The next attraction at Hancock hall is announced for next Monday evening, Oct. 2—Joseph M. Weber's play, "The Climax." This play is said to be well worth seeing.

Arthur Parcher and Robert King have returned to Bowdoin college. Clarence Tapley, who attended Colby college last year, has entered Bowdoin as a sophomore this fall.

Walter Thomas and wife, of Boston, have been guests of Clifton Woodward and wife the past week. They spent a few days at camp Porcupine, Green lake, where Mr. Thomas enjoyed some fine duck shooting.

The engagement is announced of Addie L. Richardson and Herbert E. Street, both of this city. The marriage will take place Wednesday, Oct. 4, at the home of the bride's parents, Daniel Richardson and wife, North Ellsworth.

Mrs. Carolyn F. Jelly, who has been in this city since June, the guest of Mrs. H. W. Dunn, returned to her home in Wakefield, Mass., Monday. She was accompanied by Mrs. Dunn, who will visit relatives and friends in Massachusetts for a week.

Patrick E. Kearns has moved his grocery store from the Odd Fellows block to the store in the Phillips block on Main street, recently vacated by Capt. George W. Alley. Mr. Kearns has added meats to his stock in trade. He will also run a delivery wagon.

Announcements have been received in Ellsworth of the marriage of Herman Scott Austin, son of Mrs. Clifford G. Royal, of Ellsworth, and Miss Meda Russell, which took place at Milo, Saturday, Sept. 22. The groom is now employed as foreman in the office of the Fort Fairfield Review. Ellsworth friends extend congratulations.

Roy C. Haines and Harry E. Rowe, from the Ellsworth Merchants' association, and Frank B. Lord and Edward E. Brady, from the Ellsworth board of trade, attended the meeting of the State board of trade in Portland last week. An invitation from the Merchants' association for the State board of trade to hold its next March meeting in Ellsworth, was referred to the executive committee.

W. F. Chute, of Holden, has leased the hoop-pole factory of H. B. Phillips, in this city, and is carrying on an extensive hoop-pole industry. He has bought stumps of Roscoe Holmes, on the Bucksport road, and has a crew cutting poles, which are hauled to Ellsworth and sawed at the factory on Church street. He expects to keep the factory running and a crew in the woods all winter.

At the Methodist church Sunday Mr. Kizer will speak. In the morning the subject is: "The Tyranny of the First Impulse." Evening topic: "Are There any Great Men Living To-day?" The public is invited to all these services. The announcement of which side won in the Sunday school contest will be made at the Sunday school hour; also the evening of the banquet to be given the winning side.

Director-in-Chief W. R. Chapman, of the Maine music festival, visited the Ellsworth chorus yesterday afternoon, and put in two hours of hard rehearsing. The outlook for a brilliant festival is very bright, and Mr. Chapman was very enthusiastic over it. While it cannot yet be positively stated, there is every probability that a special train will be run from Bangor through to Calais as the concert on Saturday night, Oct. 14. Mr. Chapman went from here to Bangor, where he conducted last evening.

NORTH ELLSWORTH FAIR.

Opened To-day and Will Continue Through To-morrow.

The annual cattle show and agricultural fair of the North Ellsworth Farmers' club opened this morning, and will continue through to-morrow, closing to-morrow evening with a dance.

There is an excellent exhibition of produce this year. North Ellsworth farmers have adopted modern methods of farming and orcharding the past few years, and the result is shown each year in the improved quality of produce exhibited at the fair.

To-morrow will be the big day of the fair. The racing program includes the 2.30 class, purse, $125; free-for-all, purse, $100; and slow and pug races with prizes of $2 to first, $1 to second and 50 cents to third in each race.

There will also be horse-drawing contests for single and double teams to-morrow forenoon. Prizes, double teams, $3 and $2; single teams, $2 and $1.

AMHERST FAIR.

Opening Postponed Until To-day—Will Continue Thursday.

The opening of the fair of the Northern Hancock Agricultural society at Amherst, scheduled for yesterday, was postponed on account of the rain in the forenoon until to-day. The fair will continue Thursday.

The Ellsworth Falls band, which is furnishing music at the fair, got away from Ellsworth yesterday forenoon before the word of postponement was received. With the band boys, fair attractions and many fair visitors in town, a good time was enjoyed yesterday, in spite of the fact that the fair was officially postponed.

To-morrow, with good weather, will be the big day of the fair, and the usual good up-river time is assured to all who attend.

ELLSWORTH FALLS.

William West and wife and Mrs. Harriet Hastings spent Sunday at Bar Harbor.

Richard Smith and family, of Bangor, are here for Mr. Smith's vacation of two weeks.

Miss Nellie Abbott, of Hancock, was the guest of Miss Alice Clough several days last week.

A. W. Smith went to Amherst Sunday to spend the week with his father, Charles M. Smith.

Robert Gerry, who has been here several weeks, left last week on his return home to Seattle.

Ira B. Hagan came home Friday from Unionville, where he has been for ten days surveying for the Maine Central.

Miss Phyllis McCarty has returned from Calais, where she has been through the summer with her aunt, Mrs. P. B. Day.

W. M. Davis and wife are spending Mr. Davis' two weeks' vacation in Amherst, guests of Mrs. Davis' parents, E. E. Giles and wife.

Miss Rita Johnston and Lawrence Johnston, of Bar Harbor, were here Friday night on their way to Amherst for a week's visit.

Daily day services were observed Sunday morning and evening. Rev. Mr. Guptill preached an inspiring sermon at the morning service and there was special music. The Sunday school following was largely attended, 114 being present. The Sunday school presented the program at the evening service to a large audience. There was special music by the school.

SEMINARY PROJECT

ENDORSED BY LARGE MASS MEETING MONDAY.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED AND JOINT COMMITTEE APPOINTED—NOW WORKING ON PROPOSITION.

The project for the removal here from Bucksport of the East Maine Conference seminary received the emphatic endorsement of the citizens of Ellsworth at a mass meeting at Hancock hall Monday evening. The meeting was well attended, in spite of the rain.

The meeting was called to order by Roy C. Haines, secretary of the Merchants' association committee having the seminary proposition in hand. John A. Peters was chosen chairman of the meeting and J. A. Cunningham secretary.

W. A. Alexander, chairman of the Merchants' association committee, briefly outlined the project as printed last week in THE AMERICAN.

Rev. Edwin D. Kizer was called upon, and went more fully into details, speaking especially of the advantage such an institution would be to the community morally, intellectually and financially.

Mayor Leland spoke for the city government, stating its desire to further the project in every way possible.

W. H. Titus, chairman of the school board, spoke of the financial saving to the city and of the educational advantages which would result from a tuition arrangement with the seminary if located here and the discontinuance of the high school.

Rev. P. A. A. Killam spoke enthusiastically in favor of the project, especially the benefits the city would receive in an educational way.

C. L. Morang spoke from the merchant's standpoint, saying that he believed the proposition one of the best presented to the city for years. He spoke especially of the advantages to Ellsworth and surrounding towns from the agricultural department which the seminary proposed to add.

Harry E. Rowe spoke for the executive committee of the Ellsworth high school alumni association, which heartily approved of the location here of the seminary and the discontinuance of the high school. He also spoke of the importance of the agricultural department of the seminary.

Harry L. Crabtree spoke of the financial end of the proposition, suggesting a method by which the city, he thought, might raise money to help bring the seminary here.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Mr. Crabtree then introduced the following, which received unanimous passage:

Whereas, The citizens of Ellsworth, as a representative body, being assembled in a public mass meeting at Hancock hall, this 25th day of September, 1911, be it

Resolved, That the citizens of Ellsworth, representing every branch and department of our city life, do hereby enthusiastically approve and endorse the proposed establishment of the Eastern Maine Conference seminary in the city of Ellsworth, and be it further

Resolved, That we, as residents of the city of Ellsworth, hereby pledge our everlasting support to this proposition and shall forever proclaim to the outside public our pride and interest in the development of this seminary, when established, honestly believing that the city of Ellsworth is an ideal location for such a school and that the establishment of the seminary here will enable the institution to develop materially, and to which end we shall use our united efforts to attain; and

Whereas, Believing that it is for the best interests of the city of Ellsworth that the school be established herein and that it is the sense of this meeting that the city government and the school board take such action as may be necessary to endorse the project and arrange for the instruction of the pupils of the Ellsworth high school at said seminary, be it

Resolved, That it be the sense of this meeting that said city government and school board be asked to perfect such action whenever an arrangement shall be reached for the establishment of the Eastern Maine Conference seminary in the city of Ellsworth, and be it further

Resolved, That it be the sense of this public mass meeting that the atmosphere and sentiment of our citizens strongly favor and will royally welcome the establishment of this school in the city of Ellsworth, and moreover be it

Resolved, That these resolutions be presented freely and with all sincerity, pledging now and forever our support, allegiance and sympathy to the Eastern Maine Conference seminary, whenever it shall have been established in the city of Ellsworth.

JOINT COMMITTEE.

Mr. Killam suggested the appointment of a committee of three citizens to act in conjunction with the Merchants' association committee, the city government and school board in drawing up a proposition to be submitted to the seminary trustees. He nominated as such citizens' committee, Hon. John A. Peters, Col. H. E. Hamlin and Dr. J. T. McDonald. This makes a joint committee of seventeen, as follows:

John A. Peters, H. E. Hamlin, Dr. J. T. McDonald, citizens' committee; W. A. Alexander, Roy C. Haines, H. B. Estey, E. F. Robinson, jr., W. E. Whiting, Merchants' association committee; Mayor Charles H. Leland, Aldermen George P. Smith, John P. Eldridge, J. A. Austin, Alvin E. Maddocks, Edward F. Brady, city committee; W. H. Titus, E. K. Hopkins, E. J. Walsh, school board.

This committee is now at work on the proposition.

