

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 12, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE. Topic—"Temperance in all things."

Cor. 12, 27-27. The word "temperance" is usually limited to sobriety—temperance in alcoholic drinks.

But it has a much broader meaning than that. Temperance is moderation. It is antagonistic to anything that favors of excess. Therefore it not only applies to sobriety, but to every phase of life where harm may come through excess.

Paul here speaks of the necessity of "temperance in all things" in living a successful Christian life that will result in the salvation of the soul. He speaks of the Christian life as a fight or a contest and also a race, in each of which temperance and moderation are an absolute necessity.

The doctrine of "temperance in all things" needs to be emphasized today, perhaps as in few other ages. The tendency of our generation is toward intemperance. The business man lacks moderation in his labors to make his business a success.

Prov. xv. 1; xvi. 32; Isa. xl, 31; Prov. xiv, 29; xiv, 11; Matt. v, 29, 30; John xiv, 1, 27; I. Cor. vi, 9-20; vii, 22-24, 29-31; Tit. ii, 2-12; Jude, 10-16.

"You Let Me Slip."

I have frequently heard the objection to Christian Endeavor that it is doing little or no positive good work. "Your young people," we are told, "hold their meetings, socialize by preference, and that is the end of it."

"One might, if one chose, point out not a little positive good work done along social and civic lines by Endeavorers, about which critics seem to be strangely ignorant; but at present I wish to emphasize the fact that a large part of the power of Christian Endeavor is expended in preventing the necessity of helping people in later life by making them good citizens and good Christians from the start.

An important part of the work of Christian Endeavor is preventive. It is more far-reaching and effectual than the rescue of dilapidated units, however fine that may be, for the salvation of the boy or the girl means the making of a man or a woman and the happiness of a family. The church needs to hold her own in the struggle, and there is no organization better fitted than the Christian Endeavor society to help her to do so.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman says that at a conference of ministers in Philadelphia one man remarked that the people of the stumps are the lost sheep of our own households. A minister sprang to his feet and said, "It isn't so." Two or three others, among them Dr. Chapman, said, "We'll find out." Here is the doctor's testimony:

The vilest man I ever have seen in this city of Philadelphia, when I told him that I was the minister of Bethany church, stood on his feet and clasped his fist and shook it in my face and said: "Bethany! I sat in your church, and nobody ever spoke to me!"

The vilest woman I have ever seen in my life I saw at 2 o'clock in the morning in the stumps of Philadelphia, and when I said, "I am from Bethany school," she burst into tears and said, "Bethany! My mother carried me there in her arms. I was in Miss Brown's class. I sat as a girl until I was sixteen years of age. Three seats from the front in the benches on the left. And," she said, "I am here!" And she seemed to lose all her passion and pathos, and brushing away her tears, she said, "You let me slip."

If Christian Endeavor can stop that gap even partially, if it can prevent the church from letting any of its young people slip, who dare say that it is not accomplishing a positive good work? It is a work that can never be tabulated. Only eternity can reveal it.—Ripple in Christian Endeavor World.

Mutual Benefit Column.

EDITED BY "AUNT MIDGE". Its Motto: "Helpful and Helpful."

The purpose of this column is succinctly stated in the title and motto—it is for the mutual benefit, and aims to be helpful and hopeful. Being for the common good, it is for the common use—a public servant, a purveyor of information and suggestion, a medium for the interchange of ideas.

LOOKING FOR FLAWS. Don't look for the flaws as you go on, through life. And even when you find them. It is wise and kind to be somewhat blind and look for the virtue behind them.

Dear Mutuals: Aunt Midge had so much to say last week she might be charged with making a monopoly of the column, so others shall have all the space this week—with thanks to all for their letters and to Uncle Dudley for the poem above.

Dear Aunt Midge: Having got round to the octagon corner of my life, I thought I would write you and bid good cheer to all the M. B. folks. I would like to attend the reunion, but...

Dear Aunt Midge: One quart of flour, one teaspoonful of soda, two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar, one-half cup of lard, two cups of blueberries, one cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one pint of water. Roll soft and cut into cakes.

Other letters will be given next week. D., give us that story of the disposal of buffalo bugs, please.

A Thought for Every Day. Thursday. More mistakes slip through the mouth than through the fingers.

Friday. St. Augustine, thou hast well said that of our vices we may frame a ladder, if we but daily tread beneath our feet each deed of shame.

Saturday. "Every right action and true thought sets the seal of its beauty on the person and the face."

