

BUYING INSURANCE And BUYING SHOES

Are vastly different transactions

If the pair of shoes you buy turns out to be a "lemon," you haven't lost much. It is merely an inexpensive lesson to patronize a reputable store.

If the insurance policy you buy from some itinerant vendor or mail order house or inexperienced agent turns out to be a "lemon," IT MAY COST YOU HUNDREDS OR THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS.

MORAL:

When you buy insurance don't think of it in the terms of the premium you pay as a small transaction; think of it in the terms of the large claims that may come, which makes it a very important transaction. Don't place your insurance with some agent simply because "he needs it"—if you DO need help before he gets through with you. Don't place your insurance with some agent whose main bid for the business is his ability to give you a back a resounding slap—you need the advice of someone who is too busy furnishing REAL insurance service to scratch your back. When you pay the premium, YOU PAY FOR expert insurance service throughout the life of the policy; YOU PAY FOR the privilege of having your insurance affairs in the hands of some one who will be PERMANENTLY "on the job," day in and day out; YOU PAY FOR the privilege of having your business in the hands of someone who will be still selling insurance years from now at the "same old stand," and not in the hands of someone who will be a plumber six months from now, YOU PAY FOR having your insurance interests, especially the CLAIMS that MEAN MANY DOLLARS TO YOU, handled by some one who is familiar with the legal interpretation of the policy contract conditions and restrictions and who is experienced enough to give you some real advice and service.

WHY NOT GET WHAT YOU PAY FOR?

CAPT. HART'S ESCAPE

Former Glenmere Man Fell Overboard At Constitution Wharf, Boston.

Capt. J. Lelan Hart, formerly of Glenmere and now keeper of Boston Light Station, Boston Harbor, had a hairbreadth escape from death last Saturday afternoon, when he was rescued from drowning, after he had slipped from an icy ladder at Constitution Wharf.

He was about to board the harbor police boat Guardian, with the intention of going back to the light. Being unable to swim he went down twice before being rescued. Patrolman Daniel T. Doyle of the Harbor Police, was his rescuer. Hearing Capt. Hart's cries for help he came at once, placing a ladder into the water so that the lighthouse keeper could reach the lower round. When Hart had grasped the ladder he pulled him to the wharf and assisted him out of the frigid water.

An ambulance was called and Hart was rushed to the Chelsea Marine Hospital, suffering from the immersion, and water in his lungs. His case was considered dangerous for a time, but he is more comfortable and it is expected that he will be released from the hospital in a few days.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Emanating From Publicity Headquarters of Central Maine Power Co.

Ralph Smith contributes to the current issue of The Exciter the following items concerning the Central Maine Power Co.'s activities in the Rockland district:

The boys in the wiring department are radio fans. Recently six Brownings Drake sets have been completed. It is reported that Gene Tripp's Crosley Pup outbarks them all. Murray Whalen of the meter department was recently at Union. He made part of the trip on snowshoes. Several wiring jobs in the outlying districts are held up because of the heavy snowfall. Drifts from six to ten feet deep are reported.

Rockland's first electrical home, which was badly damaged by fire, is being rebuilt and wired. It is owned by Link McRae of the Company and was burned on the night of its completion. The fire started from a pile of shavings left in the cellar.

Meters at Port Clyde were read Saturday, Feb. 20. The job was completed in one day, the trip being made by snowmobile.

The line crew is building a 45-foot Western red cedar line from Glen Cove sub-station to Limerock Junction, a distance of one and one-half miles. This line carries two 6,000-volt A. C. circuits, three 6.6 series street light circuits, four railway feeders, one tel. and R. R. signal circuit with two and three wire secondary mains, and a R. R. trolley. It is along the railroad right of way and replaces a line constructed 33 years ago at the beginning of the electric service here.

Foreman Al Young wishes to call attention of the brother linemen that I. L. Ripley has been laid up over a week with what his physician calls a poison from the use of creosote oil, used in treating poles. This is the first time in Mr. Young's experience that he has heard of such a case. The many friends of Henry Tripp were shocked to learn of his sudden death. Mr. Tripp had been in the Company's employ a number of years. He last served as dispatcher at the car barn.

Late investigations indicate that pneumonia and influenza are generally contracted by the common use of eating utensils, all of which should be boiled after use by the patient. Rockland Red Cross.

MAINE ELECTIONS

Republicans and Democrats Divided Honors In Monday's Battles.

Leicester—Dr. R. J. Wiseman, Democrat, was re-elected mayor by a majority of 1990. The Republicans put a ticket in every ward in the city for the first time for two years and succeeded in carrying two of the seven wards and greatly reducing the Democratic majority for the head of the ticket. Two years ago Prof. J. M. Carroll of Bates College, the Republican nominee for mayor, carried but one ward and received a total vote of but 1667, losing by a majority of 2674. Monday Mr. Berman received a total of 2656 and reduced the majority practically 500.

Eastport—Frank A. Havey, Democrat, was elected mayor in one of the most exciting elections for many years, defeating Roscoe C. Emery, former State Senator, by a majority of 138. The total vote was: Havey, 772; Emery, 634. The Democrats also elected six of the eight aldermen, carrying Wards, one and two and three. A snowstorm raged throughout the day, but the vote was the largest on record. Republicans have been in control of the city government since 1923.

Saco—The Republicans re-elected Melvin G. Smith for a third term and elected aldermen in three of the seven wards. Mayor Smith defeated Judge Wallace Harmon, Democrat, Independent, 1,617 to 1,455. Harmon was Mayor Smith's opponent last year and lost that election by 65 votes.

Bath—Republicans elected 15 candidates for the board of aldermen and city council, 12 for the Democrats. Mayor Charles H. Cahill running for re-election on a Democratic-Citizen's ticket, was unopposed. The board of aldermen will have 4 Republicans and 2 Democrats and one at-large member, and the council 11 Republicans and 10 Democrats.

Ellsworth—Mayor Lewis Hodgkins, Democrat, defeated Munroe Y. McGowan, Republican candidate for his office by 115 votes. Hodgkins' vote was 768, McGowan 653. The Democrats elected three aldermen and the Republicans two.

Waterville—Dr. Herbert C. Libby, Republican, was elected mayor by a majority of 51 votes over F. Harold Dubord, Democrat. Dr. Libby carried five of the seven wards with the city government. A vote of 6967 was the largest ever cast here. A mix-up in the ballots of ward one delayed returns and for two hours a huge crowd stormed City Hall for the returns, which were decided by Ward One's majority of 53 for Libby. The new mayor is professor of public speaking at Colby College. The returns were the closest since 1918 when the city went Republican by one vote.

So, Portland—Geo. H. Minot, Rep., was elected mayor without opposition. He succeeds William R. McDonald, Republican, who served six terms. Republican aldermen were elected in all of the seven wards. In several there were no contests.

Real distinction has come to a Rockland girl, Miss Daphne Winslow, Broadway, who has been made captain of the Junior Class basketball team at University of Maine. This follows naturally the fact that through the winter she was one of the varsity forwards, and this in spite of injuries sustained in hockey. Daphne will be remembered as the captain of that team of 1921 which ushered in the golden age of basketball for Rockland High School and featured the famous "Cyclone and the Bear Cat."

Jute Won Away Our Silver Dollars
The favorite location is an alluvial sand bank. The fate of a flood hangs over the crop in the early stages, but later it can withstand heavy weather. In August crops are cut, tied in bundles and anchored in creeks. Soon the bank is sufficiently rotted and the fibers loosened. Native workers laboring knee-deep in the streams strip each piece with a peculiar swift movement. The dry, shredded fibers go in bales to Calcutta, the main market. Native Indian agriculturists with small holdings farm nearly 3,000,000 acres with jute every year. Another crisis in jute jute back in the war year of 1918 occurred in Congress in Washington, D. C., and sent 200,000,000 American silver dollars to India. At that time all England's problems were not on the war fronts. Britain had been paying out silver rupees in large quantities to her Indian troops and had been buying supplies, notably jute, until she had almost no silver left. Native workers thought of putting silver in a bank where it might continue in circulation; they hammered the rupees into jewelry or hid them. But the fighting forces had to have jute for tarpaulin and sacks. England asked the United States to help her out. An act was hurried through Congress. It ordered the silver dollars that stand back of silver certificates into the melting pot. Treasure ships carried the hoard to India. The dollars that became rupees bought jute and the restless Indian farmer became pacified."

SHORT JUTE CROP

Is Attracting New Attention To This Much Used Product.

The "Machy rubber ball" having touched its highest leap in the stock exchange, according to reports, jute, another British product, is making a bid for rubber's place in public attention.

"A shortage in the Indian jute crop may have the unfortunate result of requiring America to spend on increased costs of potatoes, cotton shirts, linoleum and rugs, the money it expects to save this spring at the automobile 'fire agency,'" says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The emergency probably will bring the word jute into commoner usage in the United States. This immigrant from India has been traveling incognito up and down our land as 'gunny sack' and 'burlap.'"

Some "One Place" Products

"Jute is more a resource than a product. Nature has put jute in one place almost in the manner she restricted anthracite coal to a tiny pocket of Pennsylvania or cached iron ore in a European war debt in the Mesaba district of Minnesota. India can no more help being the sole large producer of gunny sack and burlap than Colombia can help being the world's chief producer of emeralds.

"Jute is a plant and not a mineral, but successful production of it seems to be limited to the double delta of the Ganges and the Brahmaputra Rivers. Since the State of Bengal encompasses the delta, it has become famous for jute as well as for tea. In the delta jute enjoys that prodigious type of agriculture, usually associated with Egypt, by which the highlands are annually robbed of their slender store of soil to fertilize flood plains with a new layer of rich dirt. This scraggly annual jute-producing bush also has adapted its constitution to the monsoon schedule of rains. Thus far it has refused to amend either of those two habits of life when transplanted to a new environment. Since the Ganges-Brahmaputra delta is the only place in the world where the two factors are brought together, India has a natural monopoly on jute.

Social Register of the Fibres
"The native name of the plant from which comes the jute of commerce is pat. It is a valued member of the flax, hemp, sisal (henequen) line of the first fiber families of the world. Flax is the spotless aristocrat; hemp and jute are solid middle-class fibres, each inured to heavy work and honest dirt. Flax says jute is coarse. Hemp overlooks this issue, but whispers the gossip that the real reasons that jute is not acceptable in hemp society are its lack of stamina to stand strain and a yellow complexion that bleaching powders cannot whiten. Jute fibres are very long, usually 6 to 10 feet, sometimes attaining 14 or 15 feet.

"Although jute is constantly finding new uses to do in America, it will never acquire the myriad of uses assigned to it in India. There it is string and rope, a baglike net for carrying wood or hay on bullocks, a stuff for tying cotton and cloth bales, a hammock for the baby, a swinging shelf, rug, brush, underwear, hairband and stage hat, incense stick, a muzzle for cattle, etc. America is most familiar with it in the guise of gunny sacks for carrying innumerable things to market. The South goes half way around the earth for jute, a fiber, to wrap another fiber, cotton, in bales for market. Jute is the base for linoleum in the kitchen and, very often, the rug in the dining room. It is the foundation of upholstery and auto tops. Much tarpaulin, the heavy waterproof covering, which, incidentally gives us the nickname 'tar' for sailor, is made of jute.

