Republican rally in The Arcade at 8 o'clock tonight. Gov. Brewster and Congressman White will speak.
 "Interest begins on taxes Aug. 25, charged at the rate of 6 per cent" was the cheery word given out by Mayor Carver yesterday.

Sparks from a passing locomotive started a grass fire near Holmes street which required the attention of Engine 2 yesterday morning.

William Harris, one of the directors of the American Red Cross at Washington, D. C., was a recent business visitor to the local Red Cross chapter.

Seats go on sale at Park Theatre Monday for "The Big Parade," which will be shown there next Friday. Cities of less than 10,000 population are allowed this great picture only one day.

The Rockland Band was heartened nightly Thursday night by the frequent and enthusiastic applause. A stranger requested "Southern Melodies," and complimented the band very highly on its rendition. Many music-lovers will regret that next Thursday night's concert is the last of the season.

There is considerable local interest in the popularity contest being staged by Battery F of Thomaston in connection with its County Fair which is to be held Sept. 1-2 in Watts hall. The present standing of the contestants: Edith Keller, 525; Jane Barry, 500; Margaret Hanley, 500; Lorraine Orne, 480; Alcida Hall, 475.

Golf at the Country Club today will consist chiefly of qualifying rounds of those players who are purposing to take part in the annual club championship tournament which is scheduled for the coming week. The management has issued notice that those who need to play the qualifying round on any day but Saturday must play the full 18 holes at one time, not divide them over two days.

Membership dues in the American Legion Auxiliary for the year 1926 are payable to Mrs. Hattie McLeod, 25 McLeod street, and should be in her hands not later than Aug. 25, if members wish to receive credit for paid up membership on national record. For those who have any idea of going to France this is necessary to get reduced rates, as only paid up members in American Legion Post and Auxiliary for the year of 1926 and 1927 are entitled to reduced rates.

Something new in the "plumber" line was staged at Union Wednesday with W. T. Smith as the unwitting perpetrator. He was there in his car and Bill Young and Bert Everett in the shop truck. "I'll pick up the tools in the barn and come down with Smith" said Young as Mr. Everett departed in the truck. Meanwhile Mr. Smith came out of the house, saw the dwindling dust cloud and drove blandly off to Rockland, little dreaming that he left a heavy laden assist to walk 15 per spring miles homeward.

Republican rally in The Arcade at 8 o'clock tonight. Gov. Brewster and Congressman White will speak.

Ralph Tibbitts, Street Railway conductor, is having a vacation of 15 days, which he is spending in Massachusetts, with his family.

A. T. Clifford, proprietor of Bonnie View Farm, near Oakland Park, is picking a peck of blueberries each day, and doing it by hand. This is somewhat remarkable in view of the fact that he is 85 and barely able to see.

Reports reach here Thursday of a big forest fire which is raging on Marshall's Island, near Swan's Island. The property is owned by George Lane of Rockport. There is one dwelling on the island and a number of camps.

Arthur U. Patterson of Vinahaven is the guest until next Tuesday of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Schofield. It is his first visit here since he was stricken with a serious illness several months ago, and friends are delighted to see him looking so well.

Extensive repairs are being made on the Street Railway roadbed between Rockland and Camden, and new switches will be put in at both ends of the Rankin block siding in connection with the permanent street work which is being done in that locality.

Franz M. Simmons was the big noise at the New Belfast Fair this week, winning first money in the 217 and 223 classes Wednesday and first money in the 214 and 220 classes Thursday. Mary Aberdeen, owned by Frank Butler of Rockland, won fourth money in the 217 class and John Opp won third money in 214 class. Benney Hayt, driven by Earle Ludwick won fourth money in the last named class. The best time in these races was 2:13 1/4.

About this time of the year a number of mothers appeal to the City Matron, Miss Corbett, for clothing. School commences in two weeks and these mothers are anxious to send their children to school as neat as she can, but where there are a number in the family to go to school, the earnings of the head of the family are not large enough to equip all as they should be. Miss Corbett will appreciate any clothing, especially children's. Clothing can be sent to her at her office in the city building or phone 663-W or 398-W and it will be called for.

At yesterday's Rotary luncheon Kelley B. Crie told a highly interesting story of a motor trip over the road from Rockland to Waterville, touching upon the points (one of them was the peak of the drawbridge across the river between Thomaston and Warren) which make a motor trip worth while to the tourist who keeps his eyes open. One thing he noted that Rockland needs, namely, signs directing tourists to the picturesque limestone quarries. Another speaker was D. B. Murdoch of Honolulu, whose address of last year was remembered with pleasure. He is lately returned from a trip to the British Isles and quoted some of the problems that country has to deal with which should give them our sympathy. We should not blame them for advancing the price of rubber, he said, for they have met with great losses in establishing that industry and are entitled to get back some of them, otherwise the whole business would have gone to smash. There is a great call to us to stand up for what is right in the world, he said. Europe is still under the curse of a threat of war. Their ill feeling toward us on account of our great wealth and the huge war debt they owe us is natural, but it will pass, and we should be patient with them. Two new members were welcomed—Louis B. Cook and Lester Sherman. Visiting Rotarians present were Frank W. Achorn of Ellipton, Miss. Harry Jackson, Lebanon, N. H., Bill Stark, Orange, Texas, H. N. McDougall, Portland, George Johnson, Waterville, W. A. Randall, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., Chas. W. Bab, Camden, and guests were Henry E. Edwards, Jackson, Mich., L. H. Stevens, Watlington, S. R. McDougall, Boston. It was voted that next week's session should be a Ladies' Night at the Country Club.

A PARADISE OF PLEASURE

The feature pictures at Park Theatre next week promise rare entertainment for the fans. Monday night "The Show-off" with Ford Stirling and Lois Wilson; Wednesday and Thursday, "The Boy Friend"; Friday, "The Big Parade"; and Saturday, "The Pride of the Forces" and "Somebody's Mother," with Mary Carr.

Attractions at the Strand next week are: Monday and Tuesday, Syd Chaplin in "The Man On The Box"; Wednesday and Thursday "The Prairie Wife," with Herbert Rawlinson and Dorothy Devoreman; and "The New Jersey Radio Boys," Friday and Saturday Fred Thomson in "The Tough Guy" and Grace Darmond in "The Great Jewel Robbery."

