THE IDEAS OF PRYOR IRWIN

Local Retail Merchants and Sales People Profiting From Information Imparted By Expert.

Counselor and retail investigator is the title which they took onto Pryor Irwin, who today delivers his final talks before the Retail Merchants' Institute. The six lectures already given have proven wonderfully effective, and the handful of men and women who attended the initial session has been steadily augmented. Rockland merchants have not been slow to realize that here was a master mind, a physician of business who could prescribe for their ailments, and who made them feel better by merely listening to his shafts of wisdom, sharpened by a nationwide experience with the retail trade.

Unlike many of the so-called experts who travel the country over, Mr. Irwin is not a "hot air artist" but his suggestions burn their way into the mind as the blast from the acetylene torch burns into steel. He makes you see with his eyes.

Making a Trading Center

Attendance at Tuesday's noonday meeting was nearly double that of Monday and there was a liberal sprinkling of the fair sex at the tables.

The topic assigned to this virtile speaker from the Middle West was "Getting the Most Out of Business." But here seemed to be an excellent opportunity for discussing the vital problem of trade extension and Mr. Irwin changed his subject to "Making a Trading Center."

"A retail trading center is not an accident," said Mr. Irwin, who proceeded to draw his lesson from what the farmer does.

First he needs must prepare the soil for receiving the seed. "How many of you have thought how necessary that is if you expect to draw patronage to your city?" asked the speaker.

Mr. Irwin illustrated his point by citing the experience of a small city in the Middle West. The Chamber of Commerce was holding a meeting to discuss the subject of how to increase trade, and was floundering helplessly for a method until one member suggested that the outside communities be asked to tell what they thought of this particular city and to voice their wishes of what best could be done. In accordance with this suggestion 400 letters were sent out, a stamped and directed envelope being enclosed in each. Sixty percent of the letters were answered and of that 60 percent 82 percent replied in the affirmative as to whether they read the local newspapers and advertisements they contained. In a majority of the instances the merchants were regarded as absolutely dependable and courteous to customers. In one instance a merchant was found to have short changed a customer four times. Investigation was made and this was found to be something of a "hebel" in the store. On the other hand complaint was made that a grocery store was charging excessive prices. An impartial investigation showed that the merchant was selling his goods 2 1/2 percent cheaper than the fair average for that locality.

"You must always expect to find kickers," said Mr. Irwin, "and the average kicker thinks that everybody but he is out of step."

The farmer's next move after preparing the soil is to plant the seed. With this in his text Mr. Irwin showed how more than 300 cities in the United States are using the co-operative advertising sheet. He cited first the instance of the small town in Missouri where 10 merchants got together and agreed to have monthly bargain sales, with each merchant offering two propositions which did not conflict with some other merchant. A board of censorship was appointed to see that the bargains were bona fide, and when this had been done the sheet was absolutely guaranteed, and the town was able to assure every visitor that there would be 20 real bargains on the advertised day.

An amusing incident to show the genuineness of the proposition was cited by Mr. Irwin.

A man from one of the suburban towns dropped into the city where the co-operative sale was taking place, and priced some automobile tires. The visitor expressed surprise at the price named.

"Why," said he, "the dealer across the road offers the same tire $2 cheaper."

The merchant explained the system and said that this was the bargain which his competitor was offering that day. "It's a genuine bargain," said he, "and I advise you to go across the street and buy from him."

"Pinch me," said the visitor, "I must be in Heaven."

"The matter of sales is overdone in a great many places," said Mr. Irwin. "There are times when they are a good thing, but cooperative sales like the above are not held more frequently than once a month. A bunch of merchants like I see here could get up such a co-operative sheet at about $5 apiece."

The third thing that the farmer does is to cultivate the seed.

In connection with this thought Mr. Irwin told of the complaint made by a farmer to the effect that the city never seemed to care about his presence except when there was a sale when it could get his dollar.

Business men may well ask themselves if their city is the logical place to which visitors can come for amusement as well as trading. One city in the West has met this question by building a large auditorium where everything from a lecture to an agricultural fair can be held, and where out of town visitors are always urged to make themselves at home. "Anything that brings the people into a city regularly and consistently is good business for the merchants," said Mr. Irwin.

The Salesman of Today
Changing conditions make it necessary to go after business aggressively. Mr. Irwin told his Tuesday night audience, and the most important factor in having a salesman behind the counter who is able to meet the public. In the final analysis the successful salesmen are the ones who can influence the people to see as they see it and who act as the customer would like to have them act. It is the same principle that makes for leadership in a community.

