IT MUST BE BUILT

Great Need of a Bridge At Bath Ferry During Heavy Traffic.

All records were broken at the Bath ferry across the Kennebec River Sunday and Monday as far as the number of automobiles transported was concerned. Even two ferry boats could not begin to handle the traffic.
Automobile tourists, many of them with long rides ahead, were held up on either side of the river for long periods waiting to be taken across.

Such a delay occasions much complaint. Rather than run the risk of being held up for a long time, the drivers took long and round about rides so that they could get over the Kennebec River and proceed on their way. The coast counties of Lincoln, Knox and Waldo are the heaviest losers because of this ferry at Bath, but the entire State suffers indirectly from it, too.

Sentiment in favor of replacing the ferry at Bath by a bridge seems to be much stronger this year than it ever has been before, and the prospect is that the Legislature can now be prevailed upon to consent to the erection of a bridge at Bath. Even if it is found necessary to make it a toll bridge it must be built. Any automobilist would prefer to pay a reasonable toll in order to proceed with his journey and not have to wait for the accommodations of a ferry boat.

All that is required to make this bridge a reality is united effort on the part of the people who are most concerned. Before the Legislature convenes they should come to an agreement upon what they are to ask for and then go after it in a business-like way. Two years ago the proponents of the bridge across the Kennebec divided their forces. This afforded a convenient excuse for the Legislature to do nothing. This should not be allowed to happen again.

There were some personal jealous-ies injected into the bridge fight at the last Legislature, which also contributed to the failure to do anything.
This matter is altogether too important to be influenced by any such petty things as personal dislike or jealousy. Maine needs this bridge and needs it soon as it can be built.
A few years from now, after a bridge has been constructed, it will make little difference to anyone who fought the hardest for it, or who made certain proposals with relation to it.
Any person or group of persons who now attempt to inject any personalities into this matter should be severely condemned. There is altogether too much at stake to have the matter placed in jeopardy on such account.—

SIXTY DAYS OVER THERE

Some Things the Buffums Saw In Their Summer Vacation Spent In England and the Continent.

Travel abroad presents many allurements to the average person, but to Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Buffum, returned from the Old World, it had an added incentive for the reason that it gave them an opportunity to spend a portion of the summer with their son from whom countless miles have separated them since he engaged in the consular service in Danzig. Their stay in Europe was timed to coincide with David H. Buffum's 30 days' vacation, and together they visited many of the world's most famous show places, and revelled amid scenes hallowed by history's pages and immortalized by the pen of the world's greatest writers of fiction.
They saw another continent through eyes which had gathered erroneous ideas as to the great composite of which America is only in a slight degree the melting pot.

The Buffums sailed from New York on the steamship George Washington—on Independence Day. The voyage to Plymouth, England, occupied eight days, uneventful with the exception of one 40-minute which gave seafaring men some little concern. It struck the big steamship on the quarter, and caused her to do some uncomfortable rolling, as she had comparatively little freight aboard. Mail de mer made some inroads upon the passengers, but those with whom this little article has to do were so fortunate as to escape.
The Buffums on this voyage met many delightful persons, and some interesting types. It was a jolly, homey party, to use Mr. Buffum's own phrase.

Impressions Of England
Mr. and Mrs. Buffum landed in Plymouth July 12, and after going through the customs proceeded directly to London. Their first impressions of this country were distinctly favorable. They found the ride wonderfully attractive, with every foot of soil under cultivation and no unsightly walls or fences marking the division of property. Instead there were miles and miles of green hedges, wonderful flower gardens and many fine orchards.
The home of one of the largest seed concerns in the world was pointed out to them.

If there had been any tinge of homesickness it vanished when there came to them in the London railway station the smiling presence and happy greetings of a former neighbor, Mrs. A. W. Butler. Later they received a call from Arthur B. Richardson, who aided in making their London visit one of pleasant remembrance.

"We did not know that London don," said Mr. Buffum to a Courier-Gazette reporter yesterday, "crowding into our nine days' stay visits to Westminster Abbey, the Tower of London, London Bridge, and places to which every American goes if time and opportunity permit."

Saw Guards Charged
The Buffums visited Hampton Court, the famous palace of King Henry VII, the home as history tells of his six wives. The gardens are simply wonderful, and views of them are among the interesting travel mementoes which were brought home. The travelers visited the Court of St. James where the changing of the guards is an incident of never failing interest. On this occasion the Scottish Guards were relinquishing their post, and the scene was attended with a great deal of impressive formality in which the Scottish bagpipers played their part.
Mr. Buffum came away from the environment of royalty with a mental reservation to "brush up" on his history, and to know England better by virtue of having seen it at close range.

An Empire's Exposition
To have visited England and not have seen the Wembley Exposition is unthinkable. The Buffums spent two days there, and felt that they had only touched the edges of the British Empire there presented in miniature. The story of it has already been told in these columns, and volumes could be written about it.
"It is a wonderful effort," said Mr.
Buffum, "but I was told that it is not a satisfactory financial venture, and will be continued another year." From his post in Danzig, a five-days' journey, came David H. Buffum on the third day after his parents had arrived. Sightseeing in the London metropolis then took a new zeal and a new pleasure.

The streets of London are many and long, and one realizes the futility of hunting for the needle in this haystack, yet in the course of his peregrinations David Buffum one day met a Rockland man, Edward B.
MacAllister, who was attending the sessions of the American Bar Association. He also met a friend from Danzig.

A week in Paris—a pitifully inadequate period of time to devote to the world's gayest capital. The Buffums did what countless thousands of tourists had done before them. They beheld Napoleon's Tomb, the Arch of Triumph and scores of other places famed in history. Nothing impressed them so much perhaps as their visit to Versailles, where they walked in the footsteps of Marie An-tonette, whose artistic temperament had led her to create there a little village for play-acting purposes.
This is preserved as nearly as possible according to the original, with its picturesque paths, its pretty flower gardens and the old mill.

The hall in which the Versailles treaty was consummated possesses extraordinary beauty, with its mural decorations and paintings.
Home of Pate de Foie Gras A side trip from Paris one Saturday night took this Rockland trio to Strasbourg, in the heart of Alsace—for years a bone of contention along the border of France. Germany acquired it in the Franco-Prussian war and forfeited it to France as the result of the World War. "It ought to be made a free State," said Mr. Buffum, "because it will always be a source of contention."
The compliments of France to the German powers that were seen on one of the Strasbourg buildings where the heads of four statues of the deposed Kaiser William have been knocked galley west.

Strasbourg is famous for something besides, internecine strife. In this city originated that delicacy which is so eagerly sought by epicures in many lands—the pate de foie gras.
Stripped of its French title pate de foie gras is a goose liver, developed in a highly ingenious manner by the Alsatiens and converted into a most delicious condiment.

From Paris the tourists went to Munich in Bavaria—or Munchen, as it appears in German. The outstanding recollection of that city is the lake called Chiemsee whence can be seen a most delightful vista of the Bavarian Alps. For 20 days prior to the Buffums' visit it had rained and the Bavarian Alps had hidden their splendors behind that depressing curtain. Finally the Bavarian Weather Bureau relented and the Rockland folks basked in glorious sunlight, and marvelled at the distant wonders.

A Mad King's Whim
On a little island in this lake Ludwig II, called "The Mad King of Bavaria," built a castle which successfully incorporated the features of Versailles ornamentation—the King's special mania. The mural decorations are magnificent beyond description. The famous hall has been duplicated, and one long corridor is lighted on either side by 22 chandeliers containing many candles. Gold leaf has been applied to the lavish hand, and the hangings, furnishings, etc. are the best that money could buy. Everywhere there is glitter and display—but no sham. The castle was begun 50 years ago, but was not completed for an obvious reason—lack of funds.

It is maintained as a show place, and the fee for inspecting it is three rentenmarks, equivalent to about 75 cents. Rentenmarks are redeemable in gold, and in the haste of final departure from Germany Mr. Buffum failed to cash in one which is valued at $24 and another at $12. It would have been physically impossible to have brought home a similar value in ordinary marks as it took 100,000,000 of them to equal two dozen good American coppers, when Mr. Buffum was there.

The German Capital
From Munich to Berlin means that one traverses nearly the entire length of the German Republic. The Buf-fums arrived after midnight, and remained two days. They saw many of the institutions for which the German capital is famous, one of them Unter den Linden, probably the best known thoroughfare in the world.
The buildings in Berlin are not high, in fact this is true of all the foreign capitals—an eight-story structure being near the maximum.
The tourists had planned to fly from Berlin to Danzig—that mode of travel being almost as common as railway trains in those countries, and scarcely more expensive. The average commercial plane carries eight passengers. Circumstances caused the Buffums to change their plans, however, and they adhered to terra firma.

Arrived in Danzig they "put up" at their son's apartments which, by the way, are in the home of a family which like many others suffered

A Word About Danzig
Mr. and Mrs. Buffum studied Danzig with a peculiar, personal interest for the reason that it will probably be their son's home for at least an other year. With its environments it has a population of about 360,000.
It is a quaint old place dating back to 1200 A. D., before the regime of the Germans in that section. It is a free state, under the control of the Polish government, and the prevailing languages are German and Polish.
Among the many interesting features of Danzig are the defensive walls, many of which were built hundreds of years ago, and of which traces are still to be seen. It was fortified during the last war, and there are the high embankments on which were mounted the big disappearing guns.
"I was surprised to find that Danzig is a pleasure resort not unlike our own Atlantic City," said Mr. Buffum. "In fact it is called the Monte Carlo of that country. I had supposed Danzig to be too far north, and its summers of too brief duration to be a pleasure resort on so large a scale.
The winters, I judge, are not unlike ours, as to length and severity." The personnel of the American consulate numbers 30 persons. David Buffum, who has been there one year finds the work altogether to his liking, and will remain in Danzig for the completion of the two years which the assignment comprehended.

Our Standing Abroad
"American stands well in the estimation of most of the people of Europe," said Mr. Buffum. "The Dawes reparations plan was much under discussion while I was there, and the general sentiment seemed to be that it would help greatly in smoothing out the difficulties of the distressed countries. I found the Germans extremely polite and courteous. My impression is that the middle class has been very hard hit, their financial welfare having suffered greatly through the depreciation of the mark.
What they had in material things they still have, but the wealth with which to maintain their estates has vanished, or nearly so." Returning to Berlin, Mr. and Mrs.
Buffum left next morning for Bremerhaven, their port of departure. Mr. Buffum shudders even now when he recalls the hectic time which he had in obtaining the health certificates which are required of travelers in that country. He arrived at the dock two hours before the steamship was due to depart, and found that the examining physician had already taken his departure. Where to find him in that limited time was a problem which Mr. Buffum would never have solved but for his good fortune in coming across a man who was able to speak English, and who led him through an intricate maze to the presence of the doctor, who affirmed his official o. k. to the certificate without so much as a look at its contents.

