

To Mark the Place with Beauty Forever

GUARDIAN MEMORIALS perpetuate in everlasting beauty the heart's sincere and tender tribute to the lives we loved. Jones Brothers' Barre Granite from which Guardian Memorials are made will last forever. Inscriptions properly cut will always be clear. This is a granite, even in texture, finely grained with an almost diamond hardness, of a rich gray color that blends with nature's foliage, refined and pleasing in appearance when either tooled or polished.

A Certificate of Security guarantees every Guardian Memorial for all time. We shall be pleased to show you our display of Guardian Memorials that will mark the place with beauty forever.

THE LONDON DIVINE

An Appreciation of His Personality and Methods By Rockland Pastor.

Following the recent series of meetings in this city at which Rev. Dr. Chivers of London was the speaker, there has appeared in the Watchman and Examiner an appreciation of the noted divine from the pen of Rev. Benjamin P. Browne, pastor of the church under whose auspices the Rockland visit was made. Mr. Browne wrote:

I have just waved farewell to the train to Dr. T. Tydemann Chivers, pastor of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London, after acting for six days as his host, chauffeur, golf partner, bell boy, and auditor during ten addresses. This all around study of the man convinces one that he is a great soul. Simplicity is the charm of the man as it is of the preacher—a simplicity tinged with sublimity. Simple texts seemed to be his favorites! "He endured the cross," "Who touched me?" "Thou art the man," "Believe in me," but he made these few words open wide and surprising vistas.

No man who sits in Dr. Chivers' audience escapes the conviction that the preacher has singled him out for a special word. "It is a mistake to keep piling up your points, leaving your application to the end," he remarked to friends in the vestry after service. "Keep thrusting your applications in all through your sermon when they are not expected and make every man in your audience feel that you are talking personally with him." This is a striking method of Dr. Chivers', whose sentences with well shaped and skillfully poised words dart out like arrows from a bow.

One has the feeling that this English expository may think that much of our preaching in this country only skims the surface, and that our need is more expository preaching. Motor cars and telephones for every minister here seem a perpetual surprise to him. Perhaps our gracious guest suspects that the temptations and interruptions they cause are not unrelated to the lack in our pulpits of depth and intensity. At any rate, Dr. Chivers maintained his morning study hours at his hotel with religious zeal. A layman wanted to see him at his morning study hour. "I told him he couldn't come. He could call after eleven o'clock—not before." So the layman learns to wait, for a preacher has his rigid business hours too.

Chivers is yet in his prime, with gray, not white hair; not tall, each-erant in health, a face singularly free from lines of care, and quite radiant, and eyes far-seeing and kindly. His pulpit presence is possessed of quiet magnetism, giving the sense of reserve power. His gestures are few and effective. Triumph in the cross by a living faith rings through all his preaching with cheering and mighty assurance. "Wait," said an auditor, "he'll bring the cross in before he concludes this sermon," and so he did in every sermon. But he never dragged it in, he found it there. To be pastor of Spurgeon's Tabernacle is quite enough evidence of orthodoxy, yet Chivers pursues the preaching of the gospel with the weapons of the Spirit rather than with the weapons of the flesh. Both the man and the message are fragrant with the Holy Spirit. All who have heard Dr. Chivers hope that our shores may soon welcome him again.

The Waldoboro Exhibition

Waldoboro is fortunate in having for the first time in its history an exhibition of modern, high class paintings.

Mr. Warren Weston Creamer, the antiquary who recently acquired the famous Reed mansion for the display of antiques, has transformed a part of his adjoining warehouse into a gallery for special displays of "objets d'art" which will be permanent, although somewhat hastily made ready for the present exhibition of Howard Gilder's season's work, makes a background and setting of taste and dignity.

It is a little unfortunate, perhaps, that the exhibition is late, many of the summer residents and visitors having already left this charming neighborhood, but Messrs. Creamer and Hilder thought the idea of an annual exhibition of the latter's work a good one, and that this year's show will be made at once.

There are thirty-six exhibits, among others the following:

- No. 1. "Off shore Wind"—a large canvas executed in a spirited manner, representing a stiff sea with the tang and might of the ocean splendidly rendered.
- No. 2. "In the heronry"—a fine work in which the tangle and half moon of primeval forest and untrammelled nature are rendered with mystery; a work of deep poetry, with rich and vibrant color.
- No. 3. "Rocks on Harbor Island"—a dignified representation of a well known headland.
- No. 4. In this we have another side of this very versatile artist, a study of tropical fish which was made at Miami Aquarium as an incident in a large picture in which a score of different kinds of the brilliant pictorial denizens of the tropical seas were represented as in nature. The picture was bought by the Carl Fisher interests, and hangs in the Nautilus Hotel, and is pronounced the finest work of the kind yet painted.
- No. 5. "Silent Night" shows a galleon of the early sixteenth century in full sail, gliding in ghost like fashion over a sea luminous with veiled moonlight. This picture is full of romance and mystery, and invites one to accompany the ship with one's own dreams over the sea of its fantasy.

Some of the smaller pictures have as much inspiration as the larger, but space does not permit of detailed description. One of the finest is No. 13, which shows surf looming through fog on the coast near New Harbor. The inrush of the ocean and the spray of the surf seem to form an admirable example of direct painting of near values.

No. 15. "At Dawn" shows a striking effect of light, admirably achieved with economy of means.

No. 21. "Morning Fog" is poetic in its extreme delicacy and nonchalance of handling.

No. 27. 31 are exquisite pencil studies from life, showing close observation and understanding of character, with facility and elegance of craft.

It is sufficient to say that Howard Gilder's work is widely recognized as appealing to the highest and best in the spectator.

The exhibition has been prolonged owing to the great interest shown in it, and is now open daily from ten o'clock in the morning until four in the afternoon, including Sundays, until further notice, when it will be shown in a Fifth Avenue gallery in New York.

SIZZLING POLITICS

As Seen In the State Conventions Held the Present Week.

Ogden L. Mills of New York City was nominated as candidate for governor of New York State at the Republican state convention Tuesday. Delegates to the convention pledged to the support of Franklin W. Roosevelt, who was elected to the nomination of a resolution in which they said: "In no way do we consider ourselves bound by the action of the convention in the nomination of James W. Wadsworth, Jr." The resolution was ordered sent to the convention.

The resolution, it was said, accurately reflected the views of at least 82 and possibly 100 delegates spread over 17 up-state counties. Dry delegates from all the 17 counties decided that instead of merely being recorded as not voting they would demand that their votes be recorded against Senator Wadsworth.

Democrats of New York State unanimously and for the fifth time nominated Alfred E. Smith for governor. The nomination was a signal for a demonstration lasting 24 minutes. Delegates cheered, operated noise-making devices, and paraded with Smith pictures and banners. The band played "The Sidewalks of New York" and when the noise had subsided a bit the Democrats broke into a new song featuring Governor Smith.

Modification of the Volstead Act and American adherence to the World Court were among the chief recommendations in the declaration of party principles adopted by the convention.

The platform assailed the Republican legislature for ratifying the prohibition amendment after rejecting Governor Smith's proposal to submit the question to the voters, an act characterized by the platform as "not in keeping with the wishes of a majority of the people."

Massachusetts Democrats went solidly on record at their state convention Tuesday for the repeal of the present prohibition laws. This was the issue which formed the principal plank in the campaign platform and which candidates and party leaders stressed in their convention speeches.

Richard C. Dolloff of Rumford Center, George H. Dow of Wayne, and Carroll R. DeCoster of Norway are the three boys all seniors of the College of Agriculture, that were selected as a result of trials.

Mr. Dolloff was the highest scoring student in the contest and wins $40 as first prize money in addition to three or four other prizes. His score in the Holstein class was perfect and he was tied with three other men for high score in the Jersey class. Mr. Dow as twelfth man wins a prize of $12.50.