Tuesday night's address was delivered before an audience in which proprietors and sales people predominated. Closest heed was given to every word that fell from the expert's lips, and as he drove home his lessons with some telling incidents how to understand and approval could be seen all around the circle.

The day is not far distant when every public school will have a course in salesmanship, the speaker predicted. It is a profession—a high calling, and there is not a big outstanding success in the country today which is not studying salesmanship.

Certain basic principles make for successful salesmanship—things that must be known if the largest measure of success is to be met. The salesman must know how to influence people favorably. If he can do this he can get a job anywhere. The only way for him to get his salary raised consistently is to sell more goods.

Mr. Irwin's audience then accompanied him on an imaginary shopping tour, while he narrated some of his personal experiences during 15 years of retailing and observation. His first visit was to a Middle Western city in which he was a stranger, and the first store which he visited was one which had clean, orderly and attractive display windows. The stranger naturally

Judges from the outside. Mr. Irwin walked 10 feet toward the middle of the store and not a single person came to meet him. He walked about 10 more feet and finally saw two more persons and a young man in the rear of the store. The girls were intent upon their own gossip, and the young man was busy reading a newspaper.

Mr. Irwin waited a few moments, and then: Ahem!

The young man looked up over the edge of his newspaper, and finally came forward slowly.

"Did you want something?" he asked.

"There I was, a stranger with money in my pocket to spend. Did I want something?"

Mr. Irwin told of a Missouri store which devoted a half page advertisement to a shirt sale. A customer saw the "ad" and went to buy. The clerk looked at him blankly and admitted that he did not know there was such a sale on. Furthermore he had to be told where to find the shirts.

Mr. Irwin told of his visit to a men's clothing store, with a view to buying collars.

"How many, one or two?" asked the clerk, who should have said, "How many, sir?"

After the purchase had been made the clerk had an inspiration.

"You don't want a necktie, do you?"

"There he was," said Mr. Irwin, "telling me I didn't want a tie. If he had said: 'Here are some beautiful fall patterns in neckwear' he might have excited my interest."

Give a customer the same kind of a greeting you would personally like to have, advised Mr. Irwin. Offer your services in the manner most acceptable. First, make a favorable impression, then arouse interest in your merchandise.

Mr. Irwin told of his first visit to a bookstore where he had to wait until the clerks discussed the details of the previous night's show before they waited upon him.

On another occasion a store was conducting a necktie sale, with a window full of attractive ties at $1 each. "I examined several," said Mr. Irwin, "but before I could make up my mind which one I desired the clerk reached under the counter, and produced some knitted ties such as a man who travels a great deal likes to wear. In the end he sold me one for $3, instead of making a dollar sale out of the window. He had sold me just what I wanted, but I didn't know I wanted it until the salesman had explained his point."

In striking contrast to this display of salesmanship skill and tact was that shown by the salesman at the shirt counter of another store. The customer had expostulated at the price, and the salesman had replied in a matter of fact way: "Yes, they are very expensive." The proprietor overheard the conversation, and explained to the customer why the shirts were high priced, and that the firm had been able to get only a few of that quality.

Until you have a knowledge of your commodity you cannot sell it, was the lesson drawn by Mr. Irwin from this incident.

Mr. Irwin presented many anecdotes which enforced his points better than anything else could have done. Several instances were shown where the salesman talked a customer out of buying after the sales had practically been made.

"Don't confuse your customer," said the speaker. "Don't become insistent. Be tactful in your suggestions."

Some Advertising Essentials
It is exceedingly doubtful if a speaker in this city ever before held his audience intact when a general alarm of fire was turned in from a box in the heart of the residential section, yet Pryor Irwin did that thing yesterday noon and in spite of the wailing sirens and rushing automobiles not a man stirred until the address was completed.

The popularity of the speaker is attested by the fact that the dining room was overflowed and tables had to be used in the inner room. The general spirit engendered was shown by the rousing applause given A. F. Blaisdell as he stepped through the door, his first public appearance since his recent severe illness.

Secretary MacDonald quoted figures showing that the attendance had doubled since Monday and his appeal for funds to support the Institute met with a ready response that was self-explanatory.

Mr. Irwin plunged at once into the heart of his subject, "Opportunities in Advertising" by stating that never before were the opportunities or incentives for advertising so great. The modern newspaper, the low postal rates, the great extension of the rural free delivery routes, the widening of trade radius through good roads and the automobile, mail order house competition—all these tend to make it essential and indeed, imperative, that the retail merchant get into the advertising game.

