MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Knox-Lincoln Farm Bureau Has Set Its Goal As Nine Hundred.

A drive has started this week for 900 members in the Knox-Lincoln County Farm Bureau. Last year there were 759 members and through the campaign started this year a big increase is expected.

Community committee meetings have been held in Hope, Camden, Damariscotta Mills and Bunker Hill. Every member present showed real enthusiasm towards the work of the Farm Bureau. Chairman E. N. Hobbs of Hope expects to increase the membership of his community this year. This is a very small community but it had a total enrollment last season of 63 members. Chairman Harold Nash of Camden also expects his community to go over the top.

The meeting in Camden was one of the best held. These members were present: Harold Allen, Ralph Cripps and M. L. Keene of the men division and Mrs. H. Nash, Mrs. N. B. Hopkins and Mrs. Edythe Trask of the women division. County Agent R. C. Wentworth and Home Demonstration Agent Nan Mahoney presented Extension Service plans for the coming year. Miss Rosalind Jewett, Home Demonstration Agent, Leader from Orono was present and gave some valuable suggestions on the work that is being carried on among the women of the State.

SHE MINCED NO WORDS

Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, National Head of D. A. R., Hits From Shoulder In Augusta Address.

"There isn't a woman's organization in the land that isn't endorsing too many projects without properly investigating them." So declared Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, president general of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in addressing the Maine D. A. R. at its annual fall convocation in Augusta Tuesday.

"Do not be afraid to ask for time to think it over when it comes to deciding a question which involves declaring your opinion on a subject involving problems of far-reaching importance," continued Mrs. Cook. "On the other hand, never be afraid to let your preconceived views and opinions be changed by the broader viewpoints and understandings that come as the result of your attendance upon your State Conferences and your Annual Conferences."

"I am not unmindful that you have become accustomed to being told that we women are a tremendous influence for good. Why, then, should we waste our energy and our influence upon movements that have no definite constructive value? Why become chronic signers of the little useless petitions destined to find their way into legislative waste-paper baskets? Why not rather be a unit in those movements which are VITAL? To do so will make us the effective force for righteous citizenship and for the better citizenship that we ought to uphold and that by the grace of God we shall yet be enabled to bring about."

Mrs. Cook spoke first of her pleasure at being in Maine, and emphasized the tremendous potential power of leadership and service in the D. A. R. Continuing Mrs. Cook said:

"We have succeeded as a society because our original cause for being is based upon the fact that we had a pure patriotic cause to serve and because our leaders had the courage, the vision, the tireless energy, vital motivating power and unceasing perseverance to always anticipate and provide for the greater future of our society. Let us determine upon any three definite objectives which will benefit each one of us yet carry the society on toward one great common end of union, stability and of accomplishment for future growth of far-reaching consequences."

1. The rapid pushing forward of the new auditorium so enthusiastically authorized by the thirty-four Congress.

2. A wider circulation of our magazine which is the national organ of our society.

3. A membership as nearly representative of our eligibility capacity as it is possible for us to make it. Once we approach the estimated 2,000,000 maximum of our membership enrollment, we shall prove a force for good in our nation such as the world has never known. Can we not begin to make its possibility an actuality within our century?

It is my earnest hope and desire first expressed a year ago in our magazine that Daughters of the American Revolution shall render a like pioneer service in collaborating with the proper state and national authorities in bringing about an appropriate ceremony in connection with the ultimate admittance of aliens to the privileges and responsibilities of citizenship. Indeed, I see no reason for letting such a ceremony apply only to the naturalized. Why not let us have a similar ceremonial in connection with the coming to voting age of our own sons and daughters?

At this season of the year when the youth of our land are either entering school or returning to school, we who pride ourselves upon our descent from Revolutionary patriots should feel that it is our expected duty to see to it that a certain portion of the school, a daily program is devoted to patriotic exercises. And we should exercise extreme vigilance as to the text-books that are being used as the basis for this teaching. Let us be informed as to whether they are instilling sound principles or subversive and radical doctrines.

We should see that our school which gives us greater freedom than that of any other nation in the world. The World War demonstrated, in time of world peril forged themselves into a voluntary federation that was stronger and more effective than any that could possibly have been fashioned by autocratic power or imperialist tendency.

We should be poor citizens indeed if we should stand in the way today of any honest efforts which are being made by governments or by individuals to reach a common understanding of world problems or of those reconstructive measures which are likely to bring about world peace and prosperity. But the fact must not be lost sight of that no government, aside from its functions of helpful leadership and the coordination and control of the efforts of individuals can supply initiative to the population or direct their industrial activities toward satisfaction and content, factors which most assuredly are important foundation stones upon which to base hopes for permanent world peace.

In my opinion it behooves us to beware of the pacifist dreamer who desires a hearing before our church circles, our home and school organizations or our club organizations with the plea, "I am sure you will be open-minded enough to hear both sides of the story."

It is rumored that the New York State Legislature is about to pass legislation which would deprive of their right to vote, a deep instilled reverential love of the spot called home and the lasting joy that comes from preserving its sanctity so that it may fulfill its divine purpose. As you already know, I have tremendous confidence in what the young people of this day are to accomplish when they shall come to their hour of civic destiny.

Neither on the other hand am I unmindful of the fact that we must always teach the oncoming generation to guard the homely virtues and high ideals which have made and kept our nation true to its own best visioning. We cannot and must not fear to be true to our own selves in our respect for and proper observance of the laws of the land and the sacred guarding of the Constitution of the United States against those who would undermine its principles for their own base uses.

SWAN'S ISLAND BOY

Shown herewith is the portrait of a Swan's Island boy who has gone out into the world and made good. He has not only made good but is steadily climbing the ladder of advancement, until today he is one of the acknowledged leaders in the insurance profession. In this connection there recently appeared in this newspaper the announcement that he had been elected first vice president and agency director of the Eastern Casualty Insurance Co.

