HE SELLS LIME

"Eddie" Dodge Has Also Played a Part In Three Wars.

Edwin B. Dodge who is associated with the Rockland-Rockport Lime Corporation as sales manager of the New York office is familiarly known in the building trade as "Eddie." He is 47 years old. His home was formerly in Cleveland, and in recent years, in Philadelphia. He is making his home at this time in Newark, N. J.

Mr. Dodge has always been a salesman, formerly with the Sherwin Williams Paint Co. and for seven years prior to his present position was salesman for The Ohio Hydraulic & Supply Co., selling lime to building material dealers over the territory from New England to Florida.

Mr. Dodge has been raised in the school of "hard knocks" and the secret of his success as a salesman is that he is everlastingly on the job every hour of the day and every day of the week. As a youngster he served his time in the United States Navy and was there during the Spanish War, after which he enlisted in the Regular Army and saw service in the Philippines and in the Boxer campaign in China. At the outbreak of the World War Mr. Dodge entered the service as a lieutenant and came out of the war with commission of captain. He served in a motor truck division carrying ammunition to the front lines, and was in this service from the time the United States Army entered the war until peace was declared.

SEVENTH DEGREE

Feature Which Patrons Will Witness At the National Grange Session.

The publicity department of the National Grange has issued this program for the meeting in Portland:

The program for the session includes opening at 11 a. m. on Wednesday, Nov. 10, with business sessions that day and Thursday; conferring sixth degree in its new revised form Thursday evening by officers of Maine State Grange; all day Friday, Nov. 12, Seventh Degree, with at least four classes, in the Strand Theatre, the hours of same being 9 a. m., 12 m., 4 p. m., and 8 p. m., while a fifth class will be crowded into the afternoon if the number of candidates requires it. Members of the Grange who have taken the Seventh Degree are assured of the opportunity to witness it at Portland as a large block of seats in the theatre will be reserved at each working of the degree for Seventh Degree members. Saturday morning, the 13th, in the Portland Municipal Auditorium, occurs the annual convocation of the Assembly of Demeter, the highest ritualistic meeting of the organization and open only to Seventh Degree members.

Sunday all the Grange members will attend church in a body, memorial services in the afternoon and probably a big union church gathering in the evening, the Grange cooperating in the interests of law enforcement, good government and American citizenship. Four days of the second week devoted entirely to business sessions, closing Thursday night, Nov. 18.

Gov. Brewster of Maine will officially welcome the convention members. Secretary of Agriculture William M. Jardine will present an agricultural survey of the country and many other prominent leaders will address the convention at different times. Present indications are that the greater number of New England attendants upon the Portland session will motor to that city, many communities making up bus parties; while as far as can be arranged the members in Vermont are to assemble at White River Junction and then proceed to Portland as a motor caravan. Universal rates of fare and a half will prevail on all railroads, under the certificate plan, and in addition to regular trains special cars, and in some instances special trains, will be made up to convey the crowds.

OUR GRANGE CORNER

Knox Pomona Grange meets with Good Will Grange, South Warren, Nov. 6. The following program will be given: "Greeting," Fred Fernald; response, Alma Jameson; singing, Grange; discussion, "Are the Movies Detrimental?" story, Willis Moody; songs, selected, by Mrs. W. A. Ayer; paper on "The Dawes Plan," by Mrs. Charles Taylor; discussion and other topics by lecturer of Good Will Grange.

Butler Memorial Clock

This is the first picture published of Rockland's handsome new town clock erected in the sightly tower of the First Baptist Church, under the will of the late E. A. Butler. The timepiece is the best obtainable and is operating to the entire satisfaction of the public. The dials are lighted at night and are visible from all parts of the city and harbor. The bell has a peculiarly sweet tone and its friendly greeting each hour is genuinely welcome.

THANKSGIVING DAY

"We Are Blessed Among the Nations," Says President Coolidge.

President Coolidge has issued his proclamation designating Nov. 25 as Thanksgiving Day. The text follows: "We have passed another 12 months in the favor of the Almighty. He has smiled upon our fields and they have brought forth plentifully, business has prospered, industries have flourished, and labor has been well employed. While sections of our country have been visited by disaster, we have been spared any great national calamity or pestilential visitation. We are blessed among the nations of the earth. Our moral and spiritual life has kept measure with our material prosperity.

"We are not unmindful of the gratitude we owe to God for His watchful care. As He has pointed to us the ways of peace and happiness we should not fail in our acknowledgment of Divine favor which has bestowed upon us so many blessings. Neither should we be forgetful of those among us who through stress of circumstances are less fortunately placed, but by deeds of charity make our acknowledgment more acceptable in His sight. Therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, do hereby set apart Thursday, the 25th of November next, as a day of general thanksgiving and prayer, and I recommend that on that day the people shall cease from their daily work, and in their homes or in their accustomed places of worship devoutly give thanks to the Almighty for the many and great blessings they have received, and seek His guidance that through new deeds and brotherly love they may deserve a continuance of His favor."

ON SHAKESPEARE

"Could Make Dull Facts Throb With Life and Beauty," Said Prof. Mitchell.

Monday evening was a delightful time for members of the Shakespeare Society when they were favored to listen to Prof. W. B. Mitchell of Bowdoin College upon Shakespeare, and how best to study his works.

Mrs. Edith Bird was hostess, and the warmth and hospitality of her home added greatly to the occasion. The president, Mrs. Ruth Ellingwood, was witty in introducing the speaker and in her welcome to the guests of the evening—teachers of English in the High School. Her words were framed wholly in aptly fitted quotations from Shakespeare, showing research and cleverness, and she was complimented by Prof. Mitchell: "Before we proceed further, hear me speak. I have been loath to cut it short, but I would be loath to cast aside my speech, for besides that it is 'excellently well penned,' I have taken great pains to con it. However since brevity is the soul of wit, I will be brief.

"To you English teachers of the Rockland High School, a hundred thousand welcomes! A curse begin at the very root of his heart that is not glad to see thee! And, Sir, you are very welcome to our house. It must appear in other ways than words. Therefore I scant this breathing courtesy. A hundred thousand welcomes. Friends and club women lend me your ears. We have met tonight to learn how to study Shakespeare. You say that is the end of study! Why that to know which else we should not know. Things hid and barred from common sense! Ay that is study's God-like recompense. To help us in this study we have with us a man of whom it may be said, 'The force of his merit makes his own way.' The man is noble and his fame folds in this orb of the earth. Some there are who on the tip of their persuasive tongue carry all arguments and questions deep. Such a one is he. The truth, there, are wondrous things spoke of him. You say he must be introduced and he shall: the office becomes a woman best. I'll take it upon me. It gives me great pleasure to present to the Shakespeare Society and its guests Prof. Mitchell of Bowdoin College, who will speak to us on the 'Study of Shakespeare.'"

The following books were recommended by Prof. Mitchell as a help in the study of Shakespeare: William Shakespeare by George Brandes;

A Shakespearian Grammar, E. A. Abbott; Elizabethan Word Book, Kittredge & Greenough; William Shakespeare, John Massfield; Shakespeare's England, G. W. Thornbury; Shakespeare and His Fore-Runners, Sidney Lanier; Elizabethan People, Henry Threw Stephenson; Notes of Shakespeare's Workmanship, Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch, M. A.

The close attention of Prof. Mitchell's audience evidenced what a treat the lecture was. He is a fluent, convincing speaker, and it was remarked what a pleasure and privilege it must be to study under his instruction. He said as a close:

I have spoken of Shakespeare as a poet, and as a master dramatist. But was he? Have we over-rated him? Did he show any originality? I picked up a little book the other day entitled "A Plea for Shakespeare and Walt Whitman," opened it and read: "Shakespeare wrote plays—as other playwrights have done—to entertain audiences. He dramatized popular stories and invented no plots. His main object was to make a temporary effective play. He preferred bombastic language, fantastic words, cheap puns, puerile quibbling, and obscure expression. The oriental habit of distortion of images and abuse of the imagination was his. His idolaters have put more into his lines than he himself did."

Now are these assertions true? Partly, no doubt. It is doubtless true that he invented no new plots. He gathered his material wherever he happened to find it. Plutarch, Boccaccio, Chaucer, Holinshed furnished him with a good many of the stories and chronicles, the facts and figures that he used. That he wrote the dramas for real audiences of the day; that he wrote to please and entertain those audiences; and that he succeeded in so doing, there can be not the slightest doubt. That he sometimes used what seem to us now, cheap puns and fantastic words and obscure expressions, is probably within the range of truth, and very likely we do try sometimes to read into his lines a deeper meaning than he intended to express.

Notwithstanding all that, he had, (it is beyond all power to controvert, it seems to me), an imagination that could take those familiar stories and chronicles of his day, and remould them and reproprietor them, and re-express them in glowing words; so that they would take on a new life—a life which we believe today is an immortality.

He had the art of the alchemist as it were. So fine was his power of expression, so keen and sensitive his imagination; so true and certain his dramatic instinct, so true and sound his philosophy; so clear his vision into the mysteries of human living, that with something of a magician's touch he could transmute the baser elements of literature into pure gold; he could touch dull and dry and dead facts and old dusty records, and make them throb with life and beauty.

At any rate it is probably true that of all the great names of this earth, none is more certain of immortality than Shakespeare.

