There have been several conferences between the state department and the White House over the Japanese situation. The subject was discussed at the last cabinet meeting. In view of the appeal that had been made to the President by the Japanese ambassador, there is no concealing the fact that the situation is one requiring the most delicate diplomatic handling to avoid an open rupture.

The Vision of Insects. A notable fact about vision of insects, and one which it may be supposed must largely influence their view of the external world, is the number of facets, or lenses, in compound eyes. A German naturalist, K. Leinemann, has been painstaking enough to count the number of facets in the eyes of no fewer than 150 species of beetles.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

A year's carefully and efficiently directed work on the village green at Bar Harbor has worked wonders with the formerly bare and unattractive lot in the most central portion of the town. But a short time ago it was a stubbly pasture-like lot of ground, across whose centre the feet of many pedestrians, looking for a short cut across the corner, had worn a broad diagonal path of irregular width and uneven surface. The lot seemed to be good for nothing in particular, except for the boys to play ball on the field, which with its

Perhaps that fox which wandered into Pearl Parker's yard Sunday was counting on its being "close time" on those grounds on that day, but he found out his mistake, when Mrs. Parker ran around the barn to cut off his retreat in that direction, and Mr. Parker met him with a rifle that did deadly execution.

OBTUARY. Emeline S., wife of Charles C. Clough, died October 15, aged sixty-eight years, five months, twelve days.

It is fitting to pay some tribute of affection and remembrance to one, who, traveling life's highway with us for more than three-score years, has reached the end of her pilgrimage and entered into rest; for the influence of her pure life, her nobility of character, and her many virtues abides with us still.

Though having high ideals of life and truth and duty, she was practical in all her works and ways, and charitable for the weaknesses of others. Endowed with a taste for good literature and music, she found much to enjoy in these particular gifts and made use of them for the pleasure of others. For many years she used her voice in the service of song in the Congregational church choir, of which her husband was leader, and for forty years she was a most consistent member of that church, where she was very regular in her attendance, and where in the Sunday school department she was always helpful either as student or teacher.

Mrs. Clough was a true home-maker. Her own family circle, her brothers, sisters and other relatives, her many guests, will never forget the true hospitality, the atmosphere of welcome that pervaded that home. Old and young gladly entered that open door sure of a cordial reception by that household.

On the shadows which hover over those who have been known and loved her, the symmetry and beauty of her character gleam in clear outline, a source of comfort and consolation.

Appropriate funeral services were conducted by Rev. E. Bean, and four of her life-long neighbors—Curtis Dodge, Austin Parker, Gilbert Stover and Harvey H. McIntyre—were the bearers.