Mr. Sargent explained that under the operation of the present law the State gives a bonus of 25 per cent to those cities and towns which appropriate five times their usual amount for permanent roads, and how, under this system, if Rockland appropriated $8600 the State would add $2150, making an available fund of $10,750. In other words the town that ordinarily raises $300 a year would receive $6300 from the State if it increased its appropriation to $1500. Then there is the three-town act, whereby three or more towns agree to improve a continuous road 15 or more miles in length in those towns. In the expenditure of the State's fund State Aid roads are looked after first; roads built under the five times act second; roads built under the five times act, but which have had previous aid, third; and roads built under the three-town act fourth.

When a piece of road is built, said Mr. Sargent, the Highway Commission's responsibility has just begun. Since 1919 there have been 1500 miles of road under daily patrol maintenance and about 500 patrolmen have been employed. Mr. Sargent told of the investigation which had been made to learn the cause of "washboard" conditions in a gravel highway, and of the conclusion reached that it was due to the kickback, or spin of the rear wheels of automobiles, after they had encountered an obstruction and bounced off the surface. When the wheels again strike the gravel out.

Bituminous macadam surface is being built on many of the roads, at a cost of $1000 a mile, and it is the hope of the department to have the entire stretch from Rockland to Woolwich thus treated before the bridge is built. The State is also spending from $450 to $700 a mile on surfaces which are not covered by bituminous macadam. The calcium chloride treatment has been used in some sections to ally dust. Since 1916 the State has been riding towns in the reconstruction of bridges, the town spending from 15 to 45 percent, the county 30 percent and the State from 25 to 55 percent. The State's outlay for this purpose has been $4,400,000.

UNION MEN'S BARRAGE

Through Last Night's Open Forum Wanted To Know Why Route 101 Is Being Neglected—Chief Engineer Paul D. Sargent Gives Fine Address.

Upward of 100 Knox County men attended the open forum tonight at the Chamber of Commerce in American Legion hall last night and heard the very complete explanation of State highway affairs offered by Paul D. Sargent, chief engineer of the State Highway Commission. Most of those in attendance were Rockland business men who belong to the Chamber, but there was also a goodly sprinkling from Union, St. George and other towns. Quite a few of them were also from Missouri, it developed in the course of the open forum, and they frankly expressed to Mr. Sargent their opinion that an equitable division of the highway bond issue is not coming to Knox County in general and Route 101 in particular.

Asked as to the status of the Kennebec Bridge, Chief Engineer Sargent replied that the plans and specifications have been prepared by Engineer Waddell and that bids will be opened in April. If those bids are satisfactory the contract will be let and work will begin at once. Engineer Waddell is confident that the bridge will be in operation by the fall of 1927, an optimistic view which Mr. Sargent admitted that he did not share.

In each of the past two years, according to Mr. Sargent, the United States has expended in excess of a billion dollars on its highways, and at the present time the building operations are almost equivalent to three Panama Canals each year. Motorists spend eight billions in operating automobiles and trucks and the wholesale value of motor vehicles manufactured in this country in 1925 was three billions. It is easily one of the leading industries in the country, and shows why the question of highway improvement is so important.

The State made its first appropriation for State Aid road work 25 years ago—$15,000, or about enough to build a quarter of a mile of modern highway now. In 1925 the cities and towns appropriated $595,500 and the Highway Commission allotted $739,000 to go with it. Some persons say they don't see much improvement, but the tourists do, according to the speaker.

In 12 years the State Highway Commission has spent $2,000,000 and built more than 3200 miles of road. In all the State has today 3800 miles of improved highway. The number of miles of State Aid road built is 2344 and about 1800 miles additional has been authorized. Every dollar of the $2 million was appropriated by Legislature and expended under laws laid down by that body. It has been the State's aim to build up a system of secondary roads leading from production centers to the main highways. It has also been the aim to assist the poor towns more generously than the wealthy ones.

Last year there were applications amounting to $1,700,000 from the towns and a fund of $200,000 at their disposal. Chief Engineer Sargent explained that under the operation of the present law the State gives a bonus of 25 per cent to those cities and towns which appropriate five times their usual amount for permanent roads, and how, under this system, if Rockland appropriated $8600 the State would add $2150, making an available fund of $10,750. In other words the town that ordinarily raises $300 a year would receive $6300 from the State if it increased its appropriation to $1500. Then there is the three-town act, whereby three or more towns agree to improve a continuous road 15 or more miles in length in those towns. In the expenditure of the State's fund State Aid roads are looked after first; roads built under the five times act second; roads built under the five times act, but which have had previous aid, third; and roads built under the three-town act fourth.

Mr. Sargent explained that the bond issues of 1912, 1919, 1925, carrying a total of $16,000,000, have all been authorized by the people in State elections, and passed by a vote of more than five to one. The interest and retirement are taken care of by motor vehicle fees, and no State tax is levied for either purpose. The interest and retirement of bonds always will be taken care of by motor vehicle fees.

"When any of us criticise the system," said Mr. Sargent, "we criticise what four-fifths of us have voted for."

When a piece of road is built, said Mr. Sargent, the Highway Commission's responsibility has just begun. Since 1919 there have been 1500 miles of road under daily patrol maintenance and about 500 patrolmen have been employed. Mr. Sargent told of the investigation which had been made to learn the cause of "washboard" conditions in a gravel highway, and of the conclusion reached that it was due to the kickback, or spin of the rear wheels of automobiles, after they had encountered an obstruction and bounced off the surface. When the wheels again strike the gravel out.

The effect of good roads is easily reflected in the cost of automobile operation. In 1918 the average consumption of gasoline was 509 gallons, while in 1924 it had been reduced to 310 gallons. Good roads are reducing the cost of operation 2 1/2 cents a mile.

The question of improvements on Route 101 was brought up by Sheriff Thurston and precipitated a lively debate. Mr. Sargent was unable to make a definite statement as to when the route would be completed, but said that the building of the highway from Togus to Cooper's Mills is in the 1926 program.

W. A. Ayer of Union felt that Knox County is being ignored, and told of correspondence with Gov. Brewster, in which the latter had declared that there would be an appropriation of $100,000 for Route 101 before he would approve the highway program. "We feel that we are not being treated justly in not having a start made on this road," said Mr. Ayer, "and we also fear that it may be re-routed."

Mr. Sargent, handicapped by hot having the necessary reports in his possession, was unable to say just what had been done for Knox County, but he did have a recollection of what the State had early done in the way of permanent highway in Rockport and Camden. All of the money for the first few years had been expended on the shore lines at the suggestion of the War Department.

Dr. H. H. Plummer of Union also took up the cudgels for Route 101. "We feel," said he, "that we should have a little slice of the loaf, and would be satisfied if we could have two miles of road built this year."

"I see no reason why you cannot go to Augusta Friday and present your cause to the Highway Commission," said Mr. Sargent.

"We have come to the feeling that it does no good to go to Augusta," was the rejoinder.

E. S. Bird said that he had been informed by a member of the Council that the Commission had recommended $100,000 for Knox County, to be expended between Rockland and Rockport, and that Gov. Brewster had assured $40,000 additional.

"This is money from the gasoline tax and not from the bond issue," said Mr. Sargent, who went on to tell about the big problem presented by the condition of the highway between Kittery and Portland, and of the demands upon the Commission everywhere.

"Knox County is innuocated with this publicity idea, the same as the rest of the State," said Col. W. H. Butler.

William T. Smith wanted to know when the Edgemoor cut-off would be in operation and why it was left in such rotten condition. W. D. Talbot told of passing over it the last day of January. It is to be given a tarvis surface.

Chief Engineer Sargent was given a great hand at the conclusion of the meeting.

The supper was served by Caterer M. P. Trainer, with the assistance of Legion men and a corps of smiling and agreeable waiters. The job was well done.

THE PINES
O heard ye the pines in the solitude sigh
When the winds were awakened and night was high?
When the elms breathed out a sorrowful tale,
Which was wafted away on the wings of the gale?
When the aspens leaf whispered a legend dread,
And the willows weaved darkly over the head?
And the reed shone with a silvery gleam,
And trembled like one in a troubled dream?
And the cypresses murmured of grief and woe,
And the sumach seemed wrap in a golden glow?
And the soft maple blushed where the frost had kissed?
And the spectral birch stood alone in the gloom,
Like an unquiet spirit arising from the tomb?
And the cedar outstretched its lone arms to the earth,
To feed with sweet moisture the place of its birth?
And the hemlock, uplifted above the crowd,
Drank deeply of mist at the brink of a cloud?
And the balsams with curtains of shaggy green,
Like tents in the distance where dimly seen,
I heard the pines in their solitude crying,
When the winds were awakened, and the day was dying?
And there the storm grew, and darker its fall,
But the voice of the pines was louder than all.
—Charles Mair.

THREE TIMES A WEEK

CIRCULATION AFFIDAVIT

Rockland, March 4, 1926.
Personally appeared Frank S. Jodice, who on oath declares that he is president in the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that of the issue of this paper of March 2, 1926, there was printed a total of 6,342 copies.
Before me, FRANK B. MILLER
Notary Public.

As for God, his way is perfect; the word of the Lord is tried; he is a buckler to all them that trust in him.
—2 Sam. 22:31.

A good deal of literature is being broadcasted forth the allurements of foreign travel. Newspaper office desks come in for their generous share of it, most of which slides naturally into the wastebasket. Now and then a paragraph of it arrests the eye, for instance this one that offers to the traveler "a hundred thousand welcomes." That is from Ireland and is characteristic of its people. We have twice visited that romantic country and experienced the home feeling that comes over one when he is made welcome by every Irishman and finds that every Michael, Patrick, Norah and Eileen can discuss America with the same ardency that gives color to the greeting. To travel across seas and not come into contact with this warm atmosphere of Ireland, is to miss one of the most satisfying bits of foreign travel.

A daily fall of snow since March stepped on the stage helps to emphasize the opinion, held in some quarters, that while the opening months of a Maine winter may comport themselves with benignity, it is merely holding in reserve those battalions of weather which in due time will be launched upon the helpless community. Since January went out, the thermometer has run consistently low in the bulb, and repeated storms have laid deep coverings of snow upon the routes of travel which, both urban and suburban, are painful to navigate. That is so far Knox County's winter story. It may touch the imagination of our readers in Florida and California.

The enterprise that Rockport is showing in the staging of a two-day carnival is highly to be commended and The Courier-Gazette hopes the hard work the committees are putting into the preliminary arrangements may reap their full measure of reward. The proceeds are to be applied to so worthy an object—sending the High School seniors on a trip to Washington—that public spirit is easily enlisted to the support of the exhibition. These community midwinter carnivals are to be approved upon many accounts, not the least of which is the spirit of co-operation which they develop among the town's people. Let's all go up and give Rockport a hand.

In Knox County, where fraternal orders have consistently found flourishing ground, it may be regarded as curious that the Macabees should never have become established here. The order, now numbering 4000 lodges and 200,000 members, is about moving into its new two and a half million dollar building at Detroit, which it is declared will be the finest home office building in America owned and operated by a fraternal benefit society. Our recollection is that a lodge of Macabees was organized in Rockland several years ago, but failed to make headway and after a little while surrendered its charter.

In response to a number of inquiries the following information is repeated: The Treasury has granted a number of extensions of time as to when final tax returns must be made for this year's payments. Citizens and residents whose net income exceeds $5000, and domestic corporations, are given until May 15 in which to file complete returns. They must make tentative returns by March 15, together with one-fourth of the estimated tax. If the estimated tax is less than shown, to be due on the completed return, the difference will bear interest at 6 per cent until paid back.