The English poet of the 19th century probably penned true words when he wrote:

"Revolving years have fitted on,
Corroding time has done its worst,
Plum and worshipper have gone
From Avon's shrine to shrines of dust.
But Shakespeare lives unvalued still
And unapproached by mortal mind
The giant of Parnassus hill
The pride, the monarch of mankind."

THE MYSTERY MAN

Secret of Houdini's Wonderful Feats Went To Grave With Him.

Harry Houdini's mysterious feats of escape which thrilled spectators throughout the world in his life, are now locked in the mystery of death. The magician, hailed by his fellow workers as the greatest of them all, died taking with him the secrets of how he escaped from manacles, chains, coffins, straight-jackets and other contrivances, performances which no other man had ever duplicated under his training. Although Houdini wrote copiously on magic, the secret of his quarter of a century experience as a conjurer, his manager announced that his own methods never were revealed.

"His stunts were his own and not adopted from something someone else had done," said B. M. Ernest, vice president of the Society of American Magicians. Although Houdini performed his run of magical tricks, he gained world notice for his untiring attacks on spiritual mediums.

He probably was best known to his audiences in his capacity for releasing himself from almost any kind of confinement that could be devised. Probably one of the most spectacular feats and also one of his latest, was when he was confined in a coffin under water for 90 minutes. This performance resulted from his challenge that he could discredit on exhibition any seemingly magic trick Raymen Bey, an Egyptian man of magic, had been claiming by remaining in a sealed coffin under water for 19 minutes. "Short breath and the conservation of oxygen did it," was Houdini's exclamation after he had surpassed the Egyptian at his own game by remaining under water more than four times as long.

A statement issued by the family blamed Houdini's fatal illness on a blow struck by a McGill University student at Montreal, Oct. 22. The statement said some students had gathered in Houdini's dressing room following a performance and one of them struck the magician in the stomach in testing his strength. Houdini winced and experienced increasing pains which culminated in his collapse a week ago.

Some notable escapes by Houdini were: Broke out of Siberian prison cell in Moscow, Russia, May, 1903; leaped doubly handcuffed from the Belle Island bridge into the Detroit river, Dec. 2, 1906, and released himself under the icy waters; leaped into San Francisco Bay Oct. 25, 1907, handcuffed with his hands behind his back; and with 75 pound ball and chain locked to his body; freed himself from shackles especially constructed by workers in the Krupp factory in Essen, Germany, in 1901.

GOULD'S PLURALITY

Aroostook Candidate Led Nearest Competitor By More Than 3500.

With only a few small towns and plantations unheard from Arthur R. Gould's plurality over former Gov. Baxter in the Maine Senatorial race had mounted to 3533. The summary was: Gould, 25,344; Baxter, 21,801; Buzzell, 14,805; Jack, 1181.

Gould carried the cities of Bangor, Calais, Eastport, Old Town, Portland, South Portland and Ellsworth. Baxter led in Auburn, Augusta, Bath, Biddeford, Gardiner, Hallowell, Lewistown, Saco, Westbrook and Waterville.

Buzzell carried three cities, Belfast, Rockland and Brewer.

"The result of the primary is a vindication of the principles of the Republican party," said Mr. Gould in a statement issued Tuesday. "The spirit of fairness and the right turned the tide and our good friends and supporters won the victory," he declared.

Congratulations were received by Mr. Gould from all three of his opponents.

EDUCATION WEEK

School men in this vicinity have received this notice concerning National Education Week (Nov. 8-13) from the State Department of Education. "Education Week has become so much of an institution since its promotion by the National Education Association and the American Legion that it is seems hardly necessary to send out suggestions in regard to its observance. I am, therefore, merely calling your attention to the fact that Education Week begins Sunday, Nov. 7, and has for its motive the usual classification," says Dr. Thomas. The program is as follows: Sunday, For God and Country Day; Monday, Constitutional Rights; Tuesday, Patriotism; Wednesday, Armistice Day; Friday, Know Your School; Saturday, Community Day.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

SHADE

The kindest thing God ever made.
His hand of very healing light.
Upon a fevered world, is shade.
His glorious company of trees
Throw out their mantles, and on these
The dust-stained wanderer finds ease.
Green temples, closed against the heat
Of noon-time's blinding glare and heat.
Open to any pilgrim's feet.

The white road blisters in the sun;
Now, half the weary journey done,
Farer add rest, Oh weary feet!

And feel the dew of dawn still wet
Beneath thy feet, and so forget
The burning highways' ache and fret.

This is God's hospitality,
And whose rests beneath a tree
Hath cause to thank Him gratefully.
—Theodosia Garrison.

THE OFF-YEAR RESULTS

In Tuesday's off-year election it is the Republican party that brings home the thinnest slices of bacon. The Democrats gain seven Senators and fourteen Congressmen. While this leaves the lower house safely in Republican control, in the Senate there will be equal division of the two parties, and even this must depend upon the return of Mr. Gould in the election which Maine is to hold on Nov. 29. And this will serve to throw our State strongly into the limelight, for while under normal conditions the election of the Aroostook man would be easily accomplished, the value of one more Senator to their party is likely to find the national Democratic organization taking an active part in the campaign in the hope to secure the election of Candidate McLean. In Massachusetts the election of Governor Fuller by a tremendous majority and the defeat of Senator Butler on the same ticket by a majority relatively large, suggests the degree to which the people of the Bay State register the independence of their convictions. Governor Fuller and Mr. Walsh were popular, Mr. Gaston and Senator Butler were not. That tells the story. In the expression of individual preference party lines became considerably obliterated, and hence the trade winds. Among the outstanding features is the great majority by which New York expressed its approval of Governor Smith, who now looms more formidably than ever as Democracy's next presidential candidate. It looks as though the national election of 1928 was destined to be preceded by a campaign of marked vigor. Meantime it is the business of Maine Republicans to make certain the return of Arthur R. Gould to the United States Senate.

The announcement in the news columns of our Tuesday issue brought a thrill to that considerable company of people who for a long period of time have had upon their hearts the desire to see erected in Thomaston a suitable memorial to General Henry Knox. It is not necessary here to review the story upon which rests this natural desire to honor the memory of the patriot conspicuous in the history of the Revolutionary period, and who selected this fine old colonial community as the scene of his peace activities and there spent the final years of his life. It will be sufficient to congratulate in warmest terms the patriotic women who with vision sustained by faith and patience now find their dreams and ambitions, through the allied assistance of Mr. Curtis and Mr. Flint, destined to fullest realization. The erection of a Knox Memorial building in line with adopted plans will confer upon Thomaston a high note of distinction, in which the whole surrounding region will share.

Students of traffic congestion point out, based on surveys made in a number of cities as to the number of passengers actually carried in automobiles and street cars, that it would require a line of automobiles 660 feet long to convey the passengers of a single electric car. This furnishes one of the important reasons why street cars must be depended upon to transport more than 75 percent of the riding public in cities. The streets are entirely too small to permit this being done by private automobiles alone. The principle holds true of associated communities such as are served by the Rockland, Thomaston & Camden street railway.

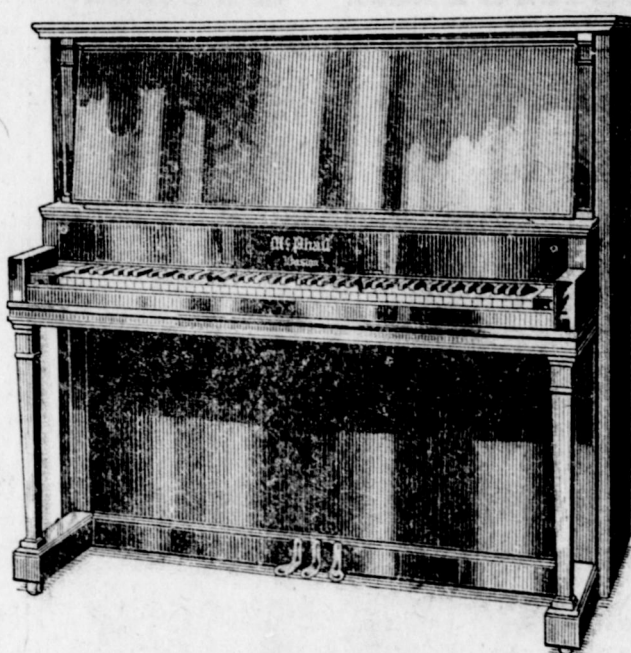

It would be interesting to know why Houdini should prefer to take with him the story of how his most striking feats of mystery were produced. Such narratives convey a special thrill and none in this particular would be likely to surpass the tale which it lay in his hands to unfold. Is it likely that he had in mind a possible escape from what mankind regards as the final place of confinement?

When we read that Walter R. Christie of Presque Isle has cleaned up a profit of more than $300,000 from his 1926 potato crop we cease to wonder at the confidence which the Aroostook farmers repose in the value of the potato as a single product. It is difficult to emphasize diversity of crops with the potato so openly demonstrating its potentiality.

John Barleycorn had more or less to do with it. The old boy had long experience in the field and never likes to see an election go by without having a finger in it.

