

THE "DOG WATCH".

A Nautical Problem That Stumped Admiral Bob Evans.

Ever ask a sailor man or a know-it-all sharp why the "dog watch" is so called? Chances are he will reply: "Why, the dog watch is two short spells, from 4 to 6 and from 6 to 8 o'clock in the evening, to break the monotony of the regular four-hour watches, so that the same men will not stand watch during the same hours every day."

Simple and lucid. But hit them with this: Why is the word "dog" applied to this short watch? You have a double half-hitch on every son of Neptune, from fo'c'st'le to quarterdeck.

The first question was put to the officers' mess of a big battleship during the recent visit of our special prize sloop to New York harbor, and without exception, from executive officer of a quarter century's service on every sea on the maps to the ensign with his first stripe, they all gave the book answer. Not one could explain the why of the dog.

A boat's crew from the same ship could not give even the stereotyped explanation of the general term dog watch, although a gunner's mate allowed that "it might be they once had dogs on ships and they was let loose when this watch was on."

An officer of an Atlantic liner said he never heard so silly a question.

"Why, the dog watch is the dog watch, that's all," he explained. "There's no why or wherefore about it. It's always been the dog watch and always will be. Read sea yarns by the book writers who never saw a greater sheet of water than the village millpond, and you'll hear lots about the dog watch."

Having had the matter disposed of so airily by this officer, inquiry was pushed to the East river, where there may be found men who have been going down to the sea in real ships for more years than many of the steamer lines have existed. The pursuits of the dog were useless. Not a grimy old nor a young brine-soaked merchantman knew or cared why the dog was before the watch. One old fellow inquired: "Why do you want to know that for?" "For information." "Well, I'm blamed if that ain't amazing funny."

That was on the verge of discouragement. Battery Dan was sought, but the distinguished authority was on vacation. "Say," suggested a Harlem boatman, "what's the matter with trying Fighting Bob? He's a bully boy, and if he can't tell you the great American navy will lose caste."

So up to the rear admiral went the query. "Will you kindly inform me why the name 'dog' is applied to 'dog watch'?" And up from Fortress Monroe came the answer:

U. S. S. Connecticut, Sept. 2.
Dear Sir: I am unable to give you the information you ask about the dog watch. Of course, we all know why the watch is made two hours, but no one seems to know why the same dog was applied.

R. D. EVANS.
Think of it—the commander of the great fleet of fighting boats unable to tell why the dog has been on the watch since ships sailed or steamed! The investigation now excited the suspicion of a nature fake, and there was a momentary thought of phoning to Oyster Bay, when a wireless flash suggested the simpler and more fascinating recourse to a public library.

The dictionaries were merely aggravating, telling nothing unknown to the most common seaman. "Five Thousand Facts and Fancies" (Putnam's) was the only book found that sought to throw light on the matter, and its explanation reads:

Dog Watch (a corruption of doge watch). The dog watch was introduced to prevent the same men from always keeping watch the same hours of the days; hence on these occasions the sailors are said to dodge the routine, or to be doing doge watch.

There you have it, as fresh as a gourd of water from the old spring by the chestnut tree.

Mr. Otto Paul, Milwaukee, Wis., says Foley's Honey and Tar is still more than the best. He writes us: "All those who bought it think it is the best for coughs and colds they ever had, and I think it is still more than the best. Our baby had a bad cold and it cured him in one day. Please accept thanks." G. A. PARSONS.

Mrs. Charles E. Higgins, 108 Water St., Ellsworth, Me., says: "My back ached so severely that I could not assume any comfortable position. At times the ache changed to sharp twinges, especially acute when I made any sudden movement, and for awhile after getting up from a chair I was obliged to go about in a stooped position. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at Moore's Drug Store, and the second night after beginning their use, I slept soundly, something that I had been unable to do for several months. The use of two more boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills made a complete cure, and I have had no return attack of the trouble. I do not believe there is another kidney remedy on the market to-day of such great worth as Doan's Kidney Pills."

MOLYBDENITE.

RICH DEPOSITS AT CATHERINE HILL, NEAR TUNK.

A THREE-YEAR FIGHT TO GAIN TITLE FINALLY WON BY C. VEY HOLMAN.

