Charles H. Sturgis, of Milbridge, Shot Himself in Ellsworth. Charles H. The body was found lying beside Hale avenue, the pri-vate road leading from the Eastern road to the Stabawl road, but four or five rods from the Eastern road.

Mr. Sturgis had been employed at Washington Junction less than two months. He came here from Norridgewock, where he had been station agent on the Somerse road five years. For a day or two before his death he had been acting strangely and his mind was evidently unbalanced His fellow-employees at the station believe he was despondent over losing his position at Norridgewock.

Monday, soon after noon, he came to Ellsworth and bought a 22-calibre revolver at H. F. Wescott's about 2 o'clock. He appeared rational when in the store. He was seen a short time later walking back and forth on the Eastern road near the Weaver place, not far from where the body was found.

At 3.30 o'clock, Charles Martin and Colin McKay, passing along the Eastern road, saw the body lying at the side of the Hale road. The man had been dead but a short time. The revolver was grasped in his right hand, and a bullet hole in his right temple plainly told the story. The bullet had entered the brain.

Coroner D. L. Fields was notified, and after viewing the body, ordered its re-moval to L. W. Jordan's undertaking rooms to await instructions from the family. No inquest was deemed necday is the birthday of our Lord Saviour Jesus Christ. But Christ not only born of the Virgin Mary the power of the Holy Ghost, but iso capable of being born into man heart or of coming by faith the bearts and lives of men and iling there and directing the moand aspirations of the heart and the external acts of the life, which are the fruits or results of Christ "dwelling in us by faith."

e birth of Christ into the human art is a mystery. This cannot be d. No more can it be denied that to a fact. This is the important so of this tremendous claim. What there the mystery if the glorious the true? The blind man could explain how he was bealed, but was of little importance to him d, now I see." His concern was about the method of his being to see, but it was concerned with the fact that he could see. knew he had been blind. But was he had been blind he knew he could see. That was all suffi-t for him. Hence if we know that born in us by the power of the systery in connection with the itself? His own birth is mysteand many doubt or deny the birth of Christ, but if we be Here it, accept it and act upon it there need be no sleepless nights spent in considering how it could have been. "With God all things are possible." So it should be with Christ's indwell-

Ing in us.

The Scriptures declare the fact of Christ's indwelling presence. The topical inference consists of Paul's prayer for the Ephesians. It follows in form the Lord's Prayer, having (I) a preface, (2) petitions, (3) a benediction or doxology. This entire prayer is well worth our close and prayerful study. In one of the petitions Paul prays "that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith." Paul had had a deep religious experience. He spoke from experience. Christ lived or dwelt in Him by faith. To the Galatians he writes, "It is no longer I that live, but Him by faith. To the Galatians he writes, "It is no longer I that live, but Christ liveth in me, and the life which I new live I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave Himself for me" (Gal. II, 20). If in Paul and in the Ephesians Christ lived He can and will also dwell in all who character of Christ demonstrates His indwelling presence. Christ is di-vine; He is deity-not divine merely in the sense that we are all divine or possess the image of God. He is "very God of my God." Hence He is omat, all powerful and can do any p. Of course His physical body not dwell in our bodies. No one sold conceive of such an absurdity.

This is His own declaration, being God, He can and will fuifill

If not, let Him come in now this Christmas time—today! Today is the only day we are assured of. Yeserday is past, and tomorrow will never come. On a Christmas Sabbath even-ng a pastor closed his Christmas sering a paster closed his Christmas ser-mon by saying: "This is the day of giving gifts. Why not give to Him whose birthday we commemorate, the best of all gifts—yourself? He invites you to come. Will you accept His in-vitation?" A youth about seventeen years of age accepted, made a Christ-mae gift of himself to Christ and is now a successful minister of the go-pel. "Let the dear Saviour come in—

Quiet Moments.

In every church there should be a siet moment after the benediction, then with bowed heads and reverent sien we wait before God for the bless. which has just been invoked upon all. In this respect the Episcope-ns set an admirable example to most nominations in this country, though denominations in this country, though I have seen the same quiet moment observed in some Presbyterian churches in this country and always in Scotland. Why should not every service, whether prunching, prayer meeting or Christian Endeavor, be closed with a silent moment of meditation and prayer with howed head and closed eyes?

I commend this heartily as an invariable rule for the close of every Christian Endeavor meeting.

Thus when the benediction is pronounced there is another chance to show that God and heavenly things mean assuething to us by not reinpuing into the frivolous small talk which aften occupies the first half hour after the service.—Francis E. Clark, D. D.

Dear Auni Modo:

Am almost ashamed to write at this late day, but I noticed you were having the column all by yourself, and thought we were not being very thoughtful of you at this sea-not being very thoughtful of you at this season of the year.

Now, maybe some one willing: "Where have you kept hidden so long, and you were not at the reunion? No, I was not, and for a very good reason, too. I had the misfortune that morning to fall and sprain my knee quite badly, so it was entirely out of the question, my walking that distance, and besides that I had a houseful of company. Ever a since the early summer I have had my hands full, and also my heart full, for dear relatives were with me all summer, whomil had not seen in eighteen years.

with me all summer, whomal had not seen in eighteen years.

I, too, was at the "Hub" from Sept. 19 until the 35th, but I did not see half_that the other member of our column did, or else I am not good at description. The picture you saw. Aunt Madge, I enjoyed very much, as you describe it. I seemed@to_see it as you did, and only wish it might_have,been my pleasure to only wish it might have, been my 'pleasure to see it.

Have not written for so long that somehow my thoughts will not come to me as I wish they would, and the reason I have neglected to write was because I 'was too much interested in the other letters that at one time came so thick and fast to you. And all at once they stopped, and seemed to be pointing their flagers at me because I had not been helping. Am not a white ribboner, by tag, although I believe in temperance, but it seems to me there is a great deal of shall that does no good along that line. Now all do not mean to offend any one, not at all; but there are so many things that need attention as much intemperance, that touch me more keenly, that I cannot talk on the temperance question.

