The ladies' aid society of the Methodist church has decided on Thursday, Dec. 3, as the date of its fair and sale, which will be held at Odd Fellows hall. A short entertainment will be given in connection with the fair.
It is reported that the remains of a bull and a cow mease, evidently killed before open season, were found in the Tremont woods recently. Parts of the bull had been removed, but the cow had been left to rot where she fell.

Owing to limited time in which to prepare it, the Dirigo club has abandoned the idea of presenting a drama in connection with its Thanksgiving eve ball. The committee in charge is now busy arranging for an attractive vaudeville program.
A. H. Clement was adjudged guilty of a violation of the prohibitory law by Judge Peters yesterday in the municipal court, and was fined $50 and costs. He appealed and gave bonds for his appearance at the next term of the supreme judicial court.
Sunrise council, D. of L., will meet with Mrs. Fullerton, 23 Hancock street, to-morrow evening. After the usual business meeting, refreshments will be served. All members are requested to be present, as important business will come before the meeting.

A party of thirty gentlemen will give a series of four private dancing assemblies at Society hall this winter. The first of the series will be given next Tuesday evening, Nov. 24, and the others will follow at intervals of two weeks. Dancing will begin at 9 o'clock.
Governor Cobb last Wednesday announced the nomination of John B. Newman as judge of the Ellsworth municipal court, in place of Judge John A. Peters, whose term expires Dec. 1, and who, having been elected to the legislature, was not a candidate for renomination.
Agnes M., wife of Neil A. Raymond, died this morning at her home on Fourth street, after a long illness of consumption, aged twenty-three years. She was the daughter of John Clark, of Ellsworth, and was married to Mr. Raymond two years ago. They have no children.

Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fortier, died Thursday of diphtheria, after an illness of only a few days. Her age was three years and eight months. Sympathy is expressed for the parents, who have lost two children within a few weeks, May, aged eleven years, dying on Sept. 2 last.
The Grow house at the corner of Franklin and Pine streets has been rented as a parsonage for the Methodist society, and Rev. W. F. Emery and family will move there the last of this week. The house has been thoroughly renovated and fumigated throughout, and the interior painted and papered. A new furnace has been installed.
The remains of William T. Hersey, who was found dead in a pasture at North Bluehill a few weeks ago, were taken to Dexter last night by Undertaker Harry C. Austin. Preston Hersey, a brother of the deceased, completed the identification of the body from clothing and articles found on it, and made arrangements for its burial.

The Ellsworth people who went to Orono last Saturday to witness the Bowdoin-U. of M. football game, failed to connect with the regular train down which was held half an hour for them, and for a time it looked as if they would have to spend Sunday in Bangor. The Maine Central put on a special train for them, however, and landed them here about 9 o'clock Saturday evening.
The services at the Baptist church, which have been suspended during the past few weeks because of the enforced absence of the pastor, Rev. P. A. A. Killam, who was in "durance vile" while his house was under quarantine, will be resumed next Sunday. Mr. Killam's many friends were pleased to see him out this week, and to know that his son Keith, who has been ill of diphtheria, has fully recovered.
The Methodist society has decided to finish off the basement of the church, and the details are now under consideration. A cement floor will be laid, with an underdraining of tile. The room will be finished off into club room, kindergarten room and parlor, with provision for throwing all open into one large dining-room. There will be a well-equipped kitchen, and toilet-rooms for men and women. Every convenience of a modern church home will be provided.

Donaqua lodge, No. 105, K. of P., ranks second in a list of ten lodges in the State for obtaining the highest percentage of increase in membership from Jan. 1, 1908, to July 1, 1908, its increase being 52 per cent. The grand lodge voted to confer diplomas upon the ten leading lodges, and the diploma due Donaqua lodge will be conferred at its stated convention this evening by Grand Chancellor Lewis E. Davis, assisted by other grand lodge officers. An appropriate program has been arranged, and a supper will be served at the close of the convention. All members of the lodge are requested to be present.
An illustration of how faulty men's memories may be shown by a little friendly discussion which arose at the meeting of the board of aldermen last Thursday evening. In connection with the vote requiring the railroad company to close the gates at the Main street crossing nights as well as days, some one asked how long the gates had been there. There were eight or ten people in the room. One said three years; another six years. These seemed to be the outside ranges. As a matter of fact, reference to the records by City Clerk Hale the day after the meeting disclosed the fact that the petition for the establishment of the gates was presented in April, 1899, and the gates were erected in June or July following.