A bit of gun play is all which is required to give the story of Catherine hill, township ten, Hancock county, the essentials of a claim-jumping story from the western mining section. In has the rich minerals, the disputed title, working across the line, guards, everything necessary to such a case.
For three years it has been in litigation. In that period five actions at law have been tried. They have all centered around the question of title and boundary line, though not all have been directly brought on that ground. One action has been for trespass, and in that a replevin process was used. Then there have been suits tending to establish defect in title. All have been fought through the courts in Hancock county. Some have gone to the supreme court of the State, and all have ended in one way, the verdict being for the gentleman who now holds title to the hill. The last case was disposed of in October, during the session of the supreme court, though the case was tried in April of the present year.
But for the fact that on this Catherine hill (if you ever climb it you'll swear it's a mountain) is a deposit of molybdenite said to be the largest known in the world, it is questionable if all this fuss over its possession would have been made.
Molybdenite is a rare and precious mineral worth $400 a ton!

This is incentive sufficient to fight for the possession of this great deposit. When one of the fighters chances to be a big corporation, with hundreds of thousands of capital, which thinks it has bought the property but finds it has not then there is bound to be a legal contest. The one this corporation fights must needs have a steel-armored title to win out. This was just the quality which characterizes C. Vey Holman of South Thomaston, who owns the deposit; that is why to-day he has possession of Catherine hill; why he is preparing to install at the property the coming spring a mill with a capacity of handling 100 tons of ore per day.

AS TO MOLYBDENITE.
"Molybdenite," said a Maine man who has an excellent collection of minerals and geological specimens, and who feels that he is fairly well versed in the subject of metallurgy and mineralogy, "what is that; what is it used for?"
Molybdenite is a mineral which, to the ordinary observer, looks very much like graphite, though to the expert metallurgist there is a marked difference. It is found in certain forms of granite, and its crystals vary in size from the size of a pin-head to chunks the size of a pullet's egg. The smaller ones predominate. Until recently its chief use has been to harden steel. A few ounces of the metal to a ton of steel more than doubles the tensile strength of the metal. It gives a lasting quality to the steel and renders it almost unbreakable.
In addition to this, it is used in the dyeing trade, mostly in France. Silks and kids are colored rich and lasting blues by its use.
That another use for it has been discovered is apparent to the few persons who produce or deal in the metal, because within a few months inquiries regarding sources of supply have been received from a new quarter. These inquiries only ask that it be 50 per cent. pure, whereas in the past 95 per cent. has been the lowest which would be considered.
Because of the rarity of the metal, it has a value of a trifle over $400 a ton.
Up to the present, the great difficulty which all owners of molybdenite mines have been up against, has been a method of mining it which was commercially profitable. It is one of the hardest metals to extract from the ore. There are several methods of doing this, but all are so expensive that, even at the high price which the concentrate brings, it is not profitable to produce it. Mr. Holman has worked out a process which he thinks is profitable, but of that later on.

A FRIENDLY TIP.
Dr. F. S. Adams, of New York, the most expert mining engineer in the country, who received $100 a day and expenses each day he was in the field geologizing a prospect or laying out a line of development, was in Bangor in the spring of 1907. He came to discuss certain mining problems with C. Vey Holman, who was interested in them. When their business had been completed, Mr. Holman began telling Dr. Adams of this molybdenite deposit which he understood existed on Catherine hill. It had been called to his attention, but he had never had opportunity to visit and examine it.
The mining expert became interested. He wanted to see the place. The man who told Mr. Holman about it was summoned. After some talk, the three started for Ellsworth, there taking teams and driving to the hill, which point they reached about midnight. The night was spent at the farmhouse at the foot of the hill, and in the morning they started to look the property over. The mar, be it understood, had an option on the property, so he told them.
Making their way laboriously up the rugged trail to the crest of the hill, a shot was placed by Dr. Adams' direction, and fired, with the result that the molybdenite was brought to light. Before this, however, there was an occurrence which showed the calibre of Dr. Adams.
As they made their way up the hill, the man guiding—the one who had the option on the property—stopped and called attention to a piece of the metal in a small hole in the ledge, saying:
"There's molybdenite in that rock!"
"You mean that it came out of that rock?" asked the doctor.
"Yes, sir."
"You're mistaken. Molybdenite would never be found in a rock of that kind; it has been salted!" answered the expert, walking on.
Reaching the top of the hill, he examined it, and indicated the point where the hole was to be drilled for a test shot. James Robbins, the farmer at whose house they had stayed and who knew the hill, told them that they would find nothing there. Dr. Adams insisted and the charge was fired with the result stated. As a result of their investigation, Mr. Holman and Dr. Adams told the man to secure the mineral rights on the property, while they went to New York to make tests of the ore which they had secured. Also, they placed Robbins and his son at work making a larger opening in the hill.
On his return from New York, Mr. Holman was astonished to find that another concern had been given a chance to secure these mineral rights. He at once went to the hill to pay Robbins for the work done for him, and to stop him doing more. When he told Robbins that another concern had secured the mineral rights on the Goodwin property, Mr. Robbins said: "Did you think those shots were fired on the Goodwin property?"
"Certainly."
"Well; you're wrong. That belonged to Harold M. Sewall, of Bath, and Lemuel Nash, of Kennebunk."
Mr. Robbins then showed Mr. Holman the boundaries. This showed that the Goodwin property was all to the east of the molybdenite deposit.