Sunday. Great occasions do not make heroes or cowards—they simply unveil them to the eyes of men. Silently and imperceptibly, as we wake or sleep, we grow and wax strong, or we grow and wax weak, and at last some crisis shows us what we have become.

Monday. Four things a man must learn to do. If he would make his record true: To think without confusion, clearly; To love his fellow-men sincerely; To act from honest motives purely; To trust in God and Heaven securely.

Tuesday. This is the law of benefits between man; the one ought to forget at once what he has given, the other ought never to forget what he has received.

Wednesday. There are persons going about whose souls are as an orchestra to everybody that is near them.—Henry Ward Beecher.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her. Willimantic, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony from female troubles, causing backache, irregularities, dizziness and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk upstairs without stopping on the way. I tried three different doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them, but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said nothing would restore my health, I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and I am restored to my natural health."

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

MASSAPQUA, 477, SOUTH BLUEHILL. Massapqua grange held its regular meeting Sept. 2. After business the program was presented with usual satisfaction to all.

RAINBOW, 203, NORTH BROOKSVILLE. Rainbow grange was called to order Thursday evening, Sept. 2, with forty-five members present.

ALAMOSSOOK, 409, EAST ORLAND. There were twenty-five members present at the regular meeting of Alamossook grange Saturday evening.

HARVEST HOME, 403, WEST ELLSWORTH. Harvest Home grange met Sept. 4, Overseer James Carter presiding and fifty-four members present.

GOTT'S ISLAND. C. H. Welch and wife, of Boston, are guests of Mrs. S. A. Johnson at Old Farm.

Dr. F. E. Leonard and wife, of Oberlin, O., Mrs. Mary Manley and Miss Helen Manley, who have been at Hillside, have returned home.

The supper at the vestry Thursday evening, given at the suggestion of Mrs. C. H. Hodgkins, of Attleboro, Mass., was a success. The proceeds, $20.23, are for a portrait of the late Capt. E. N. Moore.

"Well, anything new lately?" inquired the just-arrived on the porch of the Skeddee tavern. "Well, no, not worth mentioning, I guess," replied the landlord.

HER LUCKY MISTAKE.

By OSCAR COX. [Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Miss Buckingham took up two notes and read them with a bored expression on her beautiful and aristocratic countenance. Then she threw them down and on her crest stamped paper wrote two replies. One was a declination to a proposal of marriage, the other an invitation for a proposer to call, intimating that he would be accepted.

This was a dangerous thing to do, for the reason that Miss Buckingham had a number of suitors, and she wrote an illegible hand. The next evening a card was handed to her bearing the name of G. B. Hillier. She glanced at it, gave a slight shrug, fingered her hair before a glass and descended the stairs.

"How did you happen to get that?" "Your letter? I returned today." "No, no; I didn't know you were away. I mean—What right have you to—She balked again.

"What words? Why, in reference to that note I wrote you to which you deigned to reply. I sent another asking for the cause of your silence. You replied that you would not address a note to a man at his club because a friend of yours had done so and her note had been shown to others."

BARBARA'S DONATION

The Best of All That Was Offered to the Minister.

By ELIZABETH VAN NEST. Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

If the young minister had been of a sanguine, easily satisfied temperament he might have accommodated himself to circumstances and drifted along as his predecessors had done.

As the church occupied the center of the village, the young minister reasoned that it ought to be the center of interest also.

But the Rev. Mr. Morgan did not despair. He had the square jaw that accompanies the aggressive nature.

So James Morgan brought to Maywood a large stock of air castle material with which he beguiled his leisure.

Until the end of the first quarter things moved smoothly. The new minister found work to do wherever he looked.

While their profuse excuses satisfied him, he could not see his way clear to satisfy Mrs. Fleming.

From this emanated a rumor that at length reached Barbara Dean's ears.

A week and a half question mark set itself upon her heart. Perhaps she had been hasty.

Returning from one of these visits one night, Mr. Morgan was surprised to see a motley collection of teams and vehicles around Widow Fleming's gate.

"Pardon me!" he gasped, trying to repair the damage on his knees.

amused, was his undoing. The walnuts slipped from his grasp and, striking another bag, scattered a peck of popcorn.

"Please forgive me, Mrs. Fleming," he apologized. "I am sorry if my awkwardness has disclosed your gifts too soon."

"They're not Mrs. Fleming's," corrected Deacon Brown. "They're yours. We thought we'd give you a donation instead of money, times are so hard."