Rockland High is getting ready for one of the hardest games in its history. Winslow High is the team which comes to Rockland Friday afternoon with the best high school record outside of Lewiston that any team in the State holds. Winslow is only a small school but in the past three years has lost but one game and that was Saturday when Higgins C. I. defeated it 7 to 0. Cony High of Augusta and many other of the best High Schools have been taken into camp by this team. Camden has been beaten this season by Winslow and it will be interesting to see if Rockland can put up a better game than that put up by Rockland's old rivals. This will be Rockland's last game and everyone should turn out to see this year's light but fast team do its best to come through with a victory. Every student at the High School will be at the game and the cheering alone will be worth going to hear. The people of Rockland have not followed the football teams very well the last two years and many of the parents who have boys on the team have never seen a game. Plan to be there Friday and back your team and win or lose you will be proud of them.

PARK THEATRE

If you want to laugh one minute and gasp the next—see Raymond Griffith in "You'd Be Surprised." Today at this theatre. It is undoubtedly Griffith's best picture since "Paths to Paradise." As a "Sherlock Holmes," Ray goes through mental gymnastics in the unraveling of a murder mystery which would do credit to any sleuth. Pictorial beauty of setting and background characterizing Vera Reynolds' latest starring vehicle, "Risky Business," will be shown Friday and Saturday. A delightful story such as "Risky Business" requires beauty and variety in setting, and it is this effect, as well as the visual portrayal of vitally important elements of the plot, that the contrasting but always pleasing settings of the picture accomplish.

The other feature is Alberta Vaughn in "The Adorable Deceiver." The story is from the pen of Harry Hoyt, and Doris Anderson made the continuity. The production was directed with unusual skill by Phil Rosen, and the cast, every one of which give an excellent interpretation of their parts, includes such stars as Harland Tucker, Dan Makarenko, Frank Leigh, Jane Thomas, Cora Williams, Rosa Gore and Sheila Hayward.—adv.

EMPIRE THEATRE

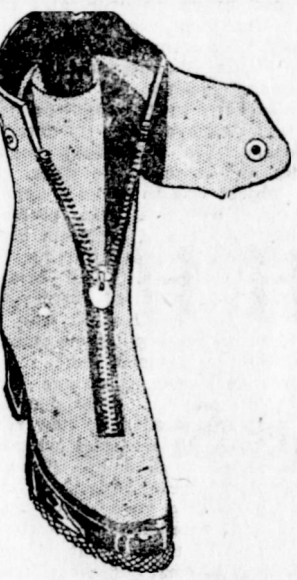

The double feature program today at the popular Empire Theatre is "Pals in Paradise," featuring Marguerite De La Motte and John Powers, and "When the Wife's Away," with George Arthur. "The Yellow Back," which comes Friday and Saturday, is one of Fred Hume's first feature length starring vehicles. Hume has had much experience in Westerns and starred in two-reelers last year. In the supporting cast are Lotus Thompson, Claude Payton, George Connors and Willie Fung.

In conjunction there is the third chapter of "Strings of Steel."—adv.

STRAND THEATRE

Cecil B. DeMille's production of "Bachelor Brides," starring Rod La Rocque, is now being shown. Bounding Dick Talmadge as a two-fisted cop who wades triumphantly through some of the most exciting incidents ever devised for a screen story, is heading again toward the screen of Strand Theatre in "The Night Patrol." Dick and his company will arrive on Friday when the production will be shown for the first time. "The Night Patrol" is a rollicking tale of love and adventure with Talmadge indulging in his favorite pastime of stunts and sun, dry agile antics, in which he is a class by himself. In his role of the swagger young policeman, devoted to his duty and his sweetheart, he serves up a character absolutely new in its adroit development, with emphasis on the side of comedy, of course. The added feature attraction is "Rawhide," featuring Buffalo Bill, Jr.

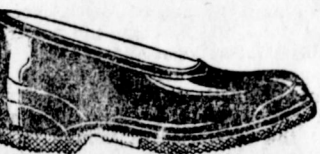

More than one million dollars is represented in the "live furs" seen in "Rocking Moon," the Metropolitan picture feature which will be shown at the Strand Theatre next Monday and Tuesday as a benefit in connection with Book Week for the Public Library. By "live furs" is meant the hundreds of live blue foxes which are seen in this interesting Alaskan romance. More than three thousand blue foxes appear in the film at different times and each good fox pelt is worth from $350 to $500. Aside from these animals, there are more than 570,000 worth of sacred masks from the Aleut and Thlinket Indian tribes which were secured from the Sitka museum and featured in the native dances in the production.—adv.

MET EXPECTED REVERSES

Off-Year Elections Result In Big Democratic Gains—Insurgents To Control Senate—Butler Defeated In Massachusetts and Wadsworth In New York.

Insurgents will control the new Senate and menace Republican leadership in the House as the result of Tuesday's elections, which saw them capture seven of the nine Senatorships and capture Congressional berths in 14 Republican States. The Coolidge flood tide of two years ago was seeking a more normal level.

Besides the gains in Congress, the Democrats have won the Governorships in two normally Republican States, South Dakota and Colorado, taking control of the highest office in South Dakota for the first time in a quarter of a century.

On the other hand the Democrats lost the governorship of Oregon; are threatened with the loss of that in Wyoming and their candidates in Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico are finding the going anything but easy.

Only one senatorial contest, that in Oregon, remained in much doubt late last night, the Republicans having returned Senators James E. Watson and Arthur R. Robinson in Indiana; Tasker L. Oddie in Nevada; and Samuel M. Shortridge in California. The Republican seat contested by former Governor Sweet, of Colorado, apparently had been won by Charles W. Waterman, who had a lead of approximately 11,000, with less than 50 precincts still to report out of a total of 1,591.

Belated returns showed the Democrats had unhorsed Senators Richard P. Ernst, in Kentucky; Ralph E. Cameron, in Arizona; George H. Williams, in Missouri; and O. E. Weller in Maryland. These were in addition to James W. Wadsworth, Jr., who was engulfed in the Smith tidal wave in New York; William M. Butler, personal friend of President Coolidge, who was overwhelmed by David I. Walsh in Massachusetts; and John W. Harrell, in Oklahoma, where the Democrats regained a control lost in the Harding landslide in 1920.

The Republicans will have only 48 seats in the Senate after they have filled the vacancy in Maine, caused by the death of Senator Bert M. Fernald. The Democrats will have 47 with the other seat held by Henrik Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota.

Included among the Republican 48 are three insurgents who won handsily Tuesday, Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa; Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota; and John J. Blaine, of Wisconsin, as well as Senators LaFollette, of Wisconsin; Frazier, of North Dakota and Norris and Howell of Nebraska.

With only eight districts missing late last night, the Democrats had succeeded in electing 193 members of the House; the Republicans 232 members; the Farmer-Labor one and the Socialists one. Of the eight districts missing four are now held by the Republicans; three by the Democrats, and one by the Farmer-Laborites.

The Democrats made a gross gain of 16, all from the Republicans, but lost two to the majority party, leaving a net gain of 14. In addition to the two seats they took from the Democrats, the Republicans nominally gained one from the Socialists, but in that case Representative LaGuardia, of New York, now sitting as a Socialist, elected to run this time as a Republican.

Massachusetts voters, rejected the plea of President Coolidge for the re-election of U. S. Senator William M. Butler, the state electing former Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, to succeed Senator Butler. Coming to Boston with an upstate lead of 20,000 votes, Butler was met by an average plurality of 70,000 in Boston, giving Walsh a net lead of about 40,000. Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, Republican, received a vote of nearly 60,000 above that cast for Butler and was re-elected by a majority of more than 145,000.

fourth term in New York, defeated Representative Ogden L. Mills by upwards of 250,000. James W. Wadsworth, one of the Republican war horses, lost his seat in the Senate in the slide.

In Pennsylvania William S. Vare had a lead of 186,368 over his Democratic opponent for United States Senator, and John S. Fisher, Republican, was elected governor of that State by the largest majority ever given a candidate for that office in Pennsylvania.

Frank L. Smith, Republican, has been elected United States Senator in Illinois, his present lead over George E. Brennan, Democrat, being 45,000. Vie Donahey was reelected governor of Ohio by 16,245 over his Republican opponent, Myers Y. Cooper. Senator Frank B. Willis defeated Atlee Pomerene, Democrat, by 90,000. Gov. McMullen was reelected over former Governor Charles W. Bryan, the Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1924. His lead is 3000. The Democrats captured a Congressional seat in that State.

Gov. John G. Blaine, Progressive Republican, and anti-administration, was elected United States Senator in Wisconsin, and will succeed Irvine L. Lenroot, administration leader of the World Court forces.

Gov. Nellie Taylor Ross faces defeat in Wyoming, being 1288 behind, with but 85 precincts to hear from. Her Republican opponent was Frank C. Emerson. A Republican victory swept into office a governor, a United States senator, and two congressmen in Vermont. Reports from 244 towns and cities out of 248 in the state showed that John E. Weeks, had polled a vote of 44,447 as compared with 28,276 for Herbert C. Cummings, his Democratic opponent for governor. Porter H. Dale was re-elected to the United States senate by a tremendous majority over James E. Kennedy, Democrat.

Republicans swept Connecticut, re-electing United States Senator Hiram Bingham, Governor John H. Truman, and the entire state ticket. The state assembly for 1927 apparently will be more strongly Republican than the one which sat last year. State totals for United States Senators with but four of the 163 towns missing giving Bingham 182,613; Rollin J. Tyler 104,837.