SCHOOL BOARD FAVORS PROJECT.

At the regular meeting of the school board yesterday afternoon, the following received unanimous passage:

Whereas, There is a possibility that the East Maine Conference seminary may be located in Ellsworth, and

Whereas, It is the sense of this board that, in case of the location here of said seminary, the discontinuance of our high school and a tuition arrangement with the seminary for our high school pupils would afford greater educational advantages to our secondary pupils and at less expense to the city than the cost of maintaining the high school as at present, and

Whereas, At a mass meeting of the citizens of Ellsworth held Monday evening, Sept. 25, 1911, it was recommended to the school board to "take such action necessary to endorse the project and arrange for instruction of the pupils of the Ellsworth high school as such seminary",

Resolved, That we authorize the committee having the matter in hand to express to the seminary committee on permanent location reorganization, scope, buildings and equipment, the willingness of this board, if the seminary is located here, to enter into an agreement with the seminary trustees for the tuition of secondary school pupils of Ellsworth on a basis of $30 a year for each pupil.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 1, 1911.

Topic.—Lessons from great lives.—X. Peter.—John xxi. 1-13 (Consecration meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Simon Peter, one of the leading apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, was the son of a man named Jonas, a fisherman by occupation, and the son was brought up in the same business. His partners in the fishing trade were his brother Andrew and James and John. All four seem to have been men of means and standing, and their association was not limited to their business partnership. They were partners also in the search for truth, and later on in their devoted service of Christ and as fishers of men, Andrew led his brother Simon to Christ, and the world has seldom seen a better illustration of the tremendous consequences that may follow the bringing of a single soul to Christ.

Called to be an apostle when he was probably between thirty and forty years of age, he served his Master with manifestations of alternating strength and weakness until Pentecost, after which his zeal was unending and his courage unassailable. Peter died as a martyr to his faith. The circumstances surrounding his martyrdom are unknown. Tradition tells us that he died about A. D. 67 or 68, at the time of the persecutions of Nero. He was crucified, and Origen says, with his head downward at his own request, because he felt himself unworthy to be put to death in the same manner as his Master. What devotion and love and yet how characteristic of the great apostle, whose life should be both a warning and an inspiration to all disciples of Christ.

The incident selected for our special study gives us a threefold view of the apostle, which may direct us in our review of his life and character.

I. The leading characteristics of the apostle himself are set forth. 1. Peter, as no other apostle was the representative of them all. His name comes first in the list of the apostles here given and undoubtedly Christ gave to him first place as related to the others. He was their spokesman and Christ accepted him as such. 2. Peter was the natural leader among the twelve. Peter decided. Peter led the way and the others followed, and throughout the early history of the church he was its greatest leader. 3. Peter represents Christian activity. When Jesus appeared John recognized him first, but it was Peter who first cast himself into the sea to go to Christ. In the race between Peter and John to the tomb of Christ, John outran his older companion, but he stood without, and it was Peter who first entered the tomb. Peter was always zealous and aggressive, and his example should stir us to Christian zeal.

II. Peter and John. In this incident we have a most complete picture of the companionship that existed between Peter and John. How each supplemented the character of the other is seen at the appearance of Christ and Peter's anxious inquiry, "Lord, what shall this man do?" shows his deep interest in the future welfare and work of John. The friendship begun in early life continued, and the history of the church contains no more beautiful illustration of companionship and co-operation in the service of Christ than is to be seen in the relationship that existed between Peter and John.

III. Peter and Christ. The devoted love of Simon Peter for his blessed Lord and Master is nowhere more abundantly manifested than in this post resurrection scene. His thrice repeated avowals of love, and the last with that characteristic abandonment to impulsiveness when he said, "Lord, thou knowest all things: thou knowest that I love Thee," will ever stand as a testimony of the attitude of his heart and mind toward Christ. On the other hand, Christ's forgiveness of Peter and the recommitment of him as an apostle prove the stability of His love for His wayward yet repentant disciple and His appreciation of his true character and worth. Moreover, in this attitude of Christ toward Peter we see the Master's attitude toward all men.

Simon Peter was above all things a true man. He was bold, courageous, impulsive, yet loving and tender even to tears. His Christian manliness should fire the imagination of every young disciple of Christ, and inspire in all a desire to emulate it in the true spirit of Christ.

IV. Peter and the world. Simon Peter was above all things a true man. He was bold, courageous, impulsive, yet loving and tender even to tears. His Christian manliness should fire the imagination of every young disciple of Christ, and inspire in all a desire to emulate it in the true spirit of Christ.

Simon Peter was above all things a true man. He was bold, courageous, impulsive, yet loving and tender even to tears. His Christian manliness should fire the imagination of every young disciple of Christ, and inspire in all a desire to emulate it in the true spirit of Christ.

Simon Peter was above all things a true man. He was bold, courageous, impulsive, yet loving and tender even to tears. His Christian manliness should fire the imagination of every young disciple of Christ, and inspire in all a desire to emulate it in the true spirit of Christ.

Mutual Benefit Column.

EDITED BY "AUNT MADGE."

Its Motto: "Helpful and Hopeful."

The purposes of this column are succinctly stated in the title and motto—it is for the mutual benefit, and aims to be helpful and hopeful. Being for the common good, it is for the common use—a public servant, a purveyor of information and suggestion, a medium for the interchange of ideas. In this capacity it solicits communications, and its success depends largely on the support given it in this respect. Communications must be signed, but the name of writer will not be printed except by permission. Communications will be subject to approval or rejection by the editor of the column, but none will be rejected without good reason. Address all communications to THE AMERICAN, Ellsworth, Me.

THE RIGHT WILL TRIUMPH.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox. However the battle is ended, Though proudly the victor comes, With fluttering flags and prancing snags, And echoing roll of drums, Still truth proclaims this motto: In letters of living light: No question is ever settled Until it is settled right. Though the heel of the strong oppressor May grind the weak in the dust, And the voices of fame with one acclaim May call him great and just, Let those who applaud take warning: And keep this motto in sight: No question is ever settled Until it is settled right. Let those who have failed, take courage, 'Tho' his enemy seems to have won, Tho' his ranks are straggling, if he be in the wrong, The battle is not yet done, For sure as the morning follows The darkest hour of the night, No question is ever settled Until it is settled right. Oh, man bowed down with labor! Oh, woman, young, yet old! Oh, heart oppressed in toiler's breast, And crushed by the power of gold! Keep on with your weary battle Against triumphant might: No question is ever settled Until it is settled right.

Dear Aunt Madge:

I am sending you a poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, which seemed to be just what we need in this time of uncertainty and doubt. Wish I could be with you at the reunion, but as that is out of the question, I will do the next best and send my love to Aunt Madge and all her nieces. Lovingly yours, ELMA.

Dear M. B. Friends:

The above was not received until after our reunion, and not in season for the column which contained the report of it, but we are grateful for the good wishes to us all, and surely the poem, Elma, is as appropriate now while the "returns" are "swinging in the balance", as at any previous time. We wish we could have had you with us at the reunion. I said there, "Oh, if we could only have all the M. B.'s together once. "But each year some who have not attended before come in with us; this year "Mo!" and "Aunt Mary the 1st," were gladly welcomed and some new faces are happily placed in my memory gallery."

We are all hoping to hear a favorable report from our hostess, Dell, who went to Portland Sept. 20 for treatment in a hospital.

Dear Friends:

Will the ladies of the M. B. column kindly sit a little closer to make room for a stranger? Possibly some of the aforementioned ladies will elevate their brows in token of disapproval, while some may be moved to inquire the reason for this intrusion, so I will apologize by saying I am here at the request of a lady who is an interested reader of the M. B. column and has asked me to contribute my recipe for SALAD DRESSING.—One-half cup vinegar, one-half cup water, 2 level tablespoons sugar, four drops butter and one of four level teaspoonsful of mustard and four of salt, two eggs. Cook in double boiler or in bowl placed in hot water till it thickens. (do not cook too long). When cold thin to the desired consistency with sweet cream. If the cream is not available, omit one teaspoonful of salt and add an extra spoonful of butter and one-third cup more water. This makes a larger quantity than the average family would require at one time, but the quantity may be divided, though it will keep several days if the cream is omitted and added when used. LINA.

The writer of this is not a stranger to Aunt Madge, and as she is a capable and efficient housewife, we hope she will write us again and furnish other of her useful recipes.

Dear Aunt Madge:

Here is a recipe for APPLE CUSTARD PIE.—One cup stewed apple, one cup sugar, one tablespoon melted butter, three eggs (reserve the whites of two for frosting), and one teaspoon extract of lemon. Two eggs answer nicely when eggs are scarce. I will send another one of cake that is very easy to make: One cup of sugar, two cups of flour, two heaping teaspoons baking powder. Put in sieve and sift together, then add six tablespoons butter, break one egg in a cup, with out beating, fill the cup with cold water, then stir, not beat, all together until smooth, and flavor with lemon.

The first of the reunionist to be heard from. We are glad you reached home in safety. Thanks for recipes.

Dear Aunt Madge:

How I enjoyed the fortunate individuals who gathered last week to enjoy a "feast of reason and flow of soul" in Dell's pleasant home in Surry! Not that I in the least imagined that the feast was entirely composed of "reason," for I'm quite sure something far more satisfying to the stomach would be needed after the ride over the hills in the bracing autumn air, and sure to be forthcoming.

I thought probably those present wouldn't get back to common, every-day things for some time, so I would write a few lines to chink in the column in the absence of their literary inspiration which I hope to enjoy later. In other words, I wanted to send the recipes for tomato mince-meat before the tomatoes were all used some other way, for it is very good. I don't know but I sent it last year, and have the impression someone else sent a similar one, but no matter—there are always some who lose their paper and always new readers.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY REMEDY (Liquid) Is a great medicine of proven value for both acute and chronic kidney and bladder ailments. It is especially recommended to elderly people for its wonderful tonic and constructive qualities, and the permanent relief and comfort it gives them. Sold by all druggists.

