LADY ASTOR GOES

Titled Visitor, Who Summered At Islesboro, Returns To England.

Lady Nancy Astor, who spent the month of August at Islesboro, with frequent trips to Rockland sailed for home on the Aquitania Wednesday, almost a month after her husband and children had returned.

Queen Marie of Rumania, now on her way to this country, was characterized by Lady Astor as the woman who has the greatest world war record. She praised the Queen's courageous character.

Regarding prohibition, of which she is a strong supporter, Lady Astor said it was nonsense to maintain there is more drinking in the United States now than before prohibition.

The recent prediction of Dean Inge of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, that the British Empire is due for a decline as a world power is not to be taken seriously, Lady Astor said.

"I never pay much attention to him nor do the English," she said. "I think he has a gloomy idea of God and I think his god is gloomy. My religion makes me gay and courageous and I am not at all worried when some people tell me there is no religion in New York. I can see in the faces of your young men that there is something more than a life of material things."

BONNIE BRIER BUSH

Parent-Teacher Association Will Sponsor Fine Production Oct. 19.

The profound impression made by "The Cotter's Saturday Night" as presented in this city last year by the Scottish Musical Comedy Company, has led the Parent-Teacher Association to bring the company of distinguished artists to this city again, this time in "The Bonnie Brier Bush" which will be presented in the High School auditorium the evening of Oct. 19.

"The Bonnie Brier Bush" is a two-act sketch based on writings of the late Ian MacLaren (Rev. John Watson). Mr. John E. Daniels, who has made Robert Burns' poem, "The Cotter's Saturday Night," known as never before, has culled the incidents of this latest offering from "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush," "In the Days of Lang Syne," and "Kate Carnegie," and has created another delightful vehicle for the presentation of Scottish story, song and character.

The translation of Lachlan Campbell, a shepherd on the estate of Lord Kilspindie, gives the motive of the sketch. Austere, honest, bigoted, unyielding, Campbell's sternness and misunderstanding drives his daughter Flora from home because of her attachment to the laird's son. It is the kindly solicitation of Margaret Howe that melts the hardness, and the quaint philosophy of Doctor MacLure that confounds the bigotry, prepares Lachlan for the return of his motherless bairn, and paves the way for explanation and reconciliation.

While there is much of pathos and sentiment in the first act, the second is full of humor, song and story—an evening of joy over the happy conclusion. The scene is laid in the village of Drumtochty, Scotland, about the year 1872.

These characters are in the cast: Margaret Howe of Whinney Row, William MacLure, a doctor of the old school; Posty, the village letter carrier; Lachlan Campbell, a shepherd; Flora Campbell, his daughter; Donald Hay, son of Lord Kilspindie.

BUCKSPORT'S SCARE

Dr. Gage Writes That Whole Town Seemed Doomed At One Time.

Fire Tuesday night destroyed King's Garage at the lower end of Main street in Bucksport. The proprietor, Mr. King was in the garage at 8:45 p. m. to get some auto fitting for a customer, and stepping into his storeroom, suddenly noticed fire. In a few moments the whole place was afire. Mr. King's new Buick was on the floor. He got into it, opened wide the throttle and backed right through the door and across the street saving car and himself.

The fire department arrived and streams from the hydrants were soon playing on the fire but pressure was low and little headway was made against the fire. The Chandler fire truck was run out on Verona Bridge and soon was pumping two six-inch streams from Penobscot River.

Meantime the house across the street, occupied by the Brown and Wardwell families, was afire, and flames were burning through the roof of the garage of Mrs. Havener Webster.

The power station of the Central Maine Power Co. situated right next to the burning garage happily was built of concrete and offered effective protection to the house occupied by the family of Archie Ripley. Wonderfully effective work was done by the Bucksport volunteer fire department under fire warden Chandler Wilson and William Mitchell and all the incipient fires were put out and all the surrounding buildings were thoroughly wet down, including the large auto painting shop of Hiram Lord where more than 22 cars were being repainted.

The wind was blowing up river and for a time the fire threatened to wipe out the houses on both sides of Bridge and Pine streets and to cut a swarth right through the village. Early in the fire the kerosene tank in the garage blew up and the gasoline and oil tanks were in flames, but strange to relate the large gasoline tank didn't blow up, and next morning could easily be put back into commission with a little work.

Mr. King suffered a direct loss of his plant including over $1700 worth of new auto appliances together with a stock of tires and tubes. He had little or no insurance. Telephone and light and power poles were all afire and employees of the Power Co. shut off power before any damage occurred and the town was left in darkness. The telephone wires were early burned off, but not before word had been sent to Belfast. Before the fire was out a crew with the Belfast emergency wagon was on the scene clearing away wires and repair work was in full swing. The Telephone Co. was early on the job and by 1 o'clock next morning light and telephone were again operating. The highway bridge was afire but no great damage was done. All Bucksport is now recovering its breath and thanking God that it had a fire department and a ready willing crew of effective fire fighters. At one time it looked as if Bucksport was doomed.

A BAXTER CLUB

Has Been Organized Up In 'Roostock—Statement To Voters.

Report comes from Arrostook County that a Baxter Club has been organized in Presque Isle, with Charles E. Hussey as president. The officials have broadcast the following statement:

To the Voters of Maine:
All good citizens believe that the Constitution and the laws of the country, State and National, should be obeyed. We believe that the liquor question is the most important one before our voters today. Without doubt, our Constitution and laws relating to liquor are being openly and secretly violated by many people.

A United States Senator is soon to be nominated and elected from Maine. When our Senator appears before the Vice President of the United States and the Senate to solemnly swear to support and defend the Constitution and the laws of our government, we believe he ought to be a man whose heart is in the cause, and who has been for years a total abstainer from alcoholic liquors, and who is now a total abstainer.

We believe that the Senators of the United States should be men who have never been violators of the law and Constitution of Maine and of the United States and who have never caused others to violate said laws.

We appeal to the moral sense of the voters throughout the State and urge them to find out how each of the candidates for United States Senator stands on the liquor question. We urge the voters to vote squarely on this question. We know that Governor Baxter has taken a firm and fearless stand against liquor and that he will, if elected, ably represent us at Washington and greatly assist the temperance cause.

AROUND THE GLOBE

Will Be Chief Officer Orne's Next Voyage In Vanderbilt Yacht Aria.

