A HANDIER NAME

One of the Points Involved In Proposed Amendments To Chamber of Commerce Constitution.

A number of amendments to the constitution and bylaws of the Chamber of Commerce have been proposed, and will be acted upon at the next meeting of the membership, which will be held Jan. 9.

Under Article 1, Section 1, it is proposed to change the name from "The Chamber of Commerce of Rockland, Maine," to "The Rockland Chamber of Commerce."

Under Article 2, Section 7, former members could be reinstated, providing said members were not in arrears on dues.

Under Article 3, Section 3, dues shall be paid semi-annually on the first days of November and May each year, instead of January and July. The reason for this proposed change is that all dues are construed as starting Nov. 1, 1922.

Under Article 7, Section 5, there shall be standing committees on Manufactures, New Industries, Retail Trade, Wholesale Trade, Agriculture, Finance, Entertainment, Membership, Publicity and Transportation.

A FARMER'S BLOG.

Edward L. White of Bowdoinham, representative-elect from the Bowdoin-Bowdoinham-Richmond-Georgetown class, is the man who is looked to by a group of representatives from the Grange and other farm organizations for leadership at the coming session of the Legislature. It is reported that this group of which there is expected to be about a dozen in the House, representatives of both parties, will act as a unit upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of the farmers and the rural sections and will seek to block any legislation that they deem hostile to rural and agricultural interests.

FELLOW CITIZENS OF MAINE:

This week you are looking forward to Christmas with joyous anticipation.

In the rush of your holiday shopping you hardly have time to think of serious things. Yet we want to ask you to pause a moment while we call your attention to a tragic picture.

There could be no greater contrast than between our jolly New England Christmastide, and the situation in Asia Minor, cradle of Christianity, where "famine and nakedness, peril and sword" are rampant.

Smyrna is in ashes, Asia Minor is a waste of desolate villages.

For five years the Near East Relief has cared for 115,000 orphans. This year our burden is immeasurably increased as a result of the Smyrna disaster. You are our only court of appeal. If you increase your contributions we can keep pace with the demands made upon us.

Will you help us in the name of a Babe who was born at Christmastime 2000 years ago.

If so send your check payable to Harry S. Boyd, treasurer, to the State Headquarters of the Near East Relief, 80 Exchange Street, Portland, Maine. The widow's mite is as welcome as a check from a millionaire.

Yours very truly,

STATE COMMITTEE NEAR EAST RELIEF.

WOULD DIVIDE OWL'S HEAD

Echoes Of Big Fight Two Years Ago Will Be Heard At Approaching Session of Legislature.

The fight for the division of the town of South Thomaston which was one of the features of the Legislative session two years ago, and which resulted in the creation of the new town of Owl's Head, will be renewed at the coming session—this time with a view to dividing Owl's Head and annexing the dismembered portion to the town of South Thomaston.

A petition bearing six signatures will be presented to Legislature in due season. The copy of that petition yesterday served upon Selectman John Whalen of Owl's Head shows the apparent intention to wrest from the new town those sections of it known as Ingraham Hill and Ash Point. That this will not be accomplished without a struggle seems obvious to those who watched the stiff battle waged by the Owl's Head faction at the last session of Legislature, even after South Thomaston had apparently won a great victory.

A copy of the petition follows: "The undersigned citizens of Owl's Head in the county of Knox, respectfully petition that the territory hereinafter described and now located in said town of Owl's Head, be set off from said town and annexed, and made a part of the town of South Thomaston, together with Ash Island and Spaulding's Island. Said mainland territory is bounded by and lies within the following described territory, to wit:

"Beginning at a granite post where the lines of the towns of Owl's Head, Thomaston, South Thomaston and the city of Rockland, intersect near the upper Marsh road, so called; thence generally in an easterly direction along the southerly line of the city of Rockland to the shore of Rockland harbor; thence southerly along the shore to the easterly side of the Head of the Bay bridge; thence along the easterly side of the highway to the northeasterly corner of the farm of George B. Hicks; thence along the easterly and southerly lines of the said farm to the Henderson farm; thence generally southerly along the line of said Henderson farm to land of Charles Livingston; thence along the line of said Hicks farm to the southeast corner of land of Ralph Philbrook; thence along the southerly line of said Philbrook's land to the southeast corner of the land of Walter Martin; thence in a southerly direction in a straight line to the southeasterly corner of the Hayden lot on the Ash Point road; thence in an easterly direction along the northerly side of the road leading from South Thomaston to Ash Point, to Crockett's Corner, so called; thence along the northerly line of Crockett's land to the shore at Crockett's Point; thence generally in a southerly direction along the shore to a point intersecting the boundary line of Owl's Head and South Thomaston; thence northwesterly along said boundary line to the place of beginning.

"The inhabitants of said territory to be citizens of the town of South Thomaston, and invested with all the powers and privileges, and subject to all the duties and obligations of citizens of said town. Dated the second day of December A. D. 1922.

THE SMYRNA HORROR

Prof. Constantine Tells Rockland Folks About Horrors Unbelievable.

Several speakers came to Rockland churches Sunday in the interest of the Near East Relief campaign, among them John Constantine, a professor in the American International College, who escaped from Smyrna on a U. S. destroyer while the city was in flames. He tells a story of the atrocities of the Turks which is enough to strike terror to the stoutest heart. Prof. Constantine was educated in the American College and also at New York University, returning to his Alma Mater to teach. He is a native of Troy, Asia Minor, and with his wife and children was living just outside the city of Smyrna at the college when the Turks descended upon the city, pillaging, murdering, looting and finally burning it.

"We look to America as the only country who has acted the Good Samaritan, which follows Christ's principles as He taught them," said Prof. Constantine. He told of the protection afforded the refugees at the American Y. M. C. A. and of one teacher in an American mission who marched with two hundred children, holding before them the American flag, which even the unspeakable Turk did not dare desecrate. He told of an Italian refugee telling him how the Turks entered his home, tore the Italian flag in bits and demanded his money, of young girls torn from their parents, and of others jumping into the sea to escape a worse fate. He told of the men and boys being driven into the interior and slavery, of the burning of Smyrna and the forcing of the inhabitants into the sea, while the Turks looted and massacred.

In addition to the horrible massacres and looting, the Turks waited for a windy day to burn the city and the population of 700,000 was driven to the sea, for the Turks were back of the fire lines, so they could not escape. Such was the mad rush of the refugees many of them were carrying bundles containing their little treasures, that if they dropped their bundles, others tripped on it and if they fell they were quickly trampled to death by the on-rushing mass.

With all this the terrible looting was added. Fingers were cut off to get the rings on the men, ears to get the jewels worn on them. The horror is impossible to imagine. Then came the American relief with its soup kitchens, its clothing, its transports to take the refugees to Greece, where the law was passed that every family must share its home with the unfortunate refugees.

WARREN POSTMASTER

Silas W. Weaver, chairman of the Republican town committee in Warren, has received word from Congressman White that the latter has recommended Harry M. Robinson for postmaster of that town. There were two Republican candidates for this office, and there was a movement afoot looking to the reappointment of Postmaster Fred E. Mathews. Mr. Robinson has been clerk of Asticou Inn, Northeast Harbor, 13 years, and was its manager last year. He had charge of the post-office in the Inn, and is already equipped with a good knowledge of what Uncle Sam requires. He will make a popular and efficient postmaster.

SETTLEMENT IN BARRE

Six granite manufacturing firms of Barre, all members of the Granite Manufacturers Association, and two of them members of the board of directors of that association, signed agreements with the granite cutters union and allied unions Tuesday by which all six will resume work not later than January 2.