"By all means," said the minister, wiping his forehead, and in the general conversation that ensued he found himself near Barbara Dean.

"I did not expect to see you," he said in a low voice.

"I am spending a few days with Cousin Bess," she answered. "Are you so devoted to Maywood that you have forgotten your old friends?"

"Only those who wished to forget me," significantly; then, with a despairing glance at the loaded table.

"What shall I do with it?" she asked. "A family of ten could not consume that perishable stuff before it spoils. Why did they bring so much?"

"The unwritten law of a donation party is that none may attend without bringing a present," she said composedly.

"Then what special donation must I thank you for," ironically—"the sack of flour?"

She laughed. His dismay was so comical. She did not know the desperate state of his finances.

"Come with me a moment," he said, leading her to the deserted window nearest the church.

"Where?" she asked quickly. "Anywhere—to any church that pays a salary," desperately.

"I have not. You did well to say no," bitterly. "If my work is worth only butter and flour you are justified in forgetting me as quickly as possible."

"I'll give the tenant notice tomorrow," he answered happily. Then, under cover of the widow's voluminous curtains, with the church looking on in solemn witness, he accepted her donation with a kiss.

"Using a Life Preserver." "The worst trouble about a life preserver," said an old sailor, "is that few people know what to do with one when it's thrown to them."

SEPTEMBER SKIES.

Mars Supremely Brilliant—Venus the Evening Star.

The bright star seen in the west in the early evening is the planet Venus. The bright star seen in the east after sunset and visible all night as it passes across the sky is the planet Mars.

Two special events are concerned with Mars. On the first the moon found the planet directly in its path, as seen by Northern observers, and passed directly over it, hiding it for one hour.

The second event connected with Mars is its arrival at its nearest point to the earth on Sept. 18. At that time it will be distant 36,000,000 miles, which is very nearly the least distance possible.

The problems which astronomers are working upon relate chiefly to its surface markings and their interpretation. There is no doubt that seasonal changes in the surface condition of the planet go on, which are upon a scale sufficiently large to be seen from the earth.

Mars is at its brightest on the 18th and fairly rivals Jupiter in splendor. After the 18th it gradually loses its brilliancy, and a year from now will be no brighter than the pole star.

Venus is bright in the west after sunset, setting on the 1st at 7.36 and on the 30th at 7 p. m. Its brightness increases a little this month because the planet is approaching the earth, but this increase is offset by the southern direction of its apparent motion, which keeps it near the horizon in the evening hours.

Jupiter cannot be observed this month. It sets on the 1st at 6.54 p. m., thirty-five minutes after the sun. On the 18th it rises at 5 a. m., forty minutes before the sun.

Return is in excellent position for study in the later evening. It is the conspicuous star about 14 degrees from Mars toward the east, and is near no conspicuous star.

Mercury may be seen for a number of evenings preceding and following the 17th. On that day it is 26 degrees from the sun and sets at 6.38 p. m., or forty-six minutes after the sun.

The two fainter planets, Uranus and Neptune, may both be observed with the telescope. They are nearly opposite each other in the sky, the former in the southwest in the evening, the latter in northwest in the morning.

The moon occults Mars on the 1st and passes very near it again on the 28th. It is near Saturn on the 2d and again on the 30th.

Halley's comet is approaching the earth after an absence of more than seventy years. Its present distance is nearly four times that of the sun, and it is therefore not surprising that it has not yet been seen, even with modern photographic power.

The constellations visible in September evenings include zodiacal groups Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricornus, Aquarius, Pisces, which closes the list as usually named; and the groups north of them.

September brings two celestial events of popular interest—the harvest moon and the autumnal equinox. The former is the moon which is at its full phase on the 29th.

The autumnal equinox falls this year on the 23d at noon, when the sun crosses the celestial equator going south, and the winter half-year begins.

American Flag Planted There After Long Quest. If the reports that came flashing over the wire last week that Dr. Frederick A. Cook has reached the North Pole, are true, then the race to the pole has been settled forever, with an American breaking the wire, for Dr. Cook is an American product, born in Sullivan county, N. Y., in 1865.

There will be some disappointment in this State that our own Maine man, the intrepid Peary, has not achieved the great distinction that he has worked so heroically and ceaselessly to win, but this will be lost in the general rejoicing that it is not the flag of Great Britain, or of France, or of Italy, Sweden or Denmark, that flies farthest north, but Old Glory itself—our own Stars and Stripes.