Blanchard T. Orne who is chief officer of William K. Vanderbilt's yacht Aria is at his home on Beechwoods street, Thomaston for a vacation. He has just returned from a cruise about Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and the other Provinces. On this cruise the Aria lay in the Rockland harbor for two days. She is now undergoing extensive repairs in New York in preparation for six months' cruise that will include the South Sea Islands, Japan and probably a return through the Suez Canal, thus circumnavigating the globe.

Mr. Orne will join the yacht in New York and will sail Dec. 1st. Mr. Vanderbilt is master of the Aria. His hobby is his private museum of fish and sea life and the yacht carries complete apparatus for taking specimens of rare fish. There are nets which drag a depth of 500 fathoms.

The Aria was built in England for a French Count. During the war the French armed and equipped her for a mother ship to submarines. After the war Mr. Vanderbilt bought her, and had her entirely reconditioned in England. She is an oil-burning motor yacht, with a cruising radius of 8000 miles on one filling of oil. She is luxurious and modern in the extreme, being steered by electricity with a gyro-compass. She measures 350 tons, is 213 feet long, 32 feet beam and draws 15 feet. Her speed at sea is 12½ knots, but she can do 16. Her wireless equipment is equal to the finest ocean liner, sending to the extent of 2500 miles and receiving powers almost limitless. She was the first boat to pass through the Kiel Canal after the Armistice.

He was much pleased with his two visits to Androscooguin county. He had found a very receptive attitude upon the part of Republicans in this county. People agreed that Eastern Maine was entitled to one of the six members of Congress should be a business man and not a lawyer.

In Franklin county he found a very sympathetic following and said that he came out of that section with a better understanding than he had previously had and a feeling that his support there would be far greater than he had dared to hope for.

Although he had been in but a small part of Oxford county the reception accorded him was such that he felt it was a fine field to cultivate.

"What pleased me up there, and this is true in all sections of the State," said Mr. Gould, "is that the business men are endorsing my candidacy. It shows that they, too, feel the necessity of having a business man in Congress—in the States senate. It is exceedingly gratifying to me to have these men get back of me."

It was the fact that he was a successful business man, which made Senator Fernald so strong throughout the State in the opinion of Mr. Gould.

The people feel that there should be one man in the delegation who is familiar with business methods from the practical, rather than the theoretical view point.

During his visit to the Poland Spring House Mr. Gould announced that George W. E. Emery of Biddeford, who was chairman of the Republican State Committee in 1924, had espoused the Gould candidacy and consented to take charge of the campaign. Mr. Emery would assume the management of the cam-

GOULD CONFIDENT

Arrostook County's Senatorial Candidate Says He'll Be Nominated.

A special despatch from Poland Spring to the Lewiston Journal says: "I am going to be the next Senator from Maine." Quietly, earnestly, Arthur R. Gould made that answer to an inquiry as to how his candidacy was shaping up.

Mr. Gould explained why he made the assertion. He has been well over the State in the past three weeks. In that time he has found such an endorsement of his candidacy as to convince him that he will win in the nomination at the primary on Nov. 1. He said that he was astonished to find what a strong sentiment there was in the western part of Maine against both members of the United States Senate coming from the city of Portland.

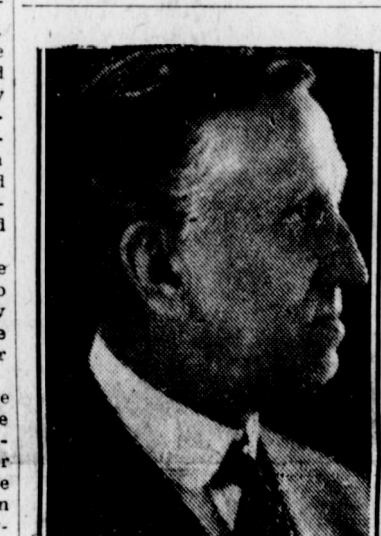

"It has been a revelation to me," said Mr. Gould.

Mr. Gould whose home is in Presque Isle, is a business man in every sense of the word. Eastern Maine has settled upon him as its candidate for the United States Senate to succeed Senator Fernald. He is a member of the Presque Isle Rotary club and it was for this reason that he visited here Tuesday.

It was on his road to Portland from Rumford to call on Poland Spring. He did so. "I could see the Rotary folks and do a little campaigning as well," said Mr. Gould to the Lewiston Journal reporter. He said that Rotary was one of the best things he knew of. Mr. Gould, who is 32½ degrees mason, member of the Shrine and past commander of the Commandery in his town, says that no other organization that he knows of fills so great a need to American life today, as Rotary and the kindred orders.

"That is why I wanted to get up here today," said he. "I wanted to show my approval of the Rotary."

Mr. Gould discussed his candidacy very frankly. He said that he had made a hurried canvass of the State. It was a preliminary survey. He understood that he was not so well known outside of his home area as some of his opponents, but the people of Maine were going to know more about him before primary day. He had felt that a rapid run over the State in the commencement of his campaign was essential.

Arthur R. Gould

He would enable him to get in touch with men, to acquire a better familiarity with all sections and then to carry on his campaign more understandingly.

"Every day that I have been going," said he "I have found a condition of mind that is greatly improved. I am more certain now of winning the nomination, than when I entered the contest, and I wouldn't have gone in had I not felt I could win."

Mr. Gould said that he found a strong and growing sentiment that Portland had no right to expect all the offices. The truth was that he found Portland people far from accepting that idea. "I've almost been startled at the support which Portland people have been giving me," said he, adding that he had expected to have strength in that city, but not at all what was being given him.

He was much pleased with his two visits to Androscooguin county. He had found a very receptive attitude upon the part of Republicans in this county. People agreed that Eastern Maine was entitled to one of the six members of Congress should be a business man and not a lawyer.

In Franklin county he found a very sympathetic following and said that he came out of that section with a better understanding than he had previously had and a feeling that his support there would be far greater than he had dared to hope for.

FOUR MEN IN "SOLITARY"

German Police Dogs Track Escaped Convicts Into Wal-doboro Bog—Slept In Cushing Schoolhouse.

Calling into play the services of two German police dogs owned by Capt. Everett Wiley of Randolph, a posse of 25 State Patrolmen Thursday night rounded up the four convicts who had escaped from Thomaston State Prison 48 hours previously.

The capture was made in a boggy section of South Waldo, and came so swiftly that the refugees had no chance to put up a fight even had they felt so disposed. Heavily handcuffed the quartet was brought back to Prison immediately after the capture, and for an indefinite period the four convicts will experience the discomforts of solitary confinement.