Margaret J., widow of Capt. J. Maynard Whittaker, of Ellsworth, died Thursday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary Coolidge, in Lamoine, with whom she was spending the winter, having left Ellsworth only a few days before her death. She had been ill for some weeks of Bright's disease, but the end came unexpectedly, heart failure being the immediate cause of death. Mrs. Whittaker was in the sixty-eighth year of her age. She leaves two sons—Irving M., of Boston, and Fred P., of Portland. Another son, Lewis, was lost at sea a few years ago. She is also survived by two brothers—Howard and Hiram Emery, of Bar Harbor, and one sister, Mrs. Coolidge. The remains were brought to the home of the deceased on the Hayside road, where funeral services were held Sunday afternoon. Rev. P. A. A. Killam, pastor of the Baptist church, of which deceased was a devoted and conscientious member, officiated. Interment was at Woodbine cemetery.

The Baldassari Reward.
A hearing will be held before the governor and council to-morrow for the purpose of determining the disposition of the $200 reward offered for the arrest of Frank Baldassari, of Crotch Island, who was recently sentenced to ten years in the State prison for killing his brother Antonio.
Inspector Keaside and Patrolman Donovan, of Bangor, who arrested the Italian in that city, put in a claim for the reward. Sheriff Mayo of Hancock county notified Chief Rowen, of Bangor, that the man was on his way to that city, and the two officers mentioned above nabbed Baldassari as he left the steamer Tremont at the wharf.
Sheriff Mayo is not a claimant for the reward. Eugene Snow, of Brooksville, notified Sheriff Mayo by telephone that Baldassari was on the Bangor boat, and Sheriff Mayo telephoned to Bangor requesting his arrest. George Snowman and Neal Dow, of Deer Isle, who gave information which led to the location and arrest of Baldassari, also claim a share of the reward.
It does seem as if Mr. Snow, who informed Sheriff Mayo that Baldassari was on the boat, should receive the bulk of the reward, but the notice of the reward reads "for arrest and delivery to the sheriff of Hancock county or one of his deputies". Under a strict interpretation of this notice for reward, the Bangor officers, it is understood, claim the full amount.

Blazing Cat Started Fire.
NORTH ORLAND, Nov. 14 (special)—The buildings of N. B. Colby were burned early Friday morning. The fire was started in an unusual manner. A lamp was upset, and the blazing oil was scattered over a cat. The original fire in the house was extinguished, but the cat ran through the connected buildings to the barn and crawled under the sillo, setting fire to the buildings.
The buildings consisted of a house, ell, shed, three barns, hall, a small store, and hen-house. Most of the household goods were saved. All the live stock was saved, excepting four hogs. A new cream separator was burned. The loss on the buildings was about $3,500, and on the store about $300. There was a partial insurance.

"Valley Farm."

BAR HARBOR.
Henry Francis Bulger, aged twenty-five years, died Monday at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Fannie Miller, of consumption. He had been ill for a number of years, and for the past year, although he had spent a good part of his time in a sanitarium, his ultimate recovery had been despaired of. He was an active young man, a hard worker, an enjoyable companion, and well liked by all his friends and associates. He spent most of his early life in Bar Harbor, and studied at Coburn classical institute for several years, later being employed in a banking house in Boston. Ill health compelled his giving up his position. He was the son of the late A. G. Bulger, one of the town's most prominent merchants some twenty years ago.

La Fayette
A Pattern For American Youth
If young again, how many of us would do things differently. We would begin differently in furnishing our homes. We would buy only articles of approved worth and permanent value, and all with due regard for the beauty of simplicity. In Sterling Silver Tableware we would begin with the La Fayette, buying a few pieces at a time if need be. The La Fayette is indeed a pattern for American Youth—chaste in its simplicity—delightfully quaint in its pointed bows and old-fashioned outlines, and always charming in its suggestion of Colonial dainties and daughters who used such silver in entertaining the nobles of their day, prominent among whom was the great La Fayette.
Our suggestion to the youth of our city is—"La Fayette!" If genuine, it bears the special La Fayette trademark.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 22, 1908. By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

With each recurrence of our national Thanksgiving day the hearts of all the American people...

The first call to gratitude is for personal blessings, both spiritual and temporal, and the second a call to national gratitude for national blessings.

National blessings have also been ours in the past year. It is true that there has been financial adversity to some extent...

I have a lot of plants which I sell slips from. I have two lots here which, when I last wrote, I was going to have for a garden...

BIBLE READINGS. Ps. xxiv, 1-8; lviii, 19; c, 1-5; cxvi, 12-19; cxx, 1-10; Mark v, 18-21; Acts ii, 44-47; iii, 1-10; Phil. iv, 11; Col. ii, 6, 7; Rev. vii, 11, 12.

A Pledge Arrangement. The following logical arrangement of the Christian Endeavor pledge was made by Mrs. O. W. Powers of Dayton, O., the wife of the home mission secretary of the American Christian convention.