Howe W. Hall, formerly of Rockland, instructor in the Department of Animal Industry, coached the team.

WRITING FROM 'FRISCO

From His Shack On Twin Peaks "F. O." Sends Philosophy

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

I am glad to find you are on deck yet and at the wheel! My memories of ye olden days in good old Maine are as vivid as ever, but my legs are getting unreliable. But I'm thankful to be here in this new age with all its wonders and improvements in science. The one thing we have to regret is man's inhumanity to man, and we might include selfishness, jealousy and deception. However, there's still hope for the human race for better conditions, though you and I may not live to see it come to pass. For 6000 years humans have been warring upon one another and our preachers and teachers have failed in their endeavor to prevent it. The only way I see to prevent it is to raise a new race, a new breed. It is certainly left to man to work out his own salvation and he can't do it by raising devils. So let's stop that kind of progeny and divide the "filthy from the holy." That would represent the "judgment day." 'Tis time to make the prophecy real.

I have a wonderful view from my shack on Twin Peaks. It reminds me of my old home view in Youngtown (Lincolnton), Maine. I built here after our quake and fire and have a different atmosphere and less fog and trading, being in the lee of the Peaks. We had 70 warships here recently. All nations should furnish such a police patrol unit, to regulate international problems. So may they unite in future for peace and prohibit war and other outrages upon sea and land. But will jealousy and selfishness allow it?

BAXTER HAS HIS SAY

Worked, Voted and "Chipped" For the Republican Party, Declares the Former Governor.

Ex-Governor Percival P. Baxter, replying to charges made by Governor Ralph O. Brewster, of party disloyalty, declares that he voted for Gov. Brewster and the entire Republican ticket, contributed to the party campaign fund and supported the Republican ticket by a speechmaking tour.

Referring to a statement which Gov. Brewster says the former Governor sought from him, Ex-Gov. Baxter asserts that a statement prepared by himself and Chairman Daniel F. Field of the Republican State Committee was withdrawn after it had been submitted to the Governor. He further asserts that later Gov. Brewster submitted to Chairman Field a statement that he was willing to make, but that the Governor afterwards withdrew his own statement. The statement of Ex-Gov. Baxter follows:

"The attack that Gov. Brewster made upon me in the morning papers I shall give the already made by him upon Colonel Fred. N. Dow, Chairman Daniel F. Field of the Republican State Committee and Senator Frederick Hale. Like Gov. Brewster's first statement, his second one falls to give the documents in the case and without them it is impossible for the public to correctly judge the situation.

"I shall answer Gov. Brewster calmly and without charging international misrepresentation on his part of my position in the campaign. I shall give the facts so that the people, not Gov. Brewster, may decide as to my loyalty to the Republican party in the campaign of 1926.

"Early in July Chairman Field asked me if I would help in the Republican campaign. I replied I would help in every way possible, would go anywhere he wished to send me and would pay all expenses connected with my trips. I placed myself entirely at his disposal.

"As the time approached for the speech-making trips I consulted Chairman Field as to one feature that disturbed me. A year ago, 1925, Gov. Brewster made an unwarranted attack upon my administration of the State office, and he never has made any statement to correct what he said at that time. In view of this I did not feel that in my campaign speeches I could make personal reference to Gov. Brewster or discuss his State finances. To be sure of my position I consulted several of my closest Republican friends and asked their advice. Without exception they said it would be more honorable for me to confine myself strictly to National issues and to urge party loyalty; they agreed with me that I should avoid joint meetings and should not mention Gov. Brewster personally. Among others I talked this over with Chairman Field who was impartial and who was vitally interested in Republican success. Mr. Field was anxious to patch up all differences.

"Chairman Field wanted to do what he could to correct the above situation and thought that perhaps Gov. Brewster would do the honorable thing and make some brief statement to the effect that my administration proved to have been financially sound. I assured Mr. Field that personally I was wholly indifferent as to whether Gov. Brewster made such a statement or not, that I needed no vindication from him, that I would support the ticket regardless of what he might do, but that if the Governor did see fit to act it would relieve me of my embarrassment and I then would be glad to mention him and speak favorably of his financial management.

"On Aug. 13, at Mr. Field's suggestion a statement was prepared by Mr. Field and myself and submitted to Gov. Brewster at Lakewood by Mr. Field with the further suggestion that if it met with the Governor's approval he would make it public in some manner. I was not at Lakewood on the day in question. Following is an exact copy of the statement thus handed to Gov. Brewster for his consideration:

"On assuming office in January of last year I (Gov. Brewster) was not as familiar with the State's affairs as I am at present. At that time it appeared to me that there might not be sufficient funds to carry through to the end of the fiscal year in July and consequently I delivered a message to the Legislature that voiced my fears as to existing conditions.

"It is but fair and in the interests of justice now to say that when the books were closed the financial condition of the State proved to be sound. The revenues that had been provided for in advance materialized and took care of everything. My fears proved unfounded. It is recognized that my predecessor was burdened with heavy extraordinary expenses, that emergencies obliged him to meet; but notwithstanding these, the State Treasury was in a comfortable condition when turned over to me.

"I would do no one an injustice and so consider it proper for me to say to the people of Maine that my predecessor Ex-Gov. Baxter proved to be a prudent manager of the State's business."

"On Chairman Field's return to Portland he told me what he had done, and I, being fearful that Gov. Brewster might misunderstand my position, said to Chairman Field that I wanted him to be sure to write to Gov. Brewster telling him just how I stood and that it was a matter of indifference to me whether Gov. Brewster did anything about it or not. I reiterated my position and said I should support Gov. Brewster and the Republican ticket, regardless of anything he might or might not say about my administration.

"The following is an exact copy of the letter written to Gov. Brewster by Chairman Field:

"I am just leaving for Rumford, with Ex-Gov. Baxter. On talking with him about the matter that we discussed, I find that he is not interested to make any suggestions, and is indifferent as to whether anything is done or not. He desires to be left out of it altogether. The matter therefore rests entirely with you, just as though I had not mentioned it to you."

"It is important to remember that after I had told Chairman Field that I was indifferent as to whether the Governor made any statement or not, he (the Governor) himself submitted a statement which he hoped would satisfy my self respect and enable me to give my personal endorsement, which at that time he seemed desirous of having. His statement was given to Mr. Field in typewritten form and I have no copy of it. It was read to me but did not satisfy my requirements. Later Gov. Brewster withdrew this but his action was taken after Mr. Field had withdrawn the one submitted by him.

"The incident, as far as I was concerned, was closed by Mr. Field's action. The campaign began and I made about 15 speeches advocating party loyalty and the support of the entire ticket. I did all I could for the Republican party. It is true I did not mention Gov. Brewster's name nor refer to his administration. At each of the meetings there were local speakers who handled these features. Up to this time I never had spoken to Gov. Brewster about this matter, for months had elapsed since I had seen him, nor have I ever written him in regard to this matter.

"About ten days after all this had happened I went to Augusta as Gov. Brewster's guest to receive at the Three-Quarter Century Club meeting. The Governor invited me to his office and made reference to Chairman Field's letter and the above incident. My only comment was that the matter had been closed, that it was of no interest to me, that I was supporting the Republican ticket loyally, but that I thought it more honorable for me to avoid mentioning the Governor's name personally and refrain from discussing State administration.

"After this I continued my campaign work, speaking in various sections of the State. The longest trip that I took was for nine days, when I toured the eastern counties, speaking every day in different towns and cities. I urged the support of the entire ticket, predicted a normal Republican victory for the whole ticket and did everything in my power to help the Republican party.

"As a further tangible evidence of my loyalty I made the largest contribution to the Republican ticket I ever have made as a private citizen. I gave this without any restrictions being placed upon its use and when the committee's accounts are published it will be shown what I did. These contributions went to help elect Gov. Brewster, and many people also have made such a contribution to say that the speeches I made contributed something toward his and the party's success.