Dr. Cook, according to the very meagre particulars yet received, and judging from his original plans, made a dash for the pole from the northern part of Greenland, using Esquimaux dogs, and being accompanied by Esquimaux.

While to many the game of Arctic research has not seemed worth the candle, none can deny the heroism and daring of the men who have risked their lives to gain the fame of penetrating to the pole.

Sir John Franklin, whose name is indissolubly associated with Arctic research, was a well-known English navigator, born in Lincolnshire in 1786. In 1819 he was appointed to head an overland expedition from Hudson bay to the Arctic region, and in 1825 he made another trip to the frozen north.

It was, however, his third expedition, in which he lost his life, that brought Sir John Franklin most prominently before the public. In 1845 Franklin set out on his expedition with two ships, the Erebus and Terror. He passed his first winter in a cove between Cape Riley and Beechey island, making preparations for a dash northward.

Lady Franklin, the wife of the explorer, was not, however, willing to accept this intelligence as final, and expedition after expedition went north in the search until in 1859 Capt. McClintock, in the yacht Fox, found many articles belonging to Franklin and his companions. Later Lieut. Schwatka found the bodies of the Franklin party in his expedition of 1879-80.

American explorers participated extensively in the search for Franklin, the first expedition consisting of the Advance and Rescue in command of Lieut. De Haven, which in 1850 fruitlessly searched the Greenland coast, penetrating as far north as was practicable at that time.

The Advance wintered on the west coast of Greenland and was detained a second winter in the ice. Finally, in May, 1855, the party with their boats left the brig and at length reached Upernavik. William Morton, a member of the expedition and leading one of the sledge parties, reported that at Cape Constitution, 82 degrees north, he had seen the open Polar sea, a statement that caused wide discussion.

In 1860, Dr. Isaac I. Hayes, who was surgeon of the Kane expedition, undertook a trip north in the schooner United States, and penetrated by sledge to Cape Lieber, Grinnell land, 81 degrees north. Next came the Polar expedition, equipped by Henry Grinnell, a New York merchant, who sent northward the brig Advance in command of Elisha Kent Kane, U. S. N., who was surgeon of the De Haven expedition.

N., who was surgeon of the De Haven expedition.

In July, 1881, the United States dispatched an expedition in command of Lieut. Adolphus G. Greely in the steamer Proteus, which established a station in Lady Franklin bay, Grinnell land, latitude 81 degrees, 44 minutes north. From here sledge parties were sent out, and on May 5, 1882, Lieut. James B. Lockwood penetrated to 83 degrees, 24 minutes and 5 seconds, the farthest north then attained by man. This party was, in May, 1884, rescued by Capt. W. S. Schley, commanding the Bear and the Thetis, nineteen of the party, including Lieut. Lockwood, having perished from starvation.

Then came the ill-starred expedition in the Jeannette, which was crushed in the ice and sunk. Capt. DeLong and his crew of 25 men, of which was never heard of, perished. DeLong and most of the men were lost. DeLong and most of the men were lost.

Commander Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., has been exploring, meto-odically after success, although in ways short of a hundred the northern March, 1901, Peary's ship, discovered the Greenland sea, known land in ering the most northern Cape Morris world, which he named after the well-known K. Jesup in honor of the financier who bore the burden of the expedition.

On May 16, 1902, Peary reached 85 degrees 17 minutes north, the highest ever attained by the American flag. In 1909 Commander Peary reached farthest north, attaining 87 degrees 6 minutes. Commander Peary started from Sidney, N. S., July 17, 1906, on another expedition, and is now in the polar regions. Some are confident that he has succeeded in his last attempt to reach the pole, and will divide honors with Dr. Cook.

Among the other notable polar expeditions was that of the Duke d'Abruzzi, who went by way of Franz Josef land in 1901, and whose sledge party, led by Capt. Cagni, reached 86 degrees 31 minutes north. In 1893 Fritiof Nansen, in the Fram, specially constructed for the purpose, reached 86 degrees 14 minutes north, placing the limit poleward at that time.

There have been many others who have tried to penetrate the icy fastnesses of the polar region with varying success, including the spectacular attempt of Prof. Andree to reach the Pole by balloon. Nothing authentic has been heard of the daring aeronaut since his balloon left Tromsø, Norway, in 1897.