Now the holidays are at hand, and my box of presents is not in evidence. What am I to do? I will tell you I shall think of you all, and wish every one of you a very merry time and lots of pretty gifts and all good things generally.

Now, Dell, just take your nose out of Aunt Maria's hair and get that pen going again, and tell them all about your new water system, and the good things that I saw stored in your cellar not long ago.

I hope old Santa will remember you all bountifully, and not on you, but the needy poor throughout our beloved land. A Merry Christmas to all, and also a Happy New Year.
Insu Molly.

Thanks for your good wishes for us all. We very much regretted your absence from the reunion, asjwe counted surely on

When your nieces find you are left alone they rally around quickly, though I know each one appreciates your own column once

We have had a lovely fall and are now having fine winter weather. This season of the year reminds me of an anecdote I once read. A farmer's wife died, the minister made a visit of condolence and expressed his sympathy. The man smid "it was kinder hard to lose Betsy, jest in butchering time". Well, she did not have to care for lard, make samman and had chase, hard work, but nice to sage and head cheese—hard work, but nice to have. I have just got through with this. Have had a busy sammer, and now it is almost Christmas again, and I suppose many, like myself, would like to remember more of their friends if they could, but we can send each one a loving thought. With much sympathy for sister Darr, and may the approaching holiday season hold for you, the sisters and their Johns, too, everything that is good.

Sincerly. E.

May your kind wishes for all be real-ised and your holiday season be filled with cheer and hope. It is always a pleas-ure to hear from you.

My mother has told me all about the good times you had at the reunion and I think it must be very nice to meet all the different sisters and their Johns.

I have a walnut coke receipt I will send; we all think it very nice.

Walster Cass—One-half cupful of butter cream with two cups of sugar, three eggs, two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk, three cupfuls of sifted four, one tempocaful of cream of lartar, one-half tempocaful of cream of lartar, one-half tempocaful ramilla if you like, one cupful of finely-chopped walnuts added last. Base in a steady but not quick oven.

Here's a cordial welcome to the new member, and I doubt not some of the members will be eating cake Christmas day made by this recipe.

Although "Jennie" did not feel able to write a letter for the column, she has sent some messages I am glad to pass on to you. First, she had a nice time at the reunion, and is in hopes to go again next year. We hope so, too. She had recently

Dear Friends of the M. S. C.:

A friend of mine gave me a recipe for a date cake which she mays is very nice and wished me to send it to the M. B. C.; thought some one might want to try it before Christmas. Presume many of you are very busy preparing some little gift for the dear once at home and abroad, and white so doing, please remember one that would like to remember each one of you in some way, but as I cannot do so, will send you my very best wishes and hoping that all may receive many tokens of love and good will.

Our hearts are always larger than our purses at this season of the year, but we must not forget this that we can if we will have the real Christmas spirit the year round in the way of helpful deeds and kind words that sometimes are more valuable than money.

I am sending you a clipping that I think fine, and ofttimes when my friends are so kind and good to me I feel like saying as the little boy did: "Are you God's wife?" With a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all,

We will try to remember your thoughts on the Christmes spirit.

A lady walked slowly down
The througed, tamultous thore
Of an ancient scaport town.

Of a winning and gracious beauty, The peace of her pure, young face Was soft as the gleam of an angel's dress In the calms of a heavenly place.

And the sensitive mouth expressed
A longing to set the kind thoughts free
In music that filed her breast. She met, by a bright shop window.

An urchin timid and thin.

Who, with limbs that shook and a yearning

At the rows and varied clusters Of slippers and shoes outspread some shimmering keea, but of som Some purple and green and red.

His pale lips moved and murmured; But of what, she could not bear, And oft on his folded hands would fall The round of a bitter tear. "What troubles you, child?" she asked him, In a voice like the May-wind aweet. He turned, and while pointing dolefully To his naked and bleeding feet—

I was praying for shoes," he answered: "Just look at the aplendid show!
was praying to God for a single pair.
The sharp stones burt me so!"

the led him, in museful silence, At case through the open door, and his hope grew bright, like a fairy light, That flickered and danced before.

How strangely from shop to shelf, fill it almost seemed that he fondly dre Of looking on God Himself.

"Are you happier now, my lad?" He started, and all his soul flashed forth In a gratitude swift and glad.

Happy! Oh, yes-I am happy." Then (wonder with reverence rife, His eyes aglow, and his voice sunk low): "Please tell me! Are you God's wife?" —Paul H. Hayne

WHAT MAINE NEEDS.

SOME THINGS STATE OUGHT TO DO FOR ITERLY.

CHIT OF DIVER

There are a hundred ways in which Maine can better her people in the next ten years, but we cannot even mention half of them here to-night. I am going to talk a few minutes about some of my own hobbies, and you may have the whole week for the discussion of yours afterward. So I shall not mention butter fat, milkmaids or farmers' unions, but will dwell on a few interests which are somewhat different, but still important.

Dirigo (I direct, I lead) is the motto of this commonwealth, and in many ways the State has proved true to this ambitious declaration. No state has been tious declaration. No state has been better known abroad by its efficient and honest sons. In Congress the predomi-nating power of the Maine delegation has been a proverb for a generation past. At home the State is now showing her-self to be a leader in the forefront of rogress in many ways; she has the only car type of a State university cast of the Allegheny mountains; she recently system of legislation; her inland fisheries and game laws are among the best, if not the best of the nation; her forestry regulations and protection are unexcelled anywhere in the country; her systems of taxation and charities have features that are patterned after by many sister states. There are many other lines of progress in which the State has stood at the front and is still advancing. However, there are still is still advancing. However, there are still some directions in which the State can make improvement and realize further the Maine has not led in the develo good roads and rural schools, but this is due partly to the scattered population and the low value of property as compared to ses to be covered by her the great distan highways. But we are making rapid strides to place ourselves among the best in this particular also.

HOW PURTHER TO LEAD.