"In Gov. Brewster's statement he infers that I had something to do with suggesting to him that he be not a candidate in the next election. I gave this without any restrictions being placed upon its use and when the committee's accounts are published it will be shown what I did. These contributions went to help elect Gov. Brewster, and many people also have made such a contribution to say that the speeches I made contributed something toward his and the party's success.

"I shall not attempt to analyze the motives of Gov. Brewster for the documents in the case explain themselves. I submit them herewith to the people to read upon as a final test of my loyalty, on Sept. 13 I voted for Gov. Brewster and the straight Republican ticket."

FOND OF HIS WORK

Judge Dunn Is Very Approachable But Preserves Dignity On Bench

Those who attended the recent term of Knox County Supreme Court will read with interest the following tribute paid to him by a recent issue of the Bangor Commercial:

"Justice Charles J. Dunn of the Supreme Judicial Court is not exactly a resident of Bangor; his home is in Orono; but both communities look upon him as their own. He has the happy faculty of preserving the dignity of the bench, yet at the same time being very approachable. Visiting attorneys and newspaper men have been impressed by his conduct of important cases. Those who sit in his court cannot but feel, instinctively, that he is deeply fond of his important work; that he approaches the bench with almost a touch of reverence.

"Justice Dunn was born in Houghton County, Michigan; was educated in New York, and in 1920 received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Maine. He began the practice of law in Orono in 1892; was a member of the Maine House of Representatives in 1901-02; was judge of the Old Town Municipal Court from 1903 to 1911, and was appointed an associate justice of the Supreme Court in 1918. One of the most earnest interests has been the University of Maine, of which he was treasurer prior to assuming his present judicial duties.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

DIVINA COMEDIA

Oh have I seen at some cathedral door
A laborer, pausing in the dust and heat,
Lay down his burden, and with reverent feet
Enter, and cross himself, and on the floor
Kneel to repeat his paternoster over;
Far off the noises of the world retreat;
The loud vociferations of the street
Become an indistinguishable roar.
So, as I enter here from day to day,
And leave my burden at this master gate,
Kneeling in prayer, and not ashamed to pray,
The tumult of the time disconsolate
To inarticulate murmurs dies away.
While the eternal ages watch and wait.

The Courier-Gazette

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

CIRCULATION AFFIDAVIT
 Rockland, Maine, Sept. 30, 1926.
 I, the undersigned, being the publisher of the Courier-Gazette, do hereby certify that the issue of this paper of Sept. 29, 1926, was printed at a total of 6472 copies.
 Before me, FRANK S. WILDER, Notary Public.

Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such a one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.—Galatians 6:1.

A graduate of Columbia University, whose ambition was a secretarial position, asked Principal Gough of Bay Path Institute whether in her business course of study she should confine herself to stenography and typewriting, or enroll for a broader program, to include such subjects as commercial law, economics and salesmanship. Mr. Gough declares that the young lady is not the first to make this inquiry, which he hears raised many times in a year. Whenever he hears it he is reminded of the experience of an investigator, who studying the same matter addressed to a number of New York business men this question:

"Would a study of fundamental principles of business such as merchandizing, advertising, business organization and salesmanship be more valuable to a young person entering your employ than simply a specialized knowledge of book-keeping, stenography, or typewriting?"

Eighty-seven percent of the replies to this question registered an emphatic "yes." Commenting thereon Mr. Gough adds: "If this is the deliberate opinion of men who are concerned with the problem of selecting young people for their own organizations, can there be any question as to the wisdom of a combination of specialized training which will make an immediate entrance to a business office possible, and a grasp of fundamental business principles which will make promotion and progress certain? A happy combination of the two equally important elements should be demanded by the young person selecting a business course of study today."

Chairman Vahey of the Massachusetts Democratic convention allowed no illusions as to where he stood on the matter:

"We oppose relentlessly," he said, "the prohibition amendment and its ill begotten offspring the Volstead Act. They have destroyed temperance and truth; they have fostered hypocrisy and humbug; they have attacked and weakened the sanctity of the home and the safety of the family. Only by their repeal can we restore the reign of law and order, bring back American faith in democracy and representative government."

This is refreshingly reminiscent of our own old-time Democratic conventions in their perfunctory arraignment of the Maine Law. In fact we have a shrewd suspicion that Mr. Vahey must have had access to the files of those ancient gatherings and boldly appropriated a long-forgotten speech. Did the Maine Law "destroy temperance and truth?" Did it "weaken the sanctity of the home and the safety of the family?" To borrow from the expressive vocabulary of the day, apple sauce.

When your copy of The Courier-Gazette fails to be found at your door, a telephone message to the office, or a postcard by mail, will quickly serve to correct the error. This is a matter specially aimed at in the fourth amendment to the United States Constitution, which provides that—

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated."

It may be that your copy of the "paper" has been pinched by some super-lawless citizen and your rights pledged by the Constitution thereby to that extent "violated." Very well. It becomes your inalienable privilege, should you choose to go to that extreme of justification, to call upon the army and navy for the protection guaranteed by that Great Charter. But a simpler way, as we have pointed out, is to call up the office. Ring 770.

Would you like to be the owner of a Gutenberg Bible? The edition, printed in 1453, was limited to about half a score of copies printed on vellum. Otto H. Vollbehr, a New York book collector, has just bought one of them from a convent in Austria where it had reposed for a century, paying for it $275,000, said to be the highest price ever paid for a single book.

Nor shall we decline to withhold approbation of the sportsmanlike manner in which the deposed Mr. Dempsey views the matter. "I lost," he declares, "to a better man; that's all there is to it; no excuses, no sympathy, no alibis." Truly a proper attitude. We could commend it to the consideration of all defeated candidates.

With our Republican friends communicating their views so freely through the newspaper columns we should not look forward to the approaching primary as likely to be entirely devoid of interest.

"ROCKLAND DAY" AT UNION

North Knox Fair Is Providing Some Thrills Not Down On the Program—Exciting Horse Races.

It seemed to some observers that there were 3000 automobiles in Union yesterday. It was the second day of the North Knox Fair, and the second day has a faculty of being the big day, in spite of the fact that the best races and most events are reserved for the concluding session.

It is stated officially that 5500 tickets were sold yesterday, and while this is a very satisfactory showing it was 800 short of the big day last year. It is quite likely that this was partly due to the fact that so many Rockland patrons are planning to go today, instead of this being Rockland Day, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

The stock exhibit is particularly fine this year, and the ladies have fairly outdone themselves in fancy work. The management has provided good vaudeville, so that there are no long waits between heats.

Also there are some events not down on the program, such as the runaway of Tuesday afternoon, when R. K. Sayward was knocked down and badly bruised; and the mishap which occurred yesterday afternoon when an automobile went down over an embankment into the river. The car and its two occupants were rescued from their involuntary baptism by Fred M. Blackington who hauled the motor car out of the drink with his powerful truck.

Mr. Sayward was again on duty as ticket-taker yesterday, but bore plain evidences of having been hit by something. He was fortunate to have fared no worse.

Tuesday's Races

There were only two events on Tuesday's card, but interest was by no means lacking. The Gardiner horse Tony Mac captured the 2:40 class in straight heats, but in the 2:30 class it was a battle between Fannie Watson and Buck Creek, the former getting first money in a race of two heats in three.

The sensation of the day was caused by Copper Baron, the chestnut gelding owned by W. E. Haskell of Union, and driven by H. L. Turner of Union. The horse acted badly during scoring between the second and third heats and finally decided to run away. Mr. Turner was thrown from the sulky, and Copper Baron made the circuit of the track several times before his mad career could be checked. Mr. Turner received no serious injuries. Summary of the races:

2:40 Class, Purse $100

 Time, 2:15½, 2:15½, 2:18½, 2:20½.