ACTIVE MEMBER'S PLEDGE. Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him (1) that I will strive to do whatever He would like to have me do; (2) that I will make Him the rule of my life (a) to pray and (b) to read the Bible every day and (c) to support my own church in every way...

From Small Beginnings. The day of small things is not to be despised. In March, 1907, an English society distributed 2 cents to each of its members with which to trade.

THE AMERICAN, Ellsworth, Me. CO-OPERATION. "Help one another," the snowflakes said, As they cuddled down in their fleecy bed;

Help one another," the maple spray Said to its fellow leaves one day; "The sun would wither me here alone, Long enough ere the day is gone;

Help one another," the dewdrop cried, Seeing another drop close by its side; "This warm south breeze would drive me away, And I should be gone ere noon to-day;

Help one another," a grain of sand Said to another grain just at hand; "The wind may carry me over the sea, And then, oh, what will become of me!

Dear Mutuals: I suppose co-operation means something the same as mutual benefit, the difference being that co-operation may not always be for the good of others, while Mutual Benefit, as the name indicates, is always for good.

TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, Nov. 8, 1908. Dear Aunt Madge: I am still here and so busy haven't time for anything; my health is very good now, but it was poor enough for the first year I was here;

WEST FRANKLIN, Nov. 5, 1908. Dear Friends of the M. B. C.: Have not forgotten you, but thought I would give every one a chance to write about the reunion.

OTIS. G. G. Warren is critically ill. Winfield Jellison and son and a friend from New York were guests of Daniel Young several days last week.

DAVE. A lay liver leads to chronic dyspepsia and constipation - cures the whole system. Doan's Kidney Pills (30 cents per box) cures the liver, tone the stomach, cure constipation - 40c.

A SURGICAL OPERATION

If there is any one thing that a woman dreads more than another it is a surgical operation. We can state without fear of a contradiction that there are hundreds, yes, thousands, of operations performed upon women in our hospitals which are entirely unnecessary and many have been avoided by LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

For proof of this statement read the following letters. Mrs. Barbara Base, of Kingman, Kansas, writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "For eight years I suffered from the most severe form of female troubles and was told that an operation was my only hope of recovery. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has saved my life and made me a well woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN. For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, and backache.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. Archie Eager is ill at the home of her mother, Mrs. Frances Farnham. Misses Annie Conner and Una Gray have returned from Penobscot to spend their school vacation at home. The schooner Maria L. Davis, Capt. Willie Leach, loaded with lumber from Hall's mill, cleared Saturday for Belfast, whence cargo will be sent by rail to Massachusetts.

The schools of the Dunbar district, taught by Miss Hattie Dunbar, of this place, closed Friday with appropriate exercises which were much enjoyed by visitors. The pupils not absent during the term are Gertrude H. Dodge and Ralph M. Dodge. Last Tuesday evening a large company of friends invaded the home of Ross Conner and bride, and at the same time a copious shower of tin fell upon them, much to their surprise. They soon rallied from its effects, however, and expressed their gratitude in a pleasing manner.

Miss Virginia Wardwell, aged seventy-six years, who was stricken with paralysis last Wednesday, died at her home Thursday night, Nov. 12. Miss Wardwell was so youthful in both looks and mind and had enjoyed such excellent health until a few weeks before her death that it was a sad surprise to all when it was known that she had so suddenly departed this life. She possessed qualities of mind and heart which had endeared her to a large circle of friends. Her sunny nature, a well-stored mind of useful information, her musical ability, which she was always willing to share with others, and her generous hospitality, all conspired to make her a valued companion for old and young. A light and comfort in her home, she will be most sadly missed by the broken family circle. She leaves two sisters—Miss Sylvia Wardwell and Mrs. Annette Bird and one brother—Hosea B. Wardwell. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to them in their great bereavement. The funeral, conducted by Rev. R. C. Douthett, of Castine, was held at the home Saturday afternoon, and was largely attended. She was laid to rest in the family burying lot on a sunny slope in the field where all her life she had loved to roam. Nov. 16. L.

Medical.

Brought To Light. Ellsworth People Receiving the Full Benefit. There have been many cases like the following in Ellsworth. Everyone relates the experience of people we know. These plain, straightforward statements will do much toward relieving the suffering of thousands. Such testimony will be read with interest by many people. Mrs. Charles E. Higgins, 108 Water St., Ellsworth, Me., says: "My back ached so badly that I could not assume a comfortable position. At times the aching would change to sharp pains, especially severe when I made a sudden movement. For some little time after getting up from a chair, I was obliged to go about in a stooped position. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured them at Moore's drug store, and the second night after commencing their use, was able to obtain my proper rest, something that I had been unable to do for several months. The use of two more boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills made a complete and permanent cure, and I have had no cause for complaining since. Mr. Higgins has also used the remedy on different occasions when having attacks of backache, and has never failed to derive almost immediate relief. I do not think there is a kidney remedy on the market today of such great worth as Doan's Kidney Pills." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Gray, aged about twenty-one, of Bradley, were drowned in Great Works stream about two miles from Bradley Saturday. COUNTY GOSSIP.

