FOOD FAIR.

NOW IN FULL SWING AT HANCOCK HALL.

LAST YEAR'S SUCCESS SO FAR ECLIPSED THAT IT AFFORDS NO COMPARISON—THREE MORE DAYS.

The second annual food fair, under the auspices of the Ellsworth merchants' association, opened at Hancock hall Monday afternoon promptly at 2 o'clock, and is now in full swing for the week.

This year's exhibition is so far ahead of that of last year that no fair comparison can be made between the two. The decorations of the hall and the booths are far more elaborate than last year; there are many more out of town exhibitors, and the exhibits occupy three times the space required last year. This additional space is obtained by the use of the full stage, the large cloak-room opening off the gallery, and the banquet hall on the lower floor, which is filled by the agricultural exhibit. The municipal court-room is also reserved into service for the food lectures and cooking demonstrations.

The hall is decorated with a profusion of Japanese lanterns and parasols, and orange bunting. A novel and pleasing effect was produced at the opening dance Monday evening when all lights except those in the lanterns were turned off, while the orchestra played the lantern chorus. An orchestra of ten pieces, C. E. Monaghan, leader, furnishes music afternoon and evening.

The aeroplane models, loaned by the Regal Shoe Co., attract much attention. Above the stage floats a Beriot monoplane, and near the main entrance there is a Curtis biplane.

The attendance at the fair so far has been up to expectations, and increasing each day. Monday there were over 800 paid admissions; yesterday there were over 900. The dances in the evening have been well patronized.

Miss Comstock to-day begins her food lectures and cooking demonstrations, which will bring out the ladies in full force. The agricultural lectures Thursday and Friday will bring in many from out of town.

Unless all signs fail, though the expenses this year are nearly twice those of last year, this year's fair will exceed last year's success financially as it does as an exhibition.

A sound-proof telephone booth has been erected in the hall for free service, through the kindness of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. Mt. Kebo spring water is donated by the Mt. Kebo Spring Co.

OPENING EXERCISES. The formal opening exercises took place at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, when Roy C. Hainer, secretary and all-around "booster" of the food fair committee, stepped to the platform. After a prayer by Rev. O. G. Barnard, Mr. Haines introduced Rev. R. B. Mathews, who made the opening address.

Mr. Mathews gave the fair a big boost in his opening remarks. He spoke of the tremendous work of preparation inspired without hope of personal gain, and the loyalty to the community which it expressed. He referred to the labor, industry and agricultural interests represented.

He decared the men who tried to belittle everything which was of no direct benefit to themselves; who measured the value of every undertaking by their own pocket-book—"What shall I get out of it?" He said the demonstration of energy, loyalty, push, pluck and perseverance—the proof that some men in the community are still awake—was worth something to every man in the community.

He paid his tribute to "boost", the slogan of the food fair committee, as an appeal to every citizen of the city to put himself behind every movement that had for its object a bigger, better and busier Ellsworth.

THE EXHIBITORS. The booths at the fair are built up flush with the front of the galleries, and this arrangement

FOR VIOLATING SMELT LAW. Three Surry Men Fined For Spear- ing Smelts at Patten's Bay. John Brown, Carl Christiansen and Omar J. Stevens, of Surry, were arraigned before Judge Hall in the Ellsworth municipal court last Thursday, charged with violation of the special law for the protection of smelts in Patten's bay, Surry. The law prohibits the catching of smelts in any other way than by hook and line.

The men have been using an ingenious spear of home manufacture for spearing fish through the ice. The spear is formed of a number of cod-fish hooks straightened and set side by side, and attached to a short bar of iron or brass. To the spear is attached a line for drawing it back through the hole in the ice after it has been launched, like a harpoon, into a school of smelts.

The smelt fishermen at Surry have noticed from time to time many dead or injured fish in the water. At first these were attributed to illegal night seiners, but are now supposed to be due to injuries from the spears.

The men waived examination, were found guilty, and fined $100 and costs each, which is the minimum fine allowed under the law. They appealed, and furnished bonds for $200 each for appearance at the April term of the supreme court.

A. O. U. W. to Admit Women. At the annual meeting of the grand lodge, A. O. U. W., in Waterville Thursday, the recommendations of Grand Master Workman Maher that women be admitted to membership in the order were adopted.