By this time many readers of this article will know that reference is had to Walter W. Morse, formerly of this city. Mr. Morse was born at Swan's Island, March 4, 1885, and spent his boyhood there and in Portland. He made his start in the insurance world at 359 Main street, Rockland, in 1905, and for two years was located there as agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

His aptitude for this vocation was early shown by good production record which he made for the Metropolitan and by the fact that he won a gold watch in one of the company's drives, leading New England.

He saw great possibilities in the accident and health business, and after trying out several "Mutuals" became connected in 1911 with the New England Casualty Co., organized by Corwin McDowell, who later merged the business of that company into the present Eastern Casualty Insurance Co., of which he was also the president until his death two weeks ago.

Mr. Morse took over the agency for this company when it had not a single policy in the State. In 1920 he also took over the management of the New Hampshire agency, being made a resident vice president. In January, 1924, he was elected vice president of the company, this valued promotion being followed very recently by his election as first vice president and agency director.

These duties would keep the average man very busy, but Mr. Morse somehow finds time to be a member of the Red Men, Knights of Pythias, Masons, Elks, Lions, Lincoln Club, Economic Club, Portland Country Club and Willowdale Golf Club. He is a Republican.

Mr. Morse was first president of the Maine Health and Accident Underwriters, which was later consolidated with the Maine Insurance Federation, which he also helped organize. He is a member of the Maine Life Underwriters and the Cumberland County Board of Fire Underwriters. He is especially gifted as an organizer and his executive ability is rapidly heading him toward the top notch.

In 1911 Mr. Morse married Harriet Damon Jack of Boston. They have one child—a daughter of 12. Mr. Morse owns a home in the Deering District and is a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist, Portland.

MacMillan's Arctic Ships Leave Sydney, N. S., On the Last Leg.

Donald B. MacMillan came out of the Northland Tuesday after three months of the "worst summer known to men in the Arctic" and announced that he would return to Labrador next summer to search for evidences of the route the Norsemen were supposed to have taken in coming to New England.

MacMillan drove his little auxiliary schooner Bowdoin into Sydney and sailed away again in four hours to join the Peary, companion ship on his latest Arctic expedition, for the last leg of their journey to Wisconsin, where friends already are gathering to welcome the explorer and his crews.

MacMillan stayed only long enough to take 20 barrels of fuel oil and to tell newspaper men he was convinced that the dog was still "king of the Arctic," and was more valuable as a means of transportation "above the clouds" than the airplane. He also said he was certain he had found evidence of Norsemen visiting the American continent many years ago.

The Peary and Bowdoin are expected to reach Monhegan Friday evening. Saturday they will sail on to Wisconsin, where friends already are gathering to welcome the explorer and his crews.

As MacMillan steered the Bowdoin into her berth at Sydney Tuesday his first words to those who waited for him were, "The best crew I've ever had." And then he added, "It was the worst summer known to men in the Arctic."

"Every one of the fellows on board has been cheerful and willing," he continued. To prove his point, Commander MacMillan urged two of the men to relieve the crowded condition on the Bowdoin, and return to Wisconsin by train, but they objected. They wanted to stick until the journey was over. The wish was granted.

The explorer said his party had found a stone church at Gottaab, Greenland, which he was convinced was built by the Norsemen, for use both as church and fort.

"Any old building on Greenland must be either Eskimo or Norse, and since I am familiar with Eskimo construction I am convinced that this is beyond question one of the earliest of white man's habitations on the American Continent."

"It was finely preserved," he said, "with the walls, laid without cement, still as smooth as this deck. Apparently it served the purpose of church and fortress, for it had deep holes instead of windows. It was about 20 feet square, with walls 12 or 15 feet high. From its door could be seen the ruins of homesteads, while above them on a high grassy plain were evident their stockyards."

"My special interest on this trip was in these ruins for I am going back to Labrador next summer to search for evidences of the route the Norsemen are supposed to have followed in coming to New England. I know that there are more at an island near Maine, Labrador, in about 56 north latitude, and next year I plan to do further work in that vicinity."

Airplanes, Commander MacMillan said would be useful in exploring the interior of Labrador and Baffin Land, or "in fact any land south of the Arctic Circle." The difficulty experienced with planes was in landing as the rough ice on the surface and cokes in the water meant sure destruction.

"Of course," he continued, "the planes this summer met with far worse conditions than were to be expected and the weather was never suited for flight. The planes, of course, covered in a day lands which had required weeks to traverse with dogs, but I still am of the opinion that the dog is king of the Arctic and that more can be learned when he is employed."

Commander MacMillan's trip down from Greenland was difficult. The Bowdoin reached Labrador in a smothering snowstorm. Then she ran into a gale at Newfoundland, at St. George Bay conditions were impossible so the schooner took refuge in a lee of Red Island.

So crowded was the ship that Dr. Paul Koelz, fish and bird expert, was sleeping in the hold so he could use his bunk as a spread for the specimens he collected in the Arctic.

ANOTHER MAINE BOOSTER

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

As Maine is having a boom I feel like saying a word in favor of the good old State. My relatives and friends have visited me in East Union every summer and sometimes in winter for 46 years, and declare they had rather come to Maine for their vacation than any other place—which is saying much. This season I have had 23 visitors from Rhode Island and Massachusetts. I lived in Bath until I was 16 years of age when my family moved to Providence, R. I. I really consider myself a native of Maine, as most of my life has been spent here, and naturally I should know something of the State and its people. May she ever prosper. Grace E. Simmons, East Union, Oct. 6.

"CONSULT YOUR DOCTOR"

At the annual meeting of the Maine Health Association in Bangor Tuesday Henry Richards of Gardiner was elected president. Among the resolutions passed by the association was the following:

"Resolved, that we again call the attention of the people of Maine to the great danger of yielding to the delusion of advertised nostrums, patent medicines, and alleged cures for tuberculosis, cancer and other serious diseases. The best maxim to follow in the case of any menace to health is 'Consult your family physician.'"

TALK OF THE TOWN

Union certainly had it on the other fairs for fair weather.

"The nice job of grading which is being done around the High School building, on Lincoln street, adds to the impressiveness of the new structure."

The lighthouse tender Hibiscus has been cruising in Penobscot Bay waters this week distributing coal among the light stations. Uncle Sam is a good "pervider."