Missed a Hurricane
The Buffums came home on the same steamship which had conveyed them to Europe, and had a delightful trip. They missed by a few hours the hurricane which damaged the steamship Arabic so badly.
A shovel board tournament was one of the diversions and the ease with which Mr. Buffum was eliminated made him the subject of much "kidding" on the part of his fellow voyagers.

An echo of the Presidential campaign was found in the "election" which was held during the passage by the 800 American passengers. The Democrats proved to have the ablest campaign orator, but when the votes were counted it was found that Coolidge had 64 per cent of them, while the balance was about evenly divided between Davis and La Follette. The open forum was held on the deck, and ballots printed by the George Washington's own newspaper plant were used.

On the July voyage the passengers were kept informed by radio as to the progress of the Democratic National convention, and on the return voyage had daily bulletins as to the progress of the world fliers, and the Chicago murder trial. And of course the baseball fans had their daily summary of the major league games.
The Buffums arrived in New York Sunday, Aug. 31, and home the following day, where Mr. Buffum lost no time in buckling down to his duties as treasurer of the Rockland & Rockport Lime Corporation.

But his thoughts often travel afield to the scenes which he visited and to the new viewpoints which he gained in another hemisphere.

THE OWL CRITIC

"Who stuffed that white owl?" No one spoke in the shop.
The barber was busy and he couldn't stop.
The customers, waiting their turns, were all reading.
The Daily, the Herald, the Post, little heading.
The young man who blurted out such a blunt question?
Not one raised a head, or even made a suggestion.
And the barber kept on shaving.

"Don't you see, Mr. Brown?" Cried the youth with a peculiar interest
other year. With its environments
it has a population of about 360,000.
It is a quaint old place dating back to

"I've studied owls,
And other night fowls,
And I tell you What I know to be true;
An owl cannot roost
With his limbs so unclosed:
No owl in this world Ever had his claws curled, Ever had his legs curled, Ever had his neck screwed Into that attitude
He can't do it because He's against all bird laws.
Anatomy teaches,
Ornithology preaches
An owl has a leg
That can't turn out so I'm stung for years, I've passed days and nights in a hundred collections.
And cannot be blinded by any deflections Arling from unwholesome fingers the tale To stuff a bird right, from his beak to his tail.
Mister Brown! Mr. Brown!
Do take that bird down.
Or you'll soon be the laughing-stock all over town!

"With some sawdust and dark I could stuff in the dark An owl better than that.
I could make an old hat Look more like an owl Than that horrid low Stuck up there so stiff, like a side of corned beef.
In fact about him, there's not one natural feather."

Just then, with a wink, and a sly normal lurch,
The owl, very gravely, & down from his perch.
Walked round, and regarded his fascinated critic.
(Who thought he was stuffed) with a glass analytic.
And then fairly hoisted, as if he should say,
"Your hearing's at fault this time, my boy.
Don't waste it spent on a little bird, I say.
I'm an owl, you're another." / Mr. Critic, I say.

MAINE LEADS OFF

If a September Republican victory in Maine is generally to be regarded as pointing the way to a nationwide result in November, we may comfortably look forward to the election of Coolidge and Dawes by a very large preponderance of votes. The majority of 35,000 given to Mr. Brewster is considerably above Maine's normal gubernatorial majority. Won as it was in the face of an extraordinarily bewildering campaign, with the other Republican candidates everywhere elected by a great vote, it may be set down as one of the most striking victories the Maine Republicans have seen recorded.

The forecast made in this column Saturday was confirmed in every particular. Mr. Pattangall's attempt to trade upon the religious prejudices of the people received its deserved rebuke. To what extent the Klan figures in the recorded vote it is not possible to determine, but one thing is certain, the Democratic candidate's effort to make it the sole issue of the campaign, ignoring every State and National question in which the people were interested and upon which they deserved to receive enlightenment, has been repudiated. There is no question of Mr. Pattangall's abilities, but they were clearly misdirected in this campaign just closed.

We must congratulate the voters of our party upon the splendid result of their endeavors in Knox County. The candidates presented upon the ticket were such as voters could unhesitatingly support, and their appreciation of this fact was warmly manifested in the returns as they came in from every town. To the successful candidates upon the ticket, to the earnest workers who contributed their time and effort to bring about the gratifying results, as well as to the loyal men and women whose participation produced the necessary votes, congratulations are due and will be proffered by those other counties of Maine which have joined in broadcasting to the country the news of a great Republican victory.

Every time you see a safety poster displayed on a tree, building or on a motor vehicle of any kind, it should bring a realization of the vast amount of work being done to prevent accidents. Two hundred and forty accidental deaths occur in the United States daily—sixteen hundred and eighty each week. These posters should remind you that every seven days the total number of inhabitants of a small town or village are completely wiped off the face of the earth in an accidental way, and that if the majority were not heedless, thoughtless or reckless eighty per cent of these deaths would not take place. This should be given serious thought by every person regardless of position or occupation. Statistics prove that accidents are reduced by carefulness and increased by want of it. There would seem to be no necessity to urge a person to be careful.

Readers who enjoy a good story assure us that the Oppenheim serial just concluded in The Courier-Gazette has yielded them a great measure of enjoyment. We can promise them additional pleasure in another story, this time by that wonderful popular writer, Zane Gray, whose books sell by the millions and entertain countless thousands in their seven versions. "The Light of Western Stars" is the serial for whose publication we have arranged and its opening chapters will appear in an early issue—full of the spirit of romance and adventure in this country's border lands.

More and more are people using manufactured gas for cooking and manufacturing purposes. Gas is potential heat manufactured on a wholesale basis and sold in concentrated form at retail. It is one of the greatest labor, time and money savers in the modern home or factory. This is the reason for the rapid increase in its use in competition with all other fuels.

Under the Constitution of the United States (we haven't read it lately but we believe this is one of its important amendments) it is permitted to wear the straw hat until including the 15th day of September—and as much longer than that date as its owner may care to do so. This is one of the privileges of living under a democratic form of government.

The voters of Maine assembled at the polls yesterday, and when their ballots were counted word went abroad through the Nation that the State had endorsed the Republican ticket from top to bottom, and stood for those principles which have been enunciated by Calvin Coolidge—"that silent man in the White House."

Senator Ralph O. Brewster was elected Governor by rising 35,000 majority; every Republican Congressman is re-elected; Bert M. Fernald goes back to the Senate with the backing of a good old fashioned Maine majority; and the next Legislature will have a Democratic membership so small as to be almost negligible.

The Republicans have carried practically every county in the State and a senator in Androscoggin county.

Congressman White's majority will be between 3000 and 5000. Senator Brewster had as a handicap to overcome the majorities of Lewiston and Biddeford, amounting to 8524. The other Maine cities were not to be stampeded, however, and the majority of them are in the Republican column by substantial majorities.

Not more than 20 representatives have been elected by the Democrats, and only one senator.

KNOX CO. LANDSLIDE

When the battle of ballots began in Knox County polling places yesterday morning it was doubtful if there were a dozen Republicans sanguine enough to believe that the Republicans would elect their entire ticket. Two years ago they had been compelled to divide the plums with the Democrats, and the latter jubilantly believed that it was the entering wedge for complete restoration to power. Their optimism increased as the campaign progressed and they saw many old line Republicans flocking to the standard of Pattangall. They felt that it was all over but the shouting, so far as Knox County was concerned.

Their hopes and their ambitions dissolved under the avalanche of Republican votes as rapidly as the snows of Alaska yield to the softening influence of the spring chinook.

Nobody, not even the most enthusiastic Republican, could have foreseen that the party would again carry every ward in Rockland, and give to some of the candidates an even greater majority than that which swept Mayor Snow into office last March.

Neither could the prophets have foreseen that Friendship would go Republican for the second time in its history; that Washington the time-honored sentinel of Northern Knox Democracy would march in a Republican parade, that St. George would come within four votes of foreshadowing its Jeffersonian allegiance—in short that practically every town in the county would show substantial Republican gains.

Senator Fernald's majority in Knox County was 1548, while Brewster carried it by 1654. Clerk of Courts Milton M. Griffin was high line on the county ticket with a majority of 1553.

The Republicans not only elected every candidate on the county ticket, but elected every representative but one. In the Vinalhaven class Charles L. Boman has a majority sufficiently large so that it can probably not be overcome by the Republican margins in Cribhaven, Matinicus and Isle au Haut.

There had been weird reports as to what Union was going to do in the Democratic line. What the Democrats really did was to take a licking by 141 votes. Here again Brewster was high line with Clerk of Courts Griffin a good second. Two years ago the Republican majority was only 85.

One of the surprises of the day was at Vinalhaven, where, in place of an expected Democratic majority Brewster had a margin of 63. The three favorite sons fared well, Tyler Coombs having a majority of 154, Arthur Patterson having a majority of 236 and Charles Boman having a majority of 185. Patterson was high line.

Two years ago Vinalhaven went Democratic by 43. Warren increased its Republican vote 95 while the Democrats gained only 3. George W. Walker, candidate for State senator had the very happy majority of 211. Norwood, representative candidate was high line.

Washington would have been fully justified in touching off a tar barrel, for that erstwhile Democratic stronghold turned in a Republican victory for every candidate on the ticket. Norwood was high line.

The Democrats had high hopes of getting a close break in Rockland, but were not prepared for the staggering Republican victory represented by Senator Fernald's margin of 715 and Brewster's margin 599. Judge Campbell was high line with a majority of 771, closely followed by Griffin's 761.

WHAT THE COUNTY DID

Appleton increased its Republican vote of two years ago and gave Brewster a majority of 30. It did not forget to give its own candidate a handsome endorsement, George W. Gushee's majority in the county commissioner contest in that town being 61. Appleton at last gets a county office.

It was election day in Camden all right. The Republican vote there was nearly as large as the combined vote two years ago, an added incentive to go to the polls being found in the fact that the town had three favorite sons on the ticket. Brewster's popularity in Camden was seen in his splendid majority of 315 over Pattangall, and the fact that he was high man on the ticket. He ran 47 ahead of Congressman White, who is also very popular in Megunticook town. The Camden vote showed Republican margins all the way down the list until the county treasuryship contest was reached. Then there was much cheering when it was announced that John L. Tewksbury had received 876 votes. Another Democratic townsman who received loyal endorsement was Winfield S. Richards, who had a majority of 204 over his Republican opponent. Camden loyalty did not confine itself to the Democrats, however, for Zelma M. Dwinal, representative candidate, standing second only to Brewster on the ticket.