CLAIM AND COUNTER CLAIM.
With this information, Mr. Holman hastened to get in touch with Messrs. Nash and Sewall and to secure an option on their holding on the hill. This secured, there were further prospects, with the result that both Dr. Adams and he became convinced that it was one of the richest deposits of molybdenite in the world, and the Maine man purchased the property. Later prospects convinced all who have examined it that it is not only the richest, but the largest.
Robbins was engaged as the guardian of the property, and a large "No Trespass" sign was placed on the boundary fence, for Mr. Holman at once had his area fenced in with barbed wire, it probably being the greatest area of wild land in all Maine which is fenced.
But those who had secured the other rights were not disposed to give up without a struggle. They contended that the line was not right. They took the case to court, and while the first case was pending others came up.
A crew of their men went into the Holman side of the line and took a number of barrels of ore to ship to New York. Mr. Robbins sought to prevent it. It could only be prevented by a fight, and as he was outnumbered, he used discretion and allowed them to depart, but hurriedly notified his employer, who secured a writ of replevin and, with an officer, seized the ore from the car in Bangor. This brought about the action for trespass.
In all there were five suits, and each one ended favorably to Mr. Holman. In connection with these law suits there is a little story which shows the determination of Mr. Holman when he gets started on a case. The opposition was making a fight to invalidate his title. He went to Ellsworth, and for four days and the greater part of four nights he worked in the registry of deeds office, with the result that when he quit, he had a complete abstract of the title of Catherine hill from 1845 to 1907.
That Mr. Holman did the work himself is not strange, he being a lawyer by profession and a lecturer on mining law in Boston university law school. He is also a member of the Nova Scotia Mining society, and has recently been appointed chairman of the Maine geological survey by Gov. Fernald.

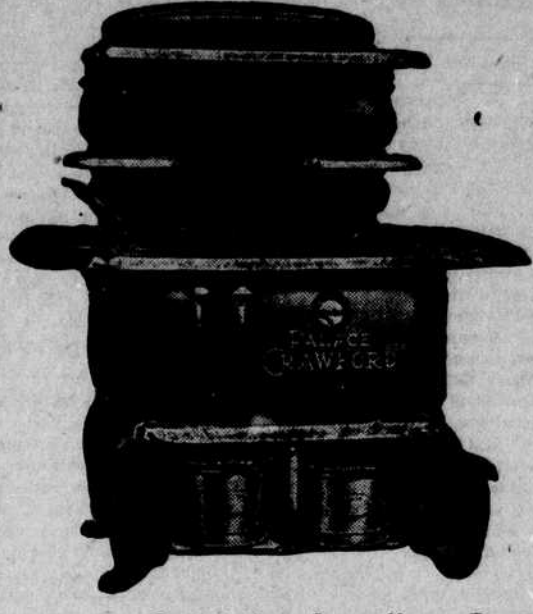

CATHERINE HILL DEPOSIT.
A careful prospect of the top of Catherine hill, which is 600 feet above the level of Tunk pond, at the base of the hill, has been made, and it shows that the molybdenite covers an area of practically a half square mile. Despite the fact that scores of charges of dynamite have been exploded at various points on the hill where there was not an out-cropping of the mineral, the first shot which fails to disclose metal has yet to be fired.