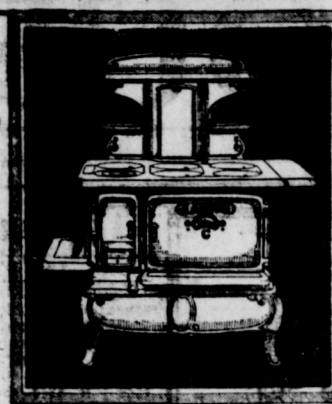

The only completed race yesterday was the 2:15 class, and split heats marked that also. P. L. Hupper went back to Stockton Springs with flying colors, Justice Belle having captured three. The summary:

2:15 Class, Purse $300
 Justice Belle, b. g., P. L. Hupper, Stockton Springs, 2 1 1 1
 Bona F., b. m., E. E. Foye, Gardiner, 1 2 2 2

THE DESK TELEPHONE

An ordinary desk telephone set, which apparently consists of only a receiver and transmitter, when taken apart will be found to have no less than 201 parts. One hundred and fourteen of these, however, are small, consisting of nuts, screws, washers, bushings, insulators, etc., while the remaining 87 are those parts which are held together by the smaller nuts.

All of these parts must be made so nearly alike that they will go into their respective places without any additional fitting. No variation in size beyond one-thousandth of an inch (plus or minus) is permissible. With a daily output of 5500 sets in one factory, no less than 1,100,000 parts must be handled in the assembling of these instruments. To maintain the accuracy necessary 30,000 gauges are used in the manufacture and testing processes.

Lower Prices for Finer Studebaker Cars

[An Announcement by Albert Russel Erskine, President of The Studebaker Corporation of America]

IN establishing prices on the new Studebaker Custom Sedans, we anticipated an increased sales volume. This has been forthcoming, for sales of Sedans since August 1st, 1926, have been more than double the best previous similar period, and more than four times the same period in 1925.

The Big Six Custom Brougham has registered a particularly gratifying volume but our dealers assure us that if the price of this model can be lowered substantially, sales can be trebled beyond even present volume.

We are, therefore, reducing the price of this model $200.00, giving purchasers immediately the benefit of economies which will result from increased production.

The Big Six Custom Brougham at $1785.00 is selling at the lowest price ever established for a Big Six Four-Door enclosed car. Prices of the Big Six Club Coupe, Standard Six Country Club Coupe and Standard Six Sport Roadster have also been reduced.

The following reductions in factory list prices are effective September 27, 1926

	Price Cut
Standard Six Country Club Coupe . . . . .	$ 35
Standard Six Sport Roadster . . . . .	80
Big Six Club Coupe . . . . .	205
Big Six Custom Brougham . . . . .	200

PRIEST ORDAINED

Ernest Ogden Kenyon Is Received Into the Sacred Order of Priests.

On Wednesday, the Feast of St. Michael and All Angels, Ernest Ogden Kenyon was ordained in St. Peter's Episcopal Church to the Sacred Order of Priests. The ceremony, performed here for the first time in thirty years, was beautiful and impressive. The pretty little church was a bower of flowers enshrouded by the lovely garlands. The ordination was at 10 a. m. The procession entered the main aisle of the church singing "The Church's One Foundation," with the choir of St. Peter's and St. Mary's, Thomaston. The order of process-

Rev. Ernest Ogden Kenyon, who was ordained to the Sacred Order of Priests at St. Peter's Church yesterday.

sion was as follows: First crucifer, little Frank Harding of Thomaston; the augmented choir; the visiting clergy, second crucifer, Clifford Ladd; Master of Ceremony John R. Libby, from the Cathedral in Portland; the Ordained, Ernest Ogden Kenyon; his Presenter, the Rev. Nelson B. Gildersleeve, Rector of St. Michael's Church, Auburn; Reader of the Preface, the Rev. John R. Macfarlane, Priest-in-charge of Emmanuel Church, Ashland; Preacher, the Rev. Arthur T. Stray, of St. Paul's, Brunswick; Reader of the Litany, the Very Rev. J. Arthur Glasier, Dean of St. Luke's Cathedral, Bath; the Bishop's Acolyte (or server), William Stallard; the Bishop's Chaplain, the Rev. Ralph Hayden of St. Thomas' Church, Camden; and lastly the Bishop, the Right Reverend Benjamin Brewster, D. D., Bishop of Maine, who completed the colorful picture in his gorgeous cope and mitre of gold brocade, trimmed with blue and embroidered in gold.

The ancient Marbeck service was sung, with an offertory solo, "Ave Verum" (Mozart), by Mrs. Evelyn Peaslee, and the lovely "Benedictus" by Venite, by Miss Vera Nye. This was Miss Nye's debut as a choir soloist.

The Rev. Arthur Stray preached an inspiring sermon, concluding with an address to the Ordained. After the Epistle and the Gospel the impressive ceremony of ordination took place.

In the Episcopal Church the line in which the Ministry is handed on from age to age by the laying on of hands of Bishops; the Corporate lineage of the Christian Clergy. The continuity of the Church appears not only in the unbroken succession of her Ministry from the Apostles, but also in her apostolic institutions and sacraments, which she has preserved in their integrity from the beginning; her apostolic form of worship, or Liturgy, which is preserved with the same fundamental outline which it had in primitive days in every true communion of the Church throughout the world.

After the laying on of hands by the whole clergy and the Bishop—a picture of Medieval beauty—the Bishop takes the stole which the Ordained had worn over the left shoulder and puts it over both shoulders. Then he puts the chasuble, a cape-like garment of white silk embroidered with red and gold, over his shoulders and the mantle over the left wrist and he is vested as a priest. After the offertory, prayers and Nunc Dimittis, the recessional was sung, "Ye Christian Heralds," and the beautiful procession marched out.

Mrs. George Parker (Gertrude Saville), organist, had rendered a prelude including Reverie (Dickinson) and Even Song (Martin). Mr. Kenyon, who is an accomplished musician, had trained the choir.

Luncheon was served in the parish room at noon by the ladies of the Guild of St. Mary's, Thomaston, and St. Peter's. The room has been recently redecorated and was a mass of flowers and evergreen. After luncheon the Bishop spoke informally and called on many of the distinguished assembly for impromptu remarks.

St. Peter's Parish built their first church in Park street in 1853, which was consecrated by Bishop Burgess in 1854. In 1883 a new church was built on White street, which is the transept of the present church. In 1889 the Rev. John S. Moody was instrumental in having the present nave added. The work of designing it was done by the famous architect Stanford White and is considered an architectural gem. The Rev. George Slattery, father of the present Bishop Charles Slattery of Massachusetts, was the first rector of St. Peter's. His wife was Miss Emma Kaler of Rockland.

Many out-of-town guests attended the ordination yesterday, among whom may be mentioned Mr. and Mrs. George O. Kenyon of Auburn, parents of the pastor, and Mrs. Annie Hartin, his grandmother; Mrs. A. T. Stray and Miss Williams of Brunswick; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Nash of Wiscasset; (Mr. Nash is secretary of the standing committee of the diocese); Guy Hussey of Damariscotta; the Rev. Myles Hemenway of Portland; Mrs. Arthur Glasier; Mrs. Ralph Hayden; Mr. and Mrs. Levi

POWER DISPATCHER IS COM-MANDER IN CHIEF OF ELECTRIC ARMY.

Electricity is dispatched through thousands of miles of wire in every great city almost as trains are dispatched on a railroad. Men who sit quietly at control boards directing electric energy equal to or exceeding a million horsepower have a tough job, however. They see to it that every extra demand for electricity from any one of a thousand points is met by generating machinery and substations in many sections of a service company's system. They speed up the system to meet the 20 per cent increase that comes suddenly from a whole city with the arrival of a rain cloud—and slow it down again when the cloud has crossed the sun. They arrange for the noon hour and 5 o'clock "peaks" and all the other regular periodic spurts, for the seasonal weather fluctuations and for the myriad unforeseen emergencies which arise. Every city depends upon them, yet few people know they exist.