Cushing, which gave a Democratic majority of 10 two years ago yesterday registered a margin of 19 for the Republicans. Patterson was the only candidate who ran noticeably ahead of his ticket in that town, although Ralph W. Davis made a good showing.

Hope was the one town in the county to increase its Democratic margin, but the Republicans are not very disconsolate at being licked by eight votes. The town's candidate for representative, Miller B. Hobbs, ran 30 ahead of his ticket.

The news from Friendship made the boys sit up and take notice, for that town went Republican the second time in its history. The net Republican gain over two years was 92. Davis ran ahead of his ticket 14 votes.

Good old Republican North Haven stood loyally by its guns, with a majority of 87 for Brewster. J. O. Brown, representative candidate had the very handsome majority of 127.

Owl's Head, which went Democratic two years ago, registered a Republican majority of 30. Judge Campbell was high line.

Rockport was one of the towns which contributed a notable gain to the Republican landslide. The party increased its vote there an even hundred, while the Democratic total was one smaller than two years ago. Former County Attorney H. L. Withee, running for judge of probate, and Brazier, for representative were the only Democrats to have majorities in this town.

The 115 Democrats who supported the ticket in South Thomaston two years ago, did so again yesterday, but the Republican vote was increased 43. This town paid a fine tribute to Milton Griffin, clerk of courts, by giving him a majority.

Griffin also carried old rock-ribbed St. George, and Brewster came within four of it. Two years ago this town went Democratic by 95. Verily, times have changed.

It is doubtful if there is another Knox County town where the Republicans felt so happy last night as they did in Thomaston, which gave Brewster a majority of 113, as compared with the Democratic victory of 25 two years ago. The G. O. P. has a fine working organization in the Home of Knox, and its victory is very sweet after having been forced so long to play the role of under dog. Hollis Gilchrest may well feel gratified with his majority of 149.

The Courier-Gazette staff made a quick cleanup of the Knox County returns last night, much to the satisfaction of the big crowd which constantly filled the office, eager for news of what was supposed to be "the closest election in years."

The first "straw" came from Clarence S. Beverage, whose report as to the number of "straight" in Ward 2 left no doubt as to that precinct having registered a big Republican majority. This was soon confirmed by C. H. Nye, Jr. Wards 7 and 6 followed closely and it was evident that Rockland was still in the Republican column, regardless of what might happen to the county or State.

The first town to report was Cushing. A message from Town Clerk Woodcock brought the welcome information that this town had shifted into the Republican column. Democrats got a crumb of comfort when I. Newton Morgan phoned the returns from South Thomaston, but this joy was short lived, as one after another of the county towns swelled the Republican majorities.

The Courier-Gazette is again indebted and grateful to its tabulation clerks, William J. Sullivan and E. C. Moran; to the others who assisted in compiling the returns; to its friends in the county towns, who so promptly sent them; and the Central telephone office, which placed all its facilities at the disposal of this paper.

Weather This Week

Weather outlook for the week in the North Atlantic States: Showers early part and again latter half; temperature near normal.

The annual reunion of the Fourth Maine Regiment, Second Maine Infantry and Naval Veterans will be held in Grand Army hall tomorrow.

Forrest Eaton has entered the employ of The Courier-Gazette, in the job printing department.

Miss Mabel Lamb is substituting in the office of Cochran, Baker & Cross until the new stenographer enters upon her duties.

Pictures of the U. S. S. West Virginia taken on the Rockland coast, will be shown at Strand Theatre this afternoon and evening.

Alden W. Allen, the new principal of Rockland High School is occupying his private office on the ground floor of the American Legion building, Linerock street.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Managers of the Home for Aged Women will be held Thursday at 2:30 at the home of Miss N. T. Steeper, Spring street.

William J. Sullivan, bookkeeper at M. B. & C. O. Perry's coal office, is having a fortnight's vacation, part of which will be devoted to a critical analysis of the election returns.

Michael A. Free, of the Edward Bryant Lime Company has been in Rockland for the past three days, and while here bought a new Rollin coupe for the use in his work.

Capt. John I. Snow has returned from Paducah, Mass., where his wrecking crew succeeded in raising the sunken steamer Sankaty. The wreck will probably be here in about two weeks.

The fall and winter work of the W. C. T. U. will begin with a meeting Friday at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. George A. Brewster, Franklin street. Delegates for the State Convention will be chosen.

Legal proceedings to cause the removal of Harry C. Hull from the office of superintendent of schools have been commenced, with Lucy E. Rhodes of the school board as petitioner. The hearing was to have been held in Supreme Court tomorrow, but the postponement of court one week means a corresponding delay.

Coal Age, in the current issue, contains an interesting article on "How Repair Costs Have Been Reduced by a Large Coal Company." The author is a former Rockland boy, J. P. MacWilliams, the electrical engineer of the Pennsylvania Coal & Coke Co. of Cresson, Penn.

On the right as you enter J. N. Farnham's residence at John's street you will see one of the John Wana-maker variety of dahlias. It is about five feet tall and has nearly 50 blossoms and many buds. The blossoms are large and a most beautiful shade of pink. It is a pleasure to look over his dahlia beds and examine the different varieties.

The editorial desk is indebted to J. H. Wiggin for a copy of the imposing official magazine catalogue of the Rochester (N. H.) Fair, which lays much emphasis upon its claim to being a sure-enough agricultural fair of the high-grade sort. Its dates are Sept. 23-26 and the attractions are so many and great that it must pay well for visitors to make the trip even so far as from this corner of Maine. We don't see how Joe is going to take in all the exhibits unless he closes his drug store while the fair is going on.

The Universalist Mission Circle picnic has been postponed until next week.

Cucumbers riddled and ruined by the recent hailstorm were shown today by Parker Merriam of "Sunny Acres," Owl's Head.

Rockland plays in Tugue next Sunday, and it is expected that Elmer Rising will be in the box to oppose Tippy Fechan. Alden Allen, the new High School principal will make his debut with the home team.

John O. Stevens, John L. Donohue and A. M. Pillsbury paid their annual visit to Pond Island Sunday, making the sail in Mr. Stevens' yacht. George Lurvey proved himself a most beneficent host.

Frank H. Whitney is substituting as keeper of the Franklin Island Light, while the regular keeper is having his vacation. Mr. Whitney had charge of this light many years ago and it has always occupied a tender spot in his heart ever since.

Several changes have been made among the heads of the R. P. Hazard & Co.'s shoe factory in Belfast. Harold Ladd, a former Warren boy becomes foreman of the last-making rooms. "Flash" is well known to the baseball fans throughout Knox county.

P. S. Philbrick, a well known Civil War veteran was knocked down yesterday afternoon on Main street by a passing automobile, suffering bruises and a severe shaking up. Mr. Philbrick was nearly to the sidewalk but was thrown back to the car track by the collision, striking heavily on his right side. He is resting comfortably this morning.

The Georgia Minstrel Boys aided by the Radio Four are booked for their street show from Radio Station WGY tonight. Wherever the radio waves of WGY have traveled these entertainers are known and no novelty program from WGY have ever brought a heavier volume of complimentary letters than these musical performers of the General Electric Co. The show will be made up of the conventional minstrel first part and an olio including a one act travesty called "When Caesar Sees Her." Tune up your set to WGY at 7:45 tonight and enjoy a good time.

Community Chautauqua ended a rather discouraging week with a presentation of "Daddies" Saturday night, several hours late but so notorious that the patient audience felt amply repaid for its trouble. The elements were decidedly against the success of the project as was the fact that season tickets were not widely circulated and the attendance correspondingly small. A deficit resulted and wiped out the surplus on hand. A straw vote is planned to sound the sentiment on Chautauqua for next year and if a reasonably favorable result is obtained the Chamber of Commerce will swing the proposition.

Bath Follows Rockland's Example In Organizing a Kennebec Bridge Association.

Bath has taken another step in the campaign for the building of a State-owned free bridge across the Kennebec River between this city and Woolwich.

At a meeting held at the Columbia Theatre Saturday night, with more than 200 representative citizens in attendance, Edward W. Macdonald, secretary of the Rockland Chamber of Commerce and also secretary of the Kennebec Bridge Association in Rockland Saturday, started a sister organization and N. Gatz Jackson was named temporary head. It was also voted to name an executive committee to have charge of obtaining members, the fee being $1 each.

This action followed an address by Senator F. W. Carlton of Woolwich, in which, with the aid of two large charts, he explained the cost of a State-owned bridge and the probable cost of a privately-built and operated bridge, if Maine were to take it over at the end of 10 years. Senator Carlton's talk was listened to with much interest, and sentiment appeared to be practically unanimous in favor of the project for which the Woolwich man has so long fought.

The figures relative to construction which Senator Carlton presented were obtained from large engineering concerns, and he stated that the bridge as planned would cost three millions of dollars.

Federal aid of $250,000 a year for four years should be deducted from this amount while the bridge is under construction, the total from the government being $1,000,000.

Then there might also be diverted $200,000 of the probable cost of new drops, slips and larger boats, if the ferry were to be continued. These two items would total $1,200,000 leaving $1,700,000 as the amount of bonds to be issued by the State.

The yearly income from the Maine Central Railroad and other public utilities, he said, would be $106,000 and if the $300,000 savings from the ferry boats be added to this, it gives a total of $141,000.

Then there should be deducted $7500 for operation, $8500 for maintenance and the interest on the $1,700,000 bonds at four per cent a year. This would leave a sinking fund requiring $37,000 each year. The sum of $95,000 a year would get $95,000 a year income, aside from maintenance and operation, Senator Carlton asserted, and unless there had been some mistake in the figuring the sinking fund will retire the bonds in about 23 years.

With reference to a privately-built and operated bridge, Senator Carlton quoted figures showing the immense increase in travel by the ferry and said that if this percentage was increased by 1930, or three years after completion, the gross utilities would be more than $250,000. Deducting $30,000 a year for maintenance and repairs would leave an income of $220,000. A privately-owned bridge, the speaker said, would net an income of 10 to 20 per cent.

If this State were to take over the bridge at the end of 10 years, the earnings would be an important factor in determining the price to be paid, and it might be a very large sum.

Senator Carlton declared that the proposed Richmond site for a State-owned bridge was not practicable. After he had spoken there was a general discussion of the subject, and water powers and highways were also talked over at some length.

BIG AGENCY FOR CORNER DRUG STORE

Award Announced After Lengthy Conference Between Carroll and Associates.

First Allotment of Sensational New Medicine To Arrive Today — George Treggett Issues Statement To Public.