The following officers were elected: Grand master workman, James J. Maher, Augusta; past grand master workman, W. H. Paine, Skowhegan; grand foreman, W. A. Vannah, Waldoboro; grand overseer, Edwin A. Porter, Pittsfield; grand recorder, Fred Emery Beane, Hallowell; grand receiver, Charles F. Roberts, Portland; grand guide, Roscoe W. Hanson, Waterville; grand inside watch, U. O. Dorr, Old Town; grand outside watch, Frank A. Hewins, Augusta.

Fire at West Brooksville. WEST BROOKSVILLE, Feb. 19 (special)—The farm buildings of Irving U. Cousins, at this place, were burned at 9.30 o'clock this morning, with a large part of contents. The fire started from a burning chimney.

The livestock and carriages were saved from the barn, and the piano and a part of the house furnishings were saved in a damaged condition. The ice-house and henry were not burned. The loss is estimated at $2,500; insurance, $1,700.

Prof. Hitchings to U. of M. Prof. E. F. Hitchings, of Waterville, has been appointed to succeed Prof. Victor R. Gardiner, as head of the department of horticulture at the University of Maine.

Prof. Hitchings has for the past six years been State entomologist, and is well fitted to take up the work of the department. He will assume his new duties March 1.

For Violation of Fishing Law. The law court has rendered its decision in the case of the State vs. Elmer Bridges for violation of the fishing law for taking scallops from proscribed waters in Bluehill bay.

Judgment for the State against the respondent for the penalty of 100 fish.

COMING EVENTS. ELLSWORTH. Tuesday evening, Feb. 28, at Congressional parlour at 7.30—Third of series of ten lectures by Rev. R. B. Mathews, on early American history.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 26, 1911.

Topic.—A missionary journey around the world.—II. Missions in the United States.

The southern part of the United States is a great missionary field. The southern people themselves have no need of the missionary.

The southern negroes of this race of people, then, is a population of 8,000,000 as against 1,000,000 in the north and these latter more widely distributed than are the multitudes of the south.

Some cities have a larger black population than white, and these were a standing menace to this great section of our country, once so great and powerful in all things, before the war plunged them into almost dire poverty.

But nobly they went to work after the "war-baggage" had been forced out, and the south in a different way is again becoming richer and more prosperous.

Sons and even daughters of southern parentage, who in the days before the war would have considered it a great indignity to have engaged in industrial business or in labor of any kind, with their sons and daughters, the present generation have dropped the past and gone to work, and some of it hard work, to redeem the south and to build up a new south, and, moreover, they are meeting with wonderful success.

Nor do they fear the display of mammoth apples from Montana and other states in that section.

We hear with regret that Sister B. is very poorly. She has the kindest love and sympathy of the friends of the column.

Our sympathy also goes out to Janet, who has recently lost a son.

The following was passed to me by O. to be inserted in the column. The title really is "How I Earned my Dollar".

One pleasant day when we had met and I learned that we were out of debt because home mission dues were paid.

Some one a proposition made. That we could now a dollar earn. By some new way, or crook or turn.

Mutual Benefit Column.

EDITED BY "AUNT MADGE".

Its Motto: "Helpful and Helpful."

The purposes of this column are succinctly stated in the title and motto—it is for the mutual benefit, and aims to be helpful and helpful.

There is a field where daisies grow, Where simple rivets seaward flow, Where blue above and green below.

There is a garden full of flowers, And butterflies and golden hours, Where pleasure tends the day-dream bows.

There is a path where night flowers bloom, Where glow worms chase the pressing gloom, Where life's the bride and youth's the groom.

There is a place where skies rain tears, Where gaunt trees rise and shadow fears, Where every footstep galls and sears.

But there's the field where daisies grow, Where simple rivets seaward flow, Where blue above and green below.

Dear M. B. Friends: We can understand how M. A. B. appreciates the poem she furnished for this issue.

Our sympathy also goes out to Janet, who has recently lost a son.

Our sisters are expert housekeepers, always giving in our M. B. C. recipes for good things to tempt the appetite and fill the stomach.

A few minutes' delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor, often proves dangerous.

fluence their husbands by acting on their stomachs in the spread of table.