Even such authorities on economy as Rockland's jovial chief executive sometimes come a cropper. Such was Mr. Carver's experience Thursday when he attempted to polish his new Nash car. He bought a dollar can of polish and 18 cents worth of cheese cloth and with a helper devised an entire afternoon (ideal golfing weather) to putting the car in shining shape. When he tallied up he found another $2.00 necessary to press and clean a suit of clothes. The regular charge for the job at a garage is $1.50.

 The developments of the past few nights have been featured by the splendid service from WJZ. The programs through that station have been coming in clearly and with good volume. HAD JOLLY DAY

Rockland Forty Club and Ladies Enjoyed Gardiner Visit.

The Rockland Forty Club made a trip to Gardiner Wednesday as guest of the Gardiner Forty Club and were royally entertained. The Kennecott Journal thus graphically describes the events of the day:

Thirty members of the Rockland Forty Club, the first organization of its kind in the State arrived in Randolph at 3:30 Wednesday afternoon accompanied by their ladies, the party numbering about sixty persons were met by the members of the Gardiner organization, the second in the State. The parade was headed by a truck in which rode a bewhiskered farmer bearing a resemblance to a young Water street merchant who was accompanied by a naughty "lady" who refused to smile at any of her admirers, then followed a happy couple astride mules, these two riders were dressed in the height of fashion and even the mules sported the proper overalls.

The party proceeded across the bridge to Depot square, then up Main avenue across Bridge street and back down Water street where they disbanded. After an interval the line of cars was re-formed and headed by a member of the State Highway Police the cars left Gardiner, and went by way of Brunswick road to Tacoma Lake where they took possession of the Inn and clubhouse. The entertainment committee had arranged a program of field and water sports and these were carried out, and consisted of the following highly amusing events, potato race, peanut race, three-legged race and sack race on land, canoe race, rowboat race, water polo, and greased pole race on the lake. These were enjoyed by the on-lookers perhaps more than by the participants.

The famous Buccaneers, a novelty orchestra played during the serving of the shore dinner at the Inn, and also in the evening for the grand ball at the club house across the road. Here a hundred couples enjoyed the perfect evening for dancing and social conversation. The Rockland members assured their hosts that the entertainment left nothing to be desired and the feeling of fraternity between these two unique and peppy organizations was further intensified by the splendid display of hospitality. The Gardiner merchants also expressed their pleasure at the arrival of the visitors by using their effective uniform flag display. The ladies were extended the hospitality of the Gardiner Business and Professional Women's Club which offered the use of their Water street club room.

The general committee in charge of arrangements for the affair consisted of J. J. McDermott, Fred N. Boston and Ernest Wagner. David F. Kelley was chairman of the committee in charge of the entertainment.

The Maine Historical Society will hold a field day at Port Edgecomb, Wiscasset Harbor, on Tuesday, Aug. 24. Fort Edgecomb was purchased by the State for park purposes when sales of old military reservations were made by the United States. The block house there is a most interesting specimen of the military architecture of its period. It can be reached by automobile by turning to the south at the eastern end of the Wiscasset-Edgecomb bridge on the Atlantic Highway. No provision having been made for luncheon, it would be well for members to provide themselves with a basket luncheon. A full attendance is earnestly desired, and it is hoped that every member who can possibly do so will attend and bring such friends as are likely to join the society. Knox County has several members in the society.

THE CAMPMEETING

Do the old-time campmeetings continue their vogue, or have their programs received adjustment along with the changes that have come in every line? The question arose on receiving the program of next week's Northport Institute and Assembly. We print it in full on another page, because it carries matter of interest to the large body of Methodists of this region. "We are trying out a new plan this year, with Institute features as well as the usual lectures and sermons," writes Rev. Ernest Lyman Mills, and he adds:

"Rev. F. A. Lindhorst is the director of religious education of the Wilmington Conference, Delaware. His conference so thoroughly believes in his message that they have asked him to sign a contract for a long term of years. Miss Alice Louise Brown is the director of religious education of the Maine Conference of Maine. Miss Mary K. Berg is an author of works on religious education, with special stress on a development of progress of worship. Both Mrs. Mills and myself have been connected with the Board of Sunday Schools of the Methodist Church and served for five years as director of the board work in Europe. We shall have charge of the morning institutes. Dr. W. L. Willman of Wilkesbarre, Pa., is to be our special Evangelistic speaker. The Rev. Dr. A. C. Goddard of Portland was praised by his lectures at Northport last summer and has been engaged for the entire week. Bishop George A. Miller of Mexico City, Mexico, who preaches on Wednesday afternoon and evening, has had a wonderful journey in many centers in Maine. He will bring first-hand information regarding the situation, religiously speaking, in our sister republic to the south of us."

Truly a notable list of speakers. The memory of even our oldest readers will fall to recall the time when the "Northport Campmeeting" was not a midsummer feature of eastern Maine, attracting large audiences to listen to distinguished speakers and take part in services whose quickening influence reached out into all the churches of these parts. If the features that marked those earlier days may have given place to others dealing with present day problems, we shall be satisfied that they are none the less promotive of high community good.

It would be interesting to hear from local farmers with respect to the contention of Dr. Wylie, professor of astronomy at the University of Iowa, who holds that sunspots hinder corn, that when the spots are fewest the yield of corn is the larger. Dr. Wylie's solar and crop records date back to 1870. Paradoxically, the average temperature over the greater part of the earth is lower when the sun is hotter. This seems to be due, he says, to the fact that in regions of clear sky near the equator, where the sun is nearly vertical, the temperature gets higher when the sun gets hotter. It is also believed that the temperature of the polar regions is higher at such a time, but this increases the circulation of the earth's atmosphere, and the temperature is lower in most parts of the earth. "The average of the last thirty-three years," says Dr. Wylie, "shows that it is about two degrees cooler in Iowa and a degree and a quarter cooler in New England when sunspots are most numerous." Under this finding we should have to attribute to this cause the coolness of the present New England summer. But how about our corn crop? Is it running light this year?