One of the richest openings made is fully half a mile from the point where Dr. Adams had the first hole drilled.
All geologists agree that deposits of this character in rock of the kind which constitutes Catherine hill, go down to great depths, below water level in fact, and it is well known that the richness increases as does the depth. A reporter who recently visited the hill was shown about by Mr. Holman and his foreman Robbins, who is a practical miner. They smashed open rocks, showing the metal in the heart, and demonstrated beyond all question that the place had no "salt."
Some interesting figures can be made as to the amount of the metal contained in the hill. For the sake of these figures, reduce the size of the deposit; instead of saying that it is half a mile square, call it 30 x 150, which gives 4,500 square feet. The depth is estimated at 600 feet, which makes 2,700,000 cubic feet. This gives 300,000 tons of ore in the deposit. If this ore runs one per cent. of molybdenite to the ton (all tests have shown an average of three) there is in the deposit 3,000 tons of the metal. At the prevailing price of $400 a ton, the gross value would be $1,200,000. Allowing that it cost to mine and concentrate the metal a million dollars, there is left a net value of $200,000.
On this low surfacing of the deposit the value is shown to be tremendous, so that following out the process on the basis of half a mile square, it is seen to be a stupendous undertaking.
Mr. Holman has made no effort to organize a company to work the mine, intending to develop it himself. This has been his policy in all his mining ventures, which have been many, and as he has ample means, it is not impossible.
The location of the mine is ideal for working, as the mill, capable of handling a hundred tons of ore a day, will be built on the shores of Tunk pond. The ore can be sent down to it by gravity on a cable, while the product can, during the summer, be boated three miles across the lake to the railroad; in winter, hauled by horses.
In the operation of the mill and mine, tearing and cutting the wood for fuel in the mill, about fifty men will be employed.
At the present time a twenty-foot shaft has been sunk and a cut seventy-five feet long made into it. This has been done by Mr. Robbins during the past three years under directions from Mr. Holman, for the purpose of opening up the deposit and showing what it is like.
In addition to the molybdenite which the ore carries, it shows 80 cents worth of gold to the ton, which alone, it is estimated, will pay the cost of mining.
There are a lot of theories regarding the best time to fish. Some say to fish when the wind is east; some say when the wind is west; some say early morning; others say early evening. But the fellow who keeps right on fishing all day, regardless of wind or weather, is the fellow who brings in the biggest string of fish. In like manner the merchant who keeps persistently and continuously at advertising is the one who brings in the biggest line of customers.

A common mistake of local advertisers is to estimate the value of advertising space of one newspaper by the amount asked by some other publication. It is a mistake of judgment for a business man to estimate the value of space in a reputable newspaper with a good circulation by that of some other publication which will accept business at any price and be pleased to get it.—Leavenworth (Kansas) Times.
Many advertisers forget that advertising space in a newspaper is valued according to the circulation of that paper. Advertising space in a journal without circulation is dear at any price the publisher may demand. Without circulation there can be no results, and without results the money which the advertiser invests is lost.—Leavenworth (Kansas) Times.

WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 30, 1910.

The Political Situation. Senator Hale, in an interview with Washington correspondents yesterday, expressed the belief that little will be done at the coming short session of Congress beyond the passage of the usual appropriation bills...

"Should an expiring Congress, in its last days, undertake, by any deathbed action, to rob the victorious party of its natural inheritance, it will be resisted to the utmost, and nothing will follow but a protracted struggle which will shut out certain important measures which otherwise may perhaps carry in both houses."

Mr. Hale was emphatic in his declaration that there would be no tariff legislation in the coming session. The senator went so far as to express the conviction that while the President may suggest a general program, he will not try to force it on Congress.

Discussing the question of an extra session as "most improbable," Mr. Hale discussed the proposed ocean mail subsidy measure.

Mr. Hale declared he did not look forward to a combination of the so-called insurgent force with the democratic party, "either now or hereafter."

Interest in the coming struggle over the United States senatorship appears to be increasing. While the friends of Mr. Johnson are assuring the public that he is already as good as chosen...

The supreme judicial court of Maine has decided that the Havey amendment to the Sturgis law is constitutional. This amendment, passed by the last legislature, provides that the counties in which Sturgis deputies work shall pay for the work done

HERRING LAWS.

Washington County Fisherman Gives His Views. As the herring-packing season draws to a close, much comment is heard in fishing circles as to what the legislature will do the coming winter with the herring laws of the State.

