COLOR HUNGAR

The evidence of hungar for color manifested itself first in the vogue for enameled bedroom furniture. These pieces were developed first in white, then in ivory, soft gray, green and blue and on through the range of neutral tints.

Then painted breakfast sets became popular as they offered such liberty in color selection. Porch furniture followed, and finally color invaded the living room.

Today the use of painted furniture in every part of the house is advocated by the best decorators. Painted furniture offers splendid opportunities for individuality in the choice of color and finish. Furniture in the natural wood may be purchased or the attic may be ransacked for discarded pieces, wanting only a bit of mending and an application of color to come to life.

An opportunity to see how easily this may be done, will be afforded by a demonstration of painting at the Burpee Furniture Store on Wednesday and Thursday.

Million Feet of Lumber One Consignment For Kennebec Bridge.

One million feet of western fir lumber to be used in the construction of the Kennebec bridge is bound for Bath on the steamer Hermattan now due to arrive there. The craft took on her cargo at Seattle and came through the Panama canal.

This lumber is for the Foundation Co. and will be one of if not the largest shipments of lumber to ever arrive at this port in one cargo. It will be discharged at the Bath Iron Works immediately upon the arrival of the steamer.

Great quantities of gravel are heaped on the Maine Central wharf and are being taken out to the caissons in the river which are located on the pier sites.

The error was due to the last hour haste of compositors and proof readers before going to press and in some slight degree to the interesting but original handwriting of State Committeeman Ensign Otis, who wrote the "copy" and who frankly shoulders his share of the responsibility.

This correction may come too late to clear up doubts of those who were planning to attend the day-time speeches in the outside towns, but it is hoped that it will sufficiently announce that Messrs. McLean and Starbird are to be at the Department of Commerce Agents Find City Thrifty, Enterprising, Optimistic.

Charles E. Artman, director of field work for the New England survey, conducted by the Department of Commerce, and Frances E. Simmons, senior investigating assistant, who is acting as a special agent with Mr. Artman, have been in Rockland the past two days.

By means of interviews Messrs. Artman and Simmons are seeking to define the various trading centers in New England, and the general extent and characteristics of travel in the various localities.

Their researches are being conducted in co-operation with the New England Council, which includes members from Maine, representing industrial and commercial interests. The study of the New England markets will form the basis of a government report which will probably appear next spring.

The nature and extent of the New England markets, and the scope and character of the New England industries figure in the investigation. From here the Department of Commerce agents go up river, then to Eastport, thence to Aroostook County.

"We found Rockland one of the most enterprising cities we have struck," said Mr. Artman. "It is thriving and active, and there is a spirit of progressiveness and optimism."

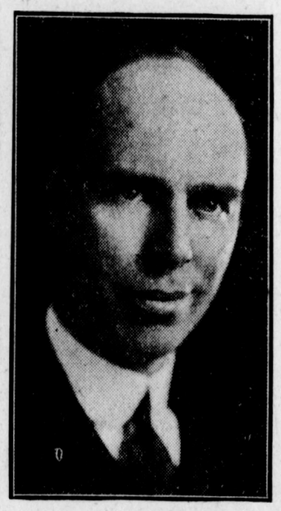
G. O. P. CAMPAIGN IS OPEN

Governor Brewster and Congressman White Address Splendid Meetings All Over the County, Advertising Their Wares and Never Descending To Abuse or Ridicule—Tax Reduction Cited As Greatest Contribution to Farm Relief—Col. Robbins Entertains the Campaigners At His Home.

Few political candidates have ever made their entry into Knox County under more favorable circumstances than did Gov. Ralph O. Brewster and Congressman Wallace H. White, Jr. Saturday. The waning summer offered a perfect day, with skies of blue and an atmosphere so deliciously cool and crisp that it was a privilege to be out in the open.

Across the country the caravan sped, never exceeding the speed laws which the administration is required to enforce, and being, in consequence, just a trifle behind schedule the entire day. The audiences were quite content to wait, however, and the outstanding feature of this whirlwind campaign was the enthusiasm with which the speakers were received and the undivided attention which was given to every word they uttered. The Governor and Congressman did not hesitate to express their satisfaction over this phase of the day's proceedings.



Gov. Ralph O. Brewster

The Republican orators and other candidates mobilized in front of the Warren Postoffice at 9.30 a. m., met there by a corps of the diligent workers who have done so much to make Warren a loyal Republican town in recent years.

The candidates who made the tour of Southern Knox were Gov. Brewster, Congressman White, Zelma M. Dwinal, Frank F. Harding, L. R. Campbell, Albert Winslow and Charles L. Veazie of the county ticket, and George L. St. Clair, Samuel E. Norwood and Robert Thurston of the legislative ticket. Gov Brewster was accompanied by his wife, who was also introduced to the audiences.

The coming of the party to the several communities was announced by three trumpeters, Clarence Fish, Harold Wilson and Martin Richards.

Mr. Dwinal, candidate for State Senator, presided over the outdoor meetings in his capacity as county chairman.

Gov. Brewster's Question

Gov. Brewster told his Warren audience that tax reduction was the most practical form of farm relief and that it was the purpose of the Republican party and administration to bring that about. "Will you get it from the party dedicated to that purpose, or those who say that it is impossible?" he asked. In this connection he referred briefly to his administration's million dollar surplus "which is giving our friends so much concern," and which is available for reduction of taxation on the farms and the industries.

Gov. Brewster cautioned against neglecting the marvelous heritage we enjoy as a State. "We have not let our light so shine that the world can realize our treasures."

The report that Maine's abandoned farms are increasing was likened by the speaker to the report of Mark Twain's death, which the famous humorist himself said was "grossly exaggerated." "If the agriculture of Maine is disappearing," he asked, "why has there been an increase of 25 per cent in the cultivated farms of Maine in the last five years?"

"We are optimists for the future of Maine. Have you ever stopped to think what is going to happen down here in Knox and Lincoln Counties when you move off the island you have occupied for three centuries and become annexed to the mainland through the medium of the Kennebec Bridge?

"We have been staggered in this country by the enormous increase of crime since the war, and have come to realize that executive clemency should be exercised only in the most extraordinary cases. In this State we have seen our prison population decline 20 per cent, and find in that fact a tribute to the quality of our citizenship and an increasing respect for the law."

Where Administration Stands

Summing up the situation so far as it concerns the Republican party in this campaign Gov. Brewster said that the administration stands—

"First, for prudent economy, offering tax relief.

"Second, for the continued development of Maine's natural resources.

"Third, for that honest and earnest enforcement of the laws, which is the cement of our civilization."

Congressman White, declaring that he had heard no essential criticism of the State or National administrations, told the story of the Lewiston man who had earned the title of "Hard Times," because no matter what happened he was forever declaring that times were hard.

One morning he emerged from a restaurant where some kind person had treated him to a steaming plate of beans, a pot of hot coffee and a plate of doughnuts.

Yet the man came forth lamenting that times were hard. "They're making the doughnut holes larger and the rims smaller," was his cry.

"Gov. Brewster and I are optimists," declared the Second District representative. "We think we are living in a great age, and facing a great future. In this State we are prospering in a material way. Our schools, our colleges and churches are exercising their beneficent influence and the people are enjoying richer and fuller lives than ever before. We have seen in the last year the greatest industrial activity we ever saw, and it tells a story of unmatched prosperity. Because of these things we ask your continued approval."

Mrs. Eva C. Mason of Dover-Foxcroft, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee told in an easy but forceful manner what was being done in organizing the women, and on the whirlwind tours.

Bedecked with flags and Brewster banners, which had meantime been affixed to the automobiles by Clerk of Courts Milton M. Griffin, the procession next headed for Friendship, where a meeting was held in front of A. G. Pottle's store.

Favors Fishing School

Congressman White told of the opportunity he had to study the fisheries situation in Alaska, during his visit there last year as member of a government commission.

"We often think that these gifts of nature are inexhaustible," said the speaker, "but instead it is a matter of serious concern. Between New York State and the Canadian border there were formerly 28 streams which contained Atlantic salmon; today there is only one.

Congressman White believed there should be some opportunity for young men to obtain a technical education on the fisheries question. "We have been furnishing them with the chance to study the forests, agriculture, and other useful pursuits," said he, "why not inform them as to the heritage of our seas?"

"The knocker and pessimist have made no contribution to material happiness. It may be that we have fewer sheep, but we have more poultry and more poultry products; we may have fewer oxen, but we have more tractors on the farms. We may have fewer horses, but we have more autos. This only goes to show that there is a constant shifting going on."

Mrs. Mason addressing the women in the audience said: "We have been put on a fifty-fifty basis and we must be on our job, and not get left. It has been said that the women would soon lose interest in politics after they got the ballot, but we must be as good sports as the men and show what we're made of."

Declaring that no intelligent American wants to buy "a pig in a poke," Gov. Brewster said the people were entitled to an accounting of what the administration was doing. He said that while agriculture values have been declinging in the South and West that there has been a steady and healthy growth in Maine, and that more people are coming in to share its privileges. "The Kennebec Bridge," he asserted, means the doubling and trebling of values, and it is going to be completed within the next year.

Commenting upon civic conditions he said that not a single case of homicide had been reported in Maine the present year.

"Your Savings And Mine"

In Thomaston Congressman White told of the transportation and building marvels which have been achieved in this country the past year, and

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had to live my life again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

MY LIFE IS LIKE THE SUMMER ROSE

My life is like the summer rose
That opens to the morning sky,
But, ere the shades of evening close,
Is scattered on the ground—to die!
Yet on the rose's humble bed
The sweetest dews of night are shed,
As if she wept the waste to see,—
But none shall weep a tear for me!

My life is like the autumn leaf
That trembles in the moon's pale ray;
Its hold is frail,—its date is brief,
Restless,—and soon to pass away!
Yet, ere that leaf shall fall and fade,
The parent tree will mourn its shade,
The winds bewail the leafless tree,—
But none shall breathe a sigh for me!

My life is like the prints, which feet
Have left on Tampa's desert strand;
Soon as the rising tide shall beat,
All trace will vanish from the sand;
Yet, as if grieving to efface
All vestige of the human race,
On that lone shore loud moans the sea,—
But none, alas! shall mourn for me!

SENATOR FERNALD

The death of United States Senator Bert M. Fernald loses to the State of Maine the services of a citizen of highest type. In public office as Governor and as a member of the upper house at Washington he exhibited in devotion to duty qualities of head and heart that won him a conspicuous place in the affections of our people. On the personal side he was gifted with those characteristics that endear men of action to one another and win the following of the masses. Staunch in his adherence to the principles of his party, he bore none the less the regard of his opponents because of his steadfast honesty and a straightforwardness in all his dealings. No man in public or private Washington life was better liked by his fellow Senators. It had been his purpose to take part in the present campaign, where he would everywhere have been welcomed, for he was a royal figure on the stump, a born story-teller and convincing speaker. Those of us who had known him for many years and spoken of him and to him as "Bert" bid good-bye to a staunch friend.

ADDRESSING THE VOTERS

Those who read the story told upon another page of Saturday's visit to Knox County of Governor Brewster and Congressman White, as well as the large groups of citizens who at the several meetings listened to the message brought by those distinguished gentlemen, will not need to have emphasized in particular two facts, namely that these officials have a clear knowledge of the questions with which their respective offices have to deal, and that the Republicans of the county are resolved that as candidates for re-election each shall receive a loyal party support. That in the general relaxation of political activity which has come to be characteristic of "off years" the brief meetings in the several towns should have been marked by so large attendance argues a prevailing degree of interest upon the part of the voters which may be counted upon to exhibit itself in no uncertain fashion in the election of Sept. 13.

The three points upon which Governor Brewster rests his campaign—tax reduction, the continued development of Maine's natural resources, and honest enforcement of the laws—make an appeal which the average citizen finds it in his heart warmly to respond to. With a surplus of a million dollars in its treasury, with the greatly accelerated vacation travel into the inviting regions of Maine, the active policies of the Governor's administration have received a demonstration which logically calls for their continuance through a second term. We do not for a moment doubt that the voters of the State are to register their endorsement of this successful administration through the practical instrumentality of the ballot-box.

And another thing which we believe the voters appreciated. Neither speaker figured in the role of pessimist or sought to weight his arguments with abuse of his opponents. It is a style of campaigning once common but now happily passing away. Nowadays men are convinced by argument and candid statements. The day of the indiscriminate knocker in public affairs, the same as it is in business and private matters, has given way to things which make for personal, for State and for National progress and prosperity.

DEMOCRATS TONIGHT

It is this Tuesday evening at the Arcade that Hon. Ernest L. McLean, candidate for Governor, and Charles M. Starbright, candidate for Congress from the Second Maine District, are to speak upon the issues of the present campaign from the viewpoint of the Democratic party.