Allow me now to mention a few ways in which the people of the State can carry out betterment interests and still further lead in our own unique way:

atify the country home. In her as Maine has the most beautiful decorative trees, summer and winter, that grow upon the planet. There are thous-ands of country homes in our State andbare and cold, unprotected and shivering in the wintry wind and snow, that might be made jewels in a setting of warm everen, their beauty increased, their value anced and a body of sentiment built them in the hearts of the people.

Line the walks with cedars, grow a ackground of spruces, and here and there let a towering, murmuring pine, like a herp, turn every wintry wind into ic. Now is the time to set out rees if you don't want to grow them from seedlings. Almost any size of tree can be set over if enough dirt is taken up with it. Select your tree in the pasture, dig a trench around it before the ground is frozen deep, leaving a radius of dirt ac-eording to the size of the tree; then, by and by, after the ground is frozen, pry out the round solid mass with the tree and you will find transportation easy and transplantation as for Transplanting can antation safe. Transplanting can me in the spring with care and safety, but there is much more trouble with the loose dirt; and then, that is the busy in this decade, according to the money spent, by tree decorations than by any

SCHOOLS, CHURCHES, STATIONS.

We need a long campaign for the feeling for the beauty of this present life.

Many churches are so located that they cannot make much decoration, but with men see largely done to show that it is a place where worst property and delete an elimitated. cauty and ideals are stimulated.

It is not to be wondered that our children grow up without feeling for and ideas of beauty in some of these things, totally devoid of everything that appeals to the eye or that calls for care and protection. Children can not grow up and play among these battered fences, bare yards and cheertess surroundings of our public school grounds without thinking that they are all right, and afterwards they are liable to be satisfied with such hings about their own homes. It is a the children to get their education under such conditions of carelessuess and es as are found in most American school yards. They are per-mitted to ride rough-shod over everything, the State. No adequate treatment can be and are inclined to carry the same spirit given a criminal unless his career can be Heauty, flowers and order should be developed in the school yards (not of course so as to intefere with play), and young America compelled to observe their interests. Perhaps this would require more men and discipline in the school system, and perhaps more of the rod.

Many of the town schoolhouses are poorly located for the development of any beauty, because such a thing was not aby beauty, because such a thing was not considered when the site was selected and planned; but rural schoolhouses have plenty of opportunity for development with trees, shrube and flowers. These things can come along even before we have the school garden.

Our city parks and village streets can smally be greatly improved by the use of decorative evergreens and flowering shrube. When now streets are laid out, they ought to he wide enough to allow a strip of green, at least eight fast broad, between the idewalk and the road for the planting of trees, shrube, etc. This parkway when properly treated gives an estirely different aspect to the whole street. It can be broken up with evergreens and shrubbery and shade trees so as to make streets with poor houses look very attractive. They are also a protection to the people from the dust of the road.

I have seen streets treated systematically along the parkways so that one passing along the road would pass through an avenue of hydrangeas, cannas or spiress with the walks shaded by trees. Such street plants do not cost much but they inwith the walks shaded by trees. Such street plants do not cost much but they increase values for every property owner enjoying them. New towns ought to provide for these matters in planning streets, for they cannot be easily obtained after the first ground is broken.

I have never yet known a Maine town official to object to the pasting of any kind of advertising monstrosities, on the grounds of bad taste, disfigurement of the landscape or immoral suggestion. I have no doubt that this has been done many times, but as a general practice everything goes. The result of this freedom is the plastering of our towns and highways with hideous forms which disfigure the landscape and make such things common in the minds of the growing generation, so that they regard them as all right or perhaps as desirable. The young eyes and minds will feed on the young eyes and minus will de-stuff the public offers them and will develop accordingly. Our town govern-ments need ideals and to become responsible for the future generation as well as for the tax rates.

Grocers and other merchants often dump piles of boxes, barrels, paper and other waste beside their buildings, disaguring the street and scattering rubbish proadcast. Cordwood is often piled along the village streets, and old burned trees and debris are often allowed to lie around for months or years after a village fire. Such matters as these can be taken care of usually by an energetic town improvement society, but, if necessary, the suthority of the government should be called into action in the interest of all the property owners.

Along this same line of action we need strong hand of the law over our boys who so easily become fruit-stealers. Fruit-stealing by boys in New England is considerable handicap to horticulture. Again and again have I heard men declare that they dared not plant an orchard near a village because of the stealing of the apples. One of my own friends was obliged to abandon entirely an orchard of a hundred trees because he could not get apples enough to pay for the work on the trees, losing fully three-quarters of the mpare this condition with Germany, which often lines its highways with fruit trees instead of shade trees, and entrusts them to the school boys for protection and care. There is no sense in allowing boys to make such a nuisance of themselves, and to encourage fruit-growing, public opinion should be aroused to support the law and protect the boys from bad habits as well as the owners

PREVENTION OF CRIME.

Our people are paying hundreds of thousands of dollars every year for the capture and punishment of criminals. They are paying hundreds of thousands more for the care of paupers, insane and opular expenses are increasing, with no limit in view. Now this is to some extent a preventable situation, but where have e spent any money or made any effort to discover and dry up the sources from which these great streams of degenerates

The time has come for modern governments to take up these great social problems from the point of view of the wils and deal with them on scientific principles. We can no longer be content ty. Not a few people in the State were with treating symptoms and trying cures; agreeably surprised at the splendid showhouse yards, railway stations and such we must strike for preventives. We must public places. Our bare and cheerless also be ready to drop some old traditional charehyards advertise the dryness of sentimentality and deal with our difficult religion and indicate a weakness of culties according to human nature and

> Many of our county jails are full of men serving short sentences and living largely in idleness. Probably one of the worst parts of the system is the imprisonment of men for drunkenness under conditions that cause them to lose respect for themselves and for society, to get habits of idleness and meet evil companions with hom they will associate after leaving the jail. It would be difficult to arrange a plan better suited to ruin a young man and stablished him in criminal tendencies than this one of idleness, degenerate companions with whom to eat and talk, and loss of social respect.