Wednesday, the day following the escape, was unproductive of clues, and the State Patrolman who had been assigned by Chief A. H. Field to the search were left to one of two conclusions, either that the men were hiding in the woods or had succeeded in making a permanent getaway.

Definite clew came Thursday morning with the discovery that the Broad Cove schoolhouse had been broken into, and that at least three men had spent the night there.

When Miss Kathleen Haskell, the teacher, arrived at the schoolhouse she found the assembled children in a state of much excitement.

The window was open, and the ladder which was kept alongside the building for fire protection purposes had disappeared.

Inside Miss Haskell found a quantity of hay which had evidently served for bedding purposes. On the desks were the remains of a repast—egg shells and traces of cucumbers. The eggs, it appears, had been stolen from a nearby residence.

Outside the schoolhouse were the footprints made by at least three men. The prison officials were notified, and in a short time State Patrolmen were combing the woods in that section.

Enter now the German police dogs, without whose aid the convict quartet would probably still have been at large. Scent was furnished to the man hunters by using pieces of clothing which they had worn. Once the trail was picked up the dogs followed it steadily. The trail led to the water's edge in South Waldo, and there was lost. The fugitives had evidently taken to the water—by means of a stolen boat, it was thought.

This supposition was incorrect, according to the subsequent story of the prisoners, who told their captors that they had waded in the shallow water for quite a distance.

The dogs were fooled, but only for the time being. Three hours later they again picked up the scent, and this time it led them to the prisoners' hiding place in the bog, where in their wet clothing they were suffering much discomfort from the chilly night.

There was no offer of resistance, and few words were spoken. Back to the prison the manacled men were taken.

The State Patrolmen, though they had worked arduously and persistently for nearly 48 hours, were given none of the credit for themselves. "You cannot say too much about the dogs," Inspector Watts told a Courier-Gazette reporter.

"Nobody will be permitted to see the men while they are in solitary, unless it is some State official with the right to do so," declared Warden Fish, emphatically.

While all of the escaping convicts are men who had been sentenced for comparatively short terms, three of them, at least, face the prospect of transfer to other penitentiaries.

In Essex County, Massachusetts, there are indictments against Rasmussen and Condon, while Egan is said to be wanted in Rhode Island, for escaping from the State Prison. The fourth prisoner is Ray E. Dodway, whose minimum sentence is four years and maximum sentence eight years.

"THE INNER HARBOR"

Prof. C. Wilbert Snow's New Book Maintains Promise of "Maine Coast."

Prof. C. Wilbert Snow's new volume of poems has appeared in the book-shops. "The Inner Harbor" (Harcourt, Brace & Co.) continues the good promise of "Maine Coast." Many of the poems have appeared in such magazines as the Nation, the Forum, Contemporary Verse and New York Herald Tribune.

There are 46 poems, many of them striking and individual. "The Sturgeon" deals with the old legend of the horse that swam from Green Island to the mainland many years ago. "Thanksgiving" took the $100 prize for the best poem submitted to Bowdoin College on the occasion of the anniversary of Longfellow and Hawthorne's graduation. "Zeb Kinney on College Professors" caused widespread comment when it appeared in the Century Magazine last year. Six of the poems were chosen for Braithwaite's anthology of verse.

Such poems as "Taking Away the Banking" and "Advice to a Clam Digger" could not have been written by any other poet. Lyrics and genre pictures predominate in this book, as characters predominated in his "Maine Coast." The book reveals a variety of lyric power which his earlier work merely hinted at.

Carl Van Doren, premier critic, says: "Certainly he has given a new meaning to the life of the Maine Coast, has added another territory to the United States of American poetry."

Prof. Snow is a native of Spruce Head, the son of a member of the Coast Guard. He was educated here at Bowdoin College. He is teaching at Wesleyan College at present. His wife was formerly Jeannette Simmons of this city. They have three children.

MARION TALLEY PROTECTED

Marion Talley, young Metropolitan Opera star, has insured her life for $200,000, the earnings of which will go to worthy boys and girls who are without funds to pursue a musical education. This was announced by William A. Buchholz for the New York Life Insurance Company. The money will be placed in trust with the Kansas City trust company. Miss Talley also insured her life for an additional $300,000, naming her parents and sister as beneficiaries at $100,000 each, the company announced.

RACES START MONDAY

All efforts to make arrangements with the owners of the Halifax schooner Hallogian to have the schooner participate in the fishermen's races off Gloucester next week have definitely failed and the races will be held without a Canadian contender, the American Racing committee announced today. The Hallogian was the last hope as a Canadian entry. The races will start Monday with the two Gloucester schooners, the Columbia and Henry Ford as the only contenders.

Mr. Emery is an untiring worker. His coming in to the campaign is expected to speed it up in a way not before known. From now on there will be something stirring in behalf of Gould all the time, is the statement which the candidate concluded his visit with.

FAREWELL! BUT WHENEVER

Farewell!—but whenever you welcome the hour That awakens the night-song of mirth in your bower. Then think of the friend who once welcomed it too, And forgot his own griefs, to be happy with you. His griefs may return,—not a hope may remain Of the feet that have brightened his pathway of pain.—But he'll never forget the short vision that his enchantment around him, while lingering with you!

And still on that evening, when Pleasure fills up To the highest top sparkle each heart and each cup. Where'er my path lies, be it gloomy or bright, My soul, happy friends, shall be with you that night; Shall join in your revels, your sports, and your wiles, And return to me, beaming all o'er with your smiles.—Too brief if it tell me that, 'mid the gay cheer, Some kind voice had murmured, 'I wish he were here!'

Let Fate do her worst, there are relics of joy, Bright dreams of the past, which she cannot destroy; Which come, in the night-time of sorrow and care, And bring back the features that joy used to wear. Long, long be my heart with such memories filled! Like the vase in which roses have once been distilled.—You may break, you may shatter the vase, if you will, But the scent of the roses will hang round it still.—Thomas Moore

CIRCULATION AFFIDAVIT
 Rockland, Maine, Oct. 9, 1926.
 Personally appeared Frank S. Lydick, who on oath declares that he is president in the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that the issue of this paper of Oct. 9, 1926 there was printed a total of 6402 copies.
 Before me, FRANK F. MILLER,

WHAT THE PUBLIC THINKS

News of the swift capture and return to the State Prison of the convicts who on Tuesday made their escape from that institution brought a great sense of relief to the people of the surrounding country. It was not the first time that these people have been visited by a weight of fear that men of desperate character should be at large in their midst. While the capture was quickly accomplished, and fortunately no elements of tragedy accompanied the prison-break, the incident itself is fraught with great significance and it not to be dismissed without heed.