The Courier-Gazette regrets that in its Saturday issue an advertisement of this meeting, as well as a series of meetings throughout the county to be addressed by the same gentlemen, should have announced the date as "Friday, August 24." The copy for the advertisement was brought into the office by State Committeeman Ensign Otis just as the paper, in order to catch the Saturday mails, was hurrying to press; and because of the lateness of the hour it had to be declined, but upon urgent request the forms were held and the matter rushed into type. This necessary haste on the part of the mechanical department, combined with a certain obscurity in the penmanship of Mr. Otis who prepared the advertisement, is the natural explanation of a mistake which is mutually regretted.

Gov. Brewster spoke of the enormous increase in governmental expenditures in recent years, and declared that it was time to call a halt, unless "we are going to become a socialistic nation." He referred to Maine's million-dollar surplus as "built up by your savings and mine."

When the whirlwind tourists again turned toward the southern part of the county, the forces were divided. Congressman White going to Long Cove to address the granite workers, while Gov. Brewser proceeded to Tenant's Harbor.

Mingling with the large group of citizens which gathered in front of W. E. Sheerer's store was Gen. Herbert M. Lord, director of the Bureau of the Budget. Catching sight of him Gov. Brewster told his audience that much of the credit for governmental economy was due to this distinguished son of Maine; told how Gen. Lord had come from Washington, by invitation, to address the Maine Legislature and how again he had been invited by the Governors' Conference to tell Maine how it could follow in the footsteps of the national administration in the way of retrenchment. "If Gen. Lord were not on his vacation," said Gov. Brewster "I should insist that he do the talking today instead of me."

Gov. Brewster said here that the time has come for the disciples of Thomas Jefferson to call a halt in governmental extravagance, and that Maine has sought to be the pioneer in this movement.

"You have heard much about farm relief," he said. "We come with the proposition that the greatest contribution to it is tax reduction.

"That is our prescription. And I mean constructive tax reduction by bringing more people to Maine to share in our burdens. Instead of renting space on Fifth Avenue to display our wares, let's bring the people here to see them. Pessimism will soon sail away; what we need is the sunshine of optimism. And I am not building merely upon words when I say that."

In Northern Knox

The Governor and Congressman were not scheduled to speak in South Thomaston that hour being intended for recreation and lunch, but quite a number of the townspeople gathered around Wessaweskeag Inn, and the candidates expressed their pleasure at seeing them.

Dinner was served at the Inn to the 28 members of the whirlwind tour. Everything was piping hot, and was served with a promptness that surprised the visitors. That they were pleased with the shore dinner goes without saying.

Following the very excellent dinner at Wessaweskeag Inn the party at once proceeded to Union Common where a crowd of over 150 persons was assembled, this number being augmented as the exercises continued. Dr. H. H. Plumer called the meeting to order and introduced County Chairman Dwinal. Gov. Brewster was greeted with marked applause and his remarks were several times interrupted by enthusiastic outbursts. The several candidates when presented were likewise given a generous hand upon introduction. An especial "second glad hand" was given the Governor upon his departure when Chairman Plumer stated that it was largely through the executive's interest that Union's new road was made possible.

The handsome central square in front of the Washington post office had been specially groomed for the occasion and provided an ideal spot for the speaking. About 50 persons were on hand when L. M. Stevens, chairman of the town committee, introduced the Governor. There were many women in the group and Mrs. Mason was given a fine greeting when telling of the work of the women of Maine.

Appleton as usual turned out a fine delegation and received all the speakers with marked cordiality. The session was held in the square with 70 hearers.

The Hope meeting was held at the Corners with an attendance of about 50 who listened to the several speakers with marked interest. Just outside of Hope on a turn in the fine road a motorcycle accident held the party for several minutes. A cycle of out-of-state registry plunged over an embankment and threw its occupants, two men and a woman, to the ground. This happened just before the Brewster party's arrival. The men were somewhat bruised but not seriously hurt. The woman, who refused to give her name, was dazed and appeared to be in distress, so was taken to Camden in Deputy Sheriff Orbeton's machine.

The Camden meeting was held in front of the Opera House called by Mr. Dwinal with a group of 150 assembled which was doubled before the session concluded. The meeting was open with the Governor, who is a Camden favorite, receiving a fine welcome.

In Rockport, Chairman L. True Spear called the session in front of the post office with fully 150 persons present. Here too all of the speakers were well received. At the conclusion of the meeting the party, augmented by a number of prominent Republicans from Camden, Rockport and Rockland, enjoyed a buffet luncheon at Undercliffe, the palatial home of Col. E. A. Robbins in Camden.

The wind-up meeting in the Arcade at night found a good-sized audience listening with keen interest to the two speakers. Judge Edward K. Gould presided in his customary felicitous manner, and in addition to presenting the speakers introduced those of the county and representative candidates who were present. All of them were given a most cordial "hand."

"Two years ago," said Judge Gould, "we had a governor we didn't know. We know him now, and know that he stands for the sentiments in which you and I believe—the honest administration of the laws.

"We gave Congressman White a splendid vote two years ago, and we are going to do it again. We like the way he does things out in Washington. We like our present governor because he has given us the Kennebec Bridge, and opened to us the avenue of success and the opportunity to broaden out in a way we have never dreamed of."

The welcome which Congressman White received did not belie the words of the chairman.

"You have never had a governor who more fully appreciated Maine's problems," he said. "He has earned for Maine new influence in the councils of the States."

The Congressman painted a graphic picture of the unwholesome conditions which confronted this nation at the close of the war, when five million men were out of work. Out of this chaos we have brought a substantial order. We have reduced the national debt at the rate of a billion dollars a year and reduced the interest at the rate of $200,000,000 a year. On three different occasions we have reduced the taxes laid upon the people, including the so-called nuisance taxes.

Debt Adjustment Intricate

"One of the big problems of the administration has been to work out the intricate matter of debt adjustment. There were those who felt that the debts of the other nations should be cancelled. Others felt that we should collect to the last dollar and to the last penny of interest. The administration has selected wisely the middle course, and there will be paid into the United States Treasury more than $22,000,000,000.

"We have increased the pensions of the men who served under Lincoln and have liberalized provisions for those who fought in the World War. We have brought about a new appreciation between those who employ labor and those who work. The great farm problem has not so directly concerned Maine. Agriculture was deflated after the war as the result of the great surplus which was on hand. Another problem is that of centralized government, which has been encroaching upon the rights of the States and the people."

The audience rose and cheered when Gov. Brewster was presented. He said in part:

"We are making this campaign simply to present our record and the projects which we propose. We have been staggered by the enormous increase in governmental expenditures. Governmental units now require $11,000,000,000, and if this pace continues we shall have been transformed from an individualistic system into a Socialistic state."

The Governor again paid tribute to Gen. Lord, and said that as the result of inaugurating a similar system here in Maine it has been possible to build up a surplus of $1,00,0000 in cash. This money has been set aside for debt reduction, $957,000 to be exact, and it is immaterial whether you call it a reserve or surplus.

"Development is a name with which to conjure in recent days. America is just learning how to play, and play outdoors. We are beginning to wonder if the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow is not located under the name of recreational opportunity such as Maine presents.

"The agriculture of Maine can scarcely be called decadent when Knox County is able to show an increase of 25 per cent in farms in the past five years, and when we can produce 304 bushels of potatoes to the acre in comparison with 123 bushels in other States. Agricultural revolution is quietly coming to pass in Maine.

"We make no claims to infallability or perfection," said Gov. Brewster in closing. "From the record of our party and the pledges of the present platform, written by my predecessor the voters may know what to expect by a continuance of the Republican administration."

Rockland 11, Belfast 4

Last Friday night the Belfast team came to Rockland and defeated the Texacos 11 to 4. Saturday the Texacos went to Belfast and returned the compliment.

Trainor who had held Camden to a solitary hit two nights before was evidently not in form for a continuance of his good work, for the Texacos hit the ball all over the lot and it landed generally in "the shade of the old apple tree." When the tired fielders were finally released from their labors of that first inning the Texacos had encircled on the bases six times, accumulating two more runs than Belfast was able to make in the entire game.

Having arrived at a tie in the league standing after a season fraught with trials and tribulations Belfast was naturally anxious to step into the lead, and a big crowd was on hand to see the trick turned, but Rockland's unexpected batting carnival made it a case of hope deferred.

Underhill made his initial appearance at third base, having succeeded Keville, who, while turning in many hits during his brief stay here, was not sufficiently fleet of foot and strong of arm. Underhill had only one fielding chance, but turned in a triple and a double with the stick.

Rising had the Belfast boys eating out of his hand most of the game. Fitzpatrick succeeded Trainor, and did better, but it was not written on the cards that Rockland should be turned back that day.

Togus 6, Rockland 3

A mammoth crowd of baseball fans saw Rockland defeated at Togus Sunday. The visitors played an errorless game but were weak with the stick. The Kennebec Journal tells the story of the game thus:

* * * *

In a pitcher's battle Sunday Clancy had the best of the argument over Lacey and Togus won over Rockland, 6 to 3. It was an excellent game and many spectacular plays pleased the fans. Murphy played a good game in center. Small made a wonderful play on a fast grounder by getting his man. Clancy helped with a double and a home run and Leo Beaudoin hit for 1.000. For the visitors Campbell made a fine catch and Cole, Reed and Wotton played a fine game.

Togus got their first runs when Clancy was passed, McGowan and Beaudoin singled and Clancy and McGowan scored on the double of Kiley, and he and Beaudoin scored on the hit of Reed to right center. They got two more in the seventh when Small was passed. Paiement sacrificed, Murphy was thrown out by Cole and Clancy drove the ball to deep center for a home run.

The visitors scored their first when Cole doubled to right, Weston was thrown out by Paiement and Campbell by Kiley, Cole scoring. A fly to Clancy retired Masciadri. In the seventh they got two more when Campbell hit to right, Masciadri grounded to first, Reed hit, scoring Campbell, Wotton was thrown out by Kiley, Lacey hit to right scoring Reed, Chamard hit to Small who tried for Lacey but Paiement dropped the ball, Underhill was out Clancy to McGowan. The visitors made a hard fight in the ninth but resulted in Reed being out Small to McGowan, Aube batting for Wotton was passed, Lacey doubled to left, and Chamard and Underhill fanned.

Belfast 8, Camden 6

There was a slugging bee on the Belfast ground last night and Belfast had enough the better of it to win by the above score. Paiement and Marr each hit for a total of seven bases, the former having a batting average of 1000 in four times up. Pat French was also hitting in fine form. The two teams hit for a total of 37 bases.

Camden did not get a-going until the fourth inning, when successive doubles by Marr and O'Connell netted a score. From that time on the visitors had the better of the argument.

Carr gave place to Lanky Jordan near the end of the third inning. Lanky got a hot reception in the fourth, after which the Frenchies failed to score.

Easy For Rockland

A makeshift outfit representing (or misrepresenting) Bangor-Brewer of the Maine State League, was defeated by Rockland 10 to 2 at Community Park last night. Some of the sarcasm which the Bangor newspapers vented on Rockland, when that team was defeated in South Brewer last week, might well be applied to the aggregation which slunk back to Bangor last night with its tail between its legs.

Aube pitched until it became apparent that it was like taking candy from a kid, after which Weston went in, that "Husky" might save his arm for a real team.

Rockland made seven runs in the third inning, finding Bernard for three singles, a double, a triple, a home run and two bases on balls. The circuit clout was made by Weston, and the ball went so far that the Boy Scouts have been offered a reward for finding it.

The grounds will be fumigated before tomorrow night's league game between Rockland and Belfast, lest there remain any of the germs of the Bangor-Brewer type.

The summary:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Rockland	0	1	7	0	0	2	0	x	—10
Bangor-Brewer	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	— 2

Base hits, Rockland 10, Bangor-Brewer 4. Errors, Rockland 2, Bangor-Brewer 4.

"ON MY SET"

The ether fairly sizzled with good stuff Saturday night and in the midst of it I tagged two new stations. One was WENR of Chicago and the other gave the signal letters WWRL of Woodside, Long Island. I do not find it listed in any of my station lists, but it was coming in plainly and there was no mistaking the announcement as to the station letters.—I heard WREO of Lansing, Mich. for the first time in a long while, and you can almost guess what was coming from it. Lest you can't I will say that it was "On the Riviera." WTAM of Cleveland was also in the game.

To understand how really good the radio can be one should have listened to the violin playing and other music which came through WJZ Sunday night.—At 10 p. m. I heard a sermon and knew that it must be coming from a Western station. It was WORD of Batavia, Ill., operated by the People's Pulpit Association. The service came in with much more volume than I have ever been able to get from the New England stations on a Sunday.—Three Chicago stations were on my Sunday night list, WBBM, WSBC and WOK. The organ concert on WBBM was exceptionally good.—WFBH was another good station that night.

VISITING OLD HOME

Capt. A. E. Wingfield Tells of Conditions In One Corner of England.

Capt. Richard K. Snow is in receipt of the following interesting letter from Capt. Arthur E. Wingfield, who is visiting his old home in England.

* * * *

Winchcombe, Cheltenham,
Gloucester, England, Aug. 7.