A fisherman at Rocky bar, Machias bay, while discussing the matter recently, stated that this was no new idea with Mr. Lawrence. To go back fifteen years, he could recall Mr. Lawrence advancing the very same seining theory that he advocates to-day.

"He can tell you about the herring fisheries of Scotland, Norway and Japan just as long as you have a mind to listen to his fish stories. I am telling you the improved methods of taking fish to-day, and the quick facilities for transporting them to the factories, would make Mr. Lawrence's grandfather, and even his father, astonished at the rapid progress in this since their day of activity in the fish business...

"If it is not owing to the scarcity of herring, why is the sardine pack reduced to one-half? Does not the price of smoked herring tell you that the raw material is out of the reach of human hands?" This fish business, the old gentleman continued, "is controlled by a higher power than man, and it is a mighty good thing that it is so, for where the people of the shore towns did fairly well by having a short season, had the fish been plenty there would have been no business at all."

"You understand that the bad feeling is under the surface, and just as soon as circumstances permit and the raw material can be had in large quantities, down will go the price by the large packers, and the small fellow will be forced to the wall or to close up his factory."

"They may have seined herring in Japan for 800 years, but on the coast of Maine herring have not all gone as in the day of Mr. Lawrence's grandfather, and we are waiting for them to return, but they are growing scarcer every year, and I will gamble my pea-pod and three-horse Palmer engine, that if the factories continue to destroy as many Brit as they did in the first of the present season, that in eight years the herring supply of this country will have to be brought from Scotland, Norway, Japan, or somewhere there. They won't be here, that is a sure thing."

"We have laws enough, and it is my opinion that the democrats are going up to Augusta this winter to make less laws in the place of more. If they will see that what laws we have pertaining to herring are well enforced, it will do very well."

It is not a matter of speculation as to whether the fish on our coast are growing less or not; it is a known fact that for the past two years herring are unusual hard to find in quantities large enough to seine, and as the herring disappear, all other fish that feed on them become scarce likewise.

The hand fish, so called—cod, had-dock, pollock—are hard to catch without herring for bait; the lobster fisherman has made a poor summer work, with no herring for bait in his traps. So, as the herring go, they affect not only the sardine industry, but all other fishing common to our waters must suffer as well.

Whether it be the fault of seines, weirs or what not, the fishermen tell us that the herring is surely becoming scarcer each year, and that the taking of herring for packing purposes less than three inches long should be prohibited, is the sentiment of the packers themselves.

WEDDING BELLS.

Ellsworth friends of Miss Mary Frances Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Robinson, of this city extend congratulations on her marriage to Thomas B. Inness, of Brockton, Mass., in Brockton, Wednesday, Nov. 23.

The Brockton Enterprise, in an extended account of the wedding, says: Among the Thanksgiving weddings in this city, none holds more of interest for local social circles than that of Thomas B. Inness, a prominent clubman of this city, and Miss Mary Frances Robinson, the well-known artist, whose home is at the Checkerton.

The wedding was performed at 8 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Alan Hudson, pastor of the first Congregational church, officiating. The only guests present at the ceremony were Dr. and Mrs. Charles B. Braddon and their children, Miss Margaret Elizabeth Braddon and Charles Robinson Braddon. The wedding took place in the living-room, which was decorated with cut flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Inness left immediately on a bridal tour of a few days. Upon their return they will reside at the Checkerton. Mr. Inness is a native of Pennsylvania. He came to this city in 1901 and erected the Checkerton and Chestnut apartments. He has many friends in business and social circles and is much liked by the tenants in his apartments.

NORTHEAST HARBOR.

Prof. Anderson was at Somesville Thanksgiving day. Chester A. Maddocks spent Thanksgiving with friends here.

Mrs. Grace Grindal is receiving treatment in a hospital at Portland. Misses Gilpatrick and Kimball will close their millinery store Dec 1.

Maynard Jordan spent the Thanksgiving recess at his home in Lalesford. E. F. Lurvey and William Reynolds were in Bangor Monday and Tuesday.

Rev. N. B. Rogers and family, who spent Thanksgiving in Waltham, Mass., are home. The monthly business meeting of the Baptist church will be held Saturday evening.

Rev. Charles R. Carleton and family have returned to Corinna, having spent Thanksgiving here. C. E. Monohon has moved his family into the C. A. Candage house, on the Neighborhood road.

George O. Johnson and Miss Inga Johnson left last week for Norway, where they will spend the winter. Mrs. David Branscomb and children are home from a visit down east.