"Trying to run your store without advertising is like trying to run your automobile without gas," he told his audience. "You would think me exceedingly foolish and probably lock me up inside of three hours if I were to buy an automobile and insist on running it without gas because it cost money, yet I would be no more ridiculous than the merchant who tries to run his business without telling the people what he has to sell."

"Advertising," Mr. Irwin continued, "is not a quitter's game. You cannot run a few ads then lay down because you are not swamped with business. You cannot expect to spend five dollars for an ad and reach out with the other hand and pick up ten dollars coming back. It is the consistent, honest, reputation building campaign carried on continuously which builds confidence of a store in the public mind and provides a steady increase in business volume."

Here are a few of the rules laid down by the speaker:

"Advertise honestly, consistently and persistently."

"Write your ads in simple, straightforward English, the language the customer understands."

"Don't be afraid of using white space."

"Take your time in writing an ad, for you are really addressing thousands of people."

"Advertise only in the territory where the customers can reach your store. Don't advertise in South Africa."

"Know your own trade territory."

"Select your advertising medium carefully and judge values not by space rate but by paid circulation."

"Have faith in your territory," said Mr. Irwin emphatically. "Tell more people of your business, of the goods on your shelves and the service you render. The law of averages says that the more you tell the better is your chance for sales. By or rent a store, provide it with a stock, hire sales people and buy a cash register on faith in your store and community. Then advertise."

"There are only two real mediums of advertising—the local newspaper and the direct or personal letter system," continued Mr. Irwin. "The various booklets, fire alarm cards and similar devices are mere holdups. Hand over the money as charity—don't disguise it as advertising. High pressure methods are not as successful as the consistent, carefully worded campaign, building character and confidence. Tell the people what you have persistently, using plenty of white space, plenty of cuts, quoting prices and basing every statement on fact and your business will prosper."

The Human Element
Director Irwin preached the flaming gospel of personality in business to a crowded house in City Hall last night. He was "going good" as the saying goes and held his audience spellbound. His talk was largely a keen analysis of the salesman, and as his audience was almost entirely made up of sales persons, he sowed on fertile ground.

He cited the instance of a spectacularly successful bank in a mid-western city and showed how by personal experiment he found the secret of its success to be the unflinching courtesy and desire to be of service to the customer, regardless of financial gain to the bank, on the part of every employee, great and small.

"The human element is the greatest in any business," he thundered. "No business or organization can be stronger than the human links forged into its machinery. Salesmanship is the biggest business in the world and most of the great commercial houses of today recognize that fact to the extent of having training schools and by selecting prospective employees with utmost care."

The speaker described the real salesman as the man or woman possessing that rare element, tact in addition to a charm of personality or leadership. The real sales person is the one who gets the right persons and the right goods together, sending away a satisfied customer who will return for the next purchase. The successful salesman should know all that is possible about his customer—income, tastes, family connections, all things to help him think as he thinks. He must know the goods he sells and should devote at least one night weekly to the study of his product. "Tell me what you do nights and I can tell you where you will be in ten years."

In discussing the manner in which a sale is made Mr. Irwin described the so-called high pressure salesmanship "sell 'em everything in sight." He discussed various types of customers and illustrated the right and the wrong methods of approach and showed how many times a sale may be spoiled by a thoughtless remark. He stressed the point that every good salesman should appreciate the value of time and learn to utilize it to the full. The real salesman must know the power of suggestion and learn how to make it easy for his customers to buy.

In conclusion the speaker brought out the absolute necessity for loyalty—loyalty of employees to their job and their superiors and loyalty of employees to their superiors and loyalty of employees to their superiors in promoting ambition and progress. He proved that the great American principle of the greatest good to the greatest number was supreme in business as elsewhere and finds its expression in loyalty.

The subject of this noon's luncheon address at 12:15 at the Copper Kettle was "Getting the Most Out of Business" and in City Hall tonight Mr. Irwin will close his series of talks by discussing "Team Work and Community Development."

VIVIAN'S SONG

In Love, if Love be Love, if Love be ours,
Faith and unfaith can never be equal powers;
Unfaith in aught is want of faith in all.

It is the little rift within the lute,
That by and by will make the music mute,
And ever widening slowly silence all.

The little rift within the lute,
Or little pitted speck in garnered fruit,
That rotting inward slowly murders all.