To look upon the present snow-encrusted face of the Country Club grounds is to arouse only the most rudimentary vibrations of hope, yet the eye of faith piercing that weight of snow perceives at the bottom of it the waiting greens. Cheer up! In six weeks time, the ardent golfer will find himself making the rounds of the course. O boy!

We consumed eight hundred and twenty-five thousand tons of candy last year. This is not the editorial we—it refers to the people of America. The figures are those given out by the National Confectioners' Association, and they add that 1926 will show even larger consumption of sweets.

The Courier-Gazette welcomes contributions from its readers. They lend variety to its columns and form one of the most interesting features of the paper.

It is said that Ireland is now enjoying a peace that she has never before experienced. The inhabitants are hearing up under it as well as can be expected.—Punch.

"Ma" Ferguson and Nellie Ross Seek Another Term As Governors.

Two women Governors will be candidates for re-election at the next poll in their states.

In Texas, Mrs. Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson has announced that she again will be a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination on a platform of "further vindication" of her husband, former Governor "Jim" Ferguson, who was impeached during his term.

In Wyoming, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross will be the Democratic nominee for Governor this year to succeed herself as chief executive, according to the consensus of political opinion throughout the State just prior to the scheduled meeting of the Democratic State committee, which will gather in Cheyenne to take preliminary action for perfecting the party organization for the campaign this year.

Wyoming is one of the 22 States in the Union that elects its Governor and other elective State officers for a term of four years, and Democratic leaders are favoring an early start in this year's campaign, believing, as they do, that, with Mrs. Ross at the head of their ticket success will be achieved in November.

Normally Wyoming is considered a Republican State, but in the election of 1924 when Calvin Coolidge won the electoral vote of Wyoming by a plurality of 16,684, Mrs. Ross, on the Democratic ticket, was elected over her Republican opponent by a majority of 8,048.

At the election of 1922, William B. Ross, husband of the present Governor, was elected on the Democratic ticket by a plurality of 723. On both occasions the Republican candidates, other than for Governor, won by large pluralities. William B. Ross was chosen to serve the term ending Jan. 3, 1927, but died on Oct. 2, 1924, and Mrs. Ross, his widow, was elected to fill out the unexpired term.

Three major circumstances, or reasons, are believed to have contributed to giving Mrs. Ross the remarkable vote received by her at the election in 1924.

First, the sincere and State-wide sympathy for her in her great bereavement and the smallness of the estate left by her popular husband; second, the promises made by William B. Ross to the people that had not been brought to fulfillment and the belief that the Rosses were entitled to the full term for which he had been elected as a matter of right and to "make good," especially in view of the fact that all plans of the family had been made in the conviction that the executive mansion would be their dwelling place for four years, their modest home in Cheyenne having been leased for that period of time and not available for their occupancy; third, and perhaps, the most important, the slogan adopted by the Democratic State Convention that nominated Mrs. Ross, "Beat Texas To It," which caught the public fancy and resounded throughout the State.

Wyoming a Pioneer

On the fifth day of January, 1925, Mrs. Ross was inaugurated Governor of Wyoming, something like three weeks before Texas formally placed Ma Ferguson at the executive head of the government of that State.

Nellie Taylor Ross, now Governor of Wyoming, has visited every section of the State, has delivered numerous addresses and is known to nearly all of the State's people. She insists, however, that she is not a politician.

BENNER EXPLAINS

Alderman From Ward Two Shows the Sound Intent of His Motion.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

At the January meeting of the City Council I noted the passage of the order empowering the mayor to pay all salaried officers, but too late to table it. This order requires no action by the accounts and claims committee whatever. My motion of Monday night merely put the matter of paying the salaried officers back into the hands of the accounts and claims committee where it always should have been, in the regular routine of city business.

This had nothing to do with the men who work by the day, simply concerned the salaried officers. I am willing to state that the thought back of my motion was to be able to stop the pay of those men who hold the vacant offices (if the City Council so desired) and thus compel the Mayor to make his appointments as he should have done at our first meeting.

We members of the City Government are willing to sit down in a friendly manner with the Mayor at any time and pick out some men who would be satisfactory to all concerned, but he refuses to do it. Consequently my plan was to force him to take some action in the matter of the appointments through this motion which all the Democratic aldermen knew about and had agreed to support.

With such an able and willing City Council as Mayor Carver has we would be able to have one of the best administrations in the history of Rockland if Mr. Carver would only sit down fairly with the members of the board and come to some agreement on the vacant offices. Then we would have everything harmonious and all work for the best interest of every Rockland taxpayer.

Alderman from Ward Two.

BACK IN DEAR OLD UNION

(For The Courier-Gazette)
Back in dear old Union—
How it fits my heart with joy
To hear once more the landladies
I loved when I was a boy.
No matter where I wander
There's one other place the same
As the dear old town of Union
In the good old State of Maine.

With its hills, its lakes and villages
And its fine, productive soil,
Where there's always something doing
For the ones who love to toil.
They may talk of booming Florida,
But their talk will be in vain,
For I cannot leave a candle
To the good old State of Maine.

This reminds me of a dream I had—
How I think of makes me sigh—
Thought I was down in Florida
For the ones who love to toil.
And I met our old friend Herbert,
He was looking blue and sad,
I asked him how he liked the place
And this is what he said:

"At first I was delighted
For I knew the place was gay,
And built myself a lounge
And thought I'd always stay;
But I'm sorry now I built it
In this land where reptiles creep,
And I long for dear old Union
Where the snow is ten feet deep."

I knew exactly how he felt.
For in this green-hued land
I journeyed 'cross the continent
In pursuit of something new;
But the happiest moment that I saw
Was when I jumped aboard the train
And commenced my homeward journey
To the good old State of Maine.

The dear old Pine Tree State,
Where the tourists love to come
And spend a happy summer
With fishing-rod and gun,
And when the season's ended,
How it fits their hearts with pain,
To think vacation's over
And they're leaving dear old Maine.

Now, friends let's join together
And give old Maine a boost;
We'll forget this winter weather
When the chickens come to roost.
Old Maine is full of lovely towns,
The north, east, south and west,
I've lived in several different ones
But Union suits me best.

Many times I know I've wandered
From the dear old town away,
But at last I have got back again
And I think I've come to stay
And I hope when life is over
And my body free from pain,
To rest in dear old Union
In the good old State of Maine.

Union March 2.

EXTRA DAYLIGHT

How Portland Will Meet the Situation This Summer.

Residents of Portland are assured of an extra daylight hour, such as they have enjoyed in previous years. This extra daylight hour will prevail from midnight Sunday, April 2 to midnight Sunday, Sept. 26.

Reports of the canvass among 22 groups of business and professional men and women of the city showed their membership practically unanimous in favor of the extra daylight hour. The groups canvassed included wholesale firms, retail grocers, jewelers, industries, transportation, automobiles, hardware, retail shoe firms, men's clothing, women's apparel, druggs, confectionery, millinery, furniture, fruit, physicians, dentists, hotels, painters and odds department stores, real estate and insurance.

Harry A. Rounds, chairman of the committee on extra daylight hour for Portland, and the other members of the committee urged that citizens of Portland generally co-operate with the groups which have been canvassed in setting their clocks and watches forward, beginning at midnight Sunday, April 25.

The pledge card used in the canvass and which was signed almost without dissent by the many who were interviewed by the group sub-committees is as follows:

"I am in favor of bringing about an extra daylight hour this summer for the City of Portland. I will, at the suggestion of the Citizens' Committee on extra daylight hour, set the clocks and watches of my business place, as well as those of my home and self, ahead one hour during the period, April 25 to Sept. 26, 1926."—Press Herald.

OUST CHIEF HAVENER

Happy Revelers Take Possession Of His New Broadway Home For Housewarming

Chief Engineer Albert R. Havener was shown out of his handsome new Broadway home Tuesday night almost before the supper dishes were cleared by the busy Mrs. Havener. "Doris, Mildred and Bertha are coming up early to see and I'm going to surprise 'em with a lunch," she said, and the chief smiled up his gold braided sleeve, for he knew a thing or two about the evening's schedule.

Soon the three guests arrived and were serving away in happy informality in the upstairs den when came an imperative knock. Mrs. Havener answered with visions of all sorts of disasters and was overwhelmed by the rush as she opened the door. The invasion proved a friendly one, however, the members of four of the clubs to which she belongs having united in this method of springing a housewarming.

As soon as the lower lights were burning and the hubbub died away the two score guests gathered around and presented the hostess with a handsome banjo clock, a piece of furniture much desired by the new home settler. Other gifts in silver and linen made their appearance to complete her happiness. The precious possession of by the jolly guests and a delicious and carefully planned buffet lunch served. The evening was devoted to cards, sociability, sewing and poetry, with the beautiful new home coming in for its full meed of observation and praise. Prizes at auction fell to Mrs. Ethel Gonia, Mrs. Gertrude Boddy and Mrs. Louise Brown.

PARK THEATRE

"Dance Madness" is the title of today's feature, with Claire Windsor and Conrad Nagel starring. You don't know how funny a picture can be until you've seen this fast-stepping tale. A husband who loves to dance with anybody but his wife—and the mysterious masked dancer who suddenly comes into his life, and as strangely disappears! All played against a background of the gayest haunts of gay Paree!

Sir Philip Gibbs, one of the most noted English men of letters comes to the screen Friday and Saturday of this week in "The Reckless Lady," from his famous novel of the same name. The Gibbs story concerns the plight of a mother whose one great mistake threatens to shadow the happiness of her daughter. Without friends or fortune she spurs the first and tries to recoup the second by plunging heavily at the gaming tables in Monte Carlo. In the end, though she loses all her winnings, her luck brings a new found happiness both to herself and to her daughter.

The companion feature for Friday and Saturday is the screen version of John Golden's great stage play, "The First Year." Grace Livingston is the little bride in the picture whose husband invites an important client up to dinner without consulting her. That wouldn't have been such a terrible offense if her maid hadn't gotten sick at the last moment and left her servantless and forced to substitute the gangling daughter of her colored washerwoman. The situation is of the type that cannot help but provoke laughter from every member of the audience. And the climax which comes as the result of strained nerves after the dinner party will hit home.

The great big event of the picture season is scheduled for Monday Tuesday and Wednesday when Charlie Chaplin comes in "The Gold Rush."

The picture is in nine reels, and photographic experts declare the ninth has more laughs in it than the first, and that the first is better than any previous Chaplin laugh producer. EMPIRE THEATRE

Today's program is headed by Stella Maris, one of the best offerings this theatre has had in many weeks. Into each life some rain must fall—into the pure girlish heart of innocent Stella Maris stalked the black shadows of disillusionment and despair. Loved, worshipped by the two men who were all the world to her—forced to a choice she finds her chosen one tied by marriage to a despicable, cruel and heartless mate, Courage ebbs—the world totters about her ears when Fate, in the guise of the poor, ugly, unwanted slaver makes the supreme sacrifice and gives her life that her idol might live in happiness; but all in vain, for Fate again steps in for a stupendous dramatic climax that will hold you in its spell to the last detail.

The other feature today is "The Phantom Shadow," a thrilling underworld drama.

"Justice in the Far North" is the Friday-Saturday feature, and it fairly teems with thrills. Among the high spots will be found—among the chase over the frozen wastes of the Arctic region; a trail that leads into the famed valley of Ten Thousand Smokes; an American volcano in eruption, clouds of sulphurous gas. FUNERAL OF A. H. JONES

Funeral services for the late Arnold H. Jones were held at the Congregational church yesterday afternoon with the capacity of the auditorium taxed by those who wished to pay their last respects. Business houses closed and all activity was suspended during the hour of the service.