Karnak, the sensational new medicine which has been meeting with such phenomenal success everywhere it has been introduced, will be sold in Rockland by the Corner Drug Store.

This important announcement was made today by L. M. Carroll, Special Representative of Standard Drug Products, Inc., after a long conference with his associates.

The first allotment of the celebrated medicine is expected to arrive here today and to be on sale at the Corner Drug Store tomorrow morning.

The decision to appoint the Corner Drug Store exclusive Karnak representative, stated Mr. Carroll, was the result of a careful survey of the local field to determine the stores best equipped to serve the public in distributing Mr. And's famous discovery.

It is the policy of these representatives for the distribution to have one thoroughly reliable and centrally located representative in each city.

"Everywhere you go," stated Mr. Carroll, "you will find Karnak is distributed by the most reputable and progressive druggists in each city. They are naturally anxious to obtain the agency because they know what Karnak will do and because of the distinction and prestige the agency gives them. However, I should like to congratulate the people of this city in having such a splendid up-to-the-minute store as the Corner Drug Store. It would be a credit to any city."

Mr. Treggett Issues Statement

"The management of the Corner Drug Store has long known of the remarkable health-building power of Karnak and the wonderful results it has accomplished, and they were among the first to seek a supply of the medicine for distribution here. After looking over the field first hand we feel the special agency could not be better placed. Their reputation for courtesy and fair dealing extends far and wide."

Enthusiasm permeated the whole establishment of the Corner Drug Store as a result of the award and everyone connected with the firm seemed keenly appreciative of the signal honor and prestige won by their company.

"Everyone here is elated," stated Mr. Treggett with a broad smile, "to be awarded the Karnak special agency is an honor which any firm would feel proud to have attained. However, I also want to say that we fully appreciate the responsibility the award placed upon us, for the appointment carries an obligation both to the public and to the manufacturer of the celebrated medicine."

"To guarantee the fair and impartial distribution of such a remarkable preparation as Karnak, which involves handling hundreds of individual purchases every day, and to guarantee that each purchaser receives personal satisfaction in the use of the medicine, but in order to secure the agency, we had to guarantee this and we are prepared to carry out our obligations to the letter."

Benefits Guaranteed

"Karnak is a medicine of such wonderful merit and reputation that for us to comment on it would be superfluous. It has met with astonishing success everywhere. We were fortunate enough to secure a few bottles of the medicine some weeks ago and distributed it among our customers. We therefore know first-hand the wonderful results it accomplishes."

"And I would like to say to the public that every guarantee of the manufacturers will be carried out by our firm. Principal among these guarantees is that if any purchaser is not benefited by the first two bottles of Karnak, his or her money will be cheerfully refunded. This indicates the confidence of both Standard Drug Products, Inc., the manufacturers and ourselves. It is unnecessary to say more."

In order to meet the enormous demand for Karnak that is anticipated here, an order for a big shipment of the medicine has been placed by the Corner Drug Store to supplement the initial allotment which is expected today.

Full and interesting facts about the new medicine will be announced tomorrow, it was stated—adv.

ABOUT THE HALLS

Some Traveling In Foreign Climes and One Has Been Seeing Maine.

William D. Hall, principal of the Castine Normal School, formerly of Rockland, and still for Rockland, reports that he received a radiogram recently stating that his mother, Mrs. Charles E. Hall, and his youngest sister, Jessie W. Hall, arrived in Honolulu Sept. 2. Mary E. Hall of the same family, who has been on a vacation trip to the State of Washington, and to Alaska, is expected to arrive in Honolulu Sept. 3 to resume her position as teacher in the Punahoa School of that city.

Mr. Hall, himself, has just returned from a trip to Moosehead Lake and Mt. Katahdin as a member of a party of nine men, most of whom are connected with the teaching profession. Mr. Hall states a well known fact when he says that one need not leave the State of Maine in order to find beautiful lake, forest and mountain scenery, rugged mountain climbing and healthful and interesting out of door recreation. Mr. Hall's party went to Mt. Katahdin by the way of Greenville, Lily Bay, Ripogonus Dam and the Hunt Trail. Last year practically the same party (which by the way is known as the "Ole Boy Mt. Katahdin Club") climbed Mt. Katahdin by the way of Millbrook, the Basin Pond Camp, Pamela, Chemney Peak, The Knife Edge and the South Peaks, returning by the way of Basin Falls.

A few years ago Mr. Hall climbed Mt. Katahdin by the Norcross-West Branch-Aol Slide route. He says he expects to go again sometime. This year the club disbanded at Ripogonus Dam, but five members returned to Moosehead Lake and climbed Mt. Kineo. This latter party consisted of Sanford E. Preble, Mrs. Sanford E. Preble (nee Margaret Murphy of Friendship) of Presque Isle; Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Libby of Augusta, Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Burrill of Augusta, Charles Preble of Farmington, Miss Maud Preble, a former Rockland teacher of South Orrington, and Mr. and Mrs. William D. Hall of Castine.

The scene from the top of Mt. Kineo is beautiful and peaceful beyond description, but old Katahdin with its rugged awe inspiring grandeur "just gets ye, that's all."

Good Motto for Life: "Bring Out the Best"

Did you ever stop to think what kind of a woman your wife would have been if you had not asked her to marry you? Or did you ever imagine what type of man your husband would have been if you had not answered "Yes"? Have you ever crushed any ambition, chased away any talents or driven inspiration from your household? What have you done to increase or develop your life partner's talents? Whether you are aware of it or not, you have either brought out the best side of that partner's life or buried all that was good in him or her.

China Had Great Ruler in Ch'in Shih Huang

Fifty miles south of the Chinese city of Peking has been discovered the walls of an ancient city, which flourished over 2,000 years ago. The walls embrace a greater area than the walls of Peking and lie buried at an average depth of four feet. Late in the Second century B. C. there arose a king in the then comparatively small China who compared favorably with Alexander in conquests and empire building and whose empire lasted almost until the present day. This was Ch'in Shih Huang, or Shih Huang Ti ("The First Emperor"), whose rule ending in 209 B. C., marks the close of the feudal period and the beginning of the empire in Chinese history. Shih Huang Ti subdued the feudal princes, built the famed great Chinese wall and successfully defended the country against the Tartars from the north, standardized money, transportation, writing and other things which aided centralization, and destroyed as much of the ancient classics and traditions as possible, with the idea that the history of the Chinese empire should begin with his reign.

Guiana Blow Gun

Perhaps the most elaborate form of blowgun is that made by the Indians of the Guianas. It consists of an inner tube fashioned from a certain palm which grows very thin and straight.

The play center and the knots are knocked out with a hardwood stick, and the bore, about one-half inch in diameter, is ground to a machine finish with a rough leaf which cuts like sandpaper. This barrel is then incased for protection in an outer casing made of two lengths of hardwood grooved down the center, glued together and bound with ornamental cane and beadwork, says the Detroit News.

A lip piece of carved wood is carefully fitted, and sights are added—actual front and rear sights, the latter open, the lower jaw and canine teeth of some small jungle cat—and the weapon is then a completed sarabutan, a fieldpiece of some eight to ten or twelve feet in length, according to the available length of the original inner tube.

UNDERWOOD WAS HERE

Distinguished Southern Statesman One of Rockland's Campaign Visitors.

"Alabama casts 24 votes for Oscar W. Underwood."

Those who attended the Democratic National Convention in Madison Square Garden and the thousands who heard the convention proceedings over the radio, will not soon forget this stirring announcement which marked the beginning of more than 100 ballots.

Thursday Rockland had the pleasure of seeing and meeting this favorite son of Alabama, who, though he never became a really formidable factor for the Presidential nomination was still the choice of many Northern Democrats.

Senator Underwood arrived in this city at 2 p. m. accompanied by Carter B. Keene of Washington, D. C., a native of Waldo county. The Senator was frankly hungry and he proceeded directly to the dining room of the Thorndike Hotel. Later he held an informal reception in the lobby, meeting a little group of the party leaders and other citizens, who were pleased to pay their respects to the independent politician.

The afternoon meeting on the Court House steps was presided over by ex-Senator Obadiah Gardner, who is an intimate friend and sincere admirer of the distinguished Southerner.

Senator Gardner introduced Mr. Underwood as "second to none in ability and constructive statesmanship."

The Alabama wore a tall fitting suit of blue serge, has a tall commanding figure, and is an orator far beyond the average statesman.

"I was never in Maine before," said Senator Underwood, "but feel exceedingly grateful to it. In 1912, when my name was first presented to the Baltimore convention as a candidate for President, I was proud to know that Maine cast many ballots for me. In the recent convention for 102 ballots, a portion of the Maine delegation stood solidly for me."

The speech made by Mr. Underwood, was devoted entirely to a scathing denunciation of the Klan.

The Question of Water for Your Country Home

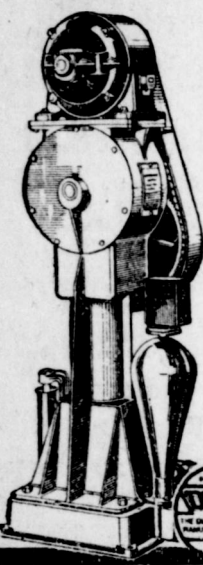

In planning your country home nothing is quite so important as the question of water.

Formerly it was considered sufficient for the farm or country home to have a hand pump or windmill. But now the hand pump and windmill are as obsolete as the old unsanitary outhouse or chemical toilet.

DURO Water Systems

"Just Like City Water Service"

made in many sizes and styles, enable any home anywhere, to have running water under pressure, all over the house, just like city water service.

Duro systems can be used with deep wells, shallow wells, cisterns or springs. They may be driven from high line current, farm light plant or gasoline engine.

A Duro system is a sound investment—it lessens labor and promotes health and cleanliness. It replaces drudgery and despair with comfort and happiness. And it is also a permanent improvement that adds to the value of your property.

PARK THEATRE

Today is the final showing of "Changing Husbands," a Cecil De Mille production featuring Leatrice Joy. It's a sparkling, laugh-provoking comedy about a wife who changes places with an actress who looks like a good deal like her to pass for her twin sister. Of course the unsuspecting husband goes right ahead loving his "wife" and the "wife" suddenly falls in love with her "husband." Complicated? Comedy? Sensations? You said it! In addition to the feature picture there is a two reel comedy and International News.

The title of the new Paramount picture, "Sinners in Heaven," which is coming to the Park Theatre for a two-day run beginning next Wednesday has a distinctly paradoxical sound. It is safe to assume that the picture satisfactorily justifies the title.

