lost legs know machines to the last screw. Let them drive the cars. Some are musicians—put them in a band; wani! Let all who can help on things! You'll see a difference in their smiles!"

On Armistice Day, leading the marching lines was General Henry U. S. A. and beside him as an honorary member of his staff, mounted on a spirited black horse, was Rob Long, bearing himself as truly man and soldier as General. Refreshments were served by the hostesses assisted by Mrs. Athelia Furlan, Mrs. Ralph Hayden, and Mrs. Paul Ricker.

WHEN you press a switch button to turn on the light, you may not think of the men stoking the furnaces at the power plant, understand the wires and dynamos that form the background of electric lighting service, or appreciate the great investment needed to supply you with electric current.

So also, when you turn for counsel and help to the funeral director in your time of need, you may not stop to think of the scientific training, the technical skill, the modern equipment and the extensive facilities that form the background of his service.

Yet beyond your vision he serves you in scores of unobtrusive ways—many of which scarcely anyone but he could name—for no other one person ever has contact with all of them.

Does not expect that you will look behind the results to see how they were achieved, but that the results themselves will constitute a beautiful and perfect tribute, the memory of which will be a solace and comfort.

TENANT'S HARBOR

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fuller made a business trip to Rockland recently.

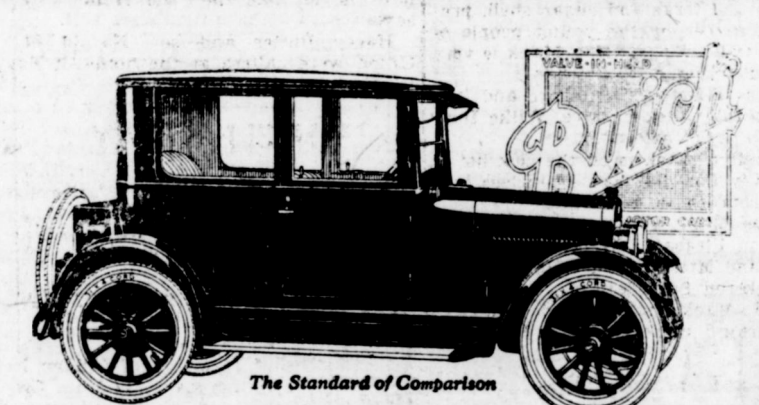

Mrs. F. B. Erickson, who has been visiting her mother, left for Cribhaven Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Brown and daughter spent the weekend with Mrs. Amelia Taylor.

Asa P. St. Clair of Rockland certainly had "some cousins." We are wondering if the five he spoke of weren't brothers, or sisters, or both to him.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pease were recent guests of his parents.

A SAFETY FIRST CAMPAIGN

Begun By Lime Corporation Against Avoidable Accidents
—Everett Libby Safety Engineer.

One industrial corporation, which believes in keeping accidents down to a minimum, and which is conducting an active campaign to that end is the Rockland & Rockport Lime Corporation. Under the direction of its president, George B. Wood, a continuous safety campaign will begin Nov. 15.

Everett Libby, who recently entered the corporation's employ, is now assigned to special duty under the title of safety engineer.

President Wood says:

"The company, to the best of its ability, has safeguarded machinery, platforms, stairways and other dangerous places in order to prevent accidents to employees. In spite of this work, however, the number of accidents reported both at the quarries and at the kilns has been in excess of what it should be. There is a total of between 400 and 500 men on our payroll, and during the last two years the number of accident cases has been greater than those reported from other manufacturing plants in Maine having as many as 1200 employees. This is not because work around a lime plant is more dangerous than other industries, but due to lack of team work and lack of care on the part of the men themselves. The record shows that a great number of accidents have been due to carelessness and could have been prevented if every foreman and every employee remembered about the last time and tried to prevent such an accident happening again."

"A man stumbles over a board left where it should not be, in a common passageway, and a few weeks later another man stumbles and falls over an obstruction left in the same place. A man at a certain place of employment gets lime in his eye, and within two weeks the same man again comes with the same experience. There is no good excuse for such things. If accidents are to be lessened, it must be the effort not only of foremen but of every man, to see to it that action is immediately taken to remove the cause of every accident so that it may not happen again."