I arrived in Liverpool on the morning of the third, got to my sister's house at about 8 p. m. She was looking for me as I wrote her that I would get to England about the 4th, that being my 75th birthday. I found her to be an exceedingly nice looking woman, well preserved for her age, which is 70. Her scholars are on their vacation. She lives entirely alone, has a woman come in daily to do her housework, for which she pays her 6 shillings per week. The house she lives in is several hundred years old, built very heavily of stone, in fact all the houses are, and look as though they were built to stand a seige. I doubt if there have been any built the last 200 years. They are very interesting to look at, but they do not have the comfort or accommodations that we have in our homes.

I go to bed at night with a candle for a light. The weather has been the best, and all the farms look nice. The hedges that divide the fields, are kept trimmed. The two long streets of the village are swept every morning and every thing is kept scrupulously clean. The dialect is as I have told you very peculiar: "If thee bist agwain, I beant agwain". Quite a few Americans come here who are fond of antiques. One of the wives of Henry VIII was buried in the Abbey here. Many of the stones on the graves date back several hundred years, and it is hard to decipher the dates and very peculiar epitaphs that are cut into them. Many of the buildings are entirely covered with ivy, which seems to grow luxuriously everywhere.

There are some cars here, but of an entirely different type from ours. They are smaller, open, and look cheap in comparison with ours, no doubt. In the large cities they have more elaborate ones. Many articles of food are dearer than ours, and there is no ice at all here. There are movies, twice a week. I suppose in the cities everything is very different. I read that 90 percent of the films used in England are from the United States. The people here ask all kind of questions about the States and all seem to wish that they could go there. The coal strike is interfering, trains are curtailed and factories working on half time for the lack of fuel. Much of the coal they are getting now comes from the States, and Germany.

Next week my sister and I are going to the village where we were born. She has kept in touch with all our relatives, but I have not and it was over 60 years ago that I left there, so everything and everybody, will be changed to me. If I like the place and the people, I will stay awhile, for it must be very interesting to visit the place where I played marbles and first went to school as a child, and I doubt if the place is much changed from that time.

All kinds of liquors, are sold, with but little restriction as to hours, but I see no drunkenness. Ale and beer are 6 cents per bottle, whiskey, wines about 10 to 12 shillings. During church hours Sunday, the public houses are closed. One of them is a wonderfully quaint old building on the corner of the street, with an old sign cut into it. "The Corner Cupboard", the people living there told me, has been in their family hundreds of years, and they seem to feel highly honored for a well dressed man from America to visit them. The sun has been out ever since I have been here with a temperature of about 70 degrees. There is a nice garden attached to this house so we have all kinds of small fruits. My sister has no one to help her in her school; she teaches the usual things that children should know, including French, and music. I should think that she is a very highly educated lady. She has enough to live on comfortably, and, of course, I am very pleased to know that she is so well situated.

A. E. Wingfield.

FERNALD IS DEAD

Beloved Maine Senator Victim of Intestional Poisoning.

Hon. Bert M. Fernald, United States Senator from Maine, died at his home in West Poland yesterday from intestinal poisoning. The funeral will be held there Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Bert M. Fernald, United States Senator from Maine since 1917, had been a leading figure in Maine political life for 30 years. He was a packer of canned goods and an extensive farmer. He was strongly opposed to the League of Nations and to the World Court, insofar as he believed it connected with the League.

He was a member of the Maine House of Representatives in 1897, served in the Maine Senate from 1889 to 1901. He was Governor of the State in 1909 and 1910.

His first election to the United States Senate was on Sept. 11, 1916, to succeed Edwin C. Burleigh, deceased. He was re-elected Sept. 9, 1918 and Sept. 8, 1924.

He was chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and a member of the Committee on Commerce, Interstate Commerce and Pensions.

During his administration as Governor, the State House at Augusta was remodeled at a cost of $300,000, the job being done entirely within the appropriation made by the State, and a Conservation Commission was established for preserving the forests and waterways, this being the first of the kind in the State.

The Camden Grange Festival and Fair is on today and tomorrow at Camden Opera House. Dance tomorrow night with Marston's Music.

Rev. J. S. Pendleton of Bangor who presided over the United Baptist Convention in this city, has been elected vice president of the New England Baptist Conference.

The foundation has been prepared for the five-door garage which the Camden & Rockland Water Co. will build at the rear of its office on Lindsey street. It will be a brick structure and L. E. Upham of Rockport will be in charge of the construction.

Mrs. Edith E. Carver, widow of Chester M. Carver, formerly of Rockland, died in Malden, Mass., Saturday. Mrs. Carver was born in Boston, Aug. 13, 1855. Funeral services were held from the home of her son, Grover C. Carver in Malden yesterday.

Arthur Mulvaney of Bangor, graduate of the University of Maine, has been selected to coach at Edward Little high school of Auburn the coming year. Mulvaney, who has been out of college four years was rated by many as an All-Maine back during his collegiate career. He is well known in this city.

The New Jersey Radio Boys, who have been summering at Camp Wapello, Friendship, will appear at the Strand Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday evenings as a special attraction, in connection with the feature picture "The Prairie Wife." Regular prices.—adv.

FAMOUS PREACHERS

Will Address Great Conference Beginning at Baptist Church Next Monday.

These are busy days for the First Baptist Church with the preparations involved in the entertainment of the great conference beginning next Monday evening, when two distinguished preachers will be visitors in this city.

London and Boston will shake hands in Rockland when Dr. H. Tydeman Chilvers of London and Dr. J. C. Massee of Tremont Temple take the platform Monday night. These men will symbolize international good will between the two great English speaking nations and the larger unity of Christians of every nation.

The conference seeks to avoid denominationalism, stressing rather the great common faith and task of all followers of Christ. The services will be of unusual interest to the general public for many reasons. Two preachers as famous as these men are seldom if ever heard from a Maine platform at the same time, and many summer visitors and vacationing churchmen are certain to be in attendance upon the services, and will have some part in the conference.

Dr. Chilvers arrived in America in July and has been filling engagements in the West. Rockland will be his last engagement but one before he sails Sept. 7, for England. Dr. Massee is just beginning a ten weeks tour of the northern states in the interest of a nationwide movement of evangelism.

The church vestries will provide tables and coffee for auto parties from out of town in attendance upon the services for the day. Services will be held for five evenings beginning Monday night Aug. 30 and for four afternoons at 2.30, beginning Tuesday afternoon. Special music will be given at each session of the conference.

Last Saturday forenoon a mass meeting of all the Girl Scout Troops was held at the Universalist Church, the program consisted of songs, games and inter-troop competitions. Mrs. William Ellingwood, commissioner, and Miss Kathleen Snow, deputy commissioner, were among those present. The winners of the competitions were as follows: Troop song—1st Troop III, Bluebonnet, Capt. Jackson, 20 points; 2nd, Troop V, Forget-me-not, Capt. Fickett, 10 points; 3rd, Troop IV, Goldenrod, Capt. Stanley, 5 points. Troop Cheer—1st, Troop III, 10 points; 2nd, Troop V, 5 points.

Sweeping Race—Won by Troop V, 5 points.

Pony Race—Won by Troop III, 5 points.

Shoe Race—Won by Troop V, 5 points.

Tail Race—Won by Troop III, 5 points.

Troop V was awarded 5 points for an original stunt.

Final Scores: 1st Troop III, 40 points; 2nd Troop V, 30 points, 3rd, Troop IV, 5 points.

High School students who wish to take make-up examinations should call at the High School building on or before Aug. 28.

Delicious Biscuits

For really good hot biscuits, biscuits of the finest, try the following very popular and successful recipe:

Take one quart of flour, one small teaspoonful of Arm & Hammer Brand or Cow Brand Baking Soda, and one teaspoonful of salt, sift thoroughly together, then rub in two heaping teaspoonfuls of lard or butter and add sufficient sour milk or buttermilk to make a soft dough just stiff enough to handle with the floured hands. Roll out the dough and cut out the biscuits. Have the oven and pans hot and bake immediately.

Baking Soda is not only a great aid in the kitchen—it is useful every day in many ways all over the house. Both ARM & HAMMER BRAND and COW BRAND Baking Soda are made by Church & Dwight Co., Inc., and both are the same—pure bicarbonate of soda with a hundred helpful uses. He Had a Very Good Memory

By JACK WOODFORD

Things were at a pretty pass at the State Street National bank.

Franklin Heath, the president, and Ed Connors, head of a local detective agency, sat discussing the situation.

"It's plain up to you, Ed," reminded the president impatiently.

Connor's face colored. Finally the operative whirled about and addressed the president:

"Last night I personally watched your paying teller, Hargraves, balance his currency—it was O. K. I watched every move he made between his cage and the vault—nothing could possibly have been taken out of it; yet, he is one hundred dollars short again today! Five times in the last month that has happened—and the worst part of it is that it only has once more to happen and then my chances of ever solving the mystery here are gone forever."

"What makes you think it will not happen more than six times?"

"Just this: your bank has not been the only one victimized. For the past year reports have been coming in showing that someone is making a systematic cleanup. It is always the paying teller's cage they strike at, and never for over a hundred at a time. The teller finds himself short six different times, always within a period of thirty days or less. After the sixth hundred has vanished the losses stop.

They were interrupted at this juncture by a polite tap upon the door.

"Come in," called President Heath. A tall, slim, blue-eyed youth stepped quietly into the room.

"I beg your pardon," began Hargraves politely. "If you are busy—I thought that you were alone in here, else—"

"What is it in reference to, Hargraves?" prompted the president.

"Why the strange disappearance of currency from my cage—"

"You may speak freely; Mr. Connors here is as anxious to solve the mystery as you or I."

"I had thought that perhaps you would discuss the matter alone with me, Mr. Heath," replied Hargraves.

"The matter of reward for the apprehension of the thief and the showing up of his methods; you see, naturally, the officer here would expect . . ."

"Listen here, son," broke in Connors, "if you nail this bird, I'll not only pass the reward on to you—and altogether I think it approximates some four thousand dollars—but I'll add a hundred of my own."

"And I'll do better than that. If you are smart enough to catch the man who's been doing this thing and discover his methods, I'll not only guarantee you a good raise, but promise you the first thing in the line of advancement that opens up around here." The clerk's face brightened.

"I hope you gentlemen won't think me wholly mercenary; but you see, I was thinking of getting married and . . . well—to make a long story short, I have already caught the thief!"

"There wasn't anything hard about it," went on Hargraves, apologetically; "you see, I have an exceptionally good memory. If Mr. Connors will stand by my window for the first hour or so, after we open tomorrow, I'm sure the man will come in." The next morning, at a quarter of eleven, Connors, noting the movement of the hand to hair by Hargraves, the movement which, by prearrangement had been agreed upon as a signal, quietly walked up and snapped a bracelet upon the man's wrist as he received the money for a check he had just cashed. Another clerk relieved Hargraves, and they all adjourned to the president's office.

The prisoner, one Mr. Henry W. Southmore, addressed the president in an excess of purple rage.

"Mr. Heath, what the devil does this mean?" A little puzzled, Mr. Heath turned to the thoroughly confident Hargraves.

"Surely there must be some mistake; why, I opened this man's account here myself. He was well recommended; our dealings with him have been highly satisfactory—what evidence have you or your contentions?" Young Hargraves looked down at the check which he held in his hand.

"You just lay this check in front of you on your desk and watch it disappear," he smiled. The detective and the banker eyed the clerk as though he were demented.

"Will you please explain yourself," ordered the banker ominously.

"Sure," agreed Hargraves easily. "I have an excellent memory. The first time I ran my checks on the adding machine, after the first hundred shortage, I thought that I had missed one of this man's checks. The second time I got the notion that I had lost one of his checks. I decided that my memory couldn't have played me false two times in succession, and when he came the next time I laid his check aside to be sure that I would remember it. When I went to get it, in the afternoon at closing time, there was no check there—merely a blank piece of paper. Not only had the writing upon it vanished, but even in forming the printed check itself, he used sympathetic ink. It's a darn shame to spoil such a beautiful scheme, but I want to get married pretty bad."

"Don't forget to take his fountain pen as evidence," reminded Hargraves with a grin, "and hustle along the reward check—remember, I have an excellent memory."

In the Kitchen with 6 Famous Cooks

FIVE WAYS TO PREPARE CHICKEN

These Are Favorite Recipes of Four Famous Cooks

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of unusual cooking articles contributed to this paper by six famous cooks.)

Chicken is a universal favorite. Very few folks can find it in their hearts to refuse a second helping of this appetizing fowl. Four famous cooks give tempting recipes for cooking it—fricassee, fried, broiled, stewed, and soup. There's variety enough for everyone!

MRS. SARAH TYSON RORER

Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer, the Philadelphia cooking expert, has a recipe for a delicious chicken corn soup.

"This is an excellent dish," she says. "With a salad, coffee, and a bit of ripe cheese it makes a wholesome meal."

Chicken Corn Soup

Her directions follow: Singe, draw, and cut up as for stewing a two year old hen. Put it in a kettle, and cover with three quarts of cold water. Bring to a boil, and cook until tender—about two hours.