It is not worth the keeping; let it go;
But shall it? Answer, darling, answer, no,
And trust me not at all or all in all.

HOW FAR A LITTLE CANDLE

In the course of yesterday's brilliant noonday talk on advertising, Mr. Irwin, emphasizing the point of aiming one's publicity directly at one's own territory, added: "Don't advertise for business from South Africa." Once upon a time a Rockland dentist received a letter from a citizen of Cape Town, South Africa, asking if he could have made for him and sent by mail a set of artificial teeth—and he enclosed the measurements of his mouth, taken with a foot rule. He explained that a ship had lately put in at Cape Town, commanded by a Thomaston sea captain, who had given the citizen a copy of The Courier-Gazette in which he had found the advertisement of the Rockland dentist. We agree with Mr. Irwin that our merchants should on general principles avoid spending their money to reach buyers in remote parts, yet here is direct evidence that the influence of The Courier-Gazette's columns is not confined to its immediate trade territory.

Yesterday's grass fire on Rankin street threatened for a few minutes to be a repetition of the big fire of a decade ago. It started near the railroad crossing at Rankin street and fanned by a strong wind swept down on nearby houses at a tremendous speed. A general alarm from box 42 pulled all the city's fire apparatus and nearly all its population to the scene while the quarry crews were hoisted out and sent to the assistance of the fire department. Another good stop can be credited to Chief Haverer's boys.

COUNTY POLITICS

Scene Shifting By the Democrats Has Marked Week's Proceedings.

The game of draughts or checkers, which the Democrats have been playing with reference to the State Senatorial nomination was completed yesterday, when the job was wished onto Jesse Overlock of Washington. Mr. Overlock was all set to go back into the lower branch of Legislature, but some shrewd hypnotist succeeded in convincing him that the title of Senator would be much more befitting, and that incidentally the field would be left clear for the nomination of H. N. Brazier in the representative class of which both Messrs. Overlock and Brazier belong.

Other politicians who had been discussed for the senatorship included Charles M. Richardson of Rockland, E. Frank Knowlton and J. H. Hobbs of Camden. Mr. Richardson, who is a very busy man in the grain business, has concluded to let somebody else lug the political worries while he continues his pursuit of the almighty D.

There had also been some talk to the effect that Mr. Richardson would run for representative to Legislature, but now it is said that the nomination will go to either Walter T. Prescott, who is convalescing from the effects of the municipal caucus, or Frank A. Tirrell, who is said to have been shoeed

The annual window washing bee at Edwell's barber shop took place yesterday, and the genial proprietor is now able to enjoy the scenery on the exterior. Reference was had to the several undeserving solicitors for alms who have descended upon the city of late with particular thought of a local woman who has been helped by the city and the Salvation Army, yet persists in begging from door to door. Fred R. Spear came back from the West a stauncher advocate than ever of permanent roads and clean streets. In this connection he shows The Courier-Gazette a printed interview with H. H. Windsor of Chicago, founder, editor and publisher of the Popular Mechanics Magazine, and summer resident of Camden, who has been spending the winter in California. The Windsors were so delighted with Pasadena that they prolonged their stay there several weeks. "I doubt that there is any other region in the world that has so many fine streets and paved highways," said the publisher.

"Europe has nothing to approach the fine highways of Southern California. Even obscure streets are well paved, and everywhere, even out in the country, they are kept scrupulously clean. How they keep them so clean is a mystery."

Quarterly drill pay was distributed among the officers and men of Battery G, 240th C. A. C. Sunday night, a total of nearly $1500 thus being placed in circulation. The members of the company enjoy their work, and none of them being in the millionaire class the drill pay comes in very handy as pin money. Tuesday night the Federal inspection took place, the inspecting officers being Major E. E. Farnsworth and Capt. C. B. Lindner, who are on their annual tour of the National Guard companies. They expressed their pleasure at the interest being shown by the boys of Battery G and at the general condition of the equipment. Captain Brown's men take much pride in their work.