"During the last two years there have been 13 cases of blood poisoning, all of them resulting in lost time, in some cases several months, which means a needless cost both to the man and his family and to the company. One of these cases proved fatal. In every instance blood poisoning could have been prevented if proper care had been taken of the wound, which in most cases was only trivial to start with."

"Commencing Nov. 15, we will start a continuous safety campaign. The company plans to establish a total of 100 first aid stations, which will be small hospitals with every facility to give prompt and efficient attention to the patient in the event of accident. The company will employ a company doctor, who will be on duty regularly certain hours every week at these stations, and whose services will be available to all employees in matters pertaining to treatment of injuries or their personal health."

Everett Libby has entered the company's employ in the capacity of safety engineer. The Safety and Welfare committee will be reorganized for more efficient work, and every employee of the company will become a part of the Safety First Organization for the purpose of improving work conditions and lessening accidents. Mr. Libby will be the active head of this department, and it will be expected by the management of the company that every employee will not only co-operate with him but will feel free to make recommendations or make complaints with regard to any conditions around the plant and changes which will tend to make not only a safer but a better place to work in.

"Wherever things are wrong around the plant it is known best by those who work there every day, and these are the things Mr. Libby wants to know. If every man will help accidents can be stopped."

Under the caption "Safety First," and "A Letter To All My Fellow Workers," President Wood has addressed the following communication:

"We all together make one single organization, each of us as necessary as the other to the successful working of the whole. A kilntender cannot work unless a quarryman breaks the rock, a quarryman must stop if the kilntender plugs his kilns; each needs the general manager to market the lime to furnish money for the pay envelopes. And the general manager needs them both if he will successfully operate the property entrusted to him by the owners."

Who can say which is the most important leg of a chair? Take away any one and the whole thing collapses. Who can say which is the most important wheel in a watch? Take away even the smallest and the whole works stop. Each of us must keep in trim if the whole machine is expected to run."

Accidents to men are worse than accidents to machinery. Both can usually be restored to working order, but it is oftentimes only the machine that can be rebuilt as good as new. The cost of a broken machine and wages to the doctor's bill and lost wages to the man; other members of his family may be obliged to stop work and nurse him, and the cost to other members of his family may mean years of life which might have been lived with more health and happiness. The cost in dollars to the employer does not stop with the amount of compensation wages and doctors' bills. It costs much more money to break new men into work of the experienced who have been injured. One green man's mistakes may spoil the efforts of five other men who formerly made an efficient team. Inexperienced men are often the cause of accidents to machinery, and when men stand idle waiting for machinery to start, the owner pays the bill. Much of such unnecessary costs often results in all the difference between a loss and a profit to a business."

Every man who works for a living has a threefold duty: his duty to his family, his duty to his employer and his duty to himself. The most important of all is his duty to himself, which is to keep fit in mind and body that he may be most useful and most valuable to others. Let's all be careful. Take care of your health and don't get hurt, but if you do get hurt let the company's doctor tend you and get back again on the job."

Remember your family wants you tomorrow.
Remember your employer wants you tomorrow.
Don't let a Safety Campaign foolish fellow tell you foreman if you see a company's doctor and help to make conditions better."

Yours for Safety First,
G. B. Wood,
President and General Manager.

ABANDONED FARMS

Maine Has Not More Than 4,000, Says Commissioner Washburn.

"The so-called decadence of our agriculture is attracting considerable attention, both from within and without the State," says Frank P. Washburn, State Commissioner of Agriculture.

"We have grown almost accustomed, during the past two years, to hearing and reading statements taken largely from the 14th United States census showing how the number of our farms, their acreage, etc., has declined."

"Perhaps the most startling disclosures made are those with regard to the decrease in the number of farms and the acreage of improved land, some authorities even going so far as to assert that some 12,000 farms were abandoned in the State during the 10 year period from 1910 to 1920. It is true that the total number of farms dropped from 60,000 to 48,000, but we should not gather from this that anything like one-fifth of the agricultural strength of the State has been lost."