One Main street concern which has been doing business a great many years, reports its Christmas traffic far ahead of last year's. And from a casual observation along the street the past two weeks this is not an isolated case.

A CHRISTMAS HYMN

It was the calm and silent night!
Seven hundred years and fifty-three
Had Rome been growing up to night,
And now was queen of land and sea.
No sound was heard of clashing wars—
Peace brooded o'er the hushed domain:
Apollo, Pallas, Jove and Mars
Held undisturbed their ancient reign.
In the solemn midnight,
Centuries ago.

'Twas in the calm and silent night!
The senator of haughty Rome,
Impatient, urged his chariot's flight,
From lordly revel rolling home.
Triumphal arches, gleaming, swell
His breast with thoughts of boundless sway;
What rocked the Roman what befell
A paltry province far away.
In the solemn midnight,
Centuries ago!

Within that province far away
Went plodding home a weary boor;
A streak of light before him lay,
Fallen through a half-shut stable-door
Across his path. He passed—for naught
Told what was going on within—
How keen the stars his only thought
The air how calm, and cold, and thin,
In the solemn midnight,
Centuries ago!

O, strange indifference! low and high
Drowned over common joys and cares;
The earth was still—but knew not why
The world was listening, unawares.
How calm a moment may precede
One that shall thrill the world forever!
To that still moment, none would heed,
Man's doom was linked no more to sever—
In the solemn midnight,
Centuries ago!

It is the calm and solemn night!
A thousand bells ring out, and throw
Their joyous peals abroad and smile
The darkness—charmed and holy now!
The night that erst no shame had worn,
To it a happy name is given:
For in that stable lay, new-born,
The Peaceful Prince of earth and heaven,
In the solemn midnight,
Centuries ago!
—Alfred Dommett.

BIBLE THOUGHT —FOR TODAY—

Bible thoughts memorized, will prove a priceless heritage in after years.
 RIGHTEOUSNESS BRINGS REJOICING.—When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when the wicked bear rule, the people mourn.—Proverbs 29:2.

We remember George L. Osgood, who has lately died. Many old-time music lovers of these parts will also recall the cultured gentleman who in the palm days of the Knox & Lincoln Musical Association used to come here to conduct that worthy organization. (We wonder how many of its members of that far-off halcyon period in local history are active in music today.) He added to his work as conductor the gift of solo and part singing, possessing a tenor voice of refreshing musical quality. That was a rare performance—it all comes back to us in a tide of delightful recollection—when he rendered the charming lyric "A Birdling Sang on a Linden Bough," with the chorus muting an accompaniment. Philip Hale, the noted critic, pays this tribute in the Boston Herald:

"George Laurie Osgood, whose death is reported, was known here by the younger generation as a composer of choruses, part songs and songs, but to the older lovers of music he was the accomplished conductor of the Boy's Club in years when choral singing was more appreciated than it is today, when hearers were more critical. Harvard graduates of his time remember gratefully his activities as a musician at the university. We first knew him as a singer journeying from city to city with Theodore Thomas and his orchestra, acquainting audiences with the songs of German composers, singing them most musically. He had studied singing and composition in Germany—among his teachers was Robert Franz—and he had spent three years in Italy with the famous Lamperti, so when he returned to this country, after a concert tour in Europe, he was thoroughly equipped as singer, composer, teacher, conductor. He was a man of fine, yes, fastidious taste. Perfection was his aim. He was liberally educated, interested in many things, but his passion was music. When he last visited Boston—a few seasons ago—he was still the delightful companion of former years, still musically alert, busied with a history of singing, which, we understand, was completed shortly before his death. In the history of music in this city he holds a high and honorable place."

LETTERS TO "SANTY"

Salvation Army Receives Many—What Two Little Girls Would Like.

The Salvation Army headquarters is besieged with Santa Claus letters. One of the letters printed Tuesday has been answered. Here are a couple more. Today is about the last chance. Loosen up, some of your tight-wads, and make a pleasant Christmas for these two kids.

A little girl who says she is seven years old, asks for some underwear, and something to play with, as "daddy is not well and cannot buy much." "Please don't forget my little brother, she adds."

CANCER CAN BE CURED

Cancer killed 914 people in Maine in 1921, which was the largest number destroyed by any disease. Cancer like pneumonia is steadily increasing, as are also the degenerative diseases of the heart and kidneys. Cancer is curable in its early stages because first it is a local disease and not a constitutional or blood disease. Because it is first a local disease, treatment in the early stage is often successful in removing every trace of the disease so that it does not return. If neglected, however, cancer spreads rapidly and gets beyond control.

Our citizens must be taught the danger of neglect in its relation to cancer. They must be taught to recognize the danger signals and seek advice and treatment at the earliest possible stage. All small tumors or sores that do not disappear or heal quickly should be looked on with suspicion and the advice of a physician should be sought.

THE FARMER'S INCOME

Will Be Less Than $465 Net This Year, Says Federation Officer

The American Farm Bureau Federation of one and a half million members, 2,000 county organizations and many thousands of community centers, representing 80 odd billions of dollars invested is now in the "throes of distress" for lack of a reasonable income to take care of actual needs declared Gray Silver, of Washington, representative of the National Federation, to the annual meeting of the Vermont Farm Bureau Federation recently.

He declared that the net income of the United States farmer will be under $465, this year. For remedial legislation he suggested:

Passage of the Muscle Shoals bill to reduce cost of fertilizer; passage of the "truth-in-fabric" act so that wool will not have to come in competition with reclamations from city dump or battlefield; passage of the milk-filled bill to free the farm dairy competition with the "cocoanut cow" of the South Sea Islands; reduced freight rates; a proper system of intermediate credits; quotations from banks that borrow from the Federal Reserve system at 4½ per cent and charge the farmer 10 and 12 per cent.

CRIE CORRECTS

A Wrong Impression Regarding To the Handling of Seed Lobsters.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

There seems to be some misunderstanding regarding the seed lobsters purchased by the State. I think many of the inhabitants have been led to believe that the dealers who have pounds to keep lobsters in as a storage basin, purchase the lobsters from Canada, with eggs attached, and then sell them to the State at an advanced price, because articles in the newspapers have seemed to convey that idea.

The dealers do not purchase any lobsters from Canada with eggs attached, but market lobsters, without eggs attached, and while they are in storage eggs appear, so when the lobsters are taken from the pounds, so called, the dealers find many lobsters with eggs attached and the State purchases them usually much under their real market value. The dealer generally waits from one to six months for his pay, because the appropriation has never been sufficient to purchase all the egg lobsters and pay for them promptly.

The dealers are not in the egg lobster business for the purpose of profiteering, neither do they use this as a means of extricating money from the State treasury. They store the lobsters in the pounds when there is a surplus, and hold them until the demand exceeds the daily supply, then the lobsters are taken from the storage basins and are put on the market. When these lobsters are taken out of the pounds there is always a percentage having eggs attached and it has been the custom for many years for the Director of Sea & Shore Fisheries to order the lobster purchased, weighed and marked as property of the State, by punching a hole in the middle flippers of the tail, then liberated to hatch naturally, and thus increase the lobsters on the Maine coast. Practically all of the fishermen agree that there is no other way in which the lobsters will increase so fast as by this method of procedure.

The dealers are not purchasers of the State Appropriation for the "Purchase of Egg Lobsters," as some would lead the inhabitants of the State to believe, but are in reality doing more than any other class of men for the increase of lobsters on the Maine coast. They should have every encouragement in this very essential work, and instead of being discouraged they should have at least the market price for the egg lobsters which nature has thrust upon them, and they should be paid promptly.