Remove chicken, skim the broth, and put it back on the burner. Add two medium sized onions chopped, a teaspoon of salt, dash of pepper, and a box of noodles. Add one pint of canned or fresh cut-off corn. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Add the chicken cut into small pieces. When hot, serve. If too thick, add milk to thin.

Delicious Fricassee

For chicken fricassee, made according to the recipe of Mrs. Kate B. Vaughn, Los Angeles cooking expert, select a young chicken, weighing about 3½ pounds. Season pieces of chicken with salt and pepper, dredge with flour, and fry in hot fat until brown. Place in casserole, add water and cook in hot oven, 350 degrees F. for one hour. Keep the cover on the casserole.

As They Cook It "Out West"

Pacific Coast fried chicken is delicious. You have the word of Mrs. Belle DeGraf for that. Mrs. DeGraf is a domestic science counsellor in San Francisco.

For this dish cut one medium sized young chicken as for fricassee. Sprinkle each piece with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Heat four tablespoons butter or chicken fat in frying pan. Fry chicken until well browned. Cover with hot water. Add one tablespoon minced onion and cook until the chicken is tender, using a low flame. When chicken is done, remove to serving plate. If any liquid remains in pan, drain off in cup.

Put 2 tablespoons of butter in the pan. Add 2 tablespoons of flour. Mix until smooth, then add 2 cups of thin cream, or cream and liquid left to make 2 cups. Stir until creamy. Then add one tablespoon finely shredded green pepper, and ½ teaspoon salt. Simmer a few minutes, then pour around, not over the chicken.

To prepare the green pepper pour boiling water over it and let stand 10 minutes. Shred with scissors.

Two Southern Methods

Miss Rosa Michaelis, New Orleans domestic science specialist, comes from the south, where chicken is one of the most popular dishes. She gives two southern ways of preparing it.

For southern broiled chicken, she says, select a very young chicken. Clean, singe, and split it down the back. It will almost lie flat. Season with salt and pepper, and brush melted butter all over it. Have a broiler ready over a moderate fire. Place chicken in it, and let it broil slowly for a half hour or a little longer if the chicken is not so tender.

Turn the chicken once in a while to brown both sides. When done, place on a heated platter which has been garnished with sprigs of parsley or lettuce leaves. Pour melted butter over chicken, and serve hot.

With Brown Sauce

Chicken prepared with brown sauce is good served with rice, Miss Michaelis says. Here are the ingredients:

1 chicken
2 tablespoons lard
1 sprig each of thyme, parsley, and bay leaf
1 onion
2 tablespoons flour, salt and pepper to taste

Clean and cut chicken in small pieces. Season well with salt and pepper. Chop onion fine. Put lard into deep pot. When hot add onion and let brown. Add flour. Let this brown, and add chicken. Let simmer a few minutes with thyme, parsley, and bay leaf chopped fine. Stir often. When all is nicely brown, add 1½ pints boiling water. Stir until it begins to boil.

If necessary, add more salt and pepper. Cover and let simmer until tender (about an hour). The gizzard, liver, and heart may be cooked with sauce, and served with boiled rice.

No matter if the chicken is old or young, you can make it taste good if you choose one of these recipes.

New Toaster

It really pays to invest in a good toaster which lasts a life-time. Many hardware stores are displaying a new blue glazed toaster. It makes four evenly browned slices of toast at a time. It does not warp. Very handy too, for crisping breakfast cereals. Its handle is ever cool. It can be used with equally good results on oil, wood, coal, or gas stoves.

Qualities That Give Fern a Staple Value

Hawaii has an especially interesting species of fern which is so thickly covered with fine wool that it is gathered for stuffing pillows and even mattresses.

The columnar trunks of the tree fern of the tropics are frequently used for telephone poles and are so highly prized for upright supports in the construction of native huts that they are never left behind but carried on when the family moves as a valuable piece of household furniture. The fern stem is a well-known source of supply for the manufacture of rope and, since it is impervious to the action of water, it is in most cases superior to hemp. The great strength of the fern stalk is thought to come partly from the intricate network of dark strands within.

The Boston fern finds a ready commercial value in annually supplying millions of American homes with living ferns, while the dagger fern and the fancy fern of the northeastern part of the United States are gathered in enormous quantities in late summer and autumn and put in cold storage for winter use. When taken from the refrigerator months later, these fronds are still as fresh as when cut, and supply the ever-increasing commercial demand as a setting for bouquets of roses and other cut flowers.

Living Organism That Possesses No Shadow

At night a host of small creatures found safety in being divested of all pigment. In the course of evolution they had scraped off all the mercury from the back of their beings, becoming so transparent that the food which they swallowed was the most conspicuous and opaque part of their anatomy.

I could never quite escape from a decided Alice in Wonderland feeling when I looked into a dish of night plankton scooped from the surface. By keenest scrutiny I could perceive only the usual hosts of small fry, when, reaching down and lifting out what seemed only an area of clear water, there would materialize before my eyes a phyllosoma. This was a creature who cast no more shadow than the thinnest skim of clear ice. Yet it was a living animal, more than three inches long, with all the general organs which we ourselves possess—eyes, mouth, feet, stomach, nerves, muscles and a strong will to live.

Phyllosoma, or "leaf person," was the only name I could give them, although glass crab would be more appropriate, for they were the young of some lobsterlike crustacean and nothing is known of the intermediate stages.—"The Arcturus Adventure," by William Beebe.

"Dog Days"

What are the "Dog days?"

Begining on July 3 is the period supposed to be the hottest of the year, and which in ancient astronomy was associated with the rising of the Dog star.

Astronomy and religion being then closely connected, it was thought that the pestilences and drought of vegetation often occurring at the period in the heats of Italy could be warded off by propitiatory offerings to the god of the Star, and red dogs were, therefore, sometimes sacrificed.

From this old belief has survived our modern Dog days, though the term is often confused with the hot period during which dogs used to be supposed to be especially subject to madness.

The Automower

An American motorist touring this country pulled up at the roadside, where an aged countryman was mowing.

"Air yew a native?" asked the tourist, and, receiving an affirmative reply, added: "Then you don't know what this is?" He indicated his luxurious car.

"Aye, that be a motor car."

"No; it's an automobile."

"Aye," said the aged one. "An' you won't know wot this be." He pointed to his scythe.

"It's a scythe."

"You be wrong; it's an automowgrass."—London Tid-Bits.

Age of Figureheads

The age of sail was pregnant with strange belief and sentiment. To the imaginative and superstitious sailor the figurehead not only expressed the individuality of the craft, but it made her a living thing. To many, it was the guardian spirit in whose sacred care the inexplicable future lay. More than one old salt has refused to go to sea behind a naked bow, and when owners skimped in the matter of figurehead, shaggy eyebrows contracted and doleful predictions thundered forth as to the fate that awaited the unlucky craft.

Nature's Largest Plants

Scientists are now turning their attention to submarine farming, for the ocean beds contain rich pastures of vegetables. In the northern Pacific alone there are 2,000,000 square miles of unexplored sea bottom. As good to eat as any vegetable grown in the garden are the giant seaweeds covering 10,000 square miles off the Straits of Fuca. These kelps, as they are called, are the largest plants in the world, for the stem is often 100 feet long and carries a tuft of leaves 30 feet across.

World Really All Right

The boy who everybody said a few years ago was going to the dogs is today the man who says other boys are going there. Too many men forget which way they were once headed before they came to their senses and started anew.—Grit.

The average man is more interested in the prize ring than in the Ring of the Nibelungen. More women are eager to reduce physically than to expand spiritually.—William Lyon Phelps.

Kiddies' Evening Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

The Monkey's Motor

"It's not every one who can own a motorcar," said Larry, the monkey, proudly.

"That's so," agreed Snookums. "You're a lucky monkey. Will you take me for a ride one of these days?"

"My dear Snookums," said Larry, "I am not going to use it in the ordinary way.

"As I said, it was not every one who owned a motorcar. It's a luxury right at the start.

"But I am not satisfied with just having a luxury. I want to be as different as I can be.

"So I am not going to use my motor in which to ride about my zoo house—no indeed, I have another purpose for it."

"What is a purpose?" asked Snookums, as he swung by his tail and winked at a passer-by.

"A purpose," said Larry, "is—well—it's—well—having a purpose for something is to have a use for it!

"There! I did pretty well for a monkey, eh?"

"You did, indeed," said Snookums.

"Now what is your purpose for the motorcar?" he added.

Larry was a great pet in the monkey house. The keeper loved him. The boys and girls who came to the zoo loved him and he had many friends among the grown-ups.

Larry Was Delighted.

He was so tame, so friendly, so pleasant.

He would do tricks, shake hands and whistle when people were pleased with him and showed they wanted to be really friendly.

A little boy had brought Larry a present of a small wooden make-believe motorcar.

It had the name of a motorcar painted on either side.

Larry was delighted when he saw it.

He had been gazing at it ever since, holding it sideways, twisting it around in every possible way, and then dragging it after him.

For it wasn't the kind of a motorcar that went by machinery.

Nor would there have been room for the monkey riders inside.

Larry's motorcar had to be pulled.

But no matter. He was very proud of it.

"I think I will fill it with sawdust and take it up to the factory," said Larry.

"Where and what is the factory?" asked Snookums.

"Oh, Snookums, oh, Snookums," said Larry, "where is your imagination?

"Where are your make-believe ideas? The factory is a make-believe factory.

"I am going to pretend that I am supplying it with sawdust—because we have sawdust in our home."

So Larry filled the little wooden make-believe motorcar with sawdust, dragged it to the make-believe factory at the other end of his house, and had a beautiful time pretending he was the busiest creature in the whole world.

And the keeper said:

"My little Larry really knows how to play"

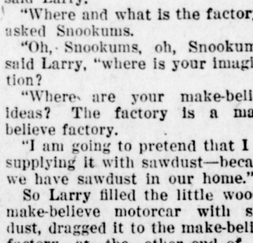
CONVENTION

The snow is lying very deep.
My house is sheltered from the blast.
I hear each muffled step outside,
I hear each voice go past.

But I'll not venture in the drift
Out of this bright security,
Till enough footsteps come and go
To make a path for me.
—Agnes Lee in "The Book of Modern Verse."

Flavor



is everything in breakfast oats

WHEN you find a person, especially a child, who "doesn't like oats," chances are they haven't tried the right kind.

Get Quaker Oats. Once you taste "Quaker" flavor, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

That rich and toasty Quaker flavor is the result of some 50 years milling experience. No other oats approximates it.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. Thus those who eat Quaker Oats find laxatives seldom needed. Combines protein, carbohydrates, vitamines and "bulk" in excellent proportions.

Costs the same as ordinary brands. You alone lose when you accept a substitute.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. Your grocer has it; also Quaker Oats as you have always known them.

UNION

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Southard and son Joshua were callers at Rev. E. S. Ufford's Sunday.

Miss Eda Sayward is visiting relatives in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Achorn of Biloxi, Miss., Dr. and Mrs. W. Lightle of North Berwick, Mrs. Nellie Stevens of Washington, Charles Hysler of Warren, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Whitmore and Mrs. Lincoln of Camden were Sunday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bryant.

Charles Smith has a new Reo sedan.

Many from here attended Belfast Fair the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Flint of Rockland visited Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bryant Sunday.

Albion J. Whitmore and son Harold of Bangor were recent guests of his father, Avery H. Whitmore.

N. H. Cole who has charge of the blueberry packing, thinks he has one all over the radio fans, as he is the first person to receive blueberries by radio. This may sound like it came on "hot air" but nevertheless it is true, for Mr. Aaro Radio, a Finn living in Warren, drove to the factory the past week with a load of fine blueberries, which Mr. Cole purchased.

Robert Farris and family who have spent a few days with friends at Augusta and Winthrop returned home Sunday.

There was quite a crowd gathered around the monument to see and hear Gov. Brewster and the other notables, Saturday. The frequent applause told plainer than words that the gathering was pleased with the speaking.

Rev. Bessie Crowell left Sunday afternoon for a week's visit with friends at Monmouth. There will be no service at the Congregational church next Sunday as every one wants to go to campmeeting either Northport or Washington.

Mary and Alice Plumer, Marguerite Webber and Laura Farris returned Sunday from a week's stay at the girls' camp at Winthrop.

James Griffin has started his mill and is doing quite a business threshing grain.

Mrs. Ada Merriam who is at Knox Hospital, is a little better.

Chautauqua Aug. 26-29. Season ticket, $2.00. Those who have seen the comedy drama "Applesauce" which is presented the evening of the 27th say it is well worth the price of the whole ticket. The program says "One hundred and thirty laughs in 111 minutes of actual play. Count 'em."

EAST WASHINGTON

Mrs. Olive Light, who has been ill for several weeks, still continues about the same. Mrs. May Fish of Appleton is caring for her.

Allen Ripley bought a yoke of oxen and a cow of H. B. Kaler and Charles Smith last week.