Particularly impressive was the attendance of eighty members of the Elks Lodge, not one of whom passed the hie of their brother dry-eyed. Mr. Jones had been treasurer of Rockland Lodge, B. P. O. E. since it was organized and spent every leisure hour within the portals of the club house which adjoins his late home. The group stood with bare heads as the cortege passed the Elks Home. Clarendon Community attended in a body and did escort duty as far as Rankin Block. Representatives of all companies of the Rockland Fire Department attended in uniform, paying homage to their former chief. The staff of The Courier-Gazette with former employees occupied several pews. The simple funeral service was read by Rev. Walter S. Rounds, pastor of the Congregational church.

The bearers were John M. Richardson, Neil S. Perry, Oliver F. Hills, Frank S. Lydell, Raymond F. Stewart and Jasper G. Rawley of The Courier-Gazette staff. Honorary bearers were EX-Mayors Israel Snow and Frank C. Flint, Judge E. C. Payson, E. F. Berry, N. F. Cobb and E. W. Berry.

The floral tributes were rarely beautiful and of great number, testifying to the general love and esteem in which the deceased was held. The task of arrangement devolved upon Mrs. Dora Bick, Mrs. Monica Pillsbury, Mrs. Alice Cobb, Mrs. Lena Fales, Mrs. Leola Rose, Miss Charlotte Buffum and Mrs. Frances Hanson. Among the many set pieces and baskets were tributes from the office force and staff of The Courier-Gazette, Rockland Lodge, B. P. O. E., Golden Rod Chapter, O. E. S., Carlin Press, Rockland Fire Dept., Rockland Veteran Firemen, B. & P. W. Club, Pilgrim Class of the Congregational Church, Fuller-Cobb-Davis, Rockland Hardware Co. and Camden Business Men's Club. Personal testimonials in spray and wreath came from many friends in this city and afar.

It will be good news to Knox County baseball fans that Belfast is planning to put a team in the field this coming summer. The McKeen Athletic Field is to be developed in the spring, and already the Belfast Rotary Club has donated $250 to the project. It will be recalled that Belfast fans came to Rockland in large numbers last season, and the writer cannot imagine a more ideal situation than to have a series of games between Rockland, Camden and Belfast, with pe-haps Bath and Brunswick to increase the scope. But meantime shouldn't the local fans be holding a meeting to see what is to be done about the question of playing time?

Legion members are much elated over the announcement that William Tudor Gardiner will probably be present at next Thursday night's smoker of Winslow-Holbrook Post. Mr. Gardiner was speaker of the House of Representatives at the last session, and is regarded as one of the most promising candidates for the governorship nomination on the Republican ticket in 1928. How well he stands with ex-service men will be judged by a one-minute interview with Ted Collette, whose captain he was.

"ON MY SET"

Suffering from a chronic attack of static the set coughed and sputtered Tuesday night in a manner that forbade anything like good reception, and I paid it but scant attention. One of the most satisfactory features was the municipal organ concert in Portland, broadcast from WCHS—I succeeded in locating WCHS in the hopes of getting the hockey game between the Bruins and Canadiens, but while the announcer appeared to be greatly excited about something, I could not hear him distinctly enough to tell how the game was going—The only other stations I hooked up Tuesday night were WNAO, WEHI and WLSE.

Conditions showed rather a marked improvement last night in the betted spell that I listed. WEHI had recovered from its contrary fit of the previous night. I logged no distant station, but added WTAP of Fall River to my list.

ROCKLAND

A solid week of entertainment and pleasure while observing the greatest display of automobiles ever gathered in this section.

Every space in the great building will be used. All the latest models. Hundreds of makes.

TENANT'S HARBOR

The entertainment and social held in the High School building Saturday by the Junior Class for the benefit of the Senior class was a great success. Miss Julia Humphrey had charge and with the assistance of Mrs. Archer a fine program was rendered, consisting of a farmers' quartet, with two young ladies and two young men dressed in farming costume; piano solo, Miss Emily Morris; sketch by five young ladies entitled "The Tea Party"; vocal duet, Elizabeth Pikkani and Martha Carter; vocal duet, Marie Morris and Marion Wallace in costume, entitled "Sun-bonnet Sally" and "Overall Jim"; and a dialogue by Julia Humphrey and Elizabeth Carter which was very much enjoyed. Miss Humphrey as the colored janitor certainly did some fine work, especially in the song and dance entitled "Show Me the Way to Go Home." She received three ovations and responded promptly, but at the last encore Julia really meant what she sang when she said "I'm Tired and I Want to Go to Bed." Cake, punch and candy were on sale, and music furnished by Mrs. Alice Wiley and games were enjoyed. Over $200 was realized.

Much interest is being manifested in the regular meetings at the church. There is a very good attendance and several have signified their desire to lead a Christian life. Rev. Mr. Miller is very much encouraged. Next Sunday evening there will be a song service when Mrs. Miller will give a short talk. These talks or stories by Mrs. Miller are highly pleasing to the congregation and all those who can attend these meetings are urged to do so.

The remains of Mrs. Carrier Sheerer were brought here this week from her late home in Chicago, and placed in the cemetery on Clark's Hill. Mrs. Sheerer lived in the village a good many years and was loved by all who knew her. She leaves two daughters, Ella and Dorothy, and two sons, Harold and Donald. She was a member of Naam's Chapter, O. E. S.

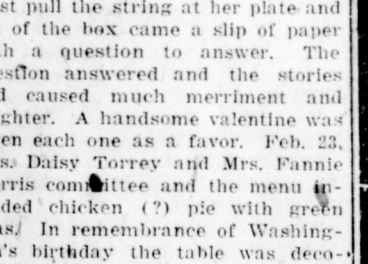

The reporter for the Ladies' Sewing Circle the past month has not been dead but sleeping and she has awakened to the fact that the members away from home want to hear something of what their home members are doing. Neither have they been dead nor sleeping for every Tuesday during the month of February, very interesting and well attended meetings have been held. Feb. 2 dinner and supper was served, the housekeepers, being Mrs. Josephine Tabbutt and Mrs. Gilda. A delicious lobster chowder was on the bill of fare and the favors were made to represent some form of the sea. Two or five favors were different from the others and the ones to whom they were expected to give a speech. Mrs. Harriet Rawley and Miss Mabel Barter were the speech-makers. Feb. 9 the housekeepers were Mrs. Alice Wheeler and Mrs. Josie Conary. These ladies served a clam stew with valentines as their favors, and a birthday cake in memory of Abraham Lincoln was a very pretty feature. Quetto relating to Lincoln's life were asked and answered which were both instructive and interesting. Feb. 16, the supper consisted of baked beans and salads served by Mrs. Mildred Slush and Mrs. Mary Wilson. The table decorations were in keeping with Valentine's Day. In the center of the table was a large box cut in the form of a heart and leading from the inside of which were red strings extending to each plate with little red hearts attached. After supper each lady must pull the string at her plate and out of the box came a slip of paper with a question to answer. The question answered and the stories told caused much merriment and laughter. A handsome valentine was given each one as a favor. Feb. 23, Mrs. Daisy Torrey and Mrs. Fannie Morris committee and the menu included chicken (?) pie with green peas! In remembrance of Washington's birthday the table was decorated with red, white and blue. In the center of the table was a tree loaded with cherries. Inside of each cherry som quotation on Washington's life. The favors were marshmallows, cherries and a small flag. On all of these occasions the writer does not want you to be led astray with the idea that lobster chowder, clam stew, baked beans and chicken (?) pie accompanied her and reports that were the only things served. The cause all who have ever attended the circle suppose know what delicious cakes and pies are always on hand. This week the meeting was held in the evening. Owing to the town meeting dinner at which most of the circle members assisted in Masonic hall Monday they were not able to have an all-session, but next week will be the annual meeting and then for "some supper." Think of us all here at home and try and keep your mouths from watering.

Such exaggerated stories are told. The truth is, thousands in Chicago haven't even been shot at.—San Francisco Chronicle.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

WOULD ELIMINATE IRRESPONSIBLE MOTORISTS

Connecticut began recently an experiment aimed to eliminate gradually from her highways irresponsible motorists.

Under the Financial Responsibility Law, all persons who have been convicted of reckless driving, speeding, driving while intoxicated, or evading responsibility, or who have caused the death or personal injury of any person, or property damage of $100, may be required to qualify themselves to settle for any damage they may do or forfeit registration of their cars. Persons with good driving records are exempt.

The financial responsibility required is at least $10,000 in cases of death or injury and $1,000 for property damage. The requirement may be satisfied by insurance, surety bond, or deposit of cash or collateral with the State Treasurer.

The city or town which is not using its public school system to instruct the children of the community when and where to cross streets, is failing in its duty to the public.

Children should be taught to observe traffic signals. Many cities assign traffic officers to streets used frequently by children going to and from school, to help youngsters. And right here it is interesting to note that these officers wait for signals and in that way set a good example for the children.

They set another example in that they cross at crossings. Schools and parents must co-operate in teaching the children to avoid crossing streets at places other than crossings.

Food for Thought

It is not necessary that one should be a graduate of household economics, to understand the planning and serving of a well-balanced ration of palatable food; but it is essential that study and thought should be put upon the care and selection of foods, for a small amount of food rightly combined will give more energy than a large amount improperly combined.

Someone has said that the selection and organization of food in the diet is as important as the organization of an army. A properly disciplined force of soldiers is much more effective than an untrained mob, as we all know.

The essential thing to remember are the different groups of foods and their office in the diet. This is not difficult; the farmer finds it most important in the feeding of stock.

1. Foods that furnish protein which builds muscle. In this class we find milk, eggs, meat, fish, dried peas and beans.

2. Foods which furnish us energy, as starch and sugar. These are cereals, flour, macaroni, potatoes and such starchy foods. The sugar we get in various forms—in fruit, honey, cane sugar, molasses, cakes, desserts and preserves.

3. Foods which furnish fats for heat are supplied by butter, cream, olive oil, bacon, corn oil, suet and pork, as well as the fat of other meats.

4. Foods which supply mineral salts, vegetable acids and vitamins, the body regulating substances, we find in apples, oranges, pears, melons and citrus fruits; green vegetables, cress, lettuce, spinach and cabbage.

The next in importance to food is water—plenty of it, pure and free from all injurious substances. Water dissolves food and liquefies it so that it may be easily absorbed by the tissues of the body. Two or three quarts a day is necessary for good health in an adult.

Children's digestive organs are very active and they are hungry often between meals. The habit of lunching is bad, but a lunch between meals occasionally may be found necessary.

Mothers, Do This—

When the Children Cough, Rub Musterole on Throat and Chests

No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief. It does not blister.

As first aid, Musterole is excellent. Keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frost-bite and colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in smaller sizes for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Kiddies' Evening Story

Golden Pheasants

"I hate to boast," said the Golden Pheasant, whom the others called Gregory, "yes, I hate to boast," he repeated.

"In fact I don't know that I shall boast."

"What have you to say?" asked another Golden Pheasant, whom they called George.

"But I'm afraid it would be boasting if I said it all," answered Gregory.

"Why would it be boasting? What's it all about?" the other Golden Pheasants asked, as they gathered around Gregory.