Senator Charles W. Curtis, Republican floor leader in the United States senate, was returned to office by the voters of Kansas. Incomplete returns indicated that Mr. Curtis, who has served continuously in the senate since his election in 1914, had polled a majority of around two to one over his Democratic opponent, Charles Stephens of Columbus.

Oklahoma Democrats wrested one seat in the United States senate from the Republican party, Congressman Elmer Thomas, Democrat, defeating Senator J. W. Harrell, Republican. The Denver Post, which sponsored former Governor O. H. Shoup, Republican, for governor conceded the election of State Senator W. H. Adams, his Democratic opponent.

Democratic voters of Texas went through the formality of electing Attorney General Dan Moody to the governorship. All other Democratic candidates for state offices also were elected. The contests really were decided in the primaries when Moody defeated Governor Miriam Ferguson for renomination. Nomination on the Democratic ticket in Texas is equivalent to election.

Getting Ready For Winslow High—That Game In Bath.

The Orange and Black gridders are taking all precaution for the Winslow High game and it was shown when Tuesday's practice was devoted to perfecting a forward pass defense. Chester Emery has left the squad because of employment after school. The team misses him very much. He had played in the Brewer and Hebron games and did very well. Wednesday's practice was a hard scrimmage against the second team. Knights and Trafion got away with several good games. A great amount of time was spent in strengthening the offense.

Bath evidently thought very well of the football team which went there last Saturday representing Rockland High School. These extracts are made from the Bath Times' very impartial report of the game: "Rockland High School ploughed its way through the Morse High eleven to score one touchdown and win its game Saturday. It was the first Rockland victory over Morse in years and came by virtue of a hard fighting machine that came across the river determined to win and did win. It was a Rockland team that outfought Morse from the start, and played with a spirit that explained how it had already won several hard battles.

Morse on the other hand found itself in the third quarter just long enough to give the supporters hopes that the game was yet going to stay in Bath. Coming back from the half the Morse backs ripped the Rockland line asunder with Cy Longley smashing his way through the field for gain after gain, hitting the line like a young cyclone. But just as the Rockland goal line came into view an ineffectual crash at the center of the Rockland line spoiled the march. It was a different looking Morse team that exhibited that march down the field. It played fast, hard football and rolled up the first down like a veteran machine, only to lose heart as it was stopped momentarily a few yards from its score. The game was lost principally through a weak Morse line that

Dr. Steward Believes Rockland-Camden Controversy Can Be Settled.

Rockport, Nov. 3.

To the Sporting Editor:—

Through the columns of The Courier-Gazette I would like to say a word regarding the football deadlock between Rockland and Camden High Schools. Football may be my hobby, although I am interested in all forms of athletics, as player, coach and, in recent years, as assistant to the coaching staff in the Camden High School I have followed this grand old game, too, these many years. I have many good friends in Rockland, and when Rockland High School plays a game outside of Knox County I am only too glad to see them come out victorious. Three years ago I offered my services gratuitously to the Rockland High School coaching staff, and when they were not accepted and Joseph Emery in Camden asked me if I would help him coach the team during Coach Burdill's absence I was pleased to do so, for I consider Joseph Emery one of the best coaches in Knox County. When in the early part of this last fall Frederick F. Richards asked me if Joseph Emery and I would help him I said: "I will be only too glad to do so." The time which I spent helping them was good proof of my interest in the team. Now, to call a spade a spade, I do not wish to help coach a team which having once accepted a schedule declines to play it out to the best of my knowledge no one on the Camden High School team has been killed or seriously injured. I want to see those two games between Rockland and Camden High Schools played before the season closes and do not think it necessary to secure the aid of outsiders to bring that about, a little tact and judgment and good feeling on both sides, and concessions by the athletic authorities of the two schools should settle this matter for all time.

I have followed the Knox County football situation through the papers with the greatest interest and my sympathies were certainly with the teaching staff and coach of the Rockland High School when their student body failed to give proper backing to the efforts of those boys who were willing to spend hours in manual labor to secure the best of knowledge. Now, I have an open mind concerning the football deadlock because I am unable to go to people who are best informed.

Winter will soon be here, and while I have played football with a foot or two of snow on the ground, I hope that it will not be necessary for the students of Knox County to do so. "Tempus fugit," and "Time and tide waits for no man." Let us settle this matter once for all or let the severed athletic relations between the two schools be permanent.

fell away like chaff before a fast shifty Rockland attack. The Rockland backs took out the Morse ends almost at will and circled the extremities for long gains. In Trafion, the smallest man on the field, they had a ball carrier that laughed at the local efforts to stop him. He shot repeatedly through the Morse guards for five and ten yard gains and ran himself ragged circling the Morse ends. But a tightened defense and a fumble held the score down to a one touchdown margin.

Feeling that the honor of the Bean Barrel must be upheld Freeman Young yesterday hit the trail for the big woods, bent on securing the bruins which Bob and Lody failed to bring back. "Freem" has taken a solemn oath to deliver at least one bear at President Tibbets' headquarters, and has also assured his fellow members that if he sees any big game he won't forget to shoot.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—
 Oh, you mothers of Rockland! Open your hearts and closets and send what you do not use in the way of clothing to the nearest schoolhouse or Miss Corbett. If you would only go into the school, see the children with their pinched, hungry faces, their thin clad bodies, your hearts would break. I know the parents go to the movies, but the children cannot help that. Now is the time when they feel the cold with the changing season.

Justice of Peace McArthur Recovers From Illness

Threatened With Loss of Health Due to Operation and Blood Poisoning, Cambridge Man Finds Relief. Regains Strength. Praises Tanlac

If you are nearing time when good health slips from you; if indigestion, nervousness, kidney disorders and ailments caused by run-down condition torture you, benefit by the experience of Cornelius McArthur, well-known Cambridge, Mass., Justice of Peace, and building contractor.

Sitting in his home at 35 Williams Street, Mr. McArthur recently said: "I am glad to be able to tell you what Tanlac did for me. In 1915, following an operation, blood poisoning set in and afterwards I could not regain my strength. My stomach gave out completely. Gas caused a sharp pain around my heart and the lump in my stomach made me think I had cancer. "Whenever I walked on crowded streets I would get dizzy and my nerves were in such a sad state that everything bothered me. My condition became so deplorable that I had to give up work entirely. I had grave doubts that anything could give me relief from suffering when I began taking Tanlac. Imagine my surprise when this wonderful tonic began to make me feel better."

"Tanalac relieved me and in a short time I was back to business. Nervousness, gastritis and dizziness disappeared. I am really so enthusiastic about Tanlac that if I had a dozen bottles I would pass them around among my friends and give them—perfect health."

Thousands of fortunate men and women now enjoying good health and strength thank Tanlac, the safe, effective remedy made from roots, barks and herbs.

Learn from their experience and never suffer another pain or ailment. Take Tanlac. The first bottle will show amazing results. At all druggists. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Fletcher's CASTORIA

When Baby Complains.

There are many ways a baby has of expressing any pain or irregularity or digression from its normal condition of health and happiness. A short sharp cry, a prolonged irritated cry. Restlessness, a constant turning of the head or of the whole body, fretful. In these and other ways a baby tells you there is something wrong. Most mothers know that a disordered stomach, or bowels that do not act naturally are the cause of most of baby's sufferings. A call for the doctor is the first thought, but in the event of any delay there should be ready at hand a safe remedy such as Fletcher's Castoria.

Castoria has been used for baby's ailments for over 30 years and has merited the good will of the family physician in a measure not equaled by any other baby's medicine because of its harmlessness and the good results achieved.

And remember this: Castoria is essentially a baby's remedy and not a cure-all for every member of the family. What might help you is too often dangerous when given to a babe.

To avoid imitations always look for the signature of Dr. J. C. Fletcher. Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

MILES OF SPUDS

Tremendous Hauling Task Which Confronts Maine Central In Fall.

In a single trainload of potatoes, of the kind now being hauled by the Maine Central Railroad, are carried tubers, which laid end to end would reach from Northern Maine Junction to a point between Philadelphia and Baltimore. The Maine Central, according to G. H. Eaton, its freight traffic manager, has for months been making preparations for hauling the enormous Maine crop, this year estimated at 35,545,000 bushels, of which about 40,000 carloads will move by rail.

In October the Maine Central moved about 6500 cars of potatoes—over 200 a day, which required not only rapid running time, seven-day-a-week service, but exceedingly heavy trainloads. It can readily be seen that 200 cars could be handled in two 100-car trains or in five 10-car trains, but the Maine Central with its powerful engines and efficient train crews haul the larger number, and so keep the track cleared and the potatoes moving to market.

Few people realize the tremendous volume of Maine's enormous crop. In 1925 the Maine Central carried 43,188 cars of potatoes to market, which was the record over all previous years, the five year average representing a volume of 746,797 tons, of about 34,184 carloads. About 30,000 cars of the 1925 shipments were received from the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad at Northern Maine Junction, the remainder originating in Maine Central territory and coming from the Maritime Provinces, reaching the Maine Central at Vancouver.