For bowel complaints in children always give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil. It is certain to effect a cure, and when reduced with water and sweetened, is pleasant to take. No physician can prescribe a better remedy. For sale by all dealers.

TOMATO MINCE MEAT.—Four quarts green tomatoes chopped and drained, then cover with water, cook one-half hour and drain. Add two pounds brown sugar (or if white is used a little molasses) and one pound seeded raisins, one cup chopped suet, one tablespoon salt, one cup vinegar, and cook till about the usual consistency of mince meat. When cool, add one teaspoon casing, one of cloves and one tablespoon of nutmeg.

As I always like to put my mince meat into the jars in which it is to be kept while hot, I disregarded the last injunction about cooling before adding spice, and think it just as well. Sometimes I am going to try the recipe using apple instead of tomato. I believe it would be good, not perhaps cooking it quite as long. ESTHER.

Oh! that you had indeed been there! Make a desperate effort to attend the next one.

The following poem was passed to me by Aunt Mary at the reunion, and she hoped it would prove a help and comfort to others as it had to herself.

Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee.—Psalms, 55:22.

Child of My love, learn here, And let Me feel the pressure of thy care, I know thy burden, child, I shaped it; Poised it in Mine own hand; made no proportion

In its weight to thine unaided strength. For even as I laid it on, I said: "I shall be near, and while she leans on Me, This burden shall be Mine, not hers. So shall I keep My child within the circling arms

Of My own love." Here lay it down, nor fear To impose it on a shoulder which upholds The government of worlds. Yet closer come; Thou art not near enough. I would embrace thy care

So I might feel My child reposing on My breast. Thou lovest Me! I knew it. Doubt not then, But, loving Me, lean hard.

Crumpled newspapers pushed up the flues of unused chimneys keep out flies that would enter there.

Be sure to keep a pair of old scissors in the kitchen for the purpose of cutting raisins, lettuce, celery, etc.

Skim the fat off the chicken broth and use it to shorten biscuits. These are much more delicious than when you use lard.

At the altar: "I, thee, with all my worldly goods endow." Two years later: "More money? Where's the dollar I gave you last week?"

A bank lately received the following note from a lady: "Please stop payment on the check I wrote to-day, as I accidentally burned it up."

Save all your coffee grounds; rinse them and use them to stuff pincushions. They will hold shape indefinitely and the pins push in easily.

If a tablespoonful of sweet milk is added to each yolk of egg when making custards, the mixture will not curdle when added to the boiling milk.

When cake icing is too hard so that you can not spread it on, add a little water, a drop at a time. When it is too thin, add sufficient powered sugar, first rubbing out the lumps.

When paring vegetables, especially the humble tuber and odoriferous onion, slip over the forefinger of the right hand a kid finger cut from an old glove. It will save the hand from an unsightly stain.

By inspecting the canned fruit occasionally, the housewife will be able to save any that has begun to spoil, by carefully removing that which is tainted and cooking the rest over, recanning it as in the start.

Use worn-out white stockings for wash rags. Cut away the foot. Fold the top double and hem or overcast the edges. The edges may be bound, and a strap fastened across the centre to slip the hand through.

To cook eggplant, cut into slices half an inch thick and let them lie for an hour in salted water to remove that bitter taste. To fry, put the slices in the frying-pan with a small quantity of butter; turn when one side is done.

Have you tried baking eggs? Grease a baking-dish with butter, break the eggs into it, cover with cream. Add salt, pepper, and a tablespoonful of butter. Set it in a moderate oven a few minutes. Length of time depends on whether you like them soft or well-done.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. SADIE MULLEN, 2728 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

Among the Grangers.

This column is devoted to the Grange, especially to the granges of Hancock county. The column is open to all grangers for the discussion of topics of general interest, and for reports of grange meetings. Make letters short and concise. All communications must be signed, but names will not be printed except by permission of the writer. All communications will be subject to approval by the editor, but none will be rejected without good reason.

DATES.

Saturday, Oct. 7.—Meeting of Hancock Pomona grange with Penobscot grange.

HANCOCK POMONA, 13.

An interesting meeting of this Pomona was held Saturday, Sept. 23, with Alamoosook grange, East Orland. The address of welcome was by Millie Snow, and response by Marcia Blood. The topic, "Resolved, that there is more profit in poultry farming than in stock farming," was opened by Howard Smith, followed by Sister Robinson, Bros. Wilson Richardson, Colby, William M. Gross and Bro. Cummings, of East Eddington. This brought out many interesting points, but there seemed to be a diversity of opinion as to which was the more profitable, the hen or the cow.

After partaking of a dinner which will long be remembered for its quality and quantity, the grange conferred the degree of Pomona upon a class of seventeen.

Next came the topic, "The effect on the cause of temperance of recent legislation." This was opened by Worthy Chaplain J. B. Wilson. He was followed by Bros. Lewis Blood, W. M. Gross, Charles Snow, Bro. Cummings, Henry Snow and others. Each speaker had a good understanding of the question, and consequently this was of much interest coming as it did at this particular time.

The program of the host grange consisted of an essay by Grace Gibbs; music, Bro. Arnold and Marion Gibbs; recitation, Sister Colby, who responded to an enthusiastic encore; essay, Dora Dunbar; duet, Bro. W. O. Allen and Sister Dunbar, who also responded to an encore.

A vote of thanks was given to the host grange for the entertainment received. There were about 125 present.

At the next meeting of this Pomona, which will be held with Penobscot grange Saturday, Oct. 7, the annual election of officers will take place. It is hoped there will be a good attendance, as this is the most important meeting of the year.

HIGHLAND, 304, NORTH PENOBSCOT.

Highland grange is making arrangements for its eighth annual cattle show and fair, to be held at North Penobscot Wednesday, Oct. 4; if stormy next pleasant day.

There was a small attendance present at the regular meeting Friday evening, Sept. 15. It is hoped there will be a large attendance Sept. 22, when further arrangements may be made for the fair.

SEDGWICK, 244.

On Sept. 22 Sedgwick grange held a regular meeting, the first since Aug. 4. The grange was called to order by the worthy overseer, and Past Master Rollo Closson filled the chair. Members present, sixteen; two visitors from Massapaqua grange. One application was received. It was voted to reimburse the hall another year. Sisters Beulah Allen, Ella Thurston and Sadie Allen were appointed to write resolutions on the death of Sister Blanche Staples. Owing to the absence of the lecturer, there was no program.

MASSAPAQUA, 477, SOUTH BLUEHILL.

Massapaqua grange will hold its annual fair and harvest supper, Tuesday evening, Oct. 3. Supper will be served from 6 o'clock until 8.

PENOBSCOT, 240.

Penobscot grange held a regular meeting Sept. 22, with fifty-two present, including eleven visitors. The third and fourth degrees were conferred upon three candidates, after which a fine program was presented, consisting of readings and quotations upon temperance. Plans are being made for the entertainment of Pomona grange Oct. 7.

SEAGIRT, 471, SOUTH DEER ISLE.

Seagirt grange is again holding regular meetings, beginning with Sept. 23. The attendance was not large, but it is hoped it will increase, as there is good prospect of new members coming in a little later. A short program was carried out, consisting of readings by Bros. C. M. Pert, Anthony Bye and Harold Carman, Sisters Kate Stanley and Celeste Hendrick. The question of having a hallowe'en sociable was discussed.

SCHOODIC, 420, FRANKLIN.

Schoodic grange, No. 420, held its regular meeting Thursday evening, Sept. 21, with twenty-six members, and fourteen visitors from Greenwood grange. The next regular meeting will be Oct. 5. There will be a harvest supper.

NEW CENTURY, 356, DEBHAM.

No meeting of New Century grange was held Sept. 9 because of rain. Sept. 23 it held a session, with small attendance. A few matters of business were transacted, and a short literary program was rendered. There were readings by Eva Gray, Mary Burrill and E. W. Burrill; singing by quartet and remarks by Gerald Thompson, Hazel Cowing, E. W. Burrill, J. F. Cowling and G. W. Brewster. A harvest supper, with a special program, will be enjoyed Oct. 28.

A little girl living in Vassar street, East Cleveland, had for a long time prayed for a baby sister. In the course of time her prayers were answered. And when she was taken in to look at the little mite of humanity, it was plain to be seen that she was disappointed. It was awfully little, this new baby, awfully wrinkled and terribly red. "You don't like her, do you?" asked the nurse. "I do, too, like her," asserted the girl stoutly. She—she's my favorite shade."

BEAUTIES OF MAINE

OCEAN, MOUNTAIN AND LAKE SCENERY.

DOMINANT FACTOR IN DEVELOPMENT OF STATE AS SUMMER RESORT.

[From the Lewiston Journal.]

Among innumerable beautiful creations from the pen of the immortal Robert Louis Stevenson, none is sweeter than his "Will o' the Mill", the story of the man who in faith awaits the world's tribute of truth and beauty and love, by his own garden gate, even though this be in one of the most secluded nooks of this green old earth. And perhaps it may not be far-fetched to liken Maine, among all her sister states, to this "Will o' the Mill", for in the fulness of years the world is bringing its tribute to this Pine Tree State as if it were not the northeast "jumping-off-place" in Uncle Sam's rich domain. And this tribute to which we have reference is the host of travel which finds its way within the borders of this surpassingly beautiful, coast-bound and lake-jeweled State from earliest spring to the first snow fall.