THE GREAT LOVER

John Gilbert Surpasses Valentino and Navarro in "The Big Parade"

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in announcing the starring of John Gilbert in "The Big Parade" which will be presented at the Park Theatre on Friday, Aug. 27, suggest Gilbert as likely candidate for the suzerain of the fans as the "greatest screen lover of 1926-27." They point with pride to his Prince Danilo ("The Merry Widow"), his James Apperson ("The Big Parade") and his Rudolph ("La Boheme"). Rudolph Valentino and Ramon Novarro please take notice. A real surprise awaits the Gilbert fan in "The Big Parade." His makeup is the "mud pack" of the trenches. All the disfigurements of "active service" are realized. Those who have seen the picture say that begrimed and dirty he is just as easy to look at—and just as compelling as when dandified.

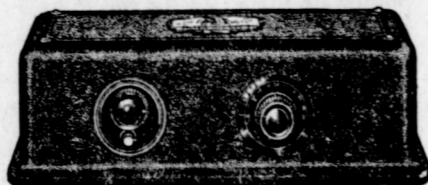

It might be mentioned that this new—and probably greatest—screen lover was born in Logan, Utah. He didn't leap to fame. He began his acting career at a tender age with Eddie Foy. He was a juvenile lead after that in Western stock companies. Then he went into business. Then he took up motion picture acting. He was a scenario writer for Maurice Tourneur, and later was a director. Then Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer took him up and made a star of him. There is little question that John Gilbert not only is the screen's newest and greatest lover, but also that he is one of the wholesomest, finest, and most appealing in a contagiously wholesome way to his audiences.

PARK THEATRE

"Her Honor, The Governor," with Pauline Frederick; and "Honesty Is The Best Policy," featuring Pauline Starke, Johnny Walker, and others will be the program today.
Picturegoers, who are wont to complain that the movies are not true to life, will have little fault to find with Paramount's new comedy classic, "The Show-Off," which makes its initial appearance Monday and Tuesday. It features the inimitable Ford Sterling, the charming Lois Wilson, the beautiful Louise Brooks, and that shining stage star, Gregory Kelly. Based on the popular stage play by George Kelly, "The Show-Off" brings to the screen a familiar American character and a typical American family—real, human, every-day folks. There are no spectacular sets, no stagey thrills, no forced realism—just the natural humor, the simple drama and the poignant pathos that make up the ordinary lives of humanity's masses.—adv.

EMPIRE THEATRE

Jack Hoxie in "The Fighting Peacemaker" is the feature picture for today in conjunction with chapter two of "The Radio Detective."
It has remained for E. M. Asher's First National production of "The Sporting Lover," starring Conway Tearle, which will be shown Monday and Tuesday to provide the most unique romantic setting of the year. "The Sporting Lover" deals with wartime romance and race horses, and Mr. Tearle, as Captain Terrance Connaughton, finds his ideal of a wife in Barbara Bedford, as Lady Gwendolyn, amid the chaos of a battle front air raid. The foundation of their romance is built amid the ruins of a field hospital where the couple realize their great love while fighting for life buried beneath piles of earth tossed over them by bursting bombs. It is believed that the romantic scene from Mr. Tearle's starring vehicle possesses the most dramatic climax yet seen in a war play.
Chapter 8th of "The Bar C Mystery" will also be shown.—adv.

STRAND THEATRE

A triple program will be seen at the Strand Theatre for the last time today: "The Pearl of Love," from the story "The Pearl of Orr's Island" by Harriet Beecher Stowe; "The Taxi Mystery" with Edith Roberts and Robert Agnew and a Harold Lloyd comedy. On Monday and Tuesday Mgr. Dondis is bringing to the Strand for a return engagement "The Man On The Box" with Syd Chaplin. Syd Chaplin has appeared in "Charley's Aunt" and "Oh, What A Nurse!" and is returning by popular demand.
The dog "Buddy" created a sensation at his Wednesday and Thursday appearances. He is justly called a "Wonder" dog, for his stunts are far beyond the range of trained dogs previously seen here. Buddy skates on specially made roller skates, on his hind feet, plays the piano, sings, does a series of hurdles on his hind feet, and by actual preference, walks on his hind feet, following his owner and trainer, Frank Jacobs, for blocks in that position. He was raised and trained in Newcastle by Mr. Jacobs, proprietor of Newcastle Inn.—adv.

ANIMAL FRIENDS

Could the owner of all animals enter into the thoughts and feelings of their pets as the writer of these stories has so evidently entered the animal world would be much happier, as would also their human friends. It is safe to say that not one half the world gives animals credit for having real thoughts, while many persons scoff at the idea that the feelings of an animal can be understood.
This writer however is a keen observer and seems to understand that if animals could only talk there would be little difference between them and humans in their scope of emotions. The six stories as told by the animals themselves, aside from being interesting and even exciting, are well calculated to teach children kindness and consideration toward their pets and to think how they would feel could they but change places with dumb creatures. CROP IS PROMISING

More Apples Than Last Year
And They're Of Fine Quality.

The commercial apple crop in nearly all parts of the country got off to a good start and conditions for it have continued most favorable. During the past month prospective production increased 5.5 per cent and now promises to be 39,559,000 barrels compared with 33,044,000 harvested last year. This expected production is 31.4 per cent larger than the average crop of the years 1921-1925. Outlook generally is for a crop of high quality.
In New England condition of the crop at 69.8 per cent of normal is about four points better than at this date last year and almost 10 points above the ten year average for AUG. 1. Capacity of the orchards has been increasing for several years, and the prospective crop while slightly below that harvested last year bids fair to be a fourth larger than the average crop of the past five years. Condition of the crop is some 15 points higher in southern than in northern New England. The three southern states expect about 20 per cent more apples than they harvested last year while the three northern states show a prospective decrease of about 15 per cent.

Present conditions in the eight principal barrel apple states outside New England—forecast a gain of 19.5 per cent over last year and 37.5 per cent over their average crop of the years 1921-25. Of these states there are moderate gains over last year in New York, Ohio, and Illinois; big gains in Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia and moderate decreases in Michigan and Missouri. Combining these eight states with New England gives a prospective barrel apple crop 18.5 per cent more than last year and 35.9 per cent more than the five year average.