> There is another grave fault in dealing with small criminals in this way, viz.: We have no means of knowing how many repeaters in such crimes we have, or who they are, for the jails seems to have no way of identifying a man except by his name, and they don't know whether he has been jailed once or fifty times within known. WHAT CAN BE DONE?

1. The State should require all county jails to make a record of the nationality, education, occupation and general career, with a photograph, of every man who is sentenced to jail, the forms and system to be required and provided by the State. We must get the data concerning our degenerates before anything can be done

2. Getting into jail must be made a pre serious and uncomfortable thing, both as to labor and hardship. More and tion or harder work should be provided than is ready f now found in the most of our jails. The jail is not a reformatory, but heavy work out doors winter and summer is a good bealthy exercise and medical attention.

4. When, according to his record, a men has demonstrated that he has overmastering criminal or degenerating tendencies, he should be surgically treated so that he cannot propagate his blood and kind. Some other states are doing this already. This is no theoretical fancy—the sanity of it is based upon the most common principles used in stock breeding the world over, and it is a duty to the future. Unless we want to go on promesting and supover, and it is a duty to the future. Unless we want to go on propagating and supporting a degenerate class these things should be done. But, if you, industrious tax-payers, are willing to keep on paying the police bills and feeding hundreds of able-bodied idlers, it is your privilege.

After a criminal's record has been found out and the proper system for treatment built up the indeterminate sentence should be adopted for all of those that are evidenly a menace to good society, and the denly a menace to good society, and the whole matter of their release from prison made dependent upon their fitness for citizenship. This throws the responsibility for improvement upon the delinquent and makes his love of freedom a great force for the betterment of his conduct, as it ought to be. Men that cannot show good evidences of reform should never allowed to go entirely free in society. By such means we can gradually round up the criminal and slowly exterminate the blood with predominating criminal ten-

A still more constructive policy is to develop agricultural, industrial and domes tic education so that our young people may see the opportunity within the State and be able to take advantage of them and find easy passage into a steady and profitable occupation that will support families and provide the normal conditions for happiness and citizenship.

Criminals and tramps, paupers, etc., are best eliminated for the future by provid; ing the next generation with every possi-ble means of normal and vitalized existence. Education, the machine shop and the technical school, the scientific and the experimental farm have to a large extent taken the place of the old apprenticeship and traditional farming.

Among the many things much ne in this progressing age is schools of en-ginery. This is a gas engine age, and it seems to me that it is the duty of our large city high schools to start departments of instruction in gas and electric enginery, which should be open to all citizens, especially in the evening. In the cities there are hundreds of men, young and old, who would like to get some practical instruction in this line. Where in Mainecan a young man learn gas enginery?

Every form of degeneracy, crime, poverty, insanity would be lessened by more practical education, for there would be a sounder economic basis for the existence of self and family.

The next ten years ought to see a revision of the school system downwardsdown closer to the people's needs and life

FARMERS' COURSES.

Arrangement by College of Agriculture, University of Maine. To one who attended the New England corn show at Worcester, Mass., and the general crop shows in Maine during the past year, there comes a comfortable feeling of pride that the Pine Tree state can roduce crops of such excellence. The last exhibit made by the members of the Maine seed improvement association at Augusta brought out samples of corn oats, beans and potatoes of superior quali-

It is well, however, for farmers in Maine to pay attention to the defects which were plainly evident in the exhibits, in order that next year's samples be much better than the ones shown the present

During the short courses in farm crops and dairying, to be given by the college of agriculture, University of Maine, beginning January 3 and continuing throughout the month, especial attention will be given in the farm crop section to selection of seed, fertilization of farm crops and methods employed in the growing of such crops. Demonstrations in corn, potato and small grain judging will be given during the course. A careful study of farm management, as well as the marketing problems involved in the prosecution of farm business, will constitute an important part of the course

In the dairying section, beside lectures on nutrition, on the feeding and breeding of dairy animals, the diagnosis and treatment of diseases of animals, there will be demonstrations in stock judging and also in the manufacture of butter and cheese In fact, every effort will be made to give as thorough and practical a course in general agriculture and dairying as the four week available will permit.

These courses are designed to meet the needs of farmers and farmers' sons who are unable to spare the time to attend the agricultural college for a longer period The expense will be exceedingly small, being limited to the actual railroad fares and room and board while at Orono. In the dairying section it will be required of each student to procure two white suits of inexpensive material.

The programs, giving complete inform tion concerning these courses will be ready for distribution within a few days. Anyone interested should communicate with Dr. Leon S. Merrill, supervisor of extension work, Orono.

Ellaworth's Representative.

In the matter of the representative to the legislature from Elisworth, a pertificate of election having been ed to John A. Peters by the gov ernor and council, Harvard C. Jordan sided to contest the seat, and has served upon Mr. Peters the following notice:

To John A. Peters, of Elisacorth, Maine: Having been notified that a certificate of election has been issued to you by the governor and council of this State, as repreby this notice, notify you that I will context your right to a seat as representative, for the collowing reasons, viz.: Piret. The return of the city clerk to the governor and council is incorrect and ir-the governor and council does not correspond with the return of the different elec-tion or ward officers to said clerk.

Third. That a great number of votes we the different wards in this city for you that declared defective and not counted for me by the said election or ward officers which uld have been counted.

That a correct count of the votes will show that I have been elected as representa-tive to the legislature from this city. HARVARD C. JORDAN. Bilsworth, Me., Dec. 15, 1910.

We understand that the attitude of Mr. Peters in this matter is substanstally as follows: If, as alleged by Mr. Jordan, there were any irregularities or mistakes by which Mr. Peter has received the benefit of votes stionably intended for him, he not desire to take advantage of it. If, on the other hand, there appear to be any votes intended for Mr Jordan, which were not counted for him, Mr. Peters desires that they should be so counted.