But is there not great danger in this course? Is not the appetite often an enemy to the stomach? The stomach does not always receive all these so-called good things put into it with good grace.

I have read somewhere that man sleeps too much, I believe it to be true that he eats too much, especially too much of rich dishes, that the good housewife is so fond of making, with no intention of doing harm.

What we seem to really need are recipes that will make friends who will stand by and lead a helping hand through thick and thin; who will not try to get the best of a neighbor, but will give of the best he has.

"BACK TO THE FARM"

XI.—Rural Education—The Agricultural College.

By C. V. GREGORY.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

In 1902 congress passed a law appropriating money for the establishment of colleges of agriculture and mechanic arts. Today there are sixty-seven such institutions in the United States. The establishment of the agricultural colleges opened up an entirely new field of education. The study of science and the application of that science to the problems of everyday life began to take the place of the study of classics. Educating a man merely to have him educated began to go out of style, and the truer education that better fits a man to tackle the problems of life took its place.

The growth of the agricultural colleges was slow at first, and not until within the last fifteen years have they really come to fill the place for which they were designed. At first the idea of educating a farmer was laughable to many people who rejoiced in a little learning. Even the farmer himself did not realize the advantage of a college education to a man who must make a living from the soil. It took a good many years to bring people to realize that college education is as valuable for a farmer as for a doctor or a lawyer. The main difference is that the law compels a man to get a college diploma before he starts to practice medicine, while he may start farming with nothing but a team and a plow.

Even at the present time there are many men both on the farm and in the cities who doubt the value of a college education for the farmer. Many a farm boy is squarely confronted with the problem of choosing between four years in college or starting to farm at once. Four years is a long time to a young man. Fifteen hundred to $2,000 is a large sum of money to him. To spend both for a college education requires a great deal of courage and faith in the future.

The amount of money necessary to pay four years' expenses in college will enable the young man to start farming on a rented farm. The four years will, if he is industrious, enable him to earn enough to make a good sized payment on a farm of his own. If he goes to college he will have nothing at the end of the four years but the experience and knowledge he has gained there. Is it worth it? I have put this question squarely to dozens of men in their last year at an agricultural college. Without exception they say that it is worth the outlay. Not one regretted the time or the money which he had bartered for his education. Few of them placed it on a money basis alone, but even from that standpoint they considered that the chances were in favor of the college man.

The boy who starts farming for himself without any education will run up against a good many snags which the college man will miss. He will learn by experience many of the things which the college man learns in school. In doing so he will pay much dearer for his knowledge. The old prejudice against "book farming" is fast disappearing. People are coming to realize that book farming is merely the fused experience of successful farmers everywhere, explained and illumined by the light of science. Probably in no one respect is the advantage of the college man more clearly apparent than in the case of soil fertility. Long after the untrained man has begun to notice and wonder at the decline of his crop yields the man who has studied the science of soil fertility will be raising undiminished crops. The art of keeping up the soil fertility cannot be learned from the neighbors, for they have not practiced it. It cannot be learned from father or grandfather, for in their day the fertility of the soil was considered inexhaustible.

The success of the agricultural college graduate cannot be measured in money alone. The agricultural communities just now need leaders much more than they need men who can simply make money on their own farms. It is necessary for the agricultural college graduate to succeed on his own farm, of course. His every move is closely watched by critical neighbors. Even the shadow of a failure starts a chorus of "I told you so."

Success on his own farm is the first essential to the young man who would be a leader. Given that for backing, he can do almost anything he wants to with his community. Farmers have a vast deal of respect for the man who can do things. Their prejudice against college farming is lost in admiration for the results achieved by the college farmer. If he advises organizing a club they are willing to join in and help. If he tells them the school needs reorganizing they are willing to be convinced. They may even consent to bringing two or three schools together and using the money saved to hire better teachers. The inspiration of one man's success and the energy imparted by him is sufficient to start a whole community to thinking. Once you get a man to thinking, there is no need to worry further about him. He will take care of himself.

If an energetic young farmer with an agricultural education could be placed in each township throughout the farming sections the results would be an enlightened agriculture that would be the envy of the whole world. A leading educator recently made the statement that three live agricultural college graduates could in ten years increase the value of the land in any agricultural county $20 per acre. That sounds incredible, but it is literally true. The community would become so progressive that it would be worth $20 an acre more to live there.