Outlook in the principal box apple states is for a crop 23.3 per cent larger than that of last year and 27.1 per cent larger than their average crop. Of these states Idaho shows a material decrease from last year but Washington, Oregon and California show big gains.
Gravenstein and Wealthy are the more promising fall apples in New England this year and McIntosh the lightest of the more important varieties, while Baldwin which forms the bulk of the winter crop leads there. Northern Spies are lightest of all. Virginia reports the crop very clean, free from hail, of high quality and up to the usual size. New York states there is little disease or scab to date, summer apples are a big crop; McIntosh and Spies light; Baldwin and Greenings are the leading winter apples this year. Michigan apples are good size and very free of scab with early varieties heaviest. Washington expects a large crop; the season is very early and fruit clean. Delicious and Winesap relatively light.

ABOUT THE TOADS

Mrs. Veazie Talks 'Em Over and Wonders What Has Become of Them.

What has become of all the toads? For many years I found them in my garden every day but in the last five or six years I have seen only one or two in a season and sometimes not even one. Last week I found a big plump one hopping about among the flowers near my sink spout and it seemed like greeting an old friend, for I have always loved toads and petted them as I would a kitten, though they are at first rather shy, shutting their eyes and holding their head down bashfully, but after they get acquainted and find that they are not harmed they really seem to enjoy being handled.

They are insectivorous, and when people come to me with woeful tales of lice on their nasturtiums, bugs on their roses and big green worms on their pansies, I point with pride to my bright healthy wormless and bugless blossoms, and calmly picking up one of my toad friends from under a bush I introduce him to my visitor of the woeful countenance and give him full credit of his freedom from garden vermin. Notwithstanding my enthusiastic description of my pet's abilities as a bug destroyer, my human friends continue to squeal and to step away briskly whenever a portly, bright eyed toad makes his appearance, and most of them will exclaim warningly:

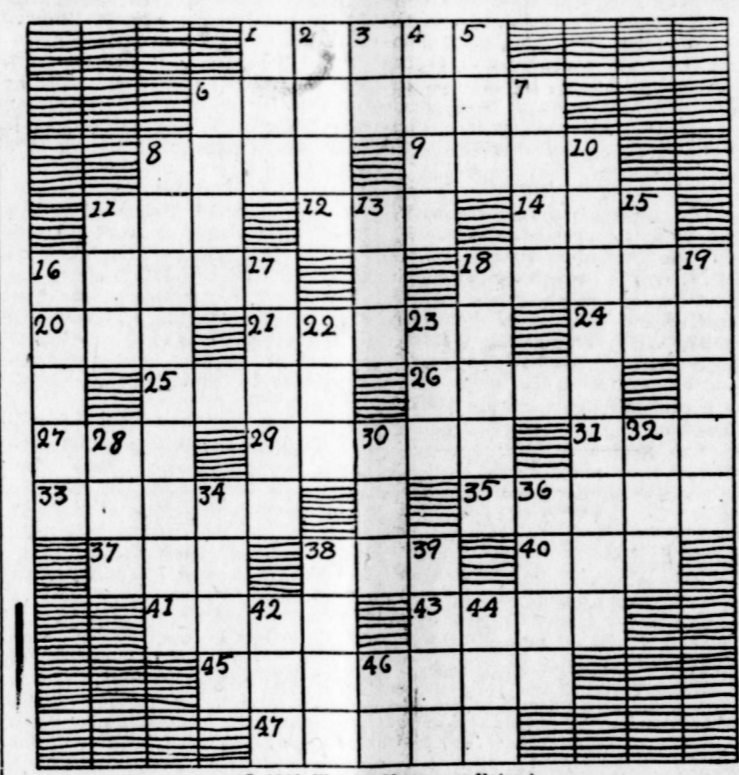

"Oh, don't handle him! He will make warts on your hands!"
Where they get that notion is a mystery which must be classed with the old myth of the "devil's darn needle" which will "sew your mouth" if you give it half a chance. All my life I have handled toads just as freely as I handle my pet cats, and never yet have I had a wart.

I have often heard persons speak of tree toads and I also read of them, though I presume I have read thousands of miles in field and wood, always looking for something new and strange, and many times finding it, but not any tree toads. Once or twice friends have pointed out a small, light colored spotted frog and told me, "There's a tree toad," but I am quite sure they were mistaken, for the tree toads of which I read have little discs or suckers on their feet which enable them to cling to various stems and bushes, while on catching these swiftly whirling, spotted frogs I have found their feet formed exactly like those of other frogs.

If any one can tell me where to look for a real tree toad and what color it is likely to be I shall be very glad to receive the information. I remember hearing my grandmother speak of them changing color like a chameleon, taking the same color of whatever they rest upon, but I don't think she ever saw one, so this also may be one of those old fashioned myths.

Simplicity

Means Surer Automatic Control
More Certain Service and Longer Life

The Nu-Way Burner is Simple

If you want the convenience of an oil burner and the comfort and health that accompany the even heat maintained by a perfectly functioning burner—

Then let's get down to the facts you want to know about an oil burner

Five Great Nu-Way Features

1. Simplicity The Nu-way has fewer parts than other burners observing the four laws of combustion. Every step towards simplification in any mechanical device means a step towards greater dependence in service, surer automatic control, longer life. The Nu-way has no diaphragms, no intricate working parts, and the fewest possible number of parts.

2. Quietness By reason of its simplicity, the Nu-way Oil Burner is the quietest burner made that burns oil by the four fundamental laws of oil combustion. The mechanism is silent. The only sound is that of the blazing oil in the brick lined fire-pot.

3. No Vibration Vibration means wear. The Nu-way Oil Burner runs without vibration. A penny stood on edge on the mechanism will remain there indefinitely, so free is the burner from vibration.

4. Perfectly Timed Ignition When the thermostat automatically starts the Nu-way Oil Burner, two things happen in perfectly timed sequence. First, the automatic ignition system is turned on and is waiting for the flow of air and atomized oil. This is the only method that insures correct lighting at all times. This timing is as important on your oil burner as on your motor car. This means positive ignition and eliminates the expense of a continuous gas pilot light.