To those, however, who have read the story by Clive Arden from which the picture was adapted the title has an especial significance and it is certain that they will approve its retention in the screen play. "Sinners in Heaven" tells the story of a man and a girl who are through a fevered wreck on a tropical island off the coast of Africa. Try to imagine what would happen if you found yourself stranded in some remote corner of the earth, apparently a million miles from any sign of civilization, and your only companion was a person whom you cordially disliked! This is the situation that confronts Barbara Stockley, the heroine; and you can readily understand the dynamic possibilities for rich drama when we tell you that the girl eventually falls in love with the man and marries him, there in the heart of the African desert! How the marriage is performed and what happens after that, we will let you discover for yourself. With a combination of such box office favorites as Bebe Daniels and Richard Dix who portray the two leading roles, surrounded by such likeable and well known players as Holmes Herbert, Montague Love, Florence Billings, Edie Shannon, Betty Hiltner and Marcia Harris, the only fair thing to do is designate it as an all-star cast. Make a note of the picture date if you want to be amongst those present when "Sinners in Heaven" comes to town!—adv.

EMPIRE THEATRE

Tonight is your last chance to witness "Romance Ranch" at the Empire Theatre. If you love romance, love scenes, in a picturesque Spanish setting, with the fire of Spanish passion burning through every one of them, do not miss this new production which William Fox uses to star his "perfect lover" John Gilbert.

THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS

by Zane Grey

OUT under the wonderful western stars, near the turbulent Mexican border of the present day, most of the action in this thrilling story takes place.

While replete with the atmosphere, romance, exciting events and human elements so characteristic of its author's work, it strikes a note that is different from the average of western fiction; indeed, it is quite different from any of Zane Grey's other stories and has been acclaimed in various quarters as the best he has yet written.

Raise Fine Specimens of Butterfly in France

Butterfly culture in the south of France is rapidly growing in popularity. Here, under expert guidance, hundreds of beautiful specimens are bred. The farms are provided with special leafy trees and plants on which the eggs are hatched. Directly the young appear the branches are taken to a well-ventilated room, where they are placed in jars of water. As soon as the caterpillars have eaten up this first supply of leaves fresh branches are provided. Having been reared in an even temperature for about two weeks, the young caterpillars are taken out into the open, where they are placed on plants protected from birds by nets. When fully grown this protective net is removed and soon they retire into leaves. These are collected and stored in boxes, where in a very short time butterflies of wonderful hues are evolved. Cross-breeding has been tried and numerous experiments are conducted to obtain brilliant and original markings on the wings of these insects, which are afterward sold to collectors or for the adornment of women's hats and dresses.

Origin of Earring

Gypsies, some Spaniards and Italians and renegade tribes of Indians still cling to the ancient custom of piercing the ear and suspending various grotesque figures from it. The idea of piercing the ear has gone into almost universal disuse, although at one time the medical profession even suggested that piercing was beneficial to the organ of hearing.

Long before the dawn of civilization earrings were almost as important in jewelry as today. At the height of her power Greece adopted the earring, both men and women wearing it. The Greeks were the pace-setters in styles in those days, it would seem, for the Romans did not incline so noticeably toward the movement until it had been well grounded in Athens.

French Butter Markets

During the months of June, July and August the butter markets of Normandy are an interesting sight to the visitors. The peasants assemble in the market squares of the various towns, almost in military formation with their baskets filled with large pats of butter, each done up in the whitest of cloths. The buyers walk along the lines and bargain for the wares, tasting samples before deciding. If the prospective buyer is satisfied with the flavor of one morsel he knows he may rely on the rest of it being equally good, for the French law regarding the adulteration of food is very strict, and a fraudulent seller is severely dealt with.

Table of the Four Men

"I got off a street car this morning," said a doctor, "and being in no hurry I began musing on the actions and probable character of three men who had alighted just ahead of me. The first one was even then halfway down the block and was going on with such rapid strides that he had already put a couple of hundred yards between himself and the next man. 'There,' thought I, 'goes a hustler—a man who's bound to succeed in life.' The second man was walking rather slowly and I impressed me as one who would do fairly well, perhaps, in this world. But the last fellow was just dawdling along in the most shiftless sort of way. I very quickly set him down as a loafer."

Circles Around Moon

Circles around the moon are caused by moisture in the atmosphere. It frequently happens that the sunlight reflected from the moon to the earth is so refracted by the atmospheric moisture that a ring or circle is formed. The more moisture there is in the atmosphere the smaller the circle will appear. The form and size of the ring will depend entirely upon the particular condition and quantity of moisture in the air.

GROWTH OF FARM ACTIVITY

As Shown Since the Knox and Lincoln Farm Bureau Began Operations Five Years Ago.

This year completes five years of extension work in Knox-Lincoln counties through the co-operation of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, University of Maine and Knox-Lincoln County Farm Bureau. Previous to this time the work had been conducted without the assistance of the Farm Bureau organization.

Nov. 20, 1919, the first meeting of the County Farm Bureau was held and Harold Nash of Camden was elected president. That year there were eight committees with a membership of 239. The work done that year consisted of eight dairy feed meetings and the following demonstrations: 23 culling, 3 selection of broilers, 2 economic production, 2 sheep treating and 3 pruning; 111 boys and girls were enrolled in Boys' and Girls' Club Work.

In 1920 and 1921 the number of communities was increased to 14 with a membership of 397. The work done that year was as follows: In Farm Management nine meetings were held and 35 farm accounts, 27 poultry accounts and 3 labor record books were started; 112 boys and girls enrolled in club work and two standard club demonstrations were started. The value of the products this year was $13,672.88. The value of the products this year was $13,672.88. The value of the products this year was $13,672.88.

In 1922 and 1923 there were 15 communities with a membership of 430. A home demonstration agent was obtained at this time, and the women of the county were given a total membership of 223, making a total membership of 653; 166 boys and girls were enrolled in club work and three standard clubs were formed. The value of the products this year was $21,232.35, making a gain of $7,559.47 over the year 1921. The value of the products this year was $21,232.35.

In 1923 and 1924 there were 21 communities having 457 men, 22 communities having 403 women members, making a total membership of 860; 160 boys and girls were enrolled in club work. One pure bred Ayreshire heifer club was organized with five members. In the crops project eight manure supplement demonstrations and nine top dressing grass and lawn demonstrations were given. Four potato plots were given, and 429 hens selected. Eleven men reported as having selected 1250 hens themselves; two adult poultry clubs were started. Fifteen culling demonstrations were held; 1758 birds examined and 3245 removed. One hog raisers association was formed; nine racks tested for white diarrhoea. THE APPLE MARKET

Heavy Receipts of "Drops" Have a Demoralizing Influence.

Boston, Sept. 3. We have had five days of extremely hot weather and combined with heavy receipts of nearby drops, caused by the severe storm of Aug. 26, the apple market is demoralized. A few of the best hand picked apples are bringing outside quotations. Very good drops are selling at 40c to 60c and poor stuff is almost unsaleable.

Most of the Maine apples are small or show poor color and have to be sold low. It looks now as if low prices would prevail for the balance of the week or until the drops are cleaned up, but with cooler weather we are in hopes of seeing the demand and prices a little better.

Some of the apples on the Bangor boat that arrived Sunday and had to be held over until Tuesday were practically worthless because of the extreme heat.

Tiny Republic Admitted to United States in '34

Indian Stream republic existed within the present boundaries of the United States. Charles Parker of River Falls, Wis., a former lieutenant-governor of the state, was a boy in the tiny domain ruled by his father. The republic endured more than a decade, successfully defying both the United States and Great Britain—an independent nation, with politicians, militia, civil rights and taxes.

In 1873, when Great Britain and the thirteen colonies signed the treaty that created a new nation, they forgot a little valley tucked away in the New Hampshire hills. In 1820 a handful of settlers in the valley woke up to the fact that they were in no man's land. They were not Americans. They were not Canadians. Then Canada intervened in 1873 to include the territory in British domain. America promptly said it belonged to her. Then along came Luther Parker, adventurer and trader, who organized the settlers and set up a government of which he naturally was elected head. The little valley government at once drew the fire of both Canada and the United States.

Matters came to a head in 1834 when a group of Canadian sympathizers ambushed Parker one night and carried him across the border. The trumped-up charge against him was soon dismissed and Parker returned to Indian Stream. He circulated petitions asking admission into the state of New Hampshire on behalf of the republic. Parker went westward, and Milwaukee was the first white settler where Milwaukee now stands.—Detroit News.

Realistic Flowers Made

From Glass by Experts

Marvellous artificial blooms that resemble nature's specimens in every respect except scent, are now being made by expert glass-blowers.

Every part of the flower or plant is faithfully reproduced, from the most delicate stems and colored petals to the almost invisible pollen. The first thing which the maker of these "wonderful blooms does is to blow the petals from glass as thin and fragile as tissue paper. Colored petals are then shaped and colored exactly like the natural ones.

Some of the rarer plants cannot be easily reproduced, and often several experiments have to be carried out with different colors before a really good imitation is obtained.

These glass flowers are used extensively in museums, both to show details of plant or flower formation and as backgrounds for displaying specimens of birds and insects.—London Answers.

A Woman's Postscript

Do all wives open their husbands' letters? Was Harry's mother taking precautions that any woman should take, or was her daughter-in-law a special offender and as such especially sensitive on the subject? These glass flowers are used extensively in museums, both to show details of plant or flower formation and as backgrounds for displaying specimens of birds and insects.—London Answers.

"Harry, dear!" exclaimed little Mrs. Simpson to her husband. "I have been dreadfully insulted!" "Insulted? By whom?" "By your mother," answered the young wife, bursting into tears. "My mother, Flora? Nonsense! She's miles away!" "Flora died her tears. 'I'll tell you all about it,' she said. 'A letter came for you this morning addressed in your mother's writing, so I—I opened it.'"

Efficacy of Tar Water

Rev. George Berkeley, bishop of Cloyne, was an ethereal philosopher who set out to undermine the stolid materialism of his time, and two hundred years ago he maintained that matter cannot be conceived to exist, "the only possible substance being mind." The people throughout the country have taken a great deal of interest in the work as shown by the increase in number of communities organized and the attendance at meetings. The extension work in the future is to be conducted on a community basis, archbishops and bishops being invited to be made at community planning meetings which are held in December and January of each year.

The good bishop sometimes descended to earth to discuss the simple, mundane things. He had a curious obsession regarding the medicinal efficacy of tar water, which was much used in his time as a drink beneficial to all human ailments. "Tar water," the bishop held, "is of nature, so mild and benign and so proportioned to the human constitution as to warm without heating, to cheer but not inebriate."—Detroit News.

ALWAYS FOR THE SEA

Is the Mariner Who Tries To Settle Quietly Down On Shore.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—That article in a recent issue on the Sallons Snug Harbor was very interesting. Some of the yarns of the old sailors may or may not be true, but they are interesting just the same.