The charge has been made that agricultural college graduates do not go back to the farm. The facts do not bear out this assertion. While the percentage varies, it is safe to say that fully 50 per cent of the graduates go directly to the farm. The others go into some work closely related to farming. In my acquaintance with young men just finishing college I have known of very few who were not anxious to go to farming. A good many of them do not do so because of lack of capital. They have spent all their money in college, and it looks to them like uphill business to start farming without a cent. They are overwhelmed with offers of salaried positions at salaries of from $1,000 to $2,000 a year to start with. Experiment stations, agricultural colleges, agricultural papers and manufacturers of agricultural products are all looking for agricultural college graduates.

Many of the men go into some work of this kind until they can save money enough to start farming.

Of the college graduates who do take up farming as a business the greater number rent the home farm or go into partnership with their respective fathers. This is the ideal way for a young man to get a start. Under such favorable circumstances he cannot help but succeed. Often, however, there are enough brothers at home to occupy all the land. The young college farmer must look elsewhere for a job. Every year the agricultural colleges are receiving a larger number of calls for farm managers. Many of these offers are exceedingly liberal. They come for the most part from farmers who wish to retire from active work and at the same time do not wish to sell or rent their farms. They are often willing to take the right sort of a young man in on a partnership basis or give him a percentage of the net profits. A position of this kind is the next best thing to owning a farm.

Although an agricultural college education is of great value, it must not be taken from what I have said that success without such an education is impossible. Many farmer boys are not fitted for an education of this kind either by temperament or ability. Many others are so situated that they cannot be away from home for four years. Still others do not have the money. For these boys an agricultural college education is an impossibility. To teach them something about their business some other form of education is necessary. This is being supplied by the secondary schools. The work of these schools will be described in the next article.

Planning For a Divorce

Many Methods Were Suggested, but None Found Satisfactory.

By WILLARD STOUTENBERG
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I was a young law student twenty-three years old, studying in the office of Marbury & Slade. Mr. Marbury was an old friend of my father's, and I think he was quite fond of me. One day he sent for me to come into his private office, and I found him alone there.

"Frank," he said, "I can give you a chance to make $500."

Now, I was scraping along financially, trying to make ends meet till I could get my profession, and $500 would be a great lift for me.

"How?" I asked eagerly.

"By taking a wife."

My delight vanished as quickly as it had come.

"There will be nothing to prevent your getting a divorce in time," he added, noticing my discomfiture.

"I don't think I would like to be tied up in such a matter at all. What does it mean?"

"It means that a client of ours, a girl of twenty-one, has inherited a fortune conditional upon her being married. Of course there is a time limit, and that time expires tomorrow at 12 o'clock noon. The young lady, Miss Irene Townsend, needs a man to marry her and, in consideration of an amount paid him, to leave her alone forever afterward. It wouldn't do to agree upon a divorce, because in that case I doubt if the marriage would be legal, but after the property is turned over to the heir I see no reason why one should not be obtained."

I thought awhile. There was a spice of romance in the matter that appealed to my youthful imagination.

"What kind of a looking thing is she?" I asked.

"On that score, my boy, you needn't trouble yourself. She is a very pretty woman and, moreover, of excellent birth and breeding, of which she is proud. She is the ward of an uncle who, I think, intends that she shall eventually marry some great catch, perhaps a British lord. All that's wanted of the first husband is that he may be relied upon after the marriage to keep out of the way and consent to a divorce when the time comes."

"How long have I to consider the matter?"

"You'll have to decide pretty soon. Miss Townsend must be married by tomorrow noon or lose a fortune. If you don't want the job some one else must be found to accept it. Think it over and let me know before I leave the office for the day."

I thought I would ask to see the girl I was to marry; but, considering that I was to be simply a husband to obviate a legal technicality, what need was there for me to see her? If she were attractive perhaps the less I saw of her the better. I waited till Mr. Marbury's hour for going home, and when he sent for me, before answering the summons, I flipped a coin to decide for me. "Heads I marry, tails I don't." Heads won.