Louis A. Jack, the well known Bath lecturer and humorist, made his second appearance before the Baptist Men's League last night, and confirmed his former reputation as a most pleasing entertainer. This time he gave some sidelights of his experiences in the World War, beginning with his enlistment in the 8th Irish Fusiliers of Canada and taking him through the thick of the fighting. The story was told in Mr. Jack's droll and inimitable manner, and abounded in humorous touches—the humor which makes an audience laugh, and the grim humor which is fully understood only by those who campaigned in the days when 40 men rode in cars which were built for eight horses. His story also had its serious side, and many men in Mr. Jack's audience saw French battlefields much more clearly than they had ever been able to since the war began or ended. The personal side of the story was naively told. Mr. Jack never sought to make himself a hero; rather he assumed the role of one who had rather run than fight—which nobody believes this capable looking young man did. Mr. Jack is an expert furniture decorator and sign artist, by trade, and between whiles he has written a book entitled "Rambles of a Roughneck," soon to be produced by Funk & Wagnalls of New York. If it is as good as his lectures instant success is predicted for it. It being the last regular meeting of the year a nominating committee was chosen—R. L. Thompson, Frank B. Miller and Col. W. H. Butler. It was again voted to have a May meeting, with strawberries on the menu if the price is not prohibitive. W. N. Benner, Jr., C. S. Beverage and F. A. Winslow were appointed a committee of arrangements.

MRS. DUNCAN'S range was bought in 1894. "I surely do feel proud of my Glenwood," she wrote us. "Some of the friends I baked for had new stoves."

Thirty-year old Glenwoods that bake "as well as they ever did" are not uncommon.

Miss Sidelinger is a graduate of the Maine Eye and Ear Infirmary and during the World War she aided herself with the Red Cross going on the Magellan. She was stationed at Vicksburg Hospital, Miss. After she returned she spent six months in Kansas City, Mo., where pneumonia and small pox were raging. Since then she has done private nursing which she gave up to take charge of the Red Cross classes.

At the Congregational church next Sunday an Easter service will be held. The pastor will preach on the subject "The Easter Message—What It Means." The choir will furnish special music. There will be reception of members and the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be administered. Service at 10:30.

NORTH HOPE

Best Whitner has been operating his wood sawing outfit at George Fisk's the past few days. Allen, J. D. Fiske and Loren Bennett were hauling lumber Monday to the road below the Turn Hill. The road was so badly washed however that it will take a lot more to put it into good traveling condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Wentworth and little son who are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hall, were in Appleton visiting relatives Friday.

If you chance to see the women folk of this neighborhood traveling around with mysterious packages under their arms do not get excited or worried. It is nothing but wall paper samples, and as the result many homes will blossom out in all the various shades and hues known to the decorator's art. Mrs. L. W. Bennett has several rooms dressed up already.

Talk about your pedestrians and cross country hikers! D. G. Wentworth of North Appleton can justly claim the medal for walking around here. He called at Willow Brook Tuesday evening on their way home from Camden which distance he had walked since sunset and said he was not even tired. He will be 73 years young next June.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertha Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clark were in Sanford Sunday.

To say that the concert given by the Paragon Chorus at the Star Theatre was a success is to give mild commendation to an organization that is a matter of pride to the town.

The third concert given in the Star Theatre called out a large audience. Under the skilled direction of Howard A. Fowler, conductor, the entire program was rendered with a brilliancy and faith that was received with hearty applause. Dora's "Humoresque" and the medley of Southern melodies by Hayes were perhaps favorites but it was indeed hard to select any number in particular so pleasing was the ensemble.

The absence of L. G. Reed, who was detained at home by illness, was much regretted. Mr. Reed has been connected with the band for many years and is a correct and accomplished musician. The concert was asked that all present who were not associate members of the organization should be paid by the conductor of $1.00 or more for the upkeep of the band. This money is to be paid to L. G. Reed, treasurer. The earnings will be given under the auspices of the band will be given three nights, April 30-May 2 in the Star Theatre. This affair will without doubt meet with liberal patronage.

WHEN THE FAMILY DOCTOR FAILED

Relief From An Unexpected Source Made Aged Woman Well Again.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Freeman of 77 Draper street, Dorchester, Mass., writes Priest's Drug Co., Bangor, Me.:

"My mother has been a sufferer from chronic indigestion for many years. Treatments with our family doctor offered little if any relief. On my husband's return from a business trip to Maine a few years ago, we decided to try a bottle of your Priest's Indigestion Powder which he had purchased at your store. Relief was immediate, but as the attacks continued more or less, she continued taking it (several bottles in all) and for a few years now does not know the pangs of indigestion. We keep it on hand all the time, buying two or three bottles at a time in case any of the family needs it. I have recommended it to several neighbors and friends, all of whom reported relief."