The governor and council will determine to-morrow who is entitled to the $200 reward for the arrest of Baidassari.

Game Warden Ross, of Vanceboro, who has charge of the warden service in Washington county and the eastern section of the State, received word a few days ago that two bulls and one cow moose were mired on township 14, Hancock county.

The joke is on two Mt. Desert hunters, Harry McFarland and J. Milton Allen, who have returned from a two-weeks' hunting trip with nary a bird or beast to show for their outing.

Our Otis correspondent writes: "One evening last week Miss Nancy Jordan, who lives near the woods, was sitting beside the window and looking out she saw a strange and bold sight. A large animal of a dark mixed color was directly under the window, looking with ferocious eyes at Miss Jordan."

ONLY WANTED ONE TERM.

Did Senator Frye When He First Campaign for Congress. [Washington cor. Boston Herald.]

When the republican chiefs of Maine gathered at the New Meadows Inn, near Brunswick, early in the campaign, for conference and consultation, John P. Swasey, of Oxford, now elected to represent the Maine second district in Congress, settled down into a comfortable chair to regale the company with wit and conversation.

"Well, Bill," he remarked, in his dry way, "do you know I remember when you were first appealing to the voters for support? You said you wanted just one term in Congress. That was all. Isn't that one term about up, Bill?"

A robust laugh went around at the expense of United States Senator William F. Frye, to whom he addressed his inquiry. For Mr. Frye secured his term as congressman back at the half-way stage of the first Grant administration.

It has been a pretty long term, as Humorist Swasey suggested. It lasted through twelve years of service in the national House, during republican control and democratic control, and it has lasted throughout almost twenty-eight years of the Senate, where Mr. Frye is now the oldest senator in point of service, saving only his colleague, Mr. Hale.

The Maine senator is also one of the very oldest men in that branch of Congress, counting years, not service. The official congressional biographies show him to have been seventy-seven last September, and it is claimed in some quarters that he is just exactly one year older than that.

A spring and autumn visit to the favorite fishing grounds at the Rangeleys, a cruise on the new revenue cutter Androscoggin—appropriations for which he was instrumental in securing from Congress—and a few weeks at Poland Springs have rejuvenated him since the adjournment of Congress.

It is understood here that the fish did not bite in the Rangeleys this year to the senator's liking, but this will not deter him from going thither every spring as long as the Creator spares him. The Senate committee on fisheries, it might be mentioned, will hear nothing officially this winter about the bashfulness of the speckled flony tribe in the lakes of north-west Maine.

With advancing years Mr. Frye has been gradually relinquishing his activities at the capitol. He goes nimbly to the front, however, when the interests of Maine, or of the Maine people, are at stake, and has demonstrated more than once in recent years that he is still capable of much valuable service for his constituents.

His work as a legislator is very largely confined to the commerce committee, of which he has been chairman ever since the democrats lost control of the Senate. That committee room on the northwest corner, top floor of the Senate wing, with its three steps of the private elevator for senators is Mr. Frye's favorite coign of vantage.

Every session he grinds out a batch of legislation, much of which originates in that committee room and with its chairman and presiding genius. Those quarters will face him in new guise this winter. The entire commerce committee suite has been renovated and refurbished so as to become one of the handsome corners of the capitol.

CHINESE RULERS DEAD.

Emperor and Dowager Empress Die—New Emperor Named.

Tze Hsi An, dowager empress of China, the autocratic head of the government, which she directed without successful interference since 1861, and without protest since 1881, died Sunday.

An edict issued Sunday places upon the throne Prince Pu-Yi, the three-year-old son of Prince Chun, the regent of the empire.

Death-bed observances of three thousand years ago marked the passing of the emperor and dowager. They died alone and unattended, although surrounded by circles of object spectators, who remained a rod distant as, on account of the sacred persons of their majesties, they could not be approached.

empire, administering the national affairs with more vigor than any of her predecessors.

Her political career began with the wholesale beheading of princes in 1861, by which she established her son on the throne. A slaughter of reformers and others took place thirty-seven years later. Two years after this she deliberated, upon advice, set about slaughtering all Christians and foreigners, giving 100,000 taels from her private funds toward carrying on this work.

TIMBER CONSERVATION.

The Problem being Studied by Lumbermen and the Government.