Public opinion in the region contiguous to the State Prison emphatically endorses the views expressed in the Thursday issue of this column. Perhaps those of us who live within view of the Prison walls have our attention more closely directed to the subject of prison regulations and prison escapes than do those remote people, who forget that such an institution exists until in the event of some tragedy their more or less languid interest finds itself awakened by the newspaper headlines. Our people are not satisfied with the rules of a Prison Welfare League which is administered evidently to a considerable degree by the convicts themselves, rules which apparently serve to slacken the rigidity of lawful supervision and by depriving a guard of fire-arms leaves him at the mercy of convicts who are in prison because they have committed crimes and are desperate men, not lightly to be dealt with. We repeat our belief in the proper and humane treatment of those whom misfortune has brought into the restraining walls of a prison. At the same time there is something to be said in favor of those of us who live outside of it.

The Daughters of Maine Club in Boston is raising a fund for the building of an Old Folks' Home in Maine for Maine folks. The first gift to the trust fund was made by The Maine Acres Corporation which agreed to donate the land upon which to erect the Home. This was readily followed by the donation of proceeds of a whist party recently given by the Daughters of Maine Club. A campaign will be presently inaugurated and broadcast to Maine people who will be listening in giving the details and plans of the Old Folks Home in Maine. Donations may be made to Mrs. Hattie H. Wagner, 85 Waldeck street, Dorchester, Mass., who is treasurer and trustee.

The leisurely game of croquet is said to be having a revival in New York. Dr. George Wardenburg of Brooklyn who has been knocking croquet balls through the wickets for 40-odd years is authority for the statement that "golf calls for skill, only, while croquet calls for skill, strategy and a constant battle of wits." It is not expected, however, that croquet will entirely displace golf.

Rear Admiral W. S. Sims, U. S. N. says that the development of aircraft has sounded the doom of the battleship. Many others have predicted something of this sort, but the words have added force when they fall from the lips of one whose opinion is supposed to have so much weight in naval circles.

Motorists being ferried across the river at Bath experience a great exaltation of spirits as their eyes rest upon the spectacle of the growing piers planted in the midst of the river and giving glowing promise of a soon-completed bridge.

Never have the wooded heights and valleys of Maine presented a more glorious spectacle than at the present season. The summer population which has returned cityward misses the most royal part of our year.

During the first eight months of the present year 13,250 persons were killed and $50,000 were injured by automobiles in the United States. The figures are appalling and the remedy is apparently not in sight.

In Lewiston the other night an automobile was stolen in front of the police station. It might not be a bad idea to place a few extra guards on the cells.

And while we are in the enjoyment of this beautiful autumnal weather let us not lose sight of the fact that Indian summer is yet to come.

MONEY TO BURN

Half Billion Annual Fire Loss Presents Grave National Problem.

The huge sum of $562,751,466.00 was the nation's fire-loss in 1925, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the country's authority on the subject and $13,639,432 was the increase over 1924. The increase in the annual fire-loss since 1923 is $403,759,969. Who pays this tremendous annual tribute to destruction? Not only the owners of the property destroyed. Not only the families of the 20,000 persons who die in fires every year. Every resident of the country pays this share.

This loss, exceeding half a billion dollars annually is what keeps insurance rates high. These destructive fires—one dwelling house burns in our country every four minutes day and night—are what make it necessary for the tax-payers to maintain fire departments. The national fire-loss is a national problem. For that reason, President Coolidge has set apart this week for public instruction as to the causes of fires and means of preventing them.

Just what this half-billion-dollar drain on our national wealth means may be visualized this way—"Uncle Sam," in taxing the incomes of his people, allows an exemption of $200 for every child. That is exempted, presumably, because it is sufficient to care a child in school for a year. On this basis, it appears that the money we waste by fires every year would keep more than 2,000,000 children in school. Yet we go on wasting it—for it is waste because it can be prevented. Insurance experts, fire department officials and engineers firmly state that 75 per cent of the fires that cause this tremendous total loss are preventable.

How? By being careful with matches, cigars and cigarettes? Certainly; that would help. By keeping chimneys clean so that they don't throw burning embers upon roofs? Surely; that's a wise precaution. These measures—all measures of common-sense carelessness are necessary. But caution alone won't save our nation $562,751,466. What is more needed is precaution. The reason why buildings burn is that they are built so they will burn. The fundamental way to prevent their burning is to "build so it won't burn."

This doesn't necessarily mean that the average home-owner must adopt expensive masonry constructions to substitute the traditional American wood-frame house. It means to build wisely with wood—wood, but protected at its most vulnerable points.

The development of modern building materials has made this possible at a cost no greater than that of unprotected construction. For example: A wood frame can be sheathed with incombustible mineral in place of inflammable wood sheathing. On the inside of the frame a gypsum lath—literally a rock lath—can be used in place of tinder-like wood lath. An artistic and beautiful exterior finish can be put on the house through the use of colored stucco. Or brick or stone may be used. The roof can be of slate, asbestos, cement tile or other fire-resistant material. Insulation and fire-stopping can be installed in one operation between walls, floors and over ceilings through the use of dry-fill gypsum.

This is the path to an appreciable reduction in our enormous annual fire loss and protection for yourself and your family: Fire-safe construction.

ON "OPPORTUNITIES"

Local Men and Women Will Speak At Rockport M. E. Church.

In behalf of the boys and girls of his town, Rev. E. H. Johnson, pastor of the Rockport Methodist Church, has hit upon an interesting method of presenting to them word pictures of the various paths open to them in life. The idea is to devote the Sunday evening services on twelve successive weeks to the presentation of the occupational opportunities in as many different lines of endeavor by laymen experienced in the subject.

The opening talk was given last Sunday evening by Alva W. Gregory of Rockland, an experienced and successful retailer of men's and boys' furnishings. The remaining subjects and speakers follow:

Oct. 17—"Christian Service," Rev. H. L. Holt, pastor Congregational Church, Camden.