5. Protective Devices Nu-way has two outstanding protective devices—features that prevent harm to your home should anything go wrong with your fire or burner. In the smoke pipe there is a combustion device that, should anything interfere with the fire in the heating plant, will shut off the burner at once. This means that no oil can be introduced into your heating plant without burning. There is also another protective device that makes it impossible for oil to flow upon the basement floor.

COAST LEAGUE DEADLOCKED

All Three Teams Are Now Tied—Work of Belfast Team Has Been the Feature of the Week.

Next Week's Games

Monday—Camden at Belfast.
Tuesday—Belfast at Camden.
Wednesday—Belfast at Rockland.
Thursday—Rockland at Belfast.
Friday—Camden at Rockland.
Saturday—Rockland at Camden.

Tied in Knot

The two games which have been played in the Maine Coast League since the last standing was published have served to bring all of the teams on an even basis. This is how the tally reads today:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Rockland	14	14	.500
Camden	15	15	.500
Belfast	14	14	.500

The Sunday baseball game at Togus will be with Rockland of the Maine Coast League. This is the second game between these two clubs, Rockland lost the first by a small score and is going back with blood in its eyes to win this contest. These two clubs are ancient rivals and a record attendance is expected. Each Sunday larger attendances are recorded at these grounds as the management has secured for the baseball loving public the best attractions obtainable and so far this season super ball has been witnessed at these grounds. Another game such as was witnessed last Sunday is expected and no fan can afford to be absent when the umpire calls "play ball."

Belfast 5, Camden 0

Mr. Fitzpatrick, erstwhile New England Leaguer, was given his first try-out in the Belfast box Thursday night, and celebrated that important occasion by fanning 11 Lankies and holding that team to two singles. Just by the way of good measure he turned in a two-bagger, which, by the way was the beginning of Lanky Jordan's downfall in that game. Incidentally only three Camden men saw first base, and not one of the three reached third.

Viewing the nine goose eggs stretched out in a row after the names of Camden, and taking into consideration the facts above outlined, Fitzpatrick's coming out party must be voted a thorough success.

Be it said to the credit of Camden's player-manager that the old warhorse pitched a mighty fine game before the cyclone did strike. A single by Kiley, and a double by Paley gave Belfast a run in the first inning, but from that time until the eighth, Belfast found Lanky for only two hits.

The eighth opened up with Fitzpatrick's double already referred to. Small, Kiley and Paley followed with successive singles, Murphy was pitched, and the situation began to look like the chair-plane down on the Belfast fair ground. The outfield finally came to the rescue, Daker catching two flies, and Davis retiring the third man.

The distinguishing play of the game was the line catch made by Newhall, Camden's new first baseman. The ball came hot from Hederick's bat, and in spite of the disappointment which the play earned, the Belfast crowd applauded long and lustily.

Bangor-Brewer 15, Rockland 5. The Rockland baseball team and a group of loyal fans motored to Brewer Thursday where the Bangor-Brewer aggregation took over Rockland 15 to 5 with no great effort. Moore hurled for Rockland gave nine bases on balls and allowed seventeen hits while Caruthers was invincible except in one inning. Rockland was having a decidedly off day in fielding but it is the opinion of those who saw the game that given a home crowd and the familiar surface of Community Park, Rockland will take Brewer into camp Monday night.

Belfast 11, Rockland 4
Last night's game at Community Park was a very successful demonstration of how a very good team can sometimes play very badly. It also added confirmation to the opinion of many fans that the Belfast team is bound pennantward.

Feehan was found for an even dozen hits in the six innings that he pitched, and Captain Macfarland sent Weston to the mound. The Boston College star also had his troubles, but faded his position in a manner that tickled the fans. It was about the only thing in the game that did tickle them, for there was a shocking lack of team work. An exception is found in the six pretty assists made by Cole.

Bangor-Brewer 15, Rockland 5. The Rockland baseball team and a group of loyal fans motored to Brew-

Moore hurled for Rockland gave nine bases on balls and allowed seventeen hits while Caruthers was invincible except in one inning. $170,700 AN HOUR

--and you can watch it work!

A CONTINUOUS FLOW of money at the almost unbelievable rate of $4,098,000 a day or $170,700 an hour, Sundays and holidays included, was invested in the securities of public utility companies during the year 1925.

This represents more new financing during the past year than all the iron, steel, coal, copper, automobile, oil, rubber and shipping companies combined.

Because it offers the largest element of safety and a fair, reasonable cash return on their money and the privilege of seeing their money work for them at home the public utility is the most attractive means of investment for the rank and file of the people.

Its securities are more widely distributed than any other business. Surely securities that appeal to so many people must be safe and satisfactory.

One of the leaders among power company preferred stocks is the 7% Preferred Stock of Central Maine Power Company.

For twenty years it has paid uninterrupted dividends. Over 13,000 Maine people are now stockholders.

The price of this time-tried security has not yet advanced but remains where it has been for years: at $107.50 to yield 6 1-2% net.

THE REALM OF MUSIC

Gladys St. Clair Morgan

It is the same the world over—the good things in our own midst are often overlooked or taken for granted. This can be applied to the Rockland Band. Few of us are really cognizant of the fine band we have right here, a band rated among the best in the State. We know we have a good band, we wouldn't be without a city band for anything, etc., etc., yet only practically a few of us make the effort to attend the concerts this band is giving each week, throughout the summer season, and few of us spend much thought on how it gets the money necessary for uniforms, instruments and music. And how many of us know the personnel of our band, its history and activities?

What is now called the Rockland Band was organized in 1916 under the name of the Park Band. In 1918 it was re-organized under the present name with the following officers: Chester Munro, manager; Charles L. Robinson, secretary and treasurer; C. A. Fish, leader; E. K. Maddocks, librarian. In 1924 Mr. Munro resigned as manager and Kenneth V. White, who was then in the band, took his place. These same officers are in force today. In addition to local engagements such as Memorial Day, St. John's Day, etc., they have given concerts and shows to raise money for uniforms and music. The band prides itself on having been self-supporting from the date of its organization.