"In the first place, many of these farms should have been abandoned. By reason of location and character of soil they should never have been cleared, and it was impossible ever to operate them at a profit."

"Many of these farms are now being operated in connection with others and under better management with more up-to-date methods and machinery."

"Dissatisfied with the apparent deductions of the Federal census that 12,000 of these had been added to our agricultural problem in 10 years, at least two of our State departments have attempted to get at the facts. The State assessors having more intimate relationship with municipal officers have obtained the most complete results, indicating not 12,000 idle farms, but considerably less than 4,000."

Mr. Washburn admits that the situation of Maine farmers is not an enviable one just at present. He says:

"The purchasing power of the Maine farmers' crop is now the lowest per bushel ever known. It will be an anxious period for all, but we shall come through it."

He is strongly in favor of co-operative efforts on the part of farmers. "Why not try the experiment of establishing some co-operative consumers' organizations in our cities, to purchase directly from farmers' associations?" he asks. "Are we not about ready for the establishment of a modern storage warehouse in one of our Maine cities where farm products can be stored and a regular supply assured our merchants and hotel keepers without going over the usual expensive and unsatisfactory course of shipping to Boston and reshipping to Maine."

KNOX POMONA MET

And Patrons Agree That South Warren Session Was a Hummer.

Knox Pomona Grange met in regular session with Good Will Grange at South Warren last Saturday, and four counties were represented. State Master W. J. Thompson and wife, and Mrs. Pierce came from Kennebec Pomona, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Jackson, Mrs. Lettie Achorn and Miss Mattie Achorn from Lincoln Pomona, and others were from Knox and Lincoln Valley Pomonas, making the total attendance about 200.

The degree work in the morning was beautifully done, and Knox Pomona received many words of praise for its efficiency. Good Will Grange is noted for its good cooks, and willing workers, so it was necessary to say that the dinner was all that was required. At the noon recess those who so wished assembled in front of the hall for a group picture.

When the Grange again assembled at 1:30 the program was started with the usual chorus singing, and with Mrs. Helen Wentworth at the piano it put pep in the whole body and made the program go with a snap. The first question for discussion, was: "Do clubs and organizations make better wives?" This was discussed by Mrs. Warren Gardner, Mrs. Martha Kallio, Mrs. W. J. Thompson and Mrs. T. J. Carroll. The State Master was then introduced, taking for his subject, "Government Ownership," and it was certainly a lecture the Patrons will not soon forget. This lecture was followed by several selections of music by the Grange, readings by Mrs. T. J. Carroll, Marie Brown, Mrs. W. B. Gardner, Adella Veazie and Mrs. O. A. Copeland, and a solo by Marie Brown. To this splendid gathering of Patrons Mrs. Rose Marshall extended greetings, and W. A. Moon, the master, responded for Pomona. After the stated program was carried out, there was chorus singing, and many of the Patrons responded with short speeches when called upon. This was the kind of a meeting the Patrons like and they are planning another with Seven Tree Grange, Union in December.

This Month and Catarrh
Many people find that during this month, catarrh is so aggravated by sudden changes of weather, indigestion in the matter of clothing, and other things that it becomes constantly troublesome.

There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, also relieves catarrh, and aids in the prevention of consumption.

It is not easy to see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its remarkable successes. It is called by its proprietors America's Greatest Medicine for America's Greatest Disease—Catarrh.

In some cases there is occasionally need of thorough cathartic or gentle laxative, and in these cases Hood's Pills are taken with very satisfactory results.

A very pleasant affair was enjoyed Tuesday evening at the home of Amy Webber, by the Girls' Club. The program "Nobbies" was very cute. Refreshments were served and the evening was spent in dancing and playing games.

Dr. T. F. Turner was in Rockland last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Weston of Portland have been visitors at S. W. Weston's.