Steamer Southport is on the Bar Harbor run, taking the place of the J. T. Morse, which has gone to Boston for an overhauling, in the course of which new boilers will be installed. The Westport takes the Bluehill run.

The remains of Ralph G. Merrill, who died suddenly in Bridgeport, Conn., will arrive in this city on the late train tomorrow night and services will be held at Achorn cemetery Saturday forenoon at 10:30. An Elks escort will be provided.

F. C. Flint has severed his connection with the Consolidated Baking Co., through the sale of his stock to the management. He has taken over the former Flint Bakery on Main street, and will conduct a retail bakery in new form. The Consolidated Baking Co. will be in charge of L. N. Littlehale.

"We have a great football team here," writes Elmer Risnik, who is attending Hebron Academy. "The backfield is light, but the line is a peach. One guard weighs 228 pounds and the other 220—not all fat, either. My roommate is one of the tackles, and weighs 187 pounds, while the other weighs 180. The ends weigh about 170 pounds apiece and the center 168." Hebron plays the Bowdoin Freshmen Saturday and as the latter team beat Bowdoin Second, it promises to be a real battle. Elmer is comfortably located and making good in his studies.

Andrew B. Sides, vice president of the Eastern Steamship Lines, has recently returned from Miami, Fla., where he went to look over the feasibility of sending the steamers Boston and New York to that port for use as floating hotels during the winter season. On his return, following a report to the directors, he announced that as there was no suitable place for moorings the plan was abandoned. The two ships, which have been well patronized during the summer, will continue on the run between Boston and New York the rest of the month and then go into winter quarters at Quincy. Vice President Sides, by the way, is a former Camden boy.

"A boy's just been drowned down here, and I want you to come down and pull him out!" This was the rather startling salutation which greeted Alma E. Allen, janitor of the water company, as he was being returned from dinner Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Allen followed the boy who had imparted the news to Saxe's wharf, and was just in time to see a rescue effected by Tyler M. Coombs, who had put out in a boat as soon as he heard the news. The rescue came in the nick of time and caused a bit of excitement around the Brook. P. S.—Mr. Coombs is not a candidate for a Carnegie medal; he's too modest. P. S. S.—The rescued boy's name was Cecil Hallett.

Harry A. Staples was arraigned before Judge Miller in Rockland Municipal Court Tuesday on the charge of driving a motor car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. The evidence for the State was presented by State Inspector A. Wentworth, who made the arrest on Lake avenue, near Rockville and who testified that Staples was intoxicated; Halver A. Hart of Hope, who said that the respondent didn't seem to know what to do when men under the influence of liquor remove the car and that Staples was clumsy and appeared slightly intoxicated. The defense, which was represented by Frank H. Ingraham, made no attempt to present its side at this trial, but an appeal was taken from the sentence of two months in jail, and bail was given.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

"Whatever your occupation may be, and however crowded your hours with affairs, do not fail to devote at least a few minutes every day for refreshment of your inner life with a bit of poetry.—Charles Elliot Norton.

FROM LIFE TO LIFE SHE PASSED
From life to life she passed; no death is here.

This is a step of progress, not the end. I hear her saying with a voice of cheer, "Tis of life's nature to ascend."

From love to love she passed; sweet love she knew. And breathed it here as freely as the air; But love as tender, love long-tried and true She knew was waiting for her over there.

From song to song she passed; above earth's strife She heard the music that is prophetic; This music wrought she into heart and life And caught the key of heaven's own harmony.

From good to good she passed; her gentle heart Found good in others, passed the evil by; So of the good she grew to be a part, And "mid the good her pathway still must lie."

Oh, "twere not kindness here to bid her wait, Were I as she was, I would ever pray. "Keep me not knocking here outside the gate, But let me pass, and find the upward way."

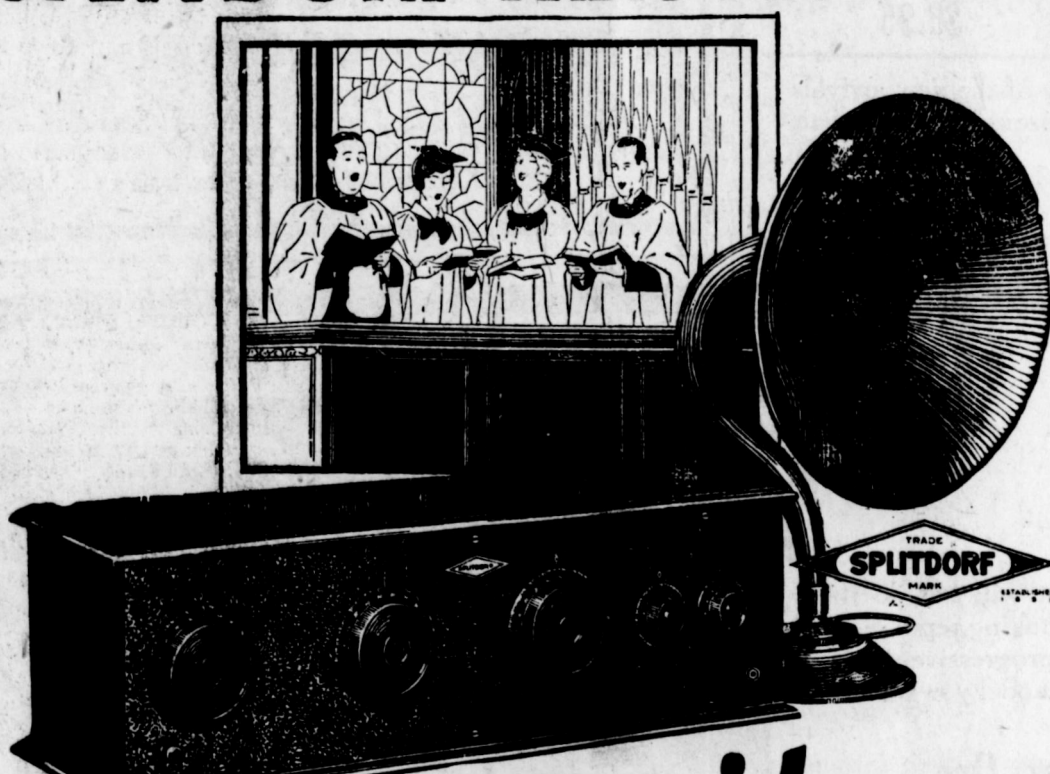

Death sometimes comes in sunset skies And blithely she goes, leaving the world behind; But this is beautiful as sunset skies, And glory of October's reddening leaf.