Hibbert's guest of Mrs. Clara Hibbert, National City, during the stay from Augusta to Washington, succeeding Mr. F. M. August. All were sorry to have Mr. Fisher go on the job as he has been one of the most efficient officers on the route yet, but all are glad to have Malcolm on the job.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hibbert spent Sunday at Washington Mills, the property of Mrs. Vera Hibbert. She expects her husband Clarence Hibbert home this week from Gardner, Mass., where he has been working this winter.

The funeral services for Mrs. Bertha Marson were held at the West Washington Avenue church Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. William Overlock officiating, in charge of B. K. Ware, funeral director. She will be greatly missed as she was a very efficient nurse and could and did apply herself to all the needs of the community and it will be very hard to place her. She also leaves four children: Mrs. Ethel Whitcomb of Syracuse, N. Y., Earl Kennedy and Mrs. May Hibbert of Washington and Mrs. Clara Hibbert. Interment was in the family lot at West Washington.

The Truth

About this Light-Six—plus proof on proof

THIS Studebaker Light-Six is the supreme value in the "thousand-dollar" class.

It offers, not a few, but scores of advantages. In its chassis it represents the best that modern engineering knows. In its steel and quality of construction it is identical with the costliest cars we build.

This is to offer you proofs. Then urge that you see it before paying $1,000 or more for a car.

Some evidence

The extra values which this car typifies have made Studebaker the largest builder of quality cars.

They have made these cars a sensation. Sales have almost trebled in three years. Last year 145,167 people paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

The multiplying demand has forced an investment of $50,000,000 in model plants and equipment. Of this, $38,000,000 has been spent in the past five years, so the plants are up-to-date.

The engineering department which designs and superintends this Light-Six costs $500,000 per year.

The machines which build it are modern and exact. 517 operations on this car are exact to 1/1000th of an inch. 122 operations are exact to one-half 1/1000th of an inch.

1,200 inspectors are employed to submit each car in the making to 32,000 inspections.

Infinite care

The steels are selected from 35 formulas, each one proved best by years of test for its purpose. On some we pay the makers 15% premium to get them exactly right.

The crankshafts are machined on all surfaces, as was done in the Liberty Airplane Motors. This to give perfect motor balance, at an extra cost to us of $600,000 yearly.

It has more Timken bearings than any other competitive car within $1,500 of its price.

$1045

Studebaker Light-Six

Scores of extra values

Built by the leader in the fine-car class. One of the cars for which people last year paid $201,000,000.

Built in a model $50,000,000 plant, producing 150,000 cars yearly. And saving you by quantity production from $200 to $400.

Built of the same steels, with the same care, as the costliest cars we make.

The car that saved 11.4% in operating cost under rivals. The car with 14 Timken bearings.

Mail coupon for book about it

The equipment is unusual. The cushions are of genuine leather, and are ten inches deep.

Every part and detail accords with Studebaker traditions. And the name Studebaker has for 72 years stood for quality and class.

A SEVEN-DAY RUN

Tampa, Fla., Apr. 19—A remarkable seven-day, 168-hour, non-stop run of 3,101 miles, just completed here by a Studebaker Light-Six touring car, is causing widespread comment among motorists in this vicinity.

Eighteen drivers, handled the car during the run. Taking out the time required for changing drivers, the Light-Six actually covered the 3,101 miles in 147 hours. Gasoline consumption averaged 21 miles a gallon and more than 200 miles per quart of oil were obtained.

Running continuously day and night, and forced to idle down constantly in congested traffic, the car's radiator thirsted for only one additional teacup of water.

The original owner, Monroe Lazarus of the Tampa Daily Times, drove the Studebaker for 15 months on daily express schedule over his newspaper route, for 68,000 miles. He averaged 4500 miles a month in the fifteen months. His records show an average of 20 miles per gallon of gas; eight tires were in service for 44,000 miles, and his total cost of operation, including every expense, was less than five cents a mile.

After 68,000 miles on this gruelling road work, the Studebaker was taken in by the Peninsular Motors Corporation, Tampa, who ran it 7,000 miles, making a total of 75,000 miles the car had been run. Then, without tuning up, the traded-in Studebaker was started off on the record-breaking run.

No adjustments were necessary during the test. The motor and car were in excellent running condition at the termination of the non-stop flight. This record, it is said, has never before been approached in the South.

Islanders were detained in the city Tuesday night by the blowing of a boiler section on the steamer Vinalhaven in such a location that repairs had to be made at Snow's. An 8 1/2 night session put her in readiness for her regular trip yesterday.

A MOCK MARRIAGE

Mr. Odd Fellow and Miss Rebekah Principals in a Miriam Lodge Ceremonial.