For all New England there are three flashing diadems in her crown; the towering peaks of the White mountains, loftiest of the Appalachian coast chain; the matchless stretch of sea-coast from Kittery to Quoddy Head; and the lakes that lend their charm to every city and town from Umbagog to Grand lake, and Sebago to Eagle Lake in northern Aroostook. Maine outclasses every other New England state, not only on the last two scores, but for expanse of territory, a large portion of which remains to be made easily accessible to the general public by the forthcoming extension of the Bangor & Aroostook railway through the north-western area.

But even in mid-State are undeveloped resources in scenic attractions, which in a few years will net property-holders rich returns. Here and there, by lake, shore and river and mountain height, the summer cottage is lifting its head among the pines and spruce; the whirr of the auto is heard along winding roads of rural loveliness; the chink, chink of the dime and dollar rattle a profitable song in the Yankee's pockets; old, deserted Maine farms are reclaimed for city folks' use; neglected sites are restored to sociability; the church lifts her voice again in praise to the music of rich men's organs and visitors' choirs, and the world surrenders its best at the feet of Maine.

"Grand are New Hampshire's hills and dales, Her snow-capped peaks and flowery vales, But not less fair the winding ways Of Casco and Penobscot bays; They seek for happier shores in vain, Who leave the summer isles of Maine."

VARIED SCENERY OF MAINE.

More famous but not more beautiful are the Scottish lakes and highlands, if the word of foreign tourists is to be believed. For Maine has neither the history, covering many centuries, nor the traditions, rehearsed through many generations, which belong to the glens and corries of the ancient home of the Celtic people. Maine is too young and the old folk tales grow slowly by chimney fires, and castles and Druid altars are not the heritage of this nation.

Nevertheless, by aid of art and science and the "almighty dollar", are the beauties of the Old Pine Tree State being exploited, for there are the brush and the camera to tell their tales in sepia and in color, and all the wealth of pen and type to speed Maine's delights before the nations of the world.

For the Maine coast, Homer has painted an immortal story. Pity it is that the Scarborough sands know him no more; that the rugged sea-folk have lost their friend and interpreter; that the spirit of the deep has claimed his own. But his legacy, wherever hang his canvases, is Maine's inalienable heritage, a wealth that only the centuries can fade.

And for the violet hills that fringe the western border and halo New Hampshire's mountain glory, Newman still plies the brush in the verdant intervals of Fryeburg and is prophet and seer of Maine in her winter vestures as well as in her summer largesse. Lesser wielders of oil and water colors are there to proclaim in universal language of tint and shade all that Maine is in scenic beauty—a myriad host together with those whose cameras and pens echo the old, old story. Science pays her toll in the perfection of modern methods for illustrating, which make possible works of art in folder and pamphlet.

Hardly a fishing retreat but lures its guests from Atlantic to Pacific with scenic descriptions and photographic reproductions that only half—at best—reveal the beauties that await the visitor.

Moreover, the Maine farmer has been alert to catch the enthusiasm of his summer guest, has been quick to note the significance of that enthusiasm, and has worked that enthusiasm for all it was worth in clean-cut business relations. Time was when Maine's rural communities slumbered, like bears in their winter dens, wholly oblivious to the wealth that lay at their door in the attractions of shore and lake and river and mountain. To-day Maine is developing these resources with a startling rapidity, considering that the transformation has come largely with the arrival of the automobile in the last decade.

A Great Advantage to Working Men
J. A. Maple, 125 B. 7th St., Steubenville, O., says: "For years I suffered from weak kidneys and a severe bladder trouble. I learned of Foley's Kidney Pills and their wonderful cures, so I began taking them, and sure enough I had as good results as any I heard about. My backache left me, and to one of my business, expressman, that alone is a great advantage. My kidneys acted fine and normal, and that saved me a lot of misery. It is now a pleasure to work where it used to be a misery. Foley's Kidney Pills have cured me and have my highest praise." Sold by all druggists.

wealth of Wall street forgets big business among the rocks and billows of the little green isle by the mouth of the Penobscot, or at Dark Harbor (another Maine "Newport"), or along the York coast line, where the roar of the surf falls to oblivion winter worries such as fret even the moneyed folk.

Down among the Old Orchard sands the wealthy French of Montreal and the provinces and the gold-burdened Hebrews of New York find a welcome that has been almost exclusively theirs of late and without question.

Up-country, the anglers in spring and the hunters in fall take their toll of salmon and trout, deer and moose, and leave behind them greater prosperity for the natives.

And for the common folks, hither and yon, there are the innumerable coves and forest retreats, highlands and dells, where the lure of nature satisfies through summer vacations thousands who weary of city turmoil, social conventions and the drudgeries of life. For these people Maine has a wonderful mine of good health and comfort for body and intellect and soul! Casco bay is dotted with these roof-trees where happiness abides. Seguin overlooks innumerable others. So also do Penobscot bay and the Machias and St. Croix waters have their garden plots. And under the forest trees and nestled on cool heights more of these good folks turn Nomadic for the vacation season and court comfort perhaps more successfully than wealthier visitors in palatial homes or hotels.

"The self-same sun that shines upon his court, Hides not his visage from our cottage, but Looks on both alike."

Dominant, however, as a factor in Maine's development as a summer resort, are these hotels. Much have they done to advertise our scenery, the purity and health-restoring qualities of our waters, the supremacy of Maine as "The Playground of the Nation". Poland Spring has long been foremost in this work, flanked by equally famous hostleries at Samoset and now at Moosehead lake; while cabins, redolent of pine and spruce and clean woody odors, hail the fisher and hunter with pleasing aspect. Notable and important also is the transformation seen in the homes of the natives, where stuffy "best rooms" and close-blinded parlors have been converted into sunny quarters for the summer boarder.

So it is that Maine's wealth of scenery and nature's charms are bringing gold and silver to her coffers and health to her people. For it is sadly true that the visitor was needed in Maine to teach Maine how to live. The bigness of the western plains and hills and the love of the big out-of-doors all but died with the dying Indian; and the white, deep-aveded coats on our Maine farms have housed bad air and fostered consumption. But the vision is again with us. The health of the Maine hills is becoming the health of the Maine homes. Outdoor living is here to stay, and not by summer alone, but by winter also.

"'Tis night upon the lake. Our bed of boughs is built where—high above—the pine tree soughs."

'Tis still—and yet what woody noises loom Against the background of the silent glow! One might well hear the opening of a flower, if day were hushed as this."

And in the train of all these good things comes to Maine the development of her resources as a winter playground; of the winter sports, of her winter charms, of her winter health-giving qualities. Just across the northern frontier Montreal and Quebec have monopolized them, season after season. But snow-shoeing and tobogganing, skating ice-boating and skiing, winter tramping and winter camping have crossed the boundary line to the south, and Maine has begun to appropriate her own in this respect. Last season, practically for the first time, some one of the largest Maine hotels exploited winter attractions and found it profitable. And this is but the beginning of an undreamed-of winter future for Maine.

One is minded of Thoreau's words in "The Maine Woods", where, in the description of his rambles around Katahdin, he speaks of "the irrepressible tenderness and immortal life of the grim forest, where nature, though it be in mid-winter, is ever in her spring, where the moss-grown and decaying trees are not old but seem to enjoy a perpetual youth; and blissful, innocent nature, like a serene infant, is too happy to make a noise, except by a few tinkling, hissing birds and trickling rills. What a place to live, what a place to die and be buried in! There, certainly," he concludes, "men would live forever and laugh at death and the grave."

With Whittier do Maine's summer guests declare:
"Keep who will the city's alleys,
Take the smooth-shorn plain,
Give to us the cedar valleys,
Rocks and hills of Maine!
In our North-land, wild and woody,
Let us still have part:
Rugged nurse and mother sturdy,
Hold us to thy heart!"

THE BLACK DAGGER

A Story of China

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Garland and Harpeth met on the Pacific liner Tropic, and from the first attraction of congenial natures there developed a warm personal liking. Garland was from the state of Maine, and Harpeth was a son of California. Out of 70,000,000 human souls fate had drawn these two, one from the east and the other from the west, to play the principal parts in a strange incident.

They had left the fairy islands of Japan far behind and were drawing near to the flat outline of the China coast.

"Are you going to stop over in Shanghai?" asked Garland, with a touch of Yankee inquisitiveness. "Haven't heard you say."

There was a little pause while Harpeth's eyes sought the rising coast line. "Possibly." He clipped the word rather sharply.

Garland glanced at him curiously. "You know I really didn't mean to pry into your affairs," he said apologetically. "It's rather a natural question for one tourist to ask another."

"Surely; no harm done," returned Harpeth quickly. "How about yourself—you going to stop over?"

It was Garland's turn to show embarrassment. The quick look of interrogation he flashed at his companion was met by Harpeth's expression of languid indifference. It was quite plain that Harpeth had asked the question merely to make conversation, not that he cared a rap about the matter.

"Maybe I'll stop over to see the city," said Garland.

Clumsy junks came teetering over the sea toward the mouth of the Yangtze, but the Tropic left them far behind as she steamed up to her anchorage off Wusung and landed her eager passengers on to the little transfer tugs that would convey them up the tributary tidal river, the Huangpu, to hospitable Shanghai.

In the crowd Garland and Harpeth missed each other, accidentally or by design. Garland could scarcely wait for the tug to make her landing at the jetty before he was off and swinging away up the bund toward the hotel of his choice.

The electric lighted hotel, with its air of western luxury mingled with its quiet eastern service, impressed the Yankee wanderer most favorably, and he retired to his room and bath, whistling cheerfully at the prospect of the excellent dinner that he was sure awaited him below.

But when the meal was concluded and he had enjoyed the gastronomic delights which his fancy had conjured up he retired to the smoking room to pore over a queer little map drawn with brush strokes of India ink on mottled tissue paper.

It was an hour after midnight when he left the hotel and made his way along the bund to where a flight of stone steps led down to the river. Here were several sampans moored to the landing, and the coolies immediately fell to fighting for his patronage. He settled the matter by stepping into one of the little boats, and, being pounced upon by its delighted owner, he was soon paddled out into the stream, which glistened in the moonlight like molten silver.