There seems to be a tendency to try to belittle anything that will improve and develop the great fisheries of the State, and the fishermen and dealers who are honest in their endeavors to help build a better and more profitable industry are doing so in order that a larger food supply may be realized at a cheaper price in the future. But anything which has a tendency to reduce the supply of the lobster, and thus violate the fishing laws, seems to be encouraged in almost every conceivable way.

Just as long as the daily papers and inhabitants continue to knock every honest endeavor to improve the fisheries and encourage the violator, just so long the inhabitants of Maine will continue to pay the long price for the fish they consume.

H. D. Crie,
Director of Sea & Shore Fisheries.

NEAR EAST ORPHANS

And What the Children of This Country Are Doing Toward Their Relief.

One of the most widespread appeals that has ever been made in the State of Maine is taking place this week in order to secure Maine's quota of the fund which will help to keep the Near East Relief orphanages open another year, and the thousands of little children in them from starvation.

To the 115,000 who were being cared for by the Near East Relief before the Smyrna disaster have been added many thousands of others who have been driven out of Asia Minor by the Turk, and whose parents are either lost to them, or dead.

The great Near East Relief organization which has so nobly shouldered the burden of caring for these orphans for the past five years, has reached out to embrace the new quota, but whether or not it can carry on depends entirely upon the generosity of the people of the United States. Certainly Maine will want to bear her share of the burden, and relying upon that the state director of the Near East Relief has sent 57,000 Christmas letters broadcast through the state asking the people of Maine to give a thought to these boys and girls at the Christmas season, and to spare a few dollars from their Christmas plenty to help keep a roof over their heads and food on their table.

Besides the assistance of the grown-ups of the state that of the children of Maine has been solicited. Nearly a fortnight ago Near East Relief barrels of pasteboard went to all the school teachers of the state, with the request that they remind the children in their schoolrooms that there were other boys and girls less fortunate than they at Christmas, and to ask them to contribute for these boys and girls. Already these barrels are straggling back to Near East Relief headquarters at 80 Exchange street, Portland, laden with pennies and nickels, and even an occasional dime or quarter which represent the concrete expression of the giving spirit of the children of Maine.

From all these sources the state committee of the Near East Relief hopes to raise a fund of sufficient size so that the Pine Tree State may hold its own with the other states of the union.

Any contributions to the fund may be sent to the headquarters at 80 Exchange street, Portland, and will be most gratefully received.

ADDIE HANLEY JACKSON

Mrs. Addie Hanley Jackson, who died last week at the family home, 1741 Winona Boulevard, Hollywood, Los Angeles, Calif., was a daughter of James R. and Eliza (Schenk) Hanley. Mr. Hanley, who was a mason by trade, came from Bristol to Rockland and lived in the large house that he built on Union street, at the head of Linden street—the house now owned by Mrs. Dannie Landers. The two sons of the family were Capt. James R. Hanley, who went to San Francisco and was for many years prominently known in shipping circles as a member of the firm of Snow & Hanley; and Augustus V. Hanley, who was a Civil War soldier in the Fourth Maine Regiment and U. S. regular Battery. The daughter, who was well known in Rockland social circles, married Joseph W. Jackson, who was the junior partner in the dry goods firm of Hewitt & Jackson 50 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson removed to California about the close of the 70's, but have always retained their interest in Rockland affairs and their old-time acquaintances, who will extend sympathy to Mr. Jackson, who survives his wife. There are also three children who survive—Augustus H. and Harry R. Jackson and Mrs. Nathan W. Stowell, all of Los Angeles.

EMPIRE THEATRE

In the selection of his players, David W. Griffith, the master of screen producers, has universally used the most excellent care, so as to assure his production of the most faithful interpretations. No better example of his excellent judgment in the choice of the interpreters for the screen lovers could be better than in the players he presents in his latest masterpiece, "The Love Flower," which is the feature at the Empire today only (Thursday).

The one most important thing in casting is the securing of players whose facial expressions can possibly emphasize the characteristics of the parts. No one in the entire motion picture field could have been better for the part of Bruce Sanders, a wealthy young plantation owner, than Mr. Randolph Scott, for his very being just typifies the very thing that Mr. Griffin portrays throughout the entire production, and with his world of experience, Mr. Barthelmess gives the character a particularly intelligent interpretation.

Another pleasing star is to be seen also on the same program: Katherine MacDonald in "The Yellow Typhoon." It is a story of love, intrigue and mystery and patrons of the Empire may expect an evening of keen enjoyment. Thursday's are set aside for the presentation of big super-features in the Empire and special prices prevail. 17 cts. Balcony and 25 cts. Floor Matinee and night.

Herbert Rawlinson in "Another Man's Shoes" and Will Rogers in "Doubling For Rome" are the two features for Friday. It is safe to say that Will Rogers never did a better nor more laughable picture than this. Saturday, Monte Blue in "The Broken Doll" and Vivian Martin in "Pardon My French," together with the second chapter of Elmo Lincoln in "The Romance of Tarzan" make up a big Saturday program.

The Empire offers for its special Christmas program Monday, matinee and night, Rupert Hughes' great story "Come On Over." It is a prancing comedy alive with action and will please all ages and all classes. The second feature is "Love Never Dies" with Lloyd Hughes and Madge Bellamy. A picture of love everlasting. Special Holiday prices for Christmas day, 17 cts. and 25 cts. Matinee and Night—adv.

PARK THEATRE

Those who go to the Park Theatre today (Thursday) and tomorrow are going to see another master production from the brain of Rex Ingram, the man who made "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." It is a big picture, done in a big and lavish way and carries with an evening's entertainment that will sweep you off your feet. A full account of this picture and its review will be found elsewhere in this issue of the Courier-Gazette.

Saturday, Charles (Buck) Jones comes in "Trooper O'Neill," a stirring story of the North West Mounted Police filled with thrills and an element of mystery that will grip you from first to last. The Lee Kiddies in one of their mischief making comedies is also on the program and will provide all the laughs with enough to go around for every patron present.

Monday, the much talked-of and much heralded picture "Timothy's Quest," by Kate Douglas Wiggin will be the attraction for Christmas day and Tuesday. So popular has "Timothy" become that it is safe to say that every man, woman and child within reach of Rockland is going to see him. A New England story as pure as gold, wholesome and worth-while. What could be finer for the spirit of Christmas Entertainment than such a character as "Timothy"? You'll never forget the story, and the characters will live in your memory forever. Special Holiday prices will prevail for this feature Monday and Tuesday—adv.

The Village Improvement dances at the 'Keag are to be continued, the next one is to be given Christmas night in the Grange hall.

Capt. George W. Hovey of Portland is inspecting the Knox county companies of the Coast Artillery Corps this week.

The recent item in this paper to the effect that the W. H. Glover Co. was getting out mill stock for the union church at North Haven was partly in error. It is the Baptist church.

Harold A. Robbins has sold his building on Tillson avenue to Frank S. Marsh, who will conduct a plumbing business there. The deal was made through I. Berliawsky's real estate agency.

Red hot polo is scheduled for the Arcade tonight and Friday night. A warm reception awaits the reorganized Rocklands, which will have for their opponents Tony Welch and his Taunton Terrors.

The almanacs tell us that winter does not begin until tomorrow, but yesterday was very fallish, to say the least. At Lufkin's, Glen Cove, a very reliable thermometer said that it was 23 degrees below zero; at Oyster River, Warren, it was said to be 28 below; at Union 30 below, and at Warren station 34 below. Nobody felt real sorry last night when the wind swung around southeast, and it began to spit snow.