One of the prettiest society weddings of the year took place in the lodge room at Odd Fellows' hall Tuesday evening with over 100 guests present. The ceremony was preceded by a sumptuous supper, served by the Rebekah Circle, and the regular business meeting. The wedding party comprised: Bride, Mrs. Isabel Lewis; groom, Abram Nye; bride's mother, Miss Doris Hyler; bride's father, Miss Pearl E. Borgerson; groom's mother, Mrs. Annie Aylward; groom's father, Miss Mary Buttner; groom's grandfather, A. V. Sawyer; bride's grandmother, Mrs. Nina Davis; best man, Theodore Perry; matron of honor, Mrs. Florence Nye; officiating clergyman, John A. Karl; ring bearer, Miss Helen Sprague; bridesmaids, Miss Jeannie McConchie and Miss Ellen Buttner; flower girls, Miss Julia Davis, Mrs. Lima Carroll and Miss Ada Barbour; relative of bride, Mrs. Rose Sawyer; maid of honor, Mrs. Winnie Horton and Miss Mabel Harden; bachelor friends of groom, Jesse Carroll and James Aylward; usher, Mrs. Grace Rollins; mistress of ceremonies, Mrs. Nettie Stewart.

Mrs. Grace Rollins as usher conducted the members of the wedding party to the seats in the front of the room. They were introduced by Mrs. Nettie Stewart. Mrs. words cannot describe the ridiculous apparel. The blushing bride entered on the arm of the to-be-groom to the strains of the Lohengrin march played by Miss Ellen Rackliff, but the couple suffered an attack of cold feet and had to be rescued by their attendants. The ceremony was performed in a very impressive manner by John A. Karl, and the double ring service was used. The groom's gift to the bride was talcum powder and the bride's gift to the groom was a hammer. After the ceremony there was a short program, consisting of a solo, "O Promise Me," Miss Ellen Buttner; reading, Mrs. Grace Rollins; solo, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," Miss Mabel Harden; reading, Mrs. Winnie Horton, solo, "Oh, Gee, Oh, Gosh, Oh, Golly, I'm in Love," Ted Perry; mandolin solo, Miss Hyler; reading, Mrs. Nettie Stewart. Misses Ellen Rackliff and Ada Barbour acted as accompanists.

A stir was created when the sheriff of Beeswax county, Luke S. Davis, entered and placed the bride under arrest on the charge of bigamy, saying that she was not legally divorced from her former husband. The bride and groom were handcuffed.

The guests were then invited to the banquet hall where a very formal reception was held and refreshments were served. There was a very lovely bride's cake, which was cut by the bride. A short dance followed, music being furnished by Misses Hyler and Barbour.

WALL'S WINNING WAYS

Charlie Schofield Now Convinced That Henry Has No Heart.

"Why do you pick on me all the time?" asked Charlie Schofield Tuesday night, after his Stars had again been vanquished by Wall's Wonders at the Star bowling alleys. "Ask the women folks," replied Henry. And the score shows that the women folks were really to blame, although Mrs. Norcross of the losing team was high line for the fair sex. Miss Pease won the lead lifeboat by throwing the most balls off the alley in the first string.

The score:

HEALTH and HAPPINESS DUE TO TANLAC TREATMENT

Mrs. Benson Says World's Famous Tonic Banished Troubles a Year Ago—Was Miserable Following Flu.

"Tanlac has certainly meant health and happiness to me, for I have not had a sick day since it banished my troubles over a year ago," declared Mrs. Lena Benson, 146 Lancaster Street, Portland, Me., recently.

"Influenza left me so weak and miserable that I thought I would never be myself again. My appetite was woefully lacking. I could eat only soups, broths and toast and was as thin as a shadow. And nervous—why, I was nearly frantic and would go for a week without sound sleep. I had terrible pains all through my body and suffered so I could just sit down and cry. 'I will always bless Tanlac. It ended every ailment, built up my weight and made me stronger than ever. I now eat meats, potatoes, cabbage, etc., and all the fixings, sleep and feel fine, and my friends all remark how healthy I look. I would not be without Tanlac'.

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.

Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills.

BIG SQUAD WORKING

Rockland High Has One Thought, the Knox and Lincoln Pennant This Year.

With one of the largest squads that has turned out in years, including six or seven veterans, Rockland High bids fair to be a very strong contender for the Knox and Lincoln pennant.