PARK THEATRE

Everywhere hailed as "delightfully different," "You Never Know Women" marks the initial starring appearance of Florence Vidog in a Paramount Picture. Will have its last showing today.

"You Never Know Women" combines drama, romance, spectacle and gorgeousness to the highest degree, with a notable company of players headed by Lowell Sherman, Clive Brook and El Brendel. Its supporting cast embraces a dozen internationally known acts from the field of vaudeville and musical comedy who go through their complete routine as members of the "Balagan Variety Company." Miss Vidog as the "Vera" of "Vera & Norodin" is a headliner. The pictures locale is New York and the story's action takes place for the most part, on and behind the stage of a theatre where the company appears in a presentation somewhat akin to the "Chauffeur's Story."

The double feature program for Friday and Saturday is Milton Sills and Betty Brenson in "Paradise" and George O'Hara in "Going Some"—adv.

EMPIRE THEATRE

Today will be your last opportunity to see Francis Bushman and Billie Dove in "The Marriage Clause." The other feature is "Hair Trigger" with Bob Custer.

The attraction for Friday and Saturday is "The High Flyer," featuring Reed Howes. "The High Flyer" is spiced with some of the most amazing thrills ever caught by the camera. Besides Reed Howes—who is a veritable show in himself—"The High Flyer" can boast of a truly remarkable cast, in which are included such well known and well loved players as Ethel Shannon and Paul Panzer.—adv.

STRAND THEATRE

Crowds attended the Strand yesterday to witness the initial showing of Cecil B. DeMille's great production "Silence" featuring H. B. Warner, which will be shown again today for the benefit of the Knox County General Hospital. O'Hara's novel song-film "Barcelona" was much appreciated judging by the numerous voices heard from the audience and by the hearty applause. This novelty will also be presented again today.

You have heard of the fellow who vowed never to fall for a pair of "soft boiled eyes." He usually is the first to flop. It is this type of character Harold Lloyd portrays in his newest laugh sensation, "Hot Water," his second venture as an independent producer, and showing Friday and Saturday at the Strand Theatre. In the opening scenes of the picture, Lloyd is shown running to a wedding to play best man for his pal. On the way he bumps into pretty Jobyna Ralston, and all his resolutions never to give up his freedom for any skirt are shot right there. The balance of the picture relates the story of their matrimonial life, with their ripples turned into wild waves of discontent through the intervention of the girl's mother, and her two brothers. One wonders how so many laughs can be created as are crowded into the five reels of "Hot Water" but Lloyd and his staff eat and sleep gags while they are engaged on a picture. The added attraction is "Midnight Thieves" with Herbert Rawlinson.—adv.

SOUTH THOMASTON

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Munroe who have been living in the Green tenement house, have moved onto the Knowlton farm for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Lane Thorndyke, Joshua Thorndyke and Mrs. Lizzie Piersons were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Thorndyke Sunday. Joshua Thorndyke left Monday for his St. Petersburg home which he has been advised suffered only slight damage during the recent hurricane.

Arthur Norton is having a chimney rebuilt and his house shingled. Mrs. Annie Blanchard and four years old son William from East Hartford, Conn., arrived here Saturday for a visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCausland of Worcester, Mass., were weekend guests of Mrs. Bertha Hanley.

Charles Butler (son of Lewis Butler) from Portland visited relatives in this town Wednesday.

Owing to ill health Mrs. LeRoy Allen has been obliged to leave her position and returned to her home here Monday.

Chester Allen has a position in New York where he went last week. Wednesday a very enjoyable dinner party was held at the home of Mrs. L. G. Coombs, the guest of honor being Aiden Butler from California who was visiting his old home

MOTORIST HINTS

Know Where You're Going
Is One—Drive At Even Pace Is Another.

Washington, D. C.—Intelligent driving rather than occasional spurts at high speed is recommended by the American Automobile Association as a time-saver for long distance motoring. Speed alone will not aid the motorist to reach his destination in the shortest time, a statement issued from A. A. headquarters here asserts.

The automobilist who makes long distances with ease is the one who anticipates the turns and the stops ahead of him. It is pointed out by Thos. P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., whose transcontinental trip with Ernest N. Smith, general manager, in 96 hours, still is fresh in the memory of motorists throughout the country. Mr. Henry contends that the intelligent driver makes time where the short-sighted bungler is merely waiting for a long stretch of perfect road where he can step hard on the gas. The A. A. A. president believes it is not even necessary to have an exceptionally fast car to get from city to city in the best time.

The American Automobile Association has drafted some definite suggestions which, if followed carefully, should enable the motorist to make long distance in far better time and entail fewer risks than when he depends on speed alone.

"First know where you're going," the A. A. A. advises. "It is quite surprising the number of tourists who travel blindly, depending for guidance upon misinformation handed out to them enroute."

"Know ferry schedules so as to be able to make quick connections. Passing one or two cars at an advantageous point often means saving a long wait by the river's edge."

"Learn the importance of quick acceleration and make every effort to keep the engine in such condition that it will help you to save time when starting off from crossings, after having rounded curves and when passing other cars."

"Learn how to make a quick shift into second gear so as to save the brakes when descending hills and to forestall the possibility of having no wait at the bottom of the hill until the brakes cool off."

"Climb more hills in second gear. A great many cars are now built with second gears which enable the driver to climb steep grades easily at twenty-five miles an hour or more as against a struggle at twenty to twenty-five in high gear."

Drive at an even pace and avoid stopping. A few unnecessary stops out the speed average considerably.

"Remember that at high speed the chances of tire or engine trouble always are greater. "Get behind a good driver who is making good time in safety. He is a good man to follow."

"Buy your supplies before you start. It saves slowing down to look for filling stations that serve your favorite gas."

"Before passing through an unfamiliar city it is better to stop and ask if there is a route that avoids traffic. It's the one stop on any tour that may save considerable time."

"Learn to watch the speedometer more. Don't set out with the idea of only seeing the fifties and sixties come up on the dial, but see how often you are driving a little below thirty or thirty-five when you could these speeds.

"Take no chances of any kind. It takes time even to lecture someone who has scratched a fender."

LOTS OF CRANBERRY SASS

There will be plenty of cranberry sauce for this year's Thanksgiving turkey. The New England crop reporting service announced Sunday that the present outlook was for a total United States cranberry crop of at least 700,000 barrels, as compared with average of about 600,000 for the last four years. For Massachusetts one of the leading cranberry states, the forecast is for a crop of 425,000 barrels as against 428,626 last year and a four year average of 377,000. The early varieties grown on the Cape Cod and Plymouth County bogs are nearly all harvested and the harvesting of late berries is beginning. The berries are of good quality.

TO ACQUAINT STUDENTS WITH CITY'S INDUSTRIES

"Let's Know Detroit" courses are offered in the academic high schools of Detroit by the vocational education department. They are industrial mechanics courses designed to meet the demand for industrial information by persons in professional and commercial pursuits. The principal industries of the city are represented in the four courses, which embrace metal industries, automobile industries, building industries, electrical construction, and woodworking industries. The courses are arranged to cover four semesters. Instruction is given in general shops with a great variety of equipment, supplemented by specialized shops. Suitable books, group excursions, student reports, class discussions, talks by specialists, and shop practice are all utilized in teaching. In five high schools 441 students were enrolled in the industrial mechanics courses in the past school year.

Justice of Peace McArthur Recovers From Illness

Threatened With Loss of Health Due to Operation and Blood Poisoning, Cambridge Man Finds Relief.
Regains Strength. Praises Tanlac

If you are nearing time when good health slips from you; if indigestion, nervousness, kidney disorders and ailments caused by run-down condition torture you, benefit by the experience of Cornelius McArthur, well-known Cambridge, Mass., Justice of Peace, and building contractor.

Sitting in his home at 35 Williams Street, Mr. McArthur recently said: "I am glad to be able to tell you what Tanlac did for me. In 1913, following an operation, blood poisoning set in and afterwards I could not regain my strength. My stomach gave out completely. Gas caused a sharp pain around my heart and the lump in my stomach made me think I had cancer."