Mrs. Charles Jameson of Camden street wonders if there is now living in Maine any other woman who shook hands with President Lincoln. This was her unexpected privilege in 1865, when on a sightseeing tour at the White House she emerged with a lady friend from the Blue Room, and ran almost into the arms of the President, who was about to enter with another man. Mrs. Jameson was much confused, but President Lincoln hastened to relieve her embarrassment, and shook hands with her very cordially. Mrs. Jameson is now 89.

Avis (Hemenway) wife of Eugene W. Palmer, died at her home on Grace street at 10 o'clock this morning.

Members of the Eastern Star are reminded to take their Community chorus books to the Christmas tree tomorrow night.

Marston's Orchestra will furnish music at Fuller-Cobb-Davis' store Thursday and Friday evenings from 7 to 9:30, and on Saturday evening from 6 to 8:30.

Fred L. Linckin has been appointed justice of the peace. The latest list contains a similar appointment for Carl A. Blackington of Waterville, formerly of Rockland.

The January planning meetings which are to be held by the Farm Bureau and Extension Service in all the organized towns in Knox-Lincoln county will start Jan. 2. The list will appear in Saturday's issue.

The latest bowling rumor is to the effect that Fred Hanley has pried Harry Phillips out of his retirement, and that the pair will bowl Charles Lawry and Eugene Peters ten strings at the Star alleys next Wednesday night. Wall street hasn't fixed the betting quotations yet.

In other years the officers of Golden Rod Chapter have met at the home of a member and enjoyed a "joke" Christmas tree. This year it was decided to invite the Star members to the tree, and meet in Temple hall at 8:30 p. m. If the tree is to be a success the members must show their interest by going and taking gifts and in this way make the "joke Christmas tree" an annual affair. Out of town members are especially urged to attend. Home-made gifts, such as dresses, aprons, hats, etc., will be allowed on the tree. There will also be an entertainment. Children are invited.

The Mitchell-Ranlett Co., corner Main and Park streets, invites the public to a Christmas concert to be given Saturday night in their store.

Car 24, in her new character, appears this week on the local street railway. She has been converted into the one-man type, with doors opening by air. The hot water heater has been removed and electric heating units installed as in cars 101, 102 and 103.

Political parties are not the only things which do not agree. A Rockland man who has three thermometers consulted them yesterday morning and found that one registered 10 degrees below zero, one 17 below and one 25 below. He comforted himself with the thought that he didn't have a fourth one.

Officers of the Knox county battalion of Coast Artillery Corps came home from the Portland "school" highly enthusiastic over the two days' session, at which all branches of the National Guard service in Maine were represented. Governor Baxter presided. Among the speakers were Adjutant General James Hanson, Col. Merriam, Col. Smith, Col. H. M. Bigelow and Col. George Fogg. The sentiment apparently did not favor Gov. Baxter's ideas as to limitation of the Maine units.

Golden Rod Chapter holds its regular meeting Friday at 7:30 p. m. There will be no supper, but work is expected. All merchants having bills against the "Star" are requested to send them as this is the last meeting of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Hamlin, who are now making their home in Scarborough are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, who is named Oliver Hamlin, Jr. The youngster tipped the scales at 10 pounds his first day on earth and the proud father is convinced that he will make a scrapper if he learns how to handle his dukes as well as he can his lungs.

Portland Press Herald: Before Judge Peters in U. S. District Court Tuesday, M. F. Donohue of Rockland was arraigned on a charge of maintaining a common nuisance. He had no counsel, and asked for a reading of the indictment which was secretly found against him at this term of the court. Donohue entered a plea of guilty and Judge Peters imposed a fine of $1,000 which was paid. An indictment alleging sale of liquor was not pressed. John O'Sullivan, charged with embezzlement from the United States of nearly $135 due for admission of taxes, pleaded not guilty, and Mr. Donohue was one of his sureties for appearance at a later date in the term.

Local sportsmen are marveling at the recent experience of Robert M. Packard's rabbit hound. The animal went hunting on his own hook last Saturday and failed to return. Two days later she was found by Mayor Daggett and Maynard Crockett entangled in a wire fence on Dodge's Mountain. One leg was torn in the animal's attempts to extricate herself, and was frozen stiff. In this position the hound had passed through Sunday's blizzard, and had been subjected to a temperature close to zero. The two hunters rigged an improvised stretcher and carried the dog to the City Farm, where first aid was given. The hound was doing first rate at last accounts, but the veterinarian is unable to say for a week or so whether the injured leg can be saved.

The destroyer Putnam which has been having a series of experimental trials on the Rockland course since a week ago yesterday, completed her work at night, but will not return from time to time for the purpose of obtaining further data. The four members of the Trial Board who have been in charge of the standardization tests—Capt. Tawressey, Commander Fawell, and Messrs. Ford and Moore—left for Washington Tuesday afternoon. They had decided members of the "Night Court" at the Thorndike Hotel during their stay and added interestingly to the discussions on various topics. The full board will come here for the next trial, which will be the builders' acceptance test of the new scout cruiser Detroit, which is now being completed at the Fore River Yard in Quincy, Mass. She is expected here the last of January.

Kirkland H. Gibson of Boston, who made an extended stay in Rockland last summer while his son Kirkland was at Knox Hospital, recovering from injuries received in a motor boat accident, died Monday night, after a month's illness. The deceased was a graduate of Harvard, and since leaving college had been associated with the Ivers & Pond Piano Co., holding at the time of his death the office of treasurer. He had been president of the National Piano Manufacturers' Association, and was affiliated with such prominent organizations as Boston Athletic Association and Eastern Yacht Club, as well as several of Boston's leading social clubs. He is survived by his wife, two sons, and two daughters. Mr. Gibson was extremely grateful to Rockland people for kindnesses shown during the serious accident which befell his son Kirkland, and to show his appreciation of the efficient service received at Knox Hospital was one of the most generous donors to that institution during its recent campaign.

It would be well for those who read this announcement to make no engagement for the evening of Sunday, Dec. 24—Christmas Eve—other than to go to the Methodist Episcopal church and witness the delightful Christmas pageant, "The Town of Bethlehem." The cast is composed of 35 persons and, together with the speaking, singing and dramatic features, this promises to be one of the best pageants ever put forth by the workers and interested people of Pratt Memorial. Further mention of the list of characters and other particulars connected with this will be made in next issue of this paper. A half hour previous to the pageant, Lewis Clark, formerly of this city will give an organ recital—adv.

Holiday shoppers, glad to get in off the cold street, will find rich sport at the Arcade tonight and Friday night when the augmented Rockland team will meet the fast team which is coming from Taunton, Mass. With St. Aubin and Skinner on the rush line and Therrien, Wright and Purcell for defense, Rockland has a team that the fans can afford to back to the limit. The Taunton outfit will be headed by Tony Welch, who played with Rockland last season, and who has been mixing 'em up in such lively fashion in the big league all winter. The rink has been re-arranged so that there will be no chance for time killing back of the cages. The fun is all going to be in front of the cages, and the game will be twice as lively, in consequence. Happy Day's Dreams and Max Dyer's Pirates will appear in the prelims. Amateur games at 7:15; big games at 9. Watch the fun when the whistle blows.

REX INGRAM

Scores Again With "The Prisoner of Zenda."

Motion picture fans who look for exceptional photoplays will have an opportunity today and tomorrow at the Park Theatre to see a picture which is one of the outstanding productions of the year, for Rex Ingram's "The Prisoner of Zenda" is the one big picture of the year.

It is a story teeming with dramatic action, full of intrigue, romance and excitement. It concerns the adventures of an English gentleman, one Rudolf Rassendyll, who, because of a remarkable likeness to the ruler of the mythical kingdom of Ruritania, becomes for a time its actual ruler and wins the love of the Princess Flavia.