Fred Knight, last year's veteran catcher, will do the bulk of the receiving, and with some Twilight League and local ball experience to help him, he should hit a fast pace, both in batting and catching. There are some very promising looking youngsters who are out to make him work. Those who stand out the most are: Jasper Chapin, Charlie Chapin, William Skane and Jerome Frye.

This year's team is captained by Elmer Rising, who will do the bulk of the twirling. Also working for the box position are: Kenneth Greene, who has been showing well in the indoor workout and Wendell Thornton, last season's veteran third-sacker, is working out with the pitchers. Sheldon Gray, a young portside, though of a very slight build, is showing some of the stuff that made his father a big leaguer. James Hopkins and John Flanagan also show a good deal of promise.

Frank Stewart, veteran first-sacker will be right on the job and is sure to hit the apple hard. Fred Stewart is the most promising candidate for second base. Wendell Thornton should show very well at the hot corner this season. James Murphy looks well at short.

Some of those who are making the veterans work are: Wilbur Frohock, Erwin Chase, Clayton LaCrosse, Horace Maxey, Arnold Nelson, Francis Merchant, Alexander Bain, Chester Mason, Clark Staples, Roland Packard, Archie LaCrosse, Robert Packard, Elmer Oxtun, Herbert Baum, Carl Herrick, Stanley Hall, Bill Allen, those out for an outfield berth are: Arthur Denner, Floyd Montgomery, Seymour Cameron, Sterling Putnam, Ero Massalin, Walter Ellis, Charles Tweedie, Frank Winchenbach, James Snow, Fred Ripley.

At the first outdoor practice many of the boys were hitting the ball hard, which pleased Coach Jones very much. A very stiff schedule is being arranged. It follows:

April 21—Rockland High vs. Rockland Alumni.

April 23—Rockland High in Vinal Haven.

April 26—Wiscasset Academy in Rockland.

April 30—Open.

May 3—Rockland High vs. Morse High in Bath.

May 6—Rockland High vs. U. of M. Freshmen, at Orono.

May 7—Open.

May 10—Vinal Haven High in Rockland, pending.

May 14—Rockland High vs. Lincoln Academy, in Newcastle.

May 21—Open.

May 24—Rockland High in Camden.

May 28—Lincoln Academy in Rockland.

June 4—Open.

June 7—Thomaston High in Rockland.

THE BALLOON TIRES

Reo Able To Attach To All Their Models Without Change.

George M. Simmons, the Rockland Reo dealer, was on the street Tuesday with one of his new Reo sedans equipped with balloon tires.

Reo is rather proud to exhibit the handsome car, and allows that Reo was among the very first manufacturers to see the advantages of the genuine low-pressure tires and that by the time their popularity started to grow by leaps and bounds, it was possible to deliver balloon-tired Reos in quantities.

Reo was also fortunate in that balloon tires were carried through all stages of development on Reo models, and when the new tires were ready to announce they were also ready to be placed on Reos without mechanical changes in the cars, for one definite size is used on all models equipped with balloon tires, and standard pressures for front and rear are prescribed.

With genuine balloon tires, the proper size to be used on any model can be decided by the weight of the car, as can the proper pressure to be used in the tires. According to Reo engineers, the one reason for some cars being unable to use balloon tires is the design of the cars, not the lack of standards in balloon tires.

Your last opportunity to see that merry, comedy-drama, "Six Cylinder Love," at the Park Theatre, is tonight.

The story is by William Dudley Pelley and the picture was directed by Jack Blystone who made "Soft Bullets" with Mix. It is the best of Gertrude Olmsted, Peg Wee Holmes, Phil McCullough, Gertrude Claire and Dolores Rousseau—adv.

The attraction for Friday and Saturday is "Poisoned Paradise" with a cast which includes Kenneth Harlan, Raymond Griffith, Clara Bow and Carmel Myers.

The plot of the story is an absorbing piece of drama told against the picturesque background of Monte Carlo. It is a moving, human experience of two young people who went there to try their luck at roulette and became involved in a series of singular adventures. Whatever you do, don't miss "Poisoned Paradise." It's a picture worth seeing, a picture that you'll remember. Also the last chapter of "The Steel Trail"—adv.

Seekers of thrills and excitement will be well rewarded by a visit to the Empire Theatre, where, last evening, "On Time" starring that thoroughly likeable master of stunts, Richard Talmadge, had his initial performance.

In addition to the new picture which permits him to put over his death-defying stunts this athletic young star has a personality which will make a decided impression upon every theatre-goer. There will be the usual short subjects.