The second in the series of entertainments arranged by Rev. O. G. Barnard will be given in Clark's hall Thursday, Nov. 16. The first of the entertainments in October, gave excellent satisfaction and the coming one bids fair to eclipse it. The entire program for the evening will be furnished by the Parker Family Duo. It will embrace both humor and pathos and will consist of monologues, pianologues and musical readings. In bringing these artists from the White Entertainment Bureau to town Mr. Barnard is working for the best interest of the community and the affair will doubtless be well patronized.

While driving his auto to Boston Friday night, Ralph Morse discovered two raccoons directly in the road. He had no gun or other weapon with him but did not discourage he stopped the car and gave chase to the animals. Pursuing them into a field he caught one by the tail and throwing it against a tree, killed it instantly. The other sought refuge in a nearby tree. Mr. Morse shook the tree, throwing the animal to the ground and speedily despatched him with a rock from a stone wall. He came home, the possessor of two fine coon skins as a souvenir of an unusual experience.

RED CROSS WILL ENROLL MEMBERS

Engaged in Tremendous Relief Task As It Enters Annual Roll Call Nov. 11

PEACE ACTIVITIES CONTINUE

Maintenance of Strength in Membership and Funds for Local Service Essential

The American Red Cross will enter

its sixth annual Roll Call, November

11th to 30th, to enroll members for the coming year, engaged in the greatest relief task it has undertaken since the World War—the succor of more than half a million homeless, destitute refugees who have fled their homes and migrated from Asia Minor and Thrace into Greece and adjacent European territory to escape Turkish rule.

The Red Cross had, up to November

1st, expended nearly one million dollars for this relief work, an amount believed sufficient to provide for the immediate, temporary needs of the refugee army, until Vice Chairman A.

Ross Hill, head of the newly organized

Red Cross Commission to Greece, can complete a survey and inform National Headquarters what further expenditures will probably be necessary.

The Red Cross Chapters in New England and throughout the country are rapidly collecting and preparing used clothing for shipment to Greece

for distribution by the Commission, and are calling in their volunteer forces to make garments, particularly for women and babies.

IN KEEPING WITH CHARTER

Thus the American Red Cross is meeting this disaster crisis, in keeping with its charter obligations and the request of the President, so far as it relates to the European Near East and will continue the task until it is completed.

Meantime, from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving, Chapters throughout the United States will carry on the Roll Call, inviting every American to join his Red Cross for another year of service. In the New England Division every one of the 150 Chapters, and their Branches, will conduct a Roll Call by some method, many of them planning to send their volunteer forces from home to home, to make it as simple as possible for the people to join. The indications are that the present membership in the New England Division will be retained and possibly increased.

TWO PHASES OF ROLL CALL

"The Roll Call presents two distinct phases, membership and funds for local service," says Arthur G. Rotch,

Manager of the New England Division. "The American Red Cross is a volunteer society chartered by Congress to relieve and prevent suffering in peace and war. The very nature of its charter obligation calls for a very large membership to give that moral force and potential ability necessary to cope with the unheaval

of war and the ever-present emergencies of peace. The membership is the basis of the Red Cross. The vast majority of members are annual members, who pay $1.00 a year for their membership. They are the minute men and women, the greatest proved reserve for relief the world ever saw.

This reserve should be maintained at the highest level possible.

"As money left from war days has been depleted by the increasing and essential peace time activities in communities many Chapters find they are unable to finance present and needed

Chapter work from the Chapter share of membership fees alone. The Chapters have, therefore, the necessity of requesting additional funds in order to serve their communities effectively.

"The peace activities, authorized by charter and approved by the Central Committee, include, as a primary obligation, service to the disabled veterans of the World War and to the Army and Navy, home service to civilian families, health care, instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, first aid and life saving, volunteer service and Junior Red Cross.

VALUE OF PREPAREDNESS

"And now we are, unexpectedly, facing the new and terrible calamity in the Near East. We have agreed to do our share to meet the situation, which means that the Red Cross will deal with the emergency in Europe,

where for the most part the refugees

Relief will continue as heretofore to operate in Asia, dealing with such emergency as exists there in addition to its regular work.