"The Prisoner of Zenda" is the most popular romance of a generation. From the time when Anthony Hope, then more interested in his political career in England than in writing, composed it, the narrative of Rudolf Rassendyll's reckless adventure has taken hold of the hearts of all who read. This was the first of the stories of romance in little kingdoms in Europe, and no better indication can be had of its success than that it inspired hundreds of writers to imitate it. But none of the resulting stories had the zest, the devil-may-care spirit of the original, for that was written chiefly for the love of imagination the author had; it was as glamorous to him as to his readers.

"The Prisoner of Zenda" is a Rex Ingram production for Metro, adapted by Mary O'Hara from the Edward Rose stage version of Anthony Hope's novel. Matinee at 2 p. m. All seats 25 cts. Evening at 6:45-8:30. Admission 25 cts. balcony and 35 cts. floor.

THREE CASES ARGUED

Knox county cases were argued in Law Court at Augusta Friday. The list follows:

James H. Maybury in equity vs. Spinnery-Maybury Co. A bill in equity involving the acceptance of the report of the special master appointed by the court to pass upon claims.

State vs. Henry M. Cole and Lois McAuley. This is an indictment for adultery found at the January term 1922 at Knox county. The verdict of the jury was guilty and it is before the law court on exceptions to the overruling of a motion for a new trial.

Wilmer L. Ames vs. John T. Young. This is an action for forcible entry and detainer to obtain possession of certain real estate acquired under a mortgage. It is before the law court on report.

Lincoln county was represented by the case of Etta Barnes vs. Narragansett Mutual Fire Insurance Co., and Dirigo Mutual Fire Insurance Co. These two cases were argued together to recover on insurance policies. They are before the law court on agreed statement.

Attorneys present included E. K. Gould and A. S. Littlefield of Rockland, and H. L. Withee of Rockport.

TEACHING THRIFT

Barney Bernard, the well-known comedian, tells of a man who in the presence of a friend gave his little son a quarter.

"What's the matter with you?" asked the friend. "Are you crazy or what? Did you ever hear the like? Gives a little boy six years old a quarter like it would be a pants button already."

"That's nothing," the man said. "I give him three quarters a week!" His friend cried in anguish, "Um Gottes willen, what could a little six-year-old do with three quarters a week?"

"What do you mean 'what could he do with three quarters a week'?" the proud father asked. "I am teaching the boy he should be thrifty."

"Thrifty with three quarters a week?" the friend exclaimed.

"Sure," the father said, "he puts them three quarters in the gas meter. I tell him it is a savings bank."

MARKED IMPROVEMENT

Shown in Maine Industrial Conditions—Upward Trend Over New England

Industrial conditions in New England show a decidedly upward trend according to an analysis for November made public by the New England district department of labor.

The report of Director Charles Brown points to the employment situation in Massachusetts as "excellent," while for Vermont a "normal" status is said to obtain. Marked improvement is noted for Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

The textile industry of Massachusetts for the month past has shown a decided improvement, the survey said. Shoe factories for the most part are running full time with full forces. Granite plants are increasing forces but shortage of labor exists in the building trades, which continue active. A good demand for medium priced houses, held in the thickly settled districts and the housing situation is reported as not acute.

In Maine employment continues to improve, with full time basis prevailing. The shoe and shipbuilding industries are operating to full capacity but there is a shortage of workers in the textile industry. Railroad shopmen continue to return to work. Building trades in certain sections of the state are feeling a shortage of men. Housing conditions are improved.

Steady betterment of employment conditions is reported for New Hampshire.

GLAD TO BE HOME

But Lieut. Tyler W. Spear Found In Yesterday's Temperature Quite a Contrast.

When Lieut. (Dr.) Tyler M. Spear leaves Philadelphia Jan. 3, enroute for Panama, he will be able to tell unbelieving Southerners that he spent his leave of absence in a community where they were smelting and fox hunting in a temperature of 34 degrees below zero.
 Coming out of a comparatively warm climate, Lieut. Spear did remark considerably of a change, but out of the folds of a comfortable fur coat displayed now and then the features of a man who was thoroughly pleased to be back home, where such extremes of weather exist. Lieut. Spear will remain here until next Wednesday, and if he doesn't knock over a few rabbits and catch a good string of fish through the ice it will be because he has forgotten the tricks he learned in youth.
 Lieut. Spear is attached to the U. S. S. Wright in multiple capacities, chief among which are dental officer, athletic officer, and educational officer. The football team which came under his charge this season was one of the best that the naval service had to offer.

When that portion of the U. S. fleet which is now in Atlantic waters starts South a week hence for joint maneuvers in the Pacific, the air squadron will consist of the Wright (flagship), the Shawmut, a destroyer, four mine sweepers and 18 planes of the F. 5 L. type, each carrying two pilots, a radio operator, and three mechanics.

The Wright, Lieut. Spear's ship, is a converted transport, carrying about 500 men.
 Enroute to the Pacific stops will be made at the following ports: Charleston, S. C., Fernandina, Fla., Miami, Fla., Key West, Fla., Matanzas, Cuba, Valparaiso, Yaguajay, Bogota, British Honduras, Truxillo, Honduras, Great Corn Island, Nicaragua, and Colon. The fleet will then press through the Canal to Panama Bay.

From Feb. 9 to Feb. 17 the base will be on Panama; from Feb. 19 to Feb. 24, the fleet will devote its attention to problems of Panama; from Feb. 26 to March 23 the base will be on Panama; from March 26 to March 30 the fleet will overhaul and fuel, and the U. S. S. Mississippi will try the interesting experiment of firing on the ex-battleship Iowa, while the latter is proceeding under full speed, radio controlled; from March 31 to April 2 the fleet will be enroute to Guantánamo; from April 3 to April 21 there will be small arm practice; from May 1 to May 25, the fleet will be enroute for home yards, with full power trials and torpedo practice at Key West.

The return voyage will be via Guantánamo Bay, Santiago de Cuba, Havana and Key West.

It's mighty good to get the home news on these cruises," said Lieut. Spear, "but the New York postmaster evidently sends my Courier-Gazette in a bunch. I have a great time sorting and reading them when they arrive."

A NURSE OF THE CIVIL WAR

Experiences With the Army of the Potomac, Told By the Diary of Ruth E. Mayhew, a Rockland Girl.

Jan. 13, 1865.—Went today to the general hospital of the army of the Potomac and was entertained by Dr. Blunt, Dr. Eaton called. J. went back to his regiment. Made up a box for him to take. Gave a quantity of things also to Dr. Reynold of 1st Heavy Artillery.

Jan. 14.—Had a pleasant visit from Capt. T. of 7th Battery, also from his cousin, Serg. T. Have written six letters this evening.

Jan. 16.—Mr. Trask died this morning at half past four. Have been to the 24 Battery and to the Point to express some money for Mr. Jones of Waldoboro.

Jan. 17.—Visited the 3d Battery; found but three in quarters sick. Capt. Thomas and Lieut. Reed called.

Jan. 18.—Lieut. Lapham, Lowell and Perham of 7th Battery, Dr. Packard of 1st Vet. and a messenger from the 31st came this morning after goods. I made up a barrel of goods and a barrel of dried apples for the 31st, a large box of assorted goods and a barrel of dried apples for the Vets, and a package for the Battery. While they were here Dr. Shaw of 20th came.

Major Baker called. Dr. Baxter came to tell me he goes home on furlough.

Jan. 19.—This afternoon Miss Usher arrived. This evening went to hear Bishop Jayne at the chapel.

Jan. 20.—A letter from Miss Fox this evening.

Capt. Sparrow of 17th Maine was here till late in the afternoon.