Percy R. Hayden, of the Newton theological institution, occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church Sunday morning and evening. Sunday evening Rev. Mr. Lee preached his third lecture sermon on "Early Christian History," the subject being "The Testimony of Heathen Writers."

NEIGHBORHOOD HOUSE.

The girls' gymnasium class met for the first time Saturday evening. Miss Lee has organized a girls' class in basket-making, which meets Monday evenings. A boys' class will be organized soon.

Basket ball practice has begun, and every effort will be made to produce a fast team, as in former years. The following officers were recently elected: Captain, Eae Graves; manager, A. O. Jacobson; assistant manager, Edwin Tracy.

ISLE AU HAUT.

Miss Marjann Turner is home from Cassine normal school for two weeks. The school teachers have ended their term of school and returned to their homes. Steamer Vinal Haven took a freight Tuesday from here quite a large lot of sheep and lambs from Miss Damon's farm at Merchants island. Miss Mattie Robinson came from Rockland, where she has been attending high school, to spend Thanksgiving with her parents, Charles Robinson and wife.

OBITUARY.

Edgar Strout, of this city, died at the hospice in Bar Harbor Saturday, after a week's illness of pneumonia. Mr. Strout went to Bar Harbor but a few days before he was taken ill, to work on a large building job for Eben K. Whitaker.

Deceased was born in Cherryfield fifty-two years ago, and came to Ellsworth about eighteen years ago. He was an expert carpenter, and for several years had been foreman for Austin M. Foster, builder, having charge on some of the finer buildings in Ellsworth, among them being the residences of John F. Knowlton, John O. Whitney and John A. Peters, Odd Fellows hall and the Union Congregational church at Ellsworth Falls. He was also foreman on the new Lyford & Woodward building at Bar Harbor. His last job in Ellsworth was on the alterations on the Baptist church. Mr. Strout was a member of Lejok lodge, I. O. O. F., and of the Baptist church.

Mr. Strout married Lucretia D. Hodgkins, of Marlboro, his death occurring the day following the twenty-fifth anniversary of his marriage. Besides his widow, he leaves three children—Sadie, Earl and Maynard. He is survived by three brothers—John, of Cherryfield; Fred G. and Frank, of Milbridge. The funeral was held at the Baptist church yesterday, Rev. P. A. A. Killam officiating. The bearers were four brothers-in-law of the deceased—Ralph and Thad H. Hodgkins, and F. J. Brewer, of Bar Harbor, and C. F. Grover, of Mariaville.

Mrs. Everard Leach and two children, of Penobscot, visited relatives in North Sarry last week. She was G. Etta Milliken, of this place.

The shooting match which was to take place on the afternoon of Thanksgiving under the auspices of the grange, was given up on account of the severe rain. A supper was served at 6 o'clock, and a dance followed in the evening, with music by W. E. Clark and wife.

Sympathy is extended to the family of the late Mr. Smith, of Winterport, whose death occurred at the home of his son Francis on the early morning of Thanksgiving. Owing to ill health, he left his home in Winterport and came here to live with his son, who has tenderly cared for him. The body was taken to Winterport Friday for burial.

ANON.

NORTH BROOKSVILLE.

Mrs. Helen Moody and Miss Dora Moody, of Boston, are guests of relatives here.

Russell Lord, a student at Colby, conducted a meeting in the church here Sunday evening.

About forty gathered at the Methodist parsonage Wednesday evening in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Palmer. Ice-cream, cake and coffee were served by the hostess.

The speaking exhibition by the primary and grammar schools was highly successful. The exhibition was first-class in every respect, and the audience was much pleased with the manner in which each part was rendered. Much credit is due the teachers, Miss Stella Lord and Miss Grace Stover. Following is the program: Welcome song, both schools; recitation, Wallace Perkins, Olga Steels; recitation and tableau, "Going to School," Cecil Seger, Miss Lord and six primary pupils; song, Evelyn Lord, Frances Young; dialogue, "The Spellin' Skewl," thirteen grammar pupils; song, schools; recitation, Foster Perkins; illustrated song, Misses Stover, Lord and Saunders, Robert and Clifton Lord and Joe Besse; recitation, George Black; dialogue, Stella Lord, Iva Snow, Robert Lord, Francis Dow; tableau and quotation from Money Musk; recitation, Emily Young, Charles Dodge; dialogue, Guy Perkins and Maynard Gray; song with tableau, Robert Lord and six grammar boys; illustrated song, Misses Lord and Stover and Francis Dow; recitation and tableau, "Origin of Scandal"; recitation, Clifton Grindle; closing speech, Nelson Perkins.