W. W. Light is at Stickney Corner where he has a crew of men at work building a piece of State road.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Overlock, Bernice Overlock and Mr. and Mrs. George Finley went to Belfast Wednesday where they attended the New Belfast Fair.

There was a large crowd at Medomak Camp last Tuesday, where they enjoyed the Regatta Day sports and concert in the afternoon and the entertainment in the evening.

Mrs. Elizabeth Maddox of Burkettville visited at the home of her brother, Arial Linscott, last week.

EAST UNION

Mr. and Mrs. John Starrett of Somerville, Mass., were recent callers with friends at this place.

Miss Eleanor Bailey of Woburn is spending the month of August at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dornan.

Miss Clara Fiske of Damariscotta is the guest of relatives at this place.

Dr. Perley Russell and family of Maryland were Thursday callers of friends in town.

The deepest sympathy is extended Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brooks in the loss of their baby, Chester Arnold, whose death occurred Aug. 17, at the age of 14 months. Funeral services were held from the home Thursday afternoon, Rev. Bessie Crowell officiating, speaking words of comfort to the sorrowing family.

The play "Peter Pan" presented by the girls at Highfields Monday night was greatly enjoyed by a large gathering. The young ladies acquitted themselves in a very pleasing manner.

THE ROBINSON FAMILY

The annual reunion of the Robinson Family will be held in the Grange hall at St. George, Aug. 26.

CLIMBED MT. BATTIE

Uncle Fernando Found Nice View But Will Leave Future Ascents to Others.

Last Wednesday F. S. Philbrick, with his grandniece, Miss Ruth E. Conant and her cousin, Carroll Wixson of Winslow, climbed Mt. Battie, doing the stunt in just 45 minutes from the post on Mountain street to the tower on the summit.

While resting in the tower Mr. Philbrick told his companions that the tower was built under the supervision of his personal friend, Andrew Tolman; also that he had the pleasure of performing the marriage ceremony for him some 10 or 15 years ago; that friend Tolman was just as expert a boat builder as mason and a better auctioneer than he ever saw handle a crowd of bidders.

But to go back to the tower; that is built of rough stones, apparently picked up in the vicinity, laid in cement. It is about 20 feet high and circular in form, perhaps 10 or 15 built of rough stones, approximate feet in diameter, with a circular stairway of some 25 steps to reach the floor above, which is open to the weather, but with a strong, three-foot high wall all the way around.

The view from this lookout is beyond words to describe—nothing to obstruct the view in any direction. After getting back to the starting point, Miss Ruth asked her uncle how far it was from the telephone post on the street to the tower at the top.

Mr. Philbrick did not know, but, judging from his feelings, thought it about 100 miles, and expressed the very decided opinion that it would be his last ascent of Mt. Battie, although he admits it is "worth it."

Meantime Miss Ruth is preparing to repeat the stunt in record time.

ROCKPORT

Dr. L. J. Hyde of Lawrence, Mass. is a guest at W. A. Paul's for a few days.

Charles Greenlaw of Boston, formerly of Rockport, has been calling on friends in town and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ingraham Thursday of last week.

Roland Crockett, who was operated upon Friday at the Knox Hospital, Rockland, for appendicitis, is reported to be very comfortable at this writing which is pleasing to his many friends who wish him a speedy recovery.

Miss Marion Weidman is spending a few days in Boston and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo P. Spear, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Piper, have returned to their home in Waltham, Mass.

Mrs. Ella Eaton has returned from Quincy, Mass., where she has been spending two weeks with Mrs. Percy Upham.

Capt. and Mrs. Ernest Torrey and Mrs. Cacildia Cain are spending the week in Northport and have as guest, Mrs. B. F. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Brien of Foxboro, Mass., are guests of her parents, Capt. and Mrs. David Arey.

News has been received of the death of Mrs. Edith Carver, widow of the late Chester Carver, formerly of Rockport, which occurred Saturday, Aug. 21, in Malden, Mass. For many years she was a resident of Rockport and many will learn with regret of her decease. She is survived by two sons, Grover and Maynard, both living in Massachusetts. She was a member and Past Matron of Harbor Light Chapter, O. E. S. Remains will be brought here today for interment in Amsbury Hill cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Sjogren of Winthrop, Mass., Mrs. Edgar Smith and Mrs. William Crockett motored to Bar Harbor recently.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Potter, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Ingraham for two weeks, have returned to their home in Waltham, Mass.

Brainerd Paul is at home from Winter Harbor to spend a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Paul.

Mrs. Fred Holbrook has been confined to her home by illness for several days.

Herbert Berry and family have moved from A. P. Spear's house to the Blaisdell house on Mechanic street.

Mrs. Fred Hart of Elmore and niece, Mrs. Harold West of Wellesley, Mass., visited Mrs. Bertha Ingraham recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Donovan of New York are guests of her mother, Mrs. Jennie Dunton.

A representative of the Wear Ever Aluminum Co. will give a demonstration of waterless cooking and ovenless baking in the vestry of the Methodist church, Wednesday, Aug. 25, at 2 p. m. This is the approved scientific method of preparing vegetables. Every person is cordially invited. Come and see. No obligation.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paul and son Robert T. were guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Paul, Sunday.

The Fred A. Norwood Relief Corps held its annual Fair, Friday, Aug. 20, afternoon and evening, and was a success both socially and financially. Nearly $166 was received. A baby show in which twenty babies were entered, was held at 3 o'clock and each was given a token. This was one of the most attractive features of the Fair. Music was furnished in the evening by Adjutant Ferdinando Philbrick of Rockland, accompanied by Mrs. Conant and Mrs. Florence Knight. A large number was present both afternoon and evening. The apron table was in charge of Mrs. Vellie Simmons and Mrs. Mary Thurston. Fancy table, Mrs. Lillian Lincoln and Mrs. Minnie Wellman; cooked food, Mrs. Gertrude Havener and Mrs. Medora Berry; punch and flowers, Mrs. Cacildia Cain, Mrs. Ernest Torrey; store, Mrs. Hazel Cain, Mrs. Aldana Ames, Mrs. Nellie Wilkins; frankfurts, Mrs Inez Grant; mysteries, Mrs. Rose Price; rummage, Mrs. Linthel Lane, Mrs. Maud Nutt. The decorations, red, white and blue, were very attractive. The President of the Corps, Mrs. Annie Clark, much appreciates the efforts of her assistants and those outside the Corps who did so much to make the event so successful.

WOMAN COULD NOT SLEEP

Her Mother-in-Law Knew A Remedy

Mrs. Belle Thompson, of Georgia, was in a very weak and run-down condition for four years. She had great difficulty in getting to sleep at night and even then did not sleep soundly. She would wake up again and again. Besides this her appetite was poor. "My mother-in-law told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash," she writes. "I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound and I was not the same woman at all. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children and always after the babies came I had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. It does me more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and I do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how both of the medicines have helped me."—Mrs. Belle Thompson, R. 2, Rossville, Georgia.

DETECTIVE STORIES

Author Booth Gets Material For 'Em In This Locality.

Christopher B. Booth, novelist and writer of detective stories, who has spent the summer in and near Rockland, returned to his home in New York Monday to confer with his publishers regarding a novel with Maine as the setting, for which he has been gathering extensive material during the summer. The novel which will appear under the title of "Dark Harbor" will be brought out by Chelsa House, probably during the winter, and, before it is issued in book form, will appear serially in The Detective Story Magazine, to which Mr. Booth is a staff contributor.

Mr. Booth plans a number of stories the locale of which will be the Maine coast and has just completed a short novel which will appear in The Detective Story Magazine about Nov. 15. It has to do with a girl's inheritance of an island off the Maine coast and the harrowing experiences that follow her in taking possession of the legacy.

Mr. Booth has bought the William H. Alexander farm in Northport, adjoining the Pennington estate, and will occupy it as a summer home. He is the author of some 20 published novels, including "The House of Rogues," "The Hand in the Fog," "Mr. Clackworthy," "$10,000 Reward" "The Amateur Detective," "The Tell-Tale Print," "A Seaside Mystery," "Killing Jazz," and "The Kidnaping Syndicate."

Mrs. George Innes of Milford is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Shields.

Virgil C. Smith returned Saturday to Orono after a vacation of a few weeks spent with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Smith. Enroute he will call on his aunt, Mrs. Edgar Hall in Camden.

Miss Marjorie Drew of Somerville, Mass., is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Susan Hopkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peterson and daughters and Mrs. Lucy Tolman have gone to Whitinsville, Mass.

Mr and Mrs. Webster, guests of her sister, Mrs. Emma Green, left Saturday for their home in Everett, Mass.

Mrs. Lillian Treat of Winchester, Mass., and Mrs. George Newbert were guests of Mrs. Bertha Raymond at Set o' Sun, Shore Acres, last week.

Mrs. Della Annis of Camp Lookout and guests of the past week, returned to Rockport Monday.

Mrs. Mary MacNichol is receiving treatment in the Knox Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. George Orcutt and son Kenneth, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Calderwood, returned to Rockland Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Sellers left Friday for Portland where they will meet their son Walter of Waterbury, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winslow and son Taylor, who have been visiting his mother, Mrs. Marietta Winslow, left Monday for their return home to New Haven, Conn.

Miss Anna Coombs of Rockland was a recent guest of her sister, Mrs. Sidney Winslow.

Headache and Nervous

A change in your mode of living may be necessary before Nature can repair the damage; more rest and sleep, perhaps shorter days of work, worry and hustle, change of diet, some simple remedy to assist Nature, especially when suffering from indigestion, biliousness or constipation.

Mrs. M. E. Harlow wrote us February 28: "I was sick and all run down, could not eat or sleep, and was in bed for a month. Could not get anything to help me. Finally I got a bottle of your 'L. F.' ATWOOD'S BITTERS. After the very first dose I felt better, and now after taking only half the bottle, I am up and around the house and gaining right along."

THE COAST GUARD

Its History Told In the Exhibit at the Sesqui-Centennial.

The history of the Coast Guard is portrayed in the exhibit which that organization has prepared for the Philadelphia Sesqui-Centennial. The exhibit is a realistic one, for it is in the form of a coast guard station approximately the same size and design as the stations in New England, the Atlantic Coast, the Great Lakes, the Gulf and the Pacific. Everything is in order as it should be in the regular Coast Guard stations. A large lifeboat rests on its carriage on the tracks for instant service, a mortar with its projectiles, stands near the double doors, and there is a row of guns, for the Coast Guard is also a military unit.

In one corner of the exhibit room stands a large lifeboat. It had the position of honor in the centennial exhibition in 1876, as the first self-bailing, self-righting lifeboat. Its place is still an honored one. It was imported from England in 1872. Side by side are shown the old and new types of mortar guns used in shooting ropes to vessels in distress. The old type of mortar is a small black affair, throwing a ball-shaped projectile. This mortar had the distinction of throwing the first ball in the United States to save a vessel in distress. The disabled craft was the British ship Ayrshire which met disaster off the New Jersey coast in 1850. Because of the accuracy of the first shot a breeches buoy was soon placed into position and 200 passengers were saved from the sinking ship.

In the main exhibit room the coast guard has placed the precious relics and mementoes which every coast guardsman cherishes. Here in polished cases will be found scores of medals awarded to the service or to its members for heroic action and brilliant conduct. In one of the display cases is a commission signed by Abraham Lincoln in 1865 authorizing A. Francis Tozier to become an acting third lieutenant in the revenue cutter service.

Near this historic document is a treasured bit of paper that has come down to the years as an example of courage and patriotism. A few months before the United States was plunged into Civil War, Secretary of the Treasury Dix sent William H. Jones to the Gulf Coast in order to save the cutters stationed there. Soon afterwards word came back to the capital that some trouble was being experienced in operating one of the vessels, and then General Dix sent the following message, on Jan. 28, 1861: "Tell Lieutenant Caldwell to arrest Captain Breshwood, assume command of the cutter and obey the order I gave through you. If Captain Breshwood, after his arrest, attempts to interfere with the command of the cutter, tell Lieutenant Caldwell to consider him a mutineer and to treat him accordingly. If anyone attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot."

The exhibit portrays the history of the Coast Guard from its organization in 1790 down to the present. It was organized as the second session of the First Congress upon the recommendation of Alexander Hamilton, then the first secretary of the Treasury. It was then known as the revenue cutter service. Between 1920 and 1925 the Coast Guard has been instrumental in saving 14,730 lives. In these years it destroyed 250 dangerous derelicts, it has boarded and inspected 157,338 vessels and has seized 8031 of this number. At the present time the service operates 225 patrol boats, 37 harbor cutters, 25 destroyers (in enforcing the prohibition laws) 17 cruiser cutters, first class, 17 cruiser cutters second class, and 6 floating section bases.—Oliver McKee, Jr., in Boston Transcript.

ARMY OF GRANGERS

Will Invade Portland In November For the National Session.