"Well, the keeper was saying some mighty fine things about us today and I would love to tell them to you, but I don't want to appear conceited."

"They weren't just about me—they were about all of us."

"You see, it was a nice day, and there were lots of visitors at the zoo."

"Well, the keeper told these visitors all about our family and he said the most flattering things."

"Oh," said George, "it wouldn't be boasting to repeat what the keeper said."

"Besides," chimed in some of the others, "it would make us all the more anxious to live up to the nice speeches he made about us."

"If people think well of us we try to live up to their good opinion."

"If they don't think so well of us we don't appear at our best, and aren't always at our best."

"Then, too, it is very encouraging to hear kind speeches and complimentary remarks."

"True, true," said Gregory. "That you say is true. Then I will tell you about the keeper's talk."

"In the first place the people said: 'Are those pheasants?' And they pointed to us. The keeper told

IF HAIR IS DRY

BLAME CONSTANT CURLING, WAVING

Girls just must curl and wave batted hair to appear prettier. But constant curling and waving burn and dry the luster, vitality and very life from the hair.

To effect these bad effects, just get a 35-cent bottle of delightful, refreshing "Dandarine" at any drug store or toilet counter and just see for yourself how quickly it revives dry, brittle, lifeless, and fading hair.

"Dandarine" is a dependable tonic and will do wonders for any girl's hair. It nourishes, stimulates and strengthens each single hair, bringing back that youthful gleam, glint and vigorous luxuriance. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears. "Dandarine" is pleasant and easy to use.

A. E. Wotton has his hair, house filled with some fine hair.

Granville Brown has been in Portland on business.

Mr. and Mrs. William Clayton of Vinalhaven are visiting Mrs. Lucy A. Brown, Mrs. Clayton's sister, who is in poor health.

The remains of Mrs. Charles A. Brown of Washington were brought here Tuesday of last week for burial beside her husband. Mrs. Brown was formerly Phoebe Poland of Friendship.

Rev. Neil Rogers goes to South Waldoboro for two weeks, where he will hold a series of meetings.

Two weddings in one week was the pace set for last week. Smith was the name of both bridegrooms.

All roads led to Mrs. Millie Morton's Feb. 24, when the Ladies' Aid met for an all-day session. A picnic dinner was served and there were three tables filled with a dinner fit for a king. It is needless to say that the ladies did justice to the repast.

Mrs. Simmons helped Sister Millie entertain. There were 34 present.

Mrs. Solon Wilder of Massachusetts is the guest of Mrs. J. D. Lash, R. G. Condon and A. E. Wotton, who have had radios recently installed in their homes.

THE MESSAGE OF THE ROSES

By J. B. M. Clark

WHEN the box of American Beauty roses arrived at Gladys Wilder's lodging with the blurt question of the accompanying card, "Will you marry me?" and no indication of the sender, her first thought was of Mr. Cosgrave. But it might have been Doctor Osborne himself, she reflected, or even George Butler, although George Butler didn't seem so likely.

"The handwriting's disguised, I'm sure," she confided to her roommate, Jean Travers.

"It's George Butler, I'll bet you," said Jean decisively. "He's just holding off because he knows Cosgrave is paying attention—thinks it wouldn't be fair to spoil your chance with a rich invalid. I'll bet he's sorry he got you the job at Doctor Osborne's, the way things have turned out. And as for old Osborne, you wouldn't want him, sure?"

"Doctor Osborne's only forty-five," said Gladys abstractedly.

"I'll tell you what to do," said Jean suddenly. "Offer each of the three men one of the roses and you'll soon find who sent them. Tell each one you got them from an admirer."

Gladys placed the open box on her desk next morning and waited results. Doctor Osborne was the first to come. His eye caught the roses. "Something special here, surely," he said, bending down to sniff at the flowers.

"Yes, a present from a good friend. Have one," she said.

"Much obliged," said the doctor, graciously. "I couldn't refuse."

Then it was Mr. Cosgrave's turn. He, too, stopped to express his admiration for the flowers. "Have one if you like," said Gladys brightly. A very good friend sent them to me—a gentleman, of course. But I don't mind giving you one."

"Thanks," said Mr. Cosgrave, flushing slightly. "I never wear flowers."

"Oh, but I'll be quite peeved if you don't make an exception in my favor," said Gladys laughing and giving him a swift glance. "And besides these came anonymously, so nobody's feelings will be hurt about it."

"Anonymously?" said Mr. Cosgrave, flushing again. "That sounds interesting. Since you press me to break my rule I suppose there is no help for it." Gladys helped to pin it in place. Once or twice their fingers met in the operation, and Mr. Cosgrave's eyes gleamed behind their big horn glasses. But Gladys didn't appear to notice it. She felt convinced that he was the donor. He, too, departed without further parley.

When George Butler turned up in the late afternoon there were only one or two of the roses left, and these were in a small vase at one corner of Miss Wilder's desk. "Do but my rule I suppose there is no help for it," said Gladys, smiling. "A good friend sent me a whole box of them yesterday evening."

"Thanks," said Butler curtly. "I don't wear flowers—and in any case I wouldn't dream of taking another light of Butler's display of temper the girls agreed that either he or Mr. Cosgrave was the guilty party. Several days passed without development, and then Gladys, in order to narrow down the field of inquiry, asked Doctor Osborne to plant one of the roses in her room. Gladys withdrew in some confusion, and returned to find Mr. Cosgrave standing by her desk. Obeying a sudden impulse she said: "Thank you for the roses, Mr. Cosgrave," blushing very prettily at the same time.

"Don't mention it," said Mr. Cosgrave, blushing in turn. "I thought you were joking when you talked about an anonymous donor—then I thought they had forgotten to put the card in."

"Oh, no, they didn't," said Gladys, her color mounting again. "But the answer to the question is in the negative."

"Good God!" said Mr. Cosgrave going pale.

"But we can still be good friends, I'm sure," said Gladys hopefully.

"It's not that," said Mr. Cosgrave in much confusion. "There must have been some mistake. That was the wrong card." He elbowed at the telephone and called a number.

It was now Gladys's turn to be confused, and it did not make her any more comfortable to see George Butler observing her from afar with a lowering brow. He came forward looking very stern. Mr. Cosgrave, unable to secure his number, stood helplessly by.

"I think," said Gladys, choking back a sob, "you ought to knock Mr. Cosgrave down or something. He has insulted me."

"Good God!" repeated Mr. Cosgrave unhappily. "I'm trying to explain. You must have been some delicious blunder at the time. Look here," he stammered, "I'll let the proposal stand, if that will help matters."

"Well, the answer was no," said Gladys, apparently greatly relieved. "It's all right," said Butler calmly. "Miss Wilder is going to marry me. We weren't just ready yet, that's all."

"I'm not going to marry anybody," said Gladys, showing fresh signs of distress. "The assurance of the man," she confided later to Jean Travers, "was just to awe for words." But she did marry him ultimately just the same.

THE MESSAGE OF THE ROSES

By J. B. M. Clark

WHEN the box of American Beauty roses arrived at Gladys Wilder's lodging with the blurt question of the accompanying card, "Will you marry me?" and no indication of the sender, her first thought was of Mr. Cosgrave. But it might have been Doctor Osborne himself, she reflected, or even George Butler, although George Butler didn't seem so likely.

"The handwriting's disguised, I'm sure," she confided to her roommate, Jean Travers.

"It's George Butler, I'll bet you," said Jean decisively. "He's just holding off because he knows Cosgrave is paying attention—thinks it wouldn't be fair to spoil your chance with a rich invalid. I'll bet he's sorry he got you the job at Doctor Osborne's, the way things have turned out. And as for old Osborne, you wouldn't want him, sure?"

"Doctor Osborne's only forty-five," said Gladys abstractedly.

"I'll tell you what to do," said Jean suddenly. "Offer each of the three men one of the roses and you'll soon find who sent them. Tell each one you got them from an admirer."

Gladys placed the open box on her desk next morning and waited results. Doctor Osborne was the first to come. His eye caught the roses. "Something special here, surely," he said, bending down to sniff at the flowers.

"Yes, a present from a good friend. Have one," she said.

"Much obliged," said the doctor, graciously. "I couldn't refuse."

Then it was Mr. Cosgrave's turn. He, too, stopped to express his admiration for the flowers. "Have one if you like," said Gladys brightly. A very good friend sent them to me—a gentleman, of course. But I don't mind giving you one."

"Thanks," said Mr. Cosgrave, flushing slightly. "I never wear flowers."

"Oh, but I'll be quite peeved if you don't make an exception in my favor," said Gladys laughing and giving him a swift glance. "And besides these came anonymously, so nobody's feelings will be hurt about it."

"Anonymously?" said Mr. Cosgrave, flushing again. "That sounds interesting. Since you press me to break my rule I suppose there is no help for it." Gladys helped to pin it in place. Once or twice their fingers met in the operation, and Mr. Cosgrave's eyes gleamed behind their big horn glasses. But Gladys didn't appear to notice it. She felt convinced that he was the donor. He, too, departed without further parley.

When George Butler turned up in the late afternoon there were only one or two of the roses left, and these were in a small vase at one corner of Miss Wilder's desk. "Do but my rule I suppose there is no help for it," said Gladys, smiling. "A good friend sent me a whole box of them yesterday evening."

"Thanks," said Butler curtly. "I don't wear flowers—and in any case I wouldn't dream of taking another light of Butler's display of temper the girls agreed that either he or Mr. Cosgrave was the guilty party. Several days passed without development, and then Gladys, in order to narrow down the field of inquiry, asked Doctor Osborne to plant one of the roses in her room. Gladys withdrew in some confusion, and returned to find Mr. Cosgrave standing by her desk. Obeying a sudden impulse she said: "Thank you for the roses, Mr. Cosgrave," blushing very prettily at the same time.

"Don't mention it," said Mr. Cosgrave, blushing in turn. "I thought you were joking when you talked about an anonymous donor—then I thought they had forgotten to put the card in."

"Oh, no, they didn't," said Gladys, her color mounting again. "But the answer to the question is in the negative."

"Good God!" said Mr. Cosgrave going pale.

"But we can still be good friends, I'm sure," said Gladys hopefully.

"It's not that," said Mr. Cosgrave in much confusion. "There must have been some mistake. That was the wrong card." He elbowed at the telephone and called a number.

It was now Gladys's turn to be confused, and it did not make her any more comfortable to see George Butler observing her from afar with a lowering brow. He came forward looking very stern. Mr. Cosgrave, unable to secure his number, stood helplessly by.

"I think," said Gladys, choking back a sob, "you ought to knock Mr. Cosgrave down or something. He has insulted me."

"Good God!" repeated Mr. Cosgrave unhappily. "I'm trying to explain. You must have been some delicious blunder at the time. Look here," he stammered, "I'll let the proposal stand, if that will help matters."

"Well, the answer was no," said Gladys, apparently greatly relieved. "It's all right," said Butler calmly. "Miss Wilder is going to marry me. We weren't just ready yet, that's all."

"I'm not going to marry anybody," said Gladys, showing fresh signs of distress. "The assurance of the man," she confided later to Jean Travers, "was just to awe for words." But she did marry him ultimately just the same.

Avoid Poorly Balanced Breakfasts

Start the day with Quaker Oats—food that "stands by" you.

If you feel tired, hungry, "fidgety," hours before lunch, don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. Thousands have unenergetic mornings because they start the day with wrong breakfasts.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamins and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers you.