I announced my decision to Mr. Marbury, and he told me the marriage would take place at the office the next day about 10 o'clock. Before going to my wedding I put on a frock coat and stuck a flower in my buttonhole; but, thinking this would appear as though I considered the affair a real wedding, I changed to my business suit and threw away the flower.

At 10 o'clock sharp I received a summons to go to Mr. Marbury's office. I found there besides Mr. Marbury a man in clerical dress, an aristocratic looking gentleman, very stiff and reserved, who didn't deign to look at me, and my bride. It was all right for the others to treat the matter as a mere legal form, but the bride and bridegroom gave each other a quick look. I defy any man upon entering into such an arrangement to avoid beginning at once to play a game of hearts. At any rate, I did, and, always having found indifference to be the most powerful force to move a woman, I refrained from looking at Miss Townsend after the first glance. I cast my eye perfunctorily over the papers I was required to sign and, drawing my pen through the words "five hundred dollars," wrote "one."

"What do you mean by that, sir?" snarled the elderly gentleman.

"I have decided, somewhat late perhaps, that to accept money for such a service would demean me. I shall be happy to serve the young lady, but not for pay."

I was obliged to stand a good deal of abuse from the elderly gentleman, in which his ward took no part. But I remained firm, told them that there was still nearly two hours remaining in which to find a substitute, and since the person was to be simply a dummy it didn't matter who he was, provided he was not already married. I also said that the one dollar paid me made the marriage a matter of bargain. There were reasons why a man who had been recommended as one to be relied on should be chosen. So after considerable discussion and a side conference between Mr. Marbury and the uncle it was decided to accept my conditions. Standing before the clergyman, Miss Townsend and I were made legal man and wife.

Miss Townsend was apparently well pleased with me so far as appearance goes and was decidedly prejudicted in my favor by my firmness in refusing to take any pay for the service I was doing her. When the ceremony was over I resolved upon a bold stroke.

"There is one reward," I said to her, "that I would accept for becoming your provisional husband if you can find it in your heart to grant it to me."

The uncle knit his brow, and my wife waited to hear more.

"I have taken upon myself," I said, "a condition that will doubtless prevent me from marrying a real wife for a long while to come, and few girls care to marry a divorced man. I have done this to assure to you a fortune. It seems to me that the reward I ask, though to me it will serve as a pleasant memory connected with this episode, will not be much for you to grant. I ask one kiss from my provisional bride."

Her uncle made a step forward to interfere. My wife stood for a moment irresolute, with her eyes fixed on the floor, then slowly turned her face toward me. The movement was all I asked for. I bent forward and barely touched her lips with mine.

I turned my eyes from my bride to Mr. Marbury and saw on his face an expression of satisfaction. Then for the first time it occurred to me that in his mind there had been something more than making me a mere legal husband and that he was well pleased with the manner in which I had acquitted myself. Without another word to any one, without a glance at my wife, I went out of the room and, seating myself at my desk, dived again into my law books.

A year passed, at the end of which I received a letter from my wife. It began "Dear Sir" and ended "Yours truly." It said that in the matter of our bargain marriage she had placed herself in the hands of others, since she knew nothing of law or the fulfillment of it, with a view to inheriting an estate. She was now in possession of her property and was of age. She intended to manage the rest of the matter connecting her with me herself. There was now nothing in the way of getting the divorce, and she would be pleased to see me with regard to the obtaining of a decree. Above all things, she desired to work in harmony with me, since she had been informed that the matter could be thus far more satisfactorily handled. From what little she had seen of me she felt assured that I was a gentleman and would not stand in her way in becoming a free woman.

However we define love, its beginning is indefinable. A man, fancy free, may propose to a girl who is fancy free on the ground that she is not displeasing to him and their marriage will be an advantage. If she is accepted his feelings will go out to her as naturally as the tendrils of a vine and hers will advance to meet them.

I attribute to this fact my coming to love the girl I had married, and I reasoned that if she had been at the time of our marriage and had remained fancy free it was quite possible that something more than an ordinary interest in me might have been growing up in her. But I realized that our parts were reversed. I must be courted; she must do the courting. Any indication that I hoped to make our marriage a real one would be fatal to hopes I might have of doing so.