Rarely are the quiet folks of New England so awakened over any coming event as they are in anticipation of the big National Grange convention at Portland, in November, opening on the 10th and continuing eight days, with three sessions each. Conservative estimates place the attendance of Grange members who will come to Portland at 12,000 to 15,000, the greater part of them by motor conveyance. Already the Portland hotels are signing up hundreds of reservations and great numbers of private homes in the city will be thrown open to accommodate the guests, who will represent at least 35 different states.

The Vermont Patrons have reserved the Graymore hotel entire for the convention and members from that state are coming in caravan formation, meeting at a central point in the eastern section of the state and then motoring on to Portland in a body, with flags and banners announcing who they are. From New Hampshire big bus parties are being made up and in some of the small rural hamlets where the Grange is strong, the community will be practically deserted while the Portland gathering is on. The fact that there are 170,000 Grange members in New England, and none of them more than 275 miles driving distance from Portland, gives some idea what may be expected for a crowd, as the present wave of Grange enthusiasm spreads.

Discussion among local Granges the past few weeks indicates that there will be scarcely one that will be without some representation at Portland, while many will send half their membership; and there are more than 1,600 subordinate Granges in New England alone!

Already the Portland enthusiasm has extended over the border into New York and Patrons of that state are loudly clamoring for a special sixth degree session of the New York State Grange in the early fall, so they can go to Portland in November and take the Seventh Degree; with the likelihood that such a meeting will be arranged in Albany. New York will make a vigorous bid for the 1927 session of the National Grange and a lot of Empire State boosters propose to go to Portland and work for their state.

National Master Louis J. Taber recently predicted that the Portland event will be the largest and most constructive session the National Grange has ever held; fittingly so as it is the 60th annual convention of this great nation-wide farmers' fraternity.

For I thought as I rolled in the feathery nest,
How easily Editors lie.

ISLE AU HAUT

The home of Mrs. Inez Small was the scene of a pleasant family gathering Aug. 19, the guests coming from Stonington by motor boat. A picnic dinner was served on the large shady veranda, the party numbering 18. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Warren Brown and daughters Arline, Inez and Mavis of Medford, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. James Bodge and son Everett of West Somerville, Mass.; Mrs. Eliza Swears of Vinalhaven; Joseph Eaton and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Richards of Stonington; Mr. and Mrs. Al. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. George Turner, Mrs. Inez Small and Leon Small, of Isle au Haut. After lunch the day was spent in exploring the island, music and social chat.

DODGE BROTHERS DE LUXE SEDAN

People select motor cars by different standards.

Some desire luxury and ostentation. Others, utility and economy alone.

Dodge Brothers De Luxe Sedan strikes a fine and distinguished balance—both in appearance and price—between these two extremes.

It provides unusual comfort and roominess; a refinement of line and design in which the owner takes deep pride; and everywhere in the world the name it bears is associated with the highest standard of integrity and workmanship.

With reasonable care, the De Luxe Sedan serves its owners for years, frequently delivers mileage running well into six figures, and on the resale market brings prices that strikingly reflect the solid value Dodge Brothers have built into it.

Mrs. Hattie McFarland is visiting Miss Mina Williams at North Warren.

Rev. C. D. Paul, accompanied by Mrs. Forrest Spear, Mrs. Harlow Brown and Mrs. Frank Payson, were entertained at a banquet at Camp Watewin Friday evening where four Warren girls, Marjorie Spear, Lois Hay, Christine Brown and Dorothea Stevens have been spending the week.

In line with other towns Warren now has a no parking sign before its post office but has as yet not caught up in the matter of marking the town lines on the main highway with a welcome to tourists or at least a reminder of the township.

Miss Irene Allen and Miss Lois Allen of Wakefield, Mass., were recent guests of Rev. and Mrs. C. D. Paul.

The Teague family reunion was most pleasantly held Friday at the summer home of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. St. Claire Chase, who, absenting themselves for the day, left every convenience at the disposal of the reunion members. With such pleasant surroundings, and the bountiful repasts that always are served at these gatherings, a fine time was enjoyed by those in attendance.

Reports of the work at Camp Watewin were to be given Sunday evening at the Congregational Church by the four girls who attended camp the past week.

"Waiting—On, For God" is the topic for discussion at the Wednesday evening service of the Baptist Church.

Mrs. Elmer Locke has returned home to Portland after a week's visit with her sister, Mrs. Seldon Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Davis of Waterville have been recent guests of Ella Davis at the Davis homestead.

Mr. and Mrs. Newell Eugley motored to Belfast recently and were guests of Charles Hahn and family.

Mrs. Delia Robinson spent the weekend as guest of her daughter, Mrs. Forrest Spear.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gray and son Douglass motored to Belfast Thursday and took in the Belfast Fair.

Kent Newbert of Portland was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson.

Lewis Robinson has been visiting his aunt, in Thomaston the past two weeks.

Thomas Robinson is moving his family to the home of his father, N. B. Robinson at Malcolm's Corner.

PLEASANT POINT

The members of the Pleasant Point Improvement Society are to serve a baked bean supper with all of the fixings including pie, cake and ice cream, at Friendship cottage, the beautiful summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Gray, Wednesday (tomorrow evening, to which all are invited to come and help get good roads.

The annual concert given by the summer visitors at Pleasant Point will take place Friday evening of this week, Aug. 27, at Acorn Grange hall, South Cushing, at 7.30, standard time. Mrs. E. George Payne of New York, who has toured the country for a number of years as a lecturer and reader, will give a number of readings. Herbert Wellington Smith of New York, baritone soloist, a member of the Handel-Haydn Society, who sings at one of the largest churches in New York, will give a number of selections. Carl Webster, cellist, who has given great pleasure at former concerts in Cushing and who has toured the country with Geraldine Farrar's concert company for a number of years, will also play. Mrs. Wellington Smith, who is a pianist of unusual ability, will be accompanist. Mrs. Laura Littlefield, who sings in the Old South Church in Boston, and whose singing has been so much enjoyed over the radio, will also give a number of selections. It is seldom that Knox County people get a chance to hear music furnished by such talent and all should avail themselves of the opportunity to be on hand at Acorn Grange hall Friday evening. Ice cream will be served. The proceeds are to be used on the Pleasant Point roads.

BUTLER ELECTED

Forty Club Semi-Annual Meeting Held Last Night at Country Club.

Col. Walter H. Butler was made president of the Forty Club at the semi-annual meeting held last night at the Country Club. There were 47 members present at the very happy affair which opened with an exceptionally fine roast beef supper prepared by Mrs. McRae and served by a group of Forty Club ladies under her direction.

At the business session the semi-annual reports showed that the club had had a very busy time during the past term. The membership list is full at present with names on the waiting list. Owing to the removal from the city of Dr. C. H. Jameson a vacancy was created and Arthur N. Lawrence, agent for oil burners, was voted into the organization. The treasurer's report showed the club to be in a pleasing financial condition in spite of its extensive activities.

Before proceeding with the business of electing officers President Arthur F. Lamb attempted to express some ideas he had acquired but was interrupted by an involuntary ovation which left no doubt as to where he stands in the esteem of his fellows. The election of officers brought this result: President, Walter H. Butler; vice presidents, Fred C. Black and Basil H. Stinson; secretary, Jerome C. Burrows; treasurer, William H. Rhodes; directors for three years, Arthur F. Lamb, Alan F. McAlary.

Lloyd N. Lawrence and Charles H. Pery 2d, originators of the Forty Club idea, were given a fitting recognition of their service and the meeting adjourned to Strand Theatre as guests of Manager Dondis. President Butler held over his board of directors for their first session making plans for the ensuing six months. Thus far the Rockland Forty Club has had three presidents since its formation in February 1925: William C. Bird, Edward R. Veazie and Arthur F. Lamb.

Movies

STRAND THEATRE

Syd Chaplin was welcomed again yesterday at The Strand Theatre and will appear for the last time today.

Life on the American prairie viewed from an entirely different angle is the promise held forth by "The Prairie Wife," which comes to The Strand Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Many pictures have shown the discovery of the West, the crossing of the plains, and the struggles to clear it of savages, but Ballin shows the struggles, no less noble but not so spectacular, in developing the land and reclaiming it from the wilderness, in his picture, "The Prairie Wife."

With a great deal of drama, and a vein of comedy knit through it, Ballin has filmed Arthur Stringer's novel of a cultured eastern girl who marries a young engineer and goes to live with him in his prairie home. Added attraction, The New Jersey Radio Boys.—adv.

PARK THEATRE

"The Show-Off" featuring Ford Sterling, Lois Wilson and others, is the top-liner today.

Monta Bell, who is responsible for such cinematic gems as "Broadway After Dark," "The Snob," "The King on Main Street" and others, has found a new field for his efforts. In "The Boy Friend," which comes Wednesday and Thursday, Bell has one of the most charming satires in years. While a great many people will understand the picture and enjoy it only in the surface vein which it appears to be directed, there is an undercurrent of wit, and Bell went about the studio with his tongue in his cheek much of the time. "The Boy Friend" is a satire on the etiquette book, disguised in this case under "The Book of Charm," and offers Bell dozens of opportunities for the display of his particular brand of humor. An excellent script was prepared by Alice D. G. Miller from the play, "The Book of Charm," by John A. Kirkpatrick.—adv.

CUSHING

The Ladies' Aid of Cushing will serve supper at the Town hall, Thursday evening, Aug. 26. If weather is unsuitable, supper postponed until further notice.

Forced to vacate at mid-September—hence a great sale on boys' and men's complete furnishings and shoes. See big adv. Thursday. Guarantee Clothing Co., Main St., Rockland.—adv.

ENTER MADAME

And the Success She Scored In Her Two Thomaston Appearances.

Another success was scored by Adelyn Bushnell with her delightful presentation of "Enter Madame" on Thursday and Friday evenings at Watts hall, in her home town, Thomaston. It had been intended originally to give the play for one night only, but with the house practically sold out within a few hours it was evident that in order to meet the wishes of the public arrangements must be made to continue the play Friday evening. Its enthusiastic reception by crowded houses testifies not only to the admiration and popularity of Miss Bushnell in this part of the world where she is best known and where by her sincere friendliness she has retained a host of friends, but also to the high excellence of the production which she personally directed and staged.

With the exception of Miss Bushnell and her husband Rafael Brunetto, whose stage name is Jerry Bradford, the cast was made up entirely of amateurs, of whose support nothing but praise is heard on every side and among whom by general consent honors are equally divided.

The title role of the three act comedy was played by Miss Bushnell, and in it as the temperamental Lisa she completely captivated the audience with her art and charm. Jerry Bradford as Gerald Fitzgerald, Madame's husband, received much attention for his splendid acting to which his fine voice and looks add much. Miss Bushnell's son, William Manning, made his first appearance on the stage, as Tamamoto, a Japanese servant.

Especially favorable comment has been made on the amusing and clever work of Alfred Strout as the Italian chef. Mrs. Evelyn Peaslee as Madame's maid, was exceptionally good, also John Creighton as her son, and Miss Betty Phillips as her secretary. It was almost impossible to believe that Miss Phillips, a young girl in her teens, could be so successfully transformed into the severe, efficient, middle aged Miss Smith. The characterization was perfect. Mrs. Ruth Brackett's impersonation of the designing Mrs. Preston was excellent, as was also Charles Starrett in the part of Madame's physician and Mrs. Ada Beattie as John Fitzgerld's fiancee.

In all, from beginning to end, the play was unusually well done, beautifully costumed and staged, and will stand out in local theatrical history as a conspicuous event.

In charge of properties, an important part, was Crockett Brown.

Much indebtedness is felt to V. F. Studley, Fuller-Cobb-Davis, Edward O'B. Gonia and the G. W. Palmer jewelry store for their generosity in lending most of the furnishings.

The proceeds, which will be used for the benefit of the Thomaston Public Library, amounted to $350.

WALDOBORO

Mrs. Fred Bockelman of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting Mrs. Ella Achorn.

Hamlet Marselles of Boston is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Perry.

E. A. Glidden has been attending the convention of the Memorial Craftsmen of America in Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. Fannie Davis, who is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Alfred Storer, has been spending a week in Augusta.

Rev. and Mrs. G. W. F. Hill have returned to York.

Paul Rowe was at home from Lewiston for the weekend.

Mrs. Fred Homan and children of Haverhill, Mass., are visiting Mrs. Homan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Wyman.

Mr. and Mrs Thomsas H Ashley and daughter, Elizabeth Jane, of Boston are visiting Staey Kelzer and Mrs. Emma J. Ashley, who is Mr. Ashley's grandmother. Mr. and Mrs. William Dupee of Lancaster, Pa., Phoebus A. Earle and G. Harold Cameron have also been recent visitors of Mr. Kelzer and Mrs. Ashley. Mr. Earle and Mr. Cameron were enroute to George Weaver's camp at Martin's Point.

Mr. and Mrs. William Barnes of Philadelphia are spending their vacation at Roscoe L. Benner's.

Rin-tin-tin, the wonder dog of the films, will be seen at the Star Theatre Thursday night in "The Night Cry." This is a Warner production and is sure to please. June Marlowe has the feminine lead and John Harmon will be seen as the dashing hero.