Bagpipe and Organ

Alike in Principle

The Highland bagpipe is a primitive instrument with a quality all its own, says the Chicago Journal. It has nine notes, but they are not like the chromatic scale. The bagpipe scale does not exist in any other instrument and its music, unlike "regular" music, cannot be transposed from one key into another.

The bagpipe, itself, in its Highland form, consists of an airtight leather bag with three wooden stocks, usually of ebony, fitted in to it, one of them holding the mouthpiece, another the chanter, another the three drones. As most people know, it is played with the bag held under the arm, the drones over the shoulder, and with the fingers on the notes on the chanter at the front.

Except that its scale is its own and does not exist in any other instrument, the bagpipe is similar to a church organ in principle. The player maintains the wind pressure on its drones and chanter by keeping the bag full of wind and regulates the volume of sound by the pressure of his arm on the bag.

What he produces may not be the sweetest form of music in the world, but even to ears that are far from Scottish it is the most unforgettable of all music. Those who have listened to the pibrochs of the different clans and to the walls of the funeral dirge say that it is like no other music in the world.

Customs of Indians

Unchanged by Time

The Indians living in the region of San Francisco Bay have not changed their customs or place of abode for 8,500 years, says Dr. A. L. Kroeber of the University of California. "When Troy was besieged and Solomon was building his temple, at a period when even Greek civilization had not yet taken on the traits that we regard as characteristic, when only a few scattering foundations of specific modern culture were being laid and our own northern ancestors dwelled in unmitigated barbarism, the native Californians already lived in all essentials like his descendant of today." This knowledge was obtained from shell mounds submerged around the bay. All classes of objects found in these mounds were unearthed with practically the same frequency from the top, middle and bottom. This shows that these prehistoric people ate the same kind of food, wore the same kind of clothes and had the same customs as their descendants. The age of the mounds is estimated by calculating the time necessary for such shells to accumulate—Pathfinder Magazine.

Original Weather Vane

The church weather vane has been handed down to our own day from the time of St. Dunstan. Its form is traditional, and its popular name, weathercock, suggests its shape. The cock was selected to top the spires and turrets because it is the emblem of vigilance. When the symbolic bird tips a church spire, it reassures the preacher who, after himself awakening from the sleep of sin, proceeds to figuratively flap his wings, to arouse the slumbering consciences of his flock. This ancient tradition comes from Europe where the weathercock is almost universally the finishing touch to a church steeple.

Qualities of Magnet Explained by Science

The coast and geodetic survey says that every magnet possesses two kinds of magnetism, that in one end being different from what is in the other. If the magnet is hung up on a thread so that it is free to turn and a second magnet is brought up to it, it may be noticed that the near end of the second magnet draws one end of the suspended magnet and repels the other. The repulsion is exerted between like kinds of magnetism and the attraction between unlike kinds. The earth has all the characteristics of a permanent magnet, and for this reason a suspended magnet, when allowed to come to rest, will take up a definite position, which is determined by the direction of the earth's magnetism at the place. The end of the magnet which points in a northerly direction in this vicinity is frequently called the north pole of the magnet, but the term north-seeking pole is better, as it distinguishes the magnetism of the north end of the magnet from that of the magnetic North pole of the earth which is opposite in kind, as attraction is only exerted between poles of opposite character.

Unhappiness in Wake of Avoidable Worry

The thing which causes us to worry is either something that can be remedied, or can't. The thing to do is to look it squarely in the face. Swallow an unpleasant truth or so if necessary, but get down to the issue, is the advice of the Montreal Family Herald.

If the cause cannot be changed, there is only one thing to do—don't think about it. Force yourself to shut it out of your consciousness. Just close your mind to it, and let the blow fall when and where it will. Since you can't stop it, you might at least save your strength for the finish.

But most of our worries are avoidable. We worry because we suddenly think, two hours after we left the house, that we maybe didn't turn off the electric iron in the kitchen, or because we have a house full of company in the evening and nothing seems ready, or because the children won't eat their vegetables, but will fill up on candy, or any number of small things that are the result of our own carelessness or our inattention to duty.

Ancient Mortgage Laws

Explorers on the site of ancient Babylon have dug up clay tablets on which were recorded agreements from borrower to lender whereby the harvest of certain fields or vineyards was pledged as security for loans. Modern mortgage law is traced back to the Anglo-Saxons. Records show two forms of mortgages—the vit-fage or life pledge and the mortgage or dead pledge. Under the life pledge the lender took title to the property and managed it until such time as the earnings of the property paid off the debt. Under the dead pledge, the borrower paid off the debt in full at a specified time when the mortgage was canceled. In case of failure to pay he forfeited the property.

Many Kinds of Oaks

There are 800 kinds of oak trees having vastly different characteristics, but they have one common feature, and that is, they all produce acorns. The white oak is so called because it has a rather white bark, while the black oak's bark is quite dark, black to all intents and purposes during the "wood age." Live oak was always preferred for shipbuilding and for heavy duty, but just why it was named "live" is a matter of doubt.

At one time the island of Nantucket was covered with live oaks, but the land was denuded of this timber years ago during the whaling activities, when several shipbuilding yards flourished on the island and a great fleet of whalers was built there.

"KARNAK IS SOMETHING WORTH TALKING ABOUT"

"I Tell You, It's Enough To Make Anybody Praise This Medicine To Get the Results That It Brought Me," Declares Manchester Man.
"I tell you, it's just enough to make anybody praise Karnek to get the wonderful results that this medicine has brought me," declares Fred Thrasher of R. F. D. No. 1, Manchester, N. H.
"Yes, sir, I was in mighty bad condition before I got hold of this medicine. My stomach has been all out of order for a long time and was giving me all kinds of trouble. I didn't have any appetite, what I ate seemed to do me more harm than good, and I just felt weak and run-down and miserable all over. I took different medicines and treatments but couldn't get relief.
"But I tell you, the results I have gotten from five bottles of Karnek is something worth talking about. Why, this medicine has given me a fine appetite, has given me wonderful relief from that stomach trouble, and has built me up in weight and given me new life and strength. I'll tell the world I'd recommend Karnek to anybody after the way it has fixed me up. There's nothing else like it."
Karnek is sold in Rockland by the Corner Drug Store, and by every other reliable druggist in Rockland and in every other town.

STONINGTON
Violet Goss
It is with a feeling of deep regret and a sense of personal loss that we report the death in Jacksonville, Florida, of Mrs. Violet Goss, where she and her husband Capt. Samuel Goss were spending the winter, as has been their custom for several years past. She was a daughter of the late Samuel and Melinda Small of Deer Isle. In her home town, Stonington, and in Maine Mrs. Goss was well known and highly esteemed. After the death of her first husband, Capt. Sylvius Small, she taught school and music as a means of providing for herself and two small children. For about ten years she was a very successful school teacher. After her marriage to Capt. Goss they opened the Ocean View House, for many years a very popular hotel at Stonington.
Mrs. Goss was actively interested in temperance work and a life member of the Maine W. C. T. U. She was a Past Matron and charter member of Juanita Chapter of Eastern Star, also a member of Pythian Sisters in which she held office for years. She was interested in the prosperity of both the Methodist and Congregational churches and always aided both. As a singer and a well-known reader she was an ever-welcome guest at all social affairs. She was one of the first voters at the town meeting after women were given the ballot and was always interested in the welfare of the town.
None of these things, however, portray the great, kind-hearted neighbor and friend that Mrs. Goss was in the community in which she lived, worked and loved. No one ever called for her help or service and was refused. The sick, the poor, the unfortunate, always found a ready response when their needs were known to her.
Mrs. F. S. Small and Mrs. Rosalie Arey were with her during her illness. She is survived by her husband, a brother Courtney B. Small of Springfield, Mass., a son Capt. Florian S. Small, a daughter Mrs. Rosalie Arey, four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren all living in or near Boston. Her youngest great-grandchild is Marilyn Rosemarie Arey, aged 8 months, the only daughter of Florian G. and Mabel Arey of Boston.
Mrs. Goss had a wide acquaintance in Florida. The week before she was stricken with the shock from which she died, she gave a public address before the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce, her subject being Maine, and her address being prominently quoted in the newspapers.
She will be missed and mourned by a host of friends to whom her death has come as a great shock.

The same flattering exquisiteness you love in fine French soaps
This new "savon de toilette" is made by the very method France uses for her finest soaps
Satin-smooth and glossy—you feel as though you had bought it in Paris, this exquisite new soap for your personal use!
So fine-textured, firm and lasting—ah! Lux Toilet Form is made by the very method France uses for her finest toilet soaps. Made quite differently from the white soaps you are used to. A real "savon de toilette"—that was what women asked us to make.
"We want a soap as delicious as fine French soap, but oh, not so high-priced," they told us. "Surely you can make it—you made our miraculous Lux."
So we made this new different toilet soap! Made it as the finest French soaps are made. Bubbling ready lather the instant you touch it to water—hard water on the continent taught the French how! Lux Toilet Form leaves you with that delightful cared for feeling, that soft freshness, for which you used to pay absurd imported-soap prices! Intangible, but oh, so real! Somehow you feel lovelier just for using Lux Toilet Form.
Evanescent, delicious fragrance that a European perfume expert gave Lux Toilet Form—that illusive, half-sensed, half-dreamed sweetness that is irresistible! "Savon parfumé."
In its lavender and white wrapper, bewitching, immaculate, Lux Toilet Form is at your druggist's, your department store and your grocer's. Ten-cent stores have it, too. All the family may use it for both toilet and bath—it lasts and lasts like imported soap. 10c. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Instant ample lather the moment it touches the water—men like that well-groomed feeling this new soap gives them

THE SCHOOLHOUSE BAZAAR

Being a Story of How Loyal Thomastonians Hope To Exterminate Debt On School Building.

At this season of the year every New England town has its town meeting, of course, and it would seem, it is fast becoming almost as much of an established custom for every five town to hold its annual indoor fair. At any rate, such seems to be the rule in this locality and this year Thomaston, with the shining example of her neighbors before her, does not intend to furnish the exception which proves the rule. Only, in her case it is the Schoolhouse Bazaar which trundles forth for view and offers itself for two whole days and nights, both as a market place to dispose of your material, spring needs and also as an opportunity for real enjoyment and fun which will do something, at least, for your spiritual needs.

"And what is a bazaar?" some of the younger, uninitiated generation will ask, though years ago such a question would have sounded as absurd as "Who is Melle Dunham?"

It is going to be a great, big, extra good, all home-made fair—nothing so grand and glorious as a County Fair, to be sure, (for how could anything else be?) but a kind of winter edition in the sense that the same spirit of good will and sociability will prevail, and for general good time, the big event of the season. Besides, incidentally, though not quite so incidentally as this sounds it is devotedly hoped the proceeds will go as long a way as humanly possible toward covering the last remaining bit of debt on the schoolhouse, consisting of about $400 plus the cost of 100 new chairs for the assembly hall.

Tuesday, March 16, at 10 a. m., the Bazaar opens with well stocked booths under the management of the following efficient chairmen:

Cooked Food, Mrs. Lois Creighton, Mrs. Edie Seavey and Mrs. Ella Dunn; aprons, Mrs. Louise Hall and Mrs. Harriet Robertson; fancy articles, Mrs. Louise Hewett and Mrs. Helen Carr; candy, Mrs. Blanche Pease and Mrs. Grace Collamore; grab bags, Mrs. Mattie Spaulding and Mrs. P. E. Averill; coffee, Miss Jennie Moody; ice cream, Miss Edith Lennest; hot dogs, Mrs. Cora Currier and Mrs. Georgia Robinson; remembrance table, Miss Elizabeth Washburn, Miss Ida Elliott and Miss Harriet Burgess, this booth will also have a postoffice department, specializing in parcel post packages; cold drinks, Mrs. Cassie Bradley; fortune telling, Mrs. Minnie Newbert and Miss Naniina Comstock; dolls, Miss Elizabeth Tobey; information, Mrs. Mary Bunker.