Jan. 22.—Attended church as usual. The 3d Battery boys have been in as usual. Demuth and Irish came in to tell me they were going off in the next boat.

Jan. 23.—Still unpleasant, but George and I have been to draw rations. Miss Usher seems quite at home in our little army house.

Jan. 24.—Last night about 9 o'clock heavy cannonading commenced near us on the James river. Soon we heard musketry and knew then that something unusual was transpiring. The cannonading was continued through the night and till quite late this morning. We learned today that the rebels came down the river with a number of gunboats, followed on land by their infantry. We had not sufficient naval force to meet and prevent their coming down but providentially they ran aground. One craft is sunk and they are now of course in our power.

Jan. 25.—Miss Usher and I to the Provost Marshal's and had her name registered, then to Col. Morgan's and got an order to draw rations for her and a servant. Steward Mather and Serg. Perry passed the afternoon with us. Mrs. Ashley and Miss Carter of the Christian Commission called. Made a chicken broth and sent to the 3d Battery to a sick man.

Jan. 26.—Steward Dodge of 19th here and took stores to his regiment. Got a lunch for him and a New York soldier. Lieut. Staples of 7th Battery came. Miss U. has looked over and assorted our towels and handkerchiefs. This evening at 5 o'clock I was invited to a private wedding in the chapel, Major Eden and Miss Bain. They were married in the Episcopal form, by Dr. Wakeman of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Painter gave the bride away.

Jan. 27.—Serg. Sawyer of 1st Maine Heavy Artillery passed the day with us. A man from 1st Connecticut Heavy Artillery was hung for desertion.

Jan. 28.—Lieut. F. came in this evening. found us engaged with the soldiers in the reading room and threatened to have us court martialed for "drinking."

Jan. 30.—Letter came from home and from Mr. Hayes, who is icebound in Washington and will visit Harper's Ferry before he returns. A beautiful serenade this evening by some of the young men about the camp with guitar accompaniment.

Jan. 31.—To the 5th Corps to see a 16th Maine man, who is very low with pneumonia. Made broth and sago pudding and cooked blackberries and went with these and some other articles to visit the S. S. Found some half dozen in quarters, who were much pleased with what we carried. They have no surgeon and few facilities for taking care of their sick.

Feb. 1.—Had much to do as large numbers of sick have been brought in from the Division Hospital from the front. Brown of 16th Maine died this morning. A letter from Mrs. Sampson.

Feb. 9.—Yesterday and today a battle has been raging and many hundreds have been brought into the 5th Corps. Severe hallostorm raging all day. This must add very much to the sufferings of our poor men in battle. We hear no particulars that we can rely upon as yet. Since the last entry in my journal I have had a visit from Mr. Twitwell of Bethel, Col. Granger, Col. Noble and Dr. Palmer of 9th Maine, also from several of our officers and men from the front. Col. Granger is at Bermuda Hundred in charge of a brigade from the 10th Corps, waiting for transports to take them to Fort Fisher.

Feb. 13.—Still cold and blustering. I have been down in the 9th Corps to see Ganbert, and in the 2d to see Lord, who sends to me for what he eats, and his egg nog. We cook for several eggs, because they think what they get of us is better than that they get elsewhere.

Feb. 14.—While I was making custard for the sick, Capt. Mayo sent his ambulance for us to go to his battery and see an artillery drill, which we witnessed with a great deal of pleasure, and afterwards took dinner with the officers. This battery furnishes us with nearly all our wood. This evening at the Sanitary Commission of the Cavalry Corps hospital, quite a company of ladies and gentlemen present. Fine singing by a quartet of soldiers, accompanied by a guitar and violin. The performance on the violin was by a Swede and was exquisite. The soldiers were all connected with 8th New York.

Feb. 15.—A gentleman called to see how a box should be directed to us—on inquiry I found he was my cousin. He was settled as pastor of a church in Ellingham, N. H., but enlisted as a soldier. He is a corporal in 18th New Hampshire. Lieut. Stanwood will pass the night with us on his way home on furlough. Capt. McFarland, sailing master on the frigate Sabine, came to see me. Have not seen him for several years. Joseph has come to make us a short visit. Capt. Mayo dined with us.

Feb. 16.—Capt. Plummer to breakfast with us. Very muddy, but I have been out in the wards nearly all day. Capt. Abbott, brigade commander and Charles Snow called on me. Yesterday and today I have been watching very anxiously Mr. Norton of 19th Maine. He was one of the number rescued from the rebels just as we left Fredericksburg. He was wounded in the Wilderness, and has had a hard time this summer and is now sick and low, and I fear will not recover.

Feb. 17.—As muddy as can be. Have been out nearly all day in it among our sick men. Barnes is confined to his bed. Norton is no better, fear he will never be. Lord is better. Ganbert is much the same. Salesburg is improving rapidly. His father came tonight. Hill not as well, bleeding at the lungs. While I am writing Miss Usher, good soul, is ironing clothes. I have just written to Mr. Norton's sister, Mrs. Noyes.

Feb. 18.—Chaplain Crawford, Major Bolton and a Mr. Crawford of Michigan called. Had two barrels of vegetables put up for the Chaplain to take to the 31st. Got him a lunch which he enjoyed. Lots of men came to see him when they found he was here. Gave lunch to a great many of our men who came in to sit while the soldiers' room, and sent out a little to many more who could not come and get it. Mrs. Painter sits with us this evening.

[This is the final entry in the Journal kept by Mrs. Mayhew during her service as nurse with the Maine troops in the Civil War. Why her almost daily entries should have ceased abruptly two months before the war ended it is not possible to say. With the conclusion of her work at the front, or the cessation of military activities, Mrs. Mayhew returned to her Rockland home, and afterward filled the position of matron of the Bath home for children orphaned by the war, as stated in the foreword that accompanied the first instalment of the diary, printed here in the issue of Oct. 28. Gen. Herbert M. Lord, a nephew of Mrs. Mayhew, who has placed the Journal in the hands of The Courier-Gazette for publication, has desired this paper to deposit the originals with the Rockland Public Library for preservation.—Ed.]

Rockland High

The last Assembly for the term was held Wednesday morning. The orchestra played several selections and for the singing. Hagar 23 gave an article on "The Importance of Maine Rivers" that was very well received.

"The Whistler" Arthur Hall's prize story was read at Assembly by the principal who stated that she was pleased but not surprised by the young man's success.

The term just closed has in many respects been very satisfactory; the attendance was over 98 per cent and there were 160 pupils neither absent or tardy.

A social with Christmas tree was held Friday with about 160 present. Home made candy was for sale and the affair netted a good sum for the Senior class, who are much disappointed at not being able to hold their annual play. Miss Coughlin and Mr. Hall of the faculty chaperoned.

Many expressions of regret from both pupils and faculty are heard concerning the resignation of Mr. Philbrook. In discussing the status of the secondary schools in Maine, it's a wonder no one thinks to record the fact that the teachers in those schools might be properly termed "nomadic," and that these conditions are bound to exist so long as our communities fail to establish a standard wage.

There are at present at least ten Rockland teachers holding good positions in Connecticut. This is not an exceptional case but can be paralleled by towns and cities all over the State. In the Regional Conference held Dec. 8 and 9 at Boston, the first of the kind ever held in this country, the presiding officers were Dr. Payson Smith; Augustine L. Rafter, formerly of Damariscotta; Jeremiah E. Burke, born at Winterville and educated at Bucksport Seminary and Colby College.

Recent visitors: Miss Alice French, Boston Normal School of Gymnastics;

Hazel Winslow, University of Maine; Rose Adams, University of Maine; H. H. Bryant of Ginn Co., and Miss Madeline Stover of Lassell.