"Whenever I walked on crowded streets I would get dizzy and my nerves were in such a bad state that everything bothered me. My condition became so deplorable that I had to give up work entirely. I had grave doubts that anything could give me relief from suffering when I began taking Tanlac. Imagine my surprise when this wonderful tonic began to make me feel better."

"Tanlac relieved me and in a short time I was back to business. Nervousness, gastritis and dizziness disappeared. I am really so enthusiastic about Tanlac that if I had a dozen bottles I would pass them around among my friends and give them—perfect health."

Thousands of fortunate men and women now enjoying good health and vital strength thank Tanlac, the safe, effective remedy made from roots, herbs and herbs. Learn from their experience and never suffer another pain or ailment. Take Tanlac. The first bottle will show amazing results. At all drug stores. Over 40 million bottles sold.

AUTUMN IS WITH US

With Glories That Fair Outrival Summer That Is Past.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—Our common mother rests and slugs. Like Ruth, among her garnered sheaves. Her lap is full of goodly things. Her brow is bright with autumn leaves. —Whitier.

Sept. 25, 1926, the thermometer 89, humidity 82, and then came a thunder-shower at 11 p. m. We set our clocks and watches back one hour and awoke this morning to find a beautiful New England autumn day. I sometimes wonder if I appreciate it I should these delightful days. On do I take them too much as something that just happens.

Strange that summer skies and sunbeams Never seem but half so fair As when winter's snowy pinions Chase the white down from the air.

I had a walk through The Fells and found the country looking quite green. The golden rod is still with us, and the foliage remains green, though here and there could be seen a touch of color, brown or bright red. I am told that in some parts of Florida in the winter the sun shines every day for weeks at a time. I am also informed that on some of the plateaus of Mexico one may pick strawberries every day in the year. I love the sunshine, and I never have refused strawberries, yet I do not think I should care to live in either of those localities.

Had I been taken when young to some clime where perpetual sunshine and strawberries abound, it might have been different, but when one gets along in years the change is too radical. So, New England for me, and as one of our elderly friends remarked, "I always notice that if I live through March I live through the rest of the year."

We still have some weeks ahead of us when the sun will be bright, the air crisp, the foliage lovely, and it will be "grand and glorious" to be in New England. Speaking with the Metropolitan mounted officer who patrols the Fells seven days a week, he remarked to me that a ride of an hour or so through the reservation was fine, but to do it all day long was work. So I am glad that once or twice a week I can get out in the open spaces and enjoy it, and don't have to do it for an occupation.

God gives us with our rugged soil The power to make it Eden-fair, And richer fruits to crown our toil Than summer walled islands bear. Still a countryman. Boze, Somerville, Mass., Sept. 26.

of the local club are urged to attend.

ROCHESTER-WOLFE

A wedding of special interest to Rockland social circles, in which the bride is a favorite, took place in Arlington, Vt., Sept. 22, when Miss Gwendolyn Wolfe, only daughter of Mrs. J. M. Baldrige of Clifford Lodge, Warrenton, was united in marriage to Edward F. Rochester of Boston. The ceremony which was a very quiet one, took place at Mt. Mansfield Farm,
the home of the groom's aunt, Rev.
Robert Brush, the Episcopal rector, officiating. Immediately following the ceremony the wedded couple left on a tour through the White Mountains, including a brief visit at the bride's home at Warrenton, and ending at Boston, where they are at present at Hotel Sheraton. Later they will take up their permanent residence at West Mountain Farm. The bride is a well-known and highly popular member of the young social set of Rockland, and is known to a wide circle throughout New England as one of the foremost horse-women of the country. Mr. Rochester is the New England representative of the Pacific Lumber Co. of San Francisco, with Boston headquarters.
From this section many warm congratulations will follow Mr. and Mrs.
Rochester into their wedded life.

Calif., and W. H. Healey of Medford, Mass., are spending a few days in this city, which was their home many years ago. Charles Healey has visited Rockland but once since he left the city half a century ago, and that was 33 years ago. The Healeys are registered at the Thorndike Hotel and are trying to acustom themselves to the many changes that have taken place in the city since they last saw it.

Mrs. J. M. Baldrige accompanied by Benjamin F. Smith and Miss Mildred Taylor motored today to Boston, where they will occupy 21 Commonwealth avenue for the winter. The Gray cruiser "The Duchess" has been taken to Boston by the skipper and mate.

from Brewster, Mass., whither she accompanied her daughter, Miss Rose O'Neill, who has entered "Sea Pines."

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Stinson of this city and Dr. and Mrs. Frank J. Murphy of Swans Island are on a four-night's vacation motor trip through the Montreal country. Meantime F. B. Stinson is acting as general agent of the Rockland & Vinahaven Steamboat Co. and Reuben Cousins of Stonington is running purser on the Steamer Gov. Bodwell.

Mrs. Lillian B. Mortland, Dr. Ruth McBeath and daughter Betty, left last night for Boston. Oct. 2 they will sail on the Royal Mail Liner Ohio for Cherbourg, from which point they will motor through Britany if the charabanks are still running. They plan on a month in Paris, after which they will go to the Riviera for part of the winter. Dr.
McBeath says she may possibly return next summer. Both ladies have closed their Rockland homes.

ON MY SET

The wonderful reception of Tuesday night is still the talk of all radio fans. It was station-the best in my experience, with WJZ, WBZ and WPG especially clear and powerful.—The Railroad Boys on WJZ had lots of bouquets tossed in their direction.
Last night there was some static,
but results were generally satisfactory except on the low wave stations which were inclined to distort.—How many of you logged that portable station WCWS, which was on the air early in the evening, broadcasting from Bridgeport, Conn. It made my 16th station.—Other stations which I logged included CNR of Montreal, WEAQ of Columbus, O., and WENR and WJAZ of Chicago.—Will somebody kindly tell me what station was broadcasting that sermon about 10.30?
—A letter from Oliver Washburn of Portland, received just as this paper goes to press, will receive attention in the next issue.

Mrs. Mary Rollins and son Oliver spent Tuesday in Portland, attending the theatres, and returning next day.

Miss Helen McLoon has arrived home from a trip to Boston.

Mrs. M. R. Pillsbury and Mrs.
W. W. Shear entertained at luncheon
Wednesday at Hilltop Inn, Warren, for Mrs. W. T. White of New York.

Monday was a pink letter day in the young life of Frances Virginia Marsh, who celebrated her sixth birthday by entertaining at her Broad street home twelve of her little playmates: Ruth Rhodes, Ruth Thomas, Vera Easton, Charlotte
Staples, Priscilla Staples, June Miles,
Katherine Jordan, Helen McDonald, Dorothy McDonald, Jeanette Gordon
and Jeanie McAllister. Priscilla Staples won first prize in the pen-nat hunt and Katherine Jordan the consolation prize. Helen McDonald, Ruth Rhodes and Jeanie McAllister gave a fine exhibition of the popular Chagston dances. As the children assembled in the dining room for refreshments they made a lovely picture, in the first pink flush of youth. Each wore a pink crown.
The pink scheme was carried out in the decorations. From a large basket in the center of table ribbons led to each plate, which being pulled revealed a kewpie doll. These with baskets filled with candies were given as souvenirs. A beautifully decorated cake with six candles burned brightly and the pink and green ice cream disappeared like magic, together with the dainty little cakes and orangeade. Garden flowers added to the attractive decorations. The little ones left with Miss Frances many gifts.

MISS COUGHLIN'S SUMMER TOUR

Some Interesting Glimpses of Europe, As Seen Through Eyes of Rockland's Talented Educator.