PARTNERSHIP DISSOLVED

Announcement was made yesterday that Mrs. Mattie N. Gardner had taken over the interest of Miss Julia Woodcock in The Needle Art Shop at 562 Main street, this city, and will conduct the business along the old lines as sole proprietor. Mrs. Gardner and Miss Woodcock opened the shop a year ago last June and have built up a very satisfactory trade in needle craft supplies, stamped goods and embroideries, novelties, jewelry for necklaces, etc. Mrs. Gardner also makes a specialty of fine homemade candles and by virtue of her farm at the Highlands, spring chickens. She will conduct the store along the old lines with added stock and departments.

ROCKLAND BOYS ON RAMPAGE

The Rockland High School team faced a much heavier lineup at Community Park Thursday afternoon, but in spite of it defeated Crosby High School with an ease that delighted the followers of the orange and black. One swallow does not make a summer, and two victories do not make a football season, but if Coach Jones' lad can maintain the pace they are now hitting it will be one of the most glorious seasons in Rockland's football history.

Crosby High came here from Belfast with the utmost degree of confidence, and found an adversary which had been wonderfully cheered by its fine victory in Waterville. The sirt and pluck which possessed the Rockland team that day was destined to have a decisive outcome.

Rockland kicked off to Belfast, and the ball was brought back 15 yards. Crosby High being held for downs. Knights made eight yards on each of two rushes, and the ball was finally carried across the Belfast goal line by Huntley on an off-tackle play. A goal was then made by Traflet on a drop kick.

The second kick-off was not a very successful one and Belfast brought the ball back to Rockland's 49-yard line. On the fourth play Rockland was penalized five yards for being off-side.

The Belfast center then had an apparent attack of stage fright, for he passed the ball back wildly four times in succession. On the fourth attempt the ball went back of Belfast's goal line, where it was recovered by a Belfast player. Bird downed him in his tracks and the play went for a safety, and counted two points for Rockland.

The second period was the only one in the game in which no scoring resulted. The ball was in Belfast territory most of the time however. In the third period Belfast kicked off. A Rockland forward pass was intercepted, but the Crosby team was held for downs. Belfast was offside. On Wiggin made an off tackle play for 12 yards and a first down. Knights went through tackle for three yards, and Traflet came across with a 9-yard gain and first down. A forward pass, Knights to Huntley, netted 15 yards. Huntley smashed through the line twice, making 11 yards the first time and 12 yards the second time. And then for good measure turned in a 4-yard gain. Knights made five yards for a touchdown. Score, Rockland 15, Belfast 0.

Rockland kicked off in the last period. Crosby High made several desperate assaults on the orange and black line, but found it a veritable Gibraltar, and resorted to punting.

HOW THE FISTS FLEW

Brawn and Science, and a Short Comedy Picture, In Last Night's Program At the Arcade.

The most finicky fight fan could possibly find no fault with last night's fight festival in the Arcade. It ran the whole gamut known to the pugilistic catalogue—slam bang stuff which so many like; knockouts in jig time, and real science which none could fail to admire.

First on the casualty list was Sailor Bowden of the patrol boat 279, who lasted 34½ seconds against Sailor Ronch of the patrol boat 191. It might be said that the 279 was sunk without returning a shot.

Another sailor, Curtis by name of the patrol boat 191 was not quite so lucky as his shipmate Mr. Ronch. He was matched against Sailor Williams of Camden, and waded into the latter like a hungry schoolboy wades into a one-session dinner. It did not look as though the Camden boy could withstand this Florida cyclone, but he did, and before the fight had progressed very far was having the better of it. Curtis was manifestly sick of his job, but like the boy who stood by the burning deck he stuck to his job until the fourth round was over.

Next was a comedy picture, introducing Willie Davis of Portland, who could probably not explain how he dodged the curfew; and a tall but attenuated opponent named Frank Jordan who could probably not explain why he didn't dodge Willie. Frank kissed the carpet at an early stage of the proceedings and it was not until the train went this morning that anybody told him what had happened.

Chocolate Mercier of Lewiston entered the ring a pronounced favorite over Walter Parker of Portland, and left it by shaking hands with himself to think that he was alive. It was good boxing and a real fight, with Parker outpointing the Lewiston lad by a considerable margin in the last two rounds.

The real feature of the program was the semi-final between Young Conklin of Lewiston and Joe Pomily of Portland. Conklin outwore his title many years ago but he has not forgotten how to fight, and to many of the observers it seemed as if he had a few sticks of T.N.T. in each glove. Pomily was knocked down twice in each of the first two rounds, and his second throw in the sponge before the third round was finished. Everybody liked Conklin's clean style of fighting.

Irish Barney Grant of Lewiston met K. O. Therrian of Portland in the main bout, and did not have quite such a picnic as he has had in his previous battles here. Therrian probably landed more blows than his opponent, but at the same time was careful to keep a respectable distance between himself and Barney's fierce swats. The bout could easily be called a draw.

A few embryo Dempseys and Tunneys were introduced.

It's no longer necessary to pay a high price for a dependable and economical battery. The price at which an Exide, the long-life battery, may be bought today, enables all car owners to own this famous product of the world's largest manufacturers of batteries.

THE WORLD SERIES

Teams Come Back To New York With Yankees One Ahead and Strong Favorites.

St. Louis led the Yankees 2 to 1 up to the ninth inning yesterday, but Sherdel fluttered and a Texas Leaguer by pinch hitter Pascal permitted New York to tie the score. A sacrifice fly by Lazzeri gave victory to the American League champions in the tenth. The game was full of thrills, but the spectators who expected to see Babe Ruth repeat his home run performances of Wednesday were doomed to disappointment. Bambino went hitless. Likewise did Rogers Hornsby, who has certainly not been up to his standard in this series.

To many of the fans the series seemed to be all over, but the Cardinals are fighters, and with Alexander in the box may again bring the standing to a deadlock. The Sporting editor does not expect Alexander to do so well in Saturday's game, but cheerfully admits that he doesn't know any more about it than the man in the moon.

Yesterday's score:
 St. Louis — 0 0 1 0 0 1 0 0—2
 Base hits, New York 9, St. Louis 7. Errors, New York 1, St. Louis 1. Two-base hits, Bottomly, Penneck, L. Bell, Gehrig. Bases on balls, off Sherdel 5, off Penneck 1. Struck out, by Sherdel 2, by Penneck 4.