Found on the Floor

Roberta and I are sitting together, And she takes all the seat; She crowds me away from my side And braces with her feet. Poor little me! It's terrible The way she punches and punches. She whacks and thumps and smashes me And then my foot she crunches. I'm laughing now for the boys' sakes, She couldn't crack a smile! You wait a minute and then she will, And 'till reach a half a mile.

Mr. Philbrook: "Define a consul." Smarty Pup: "John Perry."

Mr. Crosby: "Miss Snowman, do you live near enough to take a message to Massalin?"

Rita: "Yes, sir, I live near!" Mr. C.: "Well, how far?" Miss S.: "About two miles."

Is Business Manager

Russell W. Thurston, a Rockport High School graduate, class of 1920, is business manager of the college annual of Boston University, a book called "The Hub." This position is one of serious responsibility and calls for considerable executive ability. We believe in the product of Knox county schools.

Warren Schools

The number of visitors at Warren schools Educational Week and the programs were briefly as follows: High—A program consisting of Education Week talks and compositions and a debate was held Thursday afternoon. Number of visitors 8.

The only pupils to have a perfect record for the term were Bertha and Ruth Moody who drive about four miles to school. Langdon and Edna Wiley had each but one mark for the term, being excused from one session. Grammar—No program was carried out. Thursday was visiting day and 16 parents and friends saw some of the regular school work. Of the 25 pupils in the school all but three had a perfect record for the week. The following pupils had a perfect record for the term of 14 weeks: John Connell, Parker Starrett, Edwin Kendrick, Clarence Walz, Helen Batheider, Alice Gammon, and Beulah Starrett; Edwin Leonard, Karl Moody and Margaret Stevens had but one mark for the term.

program was held Friday afternoon. There was also a farce, "A Suffragette's Home," which caused much laughter and was appreciated by all as a true picture of what might be expected in the future. The parts were especially well taken and reflect credit on the teacher, Mrs. Newbert and pupils. The program was closed by a few appropriate recitations. While waiting for the arrival of Santa Claus remarks were made by Supt. Rowe, G. W. Walker, and Mrs. Wentworth. Santa soon arrived and brought remembrances for all of the children. There were about 40 visitors present.

ALL WRONG

The Mistake Is Made by Many Rockland Citizens.

Look for the cause of backache. To be cured you must know the cause.

If it's weak kidneys you must set the kidneys working right.

A Rockland resident tells you how. J. J. Roberts, 10 Granite St., says: "Just recently I had an attack of kidney trouble. I got so dizzy I fell at my work on two occasions. The pains across my back were of a dull nature. I was in the lobster business and so much exposure and being in the water made it hard on my kidneys. My kidneys acted too often and I was up several times during the night on account of having to pass the kidney secretions. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which were recommended to me and they relieved the trouble at once. I have never been bothered since and gladly recommend Doan's." Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Roberts had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Melted ice cream can be transformed into a dessert much like Bavarian cream by allowing one teaspoon of powdered gelatin to each cup of melted ice cream of ordinary richness. Put the melted ice-cream in a double boiler or in a pan set in hot water, and, when lukewarm, add the gelatin, previously softened in a little cold water and dissolved in hot water. When thoroughly mixed with the warm cream, turn into a wet mould and set aside to become firm. Beating while stiffening gives a more spongy consistency. Where the ice cream is of several colors add sufficient melted chocolate to gain a one-color effect. Serve with whipped or plain cream.—From the January Designer.

The question whether sleeves for spring shall be long or short is being answered in some of the new lines now showing. The short sleeve seems to be the preferred type for the dress of sports proclivities, and it is inclined to be quite short, not reaching to the elbow in many instances. The long sleeve appears in more formal dress. This is rather a happy division, and allows plenty of elbow, especially as the lines between the two types of dress need not be very closely drawn. The three-piece idea continues to flourish and lends itself particularly well to Palm Beach togs. A new development is to have the dress all of one material instead of combined with crepe, and the jacket that completes the suit is frequently a little thing with sleeves merely suggested, so that one is not sure whether it is cape or jacket. In regard to red, there is quite a little of it being shown in just these effects. Whether or not it will be as big an influence as it was last season remains to be seen. There seems to be no question that soft raspberry and strawberry shades will open the season. White is expected to be better than ever. Black and white combinations look promising. Accordion pleating is much used on the new models, especially for the skirts of jaunty little silk suits. Velvet ribbon is box pleated and employed as a banding, and more is treated in the same way. The cut ostrich banding is very rich looking and has the depth and softness of fur, which it resembles at a little distance.—Dry Goods Economist.

THE TEXAS TURKEYS

Austin, Texas, Dec. 15. Editor of the Courier-Gazette:—Yesterday came my paper containing the turkey article. Today I was much interested in seeing turkeys being killed and dressed, or perhaps I should say undressed, because I timed a Mexican woman pick the feathers off a turkey in 35 seconds. The pickers bring the turkeys to a rack and hang them up by the legs, grasping the bird by its wings. The killer uses a sharp pointed instrument and lances the bird under its mouth, then slips its head into a long leather cup.

"Greaser" grasps the long feathers in one hand and with one pull they are all out; then the other wing and then the tail. Then the picker takes it to his or her picking rack. The whole process takes three minutes to a bird. The turk then is given a thorough washing and is hung up on a rack to dry. It is then put in cold storage on a rack to cool for shipment. They are packed in large barrels, and are sent all over the country in carload lots. I presented the gentleman with your paper, and he said that he wanted the article published. He was a man with the Texan spirit, with a big heart, invited me to come and dine with him at his home, and gave me a very fine broiled turkey. I bid the Noble good bye and went on my way rejoicing, and this evening I broiled the turkey in Hawken style. The family pronounced it as being delicious. Try one.

VESSEL NEWS

Badly battered, the four-masted schooner Samuel W. Hathaway which sailed from Jacksonville five weeks ago for Boston, has put into Newport News leaving, with booms and the jibs carried away, and short of food. Part of the deckload of lumber was washed overboard. Capt. Elliott reported to the owners, Crowell & Thurlow, that after being returned he will continue north.

Two Portland coal carrying vessels were chartered recently by A. W. Frost & Co., the schooner Ruth E. Merrill, now in Hampton Roads, having been taken to load coal at Norfolk to Boston, at 50 cents, 12 days loading and discharged, while the Oakley C. Curtis, now on the way out from Portland, gets 95 cents to Boston or 90 cents to Providence, 10 days loading and discharged.

THE PRATTLER

CXLV

It was mild when we went to bed last night, so we flung up the windows as high as they could possibly be flung. Now it is not our intention to convey the idea that our windows do not get flung up at all unless the weather happens to be mild. The extent of their openness depends entirely upon the degree of coldness, an atmospheric state of affairs which we are in the habit of sizing up in an almost instantaneous decision just before leaping between the coverlets. Sometimes in our judgment it is not wise to leave the window at a greater degree of openness than about six inches; other times, we throw prudence to the winds and fling wide the gates—meaning the windows. That is what we did last night and to our sorrow. At about two o'clock this morning a bitter wind came howling through our room that must have been gathering impetus all the way from Spain to Rockland. The curtain at one window flew into the room at right angles and the curtain at the other window flew out doors at the same angle. For almost an hour they both retained the same relative and flapping position. And the wind did all but blow us out of bed. No matter how much we pulled up the bedclothes, there was always one zone (this is a very personal subject, anyway, so we might as well be perfectly frank) between our shoulder blades, that it was impossible to cover and which would not permit us to go to sleep. We argued with ourselves thus:

"Shall I get out and close those windows, or shall I not? That hardwood floor would be a frightful thing to cross in a gale like this—guess I'll see if I can't arrange these bedclothes to better advantage. There, if I can't get comfortable now, I'll jump right out and close the windows. Well, for the love of—guess I'll try this other side. What I want is a fur robe with a hole in it just large enough for my head. Well, I guess I'll have to climb out and close the windows. But my feet would not get warm the rest of the night and it is absolutely impossible for a fellow to get any sleep with cold feet. Oh, this can't go on. Here I have been cramped up for almost two hours and am just about as relaxed and comfortable as though I was dangling by my thumbs from the chandelier. Oh, well, I might as well give one jump and then it will be all over. NOW then—I wonder if I couldn't reach that bathrobe over there on the bedpost. Why is it that the fool thing will never slip from the post when I want it in an emergency like this? Get OFF that post. It doesn't seem as though a fellow ought to be obliged to stand on his tip-toes just to get a fool bathrobe off a fool post. There! Now blow on! Blow those curtains right out onto Beech street for all I care."