The future development of the lumber industry in this country lies in the direction of a closer utilization of forest products. Both foresters and practical lumbermen now agree on this point. Just what can be done in this field is well illustrated in the operations at the mill of the Great Southern Lumber Co., which has just reopened its plant at Bogalusa, La., in response to the increased demand for lumber after the recent slump in business.

This company was quick to grasp the significance of rapid depletion of timber resources. Last year it began a co-operative investigation in wood utilization with the United States forest service, and arrangements have just been completed for a renewal of the experiments. The work will be along practical lines and will be aimed to secure a closer utilization of the products of the southern lumber mills and at the same time produce a margin of profit in excess of that obtained by the methods which are not practiced.

The field for work along this line is broad. It is well known that the superior grades of lumber are obtained from old mature trees, provided they are not weakened by decay or other influences. In other words, a thousand feet board measure of lumber, sawed from a tree two feet in diameter, costs less and is worth more than a thousand feet sawed from a tree only eight inches in diameter.

It is not good business policy, however, in a great many cases, to saw the most valuable timber into commodities which are relatively low in cost, such as ties and poles. It is the intention of the company to find out just what size and classes of timber can be best utilized for the cheaper commodities when given a preservative treatment.

To this end a careful study will be made to ascertain the amount and value of the products sawed from trees of different sizes, and just how each can be best utilized so as to secure greatest economy and profit. For example, can a tree eight inches in diameter be best utilized for ties or for flooring, and how will the profits compare if treated with those sold untreated? It seems reasonable to suppose that the profits derived from the sale of treated timber will exceed those from untreated timber.

Moreover, the greater use of chemically preserved wood will undoubtedly result in that wood giving a greater life in service. Hence, the amount of timber cut annually in the United States, simply to replace that which has decayed, will be materially decreased, and a further conservation of forest resources will result. Recent estimates by the forest service place this reduction at 10 per cent. of the total timber cut. The practical benefits of these experiments and of the investigations for the utilization of sawmill waste are at once apparent.

Every man's task is his life preserver. The conviction that his work is dear to God, and cannot be spared, defends him.—R. W. Emerson.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment.

Should the medicine fail to benefit you to your entire satisfaction, we promise that it shall cost you nothing. No other remedy can be compared with Rexall Orderlies for the easy, pleasant and successful treatment of constipation. Combined with other extremely valuable ingredients, it forms a preparation which is incomparable as a perfect bowel regulator, intestinal invigorator and strengthener. Rexall Orderlies are notable for their agreeableness to the palate and gentleness of action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience, and may be taken at any time, day or night. We particularly recommend Rexall Orderlies for children, delicate or aged persons, because they do not contain anything that could possibly injure the most delicate organism. # Elinor's Afternoon Off.

By CECILY ALLEN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

It was the proud boast of Mr. and Mrs. James Regan that their flower-like daughter, Elinor, had never set foot in that piebald vehicle, a trolley car.

To be sure, there had been a time when James Regan would have welcomed the chance to drive one of the good, old fashioned street cars, but those days belonged in the dark ages of Regan family history along with the momentous Sunday when that same flowerlike daughter had been christened plain Mary Ellen.

Today, thanks to a pocket of gold in the Sierras and a few lucky speculations made possible by those same glittering pockets, the fair Elinor had at her disposal a variety of private vehicles, from a tiny electric runabout to a sixty horsepower touring car, from a smart trap on their Long Island estate to a correctly equipped victoria for her daily drive in Central park.

The men who were glad to ride beside the girl in motor car or trap were equally glad to acknowledge their friendship with the blunt, shrewd Irish capitalist, for, though the Regans were counted among the newest of the newly rich, they were not of them.

A strain of royal blood had surely filtered through the dark ages of Regan family history, for both generations took to the newly found luxury as ducks had taken to the mudholes behind their cabin in the Sierras.

From the moment they had come east Elinor had been surrounded by irreproachable governesses, companions and chaperons. Her comings and goings had always been attended by chauffeur or footman or groom. And there had been times when, watching other girls flit fearlessly and unattended from ferry to trolley car, she had felt an odd twinge of envy.

Some things of life she had missed, and this something was vaguely represented by the trolleys in which she had never ridden, the city streets on which she never set foot unattended. Even more vague was her feeling that somehow her doting father had not quite played fair with her about Reginald Schuyler.

It meant something, of course, to marry into one of the old Knickerbocker families. Schuyler always let her realize this fact. He allowed his blue blood, which showed little enough in his pallid face and deep ringed eyes, to do his wooing.

The other man—he was, like themselves, new as to wealth, fresh and vigorous in every vein—he might have been so different if given half a chance. Sometimes she wanted to give him the chance. Sometimes she wanted to please her father. And neither of the two men in the case nor her father dreamed of the vague unrest in the girl's heart.