GREAT POND.

J. S. Archer made a trip to Franklin last week. Hon. F. E. Mace attended a democratic meeting at Augusta recently.

Mrs. Clarence Williams and children have gone to Dorchester, Mass., for the winter. A. C. Chase, who has been exploring in this vicinity for some weeks, has gone to Amherst.

The many friends of E. K. Williams regret his illness. They will be glad to see his genial face on the road again. Earl Bracy, who has been visiting his mother, has returned to his home in Franklin, somewhat improved in health.

Mrs. Marion Keniston visited her mother and sisters here before going to Cleveland, O., where she will make her home. Mr. Curtis and wife, who have spent a short vacation at their camp, Octagon, have returned home. They were accompanied by a friend.

Mr. Estabrook and wife, of Bangor, spent Thanksgiving at her home. They surprised Mrs. John Haynes with a present of a Victor phonograph. Hunting parties are still coming and going. A party of six from Springfield, Mass., left camp at Alligator, where they have been for two weeks, Sunday morning. Dr. V. S. Jones, with a friend, from Bethlehem, Pa., went to camp "Wesuter" Saturday.

WALTHAM.

A daughter was born to Adelbert Crosby and wife recently. Miss Alice Clough, of Ellsworth Falls, is visiting friends here. Miss Grace Haslem is with friends at Hollis Jordan's camp, at Spectacle pond. Mrs. George Stanley is with her brother, Raymond Haslem, at Machias, for several weeks.

E. L. Kingman and Irving Thompson, of Brewer, who have been in town hunting, returned home Sunday. E. Bartlett, of Eastbrook, has been working for Herman Jordan the past week, repairing the mill. This town was saddened by two deaths in less than one week—George Stanley, sr., and his wife, Susan M. Mr. Stanley had been nearly helpless the past year; but was tenderly cared for by his devoted wife. Her work done, she, too, passed to the great unknown. Both were respected by all who knew them. The funerals were held at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Arvill Jordan, conducted by Rev. Ida Garland. They leave seven children—Mrs. Rose Salisbury, Mrs. Frank Graves, George and William Stanley, of Brewer; Sanford Stanley, Vermont; Mrs. Benjamin Jordan, Trenton; and Mrs. Arvill Jordan, of this town. Interment was at Otis, their former home.

CASINE.

CRANBERRY ISLES.

Funeral services of Cordelia H., wife of John H. Pressey, were held at the church on Wednesday at 1 p. m., Rev. A. M. McDonald officiating. The flowers were numerous and beautiful, including pieces from the ladies' aid society and the Christian Endeavor society, of which she was a member.

Mrs. Pressey was of a quiet disposition and loved by all. The bereaved family have the deep sympathy of the community. She leaves a husband, a grandson—Clarence Crosby, who has made his home with her since his mother died, four brothers, three sisters and a host of friends. Mrs. Pressey was a member of the church, and ever ready to help in any good cause.

Again the community was saddened when on Saturday evening, the death of Mrs. Katherine Gilley, sister of Mrs. Pressey, was announced. Mrs. Gilley was taken ill on returning from her sister's funeral, and was taken into the home of Edward Stanley, where restoratives were given, and after a short time taken to the home of Mr. Pressey, which has been her home for many years. Thursday she became worse and, pneumonia developed.

Mrs. Gilley was seventy-seven years of age. "Aunt Katie," as she was known far and near, will be missed by a host of friends. She was smart and active for her years. She was keeping house for Capt. Sawyer, of Bear Island, and returned home on Friday, one week before her death, to help care for her sister, who died the following Monday.

MARIAVILLE.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Dority Friday, Nov. 25. An eleven-pound boy arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Moore Nov. 24.

Turner Brothers, of Waltham, are making their annual round with their threshing machine.

Mrs. E. A. Carr, who was eighty-three years old Nov. 10, was greatly surprised by receiving a shower of post cards in the afternoon from her neighbors. In the evening another surprise awaited her, as the neighbors, one by one, filed in at her home, with delicacies and tokens of remembrance, and spent an enjoyable evening. All wish her many happy returns of the day.