Harking back to the days of the clipper ships, when Boston and Salem were great shipping ports, and you could not see the shore for their spars—I have just been reading some "Stories of the Sea" by those old-time sea captains. The ports of Europe, China and India were as familiar to them as Boston was. One celebrated sea captain who had visited about every port of Europe and China and had retired from the sea, was persuaded to take a ship to Bremen. When he returned, his friends joked him about going to sea again when he once has given it up, to which he replied:

"Why I don't call a short voyage like that really going to sea."

Those were the days, when the U. S. A. was represented by ships in every port of the world. Some of the old-time captains were "drivers" all right, and this is a story of one of them.

He sailed his ship from Liverpool in a gale that lasted through the voyage, carrying sail so that the lee rail was under water all the time and the man at the wheel often had to be hauled to prevent being washed overboard. As the ship came up Massachusetts Bay bound for Boston, the wind slackened a bit so that the lee rail showed for the first time during the voyage. The captain came on deck and seeing the rail exclaimed:

"Why, here's a stranger!"

How tame life is on shore to a man who has sailed the bounding main for 50 years. How few of us are content ourselves with books and games. A great many ex-captains who set to land ashore took up life as storekeepers, ship builders, etc., but usually a seaman is a sea man and fitted for no other vocation. And as we sit and live over again those stirring days, we say in the words of the poet:

But the winds still call us onward to the sea,
And rest is dreary to the soul as meadows to the eye;
Let us leave the land behind us, let us launch the ship again,
And we'll sail for worlds undreamed of, far Horne till we—

PRESIDENT IS HOST TO "BIG THREE"

One of the outstanding features of the vacation trip of President Coolidge, who has just returned to Washington from a two week's stay at his father's farm in Vermont, was the visit of Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison and Harvey S. Firestone. On their annual camping trip, these three geniuses of industry and invention called upon the President on an automobile tour through New England, and for several hours discussed with him various problems and conditions. All three of them assured him of their hearty support of his candidacy for election.

The chief topic of conversation was the future prosperity of the country. The three camping companions assured the President that in their opinion the continued improving prosperity of the country depended upon the condition of the farmers. Agriculture must prove profitable for America to continue prosperous, they said.

"I think times are getting better, and for sound agricultural reasons," said Mr. Ford.

Interviewed during his call upon President Coolidge, Mr. Edison said: "We'll have great prosperity if the corn does not get nipped and crops in general are good."

Mr. Firestone declared that the farmer was the keystone of American prosperity.

"Conditions in this country will continue to grow better so long as the farmer is prosperous," he said. "It is the best meter by which to judge conditions. His is the basic industry of the country, and the one upon which our prosperity depends."

After leaving the President's farm

Mr. Ford, Mr. Edison and Mr. Firestone continued their tour through the Green Mountains, stopping now and then to talk with the people of rural New England and view the countryside. They spent the early part of their vacation at Mr. Ford's Wayside Inn, at South Sudbury.

Before visiting the President, Mr. Ford played host to 5,000 New England farmers at his Wayside Inn estate at South Sudbury, Mass. With Mr. Edison and Mr. Firestone, he supervised a plowing and agricultural demonstration, and invited the Farm Bureau Federation to use its grounds for its annual gathering. On the same day the Holstein-Friesian Association gathered at Mr. Firestone's old homestead in Columbiana county, Ohio, for its annual picnic, as the guests of Mr. Firestone, who sent his son, Harvey, Jr., to welcome them in his absence.

GET AT THE CAUSE!

Many Rockland Folks Are Showing How To Avoid Nerve Suffering.

There's nothing more annoying than kidney weakness or inability to properly control the kidney secretions. Night and day alike, the sufferer is tormented and what with the burning and scalding, the attendant backache, headache and dizziness, life is a burden. Doan's Pills act as a stimulant to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many Rockland people. Profit by this Rockland resident's experience:

S. M. Duncan, painter, 602 Main street, says: "The fumes from the turpentine have had a bad effect on my kidneys. I had bad spells of backache and it was a hard matter to get through with my work. My kidneys didn't act freely enough, there seemed to be a stoppage of the secretions. At these times I always went to Pen-dion's Pharmacy and got a box of Doan's Pills. It didn't take long to cure me of the attack."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mr. Duncan had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Big Lips for Beauty

Is Idea of Africans

The women of the Lake Umbagog region of Central Africa use the one another as to who can possess the longest lips.

When girls are about four or five years old their future husbands place a piece of lead pencil in the upper and lower lips within these holes he places thick straws or reeds.

In a few weeks, when the girl has become used to the punctures, wooden pegs of size of lead pencil are pushed into the holes, says London Tit-Bits. Three months later, when the lips have become accustomed to the distension, larger pegs are inserted. At twenty-five a fashionable matron of the Saratoga Springs is likely to have disks seven inches wide in the lower lip and five inches wide in the upper. Up to this time the disks stick straight out like birds' bills, but now they drop down from their weight.

Capt. David H. Sumner

Services for Capt. David H. Sumner, who died at his home Aug. 17, were held at his late residence Aug. 21, Rev. Percy Miller officiating. The Masonic fraternity attended in a body. Capt. Sumner was born in Thomaston, April 2, 1856 and at the age of 18 he commanded the schooner Daniel Pearson, a large schooner for those times. He proved to be a competent navigator and was soon given command of larger vessels such as the Saddle Sumner, Saddle Wilcutt, Sarah Potter, Alice May, Davenport, also most of the Palmer fleet. Capt. Sumner became well known in 1901 for crossing the ocean in the first five-masted schooner, the Rebecca Palmer, carrying 14,500 barrels of naphtha from New York to France. The Rouen Chamber of Commerce, France, took action on her visit and presented the Captain with a massive gold medal as a souvenir for being the skipper of the largest and only five-masted ship that had ever entered that port.

During the World War he enrolled in the U. S. Naval Reserve and was given the rating of Lieutenant Commander. He was on duty at Commonwealth Pier, Boston, having temporary command of the German ship Kromprinzessin Cecilie while she was undergoing repairs. Later he served on the General Court Martial Board at the Boston Navy Yard, remaining there until after the close of the War, at which time he was given an honorable discharge from service.

In Sept. 1919 he took command of the Schooner Hesper, a large four-masted vessel and made a trip to Lisbon, Portugal, thence to Venezuela, returning via Jacksonville in the upper and lower lips within these holes he places thick straws or reeds.

The entire community was greatly shocked to hear of his death and he will be missed by a host of friends. Interment was at Seaside cemetery with Masonic honors.

Where Realization Beats Anticipation

One of the most delightful experiences that I know comes to me whenever I leave the city and plunge for a time into the wilderness. It does not matter how prosaic the transition; I may stumble, laden with baggage, to a hot and crowded train, in which stodge men are forever bowed over the sporting page and their wives are scolding peevish children and scattered fragments of their too generous lunches cover the floor; the train may snort and fume its tedious way through leagues of suburban ugliness. All that does not matter. I can shut my eyes with the sense of a blessed release, for I know that at the end of the journey there is tranquility, writes William Chase Greene in the North American Review. Long before I have the breath of the pine forest, I can feel the coolness of that first dip in the lake closing about me; already I am standing at the edge of a cliff, watching the cloud shadows on the distant range. The peculiar delight of the adventure, however, is that realization always surpasses anticipation. That dip in the lake is always more deliciously cool than I had imagined; the stillness of the mountain side, the broken chorus of bird notes, the hushed voice of a hidden waterfall, the whiteness of the forest floors, always overcome me with a new surprise. The very sense of remoteness, though eagerly expected, seems unexpected.

Turf Natural Filter
France's experiments with natural turf have shown that it is an excellent material from which to form beds for the filtering of sewage. A volume of between three and four cubic meters of sewage can be purified every day for every square meter of the surface of the turf. An experimental turf filter that has been in use for more than seven months shows no diminution of efficiency. If a larger proportion of sewage than that mentioned is employed the filter proves less effective, but it recovers its power when the amount of sewage is reduced to the proper proportion. Chemical analysis and the effects upon fish put into the filtered water while in testing to the efficiency of the process.

IN SPORTING CIRCLES

Hazzards Lose a Lazy Game in Camden—Other Sporting Matters.

I SAW JOHN BIRD

at the Camden-Gardiner game in Camden Saturday, and my memory travelled back to the days when he was playing with the University of Maine and the Rockland locals. If I am not mistaken he also had an amateur polo team on the floor when a local league was thriving about 30 years ago. Mr. Bird has had a large share in the development of one of Knox county's leading industries, the Camden Anchor-Rockland Machine Co., but he is a steadfast patron of local sports and a staunch backer of his home team—The Sporting Editor.

Camden 5, Gardiner 1

The Hazzards of Gardiner made their final appearance of the season in Camden Saturday. By a score of 5 to 1 they held the turn for four innings. In the 5th, with two men down Camden scored three runs, and this seemed to take all the gimp out of the visitors, who during the remainder of the game played in the spiritless, lackadaisical sort of way which characterized them in the occasion of a previous visit. Perry's offerings were very tame, and he was hit to the far corners of the field.

In marked contrast was the splendid work of Cross, the Camden second-string pitcher, who held the Hazzards to a solitary hit, and fanned 14 men. Maybe there is some good reason why they have been hiding from the afternoon of Labor Day, and his pitching unquestionably helped win Saturday's game.

They made his appearance at third base for Camden in this game and a good hand from the crowd, and each got a hit. One's being a double.

Major Julia A. Stimson Headed Army Nurses During the World War.

It is not given to many women to have command over 20,000 of their fellows, but Rockland has been entertaining such a one the past week in the person of Major Julia C. Stimson, Superintendent Nurse Corps, U. S. Army. Major Stimson who is billeted in Washington, chose to spend her vacation at Cooper's Beach as guest of Miss Ruth Cobb, a fellow nurse overseas. With her came her secretary, Capt. Hazel Boulanger, and the three have found the week one of unstinted delight, particularly enjoying the beauties of Penobscot Bay as viewed from Owl's Head. The return to Washington is not scheduled until next week.

Major Stimson was in the first Overseas unit formed at St. Louis early after the outbreak of the war, and there was closely associated with Miss Cobb. The first six units went over as a part of the British expeditionary force and then on to Paris, with Miss Stimson as Chief Nurse. This was before America entered the war, even before Pershing went over. With America's entrance into the arena many more nurses' units were formed and Miss Stimson was advanced to Superintendent of the Nurse Corps, in charge of all the American nurses, eventually numbering 22,000—10,000 Overseas and 12,000 in this country preparing for the call. Her time was spent inspecting the various camps and hospitals and in putting into practical operation the thing which had been deemed impossible—the putting of thousands of women nurses into the field as a part of the army and subject to its discipline. Heretofore their work had been done by orderlies and men inexperienced in the exacting duties they were called upon to perform. The nurses, all graduate, registered operatives, worked in closest harmony and cooperation with the medical corps, doing a work that was little short of marvellous.