It will be readily seen from this announcement that it will be possible to obtain a lunch at the hall at noon or at any time one chooses during the day. The High School orchestra will provide music during the afternoon and it is probable there will be other diversions.

Donations for the hall will be in the hands of Miss Kay Turner, whose skill and originality in this line are so well known that nothing more need be said. Just wait and see!

At 8 p. m. Henry McDonald and his corps of assistants will have the hall in readiness for the ever popular Super-Kelth Vaudeville under the direction of Miss Rita Smith. Miss Mary Rogers, Mrs. Mabel Creighton and Mrs. Ruby Peabody. This promises to be the best yet. In fact simply the names of those composing the entertainment committee constitute something of a guaranty in the minds of those who remember the many delightful entertainments for which they have been responsible.

Tickets for this attraction will be on sale the latter part of this week by the school children in charge of Mrs. Martha Carter.

On Wednesday, March 17, the fair is to be continued, but in the afternoon a most attractive entertainment consisting of graceful dances and singing games by the children will be presented by Miss Emily Pease and Mrs. Margaret Ahern Lakeman.

Last, but not least, by any means, on the evening of St. Patrick's day, as a grand finale, comes the Old Fashioned dance with music by Kirkpatrick's orchestra and under the management of Mrs. Lella Smalley, Mrs. Lilla Elliott, Mrs. Ruth Brackett, Mrs. Martha Keller and Mrs. Eliza Walker.

All in all, from start to finish, a good time is promised, so tell your friends, save your money and be there from early until late with the assurance that you will enjoy every minute and every feature. May we have the pleasure, too, of welcoming all of our good friends from the surrounding towns.

domal church the pastor, Rev. C. D. Paul, will speak "A Thought For Communion." This will be followed by the observance of the Lord's Supper.

The Blue side of the Congregational Sunday school contest will serve a supper and hold a social for the Red side Thursday evening at the Congregational vestry.

News of the death of Eugene O'Conner was received from Hallowell Saturday. Mr. O'Conner made many friends here during his stay as boss of the stitching room at the shoe factory when the firm of Marston & Brooks did a part of their work here.

About 100 Rebeccahs and invited guests gathered at the I. O. O. F. hall last Saturday evening when Hazel Bowers, D. D. P. and Adelle Feyler, D. G. M., ably assisted the following officers: N. G. Shirley Bowley; V. G. Gertrude Sturtevant; S. S. Hazel Bowers; F. S. Doris French; treasurer, Bertha Teague; warden, Alice Matthews; conductor, Nellie Davis; chaplain, M. Grace Walker; R. S. S. G. Alice Ames; L. S. G. Norma Russell; R. S. V. G. Harriet Cunningham; L. S. V. G. Helen Wentworth; L. G. Viola Durgin; G. L. Lizzie Waltz. Refreshments were served after the installation.

William L. Lavy observed his 82d birthday last Monday and was pleasantly remembered by his friends with gifts and cards in honor of the occasion. Mr. Lavy, while not enjoying always the best of health, is yet a credit to the healthfulness of our Maine climate, and was an interested attendant at Monday's all-day town meeting.

George Rider wise in town Tuesday on business.

Thirteen ladies of the Farm Bureau met at the home of Mrs. H. L. Purrington for an all-day session Friday of last week. A well balanced dinner was cooked and served as a part of the club program. Lectures by Miss Mason, a visiting State officer, and Miss Nan Mahoney, local leader, accompanied by slides occupied the afternoon.

W. Frank Thomas is recovering from an attack of sciatic rheumatism that has confined him to the house the past week.

The singing of the quartet, Messrs. W. M. Stetson, Charles Wilson, Chester Wyllie and Fred Kenniston, last Sunday evening at the Baptist church was very much enjoyed.

Rev. H. M. Purrington will speak on "God" at the Sunday morning service of the Baptist church. Communion will be observed at the close of this service.

There will be a union service at the Baptist church Sunday evening with Rev. C. D. Paul as the speaker, using as his theme "Three Great Knows."

"Sunday morning at the Congregational vestry."

The other contestants on the constable, Ray Beverage and Rodney Haskell were the contestants, with Mr. Haskell a short winner.

There was a very large attendance at dinner and a good sum was realized for the Grange.

Quite a number are talking of attending the town meeting at Vinalhaven March 8, to see how Vinalhaven people conduct their town affairs. We understand they have several good speakers there. The steamer going down to Vinalhaven in the morning and returning at night makes a good opportunity to attend the town meeting and to see old friends.

E. D. Spear and Dr. and Mrs. Walter M. Spear left Tuesday noon for Lizonier, Ind., upon receipt of the news that A. W. Lyon had died that morning. Mr. Lyon had been in poor health for some time, but recently his condition had seemed rather more favorable, and the news of his sudden death will be a deep shock to the many friends he made in Rockland by visits which were made annually up to about five years ago. Mr. Lyon is survived by his wife, who was formerly Ellen Spear of Rockland; one son, Graham; and two grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Smalley left San Francisco Feb. 26 and are headed for home, where they expect to arrive Saturday.

The Washington, D. C. Star of Feb. 27 had this interesting local item: "Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Herbert M. Lord entertained at dinner last evening, when their guests were the Ambassador of Germany and Baroness Maltzan, the Minister of Education and Mme. Biazanski, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, the Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. J. Walter Drake and Dr. and Mrs. Charles Blackburn Keefe."

John Kennedy of Boston was in the city yesterday to attend the funeral of the late A. H. Jones.

Miss Marie Brown of South Thomaston, bookkeeper at the Lime Corporation's store, is the guest of Mrs. William Brewster, Jefferson street.

Mrs. Frances Spurling Briggs is seriously ill at her home in Boston.

The Browne Club will meet at the Baptist church Friday night. Members should go prepared to knit quilts.

The official board of the Robinson Club have accepted the invitation of Mrs. A. V. Lavery to hold the next meeting March 12 at the Copper Kettle Inn. Mrs. Lillian Copping is in charge of the program concerning which interesting announcements will be made in the next issue.

The B. P. W. Club held its regular business meeting last evening when plans for the coming banquet were discussed. The names of three new members were presented. Hostesses for the Friday evening auction will be Mrs. Emily Stevens, Mrs. Kate Studley and Mrs. Irene Schaefele.

Fenton E. Parsons of Belfast spent the weekend with Mrs. Parsons in this city.

The Chapin class had an enjoyable meeting Tuesday evening at B. P. W. Club room with Mrs. Grace Adams as hostess. The members are urged to bear in mind that the time is short in which to fulfill the pledge on the church budget, and it is hoped that all who have not already done their part will get returns in at an early date.

Dr. W. D. Hall of Port Clyde, who spent many years in Mexico, will be the speaker of the afternoon at the meeting of the Metheuse Club Friday at the Copper Kettle Inn.

A very successful dance was given in I. C. O. F. hall last night which old-time contra dances as a feature. Excellent music was furnished by a newly formed orchestra playing under the name of Peavey's Quintette. It proved a very fine dance organization and will play again soon, date to be announced.

A farewell party for Miss Ethel Howard, teacher of Latin at the High School, was given by the Senior Latin Class last night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Waggatt. The faculty was invited and a happy social time resulted. The seniors showed their appreciation of Miss Howard through the gift of a fountain pen and the faculty presented her with a pearl necklace. Miss Howard concludes her duties in the Rockland schools tomorrow, going directly to Danvers, Mass., at a considerable increase in salary. During her years of service here Miss Howard has won universal respect and friendship in addition to rendering splendid teaching service and her loss to the system occasions universal regret.

PINES OF MAINE

(For The Courier-Gazette)

40 pines of Maine, dear pines of Maine,
With thy proud heads, lifted high,
Thou art the tales of days long dead
To the woods and streams and sky;
40 places upon Maine's thousand hills,
Where perfume scents the air,
Whose voices soothe our sleep at night,
Sweet as a murmured prayer.
Thou art high-born, O pines of Maine;
All nature helped to give thee birth
Thy father was the sun and wind,
Thy mother, the dark soil of earth.
Then toss thy dark-plumed heads on high,
From northern hill upon the sea,
And mingle with the songs of old
The songs of wondrous days to be.
Elizabeth Merrill.
What really matter now are the profits of 1925, not the prophets of

ROCKPORT'S BIG FETE

Open House For the Whole
County Will Be Held On March 19-20.

Plans are being rounded into shape for Rockport's two big days of festivity, March 19-20, by the several committees in charge. Never before has Rockport ever had such a huge entertainment enterprise as the treat which is now laid out for the above dates. There will be something doing every minute and none can miss any of the big attractions. A week's entertainment will be crowded into the two days. And you might take along a basket to carry home your share of the thousands of samples which will be given away.

Amateurs are coming in for the fiddlers' and harmonica contest. Prizes for these events—cash in gold and a harmonica—are on display in the window of the Camden Savings & Trust Co. Of course all the babies will be there Friday afternoon and some will take away the silver cup and baby spoons. Enter your baby now by notifying Mrs. Everett Libby. You are also to vote for the most popular young person in Rockport. There surely must be some one who stands out in your mind. Season tickets will be a stub worth fifty votes and one may buy plenty of votes at the fair at a cent each. The winner of the popularity contest will be presented with a silver loving cup. All prizes are on exhibition in the Savings & Trust Company's window.

Besides the entertainments, baby contest, fiddlers' and other contests, there will be music furnished by Deane's Novelty Orchestra afternoons and evenings with dancing both nights. The grand carnival ball on Monday night will close the festivities. The booths are nearly all sold and will make a handsome picture when decorated.

Season tickets for the big carnival will soon be on sale, the entire proceeds to be devoted to the Washington trip of the High School Seniors. Those who made the Washington trip in their day as seniors know the thrill of the handshake of the president and the never-to-be-forgotten incidents of the busy days. None of these will refuse to support the big carnival of March 19-20 nor will they miss the Monday ball.

MAJ. THAYER COMING

Major Arthur L. Thayer of Bangor, who addresses the Woman's Educational Club at the Congregational church tomorrow evening, is very much in the public eye as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Major Thayer is 50 and a graduate of Harvard.

He began the practice of law at Bangor in 1912, in 1916 went to the Mexican border with the Banker Machine Company, in 1917 was appointed judge advocate of the Maine National Guard, was appointed by Gov. Milliken to be the sheriff of Penobscot County to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of T. Herbert White, was for six years chairman of the Maine Industrial Accident Commission, is the secretary and treasurer of the Penobscot Federal Farm Loan Association of Bangor, and is a member of the Sons of Veterans, the Knights of Pythias and the Masonic bodies.

LEGION SUCCESSFUL

"The-Rise Girl" Concludes
Happy Two Day Visit and Leaves $200.

The "Rose Girl" played to another large house Tuesday night with the result that Winslow-Holbrook Post, American Legion will get about $200 as the result of its efforts. The production was directed by B. O. Shields for the Producing Company and is the second successful musical show staged here under his direction.