The concerts are free to the public, and a real musical treat, the programs ranging from the classics to the popular jazz of the day. Some of our public-spirited citizens, recognizing not only the musical treat being given, but the fine spirit of the band members, have donated $300 toward the support. Needless to say this gift is deeply appreciated. The personnel of the band is as follows:

Clarence A. Fish, leader and solo cornet
Kenneth V. White, solo cornet
Theodore Perry, 1st cornet
Ernest Herrick, 1st cornet
Charles L. Robinson, 1st cornet
C. A. Dunton, solo clarinet
George W. Blenheim, 1st clarinet
Thomas Fleming, 2nd clarinet
E. K. Williamson, 2nd clarinet
R. E. Bean, 1st trombone
E. M. Young, 2nd trombone
Edw. Hayes, 1st alto
Ernest Richards, 2nd alto
Ansel Wooster, 1st bass
A. F. Sleeper, 2nd bass
Joseph Muelro, 1st bass
E. K. Maddocks, 1st bass
Milton Griffin, 1st bass
Arthur Orne, 1st bass
Wesley Waggart, 1st bass

The Rockland Band has troubles and cares incident to all organizations. There are the efforts to raise the money necessary to carry on its activities; there have to be many rehearsals, and rehearsals where there are a large number of participants involved are not the easiest thing to swing, there are the usual business transactions and problems and so on. It behooves us all to be more appreciative of our fine band, and show this appreciation by attendance on the concerts whenever possible, and when not, at least by a good boost in words to our neighbors and friends.

It is a strange thing, but the more accomplished men and women become and the more success they attain, the more reticent, retiring and modest they seem to get. We admire these traits, in our whole-hearted interest we long to know more about them, especially when these people belong to Rockland, and wish they would be too self-effacing. This is called forth by my effort to get something to tell my readers about the activities of a former Rockland girl, Miss Alice Shaw Farber of New York, now spending the summer at Cooper's Beach with her husband and other relatives. We all recall "Allie" Shaw and her remarkable musical talent, which manifested itself at a very early age; and we remember what splendid work she did at the Institute of Musical Art in New York. We learned, too, that she was giving a foothold in the musical circles of that city, but further than that our information has been vague, unless in close touch with the family.

Ever since childhood Mrs. Farber has had a peculiar aversion to public notice of her work. It is difficult to secure an interview with her, she never sends notices of her concerts to the papers; she never advertises in any way. Nevertheless, the high quality of her work has brought success and won for her an enviable position in musical circles. She is a very busy young woman, having all she wishes to do, yet she has never solicited an engagement or a pupil. We know she plays beautifully, composes along different lines, and has a real flair for accompanying. She accompanies many of the prominent artists before the public today, and for a long period has been associated with the Boston Symphony Club chorus of New York, of which Prof. William Roy Chapman is the conductor.

It is a talented family Mrs. Farber belongs to. Her mother, Mrs. Carrie Burpee Shaw, was for many years one of Rockland's most talented pianists, organists and teachers. Her aunt, Mrs. Emma Wight, was also talented. Her uncle, William P. Burpee, is an artist of renown, his paintings having been hung in many of the best known art galleries; he is widely traveled and cultured, and his name is a brilliant one in artist circles. Her sister, Mrs. Winifred Shaw Pales, has won an enviable name by her writings, her work in interior decorating, etc.

Those who haven't seen Mrs. Farber for several years will be surprised at the small physical change that has taken place in her. She looks practically the same; she has the same quiet naive manner. While we haven't been able to keep in close touch with her activities, we know she is talented and gifted, and needless to say we are all very proud of her accomplishments and success.

How good it seems to have Lottie McLaughlin back with us again. The barber-shop is nowadays getting to be quite a meeting place for members of the "fair sex," and there I met Miss McLaughlin a few days ago. We had a good long talk—our tongues flew—we talked of everything and everybody that touches music. It is small wonder that people hold this young woman in so much affection. She changes little, although located in New York for several years, she doesn't seem to grow away from her Rockland friends one bit. She has the same interests here, she remembers everyone with the charming friendliness that has always been characteristic of her, and always seems glad to be "home" again. She tells me she hopes the way will be made clear for her to appear in concert here. Something in the wind, and I hope it will materialize so Rockland and the vicinity will have the opportunity to hear this lovely singer before she has to pull up stakes again.

Miss McLaughlin told me that she attended one of the concerts given in the Stadium under the Lewisohn management just before she came to Rockland. She heard one of Beethoven's magnificent works, and although the day was sweltering hot, they were in the presence of music until this year they have had refreshment stands in the Stadium, but these have been taken down to provide more seats, the attendance making this step warranted.

Although rather hazy about the source of these Lewisohn concerts, I think they were given in a philanthropic way to provide music for the working class chiefly; that they are given at the noon hour and are free. If this is not correct, I wish some one would inform me.

I have heard many favorable comments on the work of Miss Beulah Rokes in conjunction with the piano recital given by the advanced pupils of Miss Mabel Lamb. In addition to a group of songs, Miss Rokes gave several musical readings. These were especially enjoyed. As I have heretofore stated, this seems to be more distinctly her line than songs. It is an art that has recently sprung into vogue, and while it has met with success, it hasn't been due to death, for every singer and every reader cannot do musical readings. There has to be a peculiar sense of rhythm and the capability of not letting the musical accompaniment detract from the expression of the voice. Miss Rokes senses the necessities of this art very well, and I hope the public will have opportunity to hear her more often in this line.

Mrs. L. Q. Tyler of Waverly, Mass., a former Rockland resident, writes me: "Reading in The Realm of Music (which I never fail to read) that you would like to hear from anyone who witnessed Pinafore in Boston in 1878, will say, I attended one performance with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jordan, as I was visiting with them on Commonwealth Avenue at that time. I was then 18 years of age."

The piano prodigy, Shura Cherkasky, is spending a part of the summer at Camp Wigwam, Harrison, Maine. He is just now entering the teens, and already has amazed Boston, New York and other eastern cities by his prowess as a pianist. "They say" that to see him at Camp Wigwam there is nothing about him to suggest his marvelous talent, that he is just like any healthy normal boy, plunging into all kinds of outdoor sports. Among his boon companions are the new Star pianist of promise (a youngster like Cherkasky), and David H. Hollander, son of a noted scientist, now head of the department of economics at Johns Hopkins University.