(Third Installment)

Since arriving home I have had many inquiries as to the cost of an European trip. While it cannot be estimated in exact dollars and cents, at the present time a person can tour Europe comprehensively on $10 to $12 per day. Of course, this sum could not provide quarters at first-class hotels which charge exorbitant fees, as is true everywhere, or indulging in many Parisian gowns. But on the other hand the second-class hotels are very comfortable, clean and convenient, and usually there is more atmosphere to be found in these houses. If one is seeking that sort of thing, I judge that it is possible during the present year to tour Europe cheaper than it will be again for some time.

We were among the fortunate in regard to our quarters in Paris. On shipboard we met two friends of my cousin, the Misses Wilkinson from Rochester, N. Y., both school instructors, who through their familiarity with Paris were able to tell us of a certain hotel in the Latin Quarter, patronized chiefly by a colony of Americans, professional men and women, artists, teachers, students, etc. All the prices in the hotels in Paris are fixed by law; nevertheless, the degrees of comfort and service vary, and the price is no guarantee. However, we were very comfortable and happy at this little hostelry, met many interesting men and women there, and considered it a profitable experience.

My cousin had already told me that the two things in Paris that make the first appeal to womanhood are clothes and restaurants. Not to be an exception to this belief, I first observed the styles and then indulged in a restaurant. Possibly the American modiste will be interested to know that the Parisian women do not wear their skirts as short as the American girls living in Paris.

Restaurants in Paris are thicker than spatters, but we finally chose one that is famous for its lobster dinners. We had a meal that would tempt a gourmand. The lobster was all that it was advertised, and all else was delicious, and it cost us $1.50 in our money! It would not have been possible in New York City to have procured such a dinner for less than $4 a plate.

We attended Grand Opera and the Folies, rather a far cry, is it not? The most interesting feature of the Folies was a box occupied by a group of delegates from Morocco, garbed in their native attire, their swarthy faces almost startling in their peculiar head dress, consisting of folds of white cloth wound round and round the head.

All through France the people are discouraged and disconsolate. They are resentful and bitter, and there seems to be little to make them take heart. When we arrived in Paris there were 30 francs to an American dollar; when we came away there were 40 and apparently the value would drop again soon. Labor is poorly paid. For instance, taxi drivers receive no salary; all the returns from their labor are tips they receive from customers. Consequently they expect munificent tips and unfortunately are the wrong type on the whole to warrant generosity, as they seem mostly to be a surly, morose crowd.

Taxi rates are very reasonable. A drive of five or more miles would amount to only 75 cents. One afternoon four of us had a taxi for several hours, and the entire charge was only $1.50. Clothing seems cheap to us. A very beautiful gown can be purchased for $15 in our money, but the price on the tag, 400 francs, sounds exorbitant to the French woman.

Paris is noted for being the cleanest city in the world. Each morning the streets are swept and washed, even to the remotest corners. I saw no tall trees in the city of Paris and was curious to know the reason. I learned that by a municipal arrangement the trees are allowed to grow to a certain height, then are clipped off. They are kept trimmed, and the effect of a long avenue with trees on either side, of the same height and trimmed and clipped, is very striking and artistic. In fact I never saw such beautiful trees, such splendid foliage seeming more like garlands than leaves. They receive great care. Each tree is protected by a small grating or fence, and the earth around the trunk is often turned and enriched.

We had been told that the French were anything but cordial toward Americans, and we found this to be entirely true, even more so than we expected. The very air seemed surcharged, but fortunately nothing serious did take place. They blame us for their present condition, particularly regarding finance. They claim that we have been ruinous to their prosperity, that we are responsible for the low value of the franc, the 40 of today as compared with the five of yesterday, and so on. Their feelings were for some time further agitated by an English paper, the London Daily Mail. We saw copies of this paper so know it to be a fact. Each day there appeared on the front page of this publication an item by itself, made conspicuous by a heavy black line about it, with this heading: "The Truth About the Americans."

These items would go on to say that we were responsible for the present deplorable condition of France and England, that we had lost no men in the World War as compared with France and England, that our suffering had been inconsequential, and rather a good deal touching on the war debt.

Such an item appeared each day, stressing the position of France and England, and making the United States look entirely in the wrong. This has resulted in working the French people up to their present pitch of emotion. However, our own Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, went over to England and the news items in the London Daily Mail have ceased to appear, but of course not before bad results had been accomplished. We had an inkling of the feeling of the French people as Bastille Day drew near. On the Sunday before, as we came out of church, a young girl stood near the door selling small American flags, designed to wear on one's coat or dress. A friend who was with us advised us anxiously not to buy one, or if we did, not to wear it in sight, declaring that this was being taken to have all the Americans in Paris spotted. We could see by his anxiety that it was generally felt things were at an extreme emotional pitch. However, I bought one and wore it in plain sight, not in defiance but with deep pride, and with no unpleasant results.

The French peasant is beginning to prosper, like the working class in this country. He has always been thrifty, and finally so. At the time of the Franco-Prussian War the peasants brought forth their small herds of money and turned it over to their country to fight the enemy. This was not true of the late war. They have held on to their money, and now that many vast estates in France are impoverished, chiefly due to enormous death dues that are assessed on such estates, they are buying up this land in small parcels, owning their autos, and beginning to live in a degree of real comfort. The Place de la Concorde is the most beautiful sight I have been privileged to see; that is, something fashioned by the skill of man—so beautiful that it is impossible to describe it justifiably. There are 12 Amazon figures of women representing 12 important cities of France. These statues particularly impressed me by their grandeur. Strasbourg is the first figure, and until the time the World War ended, she had been draped in black and borne other symbols of mourning. But on Armistice Day the mourning was removed, and the French colors placed there and fresh flowers as well. This has been true ever since.

We visited Sarah Bernhardt's tomb in a very famous cemetery in the heart of Paris and made a brief visit to the Louvre. Many might wonder why we made our visit to the Louvre a brief one. In the time we had allotted to us in France it necessarily had to be brief, as it would take months and even years to see the Louvre at it should be properly. We went with one object in view, to see the Venus de Milo. As we passed through the corridor after corridor, we saw the original Mona Lisa by the Vinci, which surprised me by its smallness (I had imagined it a vast canvas); also the Raphaels, which seemed to me of almost unearthly beauty, in their colorings. Such reds, such blues, such glowing backgrounds and faces that looked so alive! We took many steps before we arrived at the Venus de Milo, but it was worth it. This statue stands at the end of a long corridor, in sharp and beautiful contrast against a black velvet background. She is indescribably beautiful, as beautiful as the story that has always clung to her. As I looked at her fully in the face, the expression there seemed so sweet and womanly, but as I caught a glimpse of her in profile I saw a slightly superior air as if she were still proclaiming her superiority in beauty over all the beautiful women that had come after her day.

We visited the City Hall and went into the room where Queen Marie Antoinette was imprisoned 36 hours before she was taken to her death. A small basement room, with absolutely nothing in it. With many other women she was kept prisoner here with men in charge. As can be readily imagined, these women were subjected to horrible insults and outrages. I had just seen Fontainebleau, the beautiful palace with its polished floors and wonderful tapestries, where Marie Antoinette had reigned a happy queen, but that did not impress me one half as much as did this dark basement room where that refined, delicately nurtured woman had been kept prisoner and abused and tortured.

Fontainebleau is marvelous. Six palaces connected by courts and gardens. Parts of it, sad to say, are beginning to crumble and show signs of age, but there still remains tapestries that are wonderful beyond the wildest imagination, depicting battle scenes, with figures life size and done in the most gorgeous colors. The floors are laid in mosaics, so exquisite that it seems a sacrifice to walk on them. The ceilings are tinted and painted in glowing colors and intricate designs. It breathes romance everywhere, and it would take weeks to describe in detail all its beauties. Here, as is generally known, is held a summer school of music, master classes only.

What an inspiration and privilege for the students to work in such an atmosphere surrounded by all these beauties and stories of past glory and splendor.