Life's lesson she had learned, had drained the cup Of earth's experience of smiles and tears; It was her time, then, gladly to take up The higher labors of her grander years.

So, friend of earth and heaven, tho' unseen The chain that binds us to thee, it will never break; We'll follow thee, nor shall it be in vain; Thou'lt hear our call: "Wait till we overtake."

Meantime we'll perch our lives upon the key Of that thou'rt living; so our music sweet We'll make, until our earthly harmony Shall blend with thine and make our song complete.—Author unknown.

THREE TIMES A WEEK

CIRCULATION AFFIDAVIT
Rockland, Maine, Oct. 8, 1925.
Personally appeared Frank S. Lydie, who on oath declares that he is pressman in the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that of the issue of this paper for Oct. 8, 1925, there was printed a total of 6,380 copies. Before me, FRANK S. MILLER, Notary Public.

Thus said the Lord, call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not. Behold, I will bring thee health and cure, and I will cure thee, and will reveal unto thee the abundance of peace and truth.—Jeremiah 33:2, 3, 6.

Mrs. Cook's address to the Daughters of the American Revolution in their August convention was pitched on a high note of patriotism, with a warning that may profitably be heeded by all true lovers of their country. Pointing out that women's clubs, church organizations, etc., are asked to endorse too many projects, the brilliant President-General of the National Society added:

"We should see to it that our school boards are not allowing our public school systems to be used as vehicles for the dissemination of propaganda, which, is the guise of co-called 'peace' literature, is in reality dangerous and insidious pacifist propaganda. As a matter of fact, too much of this sort of thing already has been disseminated. It has been cleverly prepared so that it might insidiously stir up unrest and discontent in the minds of both pupils and teachers concerning our time-tested governmental institutions. By means of widely distributed 'disarmament' pamphlets, posters, placards and competitive prize essays, concerted efforts are being made to disparage the traditional teaching of patriotism in the schools of our nation."

The editorial desk of every newspaper is familiar landing ground for the literature to which the speaker alluded. Some of it gets into print through lack of proper editorial oversight, but we like to think that the more part finds its proper end in the official wastebasket. We prefer to this attitude of mind of the professional pacifist, that sound and reasonable view expressed by President Coolidge, who in his Tuesday address to the delegates to the first American Legion convention in Omaha declared: "Nobody says now that Americans cannot fight. I am a firm believer in a policy of adequate military preparation. The country can rest assured that if security lies in military force, it was never so secure in all its history." A declaration that the practical-minded and patriotic delegates greeted with cheers.

The installation of the thirteen lamps, chiefly on the north side of Park street, extending thereby as far as the railroad crossing the white way system that has given to Rockland's Main street so beautiful a metropolitan appearance, will furnish needed illumination to one of the city's chief thoroughfares and greatly add to the appearance of that whole region. The Courier-Gazette has previously alluded to the existing need of improved lighting of Park street, particularly that portion of it lying between Main and Union streets, where nightly there is usually a marked congestion of traffic. In this portion the lamps will be set on the two sides and the result will be in the highest degree satisfactory. Compliments to the City Government for bringing about this piece of civic improvement will not be withheld by citizens who take pride in whatever makes for municipal progress and adornment.

You will find a great change in the new Fall and Winter models of Coats this season.

There is no division of opinion over the engaging of Engineer Wadell's company to put through the work of building the Kennebec Bridge. The familiarity of the noted engineer with the work already done and the high reputation of the company of which he is the head confirm the wisdom of the bridge directorate in placing the matter in their hands. Already the business of borings is being set going with promptness that augurs a long step forward in preliminaries necessary to active operations when the spring of 1926 opens. The bridge directorate is on its job and the public is entitled to rejoice over the snap with which it has immediately begun to function.

All experts in automobile safety are agreed that the door of the car is a common form of hazard. There are two principal things which happen in connection with the misuse of doors. The door is left open when it ought to be shut, projects over the running board, gets in the way of an oncoming car or knocks somebody down. Again, it is a habit to slam automobile doors; nobody knows why. But the habit leads to many people being hurt.

A Brockton partridge flew with such speed against a telephone wire that he lost his head, a catastrophe which many a speeding automobilist has duplicated.

A meeting of the executive council of Pine Tree Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Miles-Kimball law offices where Scout Executive Thompson has his headquarters at present.

AN ICE RINK Fireproof Garage Will Be Converted Into One Early In December.

An ice skating rink in the heart of Rockland, and within a biscuit's toss of Main street, is the cheerful prospect which will be offered this winter to people who like that healthful sport.

The managers of the Fireproof Garage have decided to devote a considerable portion of their large concrete building on Winter street to this purpose, the enterprise in no way interfering with their automobile customers. The rink will occupy 6500 square feet of floor space, accommodating a large number of skaters and giving ample room for hockey playing, which was begun last winter on South Main street under the severe handicap of outdoor playing.

The rink will be built on the most approved methods, and no matter how cold or how stormy the weather may be outside it will always be "cozy" in the Fireproof Arena, as the rink will be called.

The management will have skates for the convenience of those not already supplied, and there will be music and a chance to buy refreshments.

The concrete surface of the arena will be flooded to a depth of six inches, and will have a sawdust foundation. The utter absence of danger is another advantage to an indoor rink. Looks like lots of good sport this winter.

A distinct improvement will be the installation of a flashing beacon at the junction of New County road and Park streets, where traffic is exceedingly heavy. The beacon now in front of Berry Engine House will be given the Park street location and a smaller signal put in its place.