William A. White died after an illness of six weeks Friday afternoon. Mr. White had only been confined to his bed about ten days and his death came as a distinct shock to his many friends. Mr. White was born in Waldoboro, the son of John E. and Louisa B. White. He was engaged in the flour and feed business with Frank Achorn about 35 years ago. For more than 22 years he was freight agent at Maine Central R. R. Station resigning from that position in 1922. Mr. White was first married to Mary J. Russell, who died several years ago. He was then married to Ella A. Lermond of Warren, who survives him. He also leaves an uncle, Ephraim White, and two cousins, Mrs. Sadie White Schwartz and Miss Della White. Services were held at his late home Monday afternoon. Rev. H. W. Webb of Wiscasset, a friend of the family, officiated. Interment was in the Benner yard.

THE SIMMONS FAMILY

The annual reunion of the Simmons family will be held at the home of Robert and Fred Simmons, East Warren, on Wednesday, Sept. 1, 1926, as per vote of 1925. Come and help entertain. It is not just the family but all who are in any way connected to the name of Simmons; also friends.

101-103 R. S. Simmons, Sec.

WHITTEMORE FAMILY

The 27th annual reunion of the Whittemore family will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bryant, Union Common, Labor Day. Everybody cordially invited. Picnic dinner.

The G. A. R. picnic has been postponed until into September, the date to be announced.

A special gift to the town of Camden was made yesterday when Cyrus H. K. Curtis presented the people of the town with the palatial Camden Yacht Club house, one of the finest on the coast, including of course its fine granite pier, a gift of $100,000. Mr. Curtis has ever wished that Camden people have the use of the club, but because it was privately owned, but few club members and their guests could do so, so in order to make it available to all, he purchased it. Then he made out a deed of the club house and granite wharf from himself to the citizens of the town and this deed he displayed when the members of the club assembled for their annual session. The property cost approximately $100,000, and a town meeting will be called at an early date to formally accept the gift.

Last Friday Mrs. Harriet T. Snow celebrated her 90th birthday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Eva Snow, Camden street with whom she has made her home for the past 14 years. She was quite surprised at the many attentions which she received as she thought only a very few intimate friends knew the date of her birth. Among the many to offer congratulations were several nephews, nieces, great nieces and one great-great niece from South Thomaston. Flowers, candy, fruit, books and other gifts, besides the candle-decorated birthday cake, found their way to her room. Mrs. Snow's maiden name was Miss Harriet T. Norton, and is the last surviving member of a family of 13 children, the late Mrs. Aurelia J. Dunning being one of her sisters. Mrs. Snow has retained her faculties to a remarkable degree, and although she goes out but little she enjoys having friends call and she spends the most of her time perusing the latest books, magazines, papers or whatever comes her way of a readable nature, often sitting up far into the night if the reading matter be interesting enough to warrant it.

H. M. Reed and Frank Matt of Bangor were weekend guests of Mrs. B. B. Reed.

Dr. and Mrs. Harold Jameson left by motor yesterday for Providence, where they will look for an apartment to be their future home in that city. They arrive home tomorrow.

Robert M. Packard was home from Northeast Harbor over Sunday.

Lewis Bates Clark arrived Sunday from Manchester, N. H., accompanied by Harry Webster of Lawrence and Carlton Austin of Methuen, Mass., who were on their way to their home in Castine, where they will spend their vacation. Mr. Clark will visit his mother, Mrs. A. B. Clark.

Miss Ada H. Perry left for New York Saturday night to inspect the fall millinery markets for the Senter Crane Co.

Mrs. Fannie Donovan and granddaughter of Bar Harbor are guests of Mrs. Donovan's daughter, Mrs. C. J. Harvey. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey have bought the Walter Duncan house on Thomaston street and have just moved into it.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fall of Medford, Mass., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Merrifield. Friday the party motored to China village to attend the Fall-Woodsum family reunion which took place at "The Willows."

C. Churchill Wahle arrives today from New York and will remain over Labor Day with his family.

Mrs. W. R. Dwyer and daughter Eva, and Mrs. A. L. Strout and son Richard of Brunswick, who have been visiting Mrs. W. J. Barrows, Gay street, have returned to their homes.

Dr. E. W. Peaslee and Dr. B. E. Flanders left Sunday for Philadelphia to attend the 7th International Dental Congress to be held in that city, Aug. 23-27, in conjunction with the Sesqui-Centennial celebration.

Mrs. Nora Benner and Mrs. Annie Brown will entertain Winslow-Holbrook Auxiliary at West Meadow chapel Wednesday afternoon. Picnic supper. Those planning to attend should notify Mrs. Bernice L. Jackson, chairman of the committee; telephone 1050-J.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Barter, Miss Lillian Barter, Miss Ferne Britto, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gregory, and Ronald Lord who have been occupying the Gardiner homestead at Tenants Harbor for the past fortnight have returned home. Mrs. Ada Gardiner was a guest there Saturday. Mr. Gregory resumes his duties as mail carrier at the North End today.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Clark and children Monroe, and Mervyn, who have been the guests of Mrs. A. S. Clark, left Saturday for Eastham, Mass., where they will make a short visit with Mrs. Harriet Knowles, before returning to their home in Syracuse, N. Y.

Mrs. John Marshall, daughters, Hazel and Doris and son, Randall, and Miss Hazel Nutt, have returned from a week's visit at Deer Isle. This week Miss Marshall resumes her position in the public library, and Miss Nutt as assistant bookkeeper with M. B. & C. O. Perry.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harrington and daughter Miss Peggy Harrington of Brewer are the guests of Mrs. Harrington's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Nutt.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Gould of Auburn went to Vinalhaven today for a week's visit with Mrs. Gould's parents, Capt. and Mrs. Porter Lawry.

Miss Catherine Goldrick of Brookline, Mass., is the guest of Misses Ada and Alena Young.

Miss Alene Knowlton of South Thomaston is the guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Knowlton, Brewster street.

One of the most interesting members of the summer colony at Lincolnville Beach, Christopher B. Booth, left Saturday for New York with his wife and children. Mr. Booth has been a frequent visitor to Rockland this summer. He is a writer of mystery stories, using not only his own name but several nom de plumes. Mr. Booth originally from Tennessee follows the seasons North and South but declares he likes Maine best. The Booths have bought an old farm house with 40 acres near Northport and plan to restore it for use next summer.

Mrs. Wilson B. Keene and Mrs. William C. Bird will be hostesses today to the Tuesday Auction Club at the Hill Top Inn, Warren. Their guests will be Mrs. Emily Edwards Weeks of Detroit, Mrs. Emily Hix Faber of Peoria, Miss Mildred Gillette of Newton, Mrs. Dorothy Bird George, Miss Madeline Bird and Miss Charlotte Buffum.

Mrs. Ina Sheppard Visits Friends She Had Not Seen In 46 Years.

Mrs. Ina B. Sheppard and daughters, Ina M. and Leona, and grandson Jack Peck, left Monday, Aug. 16, on their return trip to their home in Kansas City, Kansas, after spending two weeks as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Gregory. While here Mrs. Sheppard called on many of her girlhood friends whom she had not seen for 46 years.

The Sheppards visited many places of interest to them, including a drive up the Penobscot to Belfast, the Turnpike and Lincolnville, the Fish Hatchery, Beauchamp Point, Warrenton and Oakland Park, the Samoset, Rockland Breakwater, limerock quarries, also a trip to Vinalhaven where they visited the granite quarries, and fish plant. They have hosts of relatives in this section, and Northport, Lincolnville and also Belfast whom they visited. Mrs. Evelyn Gregory of Glencove, being Mrs. Sheppard's only living aunt, was greatly pleased to have her here after so long an absence, especially on her 81st birthday, which occurred Aug. 8. A family party was held for them, with a large number of friends and relatives present.

Other events included clam digging, a picnic party on the ledges at Glencove, being entertained at dinner by their cousins, Annie Rhodes and Beulah Nealey Aug. 10, at Saturday Cove. Oakland Park was visited during the two weeks' Carnival and was much enjoyed. They greatly admired the beautiful scenery afforded by the location of this park.

The Sheppards during their summer vacations have motored nearly all over the United States, and parts of Canada. Among the places of interest they have visited are Yellowstone Park, upper and lower California, Pike's Peak and Niagara Falls, this being the first trip into Maine for Misses Ina, Leona and Jack. Ina and Leona being school teachers in the city of Kansas, are getting a wide and varied experience in the way of travel, which is of educational value to them, and will be very helpful along that line. On their trip east they attended the National Educational Association meeting in Washington, D. C. They have a great fondness for taking pictures and always have a loaded camera along. They have some very fine pictures.

The visitors would have spent more time in Maine, but it being necessary that they be home at the opening of their schools the first of September they felt that they must be on their way. They left with a very favorable impression of the State of Maine and its atmosphere of New England hospitality.

THE SAMOSET MASQUERADE

The annual masked ball of the Samoset employes scored its usual success last Thursday evening. One hundred and thirty appeared en masque and the costumes were both beautiful and amusing in their wide variety. The first prize was awarded to Misses Ethel Rogers and Lucy Putnam who appeared in Indian costumes as "Welcome, Samoset!" The second prize went to "Cobb-Davis Antiques," Robert Nutt appearing as "Mr. Cobb" and Mrs. Dorothy Weeks as "Mrs. Davis." The third prize was given to Misses Dorothy Baxter and Helen Leonard, who impersonated "Maggie and Jiggs." Special features in the highly entertaining program of the evening were a piano solo by Miss Dorothy Nutt; a Charleston contest by Dorothy Douchane, Laurence Martin and Marcel Smith; and a vocal duet by Misses Gladys Austin and Helen Griffin. The dancing hall was attractive in pink and blue decorations, refreshments were served and the long continued dancing was enjoyed under the entrancing music of the Samoset Orchestra.

Dr. William Sharpe left Monday evening for New York.

On Saturday Edward P. Lancaster of New Brighton, Conn., will join his wife who has been visiting her mother Mrs. Oscar Blackington. Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster will then visit in Augusta and Squirrel Island.

Professor and Mrs. Wilmot Mitchell of Bowdoin College called on friends in Rckland Saturday.

Mrs. Jennie Bird entertained the Dorcas Club Monday.

Mrs. I. Leslie Cross entertained the P. E. Bridge Club Monday afternoon.

Above—The new Essex all-steel coach, described as "strong as a steel building." At the left, lower, is shown a 400 ton press which stamps out entire doors with a single operation. At the right two men are proving sturdiness of car by riding on outstretched doors.

Detroit—Any story of the new Essex all-steel coach is fundamentally the story of the $10,000,000 body factory which produces the car. What the Hudson Motor Car Co. has done in the manufacture of Essex bodies is to make craftsmen of machines; this is literally the fact. Giant machines do in a fraction of a minute work that the most highly skilled artisan, craftsman or artist could never hope to equal, from the standpoints of beauty and accuracy. The plant devoted to making the bodies expresses the industry's top mark in design and execution.

"Hand work" has long been a symbol of excellence of manufacture. Painstaking labor, directed by trained craft, has resulted in closest fit and smoothest finish. But "machine work" surplants it when the machine is designed and executed so as to perform quickly and surely operations that far excel the best of the hand craft.

Essentially, the Essex body plant is an aggregation of pressing and stamping machines. Upon them are formed the component parts of the body, which are so accurately made that they fit without question. Their union into a rigid whole is accomplished with a speed and uniformity almost beyond belief. A cowl, a door, or the corner of a body is fashioned on a giant press. The whole cowl is brought into being with one apparently effortless motion of a press that is exerting a force of 400 tons every time its plunger descends. The machine and the dies may represent $100,000 worth of ability to manufacture with speed and exactness—an investment made with the certainity that the completed plant would function with the greatest precision and the highest attainable speed.

The Hudson officials say that the plant is unique in being the largest bodybuilding unit in the industry without a single body builder employed in it. Strictly speaking, and using the word in the sense in which it is usually accepted, perhaps there are no human body-builders. But the machines certainly are body-builders in every sense of the word.

For the first time in the history of American industry, body building has been made primarily a series of steel-stamping processes; for the first time, too, the bodies are being made on a 100 per cent progressive assembly system, already employed to such advantage in the manufacture of engines and chassis.

Everything in connection with the plant and the other means of making bodies complete was laid out a year ago. On top of the $10,000,000 in the plant proper, an investment of $5,000,000 was made in bringing other departments to a capacity that would measure up to that of the new unit. The plant and the expansions were completed on schedule time, and on the precise day originally determined, a schedule of the new all-steel bodies, to the number of 150, was put through.—adv.

THE TALKING PHOTOPLAY

Invention of Vitaphone Promises Revolution For Movies —Walter J. Rich President of Corporation.

An amazing invention which couples sound with screen images has created a sensation in New York, where it recently had its first test in Warner Theatre. Local interest attaches to the invention and its progress because of the fact that Walter J. Rich of New York and Camden is president of the corporation which controls it, and his son Eugene Rich, is vice president. The New York Times of Aug. 15 had the following concerning the Vitaphone.