And so we eventually dropped off into a much needed slumber and pleasant dreams. Dreams are always incongruous affairs and the greater contrast there seems to be in the occurrence of incidents, the more logical the dream appears to be. Even though our feet were like those of a snowman, we were whisked off to the sunlit shores of a tropical isle. The air was warm and delightfully pungent with the scent of blossoms and fresh foliage. Crimson flames flowed gracefully across a deep, blue sky; parrots of gorgeous plumage chattered and screamed from nearby palms; creamy white surf ran gently on the sand at our feet; elusive sweet strains of music came to our ears from somewhere, possessing an ineffable pathos and at the same time a poignant appeal. It all seemed so delightfully different from our lamentable experience with the wild winds from Spain, that we lay back on the sands with all the lethargic complaisance of a lotus eater. The strains apparently were coming from the heart of a nearby coconut grove and seemed to be coming nearer. Somebody mighty nice must be responsible for those wonderfully sweet strains. We peered into the grove, wondering who our lovely serenader might be. Suddenly the music ceased and was supplemented by a low laugh of such silvery appeal as to put the music to shame. The owner of the voice then stepped out into the warm sunlight. Imagine our surprise to behold none other than the Pearl of Gosceneck Reach in all the grace and glory of her youth and beauty.

"Why, Petunia," gasped we, "how in the name of all that is wonderful do you happen to be way over here? You were not meant for a tropical island, dear child. I did not give you the proper clothing for a climate like this."

"Don't you care, daddy, I'm here and I'm just as glad as I can be that I am once more with the only father I ever had. Why was it that you disposed of me so quickly in the serial, daddy? After you promised me that I would not be dashed to pieces on the roof of the Lone Tree Club in New York, naturally I felt somewhat relieved, but I have not been able to become at all reconciled to the necessity of winding up my humble affairs in one issue of 'The Courier-Gazette'. All those chapters jammed into one Prattler! Why couldn't you have let me live on a little while longer, daddy? Life seemed rather insipid and pointless at times, I must admit, but it was good to live, daddy, if only in the minds of a comparative few."

"It does my old heart good to hear your voice again, Tuny, dear child," answered we, "and I am going to see what can be done toward bringing you to life again, for I must confess that I miss you beyond the power of words to express. The hours I spent with you were the most acceptable ones of my life. Many is the time, Petunia, when your sweet proximity averted me from disaster—times when there did not seem to be a thing to write about. It isn't just me, Tuny, everyone who runs a column feels at times that he has reached the end of his rope. There has been many a time, child, when you alone have saved the day."

"Oh, daddy, you say such nice things. You do not know how wonderful it is to feel that after all I have had some purpose in this life. There have been many times when I have felt blue, so terribly, inconceivably blue, daddy, that I almost hoped I would come to some frightful end, like being burned to death in an aeroplane, or something. Has anybody inquired after me?"

"Quite a few, child," we told her. "Dr. Crockett especially. He rather liked your ingenuities and the way you always faced the music, no matter how many discords were being played."

"Oh, bring me back to life, Popsey. I want to go around to that nice doctor's house once more, for he is one of the few discerning readers of your column who liked me for what I am."

Its Body Is as Sturdy as Its Chassis

Lasting satisfaction with a closed car depends not only upon the dependability of the chassis but upon the durability of the body.

In the Special Six Sedan, Studebaker offers an admirable co-ordination of these vital requirements.

Stop in at our showroom and see this Sedan. Stand off and get a three-quarter view of it. Note its striking beauty. Step inside and relax in the nine-inch seat cushions. Note the great roominess and the completeness of the equipment.

Take a ride behind its 59-horsepower motor. Try the wheel yourself. Put it to any test—every test. Try its acceleration, speed, power. Ask yourself if you ever handled a car that steers so easily—that responds so satisfactorily with just what you want, when you want it.

The body is a product of Studebaker skill and craftsmanship which have been developed through more than two generations of vehicle building. Highest grade of materials and workmanship have produced a body as beautiful as it is enduring.

This Sedan is a good investment because of the saving in the initial outlay and the moderate cost of maintenance. The price is possible because Studebaker builds three distinct models with only one manufacturing and marketing cost and because middlemen's profits are virtually eliminated.

The name Studebaker stands for stability of body as well as chassis.

Central Maine Power Company is developing more power to meet the growing demand

Central Maine Power Company is again developing power.

This is a big part of its job—always to have power ready for the ultimate demands of the factories and homes of its territory.

This demand for electrical energy, which has steadily increased for nearly a quarter century, continues to be larger with each passing month. Industries are finding new uses for electric energy—homes are finding new uses. The demand must inevitably increase for years to come.

And so the Company is adding 6,800 horsepower to its power resources partly by redeveloping an old plant and partly by adding new units to older plants.

This use for Capital makes it possible for the Company to issue a relatively small amount of its 7% Preferred Stock. The price is $107.50, the yield 6½% net.

"TIMOTHY'S QUEST"

Famous Maine Film To Be Featured At the Park Christmas Day and Tuesday.

In casting about for a Christmas feature, Manager Temple of Park Theatre was so fortunate as to book "Timothy's Quest," Maine made, Maine owned, and written by a Maine author, Kate Douglas Wiggin. The picture will also be shown at the Park Tuesday.

It has been having a marvelous run in New York City. It was produced by the Dirigo Films, Inc., of which Frank Keizer is general manager. Among the directors are four well known Rockland men: A. S. Littlefield, Eugene M. O'Neil, Dr. Walter M. Spear and Frank Keizer. The president of the corporation is a former Warren man—Miles B. Mank.

"Timothy's Quest" is one of the most charming pictures we have seen in many moons. We took our six-year old sister-in-law along with us, and we do not know whether she or we enjoyed it more. An intelligent director, two adorable children and a fine actress have made a real picture out of a story which in less competent hands might easily have been made mawkish. Imagine a whodunit with no villains, no persecuted heroines, no camera-struck heroes. Honestly, it's true. Timothy's quest is simply to find a home for himself and Lady Gay. They are both children of the slums. Timothy is played by Joseph Depew, an exceptionally sympathetic youngster, and Lady Gay by Baby Helen Rowland, an attractive and irrepressibly jolly little infant who from now on is our favorite screen actress. The two, with their dog, set off on a childishly imaginative junket to find someone to adopt them. Fate brings them to the house of Martha Cummings (Marie Day). And from then on the excellent art of Miss Day makes it the gripping story of the gradual awakening to love of a hard old New England spinster. There are other story threads, but happily the director stressed only the main theme and merely suggested the others. Thus the picture runs smoothly and truly to its goal. Where, we inquire, has Kate Douglas Wiggin been all our movie-going life?
