Mr. Cameron, whose home was in New York, arrived in Augusta Sunday for a visit. He disappeared the next day. He was seen in swimming by several persons, remaining in the water an hour or more. No one saw him leave the water, but the fact that he was partially dressed suggests that he did so. The rest of his clothing was found on the bank, with the exception of his vest, in which he carried his valuables. He was known to have considerable money with him. The disappearance of his vest is the fact that suggests foul play.

NEW FISHING LAWS.

Regulations Adopted by Fish and Game Commissioners.
The State fish and game commissioners, who held hearings in Franklin and Ellsworth recently on petitions for new fishing regulations on streams and ponds in this vicinity, have given notice of the following regulations:
Petition of S. S. Smith and sixteen others, residents of Egypt and vicinity, asking for a close time on fishing in Egypt stream, so-called, together with its tributaries known as the East and West branches, for a period of three years, was granted. The law will go into effect Aug. 15 next, and for the following three years it will be unlawful to fish on the waters named.
The same action was taken upon petition of H. C. Jordan and eighteen others of Ellsworth asking that all tributaries to Branch pond be closed to all fishing for five years. This law will go into effect Aug. 15.
On petition to close Molasses pond, in Eastbrook, to ice fishing, petitioners were given time to withdraw.

THE OLD HOME IN ELLSWORTH.
BY E. W. LORB.
[Tune: The Old Oaken Bucket.]

There's many a spot where the sun shines in glory,
O'er many a valley the skies, brightly bend,
In many an island their languorous story
The winds, softly breathing, repeat without end.
The wide-spreading ocean, in majesty speaking,
'Gains many a coast dashes white with its foam;
But all through the world, though for aye we are seeking,
There's never a spot quite so dear as old home.

The old home in Ellsworth, the home of our childhood,
There's never a spot quite so dear as old home.
And oft, from afar, do thy sons and thy daughters
Those hills and green dales in fond fancy recall,
The rocks in the pastures, the life-giving waters,
The pines of the forests, majestic and tall,
And every true heart knows the field that lies nearest,
That first comes to mind when in memory we roam;
Of all the wide world 'tis the fairest and dearest;
There's never a spot quite so dear as old home.

The old home in Ellsworth, the home of our childhood,
There's never a spot quite so dear as old home.
The streets, nobly shaded, our thoughts are recalling,
The mills and the wharves where the old coopers lay,
The river, long winding, and rising and falling,
That bore our gay parties on trips down the bay.
We see the tall spires, of Heaven reminding,
The schoolhouse in which we were guided to truth,
And, clearest of all, though with tears our eyes blinding,
To mind once again comes the home of our youth.

This is Old Home week in Ellsworth. The good old city has decked herself out bravely with bunting and flags and electric lights in honor of the home-coming boys and girls; she makes a lively bluster with music and fakirs and parades and dances and plays to amuse them, but beneath all this show and bluster is a deeper meaning—the Old Home love.
The observance of Old Home week has brought together within the compass of these few days many former residents of Ellsworth, some of them annual visitors, but whose visits are so scattered through the summer that they seldom meet each other, while others are here who have not seen the old home and old home friends for many years. The real spirit of Old Home week is reflected in the warm hand-clasp, the tear, perhaps, as some old friends meet, or the jolly laugh at old reminiscences.
It is right, too, that gaiety should be mingled with all this. It is the vacation time. These "boys" and "girls" of Ellsworth are home for a rest from worries of work; they are here for a good time at the old home, with which they will always associate the happiest periods of their lives. So Ellsworth has mixed gaiety with her old home love for her boys and girls, and invites her neighbors of the surrounding towns to make merry with her.

The early days of the week saw the more formal, more dignified, the more sentimental observances of the week, with the two religious services on Sunday and the Old Home Week exercises on Tuesday. Now, for the rest of the week,

At times the ache changed to sharp twinges, especially acute when I made any sudden movement, and for awhile after getting up from a chair I was obliged to go about in a stooped position. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at Moore's Drug Store, and the second night after beginning their use, I slept soundly, something that I had been unable to do for several months. The use of two more boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills made a complete cure, and I have had no return attack of the trouble. I do not believe there is another kidney remedy on the market to-day of such great worth as Doan's Kidney Pills."