WOOD WASTE DECREASING. Much Formerly Discarded Now Being Used. The waste wood heap continues to diminish and pass away. A Massachusetts manufacturer of brushes recently made a discovery in Maine which supplied him with material exactly suited to his purpose.

This is typical of the trend of manufacturing. Waste of wood is still great, but it is decreasing. What one factory cannot use, another turns to profit. Formerly mills threw away half the forest—tops left in the woods, sawdust dumped in streams to pollute them and destroy fish, slabs burned in perpetual bonfires, and defective logs and low grade lumber abandoned as not worth moving.

This policy does not generally prevail now. Some mills have put in machinery to work up their own by-products, others sell their waste to manufacturers who can use it, as in the case cited in Maine. The properties and uses of woods are now subjects of careful investigation, and the problem of turning to account the odds and ends and the by-products is brought more to the front now than formerly.

The United States forest service has taken up this study in a comprehensive and systematic way. Investigations of the woods of particular states are being conducted, usually in co-operation with the states concerned. The plan, when fully carried out, will include every commercial wood in the United States, not fewer than 200 species. The properties of each will be investigated, its hardness, toughness, elasticity, durability, weight, fuel value, size of tree, regions where grown, the common names by which it is known in different localities, and other matters of this kind.

A history of the wood's uses in the past will be given, and an account of present uses; together with suggestions for a wider range of usefulness in the future by pointing out in what capacities it will serve best and be most valuable.

SULLIVAN. Mrs. George Osgood, with children, who has been visiting her parents, William Lord and wife, returned to Ayer, Mass., last week.

H. E. Kenniston, wife and two sons, Sherman and Leroy, who have been visiting his mother, Mrs. Lucretia Downing, returned to Hyde Park Monday.

Capt. Hollis Higgins, who has been visiting Mrs. Delphina Wooster, is now visiting in Rockport, accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth Simpson, of this place.

Dr. Stephen H. Weeks, of Portland, who had a national reputation as a tuberculosis specialist, died last Wednesday of Bright's disease at the Maine general hospital, after an illness of more than a year. He founded the Maine State sanatorium at Hebron. He was seventy-four years of age.

A record of three knots faster than that of any ship in the United States was made last week by the Bath-built boat destroyer Flusser, in trials conducted at the rate of 33.7 knots an hour, while another was at the rate of 33.4 knots. The average of her five top speed runs was 32.7 knots.

Inquiries About Buckport Brig. James Mallon, of 95 Fresh Pond Avenue, East Providence, R. I., an old war veteran, writes for information concerning an old Bucksport brig, the I. P. Elliott. He writes:

On Jan. 15, 1863, lying in the harbor of Saint Thomas, West Indies, I was attached to Commodore Wilkes' flying squadron in the United States steamer Alabama. On that evening a brig appeared outside the harbor, acting very queer. We were ordered by the commodore to arm and man the first cutter and go out and see what was the matter with her.

I pulled the bow oar on that occasion. We pulled out about three miles outside, when we came to the brig, and as we went around her stern I read her name: "I. P. Elliott, Bucksport, Maine." She had been captured by the rebel privateer Retribution, and had a rebel prize crew on board.

We brought her out to Saint Thomas and the commodore sent the prisoners up to Fort Monroe in the United States steamer Vanderbilt. The brig was afterwards returned to her owners.

Now, my dear sir, my only object in writing is to try to find out if any of the owners or members of the crew are living. I would like to hear from them, as I was the first man on board the Bucksport brig, and would tell them a little more about it.

Commissioner Woodward bills for all crushed rock sold last year and not yet paid for.

The question of installing a steam heating plant in Hancock hall was discussed. The present furnaces are in bad condition, and must be repaired or new ones must be bought soon.

Ald. Hagan, to whom was referred claim of A. A. Richardson, of Lamoine, for damage to carriage last spring because of defect in highway, recommended that the same be paid, and the board so voted.

The following communication was received: ELLSWORTH, ME., Sept. 6, '09. To the Hon. Mayor and Board of Aldermen of the City of Ellsworth:

GENTLEMEN: You are hereby notified that while travelling on foot in the highway on Water street in said Ellsworth on Tuesday, the 24th day of August, a. d., 1909, I sustained serious injury and damage on account of defective condition of and defect in said highway, to wit:

At a point a few feet south of the first steel pole on said Water street, on the westerly side of said street, in front of the store property owned or occupied by John Malone, was a hard wood stake driven in an iron pipe and extending some inches above the sidewalk, over which said stake or defect I tripped and fell heavily to the ground, causing severe bruises, strain and swelling to and around the knee joint, also severe strain to practically all the muscles in the right thigh and hip joint; and that on account of said injury and damage caused by said defect I hereby make claim for damages.