Mr. Peters has no desire to repre sent the people of Ellsworth against their wishes, nor to take advantage of any technicalities, and if it turns out that apparently more than half of the voters preferred to have Mr. Jordan representative, Mr. Peters will do everything he can to give him the legislature, which would naturally not be prejudiced in favor of Mr. Peters, should decide that he was ensitled to a seat, he considers it his duty to accept it in accordance with the will of the majority, regardless of his personal feelings in the matter.

For Warden of the State Prison. In the opinion of his friends in Blisworth, without regard to party, no better qualified candidate for warden of the State prison at Thomaston can be found in Maine than James A. McGown, who, at the solicitation of his party associates, has consented to be a candidate for

To begin with, his party loyalty is unquestioned; be has been an unswerving democrat all his life. He made a fine record during the Civil war in the navy, leaving the learning of his trade—that of harness-maker to enlist, finishing it after the war; afterwards engaging in the business on his own account until he became superintendent of the Union shoe factory in Ellsworth some twenty onstrated his capacity as an executive officer, and this experience, coupled with his success at his trade, suggests his fitness for the position of warden Harness-making is one of the leading adustries at Thomaston, and in this branch Mr. McGown would prove smuch as the next warden is to be a democrat, the incoming adminis tration will have to search long within the party before finding a can-didate better qualified, whether as an executive or as a mechanic, than Mr.

More Diversified Farming.

(Bangor Commercial.)

The first official statement dealing Maine agriculture and base the figures obtained by the cenine of farm land per sore has sed 75 per cent., of farm ma-y and implements 64 per cent., buildings 54 per cent., the or cont., while there has been a derease of 1 per cent. in the improved acreage. The increased value come very naturally with the increases prices for farm products, but as the Commercial has often pointed out, this does not mean so much net gain for the farmers, as other things are to be

The expenditure for labor has increased 110 per cent. in the last decade, while in the same time the expenditure for commercial fertiliser has increased 395 per cent., and this last item is the most significant and important fact brought out in the figures given out by the census bureau in this connection. With the farmers of Maine annually increasing their expenditures for commercial fertilizer, which have already reached an enormous amount, should be emphasized the imperative need for more diversified farming.

This is a matter that affects not only every farmer, but all who are interested in the growth and substantial improvement of our agriculture. With greater diversity of effort and the raising of stock will come not only safety from great hardship by the failure of one crop, but excellent profits and enrichment of the land without large expenditure for fertilizer. Our farmers must get back to the raising of stock. They must bet-ter their conditions by their own intelligent effort supplemented by labor which will provide them with practically everything required on the farm.

The price to-day for the best hogs selling on the market is 8 t 2 cente. Now look back a bit. Ten years ago the price was 5 1-2 cents and twenty years ago 5 cents. Lambs to day bring from 10 to 11 cents, while in 1900 they brought from 5 to 7 cents.

A similar increase in price is shown in poultry, and effort in poultry-rais-ing does not go unrewarded. If hens are fed, housed and handled by modern and intelligent methods they will yield excellent returns.

There is a fine, clear profit to-day in swine raising if done intelligentlya vastly better profit than could be obtained in the past—but in spite of this there has been a continual decrease in this field of effort. The farmer, however, cannot make a succe in this direction if he buys all his fe This should be raised on the farm and it can be done by intelligent effort. Ensilage, put up right, is cheap food and excellent to fatten young

The farmers have many potato equashes and pumpkins that are not marketable, but which, when boiled, make good feed and fattening. eat is an easy crop to raise, and when ground and put in with the above food proves very satisfactory. Experienced farmers claim that two or thre, weeks before the time for slaughtering, corn or grain should be

Thus the farmers should plant more oorn, and for such should select clay ottom, the very best land that they have, and not take gravelly land on the idea that anything is good enough to raise feed. Take the good land and then use the dressing from the hog-yards and from the stables, which is the very best dressing for growing corn and differing from commercial fertilizer in that its usefulness will continue for six or eight years while the latter will not be of much benefit

after two years. and it is injured for ensilage, but will husk it early with the stalks standing. put the poorer of the corn saids for the last fattening course for the hogs, then cut the stalks and put them up

Every farmer should raise a few sheep, and their selection should be with a view to their food qualities, which is at least equally important with their wool-yielding qualities. In former years merino sheep were popular in New England, but they have lapsed in popularity because the meat is solid and oily and not in favor for popular meat. Southdowns, Shropshires and Oxforddowns are the varieties that are particularly profitable for the farmer to raise to-day, and a number of farmers in Penobecot county have entered into this field in the last few years with satisfactory results, as is hown by the fact that it is often said that the native mutton that can be obtained in the Bangor market is equal to the best English mutton.

Our Maine farmers, operating in-telligently, working faithfully and energetically themselves and operating their best lands, not choosing a grav-elly land where the fertilizing qualities of the dressing percolates right down through when the rains come, but clay bottom where it remains and feeds many a crop after the first year, can raise all materials for fattening all kinds of stock.

A genuine effort at stock raising and diversified farming will be found to yield very gratifying financial re-

"Joe-Pye-Weed." SOUTH LANCASTER, MASS. Dec. 18, 1910.

To the Editor of The American: It is long past the time of the wild lowers, but a little incident concerning them happened in your city last summer which may interest some of your citizens. There is one lady who will read this letter with interest if she sees it, who lives just across the bridge at the centre of the town and opposite the hotel. I promised to send her the name of the wild flower which lined the river bank in very con spicuous masses both above and below the bridge on the west side. I am sorry I have lost her name, but have hoped that maybe through your columns I might yet accomplish my task. Joe-Pye-Weed, or trumpet weed. It be-longs to the thoroughwort family, and its otanical name is "eupatorium-purpursum". It very much resembles the com mon thorough wort in shape except that its feathery flower-heads are the color of crushed respherry instead of white, as the boroughwort. It is called Joe-Pye-We after the name of an Indian who cured typhus fever in New England by means of it. It was my first introduction to this flower, and I assure you I was much inter-

OLD SAILING PECORDS

speed in Ocean Travel Shown by

Some American Ships.
In a recent number of the Herald I find can ship Erskine W. Phelps, owned in ment is put might lead a casual reader to believe that all previous ocean sailing re-cords had gone by the board. I therefore take the liberty of celling your attention to certain properly verified records made most of them, half a century ago, says Rowland Thomas, in the Boston Herald.