With the BOWLERS

The Rockland-Belfast bowling series took a cant in Rockland's direction Wednesday night, the locals having a 27-pin margin of victory. Ty Cobb was not in this game, so the honors were carried off by Milligan whose every string was better than 100. The score:

PORTER ADAMS WON

Complete rout of the forces led by Col. William Mitchell, former assistant air chief of the Army, marked the closing session of the annual convention of the National Aeronautics Association. In this defeat of Mitchell and the rejection of the policies for which he stands, Porter H. Adams of Boston had a prime part, after a bitter contest, carried into the nominating committee and almost to the election itself. Mr. Adams was chosen president of the organization for the coming year, succeeding Godfrey L. Cabot, also of Boston.

CRUSHED BY TRUCK

Harland Webber, Aged 17, Victim of Accident At Long Cove.

The overturning of a motor truck, of which he had lost control, caused injuries Thursday forenoon to Harland Webber of Port Clyde, from which he died before medical assistance could arrive.

The tragedy occurred on Seavey Hill, Long Cove. Mr. Webber was employed by Road Commissioner Albert J. Rawley in the work of highway construction, and was driving a Ford truck. Nobody witnessed the accident, but the assumption is that the gear shift failed to work while the truck was making the incline, and that in backing rapidly down the hill the truck turned over once and a half, crushing the boy's skull as it did so.

Edward Hickmore who came along in his own truck was first to discover what had happened, and another early arrival on the scene was Deputy Sheriff E. Stuart Orleton. Dr. C. H. Leach arrived with all possible speed, but the victim of the accident was beyond earthly aid. The body was taken to the Davis undertaking rooms in Thomaston.

Mr. Webber was 17 years of age and a son of Harry Webber, who lapsed into unconsciousness when informed of his son's death. He did not recover until late in the afternoon.

Young Webber was greatly liked in the community and the tragedy has caused much gloom.

MELLON WAS RIGHT

Did theory ever have support more substantial than today's Treasury statement gives to the "Mellon idea" about income taxes? The preliminary figures show that despite the reduction of rates charged the taxpayer, the volume of such revenue collected by the United States Government from July 1, 1925, to July 1, 1926, was $212,445,091 greater than the sum collected for the fiscal year 1924 to 1925. That is precisely what Secretary Mellon had said would happen. "Charge a smaller income tax rate and you will collect a larger volume of taxes." Such was Mr. Mellon's counsel to Congress reiterated time and again in the days when the normal rates and more especially the surtax rates were very high. The Democrats, with loud support from radical elements throughout the country, had been clamoring to keep the surtaxes high. "Soak the rich men," they demanded. To this, in substance, Mr. Mellon replied, "If you really wish to secure a satisfactory volume of revenue from the great fortunes of the land and from the Nation's industries, bring the taxes down. Make tax-exemption less profitable. Encourage the movement of money into creative industry. You will thus make more revenue for the Government." And today's figures show that Mr. Mellon was right.

If it be objected that some of the increase must be due to the advance of the total volume of business in the United States, let it be noted that such an advance is directly a part of the prophecy which President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon and the other Administration leaders joined in making. They counted not only on larger individual willingness to bear income taxes, but also on the stimulus which business would secure from the lowering of the rates. Both results followed as predicted. The policy of moderation in income taxes in the higher brackets stands justified by some of the best proof ever recorded to any theory or policy of economic statesmanship.—Boston Transcript.

OVERLAND WHIPPET

Discussing the situation surrounding the Willys Overland Co., John N. Willys says: "Our Whippet car and campaign have been an unqualified success. We have to date produced and shipped 40,724 Whippets in a period covering approximately 70 working days. In other words, average daily production and retail sales of Whippets has been 575 cars since the first of July. Total car sales for September were in excess of 16,000. This volume is going directly into consumption, as we have insisted upon the policy of keeping dealers' stocks at a minimum. It has only been possible in the past week or two to take advantage of the big export market, which assuredly awaits the Whippet and exports for October will be the largest in the company's history. Volume of export shipments is now running at the rate of between 3,000 and 4,000 cars per annum. The production of 54,000 cars and sales of 56,000 cars in the third quarter were both records for Willys Overland."

Are You Overdoing?

Hurry, Worry, and Overwork Bring Heavy Strain.

MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our bodily machinery. The eliminative organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to be overtaxed and become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste is apt to give rise to dull, tired feeling and, often, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is sometimes shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water and the occasional use of Doan's Pills—a tested stimulant diuretic. Ask your neighbor!

BIG HURRICANES

Florida Disaster Leads To a Timely Discussion By Experts.

"West Indian hurricanes are not new, nor are they confined to Florida," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"In the season that is peculiarly their own (there are hurricane-growing months) just as there are 'corn-growing months' they have probably been blowing up from the Gulf of Mexico, the Caribbean Sea, and the tropical Atlantic since those bodies of water and the American Continents have existed—a matter of some hundreds of thousands of years. But only a few of these many potential destroyers actually work their destruction on the territory of the United States, and these are confined almost wholly to a period of three months of the late summer and early autumn.

"Thus they leave Florida and the other Gulf States free from danger during late autumn, the entire winter and the early spring months when that area attracts its greatest crowd of visitors.

"The warm sea eastward and southward of the Gulf of Mexico are the birthplaces of the hurricanes. They are the creatures of atmospheric pressure and temperature; and these two factors are varied by the sun beating down on the expanse of Atlantic water and the last mass of our continent.

"One of the most striking facts in regard to West Indian hurricanes is the marked concentration of the really destructive ones within a few weeks of each year. A study of the hurricanes that had occurred since 1877 was made by the United States Weather Bureau a few years ago and it was found that in this long period not one storm of known hurricane intensity had visited the West Indies and Gulf regions during the months from December to May inclusive.

"Two other months can practically be eliminated: November with only two hurricanes in nearly 40 years, and June, with six. Not all of the few November and June storms reach American territory.

"Season" starts in August
"July itself is rather a poor hurricane month. Less than a dozen July hurricanes have been recorded in the last 40 years and only part of them reached shore. The real hurricane season starts in August, reaches its peak in September, and ends during October. One reassuring fact is that when the hurricane season is at its height the greatest percentage of the storms fails to reach the Gulf or Atlantic coasts. Many curve back into the ocean even as far east as the Bermudas.