UNION

Two Sundays ago at the morning service in the Congregational Church there was in the audience one of the oldest living members, Rev. Frederick Clarendon Emerson of Springfield, Mo., accompanied by his son from Cheshire, Conn. Mr. Emerson was on a visit to his old home in Swanville, down near Belfast, and his son drove him to Union that Sunday morning to attend service at his old church and review old scenes. He joined the church 55 years ago, studied for the ministry some with Rev. F. V. Norcross and was an active worker in the church, sometimes doing the preaching. He and Fred A. Alden organized the first Christian Endeavor Society in the church and carried it on for several years. He inquired for all the old members, was extremely interested in looking over the memorial windows and remembered some whose names appear on those windows. He carefully examined the church all over and was interested in comparing the structure as it is now with what it was as he knew it, noting the many changes that have been made. Mr. Emerson graduated from Bates College in 1871 and then entered Oberlin Theological Seminary and after completing his four years' course was ordained to the ministry, and for many years held pastorates in Congregational churches in Iowa and for 22 consecutive years preached under the jurisdiction of the Congregational Home Mission Society in the West. He greatly enjoyed his visit to his old church and it was indeed a pleasure to meet him and his gifted son, who for several years was a professor in one of the A. M. A. colleges in the South.

GREAT FRIGIDAIRE FACTORY

The world's largest one-story factory building will be completed Dec. 1. E. G. Blecher, president and general manager of Frigidaire Corporation, has announced. It is 500 by 2400 feet in dimensions and will be devoted exclusively to manufacturing ice cream and household electric refrigerator cabinets. Two hundred and fifty carloads of wood block were required to floor it.

This building will house the longest straight line conveyor used in manufacturing and the largest porcelain enameling plant in the world. The conveyor is 1800 feet long and is paralleled by five other assembly lines, each leading in a straight line from raw materials to finished products. Fifteen enameling furnaces have been installed in the porcelain department.

"We have set a schedule for next year which will require a capacity of 50,000 electric refrigerators a month and will give employment to 12,000 men," Mr. Blecher said. "Our plans are turning out more units than all other electric refrigerator companies combined and we expect these increased facilities to enable us to maintain our position in the industry."

"Manufacturing economies resulting from larger factories and increased production have already been passed on to consumers in drastic price reductions. Lower prices have opened up new markets at home and abroad and 1927 will see us break refrigerator sales"—adv.

Keeper A. B. Beal and Mrs. Beal returned to the station last Saturday after a very enjoyable vacation, reporting plenty of rain in Connecticut. Mr. Beal contracted a cold which he has well under control.

The correspondent notes an article in the Boston Post dated Oct. 25 telling something about how Boston radio fans are struggling under a great handicap finding it difficult to separate stations WEEI and WISZ. We here get either station without this difficulty but once in a while WEEI and WLS, Chicago seem to be running a race. There are three radio sets here and they bring in the same results.

A birthday was recently celebrated by Miss Eleanor M. Beal. The party started promptly at 8:45 p. m. and how many can answer quickly what that time in the evening signifies? Why the "Big Brother Club" certainly, and Matinicus Rock gatherings wouldn't be complete without that familiar voice. A delicious treat was served by Miss Eleanor assisted by her mother. Gifts were presented and radio music enjoyed.

IN THE MOVIE

Chevrolet Daily Proves Its Value In Desert Pictures

Sometimes only one car will do! Out in the motion picture sanctuaries of California, where money, genius and picturesque country unite to provide romantic and thrilling screen stories, the automobile is handed most strenuous assignments. The motor car frequently gives its star performance behind the screen—unknown to the millions of moviegoers, who are often unaware of the vital contribution which the automobile has made to the taking of the picture.

When the motion picture director sets out to make a western film, the transportation department is confronted with the gigantic task of getting the entire company with all of their paraphernalia out to the great open spaces. Use of motor cars and trucks has made possible filming pictures in backgrounds that have the authentic atmosphere of the Old West. Year by year, motion picture men declare, it is becoming necessary to go farther afield to secure new and unspoiled scenic effects. A marked absence of roads is one of the chief beauties of the surrounding country from the standpoint of the directors but the transportation department found it very difficult to establish communication to many of the localities chosen, where the dry bed of sand was the best possible substitute for a highway to be found.

"After various types of motor vehicles had been tried," says Hal Roach, "a Chevrolet truck was purchased. It proved so completely satisfactory that four more were added and the fleet of five has since time and again, proved its ability to go anywhere and back again through the roadless desert around the Big Horn Ranch.

"For personal transportation I invariably use a Chevrolet. On my first trip to the Big Horn Ranch, I set out in a larger car. In the first heavy sand encountered the larger car tore out the rear axle and I finished the trip in a Chevrolet.

"Now many of the other executives of the Roach studios employ Chevrolets for their excursions into the country where men are men and automobiles must be real cars."

Signor Mussolini's suspension of elections as an economy measure seems reasonable after what happened recently in Illinois and Pennsylvania.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

HEAVY FREIGHTS CARRIED

Increased commercial activity and the heavy movement of farm crops is indicated by the monthly report of the Maine Central Railroad Company, issued this week by President McDonald. Freight revenue for September exceeded the income from this source in September, 1925 by about $50,000, while passenger revenue showed a decrease of over $20,000.

Surplus after charges for the first nine months of 1926 are only about $17,000 behind the figures for a similar period a year ago, which represents considerable improvement over the situation earlier in the year.

Gravity to the contrary notwithstanding, the more currency is inflated the lower it falls.—Wall Street Journal.

Concrete Barnyards Pay for Themselves

Permanent, sanitary, and economical in every way. Concrete paved barnyards pay for themselves over and over. They save all the manure—liquid and solid.

Any kind of stock fed on a Concrete floor gains greater weight and gains it more rapidly.

Concrete barnyards put an end to tramping around in mud. That's important in more ways than one. The women folks deserve this consideration. You know how they hate muddy boots.

You can easily build Concrete improvements by following a few simple directions given in "Concrete on the Dairy Farm." Write for this free booklet today.

Girl Scout Troops 1 and 2 gave a Halloween party to Troops 3 and 4 at the home of Miss Harriet Burgess Saturday evening. Entrance to the house was had by an outside stairway leading to the cellar and thence through a line of ghost-like figures to the rooms above. Judging from the shrieks that resounded throughout the neighborhood, it was a frightful, nerve racking passage. The rooms were decorated in the Halloween color, orange and black. In seasonal games the time flew so rapidly that the young scouts forgot the hours altogether and it became necessary to give them a gentle hint to take their departure, which was politely done by some of the hostesses entering the room and singing "Good Night, Ladies, Good Night."

Through an error by a member of the World Wide Guild, notice of a meeting was given for Monday evening, Nov. 1 and through an error of The Courier-Gazette correspondent it was stated the meeting would be held with Miss Larissa Allen. The date of the meeting is Nov. 8, and the place, 24 East Main street, the hostess Miss Larissa Richards.

Capt. J. W. Watts
Capt. Joseph W. Watts died suddenly at his home in East Boston, Oct. 28. He was born at Tenant's Harbor July 18, 1851 and at the age of 13 went to sea and continued the life of a sailor for 36 years, commanding among other vessels the schooner Joseph K. Southard, Nelson Bartlett, Martha F. Thomas and barkentine Stephen G. Lord. For many years he made his home at Tenant's Harbor, but finally removed to Boston and after a few years in business there entered the employ of the Ocean Steamship Co. and remained with that concern till his retirement at the age of 70 years. He was buried in Woodlawn cemetery, Chelsea. Besides more remote relatives in Maine and Massachusetts he is survived by his brothers James H. and Capt. Samuel Watts of Tenant's Harbor; by his widow, Barbara Stewart Watts and his children John R. and Gertrude H. of East Boston and Allison M., pastor of the Federated Church, Westford, Vt. Capt. Watts was a member of the Masonic Lodge at Tenant's Harbor and of the Masonic Fraternity Club of East Boston. He was a well read man, interesting in conversation, generous and genial. The Methodist Choir, held its bi-monthly meeting and supper Monday evening. Mrs. Thelma Stanley and Mrs. Evelyn Orcutt had charge of the supper, the menu for which included fish chowder and pumpkin pie. The vestry was prettily decorated with Halloween favors. Ghost ories and ghost games furnished much amusement for the 40 persons in attendance.

Carl Libby of New York spent the weekend with his family at the "La Osa."

Golden Rod Troop, the Girl Scout group of the Methodist Church, celebrated Halloween in a highly enjoyable manner at the Linnebrook street home of Mrs. Thelma Stanley Friday evening. The decorations were typical of Halloween and autumn, combining black cats and goblins with brilliant foliage and red berries. The old witch doctor told tales with terrifying vision and the ghost in the corner completed the weird picture. Sandwiches, pie and cookies with orange and black candy brought the youngsters up to the host story pitch.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Glover have returned from a weekend visit in Bangor.

Another successful Halloween hostess was Miss Lenore Benner, who entertained 20 guests on that occasion. Identification of the members of the party was not an easy matter, as the guests went in costume, and some resembled the appearance they present in the daily walks of life. The usual stunts were in order, and the evening ended in fun. And it follows as a matter of course that there were good things to eat.