Another well known musician who is summing up his career under rather less pleasant circumstances is Gustav F. Helm, who in spite of his fame as a symphony player and his standing as one of the world's really great trumpeters, is confined in the Oxford County Jail, South Paris, because he murdered a woman with a kick in the head at his summer camp on the shores of Kezar Lake. All sorts of stories have been pulled to effect his release, without success. A petition for his pardon was recently heard by Gov. Brewster and Council. Among the testimonials offered were letters from Gov. Alvin T. Fuller of Massachusetts and Mayor Nichols of Boston; also Walter Damrosch, leader of the New York Symphony Orchestra, in which Mr. Helm is first trumpeter. He is very well known in Boston, where he was first trumpeter in the Symphony Orchestra for many years, and even better still known to thousands of concert-goers when he was a member of the trumpet quartet of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul.

It is generally agreed that he is the greatest trumpeter in the world. He was born in Germany 47 years ago, studying music in Munich and serving three years in the German Army. His abilities as a musician were recognized immediately when he came to America. He was a trumpeter in the great World Fair Orchestra

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Mich.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and I believe it will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."

—Mrs. E. F. Bassett, 216 South Hayford Avenue, Lansing, Michigan.

Do not continue to feel all run-down and half sick when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is sold by druggists everywhere.

At St. Louis, later with the Philharmonic Orchestra under Fritz Scheel, and then was brought to Boston. He was solo trumpeter of the Boston Symphony under Max Fiedler, Karl Muck and Pierre Monteux, and also appeared many times as soloist at the Pops. He left the Boston Symphony in 1925 when the dispute was being waged over unionizing players.

Mr. Helm discovered the beautiful lake country of Southwestern Maine some years ago, and established a summer home (and with it a legal residence) at Center Lovell on Lake Kezar. Nearby towns are Bridgton, Harrison and Sweden. All through this section are colonies of artists, musicians and so on. There are Olive Frensted, Alice Neilson, Marie Sundelius, all famous singers; Douglas Volk, a celebrated American painter; and some well known statesmen of Massachusetts, including Hon. Frederick W. Dallinger, of Cambridge, and Judge Arthur P. Stone, also of Cambridge.

The story runs that Mr. Helm was sojourning at having so many famous neighbors and guests that it seemed no more than right to mix up a friendly bowl for these delightful people. He did, but it had a decided tinge to it, and the news spread. It reached the ears of Deputy Sheriff Ernest S. Hatch of Lovell, and last October the well-known musician pleaded guilty to a charge of making hooch. The case was continued for sentence and not until May was the sentence passed for four months in jail and $500 fine.

Mr. Helm has felt the humiliation keenly, it is said, yet he does no languishing behind the prison bars. He was put to work in the kitchen where he has ample opportunity to exercise his culinary art. He has the solace of his beloved trumpet, and instead of serenading the music lovers of Lake Kezar, he often of an evening plays for the inmates of the jail. The beautiful music floats in through the open windows of all the neighboring homes, and it never hears South Paris heard the playing of a high-priced artist at so little expense to itself.

Miss Lois Mills of Portland, who so charmed Rockland people when she appeared as accompanist for a Portland singer at the State Capitol concert a year or so ago, has spent a delightful summer season of travel and piano study in Europe. She sails from England for the States on Aug. 25, accompanied by her sister, Miss Carol Mills.

CHANGES IN BOSTON

Stupendous Building Operations That Have Transformed the Business Section.

Nowhere in all New England has there been so remarkable a transformation in the appearance of a particular locality as in the business section, which recently has taken place there, as in the Park Square section of Boston. One immense monument of architecture after another has been, and is in process of erection, until the whole section is literally transformed. The stupendous structures known as the Park Square Building and the John Hancock, of recent construction, with which the public is more or less familiar, have now been followed by the Statler Hotel, Boston Police Headquarters and the new Post Office Building, and last but by no means the least of these imposing structures, the new Salada Tea Company's building at Stuart and Berkeley Streets. The present modern structure is undergoing such an extension and enlargement as to be transformed beyond recognition.

The building as it is to be when the work already begun is completed, will be more than twice as long and therefore even more monumental than at present, and the main entrance will be on the Street instead of Berkeley. This building, while it is for mercantile use, will be symmetrical and altogether attractive, and will be a distinct addition to the already impressive and steadily increasing group of large buildings within view.

There will be a frontage of 200 feet on Stuart street and 100 feet on Berkeley street. From the principal entrance will extend a large lobby. The main office on the street floor will be 60 by 75 feet. Eight floors will be used for the preparation and shipment of tea, such as sorting, blending, packing and shipping, in connection with which efficient modern machines are used. The ninth and tenth floors are to be devoted to welfare activities for the employees.

FAVORS AMENDMENT

"It Plays No Favorites" Says Franklin D. Cummings of Woodfords.

We are requested to republish the following communication which appeared in the Press Herald of Aug. 9 and which presents the affirmative side of the question which the people will vote upon at the September election.

The citizens of Maine complain of high taxes. Conditions in Maine are none too good. Business, whether in trade or agriculture, presents a picture containing little either of promise or of pride.

Many citizens know little regarding the items that go to make up the sum total for which taxes are levied and upon which interest them to see some of the items, so that they may better glimpse present and future conditions.

First let us call to mind the fact that within the last 16 years we have created about all of our present debt of $23,000,000. This debt has been created almost wholly for road-building. The annual interest charge thereon is about $1,000,000. The State is largely dependent upon the various forms of taxation on automobiles and gasoline for payment of both principal and interest. Should we exhaust our automobile tax on the poverty of owners of automobiles brought on by any unfavorable conditions which prevented continuance of operation, ever prevail in Maine, where would the State find herself with her enormous debt on which interest and principal must be met from taxation of other forms of property already heavily taxed? The subject is worthy of careful consideration.

Let us not forget that we have no guarantee of either continued peace or prosperity. Europe is a slumbering volcano.liable at any moment to burst into eruption.

In times of prosperity men and nations go gaily forward and take little thought of the morrow. Would it not be wise for this State and this Nation to pay its debts, to increase expenditures, rather than to increase them, lest a storm find them going thoughtlessly along with all sails set?

We have in Maine many public institutions that require an ever increasing amount of money, institutions that we must and should support.