We had an inkling of the feeling of the French people as Bastille Day drew near. On the Sunday before, as we came out of church, a young girl stood near the door selling small American flags, designed to wear on one's coat or dress. A friend who was with us advised us anxiously not to buy one, or if we did, not to wear it in sight, declaring that this was being taken to have all the Americans in Paris spotted. We could see by his anxiety that it was generally felt things were at an extreme emotional pitch. However, I bought one and wore it in plain sight, not in defiance but with deep pride, and with no unpleasant results.

The French peasant is beginning to prosper, like the working class in this country. He has always been thrifty, and finally so. At the time of the Franco-Prussian War the peasants brought forth their small herds of money and turned it over to their country to fight the enemy. This was not true of the late war. They have held on to their money, and now that many vast estates in France are impoverished, chiefly due to enormous death dues that are assessed on such estates, they are buying up this land in small parcels, owning their autos, and beginning to live in a degree of real comfort. The Place de la Concorde is the most beautiful sight I have been privileged to see; that is, something fashioned by the skill of man—so beautiful that it is impossible to describe it justifiably. There are 12 Amazon figures of women representing 12 important cities of France. These statues particularly impressed me by their grandeur. Strasbourg is the first figure, and until the time the World War ended, she had been draped in black and borne other symbols of mourning. But on Armistice Day the mourning was removed, and the French colors placed there and fresh flowers as well. This has been true ever since.

THE HOUSEWIFE BUYS

A Home Economics Article Written By College of Agriculture Student.

Mr. Green's salary per year is several hundred dollars more than Mr. Brown's but Mr. Green is continually complaining to his wife about the size of the food bills, and the fact that they are not saving money. Mrs. Green finally swallowed her pride and asked Mrs. Brown how she ever managed so well on her husband's salary.

Mrs. Brown told her friend that it was only by careful planning of the income that she managed to keep the family looking so healthy and prosperous on Mr. Brown's present salary. From previous experience she knows how much of each week's pay check she may have for food, clothing and other expenses.

When she first went housekeeping she decided that it was cheaper to buy certain articles as matches, sugar and flour in quantity as they had plenty of room to store such things. Of course she tried to buy these things in the season when they are cheapest and after a few years experience of studying prices decided that January was the best time to buy linens, reduced prices winter clothing and undergarments; February, canned goods; March, kitchen utensils; April, barrel of sugar, preserving and canning jars; May, coal; June, Christmas gifts; July, reduced price summer garments and textiles; August, furniture, reduced price summer furnishings, blankets and bedding; September, winter apples, root vegetables, onions; October, canned goods, potatoes, cereals, dried vegetables; November, lard, smoked meats, syrups, and in December, extra delicacies and soap.

Quantity to Buy The quantity of supplies purchased depends of course on the size of the family. There are five in Mrs. Brown's family so that she has to buy more than Mrs. Green for her family of three. Mrs. Brown suggested to Mrs. Green that she may be two or three of the neighbors might club together to purchase a barrel of apples, a crate of oranges or eggs. In this way they might buy perishable supplies cheaply and no family would have more than it could handle.

How to Buy Mrs. Brown tried very hard to impress Mrs. Green with the fact that she planned her meals at least two days in advance so that she only has to go to market once or twice a week. She has selected Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday for marketing as on these days the perishable fruits and vegetables are brought into the markets fresh. When especially busy Mrs. Brown sometimes has her marketing done by telephone. The grocery butcher, Mrs. Brown's order their personal attention as they know she will not call up two or three times again during the day for some article which she forgot in the first order.

They also appreciate the fact that Mrs. Brown is aware that the price she charges for lettuce in March is not due to any large profit on their part but due to the early season for lettuce. Therefore she does not complain of the price but purchases the vegetables which are in season and reasonable in price, as carrots or onions.

Where to Buy Mrs. Green was surprised that Mrs. Brown traded with Mr. Moderate Priced Grocer instead of Mr. Cheapman as she does. Mrs. Brown, however, pointed out that Mr. Cheapman does not obey the national or state laws regarding the standards and handling of products. He allows perishable food, as berries or cuts of meat to be placed in the show window and on the counters without any screens or glass to protect them from the flies or cats. His clerks have dirty hands and soiled clothes and are continually spitting on the floor. Mr. Moderate Priced Grocer sells only wrapped bread which comes from sanitary conducted bakeries, he does not sell catsup, meats or canned vegetables which have been treated with chemical preservatives as benzoate or salicylic acid. He also carries the darker colored flour and rice which Mrs. Brown uses as she realizes that the very white bleached flour and rice in the refining process have lost considerable nourishing qualities.

Mrs. Brown is also sure that her tradespeople give her honest measure for she compares their weights to those of her own home scales which are accurate.

Mrs. Brown then told Mrs. Green of a few of the methods which dishonest tradespeople take to cheat their customers. The scales may be faulty because it is too heavy on the scoop side, or a false weight may be given by attaching small wads of foreign material under the scoop.

All scales should bear the inspection stamp of approval. Dry measures may be faulty due to false bottoms put in baskets, barrels and measures. Or the sides may be broken and dented. Likewise six quart measures are often used for eight quart measures or liquid measure is used which is less than dry measure.

In the purchasing of meat the housewife should ask for the trimmings, which she has paid for. If the butcher keeps them he resells them and thus is paid twice for the same pieces. Mrs. Brown always purchases by a definite amount thus she asks for 60 pounds of potatoes instead of a bushel. Also in buying by the bag she is sure of the weight paid for as bags are liable to vary in size and consequently the consumer does not get a square deal.

The honest dealer respects the consumer who insists upon honest measurements and sanitary conditions. He welcomes her inspection as it binds the wife housewife more securely to his store. It is, therefore, the duty of the housewife to demand honest tradespeople and sanitary stores both for her own benefit and for the betterment of the community.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

$10,000 In It If You Can Properly Name The New Jewett.

Ten thousand dollars is yours if you suggest a word or slogan that best expresses the "smartness, style, charm and vogue" of the new Jewett four-door sedan. The Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. produced the sedan putting into it every feature of color, line, contour and grace that it could make it a fit companion car of the famous Paige, but words failed when it sought a word or slogan aptly descriptive of its creation. Hence the prize offer of $10,000 for the winning suggestion, and a Jewett sedan to each of the two next best.

The contest is open to everybody except children under 14 years of age. The conditions are simple. First, go see the car—for the slogan must be descriptive. The sedan is on exhibition at the showroom of Jones Motor Co., local distributor. Obtain an official ballot at the showroom, and after it is filled in, return it to the distributor for his authentication. The name or phrase must be in six words or less. Besides the slogan itself, the contestant must write, in fifty words or fewer, his reasons in support of its appropriateness. Originality of thought, cleverness of name or phrase, soundness or brevity of the reasons advanced for its use, and clearness of expression and neatness will be the basis for rating the suggestions.

If the winning slogan be duplicated by other contestants, and all the other factors be adjudged equally good, a duplicate reward will be paid to each of the tying contestants. The contest is open now, and will close Oct. 31, 1926. Only those suggestions that are submitted on an official ballot will be considered. Final selection will be made by a committee consisting of Edgar A. Guest, whose verses are known in most households in America; Charles W. Brooke, president of the Adcraft Club of Detroit and of the Detroit Better Business Bureau; and Harry M. Jewett, president, Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company.—adv.

Farm Storage Cellar Will Pay for Itself

Have you ever had the experience of trying to sell apples, potatoes and other crops when everyone else was trying to do the same thing?

Markets glutted at harvest time often knock the profits out of a season's efforts.

Why not arrange to store some of your crops so they can be marketed in accordance with demand?

Here's where the concrete storage cellar comes in. Many a farmer who has one can tell you that its total cost was returned to him the first year by being able to take advantage of marketing conditions when they were most favorable.

You can easily build a storage cellar or other concrete improvements on your farm by following a few simple directions. Let us send you a free copy of our booklet "Plans for Concrete Farm Buildings." Write for it today.