ELEVEN BLUE RIBBONS

Elmer S. Bird Sweeps Every Class At the Brockton Fair With His Famous Blooded Modenas.

Elmer S. Bird's pigeon loft won fresh laurels at Brockton Fair this year, winning 11 blue ribbons and sweeping every class in the Modena exhibits. Mr. Bird won five-second prizes and numerous third prizes, but these, of course, are only incidental, as the blue ribbons are what all exhibitors covet.

Mr. Bird took 24 pigeons to this show, but some of his most exclusive stock was left behind for the reason that the proud owner has in mind the Boston show early in January and the New York show on the following month. On both of those occasions he will exhibit his Carnaues as well as his Modenas, and of the result he is reasonably sanguine.

Nearly 1500 pigeons were exhibited at the Brockton show, but when it came to Modenas the judges found their task lightened by the superiority of the Rockland birds. And in the forefront of this delegation stood "Elizabeth Amelia," named in honor of the wife of Mr. Bird's loftman, Mr. Eaton of South Thomaston. "Elizabeth Amelia" was early the queen of the show, and it is doubtful who was prouder of the fact—Mr. Bird, the owner; or Mr. Eaton, the loftman, whose efforts in rearing Mr. Bird's pigeons for their high estate have been indefatigable.

Mr. Bird and his son, Raymond, were in attendance at the fair, and met up with another prominent pigeon fancier in the person of F. W. Goss of Needham Heights, Mass., whose success in breeding Jacobins has attracted international attention. Mr. Goss won prizes at the great Crystal Palace show in London last year, and has now been honored by being selected to judge the "Jacks" at the next Crystal Palace show. This is said to be the first time that an American has been invited to judge birds in a London show.

Mr. Bird has open orders for all the pigeons he cares to sell, and in a few weeks he will clean up his surplus stock, as he desires to carry only about 30 birds through the winter. A great deal of interest is being exhibited in Modenas at the present time, and Mr. Bird's remarkable success with this breed has quite naturally made him the target for all would-be purchasers.

Two Modenas which nobody will be able to buy are in Mr. Bird's loft—two pure black pigeons, which he believes are without counterpart in the world, and which have been the result of patient and ingenious breeding.

Mr. Bird imported six pigeons this year, but half of them died as the result of sickness contracted in crossing the "Pond."

Early in the present year The Courier-Gazette published an extended article concerning Mr. Bird and his pigeons, and this brought to him many letters from all over the country and some from abroad. "Even now," says Mr. Bird, "there is scarcely a day when somebody does not refer to it."

Guy Haraden recently brought to Mr. Bird a stray pigeon which he had found. Mr. Bird set the necessary machinery in motion and has located the owner in Lawrence, Mass., whither the wanderer will be sent.

GOLDBERG CONVICTED

What is said to be the first verdict of its kind in the history of Massachusetts criminal law, the conviction of a defendant on manslaughter charges in connection with the death by accident of passengers in an automobile which he was driving was returned by a jury in the Middlesex Criminal Court Tuesday afternoon against David Goldberg, Boston clothing manufacturer and salesman.

Goldberg was found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the deaths of Fannie and Bessie Rutman, Revere sisters, victims of an automobile accident in Weston on March 8, last.

The jury also found Goldberg guilty of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, of operating recklessly, of operating so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public, and, in two counts of going away after an accident without making himself known.

He was found not guilty, by order of the court, of charges of operating without a license and illegally transporting liquor.

Following the return of the jury's verdict after more than three hours of deliberation, Judge George Flynn continued the case until Wednesday for sentence. Allowing a motion of Asst. Dist. Atty. Robert T. Bushnell who prosecuted the case, Judge Flynn increased Goldberg's bail from $2000 to $5000. Goldberg furnished the increased bail.

According to Government evidence introduced at the trial Goldberg and the Rutman sisters were members of a party at the Mansion Inn on the night of March 7, and were returning to Boston in an automobile being driven by Goldberg. Goldberg had been drinking according to the evidence, and was driving the car at a rate of more than 50 miles an hour.

Hurting along at terrific speed according to the evidence, the car crashed into a guard-rail and tree at the side of the road in Weston. Bessie and Fannie Rutman suffered fractured skulls and died as a result of their injuries.

Goldberg was arrested at the Hotel Buckminster, where he was living some hours after the accident. According to Government evidence he left the scene of the accident, and the dying Rutman sisters without making his identity known. Passers-by took the girls to the Newton Hospital.

The case, which has been on trial for six days, attracted considerable attention.

Although many defendants in the past have been tried on manslaughter charges in connection with the deaths of passengers in machines which the defendants were driving, Goldberg is the first defendant in the history of the State it is said to be convicted of the offense.

Porter apples of highly gratifying appearance and flavor have reached the desk of the Porter-apple editor, one lot from the Union orchard of Sheriff Thurston, whose modern system of orcharding is producing beautiful fruit; the other from the Fogler farm in South Hope, recently bought by Ralph and Earl Conant of Rockland, who also are to specialize in apple growing.

Mayor and Mrs. C. F. Snow and City Clerk E. R. Keene motored to Augusta Tuesday. The Mayor's visit was on matters of municipal interest; Mrs. Snow went to attend a D. A. R. meeting, while City Clerk Keene was interested to know whether one set of ballot boxes or two will be used in the City and State special election of Dec. 7. He found that all the ballots will be deposited in one set of boxes.

Books and books and still more books! That is the impression one gains from the fine collection of technical books which the Public Library is displaying in the window of J. F. Gregory's store this week. The window decoration is that of Ralph Clark and must be a revelation indeed to those scores of citizens who seldom visit our attractive library but still hang onto the tradition that it is only a place where a love story, a poem or possibly a bit of history may be obtained.

Word that this very week sees the beginning of work foreshadowing the bridge at Bath will cause a glow at the heart of those who have waited for the end of the ferry days.

Clarence E. Ulmer, the well known contractor, is confined to his home at 276 Talbot Avenue with a broken right wrist and severe body bruises. Mr. Ulmer was in charge of blasting operations on a highway in Appleton Tuesday when a team of horses became frightened by the sound of exploding steam and bolted, overturning the steam drill and knocking Mr. Ulmer violently to the ground. He was brought to Knox Hospital, where the injured wrist was X-rayed and treated. He slept quite well last night, but will be laid up some time as the result of the accident.