"The President has announced an appeal for a special Near East Emergency Fund, to be made during our

Red Cross Roll Call, to finance the relief work in the Near East. The Red Cross has already expended or committed itself to expenditures of $750,000, and more, probably much more, will be needed. This money we must ask for during our Roll Call.

"The disaster at the eastern end of the Mediterranean makes very clear the importance of maintaining a Red Cross organization here at home prepared through its strength in membership and funds to meet such crises

as this.

"We ask the people to join the Red Cross, to contribute to the maintenance of Red Cross service by their local organizations, and to help make possible the huge emergency task to which we have been called upon,

on the successful accomplishment of which thousands

A Bath correspondent writes: The paragon of the People's Baptist church was the scene of a beautiful wedding on the evening of Nov. 4 when Harold P. Fowle of Rockland was united in marriage to Miss Grace E. Varner of 30 Russell street, Bath, by Rev. L. W. West. The impressive double ring service being used. Now this perfectly natural partiality has resulted in a decision to make Rockland his winter home as well—at least this winter. After December 1st they will occupy the Haggitt house on Broadway. Decidedly unique are the invitations which have just been issued for a children's party to be given at the Thorndike Hotel Saturday. They read thus: "Virginia Proctor, Helen and Annetta Leach."

Readers, you to give this card a glance and come to the Thorndike Grill to play from two to five on Armistice Day. This is our birthday, we must admit. But we much prefer presents you'd omit."

The entertainment committee of Claremont Commandery has organized a series of dancing parties in Temple Hall, opening Monday night with Marston's "Big Six." Each Sir Knight is privileged to invite guests. The committee this year is J. F. Carver, R. V. Stevenson, George W. Smith and Homer E. Robinson.

After the usual opening exercises and salute to the flag, a short service was held in memory of Mrs. Ada Simonton Blackington, who twice ably served the Chapter as Regent and twice as secretary. The program was:

Whispering Hope, Victrola Poem—"An Imaginary River," Mrs. Walsh Abide With Me, Victrola Resolutions of Respect—Read by Chairman of Committee on Resolutions.

Following the reading of the resolutions the Chapter members honored Mrs. Blackington's memory by standing in silence one moment. Mrs. Walsh presented a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums which stood on the desk as a silent tribute to one who was a faithful and loyal daughter for many years. The hostess served a de-

"FAUST" TO BE SUNG

Famous Gounod Opera Selected For Next Year's Maine Festival.

"Faust," the famous Gounod opera, composed 60 years ago by the great French composer and first produced in 1859, since which time it has been sung more than any five operas combined, has been selected as the grand opera to be presented on the closing night of the 1923 festival. This decision was reached a few days ago after Portland had settled upon the presentation at the next festival of three operas, one on each night, and had endeavored to obtain Bangor's sanction of the plan, to which, however, Bangor refused to acquiesce, and suggested that one opera, "Faust," be produced. This suggestion was finally adopted and just as soon as the music arrives from New York rehearsals will be commenced.

The opera will be presented with appropriate costumes and scenery and it is sure to delight festival patrons as it is the most popular and most widely sung of the great operas of the great masters. Goethe's famous German legend of the same name furnished Gounod with the subject for the opera and the wealth of melody of Gounod's music together with his powerful orchestration manifest above all else in the opera made it instantly popular. It is in five acts and contains inspiring choruses and melodious airs with which Gounod music is replete. The Goethe legend is an interesting one which adds materially to the wonderful music of the opera.

It is expected that the music scores will arrive within two weeks at which time the local chorus will be called together for its first rehearsal.

The jaquette in its various forms has created a stir, and in due course of time it makes its appearance as a sweater. This knitted jaquette is almost certain to have a good run. Many will turn to the jaquette for novelty and find it at the same time thoroughly practical. Small and large can wear it with equal success. The almost surprise closing and the narrow shawl collar are two points that become the mature figure, without affecting the youthful either one way or the other. Some jaquettes button at the low waistline, while others have a continuous band at lower edge, and they slip on over the head although the front is opened to the waistline. The heavy brushed wool jaquettes takes the place of a coat in the sports-woman's wardrobe. The Russian blouse, as it is called, is a slip-on, snug fitting at the hip or waistline, and blousing decidedly above. A trimming motif down the left side gives the Russian note. Sometimes a high collar, fastening with buttons and loops, conveys the idea still more definitely. But many of these Russian blouses have just the round neck, or a V opening with small square collar.—Dry Goods Economist.