As is usual the second night's performance was even better than the opening effort, every number running off smoothly. Miss Adelaide Gross was especially effective in her several song numbers. Miss Agnes Flanagan's Argentine Valentin dance with Mr. Shields was encored several times and Mr. Beaudoin's solo numbers were well received. The entire cast brought credit to itself and the legion.

The Chorus Participants: Carolyn Young, Elizabeth Annis, Grace Curtis, Clara Bodman, Florence Leage, Ruth Koster, Alma Nutt, Christine McDonald, Ruth Crouse, Marion Bodman, Alma Gott, Kathleen Webster, Alice Griffin, Muriel Epley, Lois Dalzell, Ruth Plummer, Christine Curtis.

QUARRY AND KILN

Latest Edition of the Bulletin Tells What's Doing
Around the Plant.

Gas Kilns

Louis Hart and Frank Smith have been added to Jack Nyström's crew of jobbers.

George Tripp and Clifford Blood have been out for a few days on account of sickness.

The machinists have been changing the leveling arms in both producers the past week.

By-Products

Margene Armstrong is working with the construction crew.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new flux stone plant. The frame for the galleries are up, and the crew is laying the iron for the roof and sides.

George Torrey is out for a few days. He dropped a three-inch plank on his toe, ripping the nail off, and bruising it. He is having it treated at the company dispensary.

Northend Cooper Shop

The machinery about the shop is being given a general overhauling. Everything is being put into readiness for the summer season.

Gregory

A new office is being constructed by the Walsh's crew at the southern end of the Bird shed under Ash runway. A portion of the room is to be petitioned off for the men's use. A new first aid outfit will be installed. The old office is to be torn down as soon as possible to make room for the new steel bins.

A carload of iron arrived Monday for use in the construction of a new reactor to Fibrecrete tank.

Frank Ulmer is suffering from neuritis which has settled into his hands.

Frank Wardwell and Albert Borneman returned to work Monday after several weeks absence. Frank is doing job work, while Albert has joined the trimming crew.

Walter Strout has been working with the crew this week while loading the barge.

Paul Sawyer's crew is working on No. 11 kiln.

Irving Ryan has been out sick for a few days.

Park Burns returned to work Tuesday after several days illness.

Hydrate Mill

Ignazio Timponi wishes to announce his engagement to Miss Josephine Spear of Chicago. It is expected that they will be married in about two years.

The repair crew is working spare time on a small galvanneal water tank for the new first aid room at the Gregory shed.

Fifty barrels of chemical and 145 tons of Pilgrim lime from the mill has been shipped on the Barge "Rockville," bound for New York.

Thirteen cars of hydrate and land lime have been shipped the past week.

Irving Keizer and Red Garnett have joined "Link" Henderson's crew.

Limerock Railroad

Jack Dow returned to work this week after a two month leave of absence which was spent down on the farm.

Fay Strong and Herbert Rector have been sick for a few days. Fay caught a kink in his back while shoveling snow and Rector caught a cold.

The L. R. R. R. crew is rapidly falling in line with the radio fans. Walter Rogers got Texas on his set one night last week and it is reported that Lena Lawrence gets everything from WEEL to Florida.

Rockport

Eight hundred cords of kiln wood is the approximate amount on hand at the Enterprise.

The cooper shop is shut down for a few days on account of a delay in the shipment of some new belts for the working off machine.

Everett Hendricks has been substituting this week for Bert Lovell, who is confined to the house.

Individual water jugs for the men is the latest improvement at the Enterprise shed.

Quarries

Dan Gittl has been transferred from Hard Rock No. 3 to Cobb No. 1 quarry.

Mario Grispel returned to work Monday after a lay up of about four weeks as the result of dropping a rock on his toe.

John Lane received a severe blow on the nose last week. He was struck by one of the drag chains while cleaning snow out of Cobb No. 1 quarry and has been out for a few days on account of it.

THE D. A. R. MEETING

Another Fine Paper On Revolutionary Heroes—Bimba Trial Discussed.

Although Monday afternoon was very stormy Lady Knox Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, had a well attended meeting with Mrs. Grace Black as hostess and Mrs. Julia Burpee assisting. The name of Mrs. Benjamin Glazier Willey Cushman was presented as a candidate for the office of Vice President General of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the chapter voted to endorse the candidacy of Mrs. Cushman. The election is in April.

An invitation from Mrs. Blaine S. Viles, State Regent, to Mrs. Mary Perry Rich, Regent of Lady Knox Chapter, to lead in the salute to the Flag at the State Conference in Augusta, March 17-18, was read.

Ancestors were given by Mrs. Alice Cobb, whose ancestor was John Jacob Ludwig; Mrs. Grace A. Black, ancestor, William Dawes; Miss Ellen Cochran, ancestor, Lieut. Robert Keating; Mrs. Julia Burpee, ancestor, Richard Keating and Ephraim Payson.

The Bimba trial was discussed by the members. Mrs. Chase declaring that in punishment for his offense he should be obliged to pledge allegiance to the Flag every day until he learned to respect it.

Miss Anna J. Thorndike added another interesting article in the study of the Revolutionary heroes—Samuel Adams, "a man whom Plutarch, if he had lived late enough, would have delighted to include in his gallery of worthies; a man who in the history of the American Revolution is second only to Washington." He was born Sept. 16, 1722, the son of Samuel and Mary Field Adams. As he grew to manhood he began the study of law. His mother disapproved, as law in those days was hardly recognized as a profession, and he turned to mercantile life as a calling "substantial and respectable." Later "father and son became partners in a malt house."

In 1749 Samuel married Elizabeth Cheekley, daughter of the Minister of the New South, settled in Purmann street, and gave himself to the management of the malt house. Though he had not yet begun to play his proper part before the world, the eyes of men were beginning to turn to him, as a man with a head to manage a political snarl and a pen to express thoughts that could inspire and kindle. In 1757 his wife died, leaving him one son, another Samuel Adams—and a daughter. Misfortune followed him in business and there was prospect of his losing what little property he had, and of having his name stained with dishonor. His hour, however, had now come. He was elected a member of the committee to instruct the representatives to the General Court, and to him was given the task of drafting the paper. His original draft is still in existence, the first document written by him of which we have any distinct trace. Samuel Adams married as his second wife Elizabeth Wells, a woman of efficiency and cheerful fortitude.

"In 1765 Adams was elected a member of the Assembly. It was now that he fairly began that life of public service which was to last almost unbroken until his death. He went to Congress in 1774 and from the close of the Revolution until 1797 his public service was without a break. For years he was in the Senate, was Lieutenant-Governor and then Governor. Samuel Adams became more and more the power behind all. He was made clerk of the Assembly, which gave him control of the House and the House and paid him about £100 a year. The Legislature having been forbidden to meet, he spoke in the town meetings or through the newspapers. The Government party was anxious to make out a case against him, and have him sent to England to be tried for treason." It was Samuel Adams who forced the Governor to send the hated soldiers, the cattle by repeatedly saying as he walked through the crowd of townspeople, "both regiments or none," and they were ever afterwards called "Sam Adams' Regiment."

Time went on, Samuel Adams using every effort by public speech and secret whispering to influence the other colonies to strike for relief from the oppressive laws of England. Later he was elected delegate to the Philadelphia Congress, and he was without doubt the most conspicuous and also the most dreaded member of the body. He was not one of the Committee to draw up the Declaration but was one of a committee regarded as equally important, to draw up a plan of federation. For him it was the most triumphant moment of his life. He became Lieutenant Governor with Hancock, succeeded him as Governor, and was three times elected to that office. "Early in the morning of Oct. 2, 1803, the tolling bells made known to the town that he was dead."

After adjournment of the meeting and the members seated around the cosy and hospitable fireplace of hostess, Mrs. Black and Mrs. Burpee served refreshments, while all eagerly discussed the important question of "how can we add to our treasury, in order to meet, our responsibilities in patriotic and charitable work."

It was finally decided to have a rummage sale sometime in May, when good folks are indulging in spring house-cleaning and babies to find many things to make the sale a success.

ROCKPORT

Charles Tolman has returned from Massachusetts where he has been spending several months and is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Herbert Mann.

Mrs. F. W. Copeland is ill at her home on Commercial street.

The World Wide Guild held a very interesting meeting Monday evening at the Moody parsonage.

The Twentieth Century Club will be entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Blanche Ellsworth.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Spear has returned from Camden where she has been spending several months at Mrs. Zeenas Tabbutt's.

Past Mothers' and Past Patrons' night, and the nineteenth birthday of Harbor Light Chapter, O. E. S., was celebrated Tuesday evening, and Grace Chapter of Thomaston were invited guests. Members of Golden Rod Chapter, Rockland and Seaside Chapters, Camden were also present.

At 6.30 a delicious supper was served in the banquet hall. The menu consisted of baked beans, cold ham, rolls, salads, cake, doughnuts and coffee. Two very attractive birthday cakes were presented to the chapter by the worthy matron, Jessie Tibbets.

The supper committee, included Minnie Paul, Maud Walker and Agnes Shibles. Those who served were Helen Small, Erlene Davis, Margaret Adams Nina Carroll, Marion Richards and Della Larson. After the banquet the regular meeting was held with the following officers filling the stations: Worthy matron, Elizabeth C. Spear; worthy patron, Dr. C. W. Steward; associate matron, Bertha Thurston; secretary, Everett E. F. Libby; treasurer, Charles Jenkins; conductress, Alice Jenkins; associate conductress, Blanche McDonnell; chaplain, Ina Wooster; marshal, Louise Holbrook; organist, Katherine Jordan; Adah, Elizabeth Libby; Ruth, Lida Champney; Esther, Minnie Paul; Martha, Effie Salisbury; Electa, Ina Wooster; vander, C. A. Cavanaugh; sentinel, Fred Robinson. Degrees were conferred upon two candidates. A pleasing program with the following numbers was enjoyed: Piano solo, Kathleen Jordan; reading, Edna Robbins; piano duet, Marion Richards and Blanche McDonnell. "Interesting remarks were made by Past Grand Patrons, A. H. Newcomb of Rockland and L. D. Ames of Camden, and Charles A. Knight, Patron of Grace Chapter, Thomaston. The evening was attended by a large number of members and visitors and was a very enjoyable one.

DRY COLD

Keeps foods fresh for days

KELVINATOR will not only keep your refrigerator cold, but dry as well. The freezing unit that takes the place of ice becomes thickly coated with frost, and the air becomes crisp and sharp. In this dry, frosty air, foods stay fresh for days.

Kelvinator-chilled refrigerators stay cold, for Kelvinator never melts away. Day-in and day-out they keep foods perfectly and require no attention. Plan to come in today and see the model which we are planning to withhold from selling a few days for display purposes.

WORK DAY AND NIGHT

Every Hour Now Sees 185 Chevrolet
Motor Cars Produced.

A greater number of automobiles is being built this month by the Chevrolet Motor Company than ever before was produced in a single month by any manufacturer of motor cars. The schedule, which constitutes a new monthly record for Chevrolet, calls for more than 57,500 passenger cars and trucks. According to W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the company, this total is more than 14,000 greater than the production during March of 1925.

To attain this record production, plant facilities were increased recently to a daily maximum of 2,325 cars, the day and night shifts now averaging 185 motors per hour. The new high schedule for March follows a persistent demand for Chevrolet cars which necessitated a record January production of more than 44,000 units, three times the production during January of 1925. In February Chevrolet production rose to 51,000 which was nearly twice the number of units built during the corresponding month of last year.—adv.