I replied to her letter that she was at liberty to take any steps her lawyers might advise to secure a decree. All I asked was that I might be put to as little inconvenience as possible, for my time was taken up in preparing for my examination for admission to the bar. I did not refer to her suggestion for a meeting.

She replied that, considering the fact that she was under an obligation to me for a favor, she desired an opportunity of thanking me personally therefor and on no account would she take steps for the divorce without my approval of the plan to be adopted. To hit upon a plan to which I would give my willing assent would require an interview.

So I called to see her. One thing I noticed especially. She was dressed in a very becoming costume. Since I strained and weaken the system and if not checked may develop into pneumonia. No danger of this when Foley's Honey and Tar is taken promptly. It is a reliable family medicine for all coughs and colds, and acts quickly and effectively in cases of croup. Refuse substitutes. For sale by all druggists.

"Last spring my neighbor, Mr. H. E. Perry, plowed up 2 1/2 acres of run down grass land, and planted it to potatoes, applying 2 1/2 tons of Swift's Potato Fertilizer. 65 bushels of potatoes were produced; no other fertilizer or manure was used. Mr. Perry says that the total cost of raising this lot of potatoes, all labor, seed, &c., etc., was $200.00. These potatoes at present local market prices are worth not less than $200.00. Mr. Perry orders 5 tons of Swift's for use this coming season."

could not make myself look beautiful, whatever I might wear, I concluded to put on something besides clothes, something that finds great favor with women. I displayed all the deference I could assume.

She could not conceal from me the fact that I stood in the position of something more than a mere legal dummy. Nevertheless she tried to. She outlined several plans her lawyers had sketched out for her by which the divorce might be obtained, but I objected to all of them on the ground that they might reflect upon her. I insisted upon assuming all the obloquy myself. But when it came to pointing out exactly how I was to do this I failed. I knew enough law to suggest the different methods that might be used, but I had not been studying my profession for the purpose of enabling a woman to divorce me, especially one from whom I had no desire to be divorced. The consequence was that after a conference lasting two hours I left her without our having made any headway.

I had many conferences with my wife on the subject of our divorce without finding a satisfactory plan. At last one evening when we were debating the matter at the door, just before my departure, in a fit of absent-mindedness I kissed her. She must have been equally absent-minded, for she received the kiss as a matter of course, not stopping in what she was saying.

Suddenly it occurred to both of us that we had given and received a marital kiss.

That ended the talk about divorce. Since it was raining hard I concluded not to go home till the rain let up a bit. I never went home at all.

R. G. Davis has gone to Brooksville to work. Miss Eliza Ginn has gone to Orrington for an indefinite period. Mrs. Jennie Weymouth, of Houlton, visited her brothers, Herbert and Albert White, last week.

SALISBURY COVE.

All hearts go out in sympathy to H. K. Hamor and family in the great sorrow which has visited them. After several months of throat trouble, which caused tuberculosis, their daughter, Mrs. Charles C. Strout, died Feb. 2, at the home of her sister in Standish. Being in poor health Mrs. Strout came home to her parents last May, and since that time everything has been done to restore her to health that skilled specialists could do.

NORTH BROOKLIN.

Maria Pervear is employed at Erastus Candage's. The ice in Bluehill bay is creating havoc with the herring weirs, about all of them being swept away last week. The school in district 4, taught by Everett Hale, and in district 7, taught by Florentine Hamilton, closed Friday. Both teachers did efficient work, and were much liked.

SOUTH GOULDSBORO.

Mrs. Martha Finson, of Bar Harbor, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Sarah Sargent. Miss Minnie Sargent, of West Gouldsboro, was the guest of Miss Carrie Bickford last week. Mrs. Lenora Bunker, who recently fell on the ice and injured her wrist and hand, is able to use it some now. George Hanna and Lou Tracy, who are working in Gouldsboro, spent Saturday and Sunday with their families here.

WEST SULLIVAN.

Charles Hall, who has been in Surry several months, is home. A daughter was born to Erastus J. Candage and wife Saturday. Frank Hamilton has arrived in Joplin, Mo., from Galveston, Tex. A little out of the common was the valentine party here last Tuesday evening at the home of Edward Carter. The sixty-one neighbors and friends present had a delightful time.

SOUTH BROOKSVILLE.