The most noteworthy performance of the Phelps, all things considered, is her run from Norfolk, Va., to Honolulu, a dissidered, is ber ninety-seven days, a daily average of 155 miles. The record voyage over approxi-mately the same distance is that of the ship Comet, San Francisco to New York, seventy-six days. In the same connection be noted the old ship Northern Light, which averaged 200 miles a day for the passage from San Franciso to Boston, and the truly memorable voyage of the and the truly memorable voyage of the famous ship Houqua, Shanghai to New York, eighty-eight days. The Phelps also has to her credit a pasmiles, in eighty days, averaging 162.5 miles per day. The old East India Black-waller Alnwick Castle, not a clipper, twice made the run from the Channe to the Sandheads at the entrance of the Hoogly, an approximately equal distance, in sixty-eight days. I also have at hand a clipping from the Daily Post of London, pasted inside the cover of a seaworn Bowditch, which gives the record passage from Melbourne to the Mersey as sixty-three days. The same skipper made two other memorable round trips, England to Melbourne and return in the Black Bell liner Marco Polo - one in five months, twenty-six days, the other in one or two days over or under six months.

For bursts of speed the Phelps' best is very good indeed. An hour's run of fourteen miles, a day's run of 320, and a an average or 250. That surpasses the old record of the Swordfish, Shanghai to Ban Francisco, thirty-one days, or an average of 240 miles. But it must be remembered that the run of the Phelps was made wholly at sea, with open water and the southeast trades broad abeam, while the Swordfish had to get off the coast clear of the China sea and then pass north of the zone of the trades. And the Phelps' is small compared with the runs of real ocean racers, the old American full seatiful old Flying Cloud, holds a rewhich will probably stand to the end of time. In a day of twenty-four hours she nade a properly verified run of 433 miles, an hourly average of eighteen knot. And her rival, the Sovereign of the Sea, was but little behind her. It will be seen, there-fore, that the best of our day must be much bettered to match the best of the from their poops with infinite scorn on the "steam" which was moping along at a humble six or seven knots.

Harold Salisbury and Harley Grover made a business visit to Bangor last Wed-nesday.

Cyrus Roberts has been here a few days on an outing, the guest of Sanford Grin-Daniel G. Young made his regular trip to Bar Harbor last week, expecting to go again Christmas week.

Hollis Salisbury, who is working in the woods at Amherst, came home for a few days, nursing a large boil on his hand.

The cry for water is becoming genera here, as those who depend on wells are obliged to haul from brooks and springs. Among the lucky hunters who were here the last week of the hunting season were Morrison brothers, of Bar Harbor, Mr. Bunker, of Bangor, Bernard Jellison and Bert Hamilton of Ellsworth Falls.

There was a large congregation present, and while the paster, Rev. P. A. A. Elliam, referred in his sermon to the improvements, there was no special observance of the opening. The junior choir furnished music.

In the evening a special service was held in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the church. The pastor gave a brief historical sketch in commemoration of the fiftieth anniver-eary of the organization of the church. The pastor gave a brief historical sketch of the church. The society organized in 1800 with twenty-four members, and reached its highest membership, 141, in 1801, during the pastorate of Rev. T. F. White. The present membership is eighty-one. The church has had twelve reastors, the present pastor, now in his pastors, the present pastor, now in his seventh year here, having the longest term in this church.

Short, interesting addresses were made by Rev. H. B. Mathews, of the Congrega-tional church, and District-Superinten-dent H. B. Haskell and Rev. O. G. Barnard, of the Methodist church. These speakers in the new and homelike auditorium in the new and homelike auditorium, could not help getting away slightly from the anniversary idea in their remarks, and paid their compliments to the society, and especially to the pastor, through whose untiring energy and enthusiasm the work was made possible, and under whose porsonal supervision and plans it was done. There was singing by a mixed quartet.

No mere description of the new audi-

No mere description of the new audi-torium can convey an adequate idea of the vast improvement made. Only one familiar with the church as it was and visiting it now can appreciate this, and he can hardly realize it is the same room.

Briefly, the cubic air space of the auditorium has been reduced practically one half by putting in a false ceiling, eigh et below the old ceiling, but still leaving height of seventeen feet, and by cutting off sixteen feet from the rear of the room which has been converted into two class cultant saving in fuel in heating the church, but while this was one of the essentials in the improvements when first planned, Mr. Killam, who made the plans, aw further than that and pictured a more comfortable, more homelike, more beauti-ful church, and in all these features has realised even more than his mind's eye pictured the church is in the lower and uppe entries. Here the walls have been covered with beaverboard and paneled. The stairways remain in their original form. Entrance to the auditorium is by the corridor before referred to, which opens Heavy paneled doors separate the corridor from the entry, while another set of doors with glass panel at face height, give

The auditorium has steel ceiling, side walls and wainscotting, in ornamental panel design. The same is true of corridor and class-rooms. The colorings are ivory, gold and varying tints of green the whole effect being soft, harmoniou

At the front of the church, or rostrum still further improvements have been made. The pulpit itself remains in its previous form, but a circular facade to the choir platform back of it, in panel work, greatly alters and improves its appearornamental iron uprights, the handiwork of E. B. Doyle.

At right and left of the pulpit, buttress raised to the level of the choir platform are surmounted by ornamental post lights the gift of the S. G. C. class of the Sunday school, while the choir facade, an original design by the late Edgar Strout from a the F. L. C. class.
At the right of the pulpit and choir platform a wing buttress conceals a stairway to the vestry below-an improvement by means of which pastor and choir may enter without the necessity of passing through the body of the church.

The woodwork throughout, except the pews, is of cypress finished in natural rain. The new circular pews are of western elm, a beautifully grained wood.