How far does Rockland's trading district extend? A radius of about 35 miles has generally been reckoned, but when the Burpee Furniture Co. delivery wagon was seen this week starting out to deliver a load at Elliott, which lies close to the New Hampshire line, six miles from Portsmouth, these figures had to be considerably extended. An occasional visitor to our city is Sanford York of Elliott, brought here by his professional duties as auditor for a number of Rockland corporations. On a recent visit Mr. York dropped in to the Burpee store to give it a look-over, and found things so much to his liking that he filed an order with Manager Stevens to supply the entire furnishings for his new house at Elliott, including a Glenwood heating plant.

The Browne Club will hold a cooked food sale at the Fuller-Cobb-Davis store Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The proceeds will go to the support of a little girl suffering from malnutrition and who has been sent to the country to board.—adv.

Yesterday's frost shook the screens off the Court House windows.

The Chamber of Commerce ballots for directors in the annual primary election will be counted this afternoon.

Timothy J. Sullivan, who has been on a leave of absence during the summer, has resumed his duties as porter at the Thorndike Hotel, and now everything is "all right, sir."

In one of the windows of John A. Karl & Co.'s office is seen a pumpkin which tips the scales at 32½ pounds. It was raised by Harold Karl—from the floor to the window, but actually grew in the garden of Eugene Follett, the well known truckman and philosopher.

William G. Sexton of Pleasant Point, Cushing, pleaded guilty in Municipal Court yesterday to driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and was sentenced by Judge Miller to two months in jail and costs of court. He appealed. At the same session Judge Miller fined Harry A. Staples, Jr., $10 and costs for attaching to his car number plates assigned to another car.

The annual roll call meeting of the First Baptist church Tuesday opened with the first supper of the season, followed by a social hour program in which Miss Beulah Rokes and Mrs. Stephen Willis sang solos. Rachel and Priscilla Browne sang a duet, and Cynthia Waggart played a violin selection. The accompaniments were by Mrs. Browne and Miss Beth Hager. Principal Verrill of the High School in a brief address expressed his pleasure over his first contacts with life in Rockland. Following the supper the church auditorium was well filled to listen to an address by Rev. E. M. Holman, pastor of the Baptist Camden church. Preceding the speaking, Frank H. Ingraham announced the committees in connection with the meeting with this church next June of the State Convention. Miss Eda Knowlton presented nominations for church and Sunday School officers and committees and they were elected. The Church Juvenile Orchestra under Mrs. Browne's direction accompanied the hymns for this service. Mr. Holman's address was practical and inspiring, a message for rally week in preparation for the special meetings which this church is to carry on next month under direction of Dr. Massee of Tremont Temple. With the Bible for guide-book and the clarion call of John the Baptist, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord," the speaker declared his hearers would be well equipped for the work.

PARK THEATRE

The feature for today is Zane Grey's "Wild Horse Mesa," featuring Jack Holt, Billie Dove and Noah Beery. There is also a Comedy, Fables and News.

Friday and Saturday Tom Mix and Tony will be seen in their latest and best picture entitled "The Lucky Horse Show." The added feature is "Flattery" featuring John Bowers. "The Lucky Horseshoe" is the story of a western ranch man who almost loses the girl he loves because he is too bashful to tell her he loves her before she leaves to go abroad and too much of a sportsman to say anything after she has returned to the ranch engaged to another man. "Flattery" gives a vivid and interesting recital of how false praise proved the undoing of a wealthy young egotist, but finally aroused him to a full realization of his plight and turned him into the man of the hour.

The picture is entirely clean and will prove interesting and entertaining to all classes of theatregoers.—adv.

SCREAMINGLY FUNNY

Is the Play To Be Presented For the B. & P. W. Club.

One of the chief laugh-making scenes in "To the Ladies," the wonderful New York comedy success which will be presented Nov. 16, at Strand Theatre, at 8 p. m., by the Hanna Players, is the banquet episode, which is the turning point of the play. It is screamingly funny because of the neat manner in which banquets of business men are satirized—this scene surely will bring back to them some of the amusing things that always develop at meetings of this nature. There is the man who speaks for 45 minutes instead of five, the man who swears he was unprepared to make an address and then hauls out a bundle of notes, the telegrams of regret, the announcement of flash-lights at 75 cents each, and numerous other touches which will make anybody snicker with glee. The play is for the benefit of the B. & P. W. Club.

"KARNAK SIMPLY BEATS ANYTHING I EVER SAW"

Charles St. Pierre of Portland Says He Doesn't Believe Any Man His Age Has a Better Stomach Than He Has Now.

Here is the reason Karnak is breaking all records in Rockland at the Corner Drug Store.

The sensational medicine is producing results—amazing results—and people throughout Maine and New Hampshire are testifying by the hundreds to its marvelous powers. Nothing on earth can keep Karnak out of the homes.

Among the many remarkable reports of recovery to health after taking Karnak is that of Charles St. Pierre, of 55 Acadia street, East Deering District, Portland, Me., whose experience with the medicine is related here just as he tells it.

"The way this Karnak has fixed me up just beats anything I ever saw," says Mr. St. Pierre.

"For over ten years I suffered from stomach trouble, and although I took all kind of treatments and medicines, Karnak is the first thing that ever got to the roots of my trouble."

"I had such terrible pains in the lower part of my stomach I could hardly stand up, and they would gradually work up under my shoulder blades and into my chest until I could hardly get my breath. Often my stomach would feel so sore I couldn't eat a good meal for a whole week, and I was so tired out and exhausted that I would sit right down in the first chair I came to when I got home from work. I was so constipated that I had to take large doses of strong physics which weakened me all the more, and I just felt miserable all over."