The nurses were non combatants and therefore not subject to enemy action, yet they were frequently known that the first three casualties in the American Force were in the medical division—the first a nurse who lost an eye—the second a medical officer, Miss Stimson's brother, who was wounded and the third a medical officer who was killed, all in enemy action. Though none of the 10,000 nurses were killed by enemy action, three were wounded and 101 died from accident and disease.

It is interesting to note that of the 22,000 nurses in the service in 1919, not one was drafted, all were volunteers and all graduate nurses. The fact that they were specially trained gave them a great advantage in carrying on their difficult work. The work is being carried on today with nurses doing excellent service in the Philippines and the other U. S. possessions. A school is maintained in a Washington Army hospital where a special three-year course is given for the training of army nurses, though there is no obligation for them to enter the service upon graduation. There are today 700 nurses in the Army with Major Stimson in charge of them. The nurses had no rank until after the end of the war, but now are recognized, their status being fixed by law.

Rockland friends will be interested in the marriage Sunday of Mrs. Alma P. Colson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Thomas of this city, to Walter A. Hoyt of Lynn, the ceremony being performed by Rev. John W. Ward at the South Street church in Lynn. The double ring service was used. Henry Hoyt, a brother of the groom, and Miss Emma Carnes, a friend of the bride, accompanied them.

After a brief honeymoon the couple will occupy their home at 225 Chestnut street, East Lynn, which is already prepared for their return. They had many fine presents including silver, linen and furnishings for the new home.

Mrs. I. R. Cutler of Oldtown has been in the city the past two weeks.

A marked smoothness characterizes the performance of Dodge Brothers Motor Car.

In keeping with the policy of constant improvement, effective measures have been taken to minimize vibration. Applied to the body, engine, clutch, brakes, and other vital units, these refinements add immeasurably to the comfort of travel over boulevards and country roads.

The effect is so pronounced, in fact, that it is entirely fitting to classify smooth performance as one of the outstanding attributes of Dodge Brothers Motor Car.

Heroes, vagabonds, adventuresses, villains, courtesans, beauties—they pass before you on the screen taking part in history's most glorious romance, a story that is told in the pictures against a lavish background that has never been duplicated in the annals of the motion picture.

A romance that will delight you.

Mothers!

Give the children WRIGLEY'S after every meal

A prominent physician says:

"It is surprising how free from decay the teeth can be kept by using gum after each meal."

You know how hard it is to get the children to clean their teeth. By giving them WRIGLEY'S you not only reward them for cleaning their teeth, but the reward is actually the means of performing this important service!

WRIGLEY'S aids digestion too, and acts as an antiseptic wash for the mouth and throat. Several flavors—all of

Motor Car Driving Must Be Governed By Sound Com- mon Sense.

"Who is to blame?" editorially asks a Boston daily, commenting on a collision between a car driven by a 16 year old boy and one driven by a woman in which were women passengers—four of them being hurt, while the boy driver was uninjured.
"Regulations and conditions, plus regulations and conditions without providing apparent safety. Who did and who did not obey the rules of the road?" asks the paper. Not knowing the full facts we cannot answer specifically, but a few comments may not be out of place. In order to have an accident of this character has got to be an emergency created; and an emergency is usually created through lack of common sense in driving, and the strange thing about some accidents is that it is not necessarily the persons involved who bring about this emergency. Numerous and varied conditions enter into an emergency making, but the constant use of ordinary common sense in driving would avert many an accident and keep our highways reasonably safe.

If every accident that occurs happens by some set formula, asserting the A. L. A., the difficulty of placing the blame would not be onerous. The multiplication table would take the place of investigation. Then, too, the results of an accident are often mystifying. A child will fall from a window three stories up and be uninjured while a man slips off the back steps of his home and breaks his neck.

Hundreds of automobile accidents occur in which all the occupants of the cars save the drivers are uninjured. All sorts of conditions enter into such happenings—the mental and physical condition of the operators and the physical surroundings of the location, as well as the movements of the other near-by autos. The average woman driver is best in an emergency whether of her own or another's creating, and it is in an emergency where the art of driving justifies itself.

"Regulations piled on regulations" are, after all, only expletives that subject a driver to the necessity of paying a fine for his lack of common sense and decency. If the most ordinary of common sense be absent, driving an automobile under present day conditions is a dangerous pastime, and regulations, so far as they apply to the act of driving are wholly unnecessary if common sense is in command of the steering wheel.
In an emergency involving a 16 year old boy chauffeur and a woman driver we should be tremendously surprised if no accident happened. Swift thought followed by swift and proper action is what counts in an emergency and if a driver cannot instantly command these, speaking in the language of the day, he is "up against it." To keep out of emergencies that threaten life, use your common sense.
You are then comparatively safe.

Neon Lighting

For the first time in Great Britain an installation of neon lighting is now being applied outside the London Coliseum. The apparatus is one of the most interesting evolved since the introduction of electric lighting. Neon lighting is carried out by means of glass tubes from which the air has been exhausted and replaced by a small quantity of pure neon gas at a pressure of the order of one hundred atmospheres. This neon gas is rendered incandescent by the passage of a high voltage alternating current, passing between two metal electrodes fitted at the ends of the tube, the color of the incandescent gas being a peculiar rich form of flame color. By means of a rotary converter the direct current supplied from the street mains is converted into alternating current that is required to operate the light.—Chemical Age (London).

Father of Brass Bands

The brass band has existed for less than a century. "That little German band," was the father of all modern brass bands. Along about 1840, in Germany, the "band" was born, though actually the first collection of outdoor instruments which history traces dates back to the Saracens, whom the crusaders met in the Holy Land in the Middle Ages.

The first bands in Germany were called "turner bands," because they played in towers. For almost half a century the brass band was almost solely an army unit. The great bands of history were regimental bands. Germany even appointed a bandmaster-general. Weber, who invented the bass tuba, the giant bass horn of today.—Detroit News.

Piles Relieved Peterson's Ointment

"Please let me tell you," says Peterson, "that for instant relief from the misery of blind, bleeding or itching piles, there is nothing so good as Peterson's Ointment, as thousands have testified. Best for old sores, eczema, itching skin, chafing, sunburn, windburn, mosquito bites, cuts, burns and bruises. Big box 35 cents.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS

What Our Home Artists and Others Are Doing To For- ward the Interests of Musical Art.

I have a booklet describing the 55th Annual Festival of the Worcester County Musical Association Oct. 6-10, and am interested to note that Mabel Garrison, soprano, who is to be soloist at the approaching Maine Music Festival in Bangor, is to be their leading soloist. The review which accompanies a charming portrait of Miss Garrison says that "charm and refinement as well as talent and ability have made for her a place in the hearts of cultured American music-lovers that it has been the privilege of few artists to enjoy." Henry Hadley is to be the conductor, and Rene Pollan, associate conductor.
In addition to Miss Garrison will appear Clarence Mitchell, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, Theo Karle, tenor, Inez Barbour, soprano, (in private life wife of Mr. Hadley), Nevada Van der Veer, contralto, William Gustafson, bass, Leo Ornstein, pianist, and Hans Kindler, cellist.

On the opening Wednesday evening the principal work will be Brahms' German Requiem. The first part of the program will consist of Wagner-ian selections by orchestra, women's chorus and soloists, Mabel Garrison and Clarence Mitchell.

Thursday afternoon will be devoted to the first Symphony Concert, with Hans Kindler as 'cello soloist.

Thursday evening Henry Hadley's Resurgam will be given for the first time in Worcester. A short miscellaneous program will precede the choral work, with Inez Barbour, Nevada Van der Veer, Theo Karle and William Gustafson as soloists.

Friday afternoon will be given the Second Symphony Concert with Leo Ornstein, pianist, as soloist.

Friday evening, as usual, will be Artist's Night, with Mabel Garrison and Theo Karle as soloists.

The orchestra will be composed of 60 musicians from the New York Symphony Orchestra, including George Barrere, world foremost Buttini, Gustav Fligel, concert soloist, and Lucian Schmitz, solo 'cello. The chorus will include 350 voices, and their program will include numbers as the men's. Tickets for the five concerts will be $6, $8, $10, and $12, no tax in addition.

In the same booklet I was interested to note the artists to appear in the Steinert concert series in Worcester this coming season, among them being Alma Gluck, soprano; New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Carol Rolinson, pianist; Roland Hayes, colored tenor; Julia Culp, contralto; Yolande Mero, pianist and Mme. Schumann-Heink, contralto. I wonder what the Steinert series in Portland will consist of this season.

While on my recent vacation I had opportunity to attend a performance in the Casino Theatre, New York City, famous as one of the largest and finest movie houses in the country. I saw Norma Talmadge in a very fine picture, "Secrets," which had an unusually lovely prologue, "Secrets" is a picture of "eye olden days" and the prologue is a picture of "eye olden days." When the curtain was raised, a man and woman were shown sitting under a large shaded lamp, singing "Memory Lane."

A curtain back of them was raised, and behind a transparent screen three dancers, and it did did a silhouette dance. They were garbed in the clothes of old times, the women having pantaloons, hoop skirts, wasp waists and elaborate coiffures, and the man in a high hat, ruffled shirt, tight coat and trousers and carrying a cane. It was a very lovely thing and gave much character to the picture which followed directly after.

Many of us have heard the fine Brunswick records made by the Capitol Theatre orchestra, and it did seem like a dream to be really hearing this splendid orchestra itself. I numbers 75 members, and their work is of the highest order. They present a picture worth seeing, in their white suits and with many different colored lights playing over them.
The number I heard them do was the Finale of Symphony No. 5 by Tchaik-ovsky, magnificently done.

The vaudeville theatre presents is of the highest grade, and I had the good fortune to hear an unusually good pianist, David S. Stern, who played "Africa" by Saint-Saens, with the orchestra. The audience applauded him most heartily and he responded with a delightful encore.

It sounded like a spinning song, but was not familiar enough to me to be called by name.