C. C. Mason is ill. Ralph Roberts is working in the grocery store for W. F. Tapley. Archie Hutchison is quite ill at Charles Young's, Brooksville. Wallace Stevens, of West Brooksville, visited relatives here last week. Michele Petti, foreman for the granite company, is in New York on business. W. J. Carver and family, of Wisconsin, have moved into the W. S. Cousins house. The village schools, taught by Miss Grace Gray and Harry Chatto, closed last week. Warren Chatto and Elmer Orcutt are sawing wood in this vicinity with their gasoline engine. The steamer Catherine made her trip from here Thursday, but was unable to get in Saturday. Harry Chatto, who has been teaching the grammar school, has resumed his studies at Castine. Benjamin Sylvester and little daughter, of South Bluehill, were at Capt. J. E. Cousins' last week.

MANSET.

J. L. Stanley & Sons and W. H. Ward have finished harvesting their ice. The fishing vessel Nickerson, previously reported dismantled and towed here, is being fitted up with new spars, sails and rigging, and will soon be ready for spring fishing. Frank S. Doliver, who recently leased the fish stand of John Hopkins, plans to carry on an extensive fish business. He has just closed a deal with J. L. Stanley & Sons for a term of years for a right to receive and ship fish over their wharf, and will in the early spring connect the two wharves with a substantial wheel way. This will be of great advantage to Mr. Doliver in handling fish, as there is sufficient water at Mr. Stanley's wharf to admit large vessels at low tide.

LIBRARY ENTERTAINMENT.

Nearly 100 met at Center hall, the present home of the Corinne Stewart public library, on the evening of Feb. 14, as invited guests of the association, brought together to celebrate the sixty-eighth anniversary of the birth of Prof. William P. Stewart, who with his wife, Mrs. Mollie Wood Stewart, are the founders and donors of the library.

A program had been prepared which was listened to with flattering attention. Music was furnished by E. M. Cunningham, who brought his phonograph for the purpose. The program:

Music.....America Song

Address, by the president, who gave a sketch of Mr Stewart

Song

Reading of the Constitution.....Secretary

Statement of the financial standing of the association.....Treasurer

Music

Recitation.....Anna Collins

Song

Recitation.....Mabel Kane

Song

Reading, clippings, giving history and object of the association, and biographical sketch of Miss Corinne Arthur Stewart.....Edward M. Rich

Phonograph selections.....Edward M. Rich

Cake and coffee were served at the close of the program. After refreshments, the floor was cleared, and the younger folks enjoyed games.

Much credit is due to the ladies who responded so liberally to the call for cake, and to little Anna Collins and Mabel Kane who aided in the program.

The object of the entertainment was to get people who may be interested in the library together, and to instill into the minds of all the town people the fact that it is for the benefit of every person in all parts of the town.

The room is open to the public every Wednesday evening from 6.30 to 9.30, with the librarian in attendance, and all are cordially welcomed.

A Great Battle Painter

How He Got His Start

By GERALD L. PERKINS

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The battle of Gravelotte had been fought; a smoke mist still hung over the field, though in the gathering darkness it was gradually becoming imperceptible. A man carrying a portfolio and paraphernalia necessary to sketching left the field and, making his way to a hut on a hill overlooking the scene of the engagement that had occurred that day between the French and the Prussians, entered the hut and asked if he might have some paper.

"Certainly, monsieur," said a woman who was there, "but we can give you very little. The soldiers of both armies have taken all we have except a few bits that we hid in the cellar. Come, Fanchette, bestir yourself and set the table!"

The table was set and the supper put upon it. The stranger sat down, and Fanchette poured into his glass some of the cheap wine of the country. She was between seventeen and eighteen years old, a simple French maid who had no secrets from any one in the world.

"You wear a sad look, Fanchette," said the stranger. "Is it from seeing the slaughter today?"

"No, monsieur. I did not look that way."

"Well, then, tell me what troubles you."

"It is this, monsieur. Antoine Brison went out a long while ago and received a wound. He is lying now in the next room."

"He is your brother?"

"No, monsieur."

"Well, then, he is your lover?"

To this the only reply was eyes cast upon the floor.

"What was he doing out there—fighting?"