"Between July and October of every year from six to 10 hurricanes are born somewhere between Florida and Africa, usually to sweep westward, then northward, and finally back northeastward, their paths forming pretty accurate parabolic curves. The primary factor in the careers of these storms is believed to be an area of high atmospheric pressure, or 'high,' that exists permanently over the Atlantic north of the Tropics. In other words, a great blanket of heavy, sluggish air lies continually over the area. Along its southern edge in the Tropics heated air, rising, causes little swirling disturbances which are the seeds of possible hurricanes. But there is a certain infant mortality among these stormlets, especially in winter and spring. Then the Atlantic 'high' extends in a broad band on into the North American continent, forming in effect a wall of heavy air which the storms cannot pass. Confined to the Tropics they are dissipated without causing the United States any concern.

Storms Must Dodge 'Highs'
"But when the heat of summer has warmed up the land the 'high' withdraws to its ocean home, jutting out like an air peninsula toward America. The atmosphere over the land becomes an arena for shifting 'highs' and 'lows.' It is as though an atmospheric foot ball game were in progress. The newly born stormlets of the tropical Atlantic regions seek, because of the general drift of the atmosphere, to move northward. The 'highs,' whether stationary or in motion, furnish the interference which they must dodge. The weakest place in the defense is between the permanent mid-Atlantic 'high' and the American Coast. A great many tropical hurricanes, therefore, move east to avoid the mid-ocean barrier and then dash northward well east of the coast, causing no damage on land. Once around the end of the 'high' they swing northward, and some continue on even into Europe.

Maine Penitentiary Gets Good Word In Austin MacCormack's Review.

"The Handbook of American Prisons" just published by the Society for Penal Information, is edited by Austin H. MacCormack of Bowdoin College and Paul W. Garrett.

The New York Times in its review says that "Every parent, every teacher, every judge should read this remarkable volume."

"The Penal Information Society is an organization of penal experts and philanthropists formed for the purpose of keeping before the public information concerning the prisons of the country, with a view to checking the all too common disposition on the part of executives and lawmakers to neglect these institutions and their inmates. A prison is about the easiest thing for state officials to ignore. Prisoners have no influential friends, their surroundings are screened from public observation and they are unable to speak for themselves.

"Some of the descriptions of prison conditions in the book of Mr. MacCormack and Mr. Garrett are ample proof of the need of public being kept informed concerning its punitive institutions.

"The writers endorse the parole system, stating that a large number of the prisoners complete their parole successfully and give no further trouble. 'It is the small percentage that fails to which the frequent reference is made in the newspapers, the report states.

"The people of Maine have become interested in prison problems in recent years by reason, first of the burning of the institution at Thomaston and the rebuilding of the same during the administration of Gov. Baxter but of much discussed contingent fund and the more recent investigation of the prison by Gov. Brewster.

"Under the headline, 'Comment,' the report states that the present buildings are entirely modern. It goes on to say: 'This fact with the high standard of sanitation and upkeep which is maintained makes the Maine prison one of the best small prison plants in the country. The cell blocks are modern throughout and the shops are up to the standard of modern shops outside. The hospital is especially well built; the main ward is pleasant and cheerful.'

"The report says that disciplinary methods are in general intelligent and sympathetic, and the morale of the inmates is excellent. It says that there has been almost a complete reversal of the situation of 10 years ago. It says that educational work is at present negligible and recommends the adoption of extension courses in agriculture through the State University.

"Of the industrial situation at Thomaston, the editors declare it to be bad, and say that extensive changes will have to be made before the industries are profitable and furnish work enough for the inmate population. Of the broom shop, it says that it is the last contract shop in Thomaston. Maine might well abolish the last trace of the contract system, is the recommendation made. Maine prisoners, it declares should be used on the State roads. This has been done the past season to some extent."

such plain sailing. If the Atlantic high extends farther westward than usual the disturbance must swing over the land to round the end. It is upon such rather infrequent occasions that the Atlantic and Gulf coasts suffer as they did last month.

Sometimes Herded Into Gulf
"By still farther westward extension of the high pressure area the storms are prevented from moving north and sweep into the Gulf of Mexico. It was such conditions that brought about the terribly destructive Galveston hurricane in September, 1900, and that which cost many lives at Corpus Christi in September, 1919. The Galveston storm turned northward, passing through Texas and Oklahoma, and finally passed to the Atlantic down the St. Lawrence Valley. The Corpus Christi hurricane, however, belonged to the rare type with an approximately straight path with an approximately straight path. A chain of 'highs' formed an impassable barrier to the north and the storm moved on into Mexico where it was finally dissipated among the mountains.

"Hurricanes are not winds that drive straight ahead. They are swirls of the cyclonic type. These swirling storm centers move relatively slowly across sea and land, sometimes at no greater speed than eight or ten miles an hour. But they suck air toward them from all sides at terrific speeds, up to 100 or more miles an hour."

CLARK-GREEN

The home of Mrs. Harrison F. Hicks, Middle street, was the scene of one of the prettiest home weddings ever seen in this city, when last evening at 7.30 o'clock her niece, Miss Lolla Green, was united in marriage with Donald Emerson Clark.

Mrs. Hicks, who has been out of town for the past four months, returned last week and opened her beautiful home for the happy event. The guests were limited to members of both families and a few intimate friends, there being about 75 present.

The living room, where the ceremony was performed, was transformed into a veritable wedding bower by the artistic use of white satin ribbons, evergreens, and white flowers. In one end of the large room a frame had been erected and this was covered with evergreens. The columns were wound with white satin, with the evergreens and flowers interwoven, the back was banked with white dahlias, and in the center of the arch where the bride and groom stood hung a handsome white wedding veil.

From the side of the tall columns hung ropes of white satin. Ribbons were extended to the hall down on one side and to the library door on the other leaving the center of the room for the bride and groom. The room for the bride and groom was filled with white and pink. The electric lights over the table were veiled in white, and long white streamers were carried to the corners of the table. The sun parlor, where Mrs. Agnes Brewster served punch, was outlined around the entire room with small pine trees and filled with gay colored fall flowers. In both the front hall and reception room the decorations were all in pink, pink awgers, dahlias and hydrangeas being used in profusion, while in the library the decorations were carried out in yellow, quantities of marigolds and dahlias being used with a very pleasing effect.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien K. Green of 30 Franklin street and is a girl of rare personal charm. She is indeed a pretty picture in the wedding gown of white silk and lace with long lace train held by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a beautiful shawl bouquet of bride's roses and white sweet peas.