"Kaoyang! Sabe!" he cried sharply. The coolie nodded his head and whirled the sampan about until it headed up stream. For a mile he paddled steadily with his long sweep-like oar and then suddenly ran the boat in between high banks on the north shore and grounded in the mud.

As if guided by some invisible hand, he who could not recollect ever having touched foot on this soil before sought for and found a narrow path winding upward to where a ruined temple crouched among a group of distorted wind blown cedars. The moon sent long rays down and here and there pierced the secret places with an illuminating touch. It showed Garland the outline of a dark arched opening, and he made for it fearlessly.

Just before he reached it he drew from his pocket the little map he had studied earlier in the evening and turned the flash from his pocket light upon it.

Pocketing the map and snapping off the light to hold it in his left hand while his right hand closed around a small repeating revolver, Garland plunged into the opening to find himself in the crooked passage, which was lighted down its length by the moon which hung above its roofless walls.

On either side of the white stone walls there stood out sharply the little black daggers, which seemed to point his way. Glancing to the right and left, he followed their guidance until one last circling curve of the passage brought him sharply up against another arched opening which gave forth a damp, earthy smell. On the stone post of the door was painted another black dagger pointing downward. Garland flashed on his lamp and saw a wriggling flight of broken stone steps dropping down into a black pit. For an instant he hesitated, and then, with a shrug of his shoulders, he stepped forward.

He counted twenty-seven steps in all before his feet touched soft earth. He extinguished his light for an instant and tried to pierce the darkness with his eyes.

Before he snapped on the light again he was started into rigidity by the sound of footsteps treading the passage overhead. They came rapidly with sharp, rattling clicks of leather boot heels on stone. This was not the soft padding of felted native slippers; it was the tread of a fearless man wearing European footgear or perhaps American boots like his own.

Garland moved backward and away from the steps until his back struck sharply against a cold wall. There he stood, a part of the enveloping blackness, while the footsteps stopped at the arched door, and then by the flare of a sputtering candle jammed in the neck of a soda water bottle Garland saw a pair of trousers descend the first few steps. Then as the man came down the candle flame lighted his shirt front and reached his chin just as a whiff of air from out of nowhere in particular extinguished the light.

"Dash it all!" muttered the man in English, and Garland felt a queer little thrill of relief that the interloper was not a Chinese.

After some fuming and a final exclamation of disgust because he failed to find another match about his person, the newcomer flung his candle aside and seemed to stop and consider the situation.

Perhaps he heard Garland's carefully controlled breathing, for suddenly he asked, "Who's there?"

Garland hesitated and then decided not to answer. Perhaps the stranger would go away now that he was without a light. In the meantime he would endeavor to reach his goal by edging along the wall against which he was leaning.

His feet made no sound in the soft earth, and he had made considerable progress when he became conscious of heavy breathing behind him, and he knew that the newcomer was following in his wake.

Garland reached an angle of the wall, followed it around, turned again and once again into a small square recess which had a window slanting upward to some cunningly contrived opening above ground which admitted the moonlight to throw a silver cloth over a stone table. On the stone table was a small shadowy silhouette of a dagger's blade.

The two men reached the table together and in the moonlight stared pantingly at each other. The moon lighted them up to their lips, and above that their faces were in darkness.

"If you've got a light for heaven's sake turn it on!" growled the newcomer impatiently, and Garland, as if it was the most natural thing in the world for him to have met a fellow white man on this secret errand of his, snapped on his lamp and threw its broad white beam across the face of Harpeth.

"Garland," said Harpeth stupidly. And then with fierce suspicion he went on: "You followed me. I thought better of you than that, old man."

"I was here first," ejaculated Garland. "I'm blamed if I don't believe you're following me!"

"You had an errand here?" Harpeth put the question hesitatingly.

"Yes, and yours is probably the same," said Garland, with a trace of relief in his tones. "I was fearfully afraid somebody would find out and get the cinch on me, but somehow it's so confoundedly spooky down here I'm glad of company, even if it's a rival for—"

He paused suggestively. "The black dagger?" asked Harpeth quietly.

Garland nodded. "I guess you've met with Wah Sung Loo, haven't you? I saw him in Portland."

"And in Los Angeles," admitted Harpeth. "Did he sell you information concerning the black dagger which contained one of the biggest emeralds in the world and which was concealed by one of his thieving ancestors in this spot? Did he tell you how you could reach it, and as he was dying and might never come back to this country he would sell a map of its location for $100? Well, he told me the same yarn, and I took a chance on it too. Since I started, however, I've had a thousand misgivings, the chief one being that the old rascal didn't believe the story himself. I believe that to him it was a tradition—nothing more, and he made money out of it."

"He stung me, too, and yet—I'm going to try for that black dagger. Harpeth. Here's the black dagger he gave me. I suppose you've got its mate. I'll just drop it in this slit. Well, by Jove, it touches something that's giving way! Now, what do you think of that?"

The table top swung up and slipped back into a recess disclosing a small square stone receptacle in which was crushed a heap of tattered yellow silk, which dropped to dust under their fingers. In the heap of dust was a dark object which Harpeth's fingers drew to the light. It was a small dagger of finely tempered steel, almost black in color. In the hilt was set the largest emerald the Americans had ever seen.

"It's a good thing it's big enough to divide, so we won't quarrel over it," said Garland, and the other nodded approval.

"I wonder if Wah Sung Loo knew this was here?" began Garland speculatively as they emerged into the open air.

"Never," interrupted Harpeth, with a grin. "Didn't believe it himself and thought he'd stung us for fair—hardly calculated we'd come out after it."

"I'm not sorry, though," chuckled Garland as they went back along the winding path to the river, where two sleepy coolies awaited them with sampans.

Senator Gardner. Gov. Plaisted has appointed Hon. Obadiah Gardner, of Rockland, United States senator to fill out the unexpired term of the late Senator Frye, or until March 4, 1913.

This appointment seems to be generally regarded as a very shrewd political move on the part of the governor. It rewards a persistent office-seeker, and at the same time removes what was a possible, indeed, a probable opponent for the nomination for governor at the next election.

It was through the grange that Mr. Gardner developed into a politician. He proved to be a skillful organizer; under this administration of ten years as State master, the grange quite doubled its membership.

But as his influence as a politician increased, his influence as a granger decreased, and finally led to his defeat as the head of the State grange. Mr. Gardner becomes the first farmer-senator from Maine, and one of the very few who have ever sat in that body.

Reciprocity Dead. While having the highest respect for President Taft, it is safe to say that a majority of the republicans of Maine were bitterly opposed to his advocacy of reciprocity with Canada, and the result of the election across the border is highly pleasing to them.

But whatever the effect of the treaty, had it been consummated, would have been on this country, the astonishing thing on both sides of the border is that the conservatives should have won. Evidently a majority of the Canadian voters did not agree with the anti-reciprocity argument on this side that the treaty would be a good thing for Canada, but a bad thing for the United States.

It is probable that the argument that reciprocity was only a step towards annexation, was quite as potent in bringing about the conservative victory as the argument against reciprocity itself.

The result effectually disposes of the claim which has been made for so long and so loudly by Gov. Foss and his adherents that all this country needed was reciprocity with Canada, and that it could be had for the asking.

The mass-meeting Monday evening gave emphatic evidence of the interest taken by the people of Ellsworth in the attempt to bring the East Maine Conference seminary to Ellsworth. There was a large attendance in spite of the rain. The meeting gave its unanimous and hearty endorsement to the project, and pledged its support to the seminary if located here.

COUNTY GOSSIP.

The Hancock county teachers' convention will be held at Bar Harbor Friday, Oct. 6.

Capt. N. H. Means, of Ellsworth, raised from one plant of yellow-eye beans, 307 beans.

Alfred E. Tracy, of West Hancock, goes James W. Smith one better in the big cucumber line. He brings to THE AMERICAN office a cucumber seventeen inches long and fourteen inches in circumference and weighing five pounds.

D. B. Mooney, of Seawall, has a sunflower planted from the same kind of seed as those around it which have the regular single large blossom. This one has nineteen good-sized blossoms, some are quite large, and two more coming.

State Board of Trade. At the annual meeting of the State board of trade in Portland last week, Col. F. E. Boothby, of Portland, was elected president, and Edward M. Blanding, of Bangor, and Gorham N. Weymouth, of Biddeford, were re-elected secretary and treasurer respectively.

At the banquet in the evening, William J. Bryan, who was in Portland for a few hours, was an unexpected guest, and made short address.

FESTIVAL TO BE GREAT.

Greater Galaxy of Stars Than Ever Before—Crystal Anniversary. Director-in-Chief Chapman, of the Maine music festival, is very enthusiastic over the prospects of the festival this year. He is now making a whirlwind tour of the State and expects to visit every local chorus before the festival opens in Bangor on Thursday, Oct. 12.

In Bangor last week Mr. Chapman waxed eloquent over the outlook. "The festival this year," he said, "is the crystal music festival of Maine, and its going to be the greatest since the festival was started. In addition to a series of great concerts by famous artists, including the world-renowned Mary Garden, we're going to have a crystal dinner. Mr. Beal is to be the host at a big dinner party at the Bangor house just before the opening concert and all the artists, conductors and presidents of choruses will be his guests. It will be a great occasion.

"Coming down to the prospects for the festival, they are simply immense, and you can quote me as saying that, in my judgment, the fifteenth Maine music festival is going to be the greatest all-around musical and financial success since the festival was started. I believe that Mary Garden will be greeted by record-breaking audiences, and you can state right here that we would never have secured this famous singer for the Maine festival if we had known beforehand that the Portland City hall would not be ready for the concert.

"The coming concerts will present the only opportunity for Maine people to hear this wonderful artist, as she has just announced that she will not return to this country again after this season.