Above the choir platform, and making a leasing break in what was formerly a blank wall, is a circular window of stainer glass of appropriate design, the gift of E. L. Curtis, of Malden, class., formerly of Ellaworth. The windows formerly at right and left of this space, which made a d cross light, have been closed. Mr. Killam has adopted an ingenious idea for the artificial lighting of the choir platorm, a row of electric lights being recesed in the ceiling, giving a fine light for the choir and pulpit, but being at the same time cut off from the eyes of people windows are on either side of the audi-torium. The first on the right of the pulpit is in memory of Rev. Theodore F. White, pastor of the church from 1878 to White, pastor of the church from 1878 to 1883, presented by Mrs. C. E. Young, of West Enfield, formerly Mrs. White. The second window on the left is a me-morial to Mrs. Mary L. Means, one of the former earnest workers in the church, and the third is in memory of Descon Oliver P. Thomas and wife, formerly prominent in the church.

The first window at the left of the purpit is in memory of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis W. Hodgkins, the second in memory of Mrs. Margaret Whitaker, and the third in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Lord. The stained windows in the class-rooms are gitts from the Sunday school associations of Hancock and Washington counties.

SHERIFF SHABY DINED.

Postimonial by Doputy Sheriffs to their Outgoing Chief.
Sheriff Forrest O. Silshy's deputies did a very pretty thing last Thursday evening, when they tendered him a banquet, and as a further and more lasting mark of their esteem, presented him with a hand-charm with which ti their chief last fall.

The banquet was unexpected by Sheriff Silaby, though he rather guessed something was up from the pains taken by some of his deputies to insure his presence in Elisworth on the date assigned, but the watch was an entire surprise and took the popular sheriff entirely off his guard.

The banquet was given at the Har ar sheriff entirely off his guard. ouse, and Host Gould served up a delicious repast. The menu was as follows:

Those present were Sheriff Silsby, Deputies H. G. Smallidge, of Winter Haror; C. A. Richardson and Clarence C. Madden, of Bar Harbor; G. F. Newman, of Ellsworth; W. W. Wescott, of Bluebill; and Robie M. Rumill, of Tremont. Dr. J. H. Patten, of Bar Harbor, was a guest. The storm unfortunately prevented others of the fifteen deputies from being present. Deputy Sheriff Smallidge presided as toastmaster, and on behalf of the deputies present and absent, presented the watch. Sheriff Silaby, after recovering from the first shock of surprise, found words to express his thanks and appreciation of the gift, which he said he would value

more for the friendship it expressed than for its intrinsic worth. The watch, an open-face, bears Mr. Bilsby monogram, F. O. S., on the back case, and on the inner case the inscription, 'Presented by his deputies for the years

ting Experiment of Bucks-port Seminary Girls. [From the Banger News.]

With the closing of the Bucksport minery for the Christmas rec experiment of the "Model Home" passes into history. Thanks to the e thrift and personality of Miss Murtha Blair May, matron and teacher of household arts, it has proven a success.

At the beginning of the fall term the house in Federal street, formerly occupied by the president of the seminary for years, was turned over to Miss May, of Rockland, a young woman who come to Rockland, a young woman who come to the seminary as a teacher and worker among girls. The house was empty. ho visit it to-day wonder whe she got the material to make it into home, for this she has done, and a giance at the bright, shining faces of the girls who live there with her will tell you that it is happy one.

ough it is very humble, we are very happy," is a pet phrase of those who live at Spofford hall, as it is called Who can ask for more than happiness! Long ago the poet told us, and it has been sung for ages, "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home." And this is home for a good part of the year to ten or twelve girl students at the seminary. Owing to the kindness and generosity of friends, most of them Bucksport people, the house has been furnished and the girls have not been obliged to bring from home the furnishings for their rooms, except such personal effects as all girls like to take to a boarding school. Dishes for the table and cooking. a dozen chairs for the dining-room and the table linen are about all the things that the seminary has been obliged to buy to equip the home. Of course there are yet many things needed, but those most interested feel that everything will come in time and that no such good work as has been accomplished during the past few months can fail.

At the close of the present term nine girls bade adieu to Miss May and to each other, with joyous anticipation of a holivisit at their own homes, and also with the knowledge that in two weeks they will again meet under the "home roof" of Spofford hall, where they have spent so many happy hours.

The girls at Spofford hall learn domestic science daily by practical application, each having her part of the household duties to perform. Cooking, sweeping, bed-making, the care of rooms, laying the table, and every part of housework is systematically taught, and this not only educates them but gives also a great deal of pleasure and a touch of real home life to boarding-school. What girl does not like to fuss around in the kitchen? Being deprived of this privilege has been the cause of homesickness in a great many cases in girls' schools. At Spofford hall the girls assist in preparing every meal except breakfast, clean the table, wash the dishes and look after their own and the living-rooms. When this work is divided among ten or twelve girls and each does her part not only willingly but heerfully, the work is done as if by magic

The living-room, where the girls gather when not at school or otherwise engaged is a large, cheerful room, and at the beginning of the New Year will have the added glory of a piano, which the girls will enjoy, as many of them are musical.

Spofford hall is a large, old house given to the seminary by Emmeline Spofford On the ground floor is the living-room, dining-room, matron's room, a kitchen, with laundry for the use of the girls who wish to do their own washing. The house washing is sent to the town laundry. On the second floor are at the rooms of the students and a large bath-Miss Martha Blair May, matron and teacher, is a graduate of the Rockland school, '94; Farmington normal high school of '96; Boston school of domestic science, '09. From 1901 to 1908 she taught 1909 she was matron in the Normal and Collegiate institute, Ashville, N. C. Added to her experience and special training for the work, Miss May possesses an inborn love of humanity and a desire to uplift, and one look into her expressive face tells one that she is keenly alive to all the wants and needs of all her girls. and in her they find a real "mother".

Spofford hall is essentially a boarding club, but it is more than that; it is a home where there is a guiding hand at the helm, a watchful eye over them and one to whom their little cares and worries can be told with the confidence that she is never too busy to listen and advise if

"Spofford hall is everything to me." "If you seek happiness, live at Spofford Hall with Miss May."