"No, monsieur; he has not yet become a conscript. He will not be the age for a month."

"Well, then, what business had he on a battlefield?"

"Sketching!"

"Sketching? That's what I was doing there. When I have finished my supper I will go in and see him."

The stranger chatted on with the girl and Antoine could not marry because she had no dot. After having supped and smoked a pipe the artist went into the room where Antoine was lying. The boy had received a flesh wound, but not of sufficient importance to endanger his life.

"So you were making sketches of the fight?" said the artist. "That is my business. I have been drawing for one of the Paris illustrated papers. Let me see what you have done."

Fanchette took an improvised portfolio that she had made for her lover of two pieces of pasteboard laced together with a string and brought it to the artist. There were blood stains on it, but he did not mind that. He had seen plenty of blood that day. He opened the portfolio, took out what there was in it—five or six sketches—and began to look them over.

"Where did you learn to sketch?" he asked the boy.

"I have never learned, monsieur," he replied.

"Never studied in an art school; never had any instruction?"

"No, monsieur."

The artist went on looking at the sketches one after the other and when he had seen them all looked at them again. Then he turned his eyes to the boy on the bed.

"Do you know, my boy, that my paper sent me here to make sketches of this battle? I have graduated at the art school with honors, and yet you who have never taken a lesson have done what I cannot do."

"What do you mean, monsieur?" asked the boy, his eyes opening very wide, while Fanchette was all attention.

"You are a born battle painter. You have put into these crude sketches an action that I have not been able to put in mine. And you have known what scenes to select. Your soldiers move; they fight; they are impelled by the demon of war; they die—really die, while mine—well, mine beside yours are like toy soldiers."

"Oh, monsieur," exclaimed Fanchette, clasping her hands, "how good you are to say that!"

"Good to say that! I'm not talking to please you. I'm telling you the truth. And, to prove what I say, if Antoine when he has recovered will come to Paris I am sure I can interest art lovers in him who will see that he receives instruction."

"Oh, monsieur," replied Fanchette, "how can he do that? He has no money. He would have to walk to Paris."

"Not at all. I will take these sketches with me. They will be used in one of the illustrated papers and will be well paid for. The money received for them I will send to Antoine."

The same night, having hired a conveyance, the artist set out posthaste for Paris. Antoine's sketches were produced and created a sensation. The money paid for them was sent him. He went to Paris, where owing to the interest created by his pictures he was taken up and educated by the paper that published them.

All this occurred forty years ago, and the great battle painter has flourished and passed away. His widow loves to tell how he got his start.

Quickly Cures Coughs, Colds and Catarrh

If you, dear reader, could spend an hour looking over a few of the thousand testimonials that we have in file, you would not go on suffering from catarrh, that disgusting disease that will surely sap your vitality and weaken your entire system if allowed to continue.

You would have just as much faith in HYOMEI as we have, and we have so much confidence in its wonderful curative virtue that it is sold the country over under a positive guarantee to cure catarrh, cough, sour throat, colds, or money back.

No stomach dosing when you breathe HYOMEI. Just pour a few drops of the liquid into the inhalant, and breathe it in.

It is mighty pleasant to use; it opens up those stuffed-up nostrils in two minutes, and makes your head feel as clear as a bell in a short time. Breathe HYOMEI and kill the catarrh germs. It's the only way to cure catarrh. It's the only way to get rid of that cons anti hawking, snuffling and spit ting.

A complete HYOMEI outfit, which includes a bottle of HYOMEI and a hard rubber pocket inhaler, costs $1.00 at G. A. Farber's and drugists everywhere. If you already own a Hyomei inhaler you can get an extra bottle of HYOMEI for 50 cents.

"We have used HYOMEI in our family for the cure and breaking up of coughs, colds, sore throat and catarrhal affections, and can say that it is a grand remedy worth its weight in gold." Mrs. John Cooper, South Wayne, Mich.

Begin Today to Get Well

The quickest, surest and safest way to relieve indigestion and constipation and to really enjoy life is to take an occasional dose of the true "L. F." Atwood's Medicine. It purifies the blood, aids digestion and tones up the whole system.

"The true 'L. F.' Atwood's Medicine has done me good service. I could not get along without it." MR. CECIL ROBERTSON.