MORSE IMPATIENT

Has Asked For Immediate Trial, Or To Be Discharged.

Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert and W. Bissell Thomas, of Washington, Nash Rockwood and Charles T. Lark, of New York, as counsel for Charles W. Morse, shipbuilder, indicted in Washington for alleged conspiracy to defraud the Fleet Corporation has filed notice of motion requiring the government to show cause why the indictment should not be immediately tried before a jury, or dismissed for lack of prosecution.

In the lengthy affidavit sworn to by Mr. Morse, is recounted in detail the history of the now celebrated Morse case. Mr. Morse charges that while enroute to Europe to visit his physician he was summarily ordered to return to this country for apprehension upon criminal charges. He returned promptly, voluntarily came to Washington in December, 1921, and was apprehended upon technical charges which have never been pressed. Over a month thereafter the grand jury returned an indictment against Mr. Morse in connection with other defendants charging in substance conspiracy to defraud and cheat the Fleet Corporation. Upon these indictments, which were found in January, 1922, Mr. Morse was admitted to bail in the sum of $50,000, and the government has not yet brought on the cases for trial.

In December, 1921, the government amended its bill of complaint in an equity action for an accounting pending in the Virginia courts against the Morse shipbuilding companies and there also charged fraud, conspiracy and deceit. These civil cases recently came on for trial before Judge Waddill at Alexandria, Virginia; and during the trial the government asked permission to withdraw its charges of fraud and conspiracy, and stated that it did not desire to press the same. Upon the opposition of Mr. Morse's counsel Judge Waddill denied the government's application. Mr. Morse now avers in his affidavit that he was put to great expense and trouble in preparing to defend the charges of fraud in the civil cases and that he was present in court with his witnesses and accountants, and that the action of the government in declining to press the charges of fraud has denied him the opportunity to clear himself of the charges against him. Mr. Morse now avers that the action of the government through the Fleet Corporation and Shipping Board has been oppressive and that he has been singled out as one against whom unfounded charges of fraud and conspiracy have been made in such way that his various companies have been financially embarrassed and his own business position affected. He charges that the government owes the various companies with which he is connected over $20,000,000 and that if this money were paid the solvency of his companies would be immediately re-established.

He charges that the government has through the Shipping Board, maintained a systematic effort to discredit him; that he has been continually subjected to unwarranted espionage; and he insists that upon a trial of the facts before a jury the absolute groundlessness of the charges against him would be promptly shown. Mr. Morse, therefore, asks the Court to require the government to go to trial at an early date, and that unless this is done the indictments against him be dismissed for lack of prosecution.

It is expected that the motions will be argued before Justice Stafford Friday. The outcome of this motion, which is unusual in character, will be awaited by the public with interest.

DEER ALWAYS SAFE

Down In Deer Isle, Where There Is Perpetual Closed Time

Did they but know it, there is a sanctuary in Maine where deer are perpetually safe from the hunter, where it is always close time and has been for several years, by a bill put through the Maine legislature at the request of a lover of animals. Strangely enough this sanctuary is Deer Isle, in Hancock county on Penobscot bay.

It is said to have derived its name from the number of deer seen upon it at one time, just as its neighbors, the Fox Islands, got their name from the silver gray fox which years ago overran it. On both islands there is little game these days, for once it is killed off more can get there only by crossing on the ice from the mainland during a severe winter, or swimming across in summer.

A few years ago several deer were seen on Deer Isle and during the past summer one or more were reported. Just now when hunters from all New England are gathering in Maine the deer at Deer Isle can look on calmly and even hear the report of a rifle without a quiver.—Bangor News.