"The seat sale to date has been wonderful. Over in Portland they have sold 250 more course tickets than they did last year, which is ahead of the record in previous seasons, while here in Bangor the sale equals, if not exceeds, that of last year.

"Festival-goers are going to be crazy about Mary Garden, and well they may, too, for she is one of the world's greatest artists. She is going to sing the entire Jewel Song scene from Faust in costume, and it's going to prove a big feature.

"But despite the fact that we are going to have Mary Garden with us this year, the other artists must not be overlooked, as each is great in his or her own sphere. I am returning Alma Gluck this year to satisfy the thousands of demands from her Maine admirers, and I need not say that I think she should draw as large audiences as any of the artists, not excepting Mary Garden, for she is certainly a splendid vocalist, beautiful and charming, with a magnificent voice and delightful stage presence.

"Lambert Murphy, our tenor, will prove one of the greatest surprises of the concert. His voice equals in power and beauty Evan Williams' in its palmy days. A second Schumann-Heink will be discovered in Mildred Potter, while Royal Dadmun is one of the finest baritones in New York city, and we've got a few of 'em there, too. Lillie Ormond, whose success in London this summer has been so great that she will be engaged for fifteen concerts by the Boston symphony, will also prove to be one of the greatest artists of the festival. Lois Ewell, whose beauty of voice and person will not be excelled by even the famous Mary Garden, will make one of the greatest hits of the concert.

"The second night program will be one of the most brilliant order. We have given up the oratorio in order that the public may hear a popular and brilliant program, and I predict that it will be one of the most enjoyable and successful of the series.

"For an orchestra this year we are going to have the well-known Boston opera house organization, and you can say right here that there are few better in existence. Bangor people won't be disappointed in this organization.

"I have arranged for special trains Mary Garden night, and low rates will prevail from all points for the festival. Festival-goers should not fail to avail themselves of the opportunity of securing course tickets. The sale of these closes Sept. 27, in Bangor.

Independent Voting in Maine.

(Boston Globe.)

Examples of independent voting grow more and more frequent, the latest object lesson being furnished by the referendum in Maine on four questions of importance. That the voters of the Pine Tree state wear nobody's collar and do their own thinking is shown by the variation in the majorities on these four questions.

On the burning question of repeal the margin is so close that the vote is almost a tie, and on the question of permitting cities of 40,000 or more inhabitants to increase their debt limit, in which question Portland was chiefly interested, the margin of permission was only 530 votes.

The total vote on repeal was nearly 121,000, while the debt limit question was not voted upon by about 43,000 who voted on repeal. On the question of forever locating the capital at Augusta the total vote was about 100,000, and the margin in favor about 16,000. On indorsing state-wide primaries the majority reached the astonishing total of 44,000 in a vote of 87,000.

One can almost see how the mind of the voter worked in the booth. He voted on the principal issue, of course, and then on the others according to his understanding. The question of debt limit, not being readily understood, was passed by 43,000 people, whereas the simpler question of whether Augusta ought to remain the capital was answered by all but 20,000. State-wide primaries, being a step toward popular government, was indorsed in the ratio of three to one.

Here is independence for you, and of the kind that is needed in the whole country.

Nominated by the Governor. Among nominations by the governor recently announced are the following in Hancock county:

Recorder Bar Harbor municipal court, George F. Berry.

Notaries public—W. B. Bissell, North Sullivan; James N. Emery, Bar Harbor.

POLITICS IN THE '30s.

[The following political document was recently found among some old papers in an old secretary desk purchased many years ago of Mrs. L. A. Emery's uncle, Elias Dudley, of Hampden, an old Whig, prominent in his day—1830 to 1838. Leonard Jarvis was an uncle of Mrs. Ann F. Greely. Seawall Lake was prominent in these parts. The use of capitals and italics is followed in this reprint.]

To the Democratic Republican Electors of the Eastern Congressional District: FELLOW CITIZENS,—

On the 17th of February a large and numerous meeting of Democratic Republicans from the Counties of Hancock and Waldo convened at Bucksport, pursuant to public notice, for the purpose of designating a candidate to be supported for member of Congress. At this meeting LEONARD JARVIS, Esq. of Ellsworth was on the second ballot unanimously nominated for that office, and the undersigned were appointed a Committee to address you on the subject of this Election. Already you have been called upon at five different times to give in your votes to accomplish this object and we still present the singular anomaly of being unrepresented in Congress.

The enquiry naturally suggests itself why the interests of this great & extensive district should remain unrepresented when a majority of its Electors are known to be Democratic in their principles and consequently most decidedly in favor of the present National Administration. Do we not find the reason in the mortifying reflection that sectional and personal considerations have been suffered too much to influence this important election.

This meeting was proposed by the two Counties and convened in the spirit of amity for the purpose of healing those differences of opinion and thereby to concentrate all our strength in support of the candidate there designated, and after a free interchange of sentiments among its members, we are happy to state that great unanimity prevailed. In this spirit of compromise Mr. Jarvis is presented at this time as a candidate, having at two former trials received a plurality of votes over each of his competitors and a decided majority of the Democratic votes of this District and in the belief that the united strength of the party may be brought to his support at the next trial and his election thereby secured.

No one who knows Mr. Jarvis will deny that he possesses the qualifications to represent the District with ability. His avocation as a farmer, his situation in life for many years past and the various offices he has filled have all tended to render him particularly conversant with those great branches of Industry, Agriculture, Navigation and Trade, upon which the prosperity of this State so vitally depends, understanding your interests in these great and leading branches of industry, & possessing a disposition as well as talent to make that knowledge useful to his constituents, he cannot fail to represent the District with advantage. It must be evident to all, that such talents are most needed in Congress, particularly from this Commercial District. Experience has abundantly shown that all restrictions on our commerce have invariably had a tendency to diminish the value of the produce of our own soil and thereby to check the settlement of our extensive unoccupied lands.—The evil not only bears heavily on the hardy and honest Yeomanry of our Country, but on that highly respectable and deserving class of citizens, the MECHANICS, who from the time the Fathers of our Independence pledged to each other, their lives, their fortunes and sacred honors in defence of their rights, have never failed in time of peace to find profitable employ in the manufacture of ships; till the unwarrantable measures of the last Administration prostrated all their hopes.—We are naturally led to enquire, to whom we shall look to restore our National affairs to their former prosperous state, we answer, to that class of politicians and to that class alone, who held in admiration the principles and policy which characterized the administration of the departed JEFFERSON.

The resources of our Country had become extensively developed at that period and most of the important provisions of the constitution were required to be properly and practically applied for the purposes they were obviously intended. It was then that the Government in all its branches was administered in strict and undeviating obedience to the plain and manifest provisions of that sacred charter and palladium of our rights and liberties. It was then that REPUBLICANISM which will the good of the whole, triumphed over FEDERALISM which will the good of the few. It was then that the cardinal branches of Industry were all equally protected and our beloved country exhibited an unrivalled state of prosperity and which has continued with little interruption, till the partisans of the last administration denounced Democracy as an idle tale and construed the Constitution to mean any and every thing to suit their purposes of self aggrandizement.

Mr. Jarvis is known to be decidedly opposed to the Tariff, so justly denominated, "the Bill of Abominations, the offspring of a mistaken policy in the last administration and which bears so oppressively upon the interests of this State. This ill devised measure is one of the many which originated with the adherents of Messrs. Adams and Clay, and notwithstanding a seal of reprobation is fixed on this absurd and oppressive system in almost every part of the Union, we still see every member of Congress with only three or four exceptions, who belong to that class of politicians, voting against its modification or even consideration.

We have viewed with surprise and astonishment the votes of these members from New-England, particularly from this State; to sustain a system so manifestly against the wishes and prosperity of their constituents. In the election of Mr. Jarvis we shall find an able advocate and supporter of our true interests and one whose talents will be steadily directed to protect the Constitution against all those forced constructions whereby the Constitution is infringed of State rights, and ultimately to effect the consolidation of the Government. In short the National policy so admirably illustrated in the message of that distinguished patriot and Statesman who now guides the destinies of our Country, and who Mr. Jarvis was one of the first in this District to assist in electing to the highest office in the gift of the people, will be the great polar star within which to confine his Legislative labours.

We have thus briefly given the reasons which influence our minds in support of the candidate now presented for your suffrages; that other candidates will be brought forward by your opponents, the Federalists, the National Republicans and the Huntontites, all of which are synonymous terms, there can be no doubt, and their election urged with much zeal and all the plausibility which sophistry itself can invent.

If any one at this period entertains doubts as to National Republicanism and Huntontism being Federalism, he is invited to examine the proceedings of these self-styled Nationalists in our State Legislature, and if he is not convinced of the fact, it would be presumption in us to attempt to enlighten his understanding.

If we judge men by their works rather than by their professions, and there is any truth in the remark, that a TREE is known by its FRUIT, it is impossible to mistake the distinction of parties at this time.

Fellow Citizens, as you value the republican Institutions of our Government and the principles you profess, be not deceived in this important election, but come unitedly forward on the first Monday of April and give your votes for MR. JARVIS, the only candidate of your party and thereby add one more to that List in the Councils of the Nation, whose energies are so necessarily directed in aid of the great and beneficial WORK OF REFORM.

BENJAMIN SHAW, NATHANIEL M. LOWNEY, SEAWALL LAKE. March 12, 1830.

SENATOR OBADIAH GARDNER.

Governor Plaisted Announced His Appointment Saturday.

The appointment of Obadiah Gardner, of Rockland, to be United States senator, to complete the unexpired term of the late Senator William P. Frye, was announced Saturday by Governor Frederick W. Plaisted. Mr. Gardner is State assessor, having been appointed to that office by Governor Plaisted for a term of six years in April.