H. A. Daniels who has been spending the summer in Rockland, sailed from New York one week from today on an independent tour of the world. He will visit: Havana, Cuba; Panama, Canal Zone; San Francisco, California; Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands; Kobe and Yokohama, Japan; Shanghai and Hong Kong, China; Island of Formosa; Manila, Philippine Islands; Singapore, Batak, Siam; Island of Java; Borneo; Penang, Indo China; Colombo, Island of Ceylon; Bombay, India; Aden, Arabia; Suez, Port Said; Cairo and Alexandria, Egypt; Naples, Rome and Genoa, Italy; Marseilles, France; Barcelona and Valencia, Spain; Gibraltar; Boston; Rockland, Maine. The voyage will occupy the entire winter. "I hope to see them land one of those 250 pound bales that they catch off the coast of Japan," remarked Mr. Daniels on the eve of his departure from Rockland.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearl M. Tibbets and Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Cotton have returned from a 10 days' hunting trip to Chesapeake, Maryland, and Virginia. They brought home a 10-point buck weighing 200 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. St. Clair and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Stodard recently returned from a fortnight's trip to the coast of Maine. They visited in Washington, D. C. where they were extended many courtesies by Gen. H. M. Lord and Fred W. Wight, and Mr. St. Clair attended a Rotary meeting, where he heard Cautoulian, the full blooded Indian chief, with the wonderful voice which he catches off the coast of New York. The trip was very enjoyable. Mr. St. Clair's son Frank A. St. Clair, the members of the Rockland party were amazed at the speed with which motor cars are driven in other States.

A. B. Conick of Warren is spending the winter with his daughter, Mrs. Leroy Elwell, 53 Gay street.

Ruth Mayhew Tent had one of the largest meetings thus far this season Monday evening with a very successful supper. It is planned for a sale in the A. R. hall Monday afternoon, Dec. 6, and the following committees were appointed: Fancy work, Messames Cross, Cooper, Douglass, Tobbs, Lohrhop; aprons, Messames Winslow, Brewster, Allen; cake and candy, Messames Paladino, Howe, Blackington, Clark; grab bag, Messames Murray, Bickmore, Bowley, Rokes. Inspection by Department Inspector Mrs. Bertha S. Noyes will be at the next regular meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harrison of East Boston, are guests of Mrs. Harrison's mother, Mrs. Charles L. Chase, Camden street.

Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock the members of Lady Knox Chapter met with Mrs. Mabel Sherman, Beech street, the regent, Mary P. Rich, presiding. There was much business to be transacted and four members were voted into the Chapter. The treasurer reported that she had received $131.70 since May 3 and had paid out $131.45, thus giving some idea of Chapter activities. The paper of the afternoon was by Mrs. Julia Blackington, who had chosen for her subject, Mary Ball, who later married and became Mary Washington, the mother of George Washington. She who was called "The Rose of Epping Forest," sweet and modest, yet filled with that faith and courage that caused her to wonder the world to say that she had been his inspiration. The Round Table was conducted by Anne Snow, who had for her subject, "The Merchant Marine of America." Mrs. Snow handled her subject most admirably, and as the hour was getting late the meeting adjourned, after which refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Kitty Coburn, Mrs. Annie Simmons and Miss Jennie Blackington. The Round Table subject for next meeting is "Patriotism in Peace Times," with Mrs. Mary B. Cooper as leader. The Chapter is planning to sponsor another motion picture and has chosen "Othello," with the dates Nov. 22 and 23, at Strand Theatre.

On the opening day of Miss Bicknell's Christmas sale, Tuesday, Nov. 2, a 10 per cent discount will be given on all new homespun and burr bags, 12 Knox street. 132-133

Mrs. Clara Dolliver has returned from a summer's visit at Swan's Island and is the guest of her son, A. G. Dolliver, Linnebrook street. Later she will go to Cohasset, Mass., to spend the winter with another daughter.

Miss Ruth E. Gregory gave a Halloween party to 15 little friends at her home, 12 Center street last Friday evening. The rooms were decorated in orange and black. Much merriment was derived from guessing identities as the guests arrived costumed as ghosts and witches. Even little Red Riding Hood was present. The peanut hunt prize fell to Gertrude Heal. After playing other games the young folks formed in line and marched to the dining room where lunch was served. Those present were Grace and Alice Clancy, Virginia Piper, Ruth Leach, Lilla Sherman, Gertrude Heal, Rachel Browne, Ruth Verrill, Priscilla Browne, Robert Anderson, Burton Dickmore, Charles Clancy, Thomas Milligan, Stanley Quinn and Robert Gregory of South Thomaston.

Mrs. Rhama Philbrick entertained the Cheerful Circle at her home last evening, having Miss Florence Ashmore of Easton, Penn., as her guest. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Havener and "Buddy" are on a trip to the Sesqui-Centennial. Chief Havener will witness a demonstration of fire apparatus in Philadelphia, and later will attend a bottlers' convention in Buffalo.

A most enjoyable Halloween party took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Perry, North Main street Sunday evening, when they entertained Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anderson, Misses Phyllis and Anita Wyllie of Thomaston, and Sydney and Ronald Messer of Union. Each guest was escorted to a closet and asked to remove wraps. Upon opening the door a ghost came into view, automatically setting off a battery with the most unearthly noise. Each guest was then handed a siring and told to follow it up. After unwinding around chairs, tables, etc., at the end was found a paper hat, whistle and bow. Games played were apple-bobbing, siring race, peanut race and other genuine Halloween sports. Willis H. Anderson walked off with two prizes and found the meaning "of falling in the flour barrel." Miss Anita Wyllie and Ronald Messer, two belated ghosts arrived in the midst of ghost story telling, unexpectedly. Mr. Perry gave chase to the disturbers. The ghosts gave all a merry old chase until exposed. The dining room was very prettily decorated in orange and black and the guests ate, in a very unique fashion, searching the house for place cards and each couple eating in a different place and room. The menu comprised sandwiches, pickles, angel cake, coconut sponge cake, brownies, pumpkin pie and coffee.

HER DREAM BOY

Mrs. Cora Buzzell Millay Entertains B. P. W. With "Little Otis."

The Business and Professional Women's Club counts as one of its red letter events the supper held at the Copper Kettle Porch last evening, followed by readings by Mrs. Cora Buzzell Millay, the talented mother of three talented daughters, Edna St. Vincent, Norma and Kathleen.

As soon as the supper, which was delicious and served under the personal supervision of Mrs. Lawry, was cleared away, Millay was introduced to the guests, and completely won them at first sight by her quiet charm and dignity. Mrs. Millay is a small slender woman with iron gray hair, cut short and combed back from her face in a very becoming manner. She was quietly gowning in a dark blue dress with underblouse of blue and white foulard silk, tan hose and patent leather pumps. A little woman with charm of manner who made everyone present feel very much at home and at ease.

Her readings were confined wholly to her poems about Little Otis, her dream boy, and it is to be regretted that everyone who has a special interest in small boys could not have been present and heard these stories. Although Mrs. Millay is the mother of girls only, her understanding of the small boy is peculiarly keen, and it seems almost incredible in listening to these poems that Little Otis is an imaginary figure; he is so alive and so real. Mrs. Millay has always written poetry, but in previous years it was of the stereotyped sort, to quote, and not until about three years ago when in Paris did Little Otis and his poems come to life in her mind. Since that time he has become so real that an endless procession of his ideas come from her facile pen.

The poems of last evening covered Little Otis' impressions of many things including the new baby, the creation, the inhabitants of the Zoo, a pirate ship, etc. These vivid boy stories are made all the more vivid by Mrs. Millay's manner of presenting them. Her voice lends itself well nigh to perfection. There is not the affectation of the youngster's voice which we are accustomed to in practically all readers of child poems. On the other hand she reads in her natural voice, which is low-pitched and surprisingly youthful, and reads so naturally and spontaneously that the effect is amazingly real.

These Little Otis poems are about to be published under the title of "Little Otis and His Pegasus." The series, among which will appear "Little Otis at Grandfather's Farm," "Little Otis at the Zoo" and "Little Otis and the Bible," have been taken up by the syndicated papers, among which are the New York Times and the Boston Herald. Each day in the papers under this syndication a poem will appear. At the heading will be a picture of Little Otis on a winged steed of the hobby-horse type, wildly waving a quill plucked from the wings, and under this will appear "Little Otis says today" and then the poem.

In a brief informal talk following her readings, Mrs. Millay spoke of her deep interest in Rockland, the birthplace of her daughter, Edna St. Vincent, and laid stress on the fact that they never let any opportunity go by to correct the statement that Edna was born in Camden. She also expressed the hope of seeing familiar faces whenever she appears at a gathering of last evening's nature, and was happy to find some acquaintances of previous years there.

All in all, it was a delightful evening, and those who were present will long remember the charming little woman and her dream boy "Little Otis."

The regular monthly business meeting of the club followed when two new members were voted in, Mrs. Gertrude Matthews and Mrs. Evie Perry, and four new names presented for membership.

The club will hold a rummage sale at the rooms Friday, Nov. 12, Mrs. Caro Jones to be chairman of the committee.

Nov. 19, through the courtesy of Mrs. Lawry who is a club member, a card and social party will be given at the Copper Kettle Porch, with Mrs. Emily Stevens, chairman, and Miss Gene MacKenzie, Mrs. Emma Carver, Mrs. Edith Jones and Mrs. Catherine Pollett on the committee. It is planned to make this a pleasant all-round social time, and a large attendance is anticipated.