"Spofford hall is a real home and Miss

May a real mother." These and many other similar sentiments are expressed by the girls when you ask them what they think of the new dub-home. The cost of maintaining the home has been minimized as far as possible, and costs each girl about $2 per week during the winter a little more, owing to the heating of the house.

In the house during the past term have been girls from Enfield, Lincoln, South Orrington, Isle au Haut, Lincolnville, Eddington, Boston, etc., and a more wholesome and daintier bevy of misses it would be hard to find. They are natural and unaffected, just good, healthy girls, ready for a frolic, but withal having a serious side, as their little prayer-meetings in the living-room on certain evenings each

In two weeks the girls will come trooping back to their school home, refreshed and happy after the holiday. May the good work so auspiciously begun con-tinue and prosper, for it fills a long-felt want.

long while ago, when the people of Europe lived in an artistic atm phere, a stranger stopped one evening at a peasant's cottage in the south of Spain and asked for supper and a night's lodging. He was made welcome and comfortable so far as the poor peasants were able to make him

The family consisted of a man per hape thirty-five years of age; his wife a young woman of twenty-two or twen ty-three, and their child, a boy abou eight months old. While the stranger was eating his supper his eyes were constantly fixed upon the man, who sat smoking his pipe by the chimney turning them from him to the woman who sat on the opposite side, pursing her baby. In the man's face was certain repose, a contentment with the world and with his lot in it. The wo man's, though that of a peasant, was tinged with a certain indescribable spirituality. When the child sat up in his mother's lap and looked at the guest his eyes were opened very wide and there was an appearance of intelligence in them beyond babyhood, beyond childhood-even, it seemed at times, beyond manbood.

When the stranger had eaten his supper he said: "I shall be gone in the rning before you are up. Please tell me what is the reckoning, that I may pay it now, for my supper and my bed."

"There is nothing to be paid, senor." said the man. "What we have given you to eat, while it is good enough for us, is not good enough for a gentle man like you. At any rate, it is not of any real value. As for the bed you are to sleep on, you will fare no better than the mules. What presumption senor, it would be for us to take money for these things By doing so we would call down the displeasure of our patron saint.'

but, taking up a candle, mounted a ing down from his room after the peasant and his wife had breakfasted. The woman gave him what remained in the house for a meal, after which be said:

"You will not permit me to pay for your hospitality, but possibly you may accept a gift at my hands. I am an artist and will draw your likenesses.

To this the husband demurred, say ing that the gentleman's time was too valuable to be spent sketching poor peasants, but the wife took a wor view of the matter. She wished for the portraits of her husband, herself especially her child. So she per suaded the man to sit with her and their boy for the stranger to copy.

The artist placed the woman in a chair, holding her child in a standing position, while the man stood looking over her shoulder at both her and the boy. Then from a portmanteau be had with him he took out drawing materials, and, improvising an easel out of a chair, he set to work. He made a number of outline sketches of the three, also filling in separate drawings of them. When he had finished he put them away and said:

"I shall take away what I have done with me, but this," selecting one of them, "I will return to you. If you desire to improve your condition or are in need of money you may be able to sell it for a fair price.

With that the artist took up his port-

Some time after this when the peas ant had forgotten the incident and his wife was lamenting because the artist had neglected to send the sketch a man appeared, saying that be had been sent with it by the artist. It was in a frame, and in one corner a name was written. But the name was not familiar to the peasants. They bung the picture on the wall and were very proud of it. When the neighbors came in to look at it they would be asked. "Are not the figures like us?" and the reply would be: "Yes, they are like you, but they are boly people. Your baby resembles our blessed Saviour." The peasants kept the picture for many years. Meanwhile they grew to be old and their boy became a young man. He loved the daughter of a wine grower, but she was without dowry, and he was without any means to set up housekeeping. Then his mother remembered the artist's words that they might sell the picfaith in this, but the boy, who was in love, begged his mother to try. Her affection for her son triumphed over her desire to keep the sketch, and with him she went to Seville.

On reaching the city she went to a church to pray for the success of their undertaking. When they came to the altar both stood still in amaze There before them was their ment. sketch in painted colors inclosed in a massive frame. It represented Mary and Joseph and the Infant Jesus.

The next day people gathered in knots to discuss a bit of news. A peasant woman and her son had come in from the south with the original Retch of one of the most famous of Murillo's paintings of the boly famlly. They did not know its value, but when a dealer told them that there were persons who would give a thousand sequins for it they were amazed They agreed to take this amount, the dealer taking the risk of selling it at a profit. Then the two peasants went home happy.

While in process of construction the Olympic occupied the inner berth of two giant building ships underneath a mammoth double gantry, or steel scaffolding, 360 feet in length, the Titantic occupying the outer ways. Although the gantry was 180 feet in height, it was deemed advisable to launch the vessel minus the bridge deck and captain's bridge, the space above being so limited that the danger of carry-ing away some part of the fixed gear of the gantry becoming apparent soon after building operations were begun.

DANGER OF STRAINING.

There was also the danger, in launching uch a huge structure, that the waist of the ship, its most vulnerable part, might be strained. Therefore it was deemed advisable to tighten the bow of the vessel in every possible way, and get all the weight possible on the stern — the first part to enter the water—so as to reduce to a minimum the immense strain on the middle of the bull.

During the weeks immediately preced ing the launching 2,500 men worked night and day getting everything in reading The Belfast harbor commissioners had the harbor dredged so as to provide a depth of thirty-five feet at high water in that part of it below the Olympic's cradle. While the Olympic was being built, the White Star company had to face the problem of how she was to be accomdated at Southampton when she should make her first appearance at that port as a full-fledged transatiantic liner. The Olympic requires thirty-five feet of water, whereas the channel at Southampton is in ome places only thirty-two feet deep at low water. After conferring with the port authorities, it was decided to dredge the channel to a minimum depth of thirtyfive feet at low water, just as was done