WEST SURRY.

Mrs. Joan S. Ober is very ill. Mrs. S. E. Grindle was the guest of R. S. Leach and wife one day last week. R. E. Leach and wife visited Mrs. Leach's parents, Emery Smith and wife, over Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Mahala F. Campbell died at the home of Reuben S. Leach and wife, Nov. 21, after a long illness, aged seventy-three years. Mrs. Campbell was born in Ellsworth, a daughter of Deacon Benjamin Franklin. She joined the Baptist church when very young. She always looked on the sunny side of life, and was patient until the end. She leaves two daughters—Mrs. Martha Osgood, of Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Ida Foster, of Portland, and one sister—Mrs. Hannah Hastings, of Brewer Nov. 23.

Don't expect an "ad" of tack-hammer iseto deliver a sledge-hammer blow.

Modern advertising has got to be honest. The people are getting wise to the swindle, the bankrupt stock, and oft-repeated cry of going out of business. Advertising "on the square," backed up by merchandising "on the square," will lead the buying public to "square round" for you every time.

HOOPER-OLDS. A charming and happy event took place on Thanksgiving forenoon at the First Baptist parsonage at Dexter, when the pastor of the Baptist church, Rev. R. L. Olds, united in marriage his son, Marshall Keith Olds, and Miss Carroll Alicia Hooper, of Bluehill.

The spacious double parlors were handsomely decorated with pink roses, palms, ferns, smilax and flowers, festoons of smilax extending from the chandeliers to the corners of the rooms. The living-room decorations were of the same flowers, the table being very attractive with pink roses and smilax in tastefully arranged designs.

The wedding ceremony took place just before 10 o'clock, and was most impressive. The bride was daintily gowned in white chiffon over silk. Only the immediate relatives were present. The happy couple were the recipients of hearty good wishes and congratulations at the conclusion of the ceremony. Later a wedding lunch was served after which Mr. and Mrs. Olds left on the noon train for Bangor and Bluehill, arriving here on Friday. They will reside in the Doyle house.

Both bride and groom are highly esteemed and popular young people, and they have the best wishes of a host of friends. Mrs. Olds is a graduate of Bluehill academy, '03, and Oastine normal school, '08, and a successful teacher. Mr. Olds is a rising young marine engineer.

The village schools begin this morning, with the same teachers—Mr. Arnold in the grammar, and Miss Peabody in the primary department.

W. F. Bruce and wife opened their hospitable home to a large party on Thanksgiving day. The festivities, which began with the bounteous dinner, lasted into the night. In the evening the party of sixteen was swelled by the young people, who arrived in time for the evening spread, and who made merry with music and games. No one who has ever enjoyed the gracious hospitality of the Bruces can doubt the real enjoyment which made the day a happy occasion.

OBITUARY. Capt. Rufus H. Allen, a former resident of this place, died at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Walter H. Milliken, at Malden, Mass., Sunday, Nov. 20, after an illness of four months of a stomach trouble.

Capt. Allen, who was in his eighty-fourth year, was a native of this place, and received his early education here in the public schools. At eighteen years he shipped before the mast, and at twenty-three was in command of the brig Kosuth. During the following forty years he was commanded and was part owner in nine large vessels, being engaged principally in the West Indian and South American trade.

During the Civil war he sailed the Union transport Condor, and in Sept., 1864, he rescued forty-two Englishmen from the sinking steamer Queen Victoria, then a freighter, but which, when new, brought Prince Albert Edward across when he visited this continent. For this he was presented with a solid silver coffee service.

After being shipwrecked in the River La Plata, South America, he retired from the sea. His wife died about ten years ago, after which he sold his property here and for eight years had made his home with his granddaughter, Mrs. Walter H. Milliken, of 36 Clapp street, Malden.

After services at the residence, the remains were brought here for burial, accompanied by his son, Capt. John M. Allen, and Mr. and Mrs. Milliken. The funeral party was joined here by relatives and friends of the family. The burial was in the Allen lot. There was a carriage-load of flowers—mute testimonials of a wide family circle and friends.

Capt. Allen is survived by two sons—Capt. Fred, of Everett, Mass., and John M., of Boston, and his granddaughter—Mrs. Milliken; also one brother—Estwick Allen, of Boston, and one sister—Miss Dorcas Allen, of this village.