Miss Flanagan was given in pink tulle and carried pink roses. Little Miss Tibbets was a dainty bride in white and carried a white basket filled with bride's roses and rose petals. The bride and groom left the house by auto amid much merriment (being deluged by showers of rose leaf confetti) their destination being known only to themselves. Their many wedding gifts included flat silver, linen, rugs, dishes, furniture, pictures, checks and gold coin. The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was a handsome, flexible silver bracelet. The groom gave to his best man a sterling silver cigar cutter.

The young couple have a very attractive home all furnished at 30 Holmes street where they will start their married life with the love and good wishes of a host of friends.

PLAIN PEOPLE WILL APPROVE Even Though Super Sophisticates May Fume At the Common Sense Traits of Calvin Coolidge As Expressed in His Recent Interview.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger]

The intelligentsia will not like the interview given by President Coolidge to Mr. Bruce Barton. Verse-librists will shudder over his fondness for these quaintly archaic poets, Tennyson, Scott, Rudyard Kipling, Eugene Field and the Hoosier whimsies of James Whitcomb Riley.

His admiration for "The Cotter's Saturday Night" and "Snow Bound" will outrage the neo-literati. Even the mention of James Russell Lowell will give acute pain.

Greenwich Village eyebrows will writhe and super-sophisticated souls will flit over the tributes of respect and love paid by the President to his parents and his own people. Feminists may snort at his belief that the best preparation for the woman in politics is marriage, children, a home and family cares.

Hyper-sophisticates will marvel that any one should long to go "back home" to his hills where he was born. Or that a President of the United States could turn to such homely tasks as "doing a little blacksmithing" or mending a broken strap with an awl and "a waxed end."

Or that as a gangling youngster he "hoped" he might "keep store" when he "grew up."

Leninists and Marxists will gnash their teeth because Calvin Coolidge believes George Washington and Abraham Lincoln were great and admirable men. The bilious and spavined atheist will spit venom on the Coolidge tributes to religion. The interview will not please those who regard all business men as mere "babblers" and who sneer at our "Main streets" as the dreafal places of the world.

Fortunately for the Nation it is not made up of super-sophisticates and intelligentsia. If so, it might as well put up the shutters and go out of business.

The Coolidge interview will appeal to the other kind of Americans. It reveals the inside of the mind of an old-fashioned man who is no more old-fashioned than the vast majority of his fellow citizens.

His views are of the kind that build up America. They are founded on certain of the eternal verities as

There are 36 active members, 10 charter members, 6 substitute members, 30 associate members and 15 annual associate members.

The Woman's Educational Club now boasts 480 members. This remarkable organization shows the widespread interest among women for politics, economics, current events and history. Officers for the ensuing years are: President, Mary Perry Rich; vice president, Clara Spaulding; Honorary Secretary, Nettie Stewart; secretary, Winnie Horton; treasurer, Alice Hovey; auditor, Annie Stevens; hospitality committee, Mrs. Ida Simmons, Mrs. Alden Ulmer, Mrs. Rae Dane, Mrs. M. W. Spear, Miss Bertha Orbeton, Mrs. Mary Barker, Mrs. E. T. Stewart, Mrs. Jennie Dickey, and Miss Deatrice Charles.

Chairmen and dates of meetings are: Dec. 17, picnic supper, Mrs. Fred Sanborn; Jan. 7, Mrs. Alden Ulmer; Jan. 21, Mrs. Annie Stevens; Feb. 4, Mrs. Frances Norton; Feb. 18, Mrs. Mary W. Spear; March 4, Mrs. Hattie Keating; March 18, Mrs. Emma Frost; April 1, Mrs. Catherine Moxey; April 15, Mrs. Rae Dove; banquet, Mrs. Mabelle Little.

PLAIN PEOPLE WILL APPROVE Even Though Super Sophisticates May Fume At the Common Sense Traits of Calvin Coolidge As Expressed in His Recent Interview.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger]

The intelligentsia will not like the interview given by President Coolidge to Mr. Bruce Barton. Verse-librists will shudder over his fondness for these quaintly archaic poets, Tennyson, Scott, Rudyard Kipling, Eugene Field and the Hoosier whimsies of James Whitcomb Riley.

His admiration for "The Cotter's Saturday Night" and "Snow Bound" will outrage the neo-literati. Even the mention of James Russell Lowell will give acute pain.

Greenwich Village eyebrows will writhe and super-sophisticated souls will flit over the tributes of respect and love paid by the President to his parents and his own people. Feminists may snort at his belief that the best preparation for the woman in politics is marriage, children, a home and family cares.

Hyper-sophisticates will marvel that any one should long to go "back home" to his hills where he was born. Or that a President of the United States could turn to such homely tasks as "doing a little blacksmithing" or mending a broken strap with an awl and "a waxed end."

Or that as a gangling youngster he "hoped" he might "keep store" when he "grew up."

Leninists and Marxists will gnash their teeth because Calvin Coolidge believes George Washington and Abraham Lincoln were great and admirable men. The bilious and spavined atheist will spit venom on the Coolidge tributes to religion. The interview will not please those who regard all business men as mere "babblers" and who sneer at our "Main streets" as the dreafal places of the world.

Fortunately for the Nation it is not made up of super-sophisticates and intelligentsia. If so, it might as well put up the shutters and go out of business.

The Coolidge interview will appeal to the other kind of Americans. It reveals the inside of the mind of an old-fashioned man who is no more old-fashioned than the vast majority of his fellow citizens.

His views are of the kind that build up America. They are founded on certain of the eternal verities as these have been revealed to men from time immemorial. Men who saw life, with its duties and responsibilities, as Calvin Coolidge sees it, laid the foundations of the Nation. They crossed the ranges and blazed the trails, cleared the farms and welded communities into States.

There are 36 active members, 10 charter members, 6 substitute members, 30 associate members and 15 annual associate members.

Macey; Balboa, Ponce de Leon and de Soto (one paper); Sir Walter Raleigh, Mrs. Faith Ulmer; Capt. John Smith; Hendrick Hudson; Miles Standish; Lord Baltimore and John Wilkes.

There are a great many millions of these plain-minded people left. They believe in work. They pay the Nation's taxes, do its voting and likewise most of its fighting. They have not been seduced away from their belief in a God Almighty.

Nor have they lost their love for the old home acres and homesteads or their feelings that fathers and mothers should have the honor and respect of their children. They will understand why a country-bred President may wish to "go back home" and walk in familiar ways among familiar folk.