It is of interest to note that W.
H. Chapman's New Hampshire estate at Shelburne, famous for the country over because of the fame and fortune of the notables he has entertained there, has been sold to Dr.
Frank H. Gordon of Bangor, owner of the Gordon Silver Fox Ranch. Dr.
Gordon intends to develop this estate into one of the finest fox farms and show places in the country. The estate embraces 1000 acres of land and commands an unsurpassed view of the mountains. The purchase price has not been disclosed, but it is understood to be in the hundreds of thousands. Mr. Chapman bought the estate for slightly more than a $100,000 from a group of Germans who spent a fortune in developing the wild rough lands into the grassy slopes and setting for a palatial group of buildings. When they were recalled to Germany, Mr. Chapman purchased the property.

The name of Alfred Stanley Cay-ting of Bangor has become familiar to music lovers, he being one of the best known violinists in that city.
I am interested to learn of his engagement to Lucy Lytton Hart of Evanston, Ill., which was recently announced. Miss Hart is an accomplished pianist.

The following letter in Musical America was signed Harry Lasker and dated Boston: "I often wonder why some great singer does not put the public to the test by singing immediately registered, the artist may be moving prima donna come out in a moving picture theatre or small concert, under an assumed name, and see how quickly she will be acclaimed.
It would be an interesting experiment, although, if a hit were not immediately registered, the artist might go home feeling a little disappointed.
Few of us realize how much we depend upon press agents and advertising for our adulation of some operatic or concert star. I have heard great singers sing very badly on occasion, yet, because they had been expected something extra splendid, they got coddles of applause. On the other hand, let the same singer appear as a nobody, and see what they get."

I read that Caruso was known several times to assume a minor role just for the fun of seeing how the audience would respond, and it was always a huge joke to him when the audience meted out scant applause, not knowing it was the famous Caruso who was singing to them.

Geraldine Farrar will open her tour in her own production of "Caymen" in Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 26.
The tabloid version of the Bizet opera, which is called an "operatic fantasy" is described as a "modernized" version of the original. Miss Farrar is designing the sets for the production, and Ned Wayburn will stage it. There will be a company of ten principals, an orchestra and a chorus, and Miss Farrar plans to take through the leading cities of the United States and Canada. New York City will be included in the tour.

At the present time there is much interest manifested in "Ma" Ferguson of Texas. The following item is of interest:

"Ma" Ferguson, interest in music is promised for the State of Texas, when and if Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson is inaugurated Governor of that commonwealth on January 1. According to a statement by Mrs. George S.
Nalle, daughter of the nominee, now in New York City, Mrs. Ferguson will seek to foster a love and appreciation of music in the schools and the homes of the State and will lend the weight of her influence to the development of cultural pursuits. Mrs. Nalle described her mother as being a lover of good music, with some ability as a pianist. Music has always held an important place in the home, she said, and added that the most gifted member of the family musically is her father, James E. Ferguson, once Governor of Texas, who, she says, can play on the violin and the piano anything he can whistle."

FAILURE OF DAVIS

Presidential Campaign At Its Half-Way Mark and He Has Lost Votes.

It is nearly two months since the Democratic convention suddenly from sheer weariness, and by a great stroke of luck as everyone conceived, nominated John W. Davis for the Presidency. Precisely two months remain till Election Day. What is the status of the Davis candidacy at this half-way mark?

There can hardly be a serious question that his campaign has thus far been an unexpected and extraordinary failure. He has lost votes, not gained them. The change of attitude with respect to such a state as New York is a fair test. Considering Mr.
Davis' residence here and his distinguished position at the New York bar, his supporters were justified in arguing that he could make an excellent fight for New York's electoral votes. After two months of campaigning Democratic leaders have abandoned all hope of New York. A Coolidge vote comparable to the Harding landslide is expected. Gov.
Smith, for all his unquestioned popularity, is doing his utmost to dodge running in such a year.

The straw ballots all point in the same direction. As Chairman Butler said in Washington, the trend of such polls is to put Mr. Davis in third place and make the interest rest in the size of the La Follette vote.
If it were not for this third tick, of throwing the election into the House, it is a fair assumption that the election of 1924 would go down in history as a dull procession comparable to the Alton B. Parker campaign of 1904.

In sight of the high hopes with which Mr. Davis was nominated, his honorable public record, his distinguished ability as a lawyer and an orator, this result of two months' campaigning must be regarded as an extraordinary political event. Is there a discoverable reason for it?

We submit that there is. The high hopes of Mr. Davis' admirers were based on the belief that the nation was in need of a statesman, a distinguished and courageous point of view. Such expectations were the more rudely dashed by Mr. Davis' course after nomination.

It is not necessary to labor the epic of this campaign. Mr. Davis had the whole field to pick from. He could have named any man he wished, could have insisted upon Presidential brains and sound, consistent convictions. Instead he demanded the brother of the man who might have been the White House candidate, whose political faith was at the opposite Democratic pole from his own, who was pathetically inadequate for the Presidency in a year when, by a series of long chances, there was a real possibility that the Vice President might enter the White House forthwith. Not the crudest political boss would have dared attempt such a compromise with self-respect, with conviction, with consistency.

This strange and dismaying blunder was swiftly followed by another. Gov. Bryan, true to his radicalism, denounced Defense Day.
The situation cried aloud for a bold disavowal by Mr. Davis, by every tradition and association on the side of patriotism. Instead he meekly approved Gov. Bryan's course—leaving it to the discretion of a national champion to say the words that every patriotic Democrat felt toward such pusillanimous shudders.

The third blunder came in Mr.
Davis' regrettable attack upon President Coolidge in his speech at Washington. He had a perfectly legitimate weapon in the corruption of Secretary Fall and in the Veterans' Bureau.
Instead of using it fairly, he sought to besmirch the entire Republican party, even slurring the motives of the Executive. Such excesses were as he campaigning as they were bad morals. Mr. Davis felt compelled to end his "treat 'em rough" tactics and withdrew his attack upon Mr.
Coolidge.

Some of Mr. Davis' inconsistencies are not of his making. The mistake of the convention made of such issues as the League of Nations and child labor are in nowise chargeable to him. But these blunders were his own personal achievement. They revealed an extraordinary blindness.
In place of a strong man, standing above the parties, there was revealed a trimmer, eager to make compromises beneath the contempt of the most practical politician.

The campaign is but half over. Mr.
Davis may yet find himself politically and made a fight of it. But the millions of Bryan will hang around his neck until Nov. 4. So will the disheartening revelation of how egrogiously a high-minded and distinguished citizen can blunder in the name of what he conceives to be politics.—New York Herald Tribune.

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST

Johnny Dwyer of Hyannis, Mass., sends us this clipping from a Cape Cod newspaper:

"Readers of 'Uncle Charles' Notes will recall his reference last week to the hollyhock presidential candidates in the garden of a Hyannis lady. At that time the La Follette hollyhock was strong in the field, towering over Coolidge and Davis by several inches, the two latter being in a tie. Now all is changed—the hurricane of Tuesday tested the strength of trees and flowers as well as the structures of man. Hollyhock La Follette, the erstwhile floral leader, was the first to yield to the fury of the blast, losing fully five feet of his commanding lead and reducing him to a 'has been.'
'Davis' was the next to lower his colors, completely losing his head, while Coolidge, the first to see the danger, stood side by side with the other floral candidates and contending with the same war of the elements, came out unscathed, an undaunted and undismayed leader. The 'Lady of the Garden' declares that this is as it should and will be."

TENANT'S HARBOR DAYS

Dealing With Joseph Who Once Kept the Southern Island Light.

And behold there was one Joseph of the house of Jellison, who after serving as a handy mariner, did enter the service of the Government as a Keeper of the Street Lamps of the Ocean, and for more than a score of years was keeper of Southern Island Light at Tenants Harbor.

Now when Joseph had attained the age of three-score years and ten, an all-wise and beneficent Government said unto him, "Son, for lo these many years thou hast been a faithful servant unto me. Thou hast kept thy lamps trimmed and burning, thy brass works shining and whatsoever I gavest thee to do thou hast done in a ship shape manner. Now as thy reward I will retire thee. The emolument is not great but the honor of being an ex-keeper is very great indeed."

Now Joseph, being a man of humor, winked the other eye, and under his breath said "Bunk!"
And it came to pass that in the time of Indian summer of the he-gira of nineteen hundred and twenty-three, Joseph did gather together certain of his goods and chattels and journeyed into a far country and there set up his household gods. And so that he might not forget the country of his nativity, he selected the place called Crescent Beach, in Florida, for a domicile, where every prosperous place and the skeletons bite the while.

Now on the 10th day of the eighth month of the hegira of nineteen hundred and twenty-four Joseph did take his stately in hand and wrote an epistle to his erstwhile friends of the North Country. And he said:
"Lo the days pass on, and I do drink copiously at the fountain of youth, and the invigorating draughts do prolong my days so that I have decided to remain many moons in this land of sunshine and flowers.
This fountain is located in the center of the old slave market and as I sat there yesterday and watched the cool water bubble up from the kneeholes where I remembered back to the time where perhaps Uncle Tom may have been bought by Simon Legree on this very spot; but today as far as I could judge there was no heartache there, and I thought, Behold what the people with the grandest man for a leader (Abraham Lincoln) have brought about. There is another side to this beautiful land which I will mention briefly—The red bugs, mosquitoes and the 96 degrees, which will pass away no doubt soon, and we will come back to normal and live with all these attractions, I don't forget the home of my childhood, and often when the stars shine brightest I am living over the old days."

"Your trip to Bar Harbor was very familiar to me. Forty years ago I ran on the steamers on that line.
Passengers at North Haven were taken on and off the steamer by a row boat. I have lived to see Bar Harbor grow from wild to the present cottage city that it is. I assure you that when The Courier-Gazette arrives it is not complete without an item from Boze."

Oh, wanderers of Maine Oh, wanderers from the land of Maine! the perfume of the place is mingled with your memory, her violet entwines Memorial wreath; she calls for you—oh, must she call in vain?
Come back to her who longs for you, oh, Wanderers of Maine.

My hills are high, but from their tops the sky-fled waters run, My snows are deep, and soft and white, and warm my summer sun, My springs are like the crystal clear, my clouds are full of rain, Come back from yonder sun-burnt sands, oh Wanderers of Maine.

Dear Wanderers, who wander yet! If ye no more may meet Until the Land of the Beyond shall press your weary feet,
We still will lift our banner high, and sing the old refrain,
For ye are ours for evermore, oh, Wanderers of Maine.

Peace be unto thee in the Southland O Joseph of the house of Jellison!

clever verse, "Coolidge Is the Man," written by Miss Elizabeth Marsh and printed in The Courier-Gazette, Aug.
28, has brought to their author the following highly valued acknowl-

2, and signed by C. B. Slemm, Secretary to the President:

"The President has read with a great deal of interest your letter of Sept. 1st, as well as the accompanying clipping, and he wants you to know how deeply he appreciates your friendly expression. He is indeed more than grateful to you for