All this to explain why Elinor Regan's eyes fairly danced when she stepped from the door of the ferry-house and reviewed the long life of public vehicles. Belden, the punctilious, was nowhere in sight.

Elinor's companion, Miss Greenleaf, was young, but keenly alive to her duties and very anxious to retain her pleasant and lucrative position.

"Something must have happened. I am sure I worded the telegram very carefully. Shall I call a hansom or an electric cab?"

Elinor shook her head.

"I've heard you can get smallpox riding in public vehicles. Don't they use them for funerals and that sort of thing?"

She was watching her companion from the tail of her eye and wondering just how far she might go.

Miss Greenleaf looked worried.

"Perhaps I had best telephone to the house."

"Oh, no," interrupted Elinor quickly. "We can reach home by trolley while they are sending down the car for us."

Miss Greenleaf hesitated—and was lost. A few seconds later she was swept, golf clubs and bags, into a cross-town car. It was crowded with suburban women bound for the shopping district. Elinor swung blithely from a strap and enjoyed Miss Greenleaf's discomfort.

"If Mr. Regan ever hears of this!" thought the worried companion. And just then they alighted to change cars. Evidently there was a delay far down the street, for the two women stood some minutes on the corner, and then Elinor spied a drug store whose windows were filled with garish advertisements, beyond which loomed a soda fountain. Miss Greenleaf never knew just how it happened, but she found herself, feebly protesting, before a mahogany topped table which a white coated boy mopped up with a damp cloth.

"Chocolate ice cream soda for both of us," was Elinor's calm order. "Now, don't scold, dear," she added to her companion. "Even our maids have an afternoon off. Why not their mistress? I'm having the time of my life."

The white coated lad studied his stunningly gowned customers with profound interest. Never before had a young woman asked him to put 5 cents' worth more of ice cream into her soda. Then she had asked her companion, now entering into the spirit of the thing, whether she would have more soda or more ice cream. She might spend 5 cents more!

"Gee," said the boy as he dipped out the extra cream, "they act like two kids on a lark!"

As they sallied forth once more Elinor clutched her companion's arm.

"Let's make an afternoon of it, Miss Greenleaf. I've never, never ridden in the subway—please."

Something in the girl's tones made Miss Greenleaf turn suddenly reckless.

"We will, we will," and then she added under her breath, "if I lose my place for it."

In the subway Elinor turned a trifle serious. The noise, the confusion, the shouts of the guards, the crowding of the mob bound for a ball game, the flashing white pillars beyond the open windows—and this was how the girls who worked for their living rode back and forth each day. She thought of her trap and her runabout, her victoria and her touring car, and then she studied the faces of the women around her. A man had risen instantly on her entrance, and she had sunk behind a row of newspapers. But there were other women, older women, more plainly dressed women and more tired looking women, who swung from straps.

She leaned forward and peered around the screen of afternoon papers. Oh, that tired looking woman with gray hair and arms filled with bundles, who clutched desperately at a strap and swayed resignedly with the movement of the car! Elinor half rose in her place to offer the tired woman her seat, and then she sank back. Behind the screening newspaper directly in front of the tired woman she had caught sight of a face, a face she knew, Reginald Schuyler's.

And that man behind the paper was the real Reginald Schuyler, who could sit behind a paper while a tired woman swayed before him!

Elinor did not reason consecutively or logically. She had simply a vague feeling that if ever she became less radiant, less charming than she was today Reginald Schuyler was not the man who would forgive her defects. Reginald Schuyler would be a delightful companion so long as no sacrifice was demanded of him.

It was a subdued Elinor who a few stations farther along signaled to Miss Greenleaf that she had had enough of the subway. She slipped out of the car in dread fear that Schuyler might lay down his paper and see her.

Once more in the fresh air, she bade Miss Greenleaf hail a passing taxi-cab. Miss Greenleaf laid the girl's sudden quiet to the foul air in the subway and berated herself for yielding to her charge's nonsensical scheme.

That evening James Regan felt that never before had he fully appreciated his daughter's beauty and charm. She was so wondrous tender and womanly as they sat alone in his "den."

"Daddy," she whispered, her arms crossed on his knee, her face uplifted to his—"daddy," she repeated very softly, "if I were to ask you to buy the crown jewels of Patrovia or some other tiny kingdom for me to wear you'd get them, wouldn't you?"

Her father nodded and smiled down on her.

"And if I wanted to buy a prince and a palace I could have them?"

Regan frowned. He hated monarchical institutions. Then he smiled and patted her head. "I guess, yes—sure," he said.

"Or a new sort of orchid—and you'd send to the heart of Africa for it?"

"Now, what are you driving at, Elinor, girl?" demanded her father, his shrewd eyes twinkling.

Elinor flushed beautifully and griped both his hands in hers.