* * * *

Now that an invention synchronizing sound with motion pictures is an accomplished fact it may be only a relatively short time before a talking photoplay is produced. There are shadows at Warner's Theatre that talk and sing, and play on musical instruments, through the medium of the Vitaphone, and, therefore, one may reasonably anticipate a film story in which the characters will be heard. Hitherto the efforts to couple pictures and sound have possessed weak points. In the earlier conceptions the voice appeared either to come from the top or the bottom of the screen, and although the lips of the character moved to the utterances it was not he or she who seemed to be doing the talking, but obviously a voice that came from some mechanism behind the screen. In the subsequent vocal and pictorial short subjects the synchronization of sound with the shadows on the screen was quite good, but the drawback was in the unnatural tonal qualities of the utterances, which in most instances were so weirdly muffled that they were often indistinct.

In the Vitaphone not only is the utterance clear, but the individual voice is naturally reproduced. This fact was especially impressive in the feature in which Will H. Hays delivered a speech eulogizing the Western Electric Company, the Bell Telephone laboratories, the Warner Brothers and Walter J. Rich for the wonderful achievement.

There was nothing forced in the reproduction of Mr. Hays' delivery and his voice would have been easily recognized without seeing him on the screen. There was remarkable precision in timing the sound with the movements of the speaker's lips. Not a syllable was missed and undertones came forth in true proportion to the emphasis which Mr. Hays lent to some of his sentences. This subject alone gave a full realization of the value of the new invention, for it was obvious that screen players could not only be heard distinctly but that the qualities of their individual voices could be reproduced. Hence we can expect a "Hamlet" on the screen with John Barrymore, as well as other classical works, not to say anything of the operatic efforts that will thrill the world.

For the playing of one piece of music for the Vitaphone a violinist may receive the same compensation he would get for a whole week of concerts. It may cost much more than the ordinary picture to produce, but audiences all over the world will surely be willing to pay more to hear the results of this marvelous contrivance. The run that a talking photoplay would have on Broadway would alone compensate the producers.

The Vitaphone not only has possibilities for entertainment but also for education. It may also be an instrument that will do much to discourage silly moving pictures, which even now are produced in far too great a number.

All the world loves a singer or a musician and this will assuredly elevate the films and in doing so it will improve the popular taste. The Warner Brothers are to be commended for the high-class entertainment they are giving with the Vitaphone. They sought world-renowned musicians and singers, instead of presenting subjects with low comedians. Was it not far better to hear the strident tones of Giovanni Martinelli, singing the "Vesta la giubba" aria from "I Pagliacci," than to hear a dubious entertainer rendering to the full of his ability that well-known classic, "Yes, We Have No Bananas?" Was it not infinitely more edifying to listen to Mischa Elman's rendition of Dvorak's "Humoresque" than to have to sit through a squeaky fiddling of "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby?" How much more inspiring it was to listen to Efrem Zimbalist, the violinist, play variations from Beethoven's "Kreutzer Sonata" than to hear that rollicking air, "Horses, Horses, Horses?" The program selected immediately put the Vitaphone on a dignified but popular plane.

The resonance and clarity of the tones seemed to put life into the shadows on the screen. When Martinelli was singing, or for that matter is singing (seeing that his shadow through the Vitaphone still is thrilling packed houses), his wonderful voice burst from the form on the screen to the enthralled auditors and to all it was as if they had a front seat in the Metropolitan Opera. The applause following each number at the Vitaphone's initial presentation was proof of the genuine appreciation of the audience. There was no need to have employes begin the handclapping, for in the gathering there was not a solitary soul who was not moved to show his hearty approval of the art of the musicians and singers. It was an exceptional and diversified program, such as one would not be privileged to hear anywhere else on a single evening.

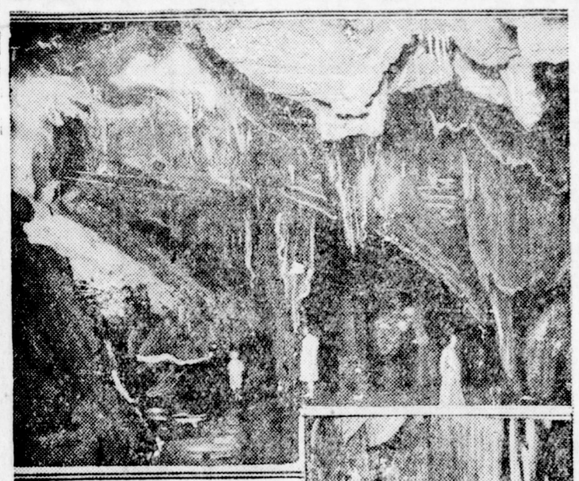
Lighting Virginia Grottoes A Great Theatrical Pageant



By M. LUCKIESH
Lighting Research Laboratary, Nela Park, Cleveland

Sometime in the distant past, perhaps millions of years ago, the warping of the earth's crust turned on edge the strata of the hills near Grottoes, Virginia. This upheaval also left great masses of soft clay underneath the raised strata. Then the settling began which eventually produced the present day cavern with its great rooms and manifold niches and byways.

The vertical strata provided a maximum seepage of water laden with the compounds of which the formations are made. Thus the great vaulted rooms, precipitous gorges, and intricate passages and niches became, after millions of years, ornamented with fascinating formations. Huge stalagmites, numberless stalactites, delicately folded draperies, mysterious shields and many formations defying description abound throughout this subterranean wonderland.

The Grotto was first known as Weyer's Cave and for nearly a century it was visited by the light of torches and lanterns. Then a crude electric lighting system was installed which revealed more of the wonders, but no simple lighting system could do justice to this majestic wonderland.

In consequence it was decided to have the greatest underground lighting installation ever proposed. The scheme of lighting was gradually evolved. By utilizing the controllability of modern artificial light there was modeled highlights and shadows; interesting formations were silhouetted against bright backgrounds; Stygian darkness was captitalized here and there; gorgeous true colors were rought forth; and occasionally, as an additional feast for the eyes, there was provided delicate color effects.

But all this had to be preceded by an elaborate, controllable and safe distribution system. The mile depth of the cavern and the miles of cable and wiring required a high voltage system of the best design. The Graybar Electric Company was called upon for supplying the equipment for the initial installation.

Magnetic switches take care of the lighting in five sections. Miles of lead cables are buried or otherwise concealed. A thousand lighting units are concealed in niches, on high ledges and in alcoves far aloft. Few are visible.

The lighting job was considered as a great theatrical pageant differing from the theatre only in that the visitor moved along from scene to scene. Variety and climatic interest were successfully obtained by various strategies. Interest does not wane for the lighting has brought out the wonders more and more vividly as one proceeds the entire mile inward. On the outward trip the views are reversed and fascinating side rooms are shown.

The Grand Caverns abound in romantic names. There is, for instance, the Garden of Eden, the Ball Room, the Cathedral, Bryce Canyon, the Persian Palace, the Cascades and many individual formations such as the Bridal Veil, the Capital Dome and Cleopatra's Needle.

"THE BIG PARADE"

Laurence Stallings's Intimate and Amazing Human Document

With the coming of "The Big Parade" to Park Theatre next Friday come back the combat thrills of 1917-1918 when America joined the War.

The doughboys, the officers, the tremendous mass push through the Argonne, the hand-to-hand fighting that cleaned out enemy trenches and machine gun nests, have been reproduced, not like the War propaganda pictures of that period, but in the intimate realism of the saner seven years' view. It is the doughboy's story,—his, and the story of the girl back of the lines who also drank of War's dread cup. Laurence Stallings wrote it. King Vidor directed it.

John Gilbert as Jim Apperson "mopping up" the German nests shows a frenzy that only those who have lost a "buddy" in battle can know. Bull O'Hara, the other surviving "buddy," cries out: "D——n this War! They cheer us when we leave, and cheer us when we return, but what's it all about?" Nearing the end of the awful clean-up, Jim spares a bayonet thrust, and soothes the last moments of his wounded foe by the proffered solace of a cigarette.

Pioneer work through the Forest, skulking from cover to cover, taking it on the run across leas and meadows, meeting the enemy in the open in widely spread formation, putting on the gas masks, deplaying in trenches and shell holes just captured, going over the top again and again, the Yanks show the mettle that was embodied in an Argonne Commander's famous answer: "We will not go back, and we are ready!"

But King Vidor has sought in "The Big Parade" not only some of the myriad thrills of this colossal field of Mars, but equally the humor and romance. He was aided by the wide experience of Laurence Stallings, author of the story, and by the co-operation of several American Legion posts. The men worked for weeks with John Gilbert, Karl Dane and Tom O'Brien who played the three buddies. Many of the vets' comic reminiscences of the life behind the lines were incorporated. Another extremely able assistant was Renee Adoree, playing the part of Melisande, the French girl.

The spectacular parts of the picture were carried out under the direction of Brig.-Gen. Paul B. Malone and Col. Harry Bishop of the Second Division, U. S. A. They were among the officers commanding in the Argonne push, and the Second Division units, in the mimic war, re-lived the Argonne experience over again.

"The Big Parade" has been provided with an elaborate score by David Mendoza and William Axt. Along with their original composition they haven't forgotten to bring back many of the catchy war tunes. A large touring orchestra plays the music which is heightened by many realistic stage effects.—adv.

AID EACH OTHER

Significant Illustration of Spirit of Big Farm Fraternity.

Among the characteristics of the Grange organization none has been more pronounced than that of mutual helpfulness, as Granges have aided each other in times of distress or special need. A particularly striking illustration has just occurred in the state of Connecticut, where a most practical service has been rendered to a subordinate in misfortune.

In the course of a hall construction project Metichewan Grange, No. 190, had one of its workmen seriously injured, resulting in a court suit and a heavy award of damages, with no compensation insurance carried by the Grange. The latter was well nigh swamped by the misfortune and it seemed for a time as if it must surely lose its hall. Then the sister Granges throughout the state took up the matter, voluntarily assessed themselves a specified sum per member, and have turned over hundreds of dollars to Metichewan Grange to help them out of their difficulty. The latter members were so encouraged by this outside assistance that they have rallied to their task, assessed each local member $1 per month for two years, have given entertainments and put through all sorts of money-raising enterprises, with the result that the cost of litigation has been very nearly wiped out and the hall saved.

In hundreds of cases Granges building halls have received valuable contributions from sister Granges and the entire Grange structure of the country is builded upon the principle of mutual cooperation and assistance.

In the confusion attending the closing days of Congress and the mass of legislation caught in the hopper unfinished at adjournment was the Grange measure so actively agitated throughout the year for an Agricultural Day in October, when the importance of the basic industry of the land was to be stressed and an appropriate observance held throughout the country. The Grange originated this idea and introduced its bill into Congress early in the session. No opposition to the project appeared from any source, but the measure failed, along with scores of others, because of the crush of the closing days.

As soon as Congress again convenes the Grange measure will be actively pushed toward enactment, inasmuch as it calls for no appropriation, but seeks to enlist the interest of the public everywhere in the farmers' industry, through proclamation by the President and governors, suitable local, state and national programs, and other observances in keeping with the vital character of agriculture as an American industry.

In all parts of the United States Granges are vigorously opposing anything in the nature of a public referendum on the Volstead act, on the Eighteenth Amendment, or anything else connected with prohibition enforcement. The Grange takes a strong stand on the fact that prohibition is now the established law of the land adopted in thoroughly legal fashion by an overwhelming expression of the people, and that any steps towards non-enforcement or the ridiculing of the law amount to nothing less than positive nullification. Hundreds of Grange meetings throughout the country have adopted resolutions expressing the above position, which is in line with the unqualified action taken again and again by the national and state branches of this great farm fraternity.

During the coming fall and winter a systematic plan of program discussion in Granges throughout the country will take up the question of the use of electricity for lightening farm work indoors and out, and all the influence the Grange can command will be thrown into an effort to secure an extension of electric privileges to the rural communities of the nation. There are so many farm uses to which the electric current can be put in practical ways that no class of people in the United States are more eager for the extension of such privileges or would use them more generally, if a moderate rate could be obtained, than the dwellers in rural localities. The Grange women especially are eager for electric service and are making this a lively topic of discussion in Grange meetings everywhere.

In Pennsylvania 177 Granges are still vigorously functioning, which have been organized more than 50 years and continuously active; 21 of these in Bradford county, more than one-half the total of those in that county.

The direct selling project of maple sugar, syrup and other maple products instituted this year by a Pomona Grange in Vermont, worked out so successfully that plans are under way in several Vermont localities to extend the idea widely the coming year. Under the plan referred to the Pomona Grange collected the maple products from growers of established reliability, advertised same and made deliveries to consumers reaching all the way from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the Pomona acting as a sales intermediary for the direct transaction between producer and consumer. The calls for maple products which the Pomona effort created were far beyond the possibilities of supply and demonstrated the entire practicability of the project undertaken this year as an experiment. The idea is apparent very suggestive of benefit to both buyer and seller of farm products by direct transaction when some such agency as the Grange will act as distributor.