Our hospitals for the insane require $700,000 per year, the institution for the feeble-minded $235,000. School for the Deaf $47,000. Maine State Prison $90,000. Bath Military and Naval Orphan Asylum $25,000. Central Maine Sanatorium $151,000. Northern Maine Sanatorium $113,000. Western Maine Sanatorium $140,000. State Reformatory for Men $72,000. State Reformatory for Women $58,000. State School for Boys $65,000. State School for Girls $83,000. Under the commissioner of education is expended "for salaries and clerk hire $25,000, for general office expenses $14,000, for superintendence of towns comprising school unions $142,000, for summer schools $7,000, for schooling of children in unorganized townships $35,000, for certification of teachers $1,000, for teachers' meetings $4,000, for normal schools and training school $200,000, for normal school up-keep and extensions $60,000, for training rural teachers $20,000, for vocational education $20,000, for State school fund $1,939,573.45. For University of Maine $200,000 was appropriated. They wanted $800,000 per year for 10 years and would not have been satisfied with that, but the Legislature gave them $487,000.

The Department of Agriculture requires $200,000 per year, and the State Department of Education requires $297,500. If my addition is correct those items total $5,000,072.

If you will take the trouble to look back for ten or fifteen years you will find that the amount paid out for the above purposes has increased rapidly and that some of the items have not only doubled but tripled in that time. Bear in mind that there are many other State departments that require substantial sums yearly. With the exception of the $200,000 for the Department of Agriculture you will note that all of that five million dollars is paid out for education and the other purposes carried on by the State.

The total amount appropriated by the Legislature in 1925 was $8,959,205.12 for the year ending June 30th, 1926, and for the year ending June 30th, 1927, $9,109,445.50.

In addition to the amount which the State pays out for public educational and charitable purposes, there has grown up a practice of appropriating money derived from taxation to many private educational and charitable purposes. It began in a small way, but shows a rapid increase, both in the number of appropriations and the amounts paid out. It has been computed as amounting to a total of $3,083,425 in the last twenty-four years.

Many States unwisely started along the same road in the matter of appropriating public money to private and sectarian institutions and purposes. Nearly all of them have discontinued it and have amended their constitutions so as to prevent it in future.

In September the citizens of Maine will vote on a proposed amendment to the State Constitution, and if the vote is yes, all appropriations of public money to private or sectarian institutions will cease after 1931. That date is fixed in order to give those now receiving it time to adjust themselves accordingly.

Appropriations would still be made for the University of Maine, and hospitals would receive pay for care of patients unable to pay their own bills.

an institution gets its hand into the public treasury, they seldom let go unless forced to do so. Giving to one, you cannot to others. The inevitable result is a constantly increasing draft from the public treasury and additional burden upon taxpayers.

What will our citizens do? Will they continue along the present path, and allow conditions to become worse, and let they stop it once for all?

That, briefly, represents the economic side of the question. Every private institution feeding at the public crib is a political menace; their influence is exerted in politics, and their power increases with the increase in their numbers and the amounts which they receive. Those receiving money from the tax fund are pulling political strings and are always reaching out and pleading for more and more. Some of them even have the nerve to proclaim themselves "100 per cent Americans," while at the same time they are persistent and shameless violators of that great and fundamental principle of total and complete separation of Church and State which requires that no money derived from taxation of all our citizens shall not be used in the aid of any religious or sectarian cause or purpose.

Under our form of government no money can fairly be taken from one citizen and turned over to another private citizen, cause, or purpose. And when that institution is a religious or sectarian institution, to appropriate money derived from the taxation of all, for such a purpose, is a violation of the principle of separation of church and state and strikes at the very heart of civil and religious liberty and equality.

Opposition to the proposed amendment comes from those who are receiving public funds for private use and who are thereby blinded to the unfairness of their position.

Some of our religious organizations are broad-minded enough to be willing to support their own institutions and to keep their hands off the public till. It is my belief that if all of them would come out and frankly state that they would do this their own self-respect would be increased thereby and they would improve their standing in the community at large.

Some of those receiving public funds for private institutions cry out: "Oh, but our academics! What will become of them?"

Nearly all of them will go along just the same. Some may find it best to be turned over to towns and become high schools, but few will need to do that. "But," wails one man, "it will prevent the town raising money by taxation to pay tuition in academies, and we find that such a practice is cheaper than to support a high school."

Only think of any one presenting that as a reason for violating a fundamental principle of American Government! In a case like that, let the town either support a high school or let the pupils attending the academy pay their own tuition. No tax should ever have been levied for school purposes except for the support of a public school.

But suppose towns were permitted to raise money by general taxation to pay tuition in private academies, this, then, is the situation that would confront us: One town or city has a majority of Protestants and votes to raise money by general taxation to pay tuition of pupils attending a certain Protestant academy. The tax is levied on Roman Catholics as well as on Protestants, but of course only Protestants will attend the Protestant private school. Another town or city has a majority of Roman Catholics and that town votes to raise money by general taxation for paying tuition of pupils attending their private school, academy or "high school." Do you not see that whoever controls the state or town can starve the public schools, thereby having provided for "high school pupils" in another way?

The only alternative would seem to be to allow Protestant children to attend Protestant private schools and Catholic children to attend Catholic private schools, and each have their tuition paid out of the money raised by taxation; but do you not see that to do that would be to establish the principle of a division of our school funds along religious lines and to destroy the public school system?

Wherein would that be any more commendable than to violate the 18th amendment?

Let us hope that our citizens generally, regardless of religious affiliation, will realize that the only safe way is to ratify the proposed amendment and thus forever destroy a condition that is a menace alike to civil and religious freedom and equality.

The amendment is absolutely fair. It plays no favorites. Protestants and Roman Catholics are treated the same. There is no discrimination.

Those who believe in equality and justice for all should vote Yes.

YOU'RE YOUNG BUT ONCE

"Love, mystery, wealth and selfishness all combine to make this a highly interesting story. It is a well told tale and the characters are finely drawn. Little Ann has an invalid mother and an unprincipled father, neither of whom bestows much love or attention on their little daughter though she does not lack for money. A tragic accident as she nears her majority deprives her of both her parents and places her in the power of an uncle and aunt who seem to care much more for the property than for Ann. From this point the real story starts and holds the reader's interest to the very end.