"Such a little thing, daddy—and it will cost you just 5 cents."

The old man turned serious.

"Out with it, darling."

"I—want—you—to telephone Jack Boardman to spend the week end with us at Grey Towers."

For a few seconds silence reigned in the high celled room. Then Regan laid his hand tenderly on her bright hair.

"Elinor, if you want that more than anything in the world—"

He hesitated, and the girl said softly, "More than anything in all the world, daddy."

The man flung back his shoulders and said firmly:

"Then I'll phone him now, before I change my mind."

For Jack Boardman was—the other man!

MEMORIES OF EASTBROOK.

Days of Lumber Industry and Prosperous Farming.

[R. S. Gerrish, in Bangor News.]

Probably what applies to Eastbrook applies as well to legions of country villages, but a recent visit of the writer inspired a train of thoughts in regard to this town.

Memory recalls the past lumber days when James Madison Blaisdell, of Franklin, was the mail carrier from Franklin to Waltham through Eastbrook. These were the bygone days, when Hass Mason, Charles and Henry Macomber, E. J. Swan, Tyler Scammons, Whitcomb & Haynes, John P. Gordon and Joseph H. West were the lumber contractors and merchants of Franklin and Ellsworth, doing lumber business extensively in Eastbrook and vicinity. These were the days of the oxen, and the business life of the Bunkers, the Wilburs, Dyers, Jellisons, Scammons's, Orcutt's, Butlers, Bragdon's, Crimmins, and lots of then prominent families, offspring of the genuine Puritan pioneerage of New England home lands.

After one left Franklin town road guide-board at Swan's corner, one was on the way to Eastbrook. Going over Beechland ridge, a high and slightly plateau, one was sure of a mile of hard going after a rain storm. Passing the well-kept farm houses then one passed the John Williams and Ransom Orcutt farmsteads but seldom without a stop at each and a pleasant chat or barter for farm stock or products, to say nothing of chinning a half a dozen charming girls.

From this settlement one really enters Eastbrook, and in the five or six miles over hill and through woods one encountered oftentimes half a dozen ox-teams with their big loads of piling or lumber en route for salt water at Franklin markets. All of these pioneers knocked a hardy and industrious living out of the realms of mother nature and virgin woodland, getting a prosperous home and rearing large families, and with here and there a little red schoolhouse wherefrom came the talent that has made New England famous. Schools here, intelligence was inborn, and all else clubbed out; the results were that each family had one or more bright ones and as many dull ones and half-wits. Today the latter are a rare thing in the scattered families, largely because, no doubt, the families are smaller. Quality offsets quantity.

To-day memory can recall the former days, but actually only sees the remnants of half-interested successors. This is largely the natural effect of causes—the remaining valuable lumber being reserved by the now wealthy landlords, while the successors to the farms and homes maintain the remnants of the old folks, and their former homes, have passed along from hand to hand or are unoccupied.

The past twenty-five years of culture and commercial advancement have lured many of the present generation to the cities where wages count and a weekly pay-day is necessary, as everything of life and luxury "costs so much". A disposition of dissatisfaction gained from urban life and literature has bred in the present generation, and after passing "forty years' life" crowded into five or ten years, they go back to take up the old homes and trade to take a "farm for the care of the old folks". "Easy come, easy go."

Few of them make a success at the slower farm life, for they do all their work in a half-hearted way, thinking "how things are done in Boston". The old-time "nice farms", blooded stock, etc., are but memory, and many a place looks deserted or at most temporarily tenanted. There are few signs of former times when a place looked as if "this is my home, and it is good enough for me". Now most of them look as if they said: "I am only waiting here till somefrustrator comes along to buy me out, and I shall go somewhere else."

Eastbrook has a wealth of fine soil, lakes and scenery and just the place for the modern sportsman's summer and autumn life. Few have found it out so, but there is yet a chance that the real farmer can locate here and have a community of grangers that can accumulate in a few years of industry and contentment a good home, bank account and reputation, but the tide of desuetude has followed the former tide of thrift. Some of those choice farms of ten years ago could have to-day ranked among the best in New England, with a splendid unlimited market. And may that day and era begin now. It is only a matter of resolution.

A HOME WHERE PERUNA IS USED.

Residence of Mr. C. Hallock, Antwerp, Ohio.

CATARRH OF THE HEAD.

Mr. C. Hallock, Antwerp, Ohio, writes: "My daughter, Allie, after taking three bottles of your Peruna, is entirely cured of catarrh of the head of two years standing."

"We have used Peruna as a general tonic, as well as for catarrh, and are well pleased with it, and recommend it to anybody who has catarrh. "Anybody wishing any information can write to me."