RED CROSS REVIEW

Miss Sawyer Tells of Marked Improvement Among the School Children.

The Knox County chapter of the American Red Cross held its annual meeting at the headquarters of the organization Tuesday, and the officers listened with interest and approval to the verbal report presented by Miss Louise Sawyer, Red Cross nurse, showing what has been accomplished in her department during the busy year just closed. Home demonstration, school work, social and bedside cases were discussed in this informal presentation of facts. Miss Eliza Steele, who is associated with Miss Sawyer in this work, specialized in bedside nursing, and in a single case made 65 calls.

A young girl who was found not to have been legally adopted, has been cared for by the Red Cross and First Baptist Church, and now comfortably installed in a home at Appleton Ridge, under the direction of Miss Myrtle Fisher. The Red Cross interested itself in another so-called social case, and through its records a young woman was enabled to obtain a divorce from a husband who was found to have been guilty of bigamy.

The baby clinics are numbered among the year's most important attainments. These clinics have been under the direction of Dr. Warren Sanborn, and the attendance has averaged 24 and 25, the children coming not only from Rockland, but the surrounding towns.

Miss Sawyer's report told of home demonstration work being done in 17 communities in Knox and Lincoln Counties. The object of these meetings was to give an idea of home nursing. Bed making and care of the sick, with home appliances, were taught, as well as child and prenatal care. These meetings were arranged by the Farm Bureau at Warren. The October work summarized thus: Nursing visits, 246; medical, 22; surgical, 20; chronic, 24; pre-natal, 26; delivery, 1; post-partum, 1; new born, 21; infant, 58; pre-school, 39; tuberculosis, 2; others, 31.

Sixteen visits to schools were made and 280 children were examined. These defects were found: Throats, 60; teeth, 107; eyes, 1; eyesight, 29; ears, 21; new born, 21; infant, 58; pre-school, 39; tuberculosis, 2; others, 31.

The amount of clerical work connected with the school examination is great. For more than a week a group of four have been assembling the cards and making up the records. Much improvement is noticed in the general health of the pupils in general. It is hard to conceive of parents allowing their children to drag year after year through their school life with defective eyesight.

With the dental advantages offered in this city at the present time it would seem that the matter of dental defects would be a thing of the past. None too soon can the compulsory dental correction law for the entrance to school and passing on to higher grades be made.

From among three applicants Dr. Lloyd Richardson was selected for the position of school dentist. These officers were elected: President—A. W. Gregory. Vice President—W. O. Fuller. Secretary-Treasurer—Helen Lamb. Nurses—Louise Sawyer, Eliza Steele.

Directors—G. B. Wood, A. W. Foss, H. A. Buffum, C. H. Duff, E. L. Brown, Rev. C. A. Knickerbocker, H. B. Bird, C. F. Snow, H. MacAlman, Rev. W. S. Rounds and H. N. McDougall.

DOERING-CLARK

At a quiet ceremony late Thursday afternoon at Herick House, Mount Vernon Congregational Church at Beacon street and Massachusetts avenue, Miss Marion N. Clark was married to Ralph H. Doering, by Rev. Sidney Lovett, pastor of the church. The bride, Mrs. Doering, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus W. Clark of 82 Middle street, Braintree. Mr. Doering's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Doering, reside in Rosindale.

At the wedding the bridegroom's sister Mrs. Frances Marr was maid of honor, and a brother Lewis Doering served as best man. A small reception was held at the Boston Square and Compass Club, Beacon street. After their return from a wedding journey to Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Doering will make their home at 246 Commonwealth avenue, Boston.

Mr. Miller's garage on Rankin street was the scene of much jollity Monday. Coming when Frost-meets-Troop of Girl Scouts held its first Halloween frolic. Patrol 2 had transformed the garage into a veritable witches' bower with crepe paper, lanterns and cornstalks from behind which goblins peeped. Shortly after 7 o'clock, to the music of a Victrola, the witches danced in, led by Black Cat, the identity of each being successfully hidden under a clever costume. Patrol 3 directed the games of fate and stunts, which followed till the call came for the grand march to the prettily decorated tables laden with sandwiches, candy, nuts, popcorn and apples. Every Patrol 1 had arranged. Apple one had a good time and cheers of appreciation greeted Mr. Miller when he appeared at the close of the party. Those present were Jessie Shute, Constance Miller, Mary Lawry, Dorothy Lawry, Lucy French, Evelyn Segal, Beatrice Mills, Edith Taylor, Marjorie Taylor, Madeline Rubenstein, Helen Rubenstein, Phyllis Snowman, Virginia Richardson, Virginia Healey, Dorothy Marjune, Elizabeth North, Irma Fickett, Jennie Cohen, Marion Weymouth, Rose Whitmore, Evelyn Hamilton, Barbara Karl.

Lansing, Mich.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."

CHECKER "CHAMP"

Ray S. Gould Preparing To Defend His Title

The annual Maine checker tournament starts in Auburn, Nov. 16. The championship is now held by Ray S. Gould of Lewiston, who graduates from Bates College next June. Of him the Lewiston Journal says:

Starting at only ten years of age, Mr. Gould began to play checkers. But where most boys leave off, he really began to study the game thoroughly. He has acquainted himself with the literature of the sport and has a working knowledge of all the famous openings.

He is convinced, for instance, that openings are a good thing. But he thinks that they should be incorporated in the ball at all times and should not be resorted to exclusively to break ties.

Here in Maine, as he explained, it has been the custom to play for points, each contestant playing two games with every other, the winner of each game receiving two points, with one point for a draw. At the conclusion the player with the most points is declared the champion.

He would not mind a trial of the elimination method, the players being paired, winners to play winners until the last pair play off for the victory. This method is more spectacular and of greater interest to visitors.

Personally, Mr. Gould is a slow player, never hurrying his moves. Ten minutes in contemplation of the black and white discs is no underestimate of the average time he uses for each play.

When this lad, ten years ago, began to check up winnings, it was in the Androscoggin Checker Tourney, when he held sixth place.

From 1919 to 1925 he won the championship of Maine in the State tourney and entered some other notable checker contests.

In 1917 he tied with I. P. Teel of Tenants Harbor, played off and lost. The next year he made second best. In the contest with Teel, he first lost 2-1 and 17 draws, later defeating Teel 6-1 and nine draws. In winning the match from Albert Dingley, former State champion, the points stood, 5-0 and 11 draws.

In the fifth American Tourney this Lewiston young man defeated Charles Lawson and tied Waterhouse for seventh place—which was no mean accomplishment for one of his years.

The report of the American Tourney, referring to this Maine man, says: "His record in the present tourney (the sixth) stamps him as a player of unusual ability." He defeated Nickerson, Hill and Newcomb, losing to Ginsberg and Bell in the majors and to Lieber in the minor. His record was 7-1-1. Mr. Gould has won $40 in cash twice, prizes offered by E. K. Chapman, a checker fan of Portland.

Bootlegging operations at Stonington received a setback Sunday night when Coast Patrol officials operating under the direction of Sumner C. Sleeper of Rockland raided a cavern and seized a still and a very large quantity of mash and alcohol. Two men who gave the names of James Gross and Rexford Hamlin were taken in custody.

WILLIAM F. GURNEY

The passing of William F. Gurney of Camden came as a shock to his many friends Sunday. While Mr. Gurney had been in poor health, he retired Saturday night apparently as well as usual, with no indication that the end was near. Sunday morning it was found that the spirit had left the body and it seemed that he must have died in his sleep. Mrs. Gurney heard no sound and had no warning that the death angel had visited her companion of many years until she sought to awaken him and found what had happened. The suddenness of the blow made it especially hard for her.

Mr. Gurney was the last of eight children of the late Kingman and Nancy (Whitcomb) Gurney and was born in Appleton, March 29, 1851. He was married to Mary G. Studley of Rockville, then in the town of Camden, on March 29, 1878, and his death brought to an end a happy married life of over 48 years. Besides Mrs. Gurney, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edna Gurney Tibbets, wife of Frank M. Tibbets, a well known building contractor of Camden. He also left nephews and nieces.

Mr. Gurney was a blacksmith by occupation and learned his trade with William Besse of Union. He was located in the shop that was formerly on Main street, at the foot of Summer St. Rockland 18 years and later in the same business in Camden. For a time Mr. and Mrs. Gurney lived in Southville, Calif., where Mr. Gurney did blacksmithing, and he had been employed in the same work, in earlier years, at East Union, Bluehill, Boston, Framingham and Westville. He was always industrious and a hard worker until his health began to fail. The Gurneys had recently sold their real estate on Park street, Camden, and a new dwelling, with garage, was nearing completion, on Union street, there, which they were to occupy.

Mr. Gurney was a good neighbor, a firm friend, of a cheerful and kindly disposition. He was a man of sterling character and good habits, an affectionate husband and father, devoted to his family and fond of his home. He had lived in Camden for 20 years and resided in Rockville prior to going to California, for nearly as long. The funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank M. Tibbets, 95 Mechanic street, Camden. Frank A. Richardson of Rockland will officiate.