"Well, sir, I got such wonderful relief from my first bottle of Karnak that I bought two at one time the next trip so as to be sure and not run out of it. I have taken four bottles now and I don't think there is a man my age who has a better stomach than I do now. I am eating just like I please and don't have a bit of trouble afterward. In fact, I have not been bothered with indigestion, gas or constipation since I started on Karnak, and I have so much new strength that evenings I get out and work about the house when I get home from work. Karnak hasn't an equal."

Karnak is sold in Rockland exclusively by the Corner Drug Store; in Thomaston by McDonald's Rexall Store; in Union by Gordon-Lovejoy; in Camden by Chandler's Pharmacy; and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv.

"EARLY in the fall of 1885, I purchased two Glenwood stoves—one for cooking and the other for heating. I am still (1925) running both stoves—the cook stove all year round and the heating stove from early fall to late spring.

"None of the iron of the cook stove is warped or even twisted and the seams have held well.

"I cannot imagine how a better running stove could be made than the Glenwood. My two have given perfect satisfaction for over 39 years."

This unsolicited testimonial from Charles W. Powers, Spencer, Mass., is only one of thousands which tell, in their own way, of the place which Glenwood Ranges hold in the hearts of their users everywhere.

EXCEPTIONAL RIDING COMFORT

The riding comfort of a motor car is not dependent upon its length, weight or cost, any more than the comfort of a home depends upon its size.

If the seats are deep enough and the proper distance from the floor; if the seat backs are correctly pitched for relaxation; if the upholstery is sufficiently stuffed and there is plenty of leg room; above all, if the springs are rightly designed and of proper length, you will have exceptional riding comfort. Otherwise, you will not.

Dodge Brothers, with characteristic thoroughness, studied and experimented with these details for years. Their findings were ultimately incorporated in the design of Dodge Brothers Motor Car—without question now a vehicle that ranks with the first in this vitally important feature.

SAFETY QUESTION

Country Must Cease To Depend On Police Powers, Says Auto President.

If the country expects to make more rapid progress in the solution of the hazard problem on the streets and highways, cities, towns and communities must take the safety question as primarily one of engineering and street planning on the one hand and not public education on the other.

This was the keynote of an address on "Safety and the Automobile" delivered by Thomas P. Henry, President of the American Automobile Association, before the Annual Congress of the National Safety Council in session in Cleveland.

President Henry issued a strong warning that the country must cease to depend on police powers and temporary regulations to solve the traffic problem and urged that safety work in the future be directed toward public education and city and community planning in the larger sense.

"All competent engineers with whom I have discussed the question are agreed that the problem of traffic and safety has long passed the point where it may be left to the police departments," President Henry declared.

He suggested three distinct lines along which community effort can be intelligently directed. He said:

"First, traffic and safety are practically synonymous, as far as accident prevention is concerned. Solve the problem of traffic congestion and you will have gone a long way toward the solution of your safety problem. I think this will be generally accepted as a fundamental truth. I am convinced that failure to accept it as such will lead us to waste much time on temporary expedients which, at the best, can only be expected to bring temporary relief.

"Second, of equal importance with the physical adaptation of our streets and highways to take care of the burden imposed on them, is the question of educating the people to the new conditions. This calls for an intensive educational campaign for 365 days each year. A safety instinct can be developed. America—and I mean all the people—is beginning to recognize that it is lacking solely in safety sense and that only through intensive evolution in the development of additional protective instincts can the country walk and motor in safety.

"Third, while we are doing everything possible to promote physical improvement in our streets and highways and to develop safety instinct through education, we must not overlook the practical things that we can do here and now. I mean by that, reasonable regulation of traffic both as regards the automobile and the pedestrian. This includes such adjuncts as adequate traffic control forces, adequate signaling devices, proper marking of highways, an intelligent system of protection at railroad grade crossings, and other details of practical control."

Speaking of the extent to which city planning is lagging behind the increase in automobiles and therefore in congestion, President Henry pointed out that in only 25 per cent of 233 cities from which reports were recently received have any traffic counts at all been made from the broader aspects and yet nearly half the cities reporting have dormant city planning commissions.

"I sometimes fear that the smaller cities will repeat the tragedy of the larger ones unless they learn their lesson from the experience of the others," He continued:

"When the cities were confronted with growing traffic problems a few years ago, the police departments assumed charge. The congestion was slight compared to what it is now and regulatory measures were simple—and seemingly effective. In most cases, while the engineers feel that the traffic problem is really an engineering problem, they find that it is still in the hands of the police department. Traffic rules, one-way streets, signal towers—they worked at the beginning, and apparently the prevailing theory is that as traffic congestion increases, all that is needed is simply more rules, more one-way streets and more signal towers—and bigger traffic courts.

"The police officials and their advisers in many of the large cities have used commendable ingenuity and patience in untangling traffic tangles and inventing schemes for preventing them. But the end of such measures is near—what is now needed is engineering ability and not police power.

"When the cities and their traffic commissions begin to find that the traffic problem cannot be solved by putting drivers in jail, they will turn their attention to the streets."

Because of the very wide belief in legislative cure-alls, Mr. Henry warned the Safety Council of the serious danger of over-regulation of the automobile and the consequent diminution of its value as a great instrument of transportation.

"I think all of us," he said, "have been in the habit of thinking too much in terms of legislation. In fact, that is a concurrent tendency in the American body politic,—to look to Congress, state legislatures and municipal bodies for statutes and ordinances to do this and that. We have the 'legislative complex' and I am not at all sure that the 'complex' has not already over-regulated the automobile and the motorist.

What we need is better enforcement of the laws we have. They are in the great majority of cases ample to reach the minority of users of the highway who are guilty of recklessness and carelessness."

An appropriation of $40,000 for the care and education of crippled children of the State was made at the recent session of the New York Legislature.

20 YEARS OF DIVIDENDS

THE 76th consecutive dividend of Central Maine Power Company, representing $178,130.71, that was mailed out on Oct. 1 to its 12,713 stockholders, rounds out 20 years of steady dividends!

For a fifth of a century Maine people who have invested in Central Maine Power Company have been getting their dividend checks four times EVERY year with clocklike regularity.