Mr. C. Hallock, Antwerp, Ohio, writes: "I kept on using Peruna as I had started, and after using it three days and nights the pains in my chest and stomach disappeared, and they have never appeared since, and it will be two years this July."

Per-na Relieved All Symptoms.

Mr. J. C. Crumpacker, R. R. 1, Kokomo, Ind., writes:

"I can say that I have nothing to complain of now. I feel well, rest well at night, have a good but moderate appetite, can eat almost any kind of food."

"I have no aches or pains anywhere, and can do some kind of work every day. I must say I can stand as much fatigue as I ever could, and feel good over it."

"The hemorrhage has yielded to Peruna, the grip has done the same, as well as pains and aches of all kinds."

"The roaring noise has entirely left my ears and head, my mind is clear, my recollection good, my bowels are regular, and I just simply feel easy all over."

"The cure of my case was surely a victory."

Catarrh of Long Standing.

Mr. C. A. Reustrom, 570 Seventh St., Ogden, Utah, writes: "I take great

Could Take No Food.

Mr. William F. Burke, 1885 Frankford Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "On the 19th of February, 1901, I was taken with cramps that extended from just below my throat to the bottom of my stomach. They were so severe that my wife had to go for a doctor about two o'clock in the morning."

"I had from February until July of that year three doctors, and they were giving me medicine for kidney, liver and bladder troubles, and after taking all kinds of their mixtures, in the month of July I could neither eat nor drink. For three weeks I had not taken a morsel of food except in a liquid form. At the end of that time I could not drink milk or water except in small sips, which caused me great pain."

"I had given up all hope of living more than a week or two at most. I told my wife I thought I had catarrh of the stomach. She seemed to think so too, and having read of Peruna I decided to give it a trial."

"I took several doses that evening, and for the first time in weeks rested fairly that night."

pleasure in stating to you that your medicine, Peruna, has completely cured me of a long-standing case of catarrh.

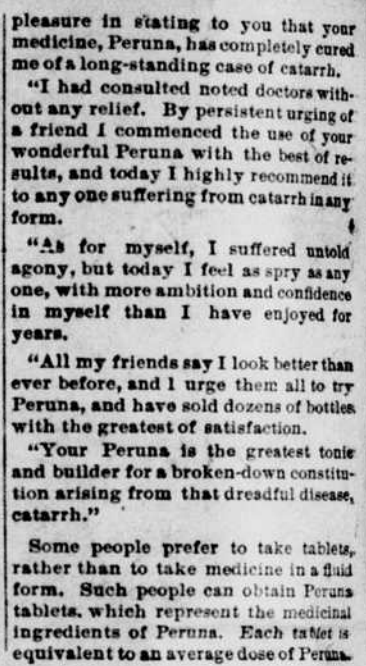

"I had consulted noted doctors without any relief. By persistent urging of a friend I commenced the use of your wonderful Peruna with the best of results, and today I highly recommend it to any one suffering from catarrh in any form."

"As for myself, I suffered untold agony, but today I feel as spry as any one, with more ambition and confidence in myself than I have enjoyed for years."

"All my friends say I look better than ever before, and I urge them all to try Peruna, and have sold dozens of bottles with the greatest of satisfaction."

"Your Peruna is the greatest tonic and builder for a broken-down constitution arising from that dreadful disease, catarrh."

Some people prefer to take tablets, rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to an average dose of Peruna.

ALL THERE.

Old Lady Goodyear laid down the paper, with a sigh, and looked over her spectacles at Grandfather Goodyear. "I feel quite ashamed when I remember our humble marriage notice," she said.

"Married in the First Congregation at church of Harborville, Abel Goodyear to Mary Lawton," chanted Grandfather Goodyear. "It read well to my thinking."

"Yes, for those days, but not for present times," said his old wife. "You know Anastasia Cummings' daughter Laura married a Toby, and their daughter has just married Sophy Leavitt's grandson. His mother, Sophy's child, married a Wilson."

"Well, what of all that?" inquired Grandfather Goodyear, rubbing his forehead in great confusion of mind.

"It's the fashion to keep all the family names," said Old Lady Goodyear severely. "You hear how grand it sounds."

"Married, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Frederick Cummings, by the Rev. Harold Lowden Kirkbright, Edith Smythe Cummings to George Broome Leavitt-Wilson."

"Now, there's something for old Grandpa Broome and Grandma Smythe to be proud of—if they were alive."

"M-m!" said Grandfather Goodyear. "Youth's Companion."

A Home Remedy for Burns.

No housekeeper should be without a bottle of olive oil and lime water for burns. A preparation should always be in readiness in case of emergency. Add lime water to oil until a creamy emulsion is formed, and bottle, always shaking well before applying. The effect of this upon burns is wonderful in its healing and soothing power, and it is equally efficacious for sunburn.—Harper's Bazar.