For many years Mr. Gardner has been a prominent figure in Maine. He served several terms as master of the State grange. In 1908 he was the democratic nominee for governor, and polled more than 66,000 votes—the largest vote, with one exception, ever recorded for the head of the democratic ticket in this State. Last year he was the candidate for the democratic nomination for governor, but was defeated in the convention by Mr. Plaisted. He received twenty votes in the legislative election of a United States senator in January, when Charles F. Johnson was elected. Mr. Gardner's term as senator will expire March 4, 1913.

Obadiah Gardner was born in Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 13, 1852, and lived there during his boyhood. He completed his education at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and settled in Rockland thirty-six years ago. His family consists of his wife and one son. He is the first farmer to enter the Senate from Maine, and the present time is the only instance of two democratic senators from this State since 1851.

Emery Family.

BUILDING OF ARTS.

Bar Harbor Owes Much to this Splendid Institution.

[Bar Harbor Cor. Bangor Commercial.]

To the Building of Arts-Bar Harbor owes much, and this is not well enough realized by more than a few. This resort owes its popularity first and foremost to the natural beauty of the Maine coast; to the glorious flash of the sea and the grandeur of Frenchman's bay; to the mountain fastnesses standing about, one peak being the highest on the Atlantic coast of America; to the woods' paths and the many pleasant drives, and to all things given by nature to the island of Mt. Desert. The pure water and the pure air; the quietness of the place; the gradual bringing together of congenial summer residents, as year has succeeded year, until at last Bar Harbor's summer colony has become one vast family; these things, uniting with the surge of the surf and the song of the sea, have made Bar Harbor what she always and forever shall be, without any doubt, America's leading summer resort.

Incidental means to the end have had their place. They have all been born of the popularity and success of the resort, rather than being themselves the forerunners. And among these incidental reasons for Bar Harbor's continued and increasing popularity is the Building of Arts.

In the very first place five people were responsible for the birth of the Building of Arts, and they were Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, Mrs. Robert Abbe, Henry Lane and George Vanderbilt, of New York, and George B. Dorr, of Boston. Since then others have become identified with the life of the building, Mrs. John I. Kane and Dave Heman Morris, of New York, being numbered among these. Efficient committees, having a heart in the project, have taken over the interests of the building, and the work has progressed well.

July 15, 1907, was the date of the opening of the Building of Arts, and on the afternoon of that date Madame Emma Eames, the Maine woman of world-wide fame in the music world, and the well-known baritone concert singer, Gorgozo, held a magnificent audience spellbound. Since that time Mme. Alma Gluck and other brilliant artists have sung in this building, and many audiences have been well pleased with many concerts.

To some little extent the idea has prevailed that the Building of Arts has become or is destined to become a "white elephant"; but this is not correct. The idea thus expressed is conceived only by those who, it would sometimes appear, are of the thought that anything and everything of this or any other character that is launched upon the sea of life is brought into being with only a money-making object in view on the part of its promoters. The Building of Arts was not thought of nor was it at last a reality because of any money-making hope. Its promoters realized that the building would not pay the interest on the investment. They knew that they, with a few others, would find it necessary to themselves contribute funds towards its support. And this they have done, and willingly.

The primary object of the building was and is to have here in Bar Harbor, on a site unequalled in nature endowment, both near and afar, from exquisite grove surroundings to the splendid hills in the distance, across the links of the Kebo Valley club, a building, superb in point of architecture, which might be the home of musical and dramatic effort in this country, in the summertime. And this, in the hope of those interested, the Building of Arts will become. Nobody will dissent, it is believed, from the opinion that in the matter of nature endowment and general artistic setting this beautiful and beautifully situated building is all that its originators could have hoped for, and more than any originators of similar projects in this country have produced.

It was the idea of the founders to make this building a starting point, if possible, for those who are just beginning their musical career, as well as to hold concerts here at which the best-known artists may be heard. The Building of Arts, it is hoped, may become unique in this country in this respect. It is the hope that many a young musician, vocal or instrumental, may have his or her real beginning here. No more favorable conditions could be found under which to give young artists their start in their possible careers, and this plan on the part of the founders and supporters of the Building of Arts is most commendable. The aim of men and women behind this enterprise is to set the pace in artistic effort—to create an ideal in the place of highest standard. The whole setting of the building is such that nowhere in the United States, either in city or in the country according to those who have traveled much, can a place be found more conducive to this object.

The Building of Arts was not and is not intended to be exclusively used by foreign artists. The Bar Harbor choral society has given delightful entertainments there; and it is the hope that it will do so in the future. There have been also benefit entertainments for the Bar Harbor hospital. Prices of seats at the concerts are made low, so that the regular entertainments are open to all. And also the building has been used each year by the Horticultural society of Bar Harbor for its annual flower show, always attended by very many.

It is the hope that in the future more of amateur work may be done here. Among the Bar Harbor summer colony are many who have talent, and such, according to the present plan for next season, will use the building for practice and rehearsal purposes, thereby gaining experience. But it must be understood, that those who are most interested in the Building of Arts desire to make the building as much as possible a means to an end in the local civic line. It is as much for Bar Harbor residents as it is for those who come here only during the summer months. It is, indeed, the plan to have, within a few years, a grand pageant in the building, or rather in the unequalled grove in its rear, which shall portray the history of the island of Mt. Desert; for the resorts in one vicinity of Bar Harbor, it must be remembered, are not thought of as far away, but as being close neighbors and identified with the popularity of Bar Harbor to a great extent. The Buildings of Arts is not devoted to the interests of music only. Dramatic performances have been given there. Ben Greet players, the Coburn players, a company of artists from the New theatre in New York, and Madame Pilar-Morin, last year, have pleased large gatherings, just as, in the musical way, aside from the regular concerts, the Hess-Schroeder quartet aroused enthusiasm by its appearance here.

This year's concerts have paid for themselves, although one or two of them were arranged hastily and were little advertised. More concerts will be held next year, and next season also the dramatic performances omitted this summer, will be again taken up. It is expected that a number of well-known summer residents, prominent amateurs, will be seen there.

And next year, too, it is planned to have a regular Building of Arts orchestra, which will be welcomed here, and which will play on stated occasions, when summer residents and all-the-year-round residents alike will have the opportunity and privilege of hearing first-class orchestral music.

The Building of Arts, in all its lovely setting, and with its own grace and charm, is distant from the centre of the village only about five minutes by carriage, and the wood paths make it very easy of access to the pedestrian.

SECRET OF THE SEA.

How the Widow Wadman Got Record Fare of Codfish.

[From the Bangor News.]

Capt. William Grindle, of Bucksport, famous Grand Bank skipper, hunter, trapper and widely known for his truthful tales of the sea, furnishes more entertainment at the Sailors' Snug Harbor home than a three-ringed circus. When things are getting slow, Cap'n Bill starts something with a tale of the sea that makes even the toughest old sea-dog, hauled up there, sit up and listen. The Cap'n never departs from the path of truth, although some folks who never went to sea, might doubt some of his rather startling tales of the mighty deep.

Capt. Prentiss Bugbee is a great admirer of Cap'n Bill's vast fund of sea lore. He says:

"Capt. Billy Grindle, as we call him, has at last told us the secret of the wonderful fare of the Grand Banker Widow Wadman, the schooner that brought in the biggest codfish which ever were landed at Bucksport—most of them from five to six feet long, after being split.

"Where Capt. Billy and Capt. Sparrow got such fish was the talk of the town, but no one would tell, and it has never been told until now. According to Cap'n Billy, the Widow Wadman sailed from Bucksport and went on her way all right until, becalmed off Sable Island, they saw quite near them a floating cask that was full of something. They quickly lowered their foresail and with the halliards hooked on to the cask and soon had it on deck. To find out what it contained took but a short time, as all hands had a try at it. It was unanimously agreed that it was the very best of West India rum. But to make sure they kept trying, and of course they were all ready for business when the wind breezed up which was in a short time.

"About this time there was great excitement about finding the North Pole, so they all concluded, as the wind was fair, they would try to find the North Pole instead of going fishing. Capt. Sparrow said he knew a way through the Straits and they would make a short cut and save time.

"As it was a very large cask, the rum held out well. They sailed on toward the north and soon began to fall in with ice. They tried the rum some more and had more ice; finally they got so much ice that they could go no farther. They rested awhile, tried the rum some more, and found themselves hopelessly frozen in.

"Cap'n Billy thought he would sound and see how much water there was. He heaved a cod line, several 'shots' put together, so as to be sure and have enough, and went about half a mile on the ice from the vessel. He cut a hole in the ice, so he says, and dropped the bait in it, but it did not go far, for the codfish were so thick that the sinker could not get through them. Cap'n Billy commenced pulling them out and there was not a fish less than four feet and some six feet long. They went to work and soon had fish piled high on the ice around them.

"In the meantime, some one who had not tried the rum so much glued a hair across the field glass of the telescope they had with them. Capt. Sparrow tried the rum again and took a look, and sure enough he saw the pole. The rest took a look, too, and sure enough they all decided it was the pole and there was no use of trying to get any further.

"Some Esquimaux came to them on the ice and they hired them to carry the fish to the vessel for a biscuit barrel. All hands went to dressing down and soon had the Widow Wadman full. About this time many serious problems were coming up before them. The cask of rum was getting low, and how to get back home again was the question, for there was no certainty of finding another cask to help them out.

"But there was good fortune after them. A seventy-foot sperm whale hit the hole they had made in the ice and he was going so fast that he ran clear out on the ice. All they had to do was to shoot a few red hot spikes in him and he was theirs. He served them a good turn in many ways. They sold the carcass to the Esquimaux for a large sum, and in coming through the hole he broke the ice so that it gave them a way to get out and get safe home again. "The Widow Wadman was loaded 'scuppers under', and they sold the fish for a large sum, but they never told the secret of how and where they got such a fare of such big fish, and to-day it is as full of a secret in Bucksport as ever."