BAN ON HEAVY TRUCKS

The annual ban on heavy trucks is announced by Chief Arthur H. Field of the State highway police, to go into effect on Nov. 1. Bulletins have been sent to each of the State officers instructing them to arrest all drivers of trucks weighing with their loads more than three tons, if found operating on soft gravel roads after the date mentioned. "This law will be strictly enforced this year," said the chief. "The roads of Maine are too valuable to allow of their being torn up by heavy traffic after the fall rains have set in, and our men will make examples of all drivers found violating this regulation."

BASE INGRATITUDE

[Boston Herald]

James McGlone of Bangor was motoring into that city recently when he invited a man on the highway to ride with him. This traveler, calling himself Adams, forgetting all obligation to his benefactor, "soaked him a couple of biffs," and in the further vehicular in which he now confesses, "knocked him cold" and took his money. McGlone, picked up on the road, was removed to a local hospital, where it is now expected that he will recover.

Here is a serious warning against taking in strangers on the road. Altogether too many people plan on this sort of transportation. We heard recently of a boy at a college preparatory school thirty odd miles from Boston who regularly saved the 99-cent carfare by making his trips back and forth to this city by "getting rides" and boasted that he had never resorted to the train but once.

Why is not the railroad a useful agency for regular travelers? Just how far the obligation of hospitality to strangers on the road ought to go is a problem which the community has not wholly settled; but the experience of James McGlone of Bangor would be likely to harden the hearts of not a few solitary motorists.

An Oxford Season

More smartly dressed women are wearing oxfords this season than for many years.

Dame Fashion seems suddenly to have remembered how much more comfort and support to the feet is to be had in an oxford. This is especially true of the

Cantilever Shoe

(For Women, Children and Men)

Lacing a Cantilever oxford draws its flexible shank or arch snugly up under the corresponding arch of your foot.

This gives exactly the support needed for tired muscles, without weakening them by over-support and lack of exercise.

The Cantilever sole and heel are so shaped as to relieve the inner arch of excess weight. This helps to make walking and standing much easier.

A few minutes here will show how delightfully comfortable Cantilever oxfords are.

Close of the Muster Season
Finds Berwick Tub Sitting Pretty.

During the 77th annual hand tub muster season recently ended the Triumph of Berwick, State champion tub with a stream of 257 feet, 11 1/2 inches, led the Maine machines with a play of 232 feet, 7 1/2 inches. The Triumph stands third among the world's champion hand tubs, her play being exceeded only by the Hancock of Brockton Heights, whose stream of 263 feet, 8 1/2 inches, gives the machine first honors over all tubs, and the General Butler of Lowell, Mass., with a stream 259 feet, 6 1/2 inches in length. The Hancock is a Cowing machine, the General Butler and Triumph are both Hummels.

The keen rivalry existing between the two Bath machines, Sagadahoc and Senator Baxter, was increased as the latter tub outplayed its rival throughout the season. Several years ago the Sagadahoc made a mark of 242 feet, 7 1/2 inches in a muster held at McKay Park and this record, which places the machine among the select 26 of the world which have shot streams 240 or more feet, has always been the goal of the Senator Baxter's crew. The past summer found the Senator Baxter making the best play of the two machines, 201 feet, 5 1/2 inches. The best that the Sagadahoc turned in was a play of 198 feet, 2 1/2 inches. The Senator Baxter's play was made at Damariscotta Fair.

The record of Maine tubs made the past year including those machines pumping a stream 150 feet or over follows:

Triumph, Berwick, 232 feet, 7 1/2 inches; Vixen, Berwick, 221 feet, 8 1/2 inches; Kennebec, Westbrook, 212 feet, 6 1/2 inches; Senator Baxter, Bath, 201 feet, 5 1/2 inches; Sagadahoc, Bath, 198 feet, 2 1/2 inches; Androscoggin, Topsham, 194 feet, 4 1/2 inches; Albert Havener, Rockland, 177 feet, 10 1/2 inches; Heckla, Randolph, 175 feet, 8 1/2 inches; R. H. Counce, Thomaston, 171 feet, 4 1/2 inches; Tiger, Boothbay, 161 feet, 5 1/2 inches; Robert Cosgrove, Gardiner, 150 feet, 9 1/2 inches.

The Rockville tub is also in the list, having a stream of 153 feet and 2 inches.

The Enterprise of Campello led in prize won with a cash total of $150. Twenty-six musters were held during the season, two more than last year, and four more than in 1924.

WHY CANNED FOODS KEEP

Brief Survey of The Reasons For
Great Development of Industry

How to keep fresh foods is a problem with which everybody is familiar, but which very few really understand. The results of spoilage are common knowledge; the causes have been definitely established only in comparatively recent years through scientific investigation. As canning is the most important of food-preserving industries and has in great measure superseded methods employed in the earlier years of man's history, it is but natural that the industry and other agencies interested in its problems should have devoted much study both to the causes of food spoilage and to the most effective methods of preventing it. Obviously, successful canning, whether in the home or in the commercial canning plants, must be based on a thorough understanding of these causes and methods. These are explained, in simple language, in a statement recently issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

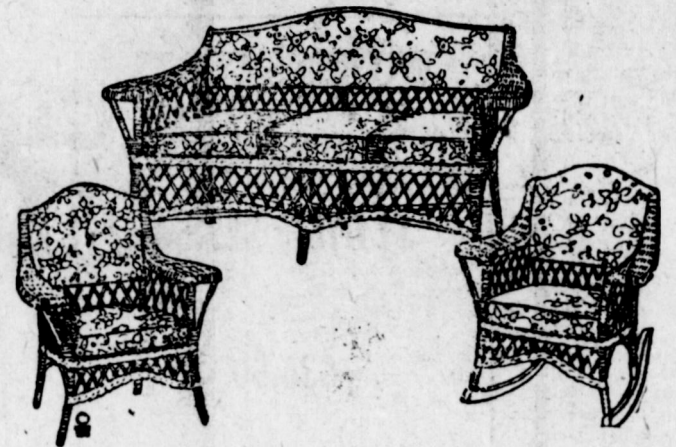

"One of the causes of spoilage is the presence of substances called 'enzymes' in all fresh fruits and vegetables. These enzymes bring about the normal ripening of the products, and, unless checked, they bring on final decay. The heat of cooking and canning checks their action, so it is only necessary to prevent the changes they may bring about between the time the material is gathered and the time it is cooked or canned. This is the reason for the emphasis upon canning fruits and vegetables as soon as possible after they have been gathered.

"The second and more important cause of food spoilage is the action of minute organisms which are present in the air, soil, water, and, in fact, on everything—yeasts, molds, and bacteria. Yeasts and molds are easier to kill than bacteria and do not cause so much difficulty in canning. Many kinds of bacteria are able, when unfavorable conditions arise, to go over into a so-called spore form, in which they are very difficult to kill. For this reason bacteria are the chief factors to be considered in canning. If all bacteria are killed and the product is sealed steaming hot within a sterile air-tight container the food is said to be sterilized. The application of heat to foods during canning in order to kill bacteria is called 'processing'.

"This explanation is so simple that one wonders it was not discovered long ago. As a matter of fact, the art of canning was discovered over a hundred years ago, but the man who discovered it knew only that certain treatment of fresh foods would get certain results—he did not know why. Some fifty years later, Louis Pasteur, a pioneer in the science of bacteriology, definitely determined what causes spoilage, and thus established the basis for what is now really the science of canning. The presence of air has always been associated with spoilage, and it was quite natural that before Pasteur's time there was a general belief that the vacuum in the jar or can was what preserved the food.

An outstanding characteristic of present-day canning is its work in the development and improvement of varieties of fruits and vegetables peculiarly adapted for canning. Another, closely associated with this, is the location of canneries so that the raw materials go directly from the field to the factory and into the can. Quality in canned foods depends almost as much on prompt handling as on the character of the material handled, and modern canneries, with their wonderful mechanical equipment, have steadily reduced the time from the gathering of the products in the field to their final sealing in the can—adv.

JURY SUSTAINED

Law Court Hands Down Decision In the Berliawsky-Burch Case.

The motion and exceptions by the defendant were overruled and the verdict of the jury for the plaintiff upheld in the case of Isaac Berliawsky vs. Charles E. Burch, et al. The Law Court's decision, drawn by Associate Justice Philbrook, was received by Clerk of Courts Griffin yesterday. The receipt follows:

This is an action in assumpsit to recover on a promissory note which the plaintiff alleges was given him by the defendants, bearing date of July 19, 1922, the amount being $600 with interest at 7 percent until paid, payment of note and interest to be made within six months from its date.

Exceptions

Whether or not the defendants, by reason of their financial standing, could or could not lend value to the note as an accommodation maker, was a question of fact for the jury to determine, open to testimony from both sides, and they were to determine the issue.

The defendants cannot properly demand that an established rule governing the admission of shop books may be disregarded merely for the purpose of corroboration of a party to the suit.

When checks could not be found, but the plaintiff admitted that the defendants paid interest on the note, by check, and the defendants admit that the stubs showed payments of interest on the note, the exclusion of these stubs, even if admissible under some circumstances which we do not find applicable to the case at bar, was not prejudicial to the defendants.

The Motion

The case involves primarily these issues of fact: First, whether or not the note in suit was an accommodation note; second, whether or not it had been paid by giving a renewal note. The note in suit was not produced at the trial and the evidence is practically conclusive that it was lost. Upon these issues, and others, some of which are collateral, the jury found for the plaintiff, and, after careful examination of the record, we cannot say that having