These dividends should continue to go out four times every year just as long as people continue to use electricity to light their homes and run their factories and mills. It is difficult to imagine that people will ever go back to the kerosene lamp and the old way of running machinery by hand. Electricity is now in such universal use that it is practically the cheapest commodity we use.

Mail Coupon Before Oct. 10

The next dividend payment is due on Jan. 1. Shares purchased before Oct. 10 will draw interest from Oct. 1. Why don't you, too, get in line for your part of this money?

FOR PRISON REFORM

Maine Club Women Interested—Mrs. Ellingwood Is Chairman.

In a letter to the Portland Sunday Telegram Mrs. C. B. Porter of Old Town says:

I am writing to remind you that the Maine Federation has long been interested in the subject of bettering the conditions of the prisoners and quote to your readers from a report given at the annual meeting of the Maine Federation of Women's Clubs in 1918 by Mrs. George F. French of Portland. She said:

"We are told that prison reform includes the reformation of the prisoner and of those who manage the prisons. In the last analysis we, the people, are the managers of the prisons and wholly responsible for the care of the prisoners even though we do not delegate some power to do the special work. We cannot delegate our personal responsibility. That still holds. We shall agree that the only punishment the community has a right to inflict, is to deny a person his liberty. It has no right, moral or legal, to hold him under conditions likely to undermine his health or morals, or to degrade or humiliate him. We will agree that even though a prisoner is a confessed or convicted robber, the State has no moral right to rob him of his only asset, his earning power. Prison labor should be interesting remunerative, and the prisoner paid a fair wage, and his wages over and above his expenses, used for his family. May it not be possible to give more thought to the prisoner and less to the crime? I ask each of you women to study this problem in the prisons and jails of Maine."

I assure you that before making this strong argument Mrs. French had given a great amount of study to the question.

Today Mrs. Ruth Ellingwood of Rockland is the chairman that has the matter of prisons under her care for the Maine Federation of Women's Clubs, and she, too, has made a close study of the question and brought before the women of the Federation at the winter season in Waterville in 1925—last January—resolutions and suggestions that would have put the Maine women and the organization on the map as it were and in line with advanced work for the prisoners if they had endorsed them. But as you said about the members of the Legislature, when the matter was brought up last winter no one had given enough study to the question, but to a few of us it seemed an opportunity lost to show that we were ready to help Maine to stand in the line of the most progressive states on this very important question.

THE PEPPERELLS

Portrait of Early Maine Woman at Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Boston, Oct. 7.—Another early Colonial portrait has recently been added to the large collection of the Museum of Fine Arts—that of Lady Pepperell, wife of Sir William Pepperell, and her sister, Mrs. Palmer, who as the Misses Elizabeth and Mary Royal, sat for Joseph Blackburn, the noted portrait painter of those days.

Sir William Pepperell is recorded as having upwards of fifty family portraits in his baronial hall at Kittery, Me., and it is probable that this childhood likeness of his wife and her sister was among them. Several of the others are in the Portsmouth Athenaeum. The date of this portrait of Lady Pepperell is presumably about 1760, the period of Blackburn's residence in New England.

There is something of a mystery hanging about this Colonial artist. Whence he came, and where he went after he left New England, no one knows. Some data about him which is not in books has been unearthed by Frank W. Bayley, whose researches first disclosed that the artist's name was Joseph and not Jonathan B., as some have written it. Search in the annals of British art has revealed nothing about him. He was obviously an able painter, as this Pepperell portrait shows.

The flesh tints have a purity of quality in this painting and a clarity of definition, rarely to be found in these early portraits. The faces convey an impression of likeness and—this much is known about Blackburn, at least—he always aimed at truthfulness in his portraiture. He painted portraits of a number of other prominent New Englanders, and is known to have lived at times in Portsmouth, Boston, Stonington, and New York. The Stonington Historical Society collection has a portrait of Lady Grant, wife of Sir Alexander Grant, who in 1764 left New England to become governor of Jamaica, painted by Blackburn. He disappeared in 1763, and mail for him at the Boston office was uncalled for, and apparently unforwarded, because his address was unknown. It is conjectured that he may have gone to Jamaica with his patron, Sir Alexander Grant, and died there.

Mr. Bayley, in his researches has unearthed a reference to him as of Bahamas.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

Harold Lloyd Confused by Boob Football Play—Star of "The Freshman" Says It's Harder to do Things Wrong Way Than Right.

The best test of a man's ability as an actor is to have him play something he really is not.

That's what Harold Lloyd does in portraying the college boob in his newest comedy feature, "The Freshman," which comes Monday, for three days to the Park Theatre. In the football sequence, which has an important bearing on the story, Lloyd is made to appear to know nothing about the technique of the game, when, as a matter of fact, he knows the game well. Lloyd said, "It was one of the hardest jobs of my film career to perform some of the scenes on the football field in making 'The Freshman.' The natural thing is to make the right plays, and, in the excitement of the scenes to do the wrong thing is contrary to instinct. I was out there for laughs, however, although I believe we have a fairly legitimate football game in 'The Freshman.'"

Seven months were required to make "The Freshman," which is, in every way, Harold Lloyd's biggest production. Jobyna Ralston is again the comedian's leading lady.—adv.

STRAND THEATRE

"Married," featuring Constance Bennett and Owen Moore, will be shown at the Strand the last times today.

The roars of laughter that follow in the wake of such a production as "Charley's Aunt" re-echo as loudly through "The Bandit's Baby" which comes to the Strand Friday and Saturday. Situations that are positively new, comedy of a high order, burlesque, and satire are all blended beautifully with the fast action of a rattling western tale.

"Passionate Youth" starring Frank Mayo, Beverly Bayne and Pauline Gerson is the added attraction. It depicts the story of the Jazz Age and neglecting parents and is very good entertainment.

Columbus Day Billy Hall and his famous musical comedy company open for the week presenting "Kings Raze," that funny little comedian, Mr. Hall assisted by the eccentric comedian, Dick Murray; Bob Dun, singer, Miss Effie Pratt, leading lady, Wallace Hall, dancer and singer, Dot Stevens, soubrette, Roy Chester, Agnes King and a fast steppers chorus.