LAKEWOOD.

Miss Linnie Davis, of Augusta, is spending her vacation with her parents, Roland Davis and wife. Sept. 25. B.

World's Greatest Traveler.

The world's most extraordinary traveler is the Arctic tern, which migrates from pole to pole, thus shunning the darkness of night.

The tern nests as far north as land has been discovered; that is, as far north as it can find anything stable on which to construct its nest. Indeed, so arctic are the conditions under which it breeds that a nest found only 7 1/2 degrees (about 500 miles) from the pole contained a downy chick surrounded by a wall of newly-fallen snow, which had been scooped out of the nest by the parent.

When the young tern is fully grown the entire family leaves the Arctic, and some months later the birds are found skirting the edges of the Antarctic continent. What their track is over the 11,000 miles of intervening space no one knows.

A few scattered birds have been seen along the United States coast south of Long Island, but the great flocks of thousands and thousands which alternate from one pole to the other have never been observed by any trained ornithologists competent to learn their preferred path and time schedule.

They arrive in the far north early in June, and leave about Aug. 25. They probably stay a few weeks longer in the winter home than in the summer home, which, if so, leaves them about twenty weeks for the round trip of 22,000 miles.

But by this migration the Arctic terns have more hours of daylight and sunlight than any other animals on the globe. At the most northern nesting site the mid-night sun has already appeared before their arrival, and it never sets during their entire stay. During two months of the stay in the Antarctic they do not see a sunset, and for the rest of the time the sun dips only a little way below the horizon and broad daylight continues all night.

They have, therefore, twenty-four hours of daylight for at least eight months of the year, and during the other four months have considerably more daylight than darkness.

They Come Together.

Backache and kidney ache are usually inseparable. Some Ellsworth people are learning how to get rid of both. Does your back ever ache? Feel lame, weak—so sore you can hardly work? Are you making the common mistake—waiting for it to pass away? To cure the backache, you must cure the kidneys. The pain may cease, but is sure to return. You may feel tired and worn-out all the time. Urinary troubles may annoy you, headaches and dizziness. Make up your mind your kidneys need attention. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills at once. Doan's have strengthened thousands of sick, weakened kidneys. Have driven out kidney backaches for good. No Ellsworth reader can doubt the following statement. Hiram W. Hamilton, Mill St., Ellsworth Falls, Me., says: "I was troubled by kidney complaint for quite awhile. A friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me, and, procuring a box, I began their use. They benefited me greatly. I willingly recommend this remedy to anyone afflicted with kidney complaint." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Sister Julia Gaptill, in her usual pleasing manner, gave the address of welcome, which was ably responded to by Sister Helen Leighton, of Milbridge. The members also had the privilege of greeting Grand Chief Inzetta Small, who faithfully instructed throughout the work. Halcyon temple had a candidate in waiting who was initiated, the work being done by a degree team made up from the several temples. A beautiful supper was served. The convention was a great success. Much credit is due D. D. G. C. Maria Hovey, of Puritan temple, who by her untiring efforts and faithful services added so much to the success of the convention. Before closing a vote of thanks from the visiting members was extended to Halcyon temple for its hospitality. At the close of the meeting, ice-cream and cake were served. Sept. 25. C.

WEST EDEN. OBITUARY. This community was saddened Sept. 15 by the death of one of its most esteemed citizens, Eben F. Burns. Although in poor health for some time, his death came as a shock to his friends. He was sixty-eight years of age. His kindly personality endeared him to all, and he had a large circle of warm friends. He was ever ready to lend a helping hand in everything which would be for the benefit or improvement of the community. He was a devoted husband and father, and all hearts go out in sympathy to his family in their bereavement. He was a soldier in the Civil war. He enlisted July 22, 1862, in Co. C, of the 18th Maine, afterward the First Maine heavy artillery. He served in his regiment until June 18, 1864, when he received injuries from which he never fully recovered, and he was discharged March 24, 1865. He was a member of the James M. Parker post, G. A. R., of Bar Harbor, and was at one time commander. The funeral was at the home on Sept. 17, conducted by Rev. Stephen H. Green, of St. Saviour's, Bar Harbor, assisted by Rev. Mr. Smith, of St. Paul's mission, of West Eden, of which the deceased was a member. The services at Mountain View cemetery were conducted by the members of the post, assisted by Rev. Mr. Smith. Many beautiful floral pieces were sent—one from the Mountain View grange, one from the members of his post and others from relatives and friends. He leaves a widow and two children—S. L. Burns, of West Eden, and Mrs. Frank Pinkham, of Seal Harbor. Sept. 21. SPEC.

SOUTHWEST HARBOR. Mrs. Phoea Robbins has moved back to Seal Cove. A. I. Holmes has again opened his hotel to the commercial travelers. Rufus Trundy and wife are in charge. The last of the summer colony, the Inman and Cooper families, will leave for their city homes this week. Rev. C. W. Robinson, pastor of the Congregational church, will take a two weeks' vacation. There will be no preaching at that church Oct. 1 and 8, but the Sunday school will meet as usual. Mrs. Venia Hodgkins, who had been joined at Sorrento by her daughter, Mrs. J. O. Whitcomb, of Syracuse, N. Y., came to Southwest Harbor Friday of last week, but will spend a few days at Northeast Harbor and Bar Harbor, before Mrs. Whitcomb returns to her home. Mrs. Fred Robbins came from Heron Neck light station last week to meet her sister, Mrs. Stephen Harmon, of Jonesport, who came for her children, who had spent a happy summer at the station. While here they celebrated the birthday of their mother, Mrs. Eliza Robbins, with a buckboard ride and numerous presents. Owing to the praiseworthy zeal of School Supervisor Williams, sanitary plumbing, bubble fountain and flush closets have been installed in the Southwest Harbor schoolhouse. Thanks are due many of the summer people who contributed to the fund for this much-needed improvement. Sept. 25. SPRAY.

Cedron Seed Plant.
 In Central America many natives are gathering the seeds of this plant, Cedron Seed, a rare medicine that has valuable curative powers. But few drug stores carry this seed, owing to the high cost of the article.
 This country is a large consumer of this costly seed because it enters into the famous, catarrh remedy, Feruss, sold the world over.
Stomach Troubles Relieved.
 Those people who suffer with the distressing symptoms attending chronic dyspepsia will be interested to read the following voluntary testimonial:
 "I have kept the L. F. Atwood's bitters in the house for over twenty years and have received great benefit from them. It does seem as though I could not keep house without them. In the past I have had a very bad stomach trouble, and could hardly do my work. After taking a few bottles of the true L. F. Atwood's Medicine, I became much better. My niece has also been greatly benefited by them. We both are willing to recommend the medicine to all who need a remedy for dyspepsia and constipation." Mrs. C. S. Dunning, R. F. D. Sixteen ounces of performance to every pound of promise in the advertisements of THE AMERICAN.

Perhaps some of your crops have disappointed you this year, but if you sowed a few seeds of kindness, as we advised last spring, that crop did not disappoint you. Another thing: If you didn't plant them 'til not yet too late--this is one of the best "catch" crops known. Try it.

Sincerely any farmers in Congress; we don't like it.

There are few things in life more despicable than the man who blames it on his wife.

Looking at the sun through a whiskey glass shows the picture of the poorhouse and thin soup.

In these days of muck-racking, the farmer who is able to rake up a good compost heap stands to win.

Somebody has said that a dog with no teeth has a soft snap. We'd rather think that he has no snap at all.

Corn in the crib is just in the right spot, but is the spot right? Or will the rats get more than their share of it?

Most horses can hear well, and yet you would think from the sound of some men's voices when at work that the animals were deaf as their posts.

Don't forget to save out corn for seed while you are husking it. Just because an ear of corn is large, does not necessarily make it the best for seed. See that the rows are straight from tip to butt, and that the kernels are well formed and plump.

If potatoes are inclined to rot, don't be in a hurry to dig yours. Leave them in the ground as long as you can before digging. There will be far less waste. I have seen some lots of potatoes all go to mush after they were dug; whereas, if they had been left in the earth till cold weather came on, most of them might have been saved.

Many a good man is in such haste to let the world know where he stands on the tariff, reciprocity, and the direct election of senators, that his patient wife cannot find out where he stands on the important domestic questions of water in the house and a new carpet for the parlor. Save the country, brethren; that's right; but don't forget to save the wife, for after all what is the country to you when you have lost a good helpmeet?

Storing vegetables. Onions: Store in a loft rather than in the cellar. In the latter they will sprout to their injury. A few parsnips for winter use may be lifted and stored in sand in the cellar; but, as freezing sweetens them, it is best to leave many of them outdoors for later use. Potatoes: Store in bins one foot or eighteen inches deep, raised somewhat from the floor. Do not bruise or they will be likely to rot. Roots in the nature of salsify and horseradish, freezing does not hurt, so the main lot may stay out where grown; but some should be dug and put in earth in the cellar for winter use.

In the large producing sections cabbages are stored in specially prepared frost proof houses. But they are often stored in cellars, barns or caves. Some growers store in pits and there is no better way to keep the heads crisp and fresh. The main thing is to keep out frost and provide for ventilation. Whatever the plan of storing, don't wait for freezing weather before harvesting.

Keeping cabbages: Select a dry place in the patch, pull up the cabbages and stand them close together, heads down. Cover with soil from five to ten inches deep, thinly at first so they will not heat, covering only enough to prevent freezing as the season advances. The burying beds may be made from four to six feet wide. A few cabbages for present use can be stored, heads down, in a barrel in the cellar, but the bulk of the crop should be left outdoors.

Of the great men's signatures that were written to the Declaration of Independence, hardly one is legible now. But this is due to the fact that some sixty years ago in taking a fac simile, the press copy absorbed the ink from nearly all the signatures.