The board took a recess until Wednesday evening.

ELLSWORTH HIGH SCHOOL.

New Courses of Study Adopted by School Board.

A new course of study for the Ellsworth high school, approved by the State educational department, has been adopted by the school board. It offers three courses of study—college preparatory, Latin-scientific and English, as follows:

College Preparatory: First year—English, algebra, Greek and Roman history, Latin. Second year—English, geometry, Caesar, French or Greek. Third year—English, advanced algebra, English history, Cicero, French or Greek. Fourth year—English, geometry, American history and civics, Virgil, French or Greek or physics.

Latin-Scientific: First year—English, algebra, Greek and Roman history, Latin. Second year—English, geometry, Caesar, medieval and modern history or French. Third year—English, advanced algebra, English history or French, Cicero, advanced arithmetic. Fourth year—English, geometry, American history and civics, Virgil, physics.

English: First year—English, algebra, Greek and Roman history, physiology. Second year—English, geometry, physical geography, medieval and modern history or French. Third year—English, advanced algebra, English history or French, commercial geography, commercial law (one term each). Fourth year—English, geometry, American history and civics, astronomy, physics.

Those who elect French in the college preparatory course may take physics in place of French in fourth year.

Florida Ban of Birds.

"Unless the wholesale butchery of birds in Florida is stopped, there will be none left in that section of the country," says H. A. Austin, who spends a large part of his time in the South.

"In the last three years the everglades of Florida have been stripped of every vestige of bird life to supply the world's millinery markets with the plumage of the heron that formerly bred there in countless numbers.

"Now that the heron has practically gone from Florida, the bird robbers are killing almost any other kind of tropical bird that they can find. It is a fact that Florida is almost barren of birds at this time."

Dickey was overheard saying his prayer the other evening at bedtime in this fashion: "O Lord, bless Johnny and Billy Holiday and me, and don't let any of us die, but if any of us has got to die, I'd ruther it was them. Amen."

Ellsworth Gun Club Entertain Visitors Labor Day.

The Ellsworth gun club entertained visitors from Bar Harbor, Bangor and Old Town at their range at Wyman park on Labor day. The day was not favorable to high score, the strong wind which blew during the greater part of the day making hard targets. Few of the shooters held up to their usual average.

There were twelve events on the program, a total of 200 birds. Only ten men shot through the entire program, but as many more shot in several of the events. Altogether some 4,000 birds were trapped.

W. G. Hill, of Portland, professional, and State champion, shot through the program for targets only, and as expected was high gun for the day. In the afternoon Mr. Hill gave an exhibition at flying objects with shot gun and rifle, and did some expert work. Mr. Hill represents the Union Metallic Cartridge Co. and the Remington Arms Co.

Of those shooting through the program in competitions for prizes, Mr. Muttly, of Old Town, was high gun, and took first prize, a silk umbrella. Charles Shea, of Bar Harbor, won second prize, a hunting knife, and Mr. Hincks, of Old Town, won third, a compass.

The Ellsworth gun club furnished a luncheon at noon. W. E. Whiting, W. G. Hill, M. Shea and H. F. Wescott acted at different times as referee, and Harry W. Haynes was official scorer. A large number of spectators enjoyed the shoot.

The scores for the day appear below.

Table of scores for the day: W. G. Hill, Portland, 200 174; Mr. Muttly, Old Town, 200 153; Charles Shea, Bar Harbor, 200 148; Mr. Hincks, Old Town, 200 146; Roy Hamor, Bar Harbor, 200 145; H. R. Pettingill, Bar Harbor, 200 133; Frank Young, Ellsworth, 200 132; L. Alfred, Old Town, 200 131; E. A. Graham, Bar Harbor, 200 118; Mr. Barton, Old Town, 200 112; W. E. Whiting, Ellsworth, 120 48; Mr. Kimball, Bangor, 105 66; Dr. J. T. Hinch, Bar Harbor, 100 74; H. F. Wescott, Ellsworth, 100 66; Orrin Clement, Ellsworth, 100 70; B. T. Sowle, Ellsworth, 90 51; M. Shea, Ellsworth, 60 38; Arno Pettingill, Bar Harbor, 55 27; Amos Pettingill, Bar Harbor, 55 26.
